Concerned citizens plan protest of interest rates

by Nick Gardiner

[SPENCERVILLE] - A group of concerned individuals in Leeds, Grenville and Dundas counties are taking steps to tell the federal government how high interest rates are affecting them.

At a meeting held here Monday night, small businessmen, farmers, agricultural representatives and presidents of area Chambers of Commerce decided to organize a letter-writing campaign to MPs Ed Lumley and Tom Cossit to explain their situations.

The campaign will involve making available to members of the public a form asking for explanations on how high rates of interest are affecting them. Forms are to be made available at stores and other outlets in the three counties.

Iroquois Reeve Frank Rooney represented the village and later told the Post that group plans to advertise its position ans ask for the support of the public. He said any individuals or grous such as senior citizens, businessmen, farmers and home-owners will be invited to state their case.

Mr. Rooney said the letters will be collected by Oct. 14 and will be delivered to the MPs on Oct. 17 to bring to their attention the feelings of a cross-section of the community.

The meeting, chaired by Gill Cyr, an Augusta Township farmer, was held at the township hall beginning at 8 p.m. It twas afollow-up to the group's first meeting on Sept. 3 in which the proposal for the campaign was made.

The group is hoping to have about 100,000 letters to present to Mr Cossitt and Mr. Lumley.

Dianne Harkin, R.R. 1, Winchester, will prepare the form which will include a statement emphasizing the strong feelings against high interest rates. The forms are to be available in stores by Sept. 30.

Members of the group noted this is only the first step in demonstrating disapproval over high rates and indicated more dramatic strategy will follow if no action is forthcoming.

Action considered at the meetings include repaying bank loans in farm produce and witholding mortgage payments.

Auto destroyed

Iroquois firefighters were called out to douse a fire in this late-model Buick Monday afternoon on the Matilda Township west boundary road. The vehicle destroyed although no value of damage was estimated. Fire chief Mac Anderson said the fire was probably caused by a short in the electrical system. The car was owned by Howard Hutchinson of Matilda Township. Eight men rushed to the scene and remained there for about an hour to ensure the fire was dead.

Iroquois Steel Products now under Bombardier ownership

[IROQUOIS] - Iroquois Steel Products has recently come under new management and is now owned as a subsidiary of Bombardier, the family company which pioneered the snowmobile industry.

This Quebec-based company took over the plant early in 1981, buying out Henry Zandbergen.

Prior to the change in ownership, Iroquois Steel had developed a large market for their product in both Ontario and Quebec. However, in 1979 the steel drainage outlets manufactured by Iroquois Steel could no longer be sold in Quebec.

The production of these products was no longer subsidized unless they were produced in Quebec for the Quebec market. Consequently, the machine used in the manufacture of the outlets was transferred from the Iroquois plant to Quebec to meet the demand there, then returned to Iroquois for the remainder of the year.

Under the Bombardier ownership, the company is expanding into the manufacture of steel culverts in sizes up to 18 inches. These culverts are now undergoing product testing at Mcgill University.

According to Jim Miller, manager at the Iroquois location, their product has met and surpassed all necessary standards set by the Canadian Steel Products Institute and Canadian Standards Association, and they are awaiting final approval.

With the addition of the steel culvert to their product line, Iroquois Steel will eventually become a year-round employer in this area, rather than seasonal as they now are. Looking to the future, Mr. Miller hopes to expand their market to include New York state and eventually other northern states.

The expansion programme at Iroquois Steel Products is progressing at a slow but steady pace, he said.

"We are undergoing a reorganization period right now," said Mr. Miller, "and as with all growth, there has to be some agony."

Bank offers reduced loan rates to farmers

[IROQUOIS] - The Bank of Montreal recently announced a program recommended to the Federal Ministry of Agriculture to help farmers in financial difficulty.

Under the bank's program, unincoroprated farmers will be eligible for small business development bonds at roughly an 8 percent reduction on current interest rates.

The bonds will be issued effective immediately to existing customers of the Bank of Montreal making application depending on their eligibility.

In the event that the program is not approved by the government within six months, the loan would revert to conventional status and the borrower would be responsible for the retroactive interest difference.

Manager of the Iroqjois branch, Al Spencer, told the Post the Bank of Montreal initiated the request to the government and is the only one of the chartered banks to go ahead with its proposed program prior to government approval.

The bank also recommended that the credit limit on the bonds be raised from $500,000 to $1 million. He added that farmers could now take advantage of lower interest rates without being forced to become limited companies.

Township ups rate on tax arrears

[BRINSTON[- Matilda Township council has increased the interest rate on tax arrears to 23.75 per cent effective Oct. 1 at its regular meeting here last Thursday.

Council passed bylaw 81-48 putting the increase into effect on all resident or non-resident taxpayers in the township.

Council also made application to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval of bylaw 81-33 which it passed Thursday and which regulates the use of land and erection of building and structures in the township.

The bylaw is an ammendment to the former building code passed in 1980. The changes include an addition to the commercial highway zoning which alters the zoning requirement for lot area and frontage, yard requirements, building height and lot coverage.

Height restrictions have also been added for structures built near airfields such as on land west of the airport in Iroquois.

Other alterations include deteting the use of transportation and communication facilities and veterinary establishments from rural zoning and adding nursery and market gardening.

Transportation terminals and private clubs have also been deleted from use in commercial highway zones and in land zoned as industrial-light commercial garages, mobile homes and sectional dwellings have been deleted.

An addition has also been made to restrict the establishment of wrecking yards within 0.8 kms of a natural drainage feature or gulley. The bylaw becomes effective after approval has been received from the OMB.

Persons with objections have until Oct. 2 for filing them in writing to the clerk's office.

Trinity Church, Cornwall, site of annual Charter Night dinner, St. Lawrence branch UEL

[CORNWALL] - Trinity Memorial Anglican Church Hall was the setting of the third annual Charter Night Dinner for the St. Lawrence Branch of the United Empire Loyalists Association of Canada on Saturday, September 12.

Approximately 200 members and friends joined the St. Lawrence Branch in honoring those who have proven their pioneer Loyalists ancestry, who appreciate their heritage of principles and values, and whose aim is to keep the Loyalist flame burning brightly on the Canadian scene. Mrs. Elizabeth Blair and Mrs. Joyce Bradford of Dominion Headquarters of Toronto, and Dominion President John Eaman of London attended the banquet with members attending from Montreal, Tweed, Ottawa and Florida.

Local dignitaries included Ed Lumley, MP and Minister of State for Trade; George Samis, M.P.P. Osie Villeneuve, MPP, and Gerry Parisien, Mayor of Cornwall. All congratulated the branch on its efforts to keep Loyalist history alive, and wished continued success as they march towards the Bicentennial. The Branch covers the Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry and is the fastest growing of the 23 across Canada.

Canon Bain Peever welcomed all to the historic Church, and said many graves of Loyalists were on the grounds west of the Church. He also stated 1984 is the bincentennial for the Church.

1984 will be a busy year for the area - The founding of New Johnstown (Cornwall), Trinity Memorial Anglican Church and the coming of the Loyalists to Eastern Ontario and Western Quebec.

Third Vice-President Douglas Warner introduced the Guest Speaker, Dr. Elinor Senior, B.A., M.A., Ph.D., a former newspaper lady turned historian. She has written many reports of a military nature and recently had a book published, with two more to come out shortly on military history. Dr. Senior has spent ayear of extensive research in preparation of her new book, History of City or Cornwall; which will be published in 1984 for the Bicentennial of Cornwall.

Dr. Senior spoke on the problems of early settlement of Cornwall. She told about the arrival of the Loyalists in the Cornwall area, research which she has studied for her upcoming book. The Loyalists had many problems such as how to divide the land equally and not cause resentment among the troops, how to make a settle ment with the St. Regis Indians, where to build the town and the name for the town. The biggest problems was to decide who would secure the desired waterfront lots.

Once these problems were solved, then the land had to be cleared, crops planted, and homes built for the families of the Loyalists before the cold winter set in. Dr. Senior has found a lot of unusual, or unkown facts while doing her research and branch members will be anxiously awaiting her book to be published.

Past President Melvin Scott thanked the speaker for her stimulating and informative speech and presented her with a gift in appreciation, while Mrs. Jean Scott presented Professor Howard Senior with a ceramic tile of the armorial bearings.

Branch Genealogist Miss Lynne O'Brien, assisted by Mrs. Elizabeth Blair and Mr. John Eaman, presented certificates to 14 new members.

They are: Milton Anderson of Williamstown, Jean Andrews and her sister, Judith Armstrong of Ottawa, Earl Ault and Dorothy McDonell of Cornwall; Allan Hickey of Florida; Charles Roberts of Iroquois; Mr. and Mrs. George Sanders of Cornwall; Sterling Warner. Four members were not present to receive their certificates: Lt. Col. E. Amidon of Michigan; Frederick Armstrong of Quebec; Paul Cartwright of Minnesota; Leo Merkley of Arizona.

Miss O'Brien stated that the branch had applied for a 1981 summer experience grant. For nine weeks three college students were employed to work on updating branch records. The girls worked under her supervision in Morrisburg, copying records from three Cornwall churches, and helping to organize the information already obtained for easy access to persons who are coming from all over to search for their roots. Recently they have arrived from Vancouver, New Brunswick, Michigan, Ottawa, New York, and Hawaii.

Miss O'Brien presented Dominion President John Eaman with three sets of church records from the area, covering the years 1838 to 1891, for use at Dominion headquarters. At the moment arrangements are being made with the SD&G. Historical Society for them to also have a copy of these records.

The annual meeting of the St. Lawrence Branch will be held in the Old Stone Church Hall, St. Andrews West on Sunday, October 25, with registration at 1:30 p.m. Murray Barkley, B.A., M.A., of Avonmore, the Branch's Historian and Archivist, will speak on the loyalist tradition in Canada: some bicentennial Reflections. A pot-luck supper will be held after the meeting.

NEWS OF SCIENCE

Life without a heartbeat is now possible, thanks to a new type of blood pump developed by an Austrian scientist.

Professor Johann Navratil has been conducting research in Vienna on the problems of the "artificial heart," for the past 12 years. He recently disclosed his development of a pump which can serve as at least a temporary substitute for the heart.

An Austrian scientist has developed a new type of blood pump which performs normal functions of the heart.

After a heart failure, medication often is not able to restart the heart. Professor Navratil's mechanical pump can maintain blood circulation, enabling the heart to rest and heal completely.

So far, the device has been used successfully only in experiments with calves. The laboratory animals have lived for up to eight weeks while the device performed the functions of the heart.

Professor Navratil is working with membrane pumps which, he believes, could lead to development of a functioning artificial heart.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

This By-law amends the comprehensive Zoning By-law No. 80-4 of the Township of Matilda.

Points 1 & 2
When the By-law was drawn up the requirements or standards for the Commercial-Highway Zone (CH) were inadvertently omitted. In order to correct this oversight this amending By-law was prepared.

The second part of the amendment encompasses the addition of a special provision to height restrictions. This provision provides protection in the vicinity of airports by providing for the Federal Ministry of Transportats guidelines to have precedent in determining any height restrictions that are necessary.

Points 3, 4 & 5
When the Ministry of Housing reviewed the By-law they raised a number of technical issues concerning conformity between the South Dundas Official Plan and Zoning By-law. This amendment removes a number of minor technical problems with the By-law relating to permitted uses in the Rural, Commercial-Highway and Industrial-Light Zones.

Point 6
The South Dundas Official Plan contains policy measures for the control of wrecking yards establishing in the vicinity of natural drainage features or gulleys. This separation distance was inadvertently left out of the By-law. In order for the two documents to be conforming with one other, this amendment was forthcoming.

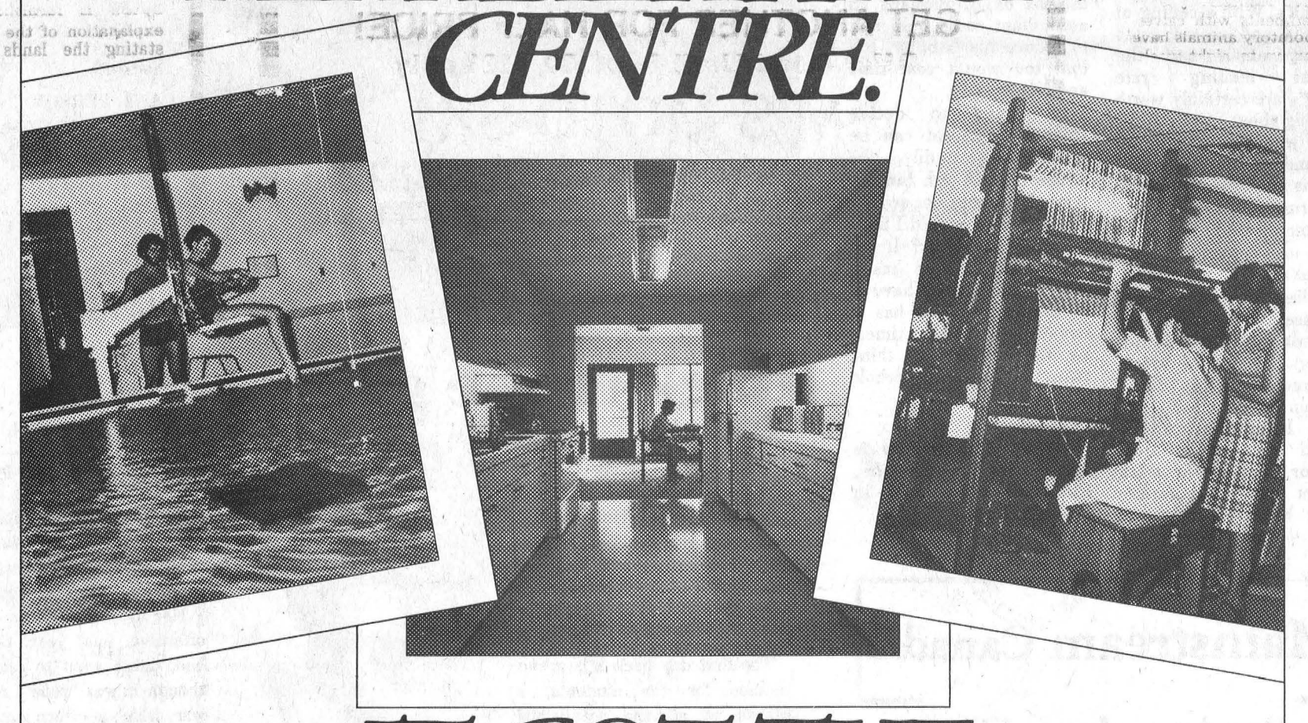
ANNOUNCING THE OPENING OF ROYAL OTTAWA'S NEW REGIONAL REHABILITATION CENTRE.



IT GOT THE FULL TREATMENT.

When Royal Ottawa rehabilitated the old rehab centre on Carling Avenue, they broke new ground. The new Regional Rehabilitation Centre has 12 times the space that was available in the old building.

More space for treatment, education and research.

The new building was designed with the full participation of the disabled members of the community. Models of patients' rooms were prepared by the National Research Council and patients lived in them to find out what adjustments were needed.

Doors are now wide enough for wheelchairs to get through. Bedrooms and bathrooms are now large enough for wheelchairs to turn around. The grade-level design permits access to the beautifully landscaped grounds.

The new gymnasium is completely equipped and the new swimming pool has a power lift to help people in and out.

There's a training apartment, a car driving course and a special pain clinic. The out-patient facilities are extensive.

The Ontario Ministry of Health is pleased to have shared in providing additional, modern rehabilitation services for the disabled in the Ottawa-Carleton region.

'One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

It could be a record harvest across the nation this year. But by the time everything is snugged down for the winter, it may be a harvest of red ink.

Farmers are notorious gripers. They complain when the crops are good because a bumper crop depresses prices. They compalin when the harves is bad because they cannot make enough money to remain in business.

They complain when it rains. They compalin when it doesn't rain.

This year, I suggest, they have great cause to gripe.

Western farmers lose $10 million a day when a handful of grain handlers go on strike inThunder Bay. Vegetable farmers watch helplessly as two weeks of rain destroys a summer's work.

For thousands of year, farmers have met these vagaries of nature and the marketplace with their share of bitching. They have accepted it, gritted their teeth, and gone on with the job of feeding the world.

However, a sense of deep malaise is apparent in the hearts of Canada's farmers today.

The status of the nation's farmers is the result of unnatural events this year. They have overcome droughts, floods, strikes, depressed prices, screaming consumers, international companies, chain stores, kickbacks, surpluses and shortages.

They have fought for orderly marketing in some commodities and the fight continues for others.

But fallout from the combined effects of decreasing income, rising costs and skyrocketing interest rates has hit them harder than anything since the Dirty Thirties.

Farm implement and equipment sales are down. The small, farm-related industries throughout rural Canada are suffering. The credit of farmers has been stretched to the breaking point. Many had to borrow to meet higher operating costs this spring.

Credit costs were so high even then, profits were hard to find.

Now, with costs for production higher and interest rates at the usury level, the sickness is becoming terminal.

Who can afford the interest rates on a $50,000 tractor? Who can keep a feedlot going when loans in the area of $200,000 are necessary to keep the lot stocked? And the poor cow-calf farmer is getting it from both sides. he has to keep his stock even longer.

"It's not the low farm prices so much as those killing interest rates," an implement dealer told me this week. "Farmers, when they really need a piece of machinery, could usually find the money to finance it. But not now with the interest rates killing the purchase before it leaves the lot."

"I don't know how much longer we can go on," said a respected feed dealer to me the other day. "We just cannot extend credit to some of our best customers. We can't get the credit." One of the biggest feedlots in our area, that of Gerald Cavell near Harriston, went into receivership this month. They paid interest -- interest alone -- last year of $200,000. This year, they faced loan costs of $40,000 at 25 per cent.

"The whole industry is going down the drain, not just our farm," Cavell said. "Tou can't pay 25 cents out of every dollar you get to the bank and make a living raising beef."

Bankruptcies in Canadian agriculture were up more than 35 percent at the end of July and going highter every week. As farmers give up, more cattle are going to market which, in turn gluts the market and forces prices down for those still in business.

It is a vicious, heart-rending circle.

I attended an auction sale only two weeks ago. I was a third-generation farm. The son was a solid, hard-working farmer but got caught in the high interest rate squeeze.

His father, one of the finest Christian gentlemen I have ever known, wept when the auctioneer sadly started his spiel.

How long can this go on?

I cried right along with him.

DOLLAR SENSE
Farmers -- think twice about incorporation

By Donald J. Shaughnessy, CA

Most farmers have probably been tempted at one time or another by the idea of incorporating.

The big attraction is the preferential tax rate of only 25 per cent for Ontario corporations earning less than $150,000 a year.

Dollar Sense offers general financial advice by members of The Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario.

Another is that the incorporated farmer becomes eligible for a Small Business Development Bond -- a once-in-a-lifetime, low-interest loan that can be used to buy land and other hard assets or to help an operator out of financial difficulty. With a ceiling of $500,000 and interest rates running about half the normal lending rate SBDB's are certainly worth thinking about.

But what has to be borne in mind is that incorporation is not a simple matter for farmers. It can become so complicated that the costs of conversion are greater than the tax saving.

Rolling over or converting assets to a corporation is especially tricky for farmers because the assets may require half a dozen different kinds of tax treatment. Inventories can be valued at anything from zero for tax purposes to fair market value. The farmer might have 60 pieces of equipment, each requiring separate handling. Further complicatons occur if the farm is jointly owned.

Tax problems can be significant. Let's say a farmer had a herd worth $300,000 at fair market value and that he owed the bank $100,000 on it. In all probability the cost of the animals would long since have been written off against other income so that their value for tax purposes would be nil.

But if he decided to roll the herd over into a corporation he would be deemed by the tax man to have received $100,000 -- the corporation having assumed his personal bank debt - and he would be liable for the tax on it. Perhaps an accountant could help him to reduce his liability, but that too would cost time and money.

In trying to decide whether an asset can be rolled over readily, the farmer should ask himself this: If I sold it at fair market value, would I have to pay a lot of tax? If the answer is yes, he has a problem that would have to be dealt with. If he has to answer yes too many times, he should probably think twice about the whole affair.

Donald Shaughnessy is with Ward Mallette, Chartered Accountants in Cobourg.

Back to the grid

By Bill Smiley

Regardless of their public grumping about going back to school in September, I firmly believe that both students and teachers are delighted to get back into some sort of routine, especially those who have had rather an aimless summer, as I have.

The first day back is a grand reunion for the students, a rehash of all the scandalous things they did all summer, and a chance to look around for a new girl friend or boy friend. For teachers, the first day is a holy terror, with snowstorms of memos and regulations and forms to fill out.

But generally, except for the new, young teacher with no experience, for whom opening day is akin to a day in a mental hospital, we get sorted out and stagger off into the next 10 months of what is smarmily known as "the learning process."

Usually, I'm happy to exchange the light but firm harness of a long vacation, the reins held by my wife, the whip applied by my grandboys, for the heavier but perhaps more comfortable harness of head of the English Department.

This year, heading what is almost assuredly my last year of taching, I'm a little sad. Not because it's my last year. Lordy, no. When I leave, it will be with the largest grin possible for a guy with a partial plate.

I'm a little sad because the vigilantes are popping up on our school board an dharassing the other members of the board about the books that students should read, or not read.

This situation occurs from time to time and plact to place and is almost at the rampant stage in some parts of the U.S., where pressure groups are leaning heavily on sponsors of TV shows to which they object. Fair enough. I personally think most of the stuff we see / hear on TV stinks. It is full of ddouble entendres, sexual connotations and sheer brutalization of thehuman spirit.

Some movies are worse, catering to the most bestial aspects of man, using foul language for no apparent purpose, and exploiting themedium with horror, with the bizarre, with the perverts - anything to drag in the bucks.

Maybe I'm beginning to sound like Egerton Ryerson or Billy Graham. But I'm not quite there yet. I'm an English teacher, and it makes me mad, and sad, when I see a highly vocal minority through pressure tactics, trying to eliminate materials from schools and dictate what shall and shall not be available to other segments of the population.

There is absolutely noghing wrong with citizens, especially parents, expressing interest in instructional materials available to school children. That is democracy. In fact there's something wrong with parents who don't care what their kids are reading or seeing or hearing.

Nor should students be forced to read something they find offensive. Last year, the brightest English student I've ever had, didn't want to read one of the books on the course. She though it was "rede". And of course it was. It was a satire on war, which is oftern a somewhat rude business.

I didn't make an issue of it. I respected her opinion and gave herother books, not as good, in my opinion, but of high quality.

But when the self-appointed censors begin to attack every book that contains profanity or sex or something else they can find to object to, my hackles rise slightly.

I consider myself a professional, as do all teachers of English. I am not about to introduce my students to the works of the Marquis de Sade, or Henry Milles.

On the other hand, I am not going to try to force them to read Silas Marner, which I had to do as a child. Nor Anne of Green Gables, which should be enjoyed in private.

I deliberately choose books that will get them interested in reading, that will give them a broad look at human nature, that will perhaps give them an insight in to the glories of the human spirit. I will not feed them pablum in their teens.

Huckleberry Finn, the first great American novel, was deemed unfit to be in public libraries by certain lofty-minded censors of the time.

Why don't we throw it out of all schools? Surely it offends blacks. Chuck out The Merchants of Venice because if offends Jews. Same with Oliver twist, by Dickens. Macbeth gives a very poor picture of some Scots. Julius Caesar proves that many Romans were assasins. Moby Dick is about a one-legged maniac who had an affair with a whale. Far better to teach Jaws.

The Bible is full of adultery, "begatting", whatever that is, and vilence. Out with it.

When I go to a doctor, I accept that he knows more about medicine than I do. I don't say, "Why are you sticking that thing up my nose?"

When I go to the dentist, I don't say, "Never mind the decay; just paint them all white."

There's a little more to English than grammar and writing essays on How I Spent My Summer Holidays. Let's leave it that way. And let's hope there are trustees and teachers with guts, and especially, thousands of parents who want their kids educated, not indoctrinated.

Readers of weeklies are the real losers

By W. Roger Worth

The recent postal strike may have inconvenienced a lot of Canadians, but the country's small business community got clobbered.

The big national companies compensated by setting up their own delivery systems, or using expensive courier services.

Smaller firms, on the other hand, were deprived of new business orders, forcing them to lay off employees. And payment of bills ground to a halt, ensuring the businesses would have to increase their bank loans -- at interest rates of 21 to 23 per cent.

Other firms were not so fortunate and many are now involved in bankruptcy or receivership proceedings.

The country's 1,100 or so community newspapers that rely so heavily on the postal service to deliver their product to readers were among the hardest hit by the mail strike.

And that weekly editorial and advertising package is important to Canadians, no matter how much condescending editors and reporters on big city dailies may underrate the contribution made by the community-oriented publications.

Community newspapers play a vital role in the nation, particularly in outlying areas of the country where editorial comment and news about happenings on the local scene are hard to come by.

The proof that these smaller papers are important: the number of publications is growing, and circulation continues to increase, even at a time when some urban dailies have been closed down.

The fact is, there are too few voices of reason in the country and allowing postal workers to hold community newspapers and their readers to ransom is indeed unfair.

That old adage "the mail must go through" has become a standing joke in Canada.

It's time the country's legislators put things right by outlawing strikes in all essential services, at the same time allowing smaller newspapers to serve the varied needs of their millions of readers.

Queen's Park update

by Norm Sterling, MPP Carelton-Grenville

Acid rain is an issue of great concern for all Ontarians. Its destructive power on our lakes and rivers have never been more apparent, nor has the need for immediate action to curb this trend been clearer.

This summer my colleague Environment Minister Keith Norton, introduced a five-year experimental lake neutralizatio program to combat the problem of acid rain.

Treatment will be concentrated on a limited number of selected lakes in the Muskoka / Haliburton area and on several severely affected lakes in the Sudbury region.

The primary objective in Muskoka and Haliburton is to develop and assess ways of protecting and maintining healthy fish stocks in lakes under stress from acid rain.

While there is considerble interest in liming lakes in some areas, it is important that the program be developed carefully, so undesirable side effects can be avoided.

Varous techniques will be used in the experimental program, including the addition of calcium carbonate. However, it is not a matter of simply dumping tons of slaked lime or limestone into the lakes, as some think.

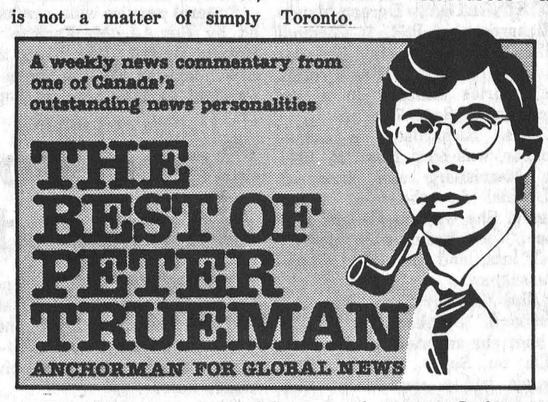
While the basic chemistry of the 'liming' process seems simple in theory, lake neutralization is more complex in practice since it entails dealing simultaneously with all elements of life in the sensitive aquatic ecosystem.

It is hoped that this experiment will neutralize sensitive acid-stressed lakes to pH levels non-harmful to aquatic life.

Although a limited number of lakes will undergo intensive experimentation under the program, research findings can be extrapolated to lakes under similar conditions of stress in other regions.

Because of the complexities of neutralization oflakes having a number of species of fish, the Ministries are not encouraging cottagers associations to undertake liming of lakes until the results of the experimental program are known.

Enquiries about lake neutralization should be directed to the limology section of the Ministry of the Environment or the fisheries branch of the Ministry of Natural Resources in Toronto.



There's an interesting debate developing at Carleton University in Ottawa, where about one third of the graduating class in architecture has failed. A mass appeal has been made, and a special committee is conducting a review of the situation. The university's ombudsman, Jim Kennelly, says its the first time in the university's history that such an appeal has been made. I might have passed the story by if one of the aggrieved would-be architects hadn't summarized his feelings this way:

"When one-third of the class fails in their final year", he said, "it's not the fault of the students."

I wouldn't want him to design a house for me if he constructs his load-bearing walls the same way he constructs his arguments. What does he mean, it isn't the fault of the students? Does he mean that the high failure rate is somehow the fault of the administration and the people who laid down the curriculum? Does he mean that the failure rate should somehow be determined on a percentage basis, in advance, and that only the bottom ten per cent of the class should be failed? Doe he mean that a university, having accepted tuition fees, is under some sort of obligation to grant degrees, without reference to student performance? He probably means all of those things, to some extent. And if he believes them, after five years in an institution of higher learning, there isn't much hope for him or the rest of us. That sort of thinking, if common, explains the erosion of leadership in Ottawa, which appears in Ottawa, which appears to be on holiday while a country with enormous potential slips down the drain. It explains the mounting frustration of the Canadian people, who like our failed architect, seem to believe that everything could be righted by the stroke of some Ottawa mandarin's pen.

But what we are reaping now is a direct result of our own greed and mounting government intervention for the past couple of decades. It's pointless now to stand on the sidelines and at the moment of failure scream "it's not fair." That won't earn our architectural friend a degree and it won't earn the rest of us a country either.

That's not news, but that too is reality.

Golfers raise $1,000 for MDA

[MORRISBURG] - Eighty seven golfers took part in a tournament on Saturday and raised $1007.50 for the area chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA).

The tournament, organized by Mac's Milk convenience stores, was held at 8 a.m. at the Upper Canada Golf Course and a total of 52 prizes donated by area stores, businesses and manufacturers were presented at a dinner following the event.

Joyce Lebeau, representative for Mac's stores between Brockville and Cornwall, told the Post the success of this tournament will result in the event being run again next year. Fred Harper of Morrisburg was the men's low gross winner with a score of 71 while Cornwall's Claire McCabe won the women's side of the 18-hole tournament.

Golfers were present from Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa, Mrs. Lebeau said.

Mac's stores are members of the MDA's National Association of Convenience Stores which raised 5½ million to combat the disease in 1980.

Fender bender

This two-vehicle accident occured on Sunday afternoon at about 2:10 p.m. when Kenneth Berry of Cardinal was proceeding up th legion hill toward the Dundas intersection, stopped and reversed into a car driven by Florence Smith of Morrisburg. There was about $800 damage to the Smith vehicle. Investigating officer was Constable Wayne Selleck.

Cardinal senior team will join St. Lawrence league

[CARDINAL] - Jake Stitt announced on Thursday that a group of 10 interested persons from Cardinal and area wil will be starting a senior hockey team.

Cardinal and Gananoque were both accepted in the St. Lawrence league last week in Kemptville. The league consists of teams from Cardinal, Kemptville, Prescott, and Gananoque. Morrisburg has decided not to enter the league this year.

In Kemptville, the possibility of the St. Lawrence league interlocking with the West Carleton league was discussed. The West Carleton league consists of Almonte, Bridalwood, and Laroche Park.

The Senior team will be called the Cardinal Redbirds and their colors will be red, white and blue. The sweaters may be similar to those of the Washington Capitals or Winnipeg Jets.

The training camp will begin Sept. 26.

Mr. Stitt introduced the coach and general manager, Brian McNairn of Morrisburg.

Mr. McNairn is 28, a native of Morrisburg and has coached the Morrisburg Lions Junior B team for the past six years. He played Junior B for five years and also intermediate hockey for two years.

Mr. McNairn stated that his goal "is to make a competitive team and maybe give Bridalwood a run for it." He said he would be leaning more to a defensive style of hockey.

The players for the Morrisburg team are free agents and have shown an interest in playing in Cardinal.

Mr. Stitt stated; "Brian has been given complete control of running the team and the choosing of players.

Mr. Stitt said he hopes that this team will help keep the junior players interested and be an incentive to play hard, knowing that there is something more for them then Bush league hockey.

Mr. Stitt said the club has no affiliation with the junior team at this time. The Prescott team welcomes Cardinal in the league, he said, and hope it helps draw - supporters in both communities.

Mr. McNairn said he feels that 10 years ago senior hockey was very popular but fan support went to Junior hockey for the past five years. He said he has noticed that there has been a downfall in Junior hockey attendance and feels the fans may be tired of the same type of hockey and will become interested in the different type of hockey a senior team will provide.

For senior team to survive in Cardinal, Mr. McNairn believes they will have to be a competitive team.

Games will be played on Friday nights and possibly some Sunday afternoons.

Firefighters defeated in competition

[LAFARGEVILLE, N.Y.] - Last Saturday seven members of the Cardinal Fire Dept. travelled to Jefferson County to compete in the International eight-man hose coupling race held at LaFargeville, New York.

The race has been taking place for approximately 30 years and pits the winner of the Eastern Ontario Firefighter Association Field Day which took place in June.

Copenhagen was the top winner in the race of all the American teams and competed against the Cardinal Fire Dept. in the international competition.

Copenhagen defeated Cardinal by one second to win the event.

The members of the Cardinal Fire Dept. were Rick Hare, John Paul Pidgeon, George Mallett, Robert McDonald, Pat McLean, Jim Witkie and Jim Grant.

Good start to new school year

[CARDINAL] - School is underway again and the children are all ready for the new year.

Lorne Bender, Principal of Benson Public School, told the Post the students "got off to a good start and are looking forward to a good year."

The enrolment is down slightly with 232 students of which 11 new students registered on Tuesday, Sept. 8.

There are a few changes in staff with Miss Kathy Denison teaching Grade and Mrs. Nimno teaching part-time in Grade 2.

Mrs. D. McKendry and Mrs. L. Lampson are no longer teaching at Benson.

During the summer, the swings, teeter-totter and other playground equipment was painted in the school colors of green, yellow and blue. They have also painted the school crest on the wall outside the principal's office.

Compensation for firemen increased

By Joan Grant

[CARDINAL] - The monthly meeting of Cardinal council was held on Monday with Reeve James McLaughlin and councillors Mary O'Brien, John Dugan and Ken Booth present.

Reeve James McLaughlin informed council that Deptuy-Reeve James Borrett was attending a dinner meeting in his place. The President of St. Lawrence College had asked one of them to attend.

A letter was received from engineer Peter Martin in regards to the village's means of financing construction of the causeway near the legion. Council is examining the cost factors.

Following a discussion Clerk-Treasurer Wes Baldwin was asked to prepare a bylaw to raise the interest rates on arrears of taxes from 15 percent to 18 percent.

Council was informed from the Minister of Revenue that they are not going to enumerate every year but only on municipal election years.

The council has raised the Workmens Compensation Coverage on members of the Fire Dept. to the maximum of $22,200.

A petition from some residents on Marjorie street was read and the Town's Foreman was asked to get some No Exit signs and put one up on this street.

A letter was read from the Ministry of Transportation stating that there will be no more $2 license for the municipal vehicles. They will be charged the regular truck prices per gross weight.

Fort Construction laying sidewalks

The sidewalks are being constructed now.

Two men attend fire college

[CARDINAL] - In an effort to keep abreast of firefighting the Cardinal Fire Department had two of its senior men attend the Ontario Fire College in Gravenhurst from August 30 to Sept. 4.

As fire losses increase and fire deaths mount each year so must the fire department increase its ability to prevent and combat this menace.

The Cardinal municipal council set Robert McDonald and Deputy Chief James Grant to the College for the one-week course at the request of the Chief Ted Campbell to keep the department's capabilities at the highest possible level. Both men said they enjoyed the course and they returned home with a vast wealth of information. Both also received their diplomas for the course and hope to be able to teach what they learned to the other members of the department.

They said the course was excellent, demanding and rewarding.

Merchandise changes in plans of new clothing store owners

[CARDINAL] - The old Jack's of Cardinal has a new name as well as new owners.

The store will now be called MacDonald's and the new owners, Lee MacDonald and his wife Linda (formerly Pratt), took over the store on Monday Aug. 24.

Mr. MacDonald was born in Cardinal and left the village in 1961. From then until 1967 he was employed with the Toronto Dominion Bank in Montreal and in Ontario. He went to work for Zellers in Midland in 1967, travelling around Ontario until 1969, when he transferred to Vancouver.

In 1975, he moved to Edmonton as merchandise manager, with Zellers prior to purchasing a business and returning to his home town, Cardinal.

Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald have taken up residence on Marjorie St. with their son Mark, 12, and daughter, Marcy 6.

The store hours will remain the same and Mr. MacDonald said the regular staff will be staying on at the store. He stated that he wants to give the customers what they want and is open to their suggestions.

The fall line of merchandise will remain the same, Mr. MacDonald said, but added he hopes to be introducing new lines in the spring possibly jeans and color co-ordinates.

He will be running a large sale for the next two weeks and hopes to be raising the Senior Citizens Discount from 5 to 7 percent.

Jack Savor has served the public for most of his life except for time spent in the army and six years at the Canada Starch Company. He had been in business for 17 years.

Born and raised in Cardinal he started working as a boy with his father at Savor's store on Lewis St.

Eventually, Mr. Savor opened Jack's Men's Wear on Lewis St. carrying a complete line of men's and boys clothes.

"That's where Reeve Jim McLaughlin served his apprenticeship for $10 a week and the use of a car when he could get it away from me," chuckled Mr. Savor.

Later Mr. Savor expanded to include a complete family line when he moved to Dundas St.

He joined the army in 1942 and spent three years overseas, one term on the municipal council and was secretary of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 105 for a number of years. He also served as a Justice of the Peace and Commissioner of Oath and Affidavits for the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville.

"Operating the store has been an enjoyable experience as well as quite a challenge," said Mr. Savor.

Mr. Savor has been asked to stay on and assist Mr. MacDonald during the transition in ownership.

New owners

Lee MacDonald and his wife, Linda, stand in front of their new business, MacDonald's clothing store. The store, in location of the former Jack's of Cardinal, was purchased by the couple on Aug. 24 and they intend to expand the line of supplies the store has to offer. NEWS OF HEALTH

REDUCING THE RISK OF CANCER

A recent survey of Americans show that most would support increased efforts to limit exposure to cancer-causing substances, but there is a considerable division of opinion as to where to draw the line and how high a price should be paid for this protection.

Many scientists feel that the risks of cancer must be reduced for as many people as possible in the most effective and least societally disruptive way.

New approaches to setting exposure levels of industrial workers to possible cancer-causing agents are now being explored. One such approach was presented recently at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Dr. Paul F. Deisler, Jr., vice president of Health, Safety and Environment for Shell Oil Company.

He suggested that instead of singling out a particular suspected chemical and reducing exposure to it to an extremely low level, the total exposure to all suspected industrial carcinogens be reduced. By placing the emphasis on meaningful reduction of exposure to all suspected industrial carcinogens, rather than reduction of a few to extremely low levels, it is believed there is a better chance of achieving the overall objectives of preventing as many people as possible, and as rapidly as possible, from contracting cancer.

Many people in industry have recognized that they should seek opportunities to work constructively with government. Many are learning that the problems and potential risks of chemicals cannot be controlled without the combined efforts of many groups which ultimately represent all the diverse interests of the public.

Through a combination of voluntary efforts by industry and of regulatory requirements from government, many scientists feel an acceptable balance of risks and benefits from the chemical industry can be reached.

Th election of officers was held with Tom Amell acting as election chairman. The new executive is as follows: President - Bessie Tracey; Vice-President - Pauline Peters; Secretary - Karman Wallace; Treasurer - Percy Childs. Appointments to the various committees followed.

Mrs. Tracey then read out the duties of each committee and the meeting was closed.

Fort Wellington offers attractions during off-season

by Wende Butcher

[PRESCOTT] - Every July, Prescott residents hide their silver and bar their doors against the onslaought of the Brigade of the American Revolution (BAR). For two days Fort Wellington is host of one of the largest annual military pageants in North America. (BAR is a voluntary organization made up of amateur historians from all walks of life in both Canada and the United States.

What, you may wonder happens at Fort Wellington the remaining 363 days of the year?

Ron Dale, Interpretation Officer at the Fort for the past few years, sums up the function of the fort in this way; "We like to think of Fort Wellington as a resource of the area."

According to Mr. Dale, the fort staff would like to become more involved in an "extension program" in which school boards, historical societies, Senior Citizen groups and the like would arrange for a personal visit from a fort representative and make a follow-up visit as a group to the fort. From an educational standpoint students should make more use of the facility as well, drawing from it the wealth of history available through visual and printed information, he added.

Fort Wellington boasts an interesting and varied history. The Prescott area was originally settled by the United Empire Loyalists who chose it for two main reasons. First, the rapids east of Johnstown made it impossible for large ships to continue down river past this point. Therefore the ships had to be unloaded and their cargo loaded into smaller craft to continue their journey to Kingston and places further west. As well, the St. Lawrence River is narrow at the point of land that Fort Wellington occupies, making it necessary to defend its easy access from American attack.

At the outbreak of war in 1812, the Loyalists manned a cannon battery on the waterfront and reinforced a house which stands on what is now East Street. Fort Wellington is the former farm of Edward Jessup and in early 1813, surveying began for the eventual construction of a fort on this site.

Prior to construction, the Loyalist forces launched an attack on Ogdensburg by crossing the ice on the St. Lawrence and were victorious in capturing the town from the Americans.

Actual construction of the fort began in the spring and summer of 1813 and was completed the following year. During the 1820's the fort was virtually abandoned. However, during 1838, soldiers were again garrisoned at Fort Wellington, necessitating some reconstruction.

In November, 1838, rebel forces attempted to attack Fort Wellington by landing at a dock near by. Their landing attempts were foiled and they continued down river, where they were defeated at the Battle of Windmill Point.

The blockhouse, as it now stands, is the largest built by the British in Canada. The original blockhouse, built in 1813, was demolished and in 1838 the present one was erected. The earthworks, officers' quarters and capponniere are from the original fort.

During the period from 1850 to 1871 the fort was reworked and garrisoned twice. After the Confederation of Canada in 1867, it became a militia depot. In 1923, it was turned over to the Department of the Interior and became a museum.

Mr. Walter Webb, a well-known Prescott resident ran the museum until the 1950's. During this period, in 1940, Fort Wellington became a National Historic Park.

Over the past 20 years, restoration has been an ongoing event at the fort and it is now authentic to the mid-1840's.

During the summer months at Fort Wellington, there is a corps of 19 riflemen, 7 guides and a guide supervisor, all welcoming visitors and guests in period costumes. There is also a corps of volunteers ranging in age from 5 to 15 who represent soldiers' children of the period. These children are from local families.

The volunteers depict life of 1845 soldiers and their families, with demonstrations of such things as candle dipping, cartridge making and period games for the children. There are no formal guided tours, unless a special request is made. Each visitor is encouraged to see the fort at their own speed, enabling the individual to dwell on the parts of mid-1840's life that interest them most. A self-guiding pamphlet is avaialble for visitors to aid them in their explorations.

The Thursday evening film program will be resuming this fall with features from National and Provincial Parks in Canada as well as some American Historic Parks.

The fort is open seven days a week until October from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and from November through May, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. by appointment. There is no admission charge.

Hospital asks ministry for operating funds

[WINCHESTER] - The Board of Governors of the Winchester District Memorial Hospital will launch an appeal to the Ministry of Health asking for additional operating funds for the operation of a four-bed concentrated care unit.

At the board's regular meeting on Aug. 25, a letter from the ministry was read giving approval in principle for the unit but stating operational costs are to be contained within the currently approved budget.

It was explained to the board that the cost of operating the unit, which is a separate entity, cannot be contained within the regular budget and that partof the hospital's present deficit is due to the non-funded costs of this unit.

In view of the fact the Seaway Valley District Health Council also approved the unit, including operating costs, the board decided to appeal the ministry's decision.

In other news, the board learned that the emergency power equipment was tested during a planned power cut for about 3½ hours on July 12 and was found to be capable of providing adequate power for such an extneded period of time. It was noted, however, that the generator reached its limit of capacity and any expansion of the hospital would require the installation of a larger unit.

The board also approved the purchase of several items of equipment including food-storage units, refrigerators, hospital seating chairs and a filing cabinet as well as other items at a total cost of $9,500.

Donations to the hospital totalled $4,760 and included a $4,000 donation from the Rotary Club of Ingleside and Osnabruck.

Gail VanNoy, president of the hospital auxiliary, reported that there were no meetings held since June but the auxiliary has kept busy with several projects and raised $300 from an Old-Time dance and $1,000 in a draw for a quilt at the Morewood Blue Grass Festival.

In the report of the medical staff, Dr. G.J. Slowey reported thatt he chronic care unit is running to capacity due, apparently, to problems of non-availability of appropriate alternative accommodation.

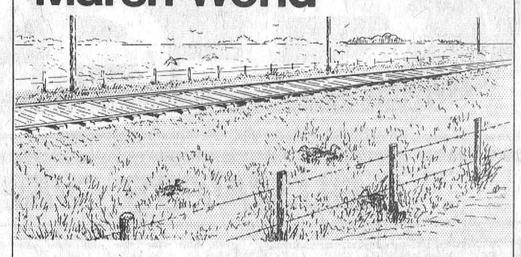
Marsh World



RAILROAD RIGHTS-OF-WAY — Across the prairies, where intensive agricultural activities have removed much of the nesting cover for waterfowl, railroad rights-of-way have proven valuable in providing such cover. Here, within the fence lines, grasses, upland plants and small shrubs afford good cover for the nests of ducks, upland birds, etc. Such habitat is readily accepted by mallard, pintail, shoveler and blue-winged teal even though water may be some distance away.

Singing policeman special guest at DATA information day Oct. 3

[MORRISBURG] - Constable Dominique D'Arcy spends his working hours pounding a beat as a member of the Ottawa Police Department but his off duty hours are filled with music -- composing, singing, playing and recording.

All of his songs have a message, many relating to his experiences as a police officer.

Mr. D'Arcy comes by his love of music naturally - as music has always been a part of his life. He comes from a family of 12 children with an Irish country background. Most members of his family are musically inclined. Some of his brothers and sisters played at Country Dances and when he was 17 he joined them as Lead Singer.

Fifteen years ago he joined the Ottawa Police Department, and composed his first song after one of his friends on the force was killed in an accident. He's been writing songs every since.

Besides recording and entertaining on his own, he has done several charity shows with the Ottawa Police Male Chorus and the Folk and Country Music Show.

On Saturday, October 3, those attending the D.A.T.A. Information Day for Young People at the Morrisburg Community Centre will have the opportunity to see a different image of a cop. It's bound to be an experience they'll all remember.

D.A.T.A. is still in need of volunteers to assist with this Information Day. If you can help, either by cooking, donating food, helping out with the work involved on that day, or by cash donations to help offset the costs, please call Jan Craig, 543-3022, Lyn Hill, 543-3348 or Carol Richer, 543-3556.

Don't pass up this chance to do something positive to help curb the spread of Drug and Alcohol abuse among our Young People.

Board announces posthumous award

[CORNWALL] - Jim Christakos, Director of Parks Canada, Ontario Region, Environment Canada, has announced that Robert Bell, a former director of the geological Survey of Canada, will be commemorated by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada.

Dr. Bell (1841-1917) became a leading explorer and surveyor of the Canadian Shield in Northern Canada between 1874 and 1900.

A plaque unveling ceremony will take place on the esplanade of the Geological Survey of Canada Building, 601 Booth Street, Ottawa, on Tuesday, Sept. 15, at 3 p.m. This ceremony will be presided over by Professor Edward H. Storey, the Ontario member of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada.

The Honourable Judy Erola, Minister of State for Mines, will represent the Honorable John Roberts, Minister of the Environment, department responsible for Parks Canada.

She will be accompanied by Mr. J.M. Bell, grand nephew of Dr. Bell, who will unveil a branze commemorative plaque.

Big Event planned

[SUMMERSTOWN] - A committee is busy working on plans for the Third Annual Big Event to be held in the Salem Church Hall here on Saturday, Nov. 7.

The booths will include Antique dealers, furniture, dishes and other furnishings also. There will be hand crafts, jewelry, dolls, collectables, different part of the province occupied Japan.

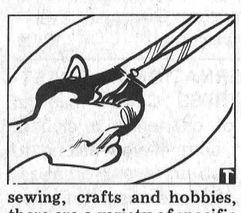
There will be U.C.W. booths with home baking, jams, jellies, pickles, house plants, books, white elephant and craft tables.

Refreshments will be available all day and there is no admission charge.

The ability to taste sweet foods diminishes with age.

Ints For Homeowners

HOME IMPROVEMENT, SAFETY AND ECONOMY
SELECTING SCISSORS AND SHEARS



A basic practice in working with hand tools is to never use one that wasn't designed for the purpose. As an example, damage will result to the tip of a screwdriver if used as a pry bar!

When we come to scissors and shears, the same rule applies. The experts at Wiss, a leader in American cutting tools since 1848, point out that every scissor is formed for a specific function, and that serious harm can easily come to fine-honed precision blades for delicate fabrics when applied to heavy string. Far better, they say, to cut string with "general household" or utility shears—and that's why they make them and other specialties like kitchen shears and even multi-purpose metal snips. A main feature of the snips, incidentally, is their "compound action"—cutting with half the effort required of conventional types.

In and around the home, a pair of the utility-type shears will answer most common needs. But for home-sewing, crafts and hobbies, there are a variety of specific tools for specific purposes. These include regular and left-hand dressmakers' shears, embroidery scissors, thread clippers like Quick Snips, safety or round-point models, pinkers and skallopers for decorative and ravel-resistant fabric edges.

Some of the quality features to look for when scissor shopping are light weight, hand-contoured molded handles, and cutlery steel blades joined with a screw pivot which enables the user to adjust them and for better sharpening. As for scissor care, keep blades clean, store in their original protective vinyl pouch, and once a year give the pivot joint a drop of light oil.

Knit & Chat

By May E. Mac Lean

It's a cold, raining and chilly day here in Montreal this morning, more like late October or November weather than early September, so that one's thoughts begin to think of the coming winter! Even my little dog was shivering, so I had to find an old piece of blanket!

I have just finished an afghan for a friend in a very simple pattern and one appropriate for my column on a day like this. I used two No. 4 or 6 mm knitting needles and two 50 gram ball of knitting worsted will make one strip of course oddments of wool can be used if you wish.

Six strips makes an average size afghan approx. 52 x 60 inches or 132 x 152 cm. Each strip is approximately seven anda quarter inches or 18 cm. wide. You will need to work at a tension of four stitches and six rows to one inch or 2.50 cm.

Cast on thirty-six stitches.

First row - which will be the wrong side, knit one, knit two together, knit sic, wool forward, knit one, wool forward, knit six, knit two together twice, knit six, wool forward, knit one, wool forward, knit six, knit two together, knit one. Purl the following row, then knit the next row. These three rows form the pattern are are repeated until you have worked approximately sixty purl ridges, about sixty inches or 152 cm, then cast off.

This pattern can be used as a scarf, or join two or three strips for a shawl, you can use it to make a lap robe or as an afghan. The three rows are easy to memorize and I found it useful knitting while watching TV.

Another interesting one row pattern if you are thinking of making a lacey mohair afghan or even a shawl for an elderly person, can be made as follows. Using a large knitting needle, cast on the numberof stitches required in a multiple of two. All rows are worked as follows - knit one, then wool round needle to make a stitch, and purl two together across row to last stitch, knit one.

This simple tied Vest is in keeping with my chilly thoughts today! Knitted vertically in a simple lacey pattern using Patons Misty, their new lovly mohair type yarn, this is a very easy, quick and inexpensive little garment to make. It'll provide that little extra warmth to your shoulders when sitting down, or make one in a pretty pastel colour as a bedjacket!

To order Leaflet No. 0881, send 75 cents PLUS a stamped self addressed return envelope, long one if possible. If you do not have a stamp or envelope, please enclose an extra 25 cents to cover the cost of handling and print your name and address. Send to: — May E. MacLean, "Knit & Chat", c / o The Iroquois Post. Please be sure to state pattern numbers correctly when ordering and to enclose your stamped return envelope for faster service.

Seaway this week

Busy start for students

By Craig Patterson

It's been a busy first week for many students at Seaway. Grade nine students are just becoming used to the life of Seaway, others are testing teachers to see how far they can go and for some its just routine.

Seaway's senior and junior soccer teams are now holding tryouts and practices for the season opener against Osnabruck on Thursday.

Senior and Junior junior girl's basketball has started and practices are continuing before the pre-season which starts shortly. Also occupying the gym after school hours are the boy's senior and junior volleyball teams preparing for their season.

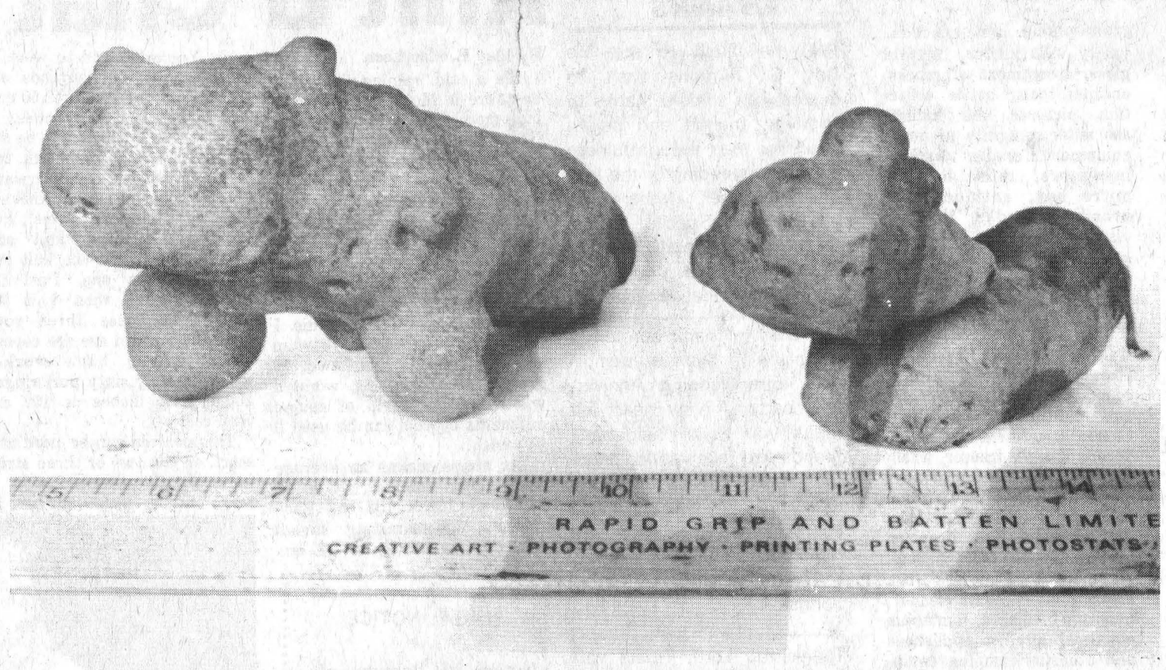
Clubs and groups should be organizing and starting within the next week. As well the intramural program started Monday introducing co-ed soccer.

The students council is busily preparing for such upcoming activities as commencement which comes early this year, and dances and other events.

Friday was hat day at Seaway and in conjunction with it there was a tug-of-war in the gym during noon-hour. A great time was had by all especially M.C. Bruce Casselman.

The stage band is also busily preparing for an upcoming appearance at the Skyline Hotel's main ballroom in October.

As Mr. Nowickyj stated, it is a great honour for the Seaway band to be chosen above many bands in Ottawa. A crowd of about 700 is exptected to attend.



Animal potatoes

Perhaps its because of the wet weather, but there have been some odd-looking potatoes pass through the doors of the Post recently. Two more of them are this fellow on the left that resembles a hippopotamus dug out of the garden by Gwen McGill of Lunenburg and the curious dog-like spud on the right discovered by John Bell of Brinston.

International Plowing Match planned from Sept. 29 - Oct. 3

[BARRIE] - Area residents may be interested in attending this year's International Plowing Match and Farm Machinery Show being held seven kms north of here at the junction of Highways 400, 11 and 93 from Sept. 29 to Oct. 3.

The match is held on a 400-hectare (1000 acre) site in a different part of th eprovince each year. The tented city, a completely serviced community features more than 500 exhibits sprawled over 45 hectares.

One of the event's major attractions is the largest outdoor farm macinery show in Canada. However, there are many other exhibits and activities that attract more than 175,000 visitors annually to the event. There is a showing of new cars, trucks and recreational vehicles as well as the latest fashions and home appliances and farm equipment and supplies.

The plowing matches are still a major portion of the show as more than 200 contestants are expected to participate in various classes for $40,000 in prize money. Participants plow in daily matches to accumulate points toward the over-all championship.

Another popular event is the Queen of the Furrow competition in which 30 women, representing counties, regions and districts of Ontario, vie for the title. The winner, selected for public speaking ability, poise and plowing capability is announced at the Plowmen's Banquet on Friday, Oct. 2.

Earl Rowe, Ontario Lieutenant Governor from 1961 to 68, will officially open the match at 2 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 29 following the official parade.
