Ruth Hummell of Morrisburg was bridesmaid. She wore a floor length gown of pink lace over nylon, the bodice fashioned with sweetheart neckline and short puff sleeves. Her shoulder length veil was held by a bandeau of pink roses, the her corsage was of yellow roses.

Gordon Casselman of Williamsburg was best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Benton left for a motor trip to Quebec and points in the States. For travelling the bride wore a blue crepe dress with a white shortie coat and white accessories.

They will reside in Prescott.

Meikle Cup Meet To be Revived

The Morrisburg Collegiate Institute, as the last holders of the Gerald Meikle Memorial Cup, will revive competition for this historic trophy in a track and field meet to be held at the Morrisburg Fair Grounds on Friday October 8th beginning at 1.30 p.m.

The coveted trophy was given as a memorial to the late Gerald Meikle a prominent Morrisburg athlete, who lost his life in World War I. It is awarded annually to the secondary school in the United Counties, which excels in certain track and field events. The annual competition has been suspended during the past few years, due to wartime conditions, but it is felt that now it will attract a larger field of entries and be a bigger and better meet than ever.

Keep the date in mind—Friday, October 8th, for the Gerald Meikle Memorial Cup Track and Field Meet.

Winchester Man to Develop Huge Mineral Find

A Winchester-born man, Horace George Pitt, is enthusiastically planning development of a huge deposit of radioactive minerals recently located in the Wilberforce area, in Haliburton County. A printed report confirming the discovery of valuable deposits of uranium, thorium and other fissionable metals, was published Wednesday. It is titled "The Haliburton Report" and was prepared by E. S. Wolfe, professor of mining engineering at the University of Toronto, and Nelson Hogg, Ontario Government geologist.

Mr. Pitt has secured control of some 20,000 acres and in two years, has put some $350,000 into initial development. By spring, he expects to have a staff of 200 and a monthly payroll of $150,000. He was in Ottawa this week interviewing the Department of Mines and Resources, and the Atomic Energy Control Board His mill will require a further investment of $500,000.

"On the basis of this report" said Mr. Pitt, "we are justified to go ahead with what will be an important new mining operation in Eastern Ontario.

IN TWO short years we have added over 257,000 telephones, put in hundreds of switchboards and trained thousands of people to extend and improve your telephone service.

We are adding more telephones to meet the continuing demand for service just as fast as equipment becomes available.

All this is being done in the face of rising costs. Yet, up to now, there has been no increase in the basic telephone rates established 21 years ago.

For you, this means greater value than ever before: for us, the satisfaction of providing "the best telephone service at the lowest possible cost".

Letter To The Editor

SCHISMS

Editor Leader,

Sir—During the first part of the Christian era, there arose a number of controversial theories which seriously threatened the welfare of the early Church. Perhaps the Apostle Paul did more than any other mortal to denounce the subversive elements to unify the opposing doctrines, and interpret aright the principles of life taught by our Saviour.

Individual thinking and personal theoretical construing of the principles of living are sacred inheritances of our forms of government but when they entail selfishness, denial of recognition of others' rights and prejudicial priority their basic principles must be wrong, or their reasoning surcharged with subversive ideas or the end in view out of harmony with the welfare of mankind.

Two instances in modern life will suffice to illustrate.

The opposing systems of government are the totalitarian and the democratic. In the former the forces of inhumanity, brutality and gross injustice are so commonly employed that it is difficult to strain out the good, while in the latter the beneficent objective is apparent, the systems of conduct are in the main honourable and the aim is Peace and Good Will among men.

Nevertheless let us not be too satisfied with ourselves as long as we have the politician at variance with the statesman, the party-monger war whooping so loud that honest loyalty can scarce be heard and monopolistic interests ignoring the masses.

Personal aggrandizement, party-mad affiliations and short-sighted policies often undermine and submerge the objective "Good".

In union there is strength and a United Canada has been the dream of our statesmen since Confederation. We remember with gratitude and admiration men like Macdonald and Blake; Tupper, Baldwin and Lafontaine; Cartier and Howe; Borden, Laurier and King, who have striven whole-heartedly to create in this most favoured country a spirit of National Unity.

Why should not the descendants of the two great races of Europe live in a new world in harmonious relation having common aims, common laws and common government loyal to the best interests of the country, rooting out petty prejudices and isolationistic tendencies

Many subversive elements are at work even after centuries of hope and learning. Ignorance rears its ugly head, ignorance of country, ignorance of life, our own and our relation to others, ignorance of our Creator and our relations to Him.

Self reverence, self knowledge, self control, these three lead life to sovereign power, says Tennyson, but selfish interests and motives destroy and drag down. To isolate one province by wrong precepts and prejudicial ideologies is disloyal and encourages national disintegration.

May the spirit of provincialism be replaced by the spirit of National Unity. May the disloyal propaganda of Norman dominance be overcome by a conversion to faith in Canadian unity. May the faith in one God, one government and one united country be inculcated in the minds of all, young and old, who wish to make this great land of Canada their home.

Otherwise we may need another Paul to interpret National Unity, dispel false ideologies and re-create the old Roman spirit where

None was for the party, but all were for the State,
Where the great man helped the poor man, and the poor man loved the Great.

DILLABOUGH—LAWLOR

A wedding of interest took place at St. Mary's Rectory on Friday evening last, when Phyllis June, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lawlor of Morrisburg, became the bride of William Dillabough, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Dillabough of Ottawa. Rev. Father J. F. Feeney officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an afternoon dress of white jersey with black felt hat and black accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses. Both bride and groom were unattended.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Dillabough will reside in Morrisburg. The out of town guests were Mrs. W. Lea of Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. W. Dillabough, Miss Marguerite Dillabough, Mrs. W. Hayes, all of Ottawa.

Prior to her marriage the bride was the guest of honour at several showers.

Duncan Twins to Chase Pucks in England

The Duncan Twins, Erwin and Edwin, of Vernon, known to thousands of hockey fans in the Ottawa Valley, leave today (Friday) for London, England, where they will chase pucks this winter in the Harringay arena, and will also tour the continent and the British Isles during the next 8 months.

Twenty years of age, the twins always played hockey together, and it was with the Inkerman Rockets that they became the most prolific scoring pair in junior hockey.

They are the only players from last year's championship Rocket aggregation to be signed up by Duke MacDonald of London, England, and will sail on the Aquitania from Halifax on Saturday.

PRESENTATION TO MISS HELEN DEEKS

A social gathering of members of the Sunday School, Choir and Young People's Union of Williamsburg United Church was held in the Sunday School Hall on Friday evening.

The feature of the gathering was to honour and to make a presentation to Miss Helen Deeks, who is leaving this week to attend Ottawa Normal School.

After an evening's entertainment of quiet games, contests and a singsong in rapid succession, Miss Deeks was presented with a very pretty bedroom clock on behalf of her friends in the church. Rev. Gerald Fee, in making the presentation address said the gift was a token of sincere appreciation for her services in the church and expressed the sentiments of all when he wished her abundant success in whatever line of endeavour she might undertake in the future.

The presentation was made by Miss Gladys Cunningham.

Although taken very much by surprise, Miss Deeks expressed in a few words of acceptance her deep appreciation of the thoughtfulness behind the gift. Refreshments were served and a pleasant social evening was brought to a close.

WHAT GOES ON IN THE WORLD

by Norman Blair

France

On the 21st of this month the spotlight shifts to Paris, and the beautiful capital of France becomes, in a sense, the capital of the world. That's because, for the next six to ten weeks, the United Nations General Assembly will be holding its regular fall session there, and the consensus among experts is that this will constitute the most important international gathering since the end of the war.

As one of them says, " it is no exaggeration to say that in a large measure the shape and fate of the world may depend for a long time to come on what takes place in the Parisian palace that once graced the grounds of the 1937 World's Fair."

Western and eastern powers, the intermediate states, and even the "postage stamp" nations have been getting ready for a real showdown —all of them convinced that this session may well determine whether there is to be a working agreement between East and West, or whether things are to develop into an all-out armaments race.

To say nothing of the German problem, among the issues probably to be decided are those of Greece, Czechoslovakia, Palestine, Indonesia, Kashmir, Egypt, Korea, Trieste, Spain, South Africa, the Italian colonies, the Italian peace treaties and the abuse of the veto in the Security Council—every one of them a hot spot. And behind every meeting, every discussion, there will lie that one all-important matter—the struggle for power and advantage between East and West.

It is estimated that at least 6,000 persons will attend the Assembly as delegates, officials, secretaries, correspondents and consultants. The newspaper coverage will no doubt be one of the most extensive ever known as European publications, which have been only thinly represented at Lake Success will have correspondents by the score on the spot.

It is the hope and prayer of an overwhelming majority of the world's peoples that the Paris session will be such a success that it will lead to an easing of the fear and tension which now grips most of mankind. Whether those prayers are answered, whether those hopes are fulfilled is, of course, another matter. There are times when one can't help thinking of the man who said that this world is really the Nether Regions where we have been sent because of sins committed in some former existence.

India

Some years ago a favorite selection with concert and parlor tenors used to tell of singing to a loved one "songs of Araby and tales of old Kashmir." But there is little of that sort of sentiment in the news coming from the latter far off land these days—for the Kashmir natives, who lost homes, wives and families when fierce Pathan tribesmen swept therough their country looting, burning and slaying last Fall, have been formed into a militia said to be "the most fiendish fighters on earth."

Their commander is Colonel B. M. Kaul who, when he learned that his dearest friend had been killed in an engagement in Kashmir, immediately left his Embassy post at Washington and had himself transferred to active service. Using as his non-coms seasoned Indian Army veterans who had fought in the Middle East, Greece, Italy, Burma and France, he has recruited as his militia men who have nothing to live for but revenge upon the despoilers of their homes.

The Kashmiri are naturally a gentle folk, and for centuries they have been content to bow before the swords and guns of numerous invaders of their beautiful homeland. Now, for the first time, they are striking back—and striking back viciously. On one occasion, defending a 7,500-foot mountain ridge, they were attacked by double their number of enemy troops—yet in spite of their inexperience, they beat off the foe and inflicted casualties of better than five to one.

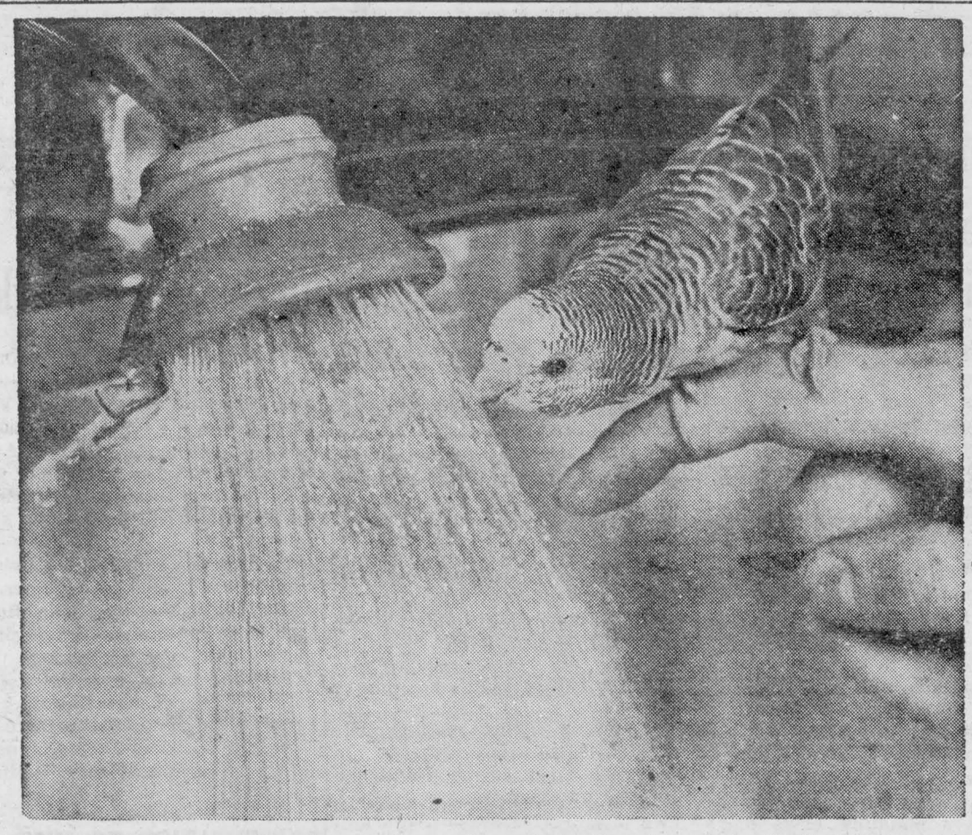

They are in all sorts of God-forsaken places. Their little garrison at Leh, in the eternally snow-clad Himalayas, receives its supplies by air; and to reach them, over the lofty foot peaks, Indian pilots have to reach an altitude of 21,600 feet —and that without either oxygen or de-icing equipment. Even at "the roof of the world" it seems that there is no peace.

Hadn't Passed Out

Mrs Wilson left her gloves, as usual, in the restaurant. She discovered her loss at the door and turned back. They weren't on the table, so she got down on all fours and began to search underneath. A waiter tapped her on the shoulder. "If it's your husband you're looking for, madam," he said respectfully, "I think you'll find him in the washroom."

Birds Get Thirsty Too—Just like millions of people in Canada and the United States, this pet parrakeet felt the recent severe heat wave and seems to be really enjoying a fresh, cooling drink of running water. That's a neat job of balancing he—or maybe it's she—is doing on its owner's finger.

SPORTS—&c

by A SIXBIT CRITIC

Those Argonauts seem to be at it again. Although the football season is hardly more than well begun, already you see creeping into the newspaper accounts of their games the old familiar phrases. And it might be interesting to look through the files of the past few years and see how often the Argos were "outplayed for the biggest part of the game but got the breaks" — how frequently they "got all the smiles from Lady Luck" — on how many occasions their opponents "should have won on the play, but finished on the wrong end of the score".

If you went only by what you saw in the papers—and believe all you read—you might think that the Scullers were fortunate to be in a big league at all. Yet, somehow or other, when the end of the season comes, you generally find them up there in the finals and, more often than not, finishing on top of the heap. But, almost invariably, through a fluke, or because, as a team, they're festooned with horseshoes.

But if you have any notion that this in any way represents the true state of affairs—forget it! The Argonauts always remind us of the gentleman who, many long years ago, attempted to teach us the art of draw poker—a useless task because of our ineradicable belief that two pair was a big hand coupled with a love for trying to fill inside straights.

In the opening session of our poker education we chanced somehow to hold—all at the same time —four queens; and when the showdown came we slapped the four royal ladies, face up, on the table and grabbed the stakes with a whoop of triumph. Our mentor looked at us dourly. "Listen, bud," he told us "Three of them there queens would be plenty to take that pot—so why show more of them than you got to? 'Tain't poker!"

And, as we said before, whenever we read about the Argonauts outlucking their adversaries, we cannot help recalling that incident of days long gone by. In other words we have a strong suspicion that the Argonauts are generally a trifle better coached—that they possess more and cleverer plays — and have a slight but definite edge in strength over rival teams. But, like a really good poker player, they seldom if ever show down more than enough to take that jackpot. Anyway, those who back them consistently usually collect in the long run, and who could ask more of a team—or a racehorse— than that?

We think it was Hedda Gabler—anyway, one of Mr. Isben's characters — who exclaimed "At last a noble deed—at last a beautiful action" or words to that effect. And the fact that she said them on receiving news that her boy-friend had knocked himself off with a revolver has nothing to do with the case, Ibsen's works being full of folks who perform in a slightly screwball manner.

What we are getting at is that similar sentiments rose in our mind on learning that the magnates of the National Hockey League had at last done something of which we heartily approved—or, rather, refrained from doing something which would have made professional hockey a laughing-stock to any but its most fanatical followers.

Before said magnates went into executive huddle there were widely spread and apparently well-grounded rumors to the effect that—acting on the principle of "get it while the getting's good"—they intended increasing their regular playing schedule by some twelve games or so per team. But when the meeting was over, such rumors proved to have been groundless. That is to say things were left just as they had been—and in our opinion, it's just as well they were.

Some claim that real, blown-in-the-bottle hockey fans, male or female, are people who will stand for anything—and that if they didn't see anything ridiculous in playing five months for the purpose of eliminating just two teams out of a total of six, they'd see nothing wrong in extending the elimination process for another month.

But there's no telling. Gluttons for punishment though they are, hockey fans might finally turn out to be like Cousin Egbert, in the book "Ruggles of Red Gap" who used to protest that he "could be pushed just so far and no farther." Just because big league hockey has been favored with sell-out crowds for several years back is no guarantee that such a condition will exist forever. Moving picutre shows and other forms of alleged entertainment are already feeling the pinch, and — perish the though! — there might come a time when hockey box-offices would be welcoming cash customers, instead of dealing out tickets with the air of conferring a rare favor.

At all events hockey's top brass has decided——for the time being at least—not to make Canada's national game "a year-round business. 'Tis well. Slightly altering the words of another great dramatist—Shakespeare this time—we say "It is a far, far better thing you do than you have ever done." Enough is enough!

Merry Menagerie—By Walt Disney

Just For Fun

Milton Berle tells about the first time he went to Hollywood and a terriffic lawn party was given to welcome him. All the movie glamour girls went to fantastic length to surpass one another in grandeur. One wore six strands of genuine pearls. Another wore a pendant that made the Hope Diamond look like something from the five-and-ten. A third arrived in a Rolls Royce with her Pekingese following behind in a Lincoln.

But one of the girls topped all the others completely. She brought along her own swimming pool!

Every Forest Fire Is To Be Probed

From now on every forest fire in Ontario is to be thoroughly investigated, according to the Ministry of Lands and Forests, and in cases where carelessness is proved, those responsible will be assessed for the cost of fighting the fire and for loss of timber.

It is reported that while loss in the largest fires was heavy, salvage possibilities are good and operations have already started to save some of the scorched timber. In 1948 the Department has already fought, and extinguished, more than 800 fires. Two of the fires, in the Chapleau and Sault Ste. Marie forest districts, raged for more than three weeks, despite the efforts of thousands of men and a million dollars' worth of fire fighting equipment.

Estimates of timber loss reached $35 million, a figure not entirely agreed with by the Department. In some places, fires jumped from one place to another, leaving large patches of untouched timber in between. These areas are now being surveyed and cutting operations will start as soon as possible. While a lot of trees were killed, they were not completely spoiled for timbering purposes.

In a survey flight, it was found that the west end of the province had been relatively untouched by fires, as well as the French River, Timagami, Parry Sound, Algonquin Park and clay belt districts.

The Department has commended the northern timber operators, tourist camp operators and mining companies for their work in checking the major blazes.

Farm Gets One-Day "Face Lifting"—Here are some of the 500 volunteer workers who in just eight hours more than doubled the value of a 175-acre farm. More about this interesting operation is told in our FARM FRONT column.

THE FARM FRONT

by John Russell

How would you like to wake up in the morning on your farm, worth approximately $13,000 and then realize, the same evening, it had more than doubled in value? It actually happened recently to a woman farm owner in Maryland—and if you think that she struck oil, gold, uranium or any other precious substance, you're mistaken.

The farm, owned by Mrs. Nelly Thrasher, is a hillside one of 175 acres. Some five hundred of her neighbors, using half a million dollars of equipment, gave it a "face lifting" which represented five years work accomplished in less than eight hours time.

When they were through, instead of rain-cut gullies which carried the topsoil away with every storm, there were diversion ditches and terraces dotting the landscape. The house gleamed with a frest coat of paint, and Mrs. Thrasher's thirty cows were in a new, modern barn. The whole farm, when the volunteer workers had finished, was representative of the latest methods of contouring and soil conservation.

One feature of the day's work—which was witnessed by an estimated 25,000 spectators—was the construction of an earthern dam between two hillocks. It held back a one-acre lake, well stocked with bass, and excess surface water from the diversion terraces will now flow into the pond instead of cutting new gullies.

Still and moving pictures of the entire action were taken from the ground and from the air, and will be used to help stimulate soil conservation practices throughout the world. I haven't seen them as yet, but the whole thing sounds like a grand idea, and one well worth copying nearer to home. In fact I'd be willing to make a small bet that among the readers of this column there would be one or two willing to offer their farms as an "experimental station," just as Mrs. Thrasher did.

"Use 2,4-D With Caution" is the heading of an editorial in The Country Gentleman, which goes on to say that investigations made to determine where and how this weed killer can be safely used have shown that almost unbelievably small amounts will destroy plants that are especially susceptible. A picture is shown of a ruined tomato plant which was hit by a 2,4-D spray of one - third normal weed - killing strength.

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture is increasing its investigations regarding 2,4-D which, while recognized as a most valuable weed-killer, can be dangerous when improperly used. Most of the serious trouble has been the result of dusting from airplanes, with the dust drifting onto areas where it was not intended to fall. Such dusting from planes has now been forbidden. The restriction, however, does not apply to 2,4-D sprays.

In some of the states boys and girls are trying out a new livestock feeding project, and people are enthusiastic about the results. The boy or girl buys an average lot of feeder steers or lambs from a uniform herd or band—the number depending on finances, equipment and feed supplies available.

These lots of animals, bought at a central market, are taken home and fattened. Careful records are kept of feed costs and rates of gain. At the end of the feeding period they are shipped back to market and sold on Junior Marketing Day.

The boys and girls consign their animals to commission firms of their own choice. On arrival the animals are penned separately, according to ownership, and each lot is graded and weighed separately. Then all are assembled in pens according to grade— and are sold for slaughter in the usual manner. The boys and girls profit according to the market value of their animals.

Benefits claimed for the plan are that it promotes better farm feeding methods; that boys and girls learn about market grades of livestock; that they learn about central markets and how they operate; and that it is thoroughly practical. Sounds interesting, to say the least.

New — And All Of Them Useful

"Seweless" Buttons. Said to be a real improvement on the old "bachelor button" so popular 25 years or so ago. Made of plastic, this two-part button can be easily snapped into place, and should be a real improvement on its metal counterpart which was somewhat complicated, often rusted, and was too unattractive to be used except on work clothes. Makers claim it will withstand laundering, strong soaps, cleaning fluids, heat and the pressure of rollers of washing machines.

Aluminum Nails. Made for the building industry in six types and sixteen sizes these nails are said to have sufficient strength for any purpose and to be suitable for use with most types of building materials. Weigh only one-third as much as steel nails, giving three times as many per pound. Now in production in U.S.A. but no word as yet of their being available in Canada.

Sugar Substitute. Six hundred times as sweet as sugar these tablets are wholly non-nutritive, containing neither the calories which those seeking to reduce weight try to avoid, nor the carbohydrates harmful to diabetics.

For Tiny Travellers. Combination playpen and crib, weighs 37 pounds, folds into size 29 by 20 by 9 inches, looks and carries like a piece of luggage.

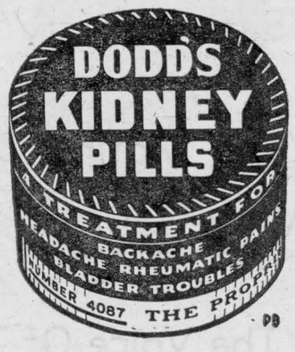

Pocket Stove. For campers, a portable stove that can be carried in pocket and burns either lighter fluid or gasoline without the use of a hand pump. Monel metal stove and grid fold into a compact package. Makers say tankful of fluid burns for an hour and a half.

Plastic-Faced Hammer. Specially compounded plastic striking face can be used without danger of marring such surfaces as aluminum, polished woodwork etc. Hammer has drop forged head to which face is fastened, and retains driving power of ordinary hammers of equal weight.

New Liquid Plastic. Renews surfaces of painted or varnished floors, linoleums, woodwork, cars, furniture, silverware and household appliances.

Manufacturers says glossy, long-wearing finish will not crack or flake off, and is obtained simply by wiping the liquid on with a clean cloth. Impervious to heat, cold, moisture, caustic soaps, alcohol, fruit juices and most chemicals, and can be cleaned with damp cloth. One gallon covers approximately 1600 square feet.

To Keep Basements Dry. Recently developed is an electric dehumidifier about the size of a large ashcan. It keeps basements dry by sucking in the damp air, then cooling it enough to condense the moisture.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

by Gwendoline P. Clarke

Is there a cool breeze anywhere, I wonder—just one little spot where the thermometer doesn't register almost a hundred in the shade? Really, the heat this week has been terrific—but then you don't need me to tell you. Do you? The only thing to make it bearable is to remember that it can't last for ever. Even as I write clouds have actually appeared in the sky, breaking up the heavy heat haze that has hung over this poor scorched earth like a pall for the last six days. Who knows—maybe by the time this gets into print we may be donning our sweaters. Oh, happy thought.

Speaking of sweaters reminds me . . . A newcomer to this country, and speaking very little English, mopped her brow and asked hesitantly—"Wet—what you say for wet?" Her employer smiled and said—"Well, if you are a lady, you say "perspire" but men quite often say "sweat." The girl was thoughtful for a few minutes then she said—"Ah yes, yes—I understand . . . perspire and sweat—same thing. Then you say cows perspire, bull, he sweat? That right—yes?"

Here is another little story which doesn't belong to Ginger Farm but it did happen in this district.

Three men and a dog were working in a nearby bush, drawing logs, I believe, and of course, not paying very much attention to the dog, who was amusing himself as dogs will, chasing rabbits or sniffing around for other legitimate game. Suddenly the men heard the dog yelping piteously and he ran towards them obviously in terrible pain. The reason was soon discovered. The dog had found—and grabbed—a porcupine, no less! Between them the men tried to release some of the quills from the poor dog's hide but their attempts to help so plainly increased his agony that they soon gave it up. So they brought him home and called on a neighbour to bring his gun and put the poor thing out of its misery. Instead of that the neighbour suggested asking the "vet" if there was anything he could do. "Sure," was the answer, "bring him down and we'll fix him."

So the dog was rushed to the veterinary office where he was immediately given an anaesthetic and was soon mercifully unconscious of his pain. Then the 'vet" went to work and pulled out over a hundred porcupine quills. They were everywhere, especially around the poor dog's mouth and throat. When it was thought all the quills had been removed the dog's master took him home, still unconscious, and thus he remained for almost eight hours. Yesterday I saw him—that was the day following his adventure—he was still very weak and quite evidently far from happy, but he was able to walk around slowly and would eat and drink when he felt like it. The "vet" thought that in a day or two he would be completely recovered. I wonder will he recognize a porcupine next time he sees one.

As I undestand it a porcupine is quite harmless unless attacked when it has the power to shed its quills, which probe the flesh of its victims and cannot be removed without great pain because the end of each quill is shaped like a sharp hook.

I wonder what we would do if Tippy got into such a mix-up? Maybe a painless death is really the kinder solution but then, if a family pet can be saved, it is only natural one should want to keep it alive.

Tippy, these days, is spending much of her time in the coal cellar where there is a dirt floor which she finds cool and comfortable. "Leading a dog's life" is surely a misnomer if ever there was one. It might better be called an ideal existence compared with us poor humans who work and swelter in this hundred-degree heat. Yesterday our men both had threshings to go to and today Bob is sweating it out on the tractor. As for Cicely and I, we are doing as little, wearing as little, and worrying as little as we possibly can. But it doesn't make any difference — even doing nothing at all would be hard work these days.

STOP PRESS NEWS: Sunday night and, glory be, it's cooler! Tomorrow we head for the Exhibition.

If Three's A Crowd, What Are Five Threes?—When triplets were born to Mrs. Rene Gagne she decided that some day she'd give a party for other threesomes. After four years of planning the great day arrived—and with it came five sets of cake-and-ice-cream hungry triplets. Left to right, front, are seen the Doherty's and and the Grady's. In the rear, the Cardinale's, the Gagne's and the Follows trio. The giver of the party does not appear—we imagine because she'd be too busy right about then.

Trotting Horses "Hit The Dirt"—Handlers rush to the scene as two trotters and all their gear go down in a tangle during a race at Springfield. The big spill came when a sulky pulled by Popular Ann, left, collided with the one hauled by Miss Morris Chie.

YOUR HYDRO CHAIRMAN REPORTS

on the Power Shortage

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION OF ONTARIO

620 UNIVERSITY AVENUE
TORONTO 2

ROBERT H. SAUNDERS, C.B.E., K.C.
CHAIRMAN

September 11, 1948.

Dear Fellow Citizens:

The demand for electricity from all classes of the community - homes, farms and industries - all over Ontario, is still mounting. Homes are being built, the demand for increased production from farms is steadily increasing and industry is pressing forward with plans for expansion, plans that mean greater production and more jobs to keep Ontario prosperous.

It is anticipated that the increase in demand over the available supply will amount to in excess of four million kilowatt hours per day, and conservation measures have been put into effect as of Tuesday, September 14th. These will include reductions in the supply for show windows, office lighting and certain industries, banning outdoor electrical signs and in other ways. Even with all these reductions we will still be short 1,200,000 kilowatt hours per day but to insist on more would have a hampering effect on industry and seriously reduce employment.

Where then can we get the vitally needed power? From you and every individual Hydro user in Ontario. How much should you save? Take a 60-watt electric lamp as an example. For every 24 hours it burns, it requires almost one and a half kilowatt hours of current. If every one of the 900,000 Hydro users in Ontario will save the equivalent of that much electricity every day there will be no need for cut offs.

Everyone must do his or her part. It should be a 24 hour effort. Turn off every light, switch off every motor or appliance the moment it is not needed. Particularly, watch the switches on your electric range.

The situation is critical. Full employment must be maintained and the support of every householder, every commercial user and every industrial consumer is essential in avoiding the waste of electricity.

Robert H. Saunders

Chairman,

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Goering's Own Story

This is an historical document of the first importance. It was dictated by the No. 2 Nazi in the last months of his life to Wener Bross, one of his defense counsel at Nuremburg.

GOERING'S OWN STORY is the last word of an unrepentant Nazi. He knew that no effort to recant or deny his record would save him, and thus provided for the world the monstrous essence of Nazi thinking.

The state in which Reich Marshall Hermann Goering was one of the prime movers has been defeated in war. Upon the British Empire and the United States, leaders of the coalition which defeated her and which now have the responsibility of building a new Germany, falls the task of understanding the beaten enemy in order to be able to undo his work.

That is why every Canadian should read

National Immunization Week

(from the magazine "HEALTH")

National Immunization Week has become a recognized annual event in Canada. Of national proportions for six years now, it is a period of intensive educational effort sponsored by the Health League of Canada in co-operation with the Departments of Health and Education, and with the support of other voluntary associations, the press and radio. It is designed to impress the Canadian people with the importance of taking advantage of the discoveries in the field of preventive medicine which make it possible to prevent such diseases as diphtehria, whooping cough and smallpox. This year National Immunization week commences on September 12th. The actual work continues however, for a longer time and in this area, and a number of district clinics have been arranged, details of which may be seen elsewhere in this issue.

It is of great interest to know that since 1944 the number of cases of diphtheria has decreased from 3,211 in 1944 to 1,500 in 1947; whooping cough from 12,192 cases in 1944, to 10,327 cases in 1947. Undoubtedly, education of the population has been a potent factor here. Yet eternal vigilance is the price of success. It is tragic that there should have been 139 deaths from diphteheria last year and 221 deaths from whooping cough During the same time there were only 90 deaths from poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis, a disease which inspires more dread in the minds of parents. So far, so preventive has been found for polio, but there are preventives for diphtheria, whooping cough and smallpox.

It is hoped that during and after National Immunization Week this year parents through the whole country will co-operate with health authorities in having their children immunized. Toxoid prevents diphtheria. Whooping cough vaccines prevent whooping cough. The efficacy of vaccines in proven by the fact that during several years recently there has not been a single case of smallpox in Canada.

National Imhunization Week ought to teach parents that immunization is not important during only one week, gut that during the whole year every effort should be made that these devastating and unnecessary diseases should be eternally banished from our land.

Fair Time Highlights

By the Ful-O-Pep Reporter

To go, in a matter of hours, from what is sometimes described as "just a small-time fair" to what is acknowledged to be the world's greatest annual Exposition is an illuminating experience.

It was one which happened last week to the Ful-O-Pep camera man and roving reporter; and both of them say that, on the whole, they're liable to remember their trip to the Fall Fair at Zurich, Ont. longer than the one to the C.N.E. at Toronto.

Not that they disparage any part of the great show that Elwood Hughes, Kate Aitken and all their horde of collaborators put on at Toronto. They admired the vast new Grand Stand—the marvellous displays of manufactured goods and products from all over the world—and all the rest of it.

Yet—somehow or other—at Zurich they felt more in touch with the real spirit which inspired the idea of these Fall Fairs. More people passed them—or bumped into them—in one minute before the booth concealing the Fat Lady at The Ex. than they saw all day at Zurich. Yet, at the latter point, there was the feeling that—even though you were a stranger—you were among friends.

A great poet once wrote lines that ran something like, "'T'is not in growing like a tree—in bulk—that makes men better be" and so on. Fall Fairs like that of Zurich and others we will cover in this series will never grow to the size of the Canadan National Exhibition. They don't expect to do so—nor have those who make them possible any hopes in that direction. Yet both have a definite and important place in the Canadian scene and the producers of Ful-O-Pep are proud to pay both tribute.

For both of these types of fairs—although in the case of the larger ones the intention is sometimes obscured by the bright lights and glitter—are a development of the idea that Canada grew from an unknown and presumably barren land into one of the world's great nations because of her unparalleled national resources, and the intelligent use of them. Also that when Canadians forget that their real strength comes from the soil and what lies under, it will be a sorry day for all of us who live here.

SHORT STORY

Understanding Always Helps

By ANNETTE VICTORIN

Ardeth Haines listened as the band played at the Fair. The tune was gay but not for her. Frank, her husband, was listening, too, at the other end of the field They had quarreled. They should have been together, holding hands, not apart nursing anger. Was it her fault if she was thrifty? Why did Frank have to blow up when she hinted at his extravagance? She was only thinking of their future and of the house they dreamed of owning

That morning she had found him in the garage. "Isn't it a honey now?" Frank had asked pointing to the portable radio on his work bench. "It works like a top since I put in the four new tubes."

"Four new tubes?" Ardeth gasped. "How could you when you know how much I wanted new dishes?" There were angry tears in her eyes.

Frank grabbed the radio and threw it into the corner She stalked out, hurt and defiant.

Later, when Frank asked: "What about the Fair?" she answered, stubbornly, "I'm going, but I'm going alone." And the way she said it made Frank dash out of the house and slam the door.

Suddenly there was a fanfare and Mr. Getty, master of ceremonics, announced loudly: "This is the moment you have been waiting for. For weeks we were fine-combing the community for the happiest married couple. Folks, here they are, Mr. and Mrs. James Pratt. Married twenty-five years and happily!" Mr. Pratt was holding his wife's hands and looking down into her face. Mrs. Pratt was beaming. Ardeth looked over at Frank but he was staring straight ahead.

Mr. Getty talked into the mike. "We can all pattern our lives after this happy couple." He showered them with gifts; furniture, groceries and a bond. As Ardeth watched them walk off, she wondered about their recipe for happiness. Twenty-five years! Surely, Mrs. Pratt would be glad to help out a broken-hearted woman!

The next morning was Sunday. Frank ate breakfast in silence and disappeared into the garage. Ardeth walked over to the bus. It wasn't a long ride She was surprised to find the Pratt's house smothered in bushes and trees. It certainly symbolized happiness. A dream house! She ran up the steps with a lightened heart. She pressed the bell but no one answered. She could hear the radio and knew someone was at home. If they didn't answer the front, perhaps they would the back door. Walking around, she heard loud voices in the basement.

"Is that so?" yelled Mrs. Pratt. There was a blasting noise and Ardeth heard falling glass. Then another voice. "How in the blazes was I supposed to know you used the pan for that?" More crashes. "My aim is as good as yours," the first voice screamed. "If you crave to throw, I'll throw something, too."

Later on, when Ardeth had been invited in, Mrs Pratt said: "So you came to me for advice?" She patted Ardeth's shoulder and said: "Perhaps I can give you some at that." She offered Ardeth some home-made cookies. "We're happy. Quarrels don't matter, every normal couple has them. But you can't change a husband. You've got to accept his shortcomings as he must accept yours . . . There isn't any recipe for happiness. But you can overlook many things in life."

When Ardeth got home Frank was still in the garage. She went straight to him. "I'm sorry about the tubes, Frank. I'm an awful tightwad."

Frank's eyes brightened up like sparklers. He reached to a shelf.

"I got you this at the Fair," he said, handing her a huge bow-bedecked box of candy. It looked awfully expensive, but Ardeth remembered about the overlooking part Mrs. Pratt had mentioned, so all she did was to look into Frank's eyes.

They Don't Believe in Dieting—Two hundred and sixteen and a fraction pounds is the average weight of these six sisters, the entire sextette pulling down the scales at a snappy thirteen hundred pounds. From the left, front, they are Mrs. Alexander, Richvale, Ont.; Mrs. Olson, Miami; Mrs. Perring, Richvale; and in the back row are seen Mrs. Daley, Mrs. Reid and Mrs. Entwistle, all of Toronto.

No Option

A road-hog known for his determination never to be overtaken was going at great speed one day when he heard an insistent "honking" behind him. He turned and saw, just on his wheels, a baby car driven by a wild-looking individual.

Back he turned to his wheel, down went the accelerator pedal, and up rushed the speed indicator.

Seventy — eighty miles an hour was touched, but still the hooting continued.

At last, worn out, the speed maniac slowed down and drew to the side of the road.

"Come on, then, if you must pass," he cried.

"I'm sorry," said the driver of the baby car, "but I'm hooked on."

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. R. Barclay Warren

Eunice, Lois, and Timothy, a Religious Family.

Golden Text: As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord. Joshua 24: 15.

Timothy had a good start in life. From a child he knew the scriptures a knowledge that saves from many snares. Timothy's mother and grandmother were women of faith. What a heritage was his!

Timothy heard the Gospel on the occasion of Paul's first visit to Lystra. He saw this messenger, first offered worship as a god and then stoned, dragged out of the city, and left for dead. Doubtless he later heard the apostle's exhortation "to continue in the faith and that we must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God".

When Paul returned to Lystra on his second missionary journey Timothy's Christian influence had already spread abroad. Paul invited him to accompany him in missionary work.

Timothy performed a very useful ministry. Religion is not inherited, but the influence of godly parents and grandparents is of untold value in assisting children and youth to chosse the way of discipleship of Jesus Christ.

ANNE HIRST
Your Family Counselor

"DEAR ANNE HIRST: Some months ago I met a man, and have been having dinner with him several times a week, and spending Saturday afternoons together. We both are married. My husband knew of this, but as he works at night, he saw nothing wrong.

"Now this man's wife has found out. And she doesn't like it! I called her up, and tried to explain we were only friends. She refused to see me. She has made it look so bad!

"I don't think she should try to keep her husband home all the time. He likes his freedom — and she is spoiling our fun. They have children, but he doesn't like being tied down.

"Now he is trying to keep his wife from leaving him—and he refuses to see me.

"Is it wrong to have men friends after one is married?

This Is Wrong

MANY A busy husband doesn't object to an old friend giving his wife a pleasant evening now and then. But if the incident became a habit (as yours has) and if it had to be clandestine (as yours has) these husbands certainly would sing a different tune.

THEY CERTAINLY would not consent to their wives dining with married men, and risk the possibility of their becoming involved in a divorce suit.

YOU ARE wrong to resent this wife's attitude. All these months she has been trusting her husband, believing whatever excuses he gave for not coming home. And now when she has found out the truth, how can she regard his friendship with you as innocent? She has her own ideals of loyalty between husband and wife, and he has betrayed them. What would you think in her place?

DID IT ever occur to you to question whether she would object to his seeing another woman? Or did he deny that she would?

HE DOESN'T like being tied down? His wife may not relish it any better. But she must stay home, alone with the children, while he enjoys his stolen freedom. And all you can say is that she is "spoiling your fun." Isn't that reaction adolescent?

YOU ARE presumably a mature woman, and a wife. I don't know how you were brought up, but you should have learned that one must avoid the appearance of evil.

THIS MAN is fortunate indeed if he can convince his wife that he has been innocently occupied during these months he has neglected her. I hope the experience has taught you, too, that however guiltless you both were, one must honor marriage per se, or take the consequences of disobeying the social laws of the world we live in.

One cannot play with fire without getting burned. It pays to pattern one's life safely. If adventuring tempts you, ask Anne Hirst what to do. Write her at 123 Eighteenth St., New Toronto.

Just For Fun

The five-year-old "momma's darling," taken calling by his mother, was looking through a copy of an old book about the Christian martyrs, filled with highly colored illustrations. When he came to the well-known picture of the Christians being thrown to the lions in the Roman amphitheatre he burst into tears.

"My little Percy is so smart, and so sensitive," said his doting parent. "Just look how touched he is by the suffering inflicted on the Christians by the barbarians."

Percy continued to sob, and when they tried to comfort him he said, "Just look at that poor lion over there. He hasn't got even one Christian."

YOUR HANDWRITING and YOU

by Alex S. Arnott

This week's illustration shows graphic signs of tactfulness and gives an interesting study of personality. Intuition is the basis of a tactful personality and this is shown in the scrip by the breaks between the letters where the pen was lifted.

Compactness of the letters clearly indicates that much feeling is put into the writing, and the sharpness of most of the letters is a sign of the rapid mental activity. The capital letters convey independence, but not vanity. The strokes of the letter "t" show humor and tenacity.

To sum up, it may be said that there is sensitiveness of feeling for others in the slope of the writing, with intuition to sense the important features of a situation. There is humour, alertness of mind to meet new and varied conditions, and tenacity to hold to principles and ideals.

DIDN'T I TELL YOU?
You get 50% MORE Jam or Jelly with CERTO

AND RESULTS ARE SURE!

Sounds almost unbelievable — until you know the reasons why. Certo is nothing but "fruit pectin" — the natural substance in fruit which makes jams "jam" and jellies "jell." It's extracted from fruits in which it is most plentiful for better, quicker, easier jam and jelly making.

1. Short boil — That's why, when you use Certo, you don't have to "boil down" your fruit to make it set. A one-to-two-minute full, rolling boil is enough for jams . . . a half-minute-to-a-minute for jellies.

2. Extra yield — The short Certo boil saves all the precious fruit juice which, in long boiling, goes off in steam. You get an extra yield of 50% more jam or jelly.

3. Saves time, work — What a lot of time and work it saves, too! The old long-boil way you'd have to boil and stir many times as long.

4. Fresh fruit flavour — colour — With Certo you use fruit at its peak of flavor and colour and not the under-ripe fruit used in long-boil recipes. The Certo boil is too short to spoil this lovely taste and colour. They stay right in your jam or jelly.

5. No failures — You'll have no failures if you follow exactly the recipes provided with Certo. Different fruits need different handling, so there's a separate tested recipe for each one.
