Many Mourn Death of Mrs. McCormick

Many friend in Morrisburg and throughout the district learned with genuine regret on Sunday of the tragic death of Mrs. Leslie J. McCormick, which followed an auntomobile accident near Carthage, N. Y. early that morning.

Mr. and Mrs. McCormick and their daughter Patricia were motoring to Utica, N. Y., where the latter, a nurse, was to entrain for New York to resume her duties at Roosevelt Hospital, after spending her holidays at her home here. After leaving Ogdensburg, they were travelling south, near Carthage, when they saw a car approaching from the right at a road intersection. The east-bound car caught the right rear of the McCormick vehicle, causing the right door to spring open, and Mrs. McCormick was thrown heavily to the pavement. Nearby residents called police and a doctor who had the injured woman removed to hospital at Carthage, but she was dead upon admittance.

Miss Patricia McCormick received a cu t over the eye, as well as numerous bruises.

Mrs. McCormick, whose maiden name was Edith May Brownlee, was born at North Gower, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Brownlee Sr. After attending schools there she entered the service of the Royal Bank, being employed in branches at Osgoode, Winchester and Carleton Place. In 1925 she was married at Ottawa to Leslie J. McCormick of Winchester. In 1934 they came to Morrisburg, where her husband had received an appointment to the Customs staff.

A member of Knox Presbyterian Church, she was an ardent worker, being a member of various church societies. She had been treasurer of the Missionary Society and a teacher in the Sunday School. She was also a member of the Order of the Eastern Star and had been one of the officials of that organization.

Survivors, besides her husband, are one daughter, Mis Patricia McCormick of the nursing taff of the Roosevelt Hospital, New York City; two sons, oJhn McCormick and Robert McCormick at home; thre brothers, James Brownlee and Horace Brownlee, North Gower; , Dawson Brownlee, Osgoode; and two sisters, Mrs. Anson Hyland, Kars and Mrs. Ben Moffatt, Kemptville.

The funeral service, which was very largely attended was held from the Keck Funeral Home, Morrisburg to Knox Presbyterian Church, and conducted by the Rev. H. Huestin of Morewood. The church was filled to capacity, many coming from distant points to pay a final tribute to one whose exemplary life had endeared her to all.

Following the service, interment was made in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

Bearers were A. Murdock, C. L. Deeks, R. Hummell, A. Flynn, E. S. Coores, G. E. Fraser.

ST. PETER'S LUTHER LEAGUE MEETING

A very enjoyable evening was had by all Luther Leaguers on Tuesday evening in the basement of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Williamsburg. The devotional period of the meeting was led by the President, Harold Waldroff. The Scripture was read by Joan Trickey. Harold Waldroff spoke on the motto of the Luther League "Of the Church, By the Church, For the Church", which was found very interesting.

Later the business part of the meeting was held, where old and new business was discussed.

Rev. J. S. Neff spoke on his experiences in British Columbia. He stated that this province is totally different than any other part of Canada. Most people lived in the Fraser valley and the tip of Vancouver Island. He also stated that the CNR. entered the most beautiful part of the province where there are many scenic parks. Vancouver nestles against the mountanis. He showed a map of Vancouver and explained it very briefly. He said it is very strange how Vancouver is situated in the centre of mountains approximately 5,000 feet high. He said when it rains, it doesn't stop for about 4 weeks and is very foggy for about 6 weeks steady. Rev. Neff stated many more interesting points about this beautiful province which was enjoyed by every one present.

Everyone took part in playing ping-pong, and refreshments were then served by Joan Trickey, Mary McIntosh and Elain Couglar. The meeting was then closed with prayer by Rev. Neff.

SPORTSMEN ATTENTION

The following is an open letter to sportsment from Mr. W. E. Steele the district forester at Kemptville.

"We are now approaching the second open season on Hungarian partridge in the history of Ontario. This year the season has been lengthened (October 2nd to 9th) and the bag limit increased to 6 birds per day (12 in possession). A good shoot should be enjoyed by all.

In order to increase our knowledge of these birds, we are conducting a study of their habits and reproductive capacity. Much valuable information can be obtained from the shoot, and hunters are being asked to co-operate in order that this valuable game bird may be more efficiently managed.

From the hunt it is desired to obtain a se and age ratio of the population in order to determine the rate of turnover during the past year. To obtain this information, one wing is required from each bird shot. Hunters may co-operate by cutting one wing off each bird (close to the shoulder) and sending the wings to the district office at Kemptville, or to the local Enforcement Officer.

We are also sending out Game Bag Census cards which co-operating sportsmen are requested to use. Information from htese cards is very valuable to the furthering of the management of our game. These cards should be filled out for all pecies.

Sportsmen's clubs are requested to co-operate by making these cards available to all their members and resuesting their use.

Thank you and Good Shooting.

W. E. STEELE,
District Forester.

ANNE HIRST
Your Family Counselor

"Dear Anne Hirst: I am in great worry. We have three children and are expecting another. My husband (who is much older) has turned so cold toward me!

"No one longs for love and affection more than a woman in the condition I'm in. He never takes me anywhere, says he can't afford it. I need some amusement, but I am not getting any. I don't nag, though it's hard to resist sometimes.

"He seems willing to provide for us, but he doesn't understand that the children are not getting the proper diet for their ages. He thinks things are too high. Yet he spends every idle moment in the pool room, or fishing or at ball games.

"I have a little buslness place of my own. It doesn't bring in much, but every bit I make I spend for groceries. The children and I need many things we should have, but we can't get them. Whenever he does give me money it is not sufficient.

AT TURNING POINT

"I just don't know what to do.

"Sometimes I even wonder whether he is finding love somewhere else? He has a car and could be with others often. I never watch him, though.

"Maybe your advice will awaken him—if he ever intends to awaken.

A LONELY WIFE."

* Such a husband as yours * behaves so selfishly be- * cause he is thoughtless. He would * not plan to deprive you and the * children of necessities; he just * doesn't realize the high cost of * living these days. To wives in * your situation I have time and * again suggested they keep a * budget. Then their husbands can * see exactly where the money * goes and better appreciate how * economical they have been.

* Start today keeping track of * every cent you spend. Show it * to him at the end of the week * and talk things over. You * should be given a sum of money * regularly to cover household * expenses and he should save * some (however little) toward * clothes and the other needs of * his family.

* It is not fair that you should * have to spend all the little you * make for food. How would he * manage if your business failed * some day? Part of your income * I suggest you put aside for * amusement—take the children to * a movie when you can, or for * a boat-ride or some other diver- * sion. Your husband, too, ought * to arrange to take you out a * couple of evenings a week, to * relieve the monotony of your * routine Too .many men do not * understand that if they expect * their wives to stay young and * attractive they must supply fre- * quent changes of scene

* Your life is bound up in the * children and in your work. You * need, now more than ever, recre- * ation to keep up your spirits and * your health. If he gives this a * little thought, he must know * how important it is. He needs * change, too; but he surely could * save here and there on his per- * sonal expenditures so you could * share the pastimes that make * you laugh together and become * closer companions.

* You need, too, daily expres- * sions of his affection and con- * cern. A pregnant woman has * periods of depression and alarm, * which only her husband's affec- * tion, attentions and cheerfulness * can relieve. If her husband would * only use his imagination and put * himself in his wife's place, he * would give more freely of his * thought and time to be again * the devoted, articulate lover his * wife thought she married.

* Laughter and having fun to- * gether should not cease when the * days of courtship end. They * keep us young. they give us * fresh courage. They are the best * investment any husband can make * toward keeping his marriage * glowing and permanent.

* I hope your husband reads * this today, and plans deliberately * from now on to lighten your * heavy load. I believe all he needs * is a reminder.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM
by Gwendoline P Clarke

"All is safely gathered in"—and how gladly we 'sing the song of harvest home!" After so many weeks of changeable weather; so many times when we expected our second threshing would be either tomorrow or the next day. So many nights when we wakened to hear rain beating on the roof, saw incessant lightning and heard the rumble of thunder—and remembered that some of our grain was out in the field still waiting to be threshed. There was one morning when Partner looked out across the sodden fields and said—"One more day of rain and what's left of the crop won't be worth threshing." But it did rain—and rained again. Partner was wrong—the grain was still worth threshing. And now—"all is safely gathered in." We threshed again last Wednesday—our final threshing for the year—and all the bins are full and half the granary floor. The crop turned out far better than we dared to hope for.

This year's harvest has certainly been a very worrying time for those dependent on the outcome. Lack of help induced so many farmers to stook-thresh instead of putting their stuff in the barn. And when too many farmers get that same idea threshing machines cannot get around fast enough to keep everyone satsfied. Even those who combined their crops were up against the same trouble—not enough combines in the district to meet the demand. Those who put their grain crops in the barn also had the weather to contend with—a few nice days with a drying wind . . . one day drawing in—and then rain again. Last week we had good weather most of the time. It would, I hope, give most farmers a chance to get their harvest work cleaned up.

And, of course, it all begins again — sowing fall wheat — and with it next year's harvest worries. Come to think of it, farming is something like eating things that you know will bring on an aftermath of indigestion. You eat something you specially like knowing full well what the result will be—but you eat it anyway. So what? Farmers know every day's work is more or less of a gamble. But farmers haven't a priority on worry. Every calling has its own type of worry—although most of us like to think we have more than the other fellow. Nobody has to eat what they know will give them indigestion—there is more than one kind of food available. And nobody has to be a farmer, or a salesman, a bank-clerk or a labourer if he thinks some other job will suit him better.

But if you are a woman—and a farmer's wife—there isn't much you can do about changing your job, is there? And why should you want to anyway? To do a good job as a farmer's wife is about as high a calling as anyone could ask for. And what a difference it makes to the farmer. Some farms, along with their owners, have gone to pieces because the woman in the case didn't keep her end up. A bachelor farmer can make a better go of things than a married man man with an un-cooperative wife. It isn't experience that counts in the early stages, but the will to work. Experience will come with the years if a genuine interest is there to begin with. Heaven help the young farmer whose wife lives on the farm but takes no interest in crops, stock or the weather.

Generally speaking the farm is not the place for playing a lone hand. There is an inescapable interdependence all along the line—not only in the farm family but also as regards stock and machinery. Experts claim that a farm cannot be worked successfully without cattle to fertilize the ground. Crops cannot be sown or harvested without machinery. Trucks that will not start depend on tractors to pull them until the spark catches. Yet tractors themselves often have to rely on the trusty team when engines get balky in cold weather. Poultry being fattened for market would often be stolen if it were not for the sharp ears of the farmer's watch-dog. Bins would be overrun with grain-nibbling rates and mice if it were not for the barnyard cats. And the poor cows would get no exercise for their tails if it were not for the barnyard flies!

* * *

So there you have it, friends . . . all down the line farming is a cooperative business.

DOUBTFUL

A doctor, attending an old man, had instructed the butler in the art of taking his temperature.

One morning on arriving at the house, the doctor ran into the butler.

"I hope," he said, "that your master's temperature is no higher?"

"I was just hoping that myself," said the butler, solemnly. "He died an hour ago."

Calfhood Vaccination Notes

TO THE FARMERS OF DUNDAS COUNTY:

There are a nmber of infections which cows may contract that will cause abortion. Abortions also occur as a complication of other diseases assosiated fever and poisoning. Injury or a heavy fall will also cause abortion. Regardless of causes there is none which is as serious as the 'Brucella Organism' which causes Bang's Disease, or contagious abortion. Bang's Disease is the only type of abortion which is contagious and can be checked by Calfhood Vaccination

Information has recently been released thru the press and over the radio that vaccinated heifers up to 22 months of age after vaccination can be exported without blood testing, if they have a proper vaccination certificate signed by a registered veterinarian.

This regulation is good news to our County Farmers who have practised calfhood vaccination, as it does away with the barring from export of questionable or positive heifers up to approximately two and a half years of age, when the animals should become negative.

If the veterinarian in charge of your township hasn't called on you, organize your concession or school section, phone or call on the vet., and arrange with him to do all the calves on the one trip. Don't wait until your calves are too old.

THE FARM FRONT

by John Russell

"Of the making of many opinion polls," Solomon might have said if he had lived a couple of thousand years later, "there is no end." And although the pollsters got a severe black eye when they mis-guessed the result of the last Presidential election by as far as a strong boy can throw a rock, they seem to have done a comeback. At all events, they're still carrying on

The results of the latest of these polls that I've come across are rather interesting to farm folks, and especially to farm women. We've all dreamed of what we would do first if we came into even a modest sum of money unexpectedly; and the question put to hundreds of representative farm women was based on the following case. Some two years ago a farmer's wife had the chance of either taking a trip to Europe or doing a remodelling job on her kitchen.

The European tour, she figured, would be interesting and educational. On the other hand, a remodelled kitchen would be enjoyed by the whole family. So the money went into the kitchen.

So the question was: If you had the money, which would you rather have, a model kitchen, a trip to Europe, a car of your own, or a vacation with your family. And 40 per cent of all the women interviewed said they would choose the modern kitchen.

The younger women (those in the age group from 20 to 34 years) had the highest percentage for this choice. Forty-seven per cent said they would rather have a modern kitchen. Only 22 per cent of the older women indicated this choice.

But of all the women interviewed 54 per cent of those who lived on rented farms put the modern kitchen as their first choice.

While it was the younger women who lived on rented farms who wanted modern kitchens, it was the older women and those who lived on their own farms who would choose the trip to Europe.

Nine per cent of all the women said they would choose a European tour.

When the figures were broken down into age groups, they found that 17 per cent of the women over 50 chose the trip. Though one of the younger farm women said rather wistfully, "I would enjoy a trip to Europe. It would be nice now and give me something to think about when I'm old."

Only 5 per cent of the younger women would choose a trip to Europe.

"It would be wonderful to have a car any time I want it," said another woman. And she expressed the choice of 9 per cent of the farm women interviewed.

Eleven per cent of the younger women would like to have a car of their own. Seven per cent of the middle-aged group and 5 per cent of the older women indicated the same choice.

"With a whole family bickering over the car, I think I'd like to have a car of my own, even if it were only a jalopy," said one of those interviewed. Then she added, ruefully, "At that, I'll bet somebody else would be driving it every time I wanted it." * *

A vacation with the whole family when the children are little and a vacation with the family when they are older are two different things.

Thirty-three per cent of all the women interviewed wanted a vacation with their families. Twenty-nine per cent of the younger women, 34 per cent of the middle-aged group and 39 per cent of the older women made the same choice.

But one of the younger women, the mother of four small children, said: "I'm not kidding myself that a trip with the children is a vacation. It's a change of scenery."

* * *

Another woman in the same age group said: "If I had the money for a vacation, it would be a vacation just to get away from the family for a little while."

BULL—NOT STAG PARTY

Three hundred persons turned up at a swank party in a tent in England recently to toast the guest of honour—a bull.

It was the 11th birthday of Vern Robert, one of the finest Herefords ever bred.

Eleven candles burned on his birthday cake—made from cattle cake, flaked maize and bran—with "Many Happy Returns" in red berries.

SPORTS—&c

by A SIXBIT CRITIC

One of the gags with which they used to wow the customers back in the palmy days of vaudeville was when the comic of a two-man team would seriously declare that his favorite food was hash — because he always knew what he was eating. His 'straight' partner would indignantly demand "How in blazes do you know what you're eating?" whereupon the comic would reply, "I know I'm eating hash!" Yak — Yak — Yak.

Which will serve as notice that if this column turns out to resemble hash, or a reasonable facsimile, please don't complain that you weren't warned.

Anyway, about the most pithy comment we have heard regarding current conditions came from a friend of ours the other day. He had just been reading a newspaper story which stated that, because of war preparations, the price of ale, beer, ice cream sodas, soft drinks, gin, milk, whiskey and a few other assorted potables were likely to show an increase in price.

"That guy Kipling surely knew what he was talking about" said our friend, "when he wrote 'When it comes to slaughter, you will do your work on WATER.' "

* * *

Just in passing, we fear that the esteemed Toronto Globe and Mail Sports Department must be slipping. The September morn following the initial practice of the MAPLE LEAF HOCKEY TEAM the Sports Page mentioned the name of Conny Smythe a mere nine times — this being, as any close follower of the sport can tell you, much below par for the course.

In the same connection, we might say that if the Maple Leaf Hockey Club's ballyhoo department doesn't shortly dig up a new publicity stunt to replace the one about Turk Broda's excess poundage, we dread the consequences among the reading public. We are second to none in our admiration for Mr. Broda's twine - guarding abilities — but as a permanent replacement for Miss America, Gipsy Rose Lee, Sally Rand or any of the other strippers, Turk just doesn't have it.

Arthur Daley tells a story, which you may have heard before but we hadn't, about Willie (Puddinhead) Jones, third base guardian for the Philadelphia Phillies. This was when Willie — as well as Manager Eddie Sawyer — were laboring in the Toronto baseball vineyard.

Jones had slumped very badly in his hitting and although he never said anything about what was worrying him, Sawyer instinctively knew and summoned Willie to his office. "Willie," he said, "I've been doing some thinking. I know your wife is expecting a baby, so I was wondering if you'd like to have her here in Toronto — at the ball club's expense?"

* * *

Mrs. Jones arrived and her carefree husband began knocking the leather off the ball in old - time fashion. But just before the infant was due he shipped his wife back to dear old Carolina. "It's thisaway, Skipper," Puddinhead explained things to Sawyer. "I want to have my son born back home, so that some day, he'll be eligible to become President of the United States."

* * *

Well, if we were making book, we wouldn't want to be laying too much money against the possibility of Jones, Junior, someday doing that very thing. We don't know exactly what the actual odds are against any United States youngster eventually becoming President. Fifty million to one, or even more, probably.

* * *

Still, great as they are, those odds can't be any bigger than they were —when Willie Jones made that remark — against Puddinhead, playing for the once - Phutile Phils, being eligible for a World Series cut within the short space of two years and a couple of months. For the Phils, since the turn of the century, have finished in the National League Cellar exactly seventeen times. They finished in the seventh slot on ten occasions. And, up to the start of this season, their record was a proud 4,325 losses as against 3,-202 wins.

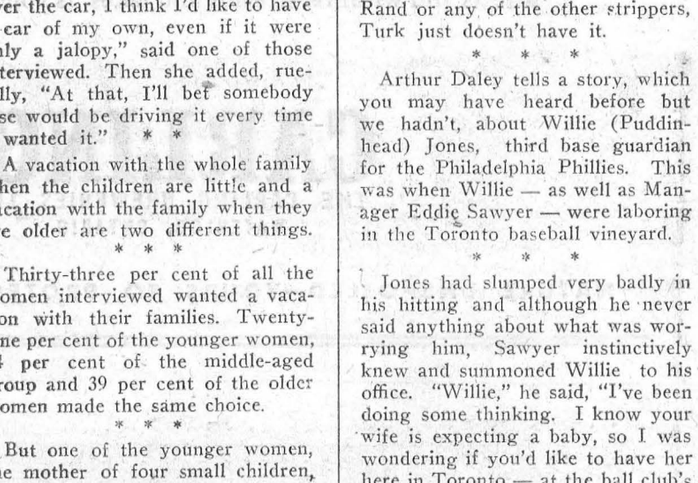
So it looks as if anything—positively anything — could happen in baseball. And in politics too—for Anthony Eden is just reported as recently saying that if he were in the British Foreign Office, he thinks he could "make a satisfactory deal with Stalin." Maybe Mr. Eden would even turn his back while Uncle Joe shuffled the cards!



Goose Still Honks—When Thomas Bowes bought an estate recently, he received an unexepected dividend: a 1918 Wills-St. Clair "Grey Goose" roadster. Shown with his wife and two sons, Bowes pumped up the car's tires, boosted the battery and, without bothering to change the auto's original gasoline and oil, stepped on the starter. With a honk of delight, the "Grey Goose" rolled out of the garage for the first time in 22 years.

Virgil Dreamed Of Sugar From Trees

That a sweet syrup would emerge from forest trees was part of Virgil's dream of the Golden Age. At that time (around 40 B.C.) honey of wild bees was the chief means of sweetening and was probably the first sugar food used by men. The care and cultivation of bees for their honey has been known at least for three thousand years. With the ancients it was almost their sole source of sugar. . .

The first historic mention of sugar is found in China in the eighth century B.C., where it is spoken of as a product of India. The sugar cane was native in Bengal and cultivated there. After the fifth century B.C. it was introduced to the Euphrates valley and to China. Fellow travellers of Alexander the Great who invaded India in the fourth century B.C. in search of glory and loot, brought back tales of a reed that produced honey without the aid of bees. "Honey cane" it was called originally, and Herodotus spoke of sugar as "manufactured honey" . . . The Greeks and Romans called it "sweet salt," "Indian salt," "sweet gravel." In the Bible (Jeremiah 6:20) is mentioned a "sweet cane from a far country."

Crystallized sugar was in evidence about 1,300 years after the first historical mention of sugar. The Arabs and Egyptians were the pioneers in crystallizing. In India at the end of the thirteenth century we first hear of evaporating the cane juice, dissolving the residue in water, and clarifying this solution with milk. They then solidified their sugar into cakes or crystallized it into candy. W. W. Sweats, in tracing the history of sugar, says: "It long continued to be regarded as a rare and costly spice and it remained so up to the time of the discovery of America at the end of the fifteenth century.

In the oldest books on arboreal lore, maples were mentioned as rarities in Europe, and there was no reference to their sugar-yielding sap. The "mapel-treow" was so spelled by Chaucer in the fourteenth century, and it is variously referred to from then on in Middle English literature as the mayple, the mapell and the mapole. In 1588 Jean Liebault, the French naturalist, wrote of "balmes and oyles" distilled from trees, but never a word on maple. John Gerade, author of The Herball or General Historie of Plantes, writes: "The great Maple is a stranger in England, only it groweth in the walkes and places of pleasure of noble men, where it especially is planted for the shadowe sake." In The Whole Art and Trade of Husbandry, Barnabe Googe speaks of the "juyce" and the "sappe" of many trees, but not of the maple. Closer to our own day, Charles Sprague Sargent writes of the maple in Europe: "The Sugar Maple, like the Hickories, the White Oaks and other upland trees of eastern America, does not flourish in the Old World, and really fine specimens, if they exist at all in Europe, are extremely rare, although 150 years have passed since it was introduced, and at different times considerable attention has been given to its cultivation."

Maple sugar and syrup are apparently, then, a specialized North American product.—From "The Maple Sugar Book," by Helen and Scott Nearing.

IMPORTANT BUSINESS

One of the casualties of the recent rail strike was the annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association of which this news paper is a member.

The convention, now postponed to next month in Quebec City, would have made few headlines, even in the press of the host province.

But that does not mean that it would not have been important.

The very fact that the representatives of over five hundred newspapers, representing communities large and small from British Columbia to Newfoundland, take time out for a get-together is in itself big news.

Annual Conventions of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association are a form of Dominion-Provincial conference minus the constitutional problems. They are meetings of minds at which common and uncommon problemms are explored by men and women whose job it is to work with opinion.

Weekly newspaper editors are important people, even if they do say so themselves. They are important not because of who they are, but becaus eacross their desks flow the cross-currents of community life at a level at which it can be interpreted relatively accurately.

From the editorial and news columns of the weekly newspapers of Canada can be gained a sure insight into the inner workings of the nation.

The town and village press is a true reflector and a true light, interpreting and guidine. It is a Gallup poll whose accuracy has never oeen questioned.

Publishing a weekly newspaper is, indeed, a much bigger and more important business than most of its editors believe.

AULTSVILLE

Heartiest congratulatiins are extended to Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Dafoe who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday, Sept. 19th at their home, Front St. West. The table was beautifully decorated with a three-tier wedding cake.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Keith Snider and Ronald of town; Mr. and Mrs. Dan Burton of Williamsburg, Mr. and Mrs. John Burton of Morrisburg and Mrs. Grace Dafoe of town. They were presented with a beautiful set of china dishes. Mr. and Mrs. Dafoe were married September 19th, 1900 by Rev. William Rogers, the Methodist minister at that time. Mrs. Dafoe was the former Minnie Burton, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Burton of Archer and Mr. Dafoe is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dafoe of Aultsville. They have one daughter, Mrs. Keith Snider and one grandson, Ronald Snider. Mr. and rMs. Dafoe have always resided in Aultsville and he has been in the mercantile business for a number of years.

A number of ladies motored to Avonmore last Thursday evening to the home of Mrs. N. Lawson where a surprise bunko party was given for Mrs. Malcolm Edwards, who, with Mr. Edwards and sons Robert and Donald will be leaving shortly for their new home at Kemptville where Mr. Edwards has a permanent position with the Chateau Cheese Company. Mrs. Edwards was presented with a beautiful jade necklace and earrings to match with a booklet on which the donors had written their names. It was a real surprise to Mrs. Edwards and she thanked the ladies for her gift in her usual pleasing manner.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Schell of Morrisburg were recent guests of their daughter, Mrs. George Hagerman and Mr. Hagerman.

Callers at the Cheley home on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Foley, Ronnie and Jimmy, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Shaver all of Athens, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shaver and Lorane of Second Concession.

Last Sunday the annual Thanksgiving service was observed in the St. Paul's Church of England. The church was beautifully decorated with fall flewers, fruit and vegetables.

THE WEST END

The proofreader on a small middle western daily was a woman of great precision and extreme propriety.

One day a reporter succeeded in getting into type an item about "Willie Brown, the boy who was burned in the West end by a live wire".

On the following day the reporter found on his desk a frigid note asking "Which is the West end of a boy?"

It took only on instant to reply: "The end the son sets on, of course"

TOM GARD'S NOTE BOOK

"Let me live in a house by the side of the road
And be a friend to man."

Wonder how many follow this practice? I can't help thinking there would be a marked improvement in man's dealing with man if we all did. It would be equally hard to imagine people of this calibre living in houses that were not attractively landscaped. A few well chosen and artfully placed shrubs will work wonders in transforming the appearance of your property. Right now is the time to transplant them.

Wipe Your Feet

I suppose it is only human nature to put off until tomorrow what you don't feel like doing today! One job I have been avoiding in my own back yard must be done at once, if for no other reason than to keep the housekeeper happy. Invariably dirt tracks into the kitchen on my shoes after a session in the garden, even though I try to be careful. A shoe scraper at the back door is the answer and it will have to be installed before a visit to a marital relations board is involved. I plan to make mine out of an old hoe blade.

Indoor Gardening

Now that the thoughts of the gardener will soon be turning indoors, here are two ideas I'm working on. My picture windows do frame a picture in summer while the garden is in bloom but present a dreary sight at times during the garden's off season. By making a large fernery, I'll be able to enjoy an indoor garden all winter this year. The other ideas is one I dug out of a magazine recently. If you enjoy making miniature dish gardens try the idea illustrated for your container.

Record Cabinet

If you have an old piano that has finished its period of usefulness, don't scrap it but make a cabinet for records or books out of the frame. By using the old wood and giving it a new finish you'll be surprised at the attractive case that can be made at reasonable cost.

FERNERY OR BOX OF FLOWERS

WIDTH – 10"
HEIGHT – 8"
LENGTH – 36" OR 40"
CORNERS, PINE – 2" × 2"

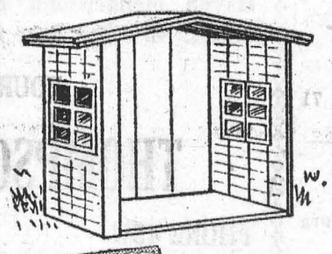
WIPE YOUR FEET!
ANOTHER USE FOR AN OLD HOE, CULTIVATOR, DUTCH HOE – OR EVEN THE SPADE WITH THE BROKEN HANDLE.

OLD CAKE DISHES
PAINTED – MAKE IDEAL CONTAINERS FOR CACTI AND SUCH DWARF PLANTS AS SEMPERVIVUMS.

STILL PROVIDING MUSIC FOR THE FAMILY!
THE OLD PIANO IN A NEW GARB



SLEEPING-OUT PLACE FOR JUNIOR OR GARDEN SHELTER

HI-SCHOOL NEWS

Gold and Blue and White and Blue ribbons swayed in the breeze. The air was filled with chants of "On Athenians" or "Cheer, Oh Cheer for the Blue and the Gold". Yes it was the day of the Spartan-Athenian election, Friday, September 22nd.

Running as Spartan president was Elinor Countryman and Carl Styles was "Leader of the Opposition".

A very noisy hohr was spent in the assembly where the speeches of the party leaders were heard and cheered. Then everyone retired to his classroom to vote. After what seemed like hours the suspense was broken. A cry rang out from the attic to the basement. The Athenians had won.

This makes Carl Styles president of the Student's Council for this year. Also on the Student Council are: Grade 9, Carol Connor and Dwain Helmer; Grade 10, Jimmy Jordan and Kathleen Beckstead; Grade 11, Anne Martin and Ross McMillan; Grade 12, Grace Howald and Frank Black; Grade 13, Ed Hanson and Barbara Smith.

As this year brought the first Athenian victory in four years, there was a very successful and enjoyable dance held that night at which the Athenians celebrated and the Spartans hoped for better luck the next time.
