The FORD
The Universal Car

Why has the Ford become known everywhere as the Universal car?

Why is it that even the enormous production of the big Ford factories cannot supply the ever increasing demand?

Why is it that there are more Fords in use to-day than any other car made?

One reason, no doubt, because the price of the Ford is within the reach of any man of moderate means. But the cost is not the only or even the principal source of the Ford's great popularity among all classes of purchasers. Here are a few facts which will enable you to see how simple is the answer to these questions

1st—The Ford has the L-Head type engine now used in 71% of the cars on the market, even in cars that cost seven or eight thousand dallors.

2nd—The Ford Radiator is 100% better than ever. The water circulating through vertical tubes is called by the well known thrmo system. No freezing in winter.

3rd—The Carburator is the special "float-feed' make and can be adjusted from the seat. This makes it possible to effect a great saving in gasoline, once the engine is warm.

4th—Ignition single system Ford Special magneto. No batteries required whatever, no stopping at service station to get batteries charged. No trouble of sending away for new batteries or new parts every year or so. This alone means a saving of from $22 to $40 in Ignition up-keep. And remember the Ford Magneto will last as long as the car.

5th—The Ford Lighting system is now just as good as the best. The improved lights is a very important feature of the 1917 model.

6th—Ford Tires 30 by 3½ Same size tires often found on cars 400 lbs heavier. Wheel base 100 inches.

7th—Ford Springs Semi-elliptic transverse, a type that cannot be improved on.

8th—Ford Brakes Service brakes on transmission and always dipping in the oil, Long-life and emergency brakes on rear wheels enclosed from mud and dust. Clutch steel disc, many high-priced cars now adopting this type,

9th—Change or Gear Planitary type, impossible to break anything when shifting speeds. Two forward and one reverse speed with direct drive on high speed against the least friction

10th—Ford Reaches If you happen to break a spring on a Ford, the reaches will still hold the axle in place and you won't have to wait on the road for repairs but if necessary you can stick a plank under your axle and steer for home.

OBITUARY

Mr. Gregory Brandstetter

On Sunday, the 12th. inst., death claimed Mr. Gregory Brandstetter, a well-known and highly esteemed citizen of Morrisburg, and one of the pioneer settlers of this district. He had been ill for about ten days, suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia. Owing to his advanced age, being in his 70th. year, it was from the first, evident that his chances of recovery were very slight. During the week the absent members of his family were summoned to his bedside and were present when the end came.

Mr. Brandstetter was born in Bavaria, in the little village of Woolfstadt, only a short distance from Oberamergau, the famous home of the "Passion Play." He came to Canada with his father in 1854 and settled in Mariatown about a mile west of here. At that time Morrisburg had not yet been incorporated. He had been a constant resident of this locality for about 62 years. He was twice married; his first wife, whose maiden name was Bridget Taylor, predeceased him some thirty years ago, and in 1888 he married Mary O'Brien, of Chesterville, who survives him. Besides his widow and one son, John, of Ottawa, he leaves to mourn three sons and two daughters, born of his first marriage, namely, Benjamin, Montreal; Donald, New York; Leo, steward on the Government steamer "Alert", Mrs. J. Toner, Montreal, and Mrs. J. Clarke of New York. He is also survived by two sisters and two brothers, Miss Catharine, Miss Emma, Mr. Nicholas and Mr. Michael Brandstetter, all residents of Montreal.

Always quiet and unassuming, the late Mr. Brandstetter was possessed of many good qualities. For many years he followed the carpenter trade and was an honest, painstaking and industrious workman. Without making any great display he never failed to do his best under the circumstances in which Providence placed him, to provide for the welfare and education of his children. He was kind and charitable in word and deed, hence he made many friends and few enemies. By all who knew him he was known as one whose word was as good as his bond. A devout and fervent Catholic, he was noted for his steadfast loyalty to his religion. One of the oldest members of St. Mary's congregation, he gave generously of his moderate means to support the Church, and no worthy charity ever appealed to him in vain. In his last illness he was attended by every kindness and comfort that loving sympathy can minister; he was fortified against the dread journey to eternity by the multiplied graces of the last sacraments, and by every solace that lively faith and hopeful prayer can afford the dying. His death was resigned, peaceful and happy.

The funeral took place on Wednesday morning from his late home to St. Mary's Church, where Requiem High Mass was celebrated by the Reverend Father Meehan. The pall-bearers were W. H. McGannon, Charles McMartin, John Harrison, J. P. Gormley, William Houlehan and George Biccum. The high esteem in which the deceased was held was amply proven by the numerous large number of friends from all classes of the community who attended the funeral service and reverently followed his mortal remains to the last resting place of the dead. A beautiful floral tribute was sent by teachers and pupils of the public school, where Mr. Brandstetter had been employed for the past few years.

Young Man Drowned in Canal

A young man named Achill Boyer, engaged as deck hand on the teamer "Mapleton" which locked through here on Wednesday afternoon about 2 p.m., fell off the boat whilst attempting to secure a pail of water from the canal at a point bout two miles above Morrisburg, and was drowned. Boyer was 23 years of age and single. His home is in the County of Soulanges, Que.

The steamer was stopped immediately after the accident, but before assistance could be given the unfortunate had disappeared.

At the time of going to press the body had not yet been recovered, but a grappling party, in charge of Chas. W. Marsh, who are still at work, have recovered the pail which Boyer held in his hand at the ime of falling overboard.

LATER—The remains have been recovered and removed to Marsh's Undertaking Parlors, where they have been viewed by Coroner Mulloy who declared that an inquest was not necessary.. The funeral will take place from Chas. W. Marsh's & Sons on Saturday, Nov. 18th., to St. Mary's Church and cemetery.

Conscription Not Necessary

According to Brig.-Gen.' Hemming of the 3rd. Military District who called a meeting of commanding officers of the district on Wednesday, conscription is not necessary just at present. He thinks that this district can fill all the new battalions allotted to it if right recruiting methods are adopted. Another battalion is likely to be authorized for St. Lawrence River counties.

THE LAPSE OF ENOCH WENTWORTH

By ISABEL GORDON CURTIS,

Author of "The Woman from Wolvertons"

"Here's the whole situation. If Miss Wentworth and you do not fancy having me here as a—guest, no better word than that occurs to me now, Grant Oswald might be interested; at least he might insist on paying the royalties to the—author. Or I could get a fancy price for the story from a New York paper. I am told they pay tremendously on this side for a sensation. This would [illegible] you say so yourself?"

"God!" Enoch stared at her desperate eyes.

Miss Paget rose, unpinned her hat and tossed it upon the table. She stood surveying Wentworth with a look of amusement in her eyes. Then she crossed the room and leaned out at the window. "Hi, there, Cabby," she called, "wake up, Bring in the rest of that luggage."

CHAPTER XIX.

"There is another bit of baggage." Dorcas spoke to the cabman, who stood beside a carriage in front of the Waverly Place house. He lifted little Robin and set him on a seat with a grip beside him. Dorcas paused with her hand on the carriage door. "Wait," she ordered, as the man started to go in the house; "here is a valise."

He lifted it from the hand and swung it up on girl, beckoning to the steps of the her. dull gleam of a e. She laid her of the inside door one does when in fear r. "Jason," she re- to talk with you for ssy." There was a tremor negro's voice.

Dorcas stood gazing at him steadily, though a quiver in her chin belied bravery,

"Jason, don't ask me again to take you with me," she pleaded. "If you do I shall weaken. I do not know where I am going myself. I have nowhere to take you. I shall miss you terribly, you understand that. But you must stay here and look after Enoch and the house and everything. You are needed here as you never were in your life before."

"Fo' de Lawd sake, take me wid yo,' Missy. I'll sleep anywhar. A corner in a cellar 'll do fo' me."

"Uncle Jason, do you remember the story you have told about mother leaving you to care for Enoch and me? Sometimes I think of that day. You wheeled mother out on the piazza where the locust trees were in bloom, and I almost believe that you did not tell me, but that I remember it myself."

"Yes, honey." The tears rolled down the negro's wrinkled face. "She called to Lucy to bring yo' out. Yo' wan't nuffin but er little pink face en two doubled-up fists dat wan't ez big ez a cotton blossom,"

The old man paused to wipe his eyes with a red bandanna handkerchief.

"And she said?" continued Dor The girl was trying to smile.

"She said, 'Promise me, Jason, long ez yo' lives, to care fo' my ba my sweet little gal baby, she'll ne remember she saw her mother. T care ob her, Jason, ez if de Lawd self had gib her in yo' charge.' promised, honey," the husky v died away in a sob; "I called de La to witness right thar dat I'd look fo' yo' all my life, ez well ez an darky could do."

"You have done it, Uncle Jason."

Dorcas took the sooty hand betw her palms. "If mother could kn how faithfully you have filled y promise—and somehow I feel, U Jason, that she does know—she wo say that you have the whitest s God ever put into a black body."

"Oh Lawdy, Missy, can't I come yo'? I don't need no money. needn't pay fo' me anywhar—"

"Jason, you blessed old saint, it i money I am considering, I have pl of money. Mother left Enoch your care as much as she did You have told me that."

The negro bowed his head solem "Won't you stay with him?"

Jason pointed to the inner doo the vestibule. "Honey, what's a-g to happen? Do yo' reckon dat M Enoch's a-goin' to marry dat—p son?"

"Jason, I don't know, Only must stay here."

"I will." The old servant s with slow impressiveness. "For Lawd, I will, Missy."

She ran down the steps. Jason lowed to close the carriage door she entered. As they moved a Dorcas leaned out to glance at home which had been hers school days ended. She caugh glimpse of Enoch through the He was leaning from the library dow. The room behind him glea white wth a blaze of electricity. fore the mantel mirror stood a wo Her arms reached above her hea pin back waves of shining yellow The cabman pulled up his horses looked through a window in the "You didn't tell me, lady, where want to go."

"Drive me to the Gotham Thea said Dorcas; "then I wish you to this little boy to Harlem."

CHAPTER XX,

That night, when the curtain fell upon the third act, Dorcas turned eagerly to Merry. "You are my friend?" she whispered.

"Miss Dorcas," the actor's voice was profoundly grave, but his eyes smiled, "I would bestride the whirlwind or set my foot upon a cyclone for you."

The girl lifted her eyes with a swift glance. She remembered the line—it was one the actor used to speak in "The King at Large."

"I believe you would." Her voice was low and impetuous. "I need a friend, a strong, patient, wise friend, as I never did in my life before."

"Miss Dorcas, you make me wish this moment that I were a Samson and a Solomon. I am not strong or very wise, but I am patient, and there is no task upon God's earth that I would not try to do for you. You believe me, don't you?"

The crimson blood flushed into her face.

"Yes" Her voice was scarcely audible, The curtain began to ascend for an encore. "Come to Miss Billerwell's to-morrow night. I am going there to stay with Alice over Sunday. I need your help."

He regarded her curiously for a moment.

"I will come," he answered gravely. Then he took her hand and led her down to the footlights.

On Sunday evening Dorcas sat staring down into a crowded street of Harlem. Under the vivid glare of electricity the ctiy looked sordidly ugly. It was a strange contrast to her own home. The house at Waverly Place had retained much of its stately old-time dignity and its outlook upon the three-shaded square was quiet and pleasant. Upon Harlem's sidewalk throngs of children romped and shrieked in the midst of a city's din. A balmy wind had been blowing all day long and had driven a wintry chill from the air. Knots of women sat talking on doorsteps or they leaned out to gossip from adjacent windows. It was the hour for Sunday night suppers and a rush of business had begun in delicatessen stores, Strange odors crept in at the open window, a blend of garlic with stewed meats, pungent pickles, and cosmopolitan cheeses.

A gilt clock on the mantel struck seven. Dorcas rose, opened the door, and stood listening. On the lower floor she heard a door slam. She was trying to separate insistent noises of the street from everyday household bustle. She heard Mrs. Billerwell give an order to a servant, then Julie laughed merrily, and a light footstep sounded on the stair. On the other side of the wall a servant was preparing a room for her. She heard the girl slam a window and begin to move furniture about, while castors squeaked rebelliously. Then she fell to sweeping, and Dorcas counted absently each quick scuff of the broom. Once the maid dropped it and the stick fell on the floor with a startling rap. Occasionally her dragging footsteps clattered across a bit of bare floor or she paused to thump the pillows vigorously. Dorcas was roused from her reverie by the imperative call of the telephone. She listened while Mrs. Billerwell answered it. Then the doorbell rang and she heard Merry's voice, She began to grope about the dim room in search of [illegible] to light the gas. She was still

I knew that something had happened. I pushed him aside and ran upstairs. I could think of nothing but that Enoch had been taken ill. As I passed the hall rack I noticed the queer umbrella Miss Paget carries, It has a tiger's head for a handle—you remember it? Even in my anxiety I thought how strange it should be there. When I reached the library she sat beside the fire, reading a magazine?"

Where was Enoch?"

"In his little study, with the door locked. He came out when she began to talk to me."

"What did she want?"

"Andrew," the tears sprang to the girl's eyes, "that woman has come to live in our home."

"To—live—in—your—home!" Merry's voice had an incredulous tone in it. "Enoch has not—married Zilla Paget?"

"I do not know. I cannot understand. I think that Enoch hates her."

"Then why is she there?"

"I do not know."

"He didn't explain?"

"No. He looked like a thundercloud. She talked. She said she had come to live in our house. Her clothes were unpacked. She has taken the spare room. Her things, a lorgnette, and a scarf and gloves were scattered about the library,"

"Enoch must be—insane!"

"Oh!" cried Dorcas. Sudden horror flashed into her face. "Oh! you don't think—that?"

"No. I'm a beast to have frightened you. It is not that. Enoch is as sane as you are."

"Then what has changed him?" Her eyes searched his face with a piteous scrutiny. "You know. Won't you tell me?"

"I think it is—" The man hesitated for a word which would not hurt. "Yes, he has changed. He is not the same old Enoch. I cannot account for this. He promised me faithfully to drop her—for keeps."

PRACTICAL FARMING

The Care and Handling of Milking Machines.

Seven different kinds of mechanical milkers have been operated under varying conditions for periods of from six months to five years by Prof. Larsen, of the South Dakota Experiment Station. The results of his experience are summed up in the following nine points which contain many valuable suggestions, both for users of the milking machine and for those who contemplate installing them,

1. Before the milking machine is installed, cull out the cows having very uneven quarters, and teats that are extremely small and extremely large. Even though the milking machines may have a large range of adaptability in this respect, uniformly shaped udders and teats are advantageous.

2. The operator should know how each cow in the herd gives down her milk, and how she milks mechanically, and adjust the work of the milking machine according to the individual cow.

3. The cows that gave only a small amount of milk and habitually release their milk little by little are not best suited for mechanical milking.

4 .Breed and raise cows that are adapted to mechanical milking by, first, selecting a herd sire that comes from ancestors having good udders and teats and that milk well, or select a tried bull that is known to put good udders and teats on their daughters; secondly, by not raising the daughters of the cows that have abnormally shaped mammary organs and that are known to give down the milk irregularly.

5. The operator of the milking machine should understand how to adjust the parts and the workings of the milking machine to the different cows. He should have a mental picture of how each cow in the herd releases the milk, and how the work of the machine and the cow must work together and not at cross purposes.

6. The operator should take time to prepare the cow. Hes hould see that the teats are all in normal condition. With most cows, the machine should not be attached until the cow has given down her milk,

7. With some cows, and near the end of the milking process, the teat cups will climb upwards. The lower part of the quarter is thus wedged in to the upper part of the teat cup. This may shut off the flow of milk. The operator should gently pull down on the teat cups to release this grip or pressure before the machine in entirely detached. If this bothers much, a weight may be suspended from the lower part of the teat cup during milking. By gently lifting and pressing the halves of the udder in the latter stage of milking just previous to detaching, it will help the machine to milk the cow dry.

8. If the above points are observed, many cows need no stripping. The operator soon learns from the amount of milk, and from the looks of the cow's udder whether the cow is milked clean. However, to be sure, the operator should try every cow by hand. This should be done at once after milking. It may be accomplished by shutting the vacuum off and stripping directly into the teat cups, holding the cups in the left hand and stripping with the right; or it may be done by stripping into the pail.

9. The different parts of the milking machine should be kept sanitary by thoroughly cleaning, and by keeping the parts in a disinfectant solution between milkings such as previously described,

Deep Stirring v. Deep Plowing.

Deep plowing is not so much preached now, since the bringing up of the substratum to the surface is not altogether wise. Deep stirring, however, is another thing—and this is encouraged to give air to the roots, hence the success of dynamiting. At the same time, as pointed out by the "Field," London, the fact that deep cultivation is not always advantageous should not be regarded as justification for going too far in the opposite direction, as unquestionably many do. In this connection it is well to observe the distinction between deep plowing and deep stirring. The former is often a risky proceeding, but the latter hardly ever, and the more it is perseverer with the greater beccmes the rooting area and the cropping capabilities of the soil. The important thing to avoid, and which proved the undoing of the deep furrow theory, is the transposition of top and under soils. As far as practicable the latter should be kept at the bottom of the tilled stratum until it is improved mechanically and chemically through bacterial action, promoted by tillage and judicious manuring.

An example of the room that obtains for discretion in regarding the depth of furrow is provided by a simple experiment carried out in Morayshire in connection with the Aberdeen College of Agriculture. A field that had been two years in grass, chosen for its suitability for the purpose, was plowed at depths of 4½ in., 6 in., and 7½ in., and sown with oats, the treatment in every other way being the same throughout. It is interesting, and may even be a little puzzling, to note the influences of the varying depths upon the crop. The best return both of grain and straw was obtained from the 6 in. furrow, the deeper furrow being a good second, while it was evident that 4½ in. was an insufficient depth for that field. The only point in favor of the shallowest furrow was that the crop ripened rather earlier than on the other portions. This advantage, however, was gained at too big a sacrifice of quantity and quality of yield. All the samples gave the same weight per bushel, 44 lbs. of dressed grain. The returns of dressed grain were seventy-one bushels, 8 lbs.; eighty-five bushels 5 lbs.; and eighty-three bushels, 4 lbs., per acre, respectively; of light grain, 170 lbs., 155 lbs., and 130 lbs.; and of straw and chaff, 43 cwt., 45½ cwt., and 43¾ cwt, The soil is described as of a sharp black gravelly nature of a good depth, but whatever might be the result of deep stirring, it is evident that no immediate object is to be served by exceeding on it a 6 in. furrow.

Saving Pastures For Next Summer.

In order that the live stock which have been doing well on pasture during the summer months may maintain their gains, and for the sake of saving the pasture for another season, the farmer should take care that his animals are brought in and started on winter feed before the season becomes too late. Cattle and horses, more especially the latter, if left out in October and November are very likely to crop the pasture so close that there will not be sufficient winter protection for the roots of the plants, and in spite of their efforts to secure sufficient nourishment by this means, will go back in flesh.

Milch cows are particularly susceptible to the action of cold or wet weather, and one or two nights of frost while they are lacking the shelter of the barn will set back the milk flow to such an extent that the work of restoring it by extra feeding will prove very costly. The best results from added feed can always be obtained when the animal is kept up to top notch all the time.

If the land is firm enough late in the fall to allow of the stock being turned out without doing damage to the surface, then the plan of turning out during the warm hours of the day is a good one, but in this practice provision must be made for feeding of a plentiful ration of green feed in the barn, as the pastures after a heavy frost has occurred are not to be greatly depended on for feed.

Draining Belgium of Men.

The agony of Belgium continues, and even deepens in horror. The latest news is of the gradual evacuation of adult men from Ghent and other Flanders towns and the villages along the Dutch frontier. They are deported into Germany, there to be forced to work for the enemy states; and a lesser aim, doubtless, is, in case of a retreat, to leave behind no male population capable of bearing arms.

Not Guilty.

Little Charlie had been spanked by his mother for stealing cookies. His cousin who was present, wishing to comfort him, said: "Poor Charlie; you have my sympathy."

Looking up through his tears, he protested: "I have not! I didn't touch it."

BERNSTORFF'S DEPARTURE NEAR IS BELIEF IN WASHINGTON

The Submarine Issue Believed to Have Reached an Acute and Perhaps Its Final Stage.

A despatch from Washington says: With the elections over, it seems probable that the American nation in a few days will awaken to the fact that the submarine issue with Germany has reached its most acute and perhaps its final stage. Two important facts stand out prominently, namely:—

The State Department has received information indicating that the Prussians have inaugurated a change in their submarine policy and have decided to adhere no longer to the rules of international warfare in the conduct of their submarines, regardless of promises to the United States.

From a high authority it is learned that President Wilson has made up his mind not to send any more notes to Germany on the submarine issue, and that, if it should develop that recent cases, such as the torpedoing of the Arabia without warning, are in violation of the laws of cruiser warfare and of the Prussian promise to this country, the next step will be the dismissal from Washington of Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, and the formal recall of Mr. Gerard, American Ambassador to Berlin.

President Wilson informed Congress in the midst of the last submarine crisis that unless Prussian submarines conformed to the laws of the nations and of humanity he would feel compelled to sever diplomatic relations with the German Government entirely. Mr. Wilson never for a minute has lost sight of this possibility, and his mind is fully made up to act in this regard if unlawful submarine warfare is renewed.

MAKENSEN'S VAUNTED DRIVE ENDS IN INGLORIOUS RETREAT

Russo-Raumanian Armies Continue to Drive the Invaders Southward in the Dobrudja.

London, Nov. 12.—While Russian troops are battling on the western bank of the Danube for possession of Cernavoda bridge, the Russo-Roumanian forces are continuing their steady advance southward in the Dobrudja. From the west and the north hostile forces are closing in on Mackensen's army.

The Russian units west of Cernavoda advanced to the bank of the Danube before they met a sufficiently heavy enemy fire to compel their retirement toward Dunareav, according to yesterday's communication from Sofia. Though few details of the battle in this sector have reached London, it is believed by observers that the forces transported across the Danube by Mackensen must soon retire. Their position grows more dangerous as the Russo-Roumanian army moves toward Cernavoda from the north.

Evidently the forces landed by Mackensen near Dunareav, either by monitors or over a newly constructed bridge, were too small to make any headway along the railway to Bucharest.

NEW GOVERNOR IS INSTALLED

Duke of Devonshire and Party Reach Halifax on Saturday.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 12.—The Right Hon. the Duke of Devonshire was formally installed as Governor-General of Canada in the historic council chamber of the Nova Scotia provincial building here at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, in the presence of representatives of the Dominion Government the Senate, the navy, the army, the Supreme Court of Canada, Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia, the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, the Provincial Cabinet, the clergy of Nova Scotia and prominent citizens. His Excellency was sworn in by the Hon. Sir Louis Davies, K.C.M.G. The Duke of Devonshire is the third Governor-General to have been installed at Halifax, the others being the Marquis of Lorne and Earl Grey. The ship bearing the Duke of Devonshire, the Duchess of Devonshire, their two daughters, Lady Maud Louisa Emma Cavendish and Lady Blanche Katherine Cavendish, arrived here at noon.

LONDON NEWSPAPERS TO INCREASE PRICE

London, Nov. 12.—The price of the Times will be increased to 3½ pence after November 20 and other important daily newspapers probably will follow suit, says the Weekly Dispatch. Owing to the cost of production, it adds, a number of leading newspapers are being conducted at very heavy losses.

NINETEEN SECTION WOMEN KILLED IN BERLIN

Berlin, Nov. 12.—The Balkan Express, which runs between Constantinople and Berlin, dashed at full speed yesterday into a party of women section hands in a suburb of Berlin. Nineteen women were killed. There was a heavy fog at the time. The women had stepped out of the way of a westbound train and did not observe the approach of the Balkan Express.

COAL MINES DAMAGED BY EARTH SHOCKS.

One Fatality Occurred and Mines Have Been Closed.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Information received in the Department of Labor states that a series of violent disturbances in the coal mines at Fernie, B.C., during Wednesday and Thursday, have indefinitely suspended operations at No. 1 east mine. Whether the disturbances are seismic or other origin is not yet known there. One fatality resulted, and there was extensive damage in the district to property. The other mines suspended operations completely during Thursday, but are likely to resume in a few days. The normal production will be, however, considerably affected. At the Dominion Observatory here it is stated that the Fernie disturbance must have been local, no seismis disturbance having been recorded on the official instruments here on Wednesday or Thursday.

FORGET DIFFERENCES, PRESIDENT ADVISES.

A despatch from Williamstown, Mass. says:—In a speech here on Friday night before several thousand persons, who came from nearby towns to congratulate him on his re-election, President Wilson, said: "I want to say that now the campaign is over we must think of only one thing, and that is not of parties, but of the interest of the great country we all love. Let us forget all our differences and unite for common service. Only in that way can we work for the great nation that has given us liberty and peace."

PEAK IN ROCKIES NAMED "KITCHENER."

Newly Explored Mountains to Commemorate Leading Allied Generals.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Geographic Board has approved of the name Kitchener being applied to a high peak in the Rockies at the headwaters of the North Saskatchewan and Athabaska Rivers, hitherto known as Douglas. Proposals are under consideration to name a newly-explored series of high peaks on the Alberta, B.C., boundary, west of the Kananiskis Lakes, after leading Generals of the allied forces.

SUBMARINE SHELTERS BOMBED AT OSTEND AND ZEEBRUGGE

British Naval Aeroplanes Dropped Great Weight in Bombs With Satisfactory Results.

A despatch from London says: The British Admiralty struck a blow against the increased activity of German submarines on Friday. A large squadron of aeroplanes raided the harbors of Ostend and Zeebruge and dropped bombs on the U-boat shelters and on the enemy works. The report of the Admiralty reads:

"Early Friday morning a squadron of naval aeroplanes attacked the harbor and submarine shelters at Ostend and Zeebrugge. A great weight in bombs was dropped with satisfactory results."

PROMISE BY GERMANY OF MARINA ENQUIRY.

A despatch from Washington says: Germany has informed the American Embassy in Berlin that the sinking of the British steamer Marina on October 28, with the loss of the lives of six American horse-tenders, will be thoroughly investigated as soon as submarines operating on that date have reported, according to confidential advices received here from Berlin.

SERBS AGAIN REPULSE ATTACKS ON THE CERNA.

A despatch from Paris, says:—The following War Office report concerning operations on the eastern front, was issued on Friday: "At the bend of the Cerna River (Serbia), fresh Bulgarian attacks against the Serbian positions failed. Inclement weather continues along the whole front."

RUSSIAN CENTRE DRIVEN BACK

Germans Seize Positions on a Front of Over Two Miles.

A despatch from London says: Driving against the centre of the Russian line on the eastern front, German troops have gained possession of Russian positions on a front of about two and a half miles. The attack, which resulted also in the capture of more than 3,000 prisoners, was made by Bavarians, and took place in the district of Skrobowa, 12 miles north-east of Baranovichi, north of the Pinsk marshes, and where only isolated fighting has occurred lately. The Russians, Berlin also says, lost 27 machine guns and 12 mine-throwers.

The success of the Germans is admitted by the Petrograd War Office, which announced that the Russians, after stubborn resistance against seven onslaughts, were finally compelled to fall back to their second line of trenches. Elsewhere on the eastern front to the Carpathians there has been little fighting, according to the official communication.

As the result of a German counter-attack in the region south of Dorna Watra the Russians also were compelled to give up some of the heights which they had captured on the day previous. The battle here is still in progress.

BURNING TOWNS AS THEY RETIRE

Bulgars Falling Back Along Their Whole Line in Dobrudja.

A despatch from London says: Continuing their offensive in Dobrudja, the Russo-Rumanians have driven back advanced detachments of Field Marshal von Mackensen's Turco-Bulgar-German forces and progressed southward. The town of Hirsova, on the Danube, 45 miles north of Tchernavoda, has been reoccupied, although the place was partially destroyed, the enemy having set fire to the houses before retreating. According to Bucharest semi-official advices, the Bulgarian forces are retreating along their whole front. As the Bulgarians withdraw, the statement says, they are systematically burning the Roumanian villages.

The Rumanian statement shows that the Dobrudja has not ceased to be an avenue for Russian help to reach Roumania because of the loss of Constanza and the Carol Bridge at Cernavoda. The Russians are now sending to Sulina, at the mouth of the middle estuary of the Danube, supplies which go thence through the Sulina Canal and the Danube to Galatz and are distributed over Roumania by railroad. The route is longer and slower than the all-rail route of which von Mackensen deprived Roumania.

JAP SOLDIERS DEFY SUN.

Only Two Men Drop in Twelve-Day Tramp of 2,000.

Under a scorching sun that at times drove the mercury up to 130 degrees Fahrenheit, 2,000 soldiers of the Japanese army, stationed in Formosa and the Pescadores, made a twelve-day march in Formosa between July 1 and July 12. Only three cases of sunstroke are reported, according to the Indianapolis News. The first nine days were spent in marching, and the troops actually covered more than 100 miles. The last three days were spent in manoeuvres.

With a view to finding the best clothing to protect soldiers from the heat, the soldiers were allowed to wear any costume they pleased. Some wore helmets, some straw hats; some wore an ordinary uniform with a hole on either side, or a knitted undershirt, or a thin kimono; some wore their heavy boots; some tabi. Besides their clothing, the best food and drink for soldiers under these conditions were also studied.

TWENTY GUNS TAKEN BL ITALIAN TROOPS.

Thirteen of These Are of Medium Calibre—Only Artillery Duels Reported

A despatch from Rome says:—Italian forces in their offensive against the Austro-Hungarian positions on the Carso front have captured a total of twenty guns, including thirteen of medium calibre, according to the Italian official statement issued on Thursday.

BAVARIAN PRINCE DIES OF WOUNDS

A despatch from Berlin says:—Prince Henry of Bavaria, nephew of King Louis, is reported from Munich to have died from wounds received on a reconnoitring trip on November 7th. Prince Henry was thirty-two years old and a major in the Bavarian Guards. He was reported to have been wounded on the battlefield last June. The Prince was unmarried.

RIOTING IN CITY OF BRUSSELS OVER THE DEPORTATION ORDER

Thirty Germans Killed or Wounded and Numerous Belgian Casualties Are Reported.

A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company, London, from Amsterdam, says:

"The Telegraaf's frontier correspondent reports that placards were posted at Antwerp last Saturday summoning citizens from 17 to 30 years of age to hold themselves ready to depart. He adds that 30,000 Belgians already have been removed from Antwerp to Germany. They receive 13 marks weekly, with military rations. Several riots have occurred.

"Les Nouvelles prints a Maastricht despatch saying that there are persistent rumors that the deportations have provoked a revolt at Brussels, in the course of which 30 Germans were killed or seriously wounded, and that there were numerous Belgian casualties. The city of Brussels is closed, and nobody is permitted to enter or leave."

FALL WHEAT HELPED BY FINE WEATHER

The Shortage of Seed is Already Apparent in Ontario.

A despatch from Guelph says: Dr. C. A. Zavits, O.A.C., had some interesting things to say on Wednesday regarding the seed grain situation which will be beneficial to the farmers of Ontario.

"The remarkably fine weather we have been having this Fall is the greatest thing that ever happened to the Fall wheat," stated Dr. Zavitz. "On the plots that we have here, and they take in quite a large acreage, the Winter wheat looks almost as well as in any average year. It is getting a great foundation, and in showing a good spreading top. We sowed here the second week in September, which we considered rather late, as we plan always to seed the first of September. Reports from other points indicate that the Winter wheat is benefiting by the mild weather."

In regard to the seed situation, Dr. Zavitz was not at all optimistic. "Good seed is going to be scarce," he said, "that will especially be true in regard to barley, oats, potatoes, corn and alfalfa, and I would advise any farmer who has a good quality of these to be very careful what he does with them, as there is going to be, in fact there is right now, a pronounced shortage in the seed situation in Ontario.

"There was a lot of grain threshed out that will not do for seed. Of late years farmers have been drawing largely on Essex for seed corn, but the crop there has not been up to the standard of other years, although growers there are paying more attention to drying, and will probably produce more seed proportionately than they did before. What potatoes there are should make splendid seed, as there is no rot this year, and the potatoes were not overly ripened, which improves them for seeding purposes. It is not advisable to import seed from other provinces or from other countries, as there is always the danger of mixed grain, which we have been trying to eradicate. The great thing is for the farmers of Ontario to conserve all the seed grain they have. There will be a temptation to feed it, but their best policy looking to the future is to save it."

AUSTRALIAN SHIPS LOAD AT MONTREAL

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—The Australian Government, according to a report to the Trade and Commerce Department, has now in its service a fleet of 35 cargo steamers, some of which have already loaded at Montreal for Australian ports. In addition, five large sailing ships are being operated under Government control The earnings of these ships are said to be satisfactory. The vessels will be overhauled in Australia, and used in the transportation of wheat and other commodities.

120 PERSONS DROWN FROM VISTULA BARGE.

A depatch from London, says:—One hundred and twenty persons have been drowned through the sinking of a barge on the Vistula, according to a Central News despatch from Amsterdam The disaster occurred at Kamierz, near Lublin, in Poland

BAN PRONOUNCED ON HEARST PAPERS

Their Circulation in Canada is Prohibited Under Penalty.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Hearst newspapers have been placed under ban by the Canadian Government, and their circulation in the Dominion is prohibited. Penalties provided by the War Measures Act will apply to [illegible] having these publications in his possession after the date mentioned. [illegible]ilities for the transmission of new[illegible] and from Canada have also been [illegible] International News Serv[illegible] Hearst organizatio[illegible] is the list of the Hearst p[illegible] on which the ban of exclusi[illegible] Canadian territory is placed: York American, New York S[illegible] American, New York Journal, B[illegible] American, Boston Sunday Am[illegible] Chicago Examiner, Chicago [illegible]can, San Francisco Examiner, San Francisco Sunday Examiner, Los Angeles Examiner, Los Angeles Sunday Examiner, Los Angeles Herald, Atlanta Georgian, Atlanta American.

U. S. SENDS NOTE ON DEPORTATIO[illegible]

German Action in Bel[illegible] lates the [illegible] Warf[illegible]

A despatch fr[illegible] While the Sta[illegible] discuss the [illegible] on Friday that [illegible] so seriously con[illegible] man's apparent viola[illegible] of civilized warfare [illegible] Belgians and Frenchme[illegible] civil population that i[illegible] presentations to Berli[illegible].

It is further learned he[illegible] Government, through [illegible] Gerard, vigorously protested [illegible] the deportation of young French girls from Lille by the German military authorities. The protest was carried direct to the German Emperor and resulted in the promise that the civilian population of Lille would be sent back to France. It is understood that the action of the United States in regard to Belgium would be pressed as earnestly as the previous cases. President Wilson and Secretary Lansing are both deeply concerned in the matter.

The deportations from Belgium are complicated by the fact that Germany defends its action.

PARLIAMENT TO MEET EARLY IN FEBRUARY.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The session of Parliament will not be called until the latter part of January, or perhaps the early part of February. The date will not be fixed for some weeks, although the matter will come up for consideration on the return of Sir Thomas White from England in December. The Finance Minister's budget and measures of war finance will be as usual an important feature of the Government's legislative programme.

The first thing in the game of life is to know the rules.

FRENCH TROOPS WIN BACK AN IMPORTANT VILLAGE

British Capture One Thousand Yards of German Trenches North of Thiepval Region.

London, Nov. 12.—Renewal of attacks by the allies north of the Somme has resulted in gains in the last 24 hours. The French have retaken the whole of Saillisel village after the most stubborn fighting. On Saturday they captured the eastern part of the village, and the attack was resumed to-day, and hand-to-hand fighting continued in the streets of the village until nearly dusk before the last German was killed or made prisoner.

South of the Somme the French and German activity has consisted to-day chiefly of heavy artillery fire. Last night, however, the Kaiser's troops made a heavy assault on the French lines at Deniecourt. Some patrols succeeded in entering advanced positions, but were immediately driven out.

British troops, by a strong attack in the Thiepval region last night, stormed Germ[illegible] trenches over a front of 1,000 yards.

No Time for Huckstering

"Some women, whose husbands are at the front, have more money than when they are at home. So say unthinking persons when asked to give, and give liberally, to the Canadian Patriotic Fund. The answer should come straight and quick:—"Why ... women ... their husbands well off, or ... They are struggling ... bly with large families ... and anxiety about the ... husbands gnawing at ... its every hour of the day. ... may come tidings ... bread-winner is gone forever. Are we to reward these women with the smallest pittance that will keep body and soul together?"

SEVEN YEARS TORTURE

Nothing Helped Him Until He Took "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

ALBERT VARNER

Buckingham, Que., May 3rd, 1915.

For seven years, I suffered terribly from Severe Headaches and Indigestion. I had belching gas from the stomach, bitter stuff would come up into my mouth after eating, while at times I had nausea and vomiting, and had chronic Constipation. I went to several doctors and wrote to a specialist in Boston but without benefit. I tried many remedies but nothing did me good. Finally, a friend advised "Fruit-a-tives". I took this grand fruit medicine and it made me well. I am grateful to "Fruit-a-tives", and to everyone who has miserable health with Constipation and Indigestion and Bad Stomach, I say take "Fruit-a-tives", and you will get well".

ALBERT VARNER.

The March on Canada

With the close of the war an army of between three hundred thousand and five hundred thousand Canadian soldiers will return and seek their places in the industrial organization of their country. Over four hundred Canadian factories will cease the manufacture of munitions and the services of the organizations of workers who have become expert in these lines will no longer be required for the purpose.

In Europe twenty million men will lay down their arms and return to the avocations of peace. Millions of them will, for a time at least, be unemployed. A large number unquestionably will look to the Dominion as the country of their opportunity. The march on Canada will be magnificient—if we are ready for it. But the men who come will be empty-handed.

MARRIED

HUNTER—TRACEY

A very quiet wedding ceremony took place at the Presbyterian parsonage, Hanna, on Tuesday, Oct. 24th, when Miss B. Avis Tracey, of Morrisburg, became the wife of Mr. Norman James Hunter of Craigmyle, formerly of Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Hunter will reside at their home near Craigmyle.

Mrs. Hunter is the eldest daughter of Mr. G. W. Tracey of Craigmyle and Mrs. G. W. Tracey of Morrisburg. Mrs. Hunter was formerly on the staff of The Hanna Herald. The friends of the happy couple wish them a prosperous and pleasant married life.—The Hanna Herald.

OBITUARY

Adam J. Hanes

The death of Adam J. Hanes took place at his residence at Brinston, Ont., Nov. 4th., 1916 at the age of 58.

Mr. Hanes was the second son of the late Wm. Hanes and Mrs. Hanes. He was born at Osnabruck Centre, Ont., on March 23, 1858, where he lived until his removal to Brinston five years ago.

He was a Christian man in every respect as testified by the life he led. A Baptist by religion and an active member of the Osnabruck Baptist Church which he attended most of his life. Since coming to Brinston he has taken an active part in both, Church and Sunday School work in the Methodist Church, although retaining his membership with the Baptist Church.

The funeral, which was largely attended, was held on Nov. 7th 1916 a short service being held at the house by Rev. Mr. Murray, thence to Pleasant Valley Church, where the funeral service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Steadman, ass sted by Rev. Mr. Murray.

Among the floral tributes were wreaths from the Bible Class, Brinston, and his nephews Messrs. William, Frank and Ralph Weegar, Montreal, and a spray from his sister.

Among friends from a distance were G. S. Hanes, Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Weegar and Frank Weegar, Montreal, and Miss Greta McLean, Ottawa.

He is survived by his wife, mother, one daughter, wife of Rev. Geo. Thomas, Toronto; one son, Brinston, one sister, Mrs. Robt. Armstrong, Ottawa, and two brothers, Chas. W. of Roswell, N. M. and Sherdian, Greene, Iowa.

CARD OF THANKS

Murder and Suicide

A ghastly murder and suicide occurred at Brockville, Tuesday morning when William Stocks, a former inmate of the insane asylum near Brockville, killed his bride of a few days by slashing her throat with a razor and then gashed his own throat so severely that he died in the hospital three hours later.

Stocks was released from the asylum a month ago. About a week ago he married Mrs. McLain a widow. She was employed as a maid at the home of Mrs. John Gilders in Park street, and the couple went there to live until Stocks could obtain employment. Stocks and his wife lay across the bed in their room. The woman was dead, her throat cut from ear to ear. Stocks was dying. He was rushed to the hospital, where he expired the following day.

1917 GRAY-DORT

Touring Car and Cloverleaf Roadster $885 f. o. b. Chatham Ont.

Leave discussion and arithmetic out of the count for a moment. Look at the Gray-Dort from the angle of appearance. Eye-measure it and criticize it. It may not please you at some little point. But the chances are strong that you will call it a conservatively handsome car. The color and finish are applied by our own experts—men who are carriage building graduates,

The moulded well-dimensioned fenders, the pleasing arch which joins the cowl and wind-shield, the tapering hood and the marked beauty of its side and rear lines, make the Gray-Dort a different car, one to own with pride

Its comfort is just as evident, just as gratifying. Four-door body, wide rear and front seats, buoyant cantilever springs, deep cushiony upholstery, robe rail, foot rail, one-man top, ventilating easy-vision windshield, and full equipment of electric horn, speedometer, ammeter, dimmers, adjustable curtains, tools and tire carrier at rear, round out the comfort of the Gray-Dort to the point of fullest satisfaction.

Hill-climbs and endurance trials have left the Gray--Dort undefeated. The car was built orginally to insure such facts, hence it is no surprise to us.

Moreover, the road was never made— or left unmade— that the Gray-Dort will not negotiate. Some notable tours are to its credit. Among them that of over 3,000 miles across the country in the heart of winter, with only a woman and her 14-year old son for occupants—making the run against conditions of storm and flood that make lurid back-grounds for a novelist .

Useful Hints and General Information for the Busy Housewife

Economical Dishes With Ham.

No matter what the vegetarians may say, and no matter how earnestly we may be assured that meat is unnecessary and that it is one of the most expensive forms of food, we all keep on eating it and, incidentally, growling about the price, so maybe we may find some consolation and some profit in the consideration of the capabilities of a ham.

We can almost hear you exclaim: "But ham is dear"; it is, but it is economical, because there is not a single bit of waste about it. Every particle of the meat can be used and hambone makes the most delicious flavoring for soup. It is true that a whole ham is a big proposition for a small family to handle, but it is possible to buy a half, or if you have bought the whole, there is no need to eat it all in a week, for it keeps well and can be served in so many ways that there is no danger of it becoming monotonous.

It is a good plan to leave a ham steeping in cold water for a few hours before boiling, so as to make it more delicate in flavor by removing some of the brine. Then put it down in cold water and bring slowly to the boil, simmering gently until done, not to let it cook fast or be tough and dry. If ham is to be cooked whole, the meat should be put on twenty minutes earlier than otherwise and taken up before the vegetable added to the water, because the water must be boiling rapidly for the vegetable, and that would spoil the ham. Keep it boiling until the cabbage is cooked, then draw to one side and put in the meat again to get quite hot. When ham is properly done the skin can be pulled off easily, and it should then be dredged with flour and browned in the oven. While it is being browned, the cabbage should be drained, chopped finely and arranged round a very hot dish, the ham being placed in the center. If you want to serve the boiled ham cold, it ought to be allowed to get cold in the water in which it was cooked.

A thick and one-half inch thick slice, which is to be broiled or baked, should be cut as follows, and served with [illegible]

Wipe the slice of ham with a cloth and put in a pan with enough water to barely cover it. Bake for forty minutes, basting and stick five or six cloves right into a baking-powder tin. Add one tablespoonful of sugar, a cup of vinegar, put in the hot oven and baste every few minutes with the liquor in the pan. When done, remove the rind, and brown the fat border with a hot shovel. Do not while [illegible]

Cut the slice of [illegible] of fat and bone, and serve in a separate dish. Pour over the ham. With the thick end of the ham you can make a delicious braised ham and sausages, and with the other slice creamed ham and hominy.

Braised Ham.—Put the ham in lukewarm water and soak over night. Then remove the bone carefully and put in a saucepan with enough cold water to cover it, together with 1 carrot and 1 onion, clean and chopped, and 6 peppercorn and 1 teaspoonful of mixed herbs, tied together in a bit of cheesecloth. Simmer gently for two and a half hours, when the ham should be quite tender. Chop up 1 shallot and fry in one-half ounce of butter, not allowing it to get brown. Pour this over the ham and cook for another twenty-five minutes, then take up, cut into fairly thick slices and arrange around a dish, each slice overlapping the other, and put in the oven to keep hot while preparing the sausages to go with this dish.

Par boil one pound of sausages, cut them into rounds, brush with the yolk of an egg, dip in bread crumbs and fry. Then pile a mound of mashed potatoes in the center of the ring of ham slices, dot the sausage rounds neatly over the potatoes in the interstices of the ham and serve very hot.

Ham Pastry.—Mince six ounces of cooked ham and mix with one-half cup breadcrumbs and seasoning. Add enough milk to make a stiff paste. Line a greased dish with short pastry or with mashed potatoes, put in the ham mixture and bake in a hot oven. Boil two eggs hard, separate the yolks and whites, chop separately and then sprinkle the pie with them, putting the yolks in the center and the whites around the edge. Cover with a well-greased paper and put back in the oven just to heat through and serve.

Savory Pudding.—Make a paste of four ounces of finely chopped suet, one-half of flour, a pinch of salt and enough water to make a stiff dough. Roll out, and in the middle put one-half pound cooked ham, minced finely, and mixed with one-half teaspoonful of mixed herbs, and 1 well beaten egg. Fold the paste over, wet the edges to make them stick and boil in a well-floured cloth. Be sure the water is boiling when you put the pudding in, and keep it boiling for one and a half hours. If you use a gas stove this is not a very economical dish, as it takes a long time for cooking, but if done in a steamer at the same time as the vegetables the one burner does for all, and it is not then extravagant.

Four Good Receipes for Cake.

One-Egg Cake.—¼ cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 2-3 cups flour, 1½ level teaspoons of baking powder, ½ cup milk. Cream the butter, add gradually the sugar and then the well-beaten egg. Mix and sift the flour and baking powder Add alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

Cocoa Cake.—1 egg, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup of lard, 1 teaspoon salt, 5 teaspoons cocoa, 1 cup sour milk, 2 scant cups flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon soda. Mix together in order given and bake in a slow oven. Frost with icing of confectioners' sugar, cocoa and milk mixed to a thick paste.

Molasses Cake.—1 egg, ½ cup sugar, 2-3 cup lard, 1 cup molasses, 1 cup sour milk, 3 scant cups flour, 2 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Mix together in order given and bake in a slow oven.

Apple Sauce Cake.—Cream together one-half cup lard and one cup sugar. Add one cup raisins, one-quarter teaspoon each of salt and nutmeg, one-half teaspoon of cloves and one teaspoon each of cinnamon, lemon and vanilla. Dissolve one teaspoon of soda in two tablespoons of boiling water, then stir it into one cup of tart apple sauce. Combine with creamed mixture, beat in two and one-half cups of flour and bake in a moderate oven.

Use For Old Papers.

1. If the soles of boots are thin, a few layers of paper will protect the feet wonderfully.

2. A soft newspaper will polish windows and lamp chimneys better than cloth.

3. Layers of newspaper, folded evenly and placed under the stair carpet at each tread, may cheaply be made to take the place of felt.

4. A damped newspaper torn in bits and scattered over a dusty carpet will take up dust and dirt better than salt or tea leaves.

5. Paper folded and placed over the chest is a great protection on a cold drive.

6. Paper is preferable to cloth for removing black from the outside of pots and pans. The paper can then be burned.

7. A newspaper under the churn will keep milk off the floor when churning.

8. The range may be kept bright and clean by rubbing with soft newspapers after each meal.

Spread a paper on the kitchen table when doing any mussy work or when dishing the dinner. It is a great help in keeping the table clean.

Things Worth Knowing.

Always use bread crumbs in preference to cracker crumbs when frying oysters.

It is harmful to silk stockings to iron them.

Mud stains should be soaked in kerosene.

Oysters are better fried in oil than in lard of butter.

A good cook is known by her clever use of left-overs.

Anything placed in cold water will cool more quickly if salt be added to the water.

When a bottle of milk sours, seize the opportunity to use it for doughnuts.

A cut lemon will remove the mark made by striking matches on white paint.

The housekeeper should bring all the sunshine and fresh air into the home that she possibly can.

Save all the scraps from the table for the chickens. They enjoy them and it gives variety for them.

Bread made from the true and undenatured whole-wheat flour is a true nerve, blood and bone food.

To do away with the sound of a watch or clock in the sickroom, place it under a tumbler of a bowl.

Keep a pumice stone near the kitchen sink. It is excellent for cleaning scorcred spots off cooking utensils.

A slice of potato is an excellent thing to clean white oilcloth which has become disfigured by hot cooking utensils.

When the cake in the oven is ready for a final browning, a newspaper tucked into the fire will do the work.

When boiling vegetables never allow them to stop boiling until they are done, or they will be soggy and heavy.

Starched clothes must be dried quickly if they are to retain their stiffness, and flannels if they are not to shrink.

If soft-boiled eggs remain from breakfast, boil them hard at once; then they are ready to use in salads or fish sauces.

A good way of keeping one's coats and dresses slightly scented is by tying small bags of layender at the ends of clothes hangers.

If your umbrella handle comes out, instead of gluing on the handle try winding a thread around the stick and then screwing on the handle.

When brushing carpets have a basin of warm water handy, and dip the brush into it occasionally. This prevents the dust from rising, and makes the colors look clear and bright.

The peel of potatoes, after being dried in the oven, will light the fire quickly instead of using wood, thus saving expense, and being more healthy than if allowed to stay in the dustbin.

For a shabby umbrella take half a cupful of strong tea and two tablespoonfuls of sugar, open the umbrella and sponge well. The tea will revive the color and the sugar stiffen the material.

An old sponge which is almost worn out and falling to pieces can be made to last almost as long again if a bag is crocheted with some soft knitting cotton, and the sponge placed in it, the ends being crocheted together.

As the cane chair seats get out of shape, turn up the seats, and with hot water and soap, wash the cane work until thoroughly soaked, and leave the chairs to dry upside down in the air, when the seats will become firm and tight again.

The tip of a kid glove finger may be stretched over the knob on the lid of pots and pans. This to prevent burning fingers when they are lifted from the stove. And you can use the same "stunt" for the handle of the coffee or tea pot.

To remove a blood stain made by a pricked finger on any silk material, place about four inches of white sewing silk in the mouth and moisten. Then roll into a ball and rub the spot gently, and the stain will disappear as if by magic. Just try it and see.

PEOPLE HAVE TWO BRAINS.

One Ministers to Body and Serves in an Emergency.

Nature, according to a new theory, has given us two brains just as she has given us a pair of eyes, hands, and ears, which help each other to do the work of the body.

Everyone has two brains, but he only uses one for intellectual purposes. If a man is right-handed he uses the left brain. The left-handed one uses the right brain. Which brain we are going to use is therefore decided by which hand we make use of first when we are babies.

The brain which is not being used for the intellect helps the other to minister to the body. It also serves as an emergency brain in case of disease or accident. Sometimes memory or speech is destroyed by accident, and if the second brain is trained it may do the work of the other which has been destroyed. It is easier to train the brain in this way if the patient is under thirty years of age.

The Bombardment.

"Bang!" went the rifles at the manoeuvres.

"Oo-oo!" screamed the pretty girl—a nice, decorous, surprised little scream. She stepped backward into the arms of a young man.

"Oh," said she, blushing. "I was frightened by the rifles. I beg your pardon."

"Not at all," said the young man. "Let's go over and watch the artillery."

DISABLED CANADIAN SOLDIERS.

What is Being Done to Restore Their Ability and Usefulness.

The Military Hospitals Commission at Ottawa informs us that 2,081 soldiers, were under its care at the beginning of this month. Of these, 426 were at Sanatoria for tuberculosis, and 1616 at Convalescent Hospitals, 682 of the latter being out-patients, while 39 members of the force were in asylums for the insane. Of the 426 cases of tuberculosis, it may be added, almost exactly half were discovered in time to prevent them from leaving Canada for the seat of war.

According to a statement prepared by the Militia Department, up to October 5th 1916, the number of soldiers sent back to Canada because of medical unfitness was 6,208. Of these, 961 were suffering from wounds, shell-shock, or the effects of gas; 122 were insane; 245 were efflicted with tuberculosis; while the remainder, 4,880, were suffering from other diseases and disabilities.

All Canadians ought to know what is being done by the Military Hospitals Commission, acting on behalf of the whole body of citizens, for the restoration of their wounded defenders to a position of self-support and independence.

Every disabled soldier is medically examined on arriving at Quebec. If he is no longer in need of hospital treatment, he is sent home free of expense and dischargd with a pension or gratuity according to the extent of his disability. If he needs further treatment, he is taken to the hospital or sanatorium where the treatment most suitable to his case is available, and, if possible, to that which is nearest his home. Men who cannot resume their former work on discharge from hospital are advised and enabled to take special training for new occupations. This is provided free of cost; and while the men are being trained the Dominion Government maintains them and their families. Men needing artificial limbs are taken to Toronto, where these limbs are made and supplied without charge. Men with serious nerve disorders are treated specially in the Ontario Military Hospital at Cobourg.

Each Provincial Government has appointed a Commission to help discharged men in securing steady and remunerative work. The Dominion Government, and other authorities and employers, systematically give preference to returned soldiers when filling vacant positions.

The public can and should co-operate heartily in this urgently necessary work, by encouraging the men to take fullest advantage of the curative and educational opportunities given them, and afterwards by seeing that they get work. Local committees have been formed for this purpose in many towns, but much more has to be done in this way.

The treatment, most carefully carried out in accordance with the latest discoveries and the proved results of medical experience, includes many forms of strengthening exercises, often requiring special and costly apparatus; the scientific use of electricity, massage, and continuous baths for affected limbs; with wise dieting and fresh air as a matter of course.

Occupation is often as necessary and beneficial as rest itself, in its curative and strengthening effect on body and mind. Classes are therefore held at the hospitals, for instruction and practice in many arts and industries, such as carpentry and wood-carving, metal and leather working, typewriting and book-keeping, mechanical drawing and elementary engineering, gardening, bee-keeping and poultry-raising.

These all help to increase the capacity of the patients, and to lessen the effect of any injury they have received, by getting them into practice for such industries as they can profitably undertake. The medical and educational officers try first to discover what each man is most likely to succeed at, and then to fit him for it as thoroughly as possible.

It has been wisely decided that no man shall forfeit any part of his pension on account of his industry and enterprise in improving his own financial position.

Let our readers write without hesitation to the Secretary of the Military Hospitals Commission at Ottawa, or to the Provincial Commission at the Provincial capital, asking any further information they may desire, or giving any practical suggestion resulting from thought or experience.

HOW TO INVEST YOUR MONEY.

No person with any sense disputes the wisdom of depositing money in a savings bank and earning three per cent. per annum, but what a good business man cannot understand is, why it should be allowed to remain there and left to accumulate at that rate.

Money to-day is certainly worth more than that, but the difficulty is, the average person does not know how to invest it safely. There is a way open to every healthy person to invest his money without any risk, which may bring him or his family a thousand per cent., and no matter what the result, cannot bring him less than three per cent. interest, and that is by taking out an endowment life insurance policy in the Crown Life Insurance Company of Toronto. The moment you pay your first premium you create an estate of the full value of your policy. Should you die within a year your estate will receive a thousand per cent. on your investment; if you live to the maturity of your policy you will have returned to you more than principal and three per cent. interest.

Can there be any comparison between leaving your money on deposit in a savings bank or buying a policy in the Crown Life? Write the Head Office at Toronto for literature.

V.C. MAN SELLS PAPERS.

Won Decoration for Killing Enemy Machine Gun Company.

Private George Wilson, of the Highland Light Infantry, who won the Victoria Cross for great gallantry on Sept. 14, 1914, is now selling newspapers on the streets of Edinburgh, Scotland, with the much-coveted decoration pinned to his vest.

He has a pension of $4 a week, which includes $1 a week for winning the V.C., but Wilson said recently this is not enough to live on. He therefore has resumed selling papers, his occupation before joining the colors.

The Official Gazette described Wilson's deed of valor which brought him his decoration, as follows:

"For most conspicuous gallantry on Sept. 14, near Vernuil, in attacking a hostile machine gun, accompanied only by one man. When the latter was killed he went on alone, and shot the officer and six men working the gun, which he captured."

Seeing Stars by Day.

Although it is an old belief that the stars can be seen in daylight from the bottom of a deep mine, well, chimney or other shaft, the Rev. W. F. A. Ellison maintains that it has no foundation in fact. Writing in the Journal of the British Astronomical Association, Mr. Ellison says that the invisibility of the stars in the daytime is caused by the glare of the atmosphere illuminated by the rays of the sun; and that there is no reason why a chimney or other shaft should sensibly diminish the glare. Even with a telescope the visibility of stars and planets in the daytime depends greatly upon their color. Red or yellow stars are much more easily seen than white ones, and the telescope must be very carefully focused, or even a bright star will be invisible in the bright sky. The planets Venus and Mercury, on the other hand, can be seen better in daylight than in the dark, but most of the planets are less visible in daylight than the stars.

The Point of View.

"This man," exclaimed the lawyer during the course of a trial in the West, "is not insane, and never has been." To keep him in an asylum is a blow directed against human rights, an assault upon the sacred institution of liberty, and—"

"But," interposed the court, "did you not prove some weeks ago, when the defendant was on trial for murder, that he has been from birth an insane person?"

The lawyer smiled in a superior way:

"Surely," he said, "your honor would not have it believed that this court is on the intellectual plane of that jury."

Be a dreamer if you will, but get up and hustle when the alarm clock jingles.

An army rifle is to-day effective over a range of 700 yards, whereas in 1870 the range was only 400 yards.

Luck may be a good servant, but as a master his pay days are uncertain.

A woman doesn't look so attractive in the morning, we admit, but at that she looks a whole lot better than the man who has just tumbled out of bed.

QUEEN ANSWERS AN OBJECTOR

REPROVED FOR ATTITUDE ON COMPULSORY SERVICE.

Wilhelmina of Holland Says Every Man Must Defend Hearth and Home.

A young Dutch artist, M. J. Hagemeyer, recently addressed a letter to Queen Wilhelmina on compulsory military service, to which he said he had a conscientious objection. Reminding the Queen of the words which, he said, her Majesty had slung or hurled into the world, "Christ avant tout," he maintained that this Christian standpoint was incompatible with military service. He asked her Majesty to clear up what he regarded as a contradiction between her words, "Christ before all," and her action as ruler in summoning him to the colors for service in killing his fellow-men.

Queen Wilhelmina caused the following reply to be addressed to M. Hagemeyer:

No Contradiction.

With reference to your letter of August 29 last, addressed to her Majesty the Queen, I am authorized briefly to reply to you.

It must be clear to you on any reflection that refusal of service, under whatever form and for whatever reasons, can never have the approval of the Head of the State, and that the Head of the State can never find mitigating circumstances for refusal of service. The words quoted by you were "hurled into the world," as you say, but these words were inscribed by her Majesty on a portrait which her Majesty presented to the Argentine lady who presented a reproduction of a beautiful statue of Christ from the Andes to the Palace of Peace. It was thus an entirely private act.

In my view there is absolutely no contradiction between these words and the making oneself ready, if necessary, to be able to defend one's own people and home. On the contrary, it appears to me that from Bible history one must learn from beginning to end that the most sacred duty of man is to defend wife and children, hearth and home, as indeed, is innate in every animal through an instinct given it by God. All nature is based thereon.

"Do Your Duty."

Let me give you good practical counsel, young man! Do not allow yourself to be misled by theatrical words and thoughts. Have confidence in those who have to lead you, even if you cannot understand it. Consider quietly and calmly the duty, which not Government alone, but all nature and your own manly feeling impose on you, to be prepared to be able to defend your people. And fix yourself firmly on that alone. Do your duty and try to serve Christ by observing always in your nearest surroundings as much love, devotion, and self-sacrifice as possible, but not by theatrical words or deeds. Once again listen to my advice. There is no contradiction.

The letter is signed by Jonkheer van Geen, the Queen's private secretary.

GASOLINE LOCOMOTIVES.

The Russians Are Now Using Them at the Front.

The mobility of advancing troops and their ability to hold a position successfully depends upon the bringing up of supplies from bases beyond the reach of enemy shells. The task is still more difficult when sudden assaults call for heavy reinforcements of fighting men and munitions at scattered points. The motor truck has answered admirably upon many occasions, but railways, when available, are still better. Steam traction, however, is not practicable where coal and water are not readily at hand, and, besides, the coal-burning engine is not so economical as might be desired.

The Russian armies have suffered from a deficiency of coal and steel locomotives, but they have made great use of small, light, gasoline locomotives which are easily and cheaply built. These sturdy little tractors are to locomotives what the army mule is to the horse. They are trustworthy and hard-working, and need little care. All they ask is narrow-gauge tracks laid upon almost any kind of roadbed and enough gasoline to feed their motors. The Russians use them not only to carry forward supplies to the advancing troops but to haul ammunition and food to the trenches. Each locomotive weighs about seven tons, but it can draw over a rough roadbed at least thirty tons of load.

The tractors operate on high and low gears. On low gear they do four miles an hour, and at full speed about eight miles. They can run with equal facility forward or backward. One of their good points is that the exhaust can be muffled, so that they make very little noise—and of course they make no smoke.

JUST THE THING FOR LITTLE ONES

Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little ones. They regulate the bowels; sweeten the stomach; banish constipation and indigestion; relieve colds and simple fevers and make teething easy. Concerning them Mrs. Herbert Johnston, Maymont, Sask., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past four years and find them just the thing for babies and young children." They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CLIMATE LESS SEVERE.

What Study of Larger Glaciers in B. C. Has Revealed.

Dr. Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, and Mrs. Walcott have just returned to Washington after several months' field work in Canada. Accomplished by only a packer and cook, they spent most of the summer and early fall on the continental divide, which forms the boundary line between Alberta and British Columbia, south of the Canadian Pacific Railway, studying the cambrian rocks, containing the fossil remains of the earliest animal life.

Owing to the heavy snowfall of the previous winter, and the fact that most of the geological formations which they wished to examine were in the deep snow about the timber line, little progress was made in July, in August, however, sections were examined and measured in the Mount Assiniboine region, and from there northwest to the celebrated Kicking Horse pass, where the Canadian Pacific Railway has bored a double loop through the mountain in order to obtain a feasible grade on the western side of the pass.

Some years ago Dr. Walcott found a remarkable fossil fauna in boulders which had been carried into Kitcking Horse canyon by glaciers that have long since disappeared. This season he located the source of these boulders high up in the mountain cirque, where a portion of what must have been a great hanging glacier is still active.

Mrs. Walcott, formerly Miss Mary Vaux, of Philadelphia, who has studied glaciers for several years, and is well known as an Alpinist, visited Glacier, British Columbia, where she measured the position of two large glaciers, and determined that the front ice foot in each case had retreated at the rate of 100 feet a year during the past two years. Steel plates were placed on the ice on the present surveyed boundary lines. The plates will be buried beneath the winter's snows, but, since their positions are relatively low as to altitude, the snow will be melted off next summer, and their locations then will indicate the amount of forward flow of ice during the year. Mrs. Walcott's studies prove that the ice has been steadily retreating during the past six years. Her measurements agree with observations made in Alaska, and indicate that the climate is not as severe as on the Pacific side of the continent as it was a decade ago.

During the field work a large number of photographs were taken, including a dozen or more panoramic views, exposures being made on continuous films eight feet in length. Besides being of great scientific interest, these photographs form valuable pictorial records showing the general localities visited and definite locations of certain strata and fossil beds.

The party broke camp at Banff, Alberta, September 30, which proved a fortunate move, as the next day a heavy fall of snow covered the entire region.

D. C. M.

It was not the intention of the weaver, about whom London Tit-Bits tells, to pose as a hero. He joined the army at the outbreak of the war. From "somewhere in France" he wrote home that among other things he had had a D.C.M.

When he came home on a short furlough, to his surprise the mayor, councillors and town band met him at the station and conveyed him to the town hall for a banquet. Speechless, he went through everything.

During the course of his speech the mayor said how proud they all were of him, and that he fully deserved the Distinguished Conduct Medal.

Then a light appeared in the "hero's" eyes.

"Distinguished Conduct Medal!" he said. "What they gave me was a District Court Martial for pinchin' a chicken!"

THE DOOR TO HEALTH

Is Through the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.

The blood is responsible for the health of the body. If it is good, disease cannot exist. If it is bad, the door is shut against good health, disease is bound to appear in one form or another. One person may be seized with rheumatism or sciatica, another with anaemia, indigestion, heart palpitation, headaches or backaches, unstrung nerves, or any of the many other forms of ailment that comes when the blood is weak and watery. There is just one certain, speedy cure—Dr. Williams Pink Pills. They make new, rich blood, and this good blood strengthens the whole system and brings good health and happiness. Thousands owe their present good health, some, life itself, to the pills. Miss Devina Laliberti, St. Jerome, Que., says:—"Last year I seemed gradually to grow weak and run down. I did not sleep well, had a poor appetite, and grew pale and generally languid. I consulted a doctor who told me I was anaemic, and gave me a tonic. This I took faithfully for some time, but it did not help me, and I appeared to be growing worse, and finally I was hardly able to go about the house and almost wholly incapacitated for work. While in this condition a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams Pink Pills, and I got several boxes. It was not long after I began their use when I could see an improvement, which just manifested itself in an improved appetite and better rest at night. From this on the improvement was rapid and I was not long in regaining perfect health. I think Dr. Williams Pink Pills are a real blessing for all weak girls."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

UNIFORMED RAT-CATCHERS.

Profession Once Prominent and Honorable in England.

The death of the oldest rat catcher in England reminds one that this profession is not so prominent to-day as it once was, says the London Chronicle. Many boroughs at one time kept their municipal rat catcher, and at the head of the profession stood the Royal Rat Catcher, "an honorable office," as a newspaper of 1741 called it in recording the appointment of a Mr. Gower to the post. And this royal functionary had a uniform befitting his office, scarlet embroidered in yellow with rodents destroying wheat sheaves.

The Germans Are Overtaken.

The British and French have gotten so far ahead of the Germans in artillery that the Krupp works will add 20,000 employes to increase their output. It is hardly likely that this will meet the emergency. France and England have far more iron establishments than Germany and they are now completely organized for the manufacture of arms, and their output must be much greater than anything that Germany's single establishment can produce. It is said that the guns on the Allied front in France are so close together that there is hardly room to walk between them.

DRINK HOT WATER FOR INDIGESTION

A Physician's Advice

"If dyspeptics, sufferers from gas, wind or flatulence, stomach acidity or sourness, gastric catarrh, heartburn, etc., would take a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of hot water immediately after eating, they would soon forget they were ever afflicted with stomach trouble, and doctors would have to look elsewhere for patients." In explanation of these words a well known New York physician stated that most forms of stomach trouble are due to stomach acidity and fermentation of the food contents of the stomach combined with an insufficient blood supply to the stomach. Hot water increases the blood supply and bisurated magnesia instantly neutralizes the excessive stomach acid and stops food fermentation, the combination of the two, therefore, being marvelously successful and decidedly preferable to the use of artificial digestents, stimulants or medicines for indigestion.

Locomotive and Elephant.

To Stanleyville, 600 miles beyond Bukama, a good steamer service is operated, says the Christian Herald. From that point to Mahagi, on the west shore of Lake Albert, no work has been done, but the survey gives a distance of 548 miles. From Mahagi the Uganda Government steamers ply on the Nile as far as railhead south of Khartum, where the Sudan Government trains and steamers and the Egyptian Railway take the traveller through to Cairo and Alexandria. This line, when completed, will be more than 6,000 miles long. The traveller may be forced to wait now and then, while the crew "shoos" a lion or a belligerent elephant off the track, and sometimes the engine and elephant may meet head on.

THE LAWS OF WAR.

Are the Germans Living Up To These Rules?

Even in war there is a method of "playing the game," and there are certain things formulated by military law, written or unwritten, among civilized nations which, even when they are at daggers drawn, they must not do.

These laws forbid the use of poisoning the water source of the enemy; they prohibit murder by treachery—that is to say, the assuming of the uniform or the displaying of the flag of the foe so as to lure him into a position from which he has no escape.

Equally, the slaughter of those who have surrendered is prohibited, whether they have done so at discretion or upon conditions.

Then arms or prejudices which cause unnecessary pain or suffering to an enemy must not be used, neither must a flag of truce be abused to gain information concerning the strategical position of the enemy, and in the interests of art and posterity, there must be no reckless destruction of valuable property, such as churches or ancient buildings, whether public or private.

The laws of war also declare, among other things, that only fortified cities shall be besieged. Open cities, towns, or villages are not to be subjected to siege or bombardment.

Couldn't Stand Them.

A well-known Clyde shipbuilder tells the following story:

"Whenever I see a toothpick I think of a dinner that was given in Rome in honor of two Turkish noblemen. I sat near the younger of the noblemen. He glittered with gold embroidery and great diamonds, but nevertheless I pitied him sincerely, for he was strange to our table manners and some of this errors were both indicrous and painful.

"Toward the end of the dinner a servant brought to the young man a plate of toothpicks. He waved the plate away.

" 'No, thank you,' he said. 'I have already eaten two of the awful things. I want no more'."

For Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Here in America there is much suffering from catarrh and head noises. American people would do well to consider the method employed by the English to combat this insidious disease. Everyone knows how damp the English climate is and how dampness affects those suffering from catarrh. In England they treat catarrhal deafness and head noises as a constitutional disease and use an internal remedy for it that is really very efficacious.

Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick tell how they had their hearing restored by this English treatment to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven and eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be easily prepared at home for about 75c. and is made as follows:

From your druggist obtain 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c. worth. Take this home, and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are usually remarkably quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form should give this recipe a trial and free themselves from this destructive disease.

One of the most difficult tasks in a newspaper office is in getting the facts relative to marriages, deaths and personal happenings. Many people take it for granted that when a person dies the local newspaper is familiar with every detail of the deceased. Such is far from the case. It is the same with more or less important happenings. The The Leader is always pleased to publish the details of all events which would be of public interest. Do not hesitate to hand in or communicate any item of news.

S-t-a-n-f-i-e-l-d-s spells value and means underwear Comfort, Wear and Warmth. Men's and Women's in two-piece and combination at Before-the-war-Prices.—D. C. Bush.

You never know the real value of a Northway Coat until you have seen the one called "just as good."—D. C. Bush.

Mr. James Cleland who recently returned from England after recovering from wounds received in France spent a few days visiting friends in town this week. Mr. Cleland enlisted with the 21st. Battalian, Brockville, one of the first battalions to sail after war was declared.

Flour has gone up another twenty cents, making forty cents this week and $6 flour is not far off, according to dealers. When flour jumped twenty cents last week it was thought the limit for the time being was reached but a further jump today brings the mill price to $10.40 for a 196-pound barrel.

That our merchandise is just a little better than the average in quality and just a little lower than the average in price is proven by the fact that scores of new customers are gained every year.—D. C. Bush.

His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire, the new Governor-General of Canada, the Duchess of Devonshire and their daughters, Lady Maud Louise Emma Cavendish and Lady Blanche Katherine Cavendish are now installed in their Canadian home, Rideau Hall, Ottawa.

Compare our One Dollar Corset with the Kind for which you have paid one-fifty.—D. C. Bush.

Mrs. Herbert D. Reddick returned from Ottawa on Thursday last after spending ten days with relatives and friends in Ottawa.

Mrs. Wm. Hall spent a few days visiting friends in Alexandria last week.

The Store where goods are what they seem to be.—D. C. Bush.

Miss Laura Stuart is visiting in Montreal.

"As we go to press a message has just been received that Miss Katie McMillan, the Glengarry girl in the "Journal Contest,' had the good fortune of winning one of the four cars contested for, hers being a Chevrolet. The other three cars went to candidates in Ottawa.—Congratulations."—Alexandria News.

Many enquiries have been made of the Post Office Department as to the latest date of mailing Christmas presents to the boys in the trenches. With regard to irregularities in the Atlantic service and the possibility of congestion, the department states it is well to mail all parcels as early as possible to ensure delivery in time. In every case mailing should take place by the middle of November. In regard to letters, there is a possibility of delivery if mailed up to the last week in November, but letters should be sent as early as possible to provide for all contingencies.

Mr. Dan W. Allen of Laurelton, Long Island, in renewing his subscription this week writes—"I enjoy reading the local news, as it generally gives me a good line on old boys from the old town. I also note that many of the old landmarks are passing away.. Please let me know, through your columns, if my dear old friend and schoolmaster, William Styles, is still alive. Kindly remember me to Ralph Gibson, Johnny Gormley, and not forgetting dear old Bill McGannon, in fact all inquiring friends.."

The Brampton Conservator says "After having spent four months in overhauling their plant and installing new machinery, the Brampton Milling Company are now started up again and are running day and night and producing the highest grades of flour. Their mill is now one of the most up-to-date mills in Canada. The management have spared no expenses in making it the last word in flour producing perfection. Mr. E. A. Storey of Morrisburg had charge of the work, assisted by Mr. A. Stengel of Breslau, J. W. Curliss of Galt and Geo. Rynerson of Clayton, Indiana."

Mr. Emery Casselman, who with a party of eight, spent the last three weeks deer-hunting in Northern Ontario, returned home on Wednesday, and reports game plentiful, nevertheless, very wild.

Sergt. Dave Courville, of the Army Service Corps, Ottawa, spent a few days in town this week, seeking recruits. He succeeded in signing up the following: Corp J. A. McDonald, Ptes. J. Clarke, L. Casselman, C. Casselman, E. Tilton, A. Lapier, E. Dewitt and Bugler W. Colfe.

At Cardinal on Saturday morning the congregation of the Sacred Heart church presented Capt. Rev. Father Nicholson with a purse of gold. At Prescott in the afternoon St. Mark's Church was filled to capacity when an address and purse of gold was presented to Captain Nicholson. He replied suitably and was accompanied to the station by a large number of people who said farewell as he boarded the train for the East.

The steamer John F. Thorn, which grounded on Corrigan's Island two weeks ago, and which defied all previous efforts to refloat her, was successfully hauled off Sunday by five tugs. The vessel was towed to Morrisburg in a damaged condition. Capt. Donnelly of Kingston has been summoned to make a re-inspection.

CORNWALL GENERAL HOSPITAL

This institution provides skilled nursing and care at very moderate rates to those able to pay, and without charge to indigent persons from the three United Counties, other than the Municipal Grants.

It is kept up by:
1. Fees from paying patients.
2. Grants from the Government and Municipalities.
3. Donations and Subscriptions from Churches, Corporations, Societies and Individuals, the last being the largest source of revenue.

You are Asked to Assist in this work

The nucleus of an endowment fund has been established by a legacy recently received, and parties remembering the Hospital in their wills may stipulate that bequests made by them shall go to this fund.

If you would like a copy of the last Annual Report, drop a card to the Secretary, who will be pleased to send you one.

Furs Direct From Hunter and Trapper Through Us to You

OUR SPACIOUS FUR DEP'T OFFERS REMARKABLE VALUES

SEARCH THE COUNTRY OVER and you'll not find another stock that offers a wider range of practical Furs than is to be found in the remarkable fine collection now on display in our Fur Department. Search again, and you'll learn that with us prices in many cases are a third below to-day's acknowledged ruling quotations, and in no case will you find our prices within twenty-five per cent. of what is considered at present fair market value,—all of which is due to our foresight in planning months ago, together, of course, with a certain element of good fortune in coming in contact with those who had choice skins to dispose of, and practical experienced fur workers to cut and make the garments up.

So thoroughly are we imbued with the sense that our Furs will stand the most rigid of tests in quality of skins, quality of workmacship, in style features, and in price lowness, that we invite you to make strict comparsion before you decide,

WE ARE PREPARED to give you the benefit of our experience and general knowledge and help you getting the right thing, at the right price. This is more important to us than the mere making of a sale.

Here are a few interesting items for your consideration;—
