East End Mall merchants want to get out of the BIA

C. THOMPSON

MORRISBURG—A number of East End Promenade merchants want the by-law forming the Business Improvement Area rescinded.

Owner of Tupper's Bakery, Bill Tupper brought a petition signed by the majority of East End merchants to council Monday evening, and aired their complaints.

Since taking over his business, Tupper has been paying an annual levy of $669. He claimed he and other East End merchants weren't seeing any improvements for their area.

"We're concerned, we want out," said Tupper.

"To establish a by-law, the only way not to have it, is to have one-third of the assessed owners against it, but it's a complex procedure to dissolve," clerk Cheryl Tynski explained.

The Village would have to seek legal advice on the matter, she added afterward.

Reeve Gord McGregor said he sympathized with the merchants complaints, and he will be council's representative to the BIA Board this year, hoping "to find out more, and promote the East End."

"We hope to give you benches and garbage cans the same as we have," he stated.

But he regretted that Council couldn't consider rescinding the by-law until the end of 1993. At this time, the merchants would complete their last payment of $25,000 for the plaza improvements.

The only action Council will take now is to work within the existing organization for improvements.

Tupper wondered how the East End merchants became involved in the agreement to begin with. In 1985, a by-law was passed by a previous council to define a Business Improvement Area, in order to be eligible for grants to create a PRIDE project.

The area was bounded by Fifth Street, HIghway Two, Highway 31, and Dairy Street, and governed by a Board of Management consisting of merchants who own the businesses in the defined area.

At the time, a business improvement project for the plaza was planned in two phases, and an initial government grant of $150,000 was promised. Government monies were to be matched by funds from the municipality and the Board.

A levy was set up by the Board to pay for maintenance and promotion and their portion of capital improvements. The Board is currently paying $25,000 yearly to complete their commitment for Phase Two of the project.

But to be eligible for grants and to allow the placement of a uniform canopy, the merchants had to sign over to the Village, their rights to title of their individual canopies. However, this did not apply to the East End merchants, as the major landholder here is Fred Pinkus.

Merchants at the East End did not share in the canopy, however the original business owners were given new signs.

Over the last year, the main plaza saw extensive changes in the addition of cement traffic islands adorned with trees and lamps, interlocking brick in the Center Court, and alleys at the Pharmacy and Bo's Barber Shop, flower boxes, trees and benches.

However, the East End Mall did not see the same improvements except for three cement islands at the north of the parking lot.

While Tupper's presentation didn't achieve the rescinding of the by-law requested by East End merchants, Council promised to look at their concerns and reply by letter.

Lions launch food drive

MORRISBURG—The Morrisburg Lions are again living up to their reputation of generosity in word and deed.

With the help of local businesses, they are organizing a food drive for the area needy served by the House of Lazarus Matilda Resource Center.

"Basically we did a food drive last year which was quite successful," Lion member Blake Noon explained. "It's one of the Club things in which everyone gets involved."

The Lions respond to requests for help from groups or individuals, and last year collected between $4,000 to $5,000 in goods for the Resource Center with the help of the community.

Assistance for the House of Lazarus is even more crucial this year after the fire which destroyed Dundela Church. The church housed the House Of Lazarus Matilda Resource Center.

However, with the cooperation of the township, a temporary center has been set up in the rink building across the road.

And despite the discouraging set-back, plans are afoot to secure a new location for the Center through a building fund. Meanwhile, area churches have agreed to hold any surplus donations until a new location is obtained.

Seaway Pharmacy and Mr. Grocer have donated bales of shopping bags inserted in the Leader today: "But if you don't have a bag, just bring the food anyway," says Lions member Blake Noon.

Harland Veinotte is lending a transport truck which will be in front of Mr. Grocer's this Saturday from 9.00 a.m. to 2.00 p.m., to hold the donated items.

Here the Lions will accept donations of non-perishable food items. Sanitary products like soap, toilet paper, kleenex, and toothpaste are also welcome.

The goal is to collect canned goods with an emphasis on meat, fish, soup, fruit and baby food, and cans of fruit juice or box drinks. Non-perishable food items like oatmeal, pasta, rice and Kraft dinner are needed.

Money donations are also welcome. The House of Lazarus is a registered charitable organization, and any amounts over $10 will be receipted with a tax-deductible receipt.

The House of Lazarus is also looking for good refrigerators and or freezers to hold surpluses of fresh food.

"We feel there's definitely a need," said Lion Jack Barkley."

"As a Lions Club, that's what our mandate is—to help the needy, whether it be glasses, crutches or food, housing or whatever," he stated.

Environmental Awareness Group gears up for Sept. 28th opening

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG—The Dundas Environmental Awareness Group received some good news last week in the form of a government grant.

A $67,209 grant has been approved for the group to resume a 40 week project at the Morrisburg-based environment resource center. Funding is under Jobs Development under the federal Job Strategy Program, which is administered by Canada Employment and Immigration.

Monies will be used to hire a project manager and three staff members to undertake an environmental project for Dundas County.

Those eligible to apply for the three positions are in receipt of welfare. Employment is with the understanding they upgrade their skills in preparation for other employment at the end of 40 weeks.

Last year the project manager position was shared by Susan Shaw of Morrisburg and Maria Thompson of Mountain Township. The same ladies have reapplied and expect to continue this year.

"We're pleased and glad to know at last," said Shaw, who was contacted by a government official on Friday, and a spokesperson at Stormont Dundas MP Bob Kilger's office.

Last year, the employees spent part of their 35 hour week in courses to upgrade their skills at the T.R. Leger Alternative School in Morrisburg. However, this year, the grant announcement came too late, and unfortunately, the school is fully booked.

Shaw said the situation may be remedied by leasing a computer, and by having in-house training.

"We're very pleased," said Martin Brooks, chair of DEAG. "The only way to continue the resource center was to have funding."

Shaw noted the office at the old St. Lawrence Parks building would reopen September 28. Office hours are from Monday to Friday 8.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m.

The volunteer board of directors is to meet early in October to decide on the project's focus this year, and a specific plan.

Brooks said work will likely continue on waste management, and the three R's of reduction, reuse and recycling.

Water quality is another area for consideration, especially the prevention of water pollution. The Board is discussing the possibility of a study of the South Nation River, as a joint endeavor between the DEAG and the river authority.

As well as educational workshops, last year's chief project was the production of an environmental resource handbook for the County.

The center will continue to focus on an educational approach to achieve its goals.

Waste Reduction Week declared

MORRISBURG–"Join us in the battle of the Bulge," declared Morrisburg Council as it proclaimed Waste Reduction Week, September 27—October 3.

At Monday night's meeting, Village councillors challenged residents and businesses in Morrisburg to reduce waste volumes by 25 per cent by the end of this year and by 50 per cent by the year 2000, as decreed by the provincial government.

"Our garbage cost, in manhours, machines and landfill costs are escalating rapidly, and we need to look at garbage in a new light," said councillor Cam Martel, chair of Public Works.

So what's the new "scoop" on garbage? A new municipal garbage by-law is coming, along with a handy garbage guide to help residents and businesses cut back.

A waste reduction committee is being established to promote a "greener" community. If any resident or business person wants to join this dynamic team, please call the municipal office at 543-2504.

What two single actions can residents and businesses undertake to make a significant change in waste volumes?

First: Use your Blue Box to achieve a 13-16 per cent reduction in waste going to the landfill. Include only newspapers and recyclable inserts and fliers, glass bottles and jars, metal food and beverage cans, and two-liter plastic pop bottles.

Second: Did you know that

Fire fighters honored

Fire fighters recognized for contributions

MORRISBURG — It takes a special type of individual to run into a burning building while everyone else is charging out.

But day in, day out that is what fire fighters do without a second thought.

Not many people realize the importance they play in the community — but they do.

Nothing was was made more evident Saturday evening as dignitaries, special guests, friends, husbands, and wives gathered for the dedication of a memorial to fire fighters, past and present.

Fire Chief Les Bilmer helped make the evening possible. He was instrumental in getting the memorial set up lobbying council for two years until last year when the money was found to have it put in place.

Morrisburg Reeve Gord McGregor praised Bilmer for his hard work and dedication to the department and congratulated everyone on a job well done.

"We have to do what is good for the fire fighter,"
- Lorne Campbell, editor of The Canadian Fire Fighter

"I am really happy to be Reeve of the town in a time when we can recognize the service that these people have given us," said McGregor.

"I hope it's not as long a period of time before we recognize your accomplishments again."

Stormont-Dundas MP, Bob Kilger echoed McGregor's praise. He has seen some of the work fire fighters are called upon to do while commuting back and forth to Ottawa from Cornwall on a daily basis.

Such work requires a very caring individual, a very dedicated individual who has to think that at some time or another he might be called upon to make the ultimate sacrifice, said Kilger.

"I marvel at your dedication to your work and to your fellow man," he said.

Kilger's wife, Bernice, had a special reason for attending the ceremonies. Her late Uncle Bill Snyder served as a Morrisburg volunteer fire fighter for 30 years. He was captain for 15 of those years.

Others receiving medals were Fire Chief Les Bilmer, Deputy Fire Chief Art Carkner, Leo Lortie, and Ted Jarvis. David Mabo was also called upon but was unable to accept as he was absent.

"There have been so many changes...but something that doesn't change is the quality of individual that makes one come forth as a fire fighter," said Kilger.

But regardless of the Her cousin Ralph Snyder also served as a fire fighter, returning last year, and was recognized with a medal for distinguished service from the federal government.

equipment they have or how much they are loved, guest speaker and fire fighter, Lorne Campbell warned the fire fighters about compensation.

"While everybody loves you, what kind of insurance do you have for your family," he asked in his speech.

Referring to the tragedy in Iroquois a few years back where five fire fighters were killed when their truck collided with a train, Campbell warned it could happen to anyone at anytime.

"No one knows how an accident starts, it just happens," he said.

Campbell was addressing the issue of compensation because he felt he owed it to "his people," out there who risk their lives for others.

As editor-in-chief of popular magazine The Canadian Fire Fighter, Campbell tests every fire fighting commodity advertised in his publication.

Second best is not good enough for the fire fighter, he said.

"We have to do what is good for the fire fighter," he said.

Referring to the monument erected on behalf of all the fire fighters who have given their service to the community Campbell said they are the most important people in any community.

You should be proud of the memorial erected in your honor, he said.

"Somewhere down the road in another 20 or 25 years somebody's going to be talking about you, and they will be respecting you the way that you and I respect the members that have given their services to this community."

"You can't help but feel pride in that," he said.

Excitement builds as Fall Harvest Festival gets under way

IAN McMILLAN
Leader Staff

WILLIAMSBURG —Some people don't let the end of any one season get them down.

Neither do the folks in Williamsburg. In celebration of the changing season the town is holding a Fall Harvest Festival, October 3rd.

"Everybody is pitching in to help but we're just getting started," said Arlene Darrach, head of the Fall Harvest Committee.

After the success of the Giant Summer Yard Sale Darrach is hoping the Fall Harvest Festival will meet with a similar response.

"We began working on this idea about the middle of August," she said. "It's going to be a fun day — a family day."

Committee member, Heather Whitteker agreed.

"This is the first time for the festival. It's been a lot of work."

Registration for the various events is under way. The response to date has been very good, said Whitteker.

Some of the events planned for the Festival are the pancake breakfast, contests, pony rides, a tea and bazaar, games, exhibits, and the closing ceremonies.

The breakfast is set to take place at the new fire hall from 7 a.m. Later on at noon the parade is set to go.

"Other than the Christmas Parade, which is held by the fire fighters, there are no other parades except the Centennial Parade," said Whitteker.

Prizes will be given out to the best float in the parade. Already neighborhood challenges have gone out throughout town said Darrach.

"We don't know how far they'll take it until it happens," she said.

To enter the parade a float must possess a Harvest or Canada 125 theme. Everything gets under way at the east end of town.

One of the more popular games being held during the day will be the Tug-Of-War. Teams must consist of 10 people and at least three women must be included to keep things fair.

"All the games are sponsored by the Recreation Committee and will be held at the park," said Darrach. "And we'll have the bleachers set up so everyone can see."

For the exhibits two tents will be set up. There are 18 exhibits in total.

"We get new people coming in to help almost every week," said Whitteker. "Everyone has been working to get things going."

But not every contest and game will be held on Oct. 3. The house decorating event has been scheduled for the Friday.

"This is only for houses in the Village of Williamsburg and the Township," said Darrach. "The deadline for entering the competition is Sept. 26."

Upon the completion of the day everyone is invited to the park where the businesses will be getting together to announce the winners of all the contests and prizes.

"There will be some bake sales going on during the day and merchants have specials planned for the day," said Darrach.

"The businesses in the area are really excited about everything," added Whitteker. "They've given their time and donated money."

One of the businesses taking a keen interest in the festivities is Black's TV and Appliances. The company is having its 34th anniversary in October and decided to celebrate with the Harvest Festival.

"All we hope for now is a nice sunny day," said Darrach. "Anything but rain."

MORRISBURG— Volunteer coordinator Susan Shaw hopes that Waste Reduction Week from September 27 to October 3 will see a slimming of the Village of Morrisburg "wasteline."

"Reduction, reuse, and recycle," was her theme, and she stressed the necessity of further efforts in this area.

There are many reasons to be concerned over the amounts and kinds of waste most people produce. Not the least of these is the limited seven-year lifespan of the Williamsburg landfill site, and the $30,000 the Village of Morrisburg pays the Township annually as a user fee.

Shaw informed Council of new Ministry of Environmentguidelines for waste management called the Three R's regulations, and changes to the Municipal Act which will affect many sectors of society.

The ministry intends to reduce domestic waste going to landfill by 25 per cent by the end of the year, and 50 per cent by the year 2000. To help achieve this end, municipalities will be allowed leaf and yard composting, which were formerly permitted only with a special approval.

And through changes to the Municipal Act, county government will have more authority for waste management.

Until now, the ministry has focussed on curbing residential waste, but as of January 1, goals of waste reduction will be set for large waste producers. Industrial and commercial and institutional producers of waste will be urged to start reducing waste by conserving.

As far as Morrisburg is concerned, Shaw urged a combined program of blue box recycling and composting. "This should achieve 45 per cent reduction in no time," Shaw said.

There will be immediate benefits to the Village in the form of reduced waste, ideally to one garbage bag per household per week. And in the long run, there will be an ultimate pay-off in increased landfill life, and perhaps a reduction of the annual waste levy to the Township.

Other ways the Village may help reduce is to accept a generous offer by Town Cartage Limited, to collect corrugated cardboard and telephone books free of charge on recycling days.

The Village should also pass the "excellent, state of the art" garbage by-law it has prepared, Shaw stressed.

"People need regular notices," Shaw said. A Garbage Guide book containing the message of the by-law is in the works, and will soon be mailed to all householders.

In addition, a poster contest to raise schoolchildren's awareness, will be held for St. Mary's, and Morrisburg Public.

Landing permits are overly enforced

In other news, council discussed the policy American Authorities have regarding enforcement of landing permits.

Les Cruickshank wrote Council of several residents concerns. Canadian boaters who have an American Landing Permit are required to phone into a 1-800 number immediately on reaching the American shore.

The Americans also now require a boat travelling in American waters to have a landing permit for passengers aboard, warning them of a $5,000 penalty for non-compliance.

To strictly comply, the Canadian boaters must not cross the International Boundary into the American side of the St. Lawrence unless all passengers have a permit.

This may not be a problem for boaters who usually boat with the same people in the boat such as family or friends, but it becomes a problem when visitors are invited for a boat ride.

"If their visitors are required to drive to an American-Port-of-Entry to obtain a Landing Permit, the number of boating trips will be greatly reduced," Cruickshank wrote.

"If there are problems with smuggling or whatever, they should address these problems and leave the great majority of boaters to enjoy both sides of our river as we have in the past."

Reeve Gord McGregor said that as a boater he agreed with the concerns, and that some people feel harassed by the policy.

Councillor Larry Schnurr said it was a bit silly to demand a landing permit just to cross the international boundary.

"I think maybe they think we're all smugglers!" one councillor remarked.

Councillors said the new rules create a problem for both Canadians and Americans, in view of the hard-pressed economy. They will notify American Authorities of their concerns.

Wasteline

almost half of your household waste consists of kitchen scraps and yard waste which can be turned into free fertilizer?

If done properly, a composter won't smell or attract pests and requires less care than a houseplant!

"Watch for your Garbage Guide in the mail," suggested reeve Gord McGregor, "and help us reduce our collective wasteline."

make sure we help these people in their need."

Barkley added the Lions are very supportive of the Center's new coordinating director Lynn Edwards, her organizational abilities and compassion.

"I think everything is being treated very fairly, and she's a very caring person," Barkley said.

The Resource Center assists the area needy with food, and clothing. Before the fire, the Center also helped with literacy classes, counselling and legal assistance. Approximately 800 families in an area from as far east as the other side of Cornwall to west of Prescott are helped by the Center.

Protection for owner and pet

Dogs and cats account for 50 per cent of the cases where people come in contact with rabies. And rabies can be fatal. That's why dogs and cats MUST be vaccinated at least once a year. It's the law!

On Saturday, September 26th, between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m., the Eastern Ontario Health Unit will hold its annual Rabies Clinic in the five counties of Stormont, Dundas, and Glengarry, Prescott, and Russell. These special low-cost clinics are made available to pet owners in co-operation with the local veterinarians for the low price of $11 (GST included).

In Morrisburg, the rabies vaccination clinic will be held at the Morrisburg Fire Hall. Be sure that you are there with all your pets.

Enjoy your hunt safely

One of the many advantages of living in Canada is the superb hunting and fishing to be found in so many easily accessible parts of this country. Few other areas in the entire world can approach it, even remotely. So bountiful, indeed, has been this great natural resource, that many of us have become inclined to take it for granted. Many are prone to be careless in our hunting habits, too laxity in observing the fish and game laws, and carelessness of the rights, even the safety of others who may be in the same territory.

With the advent of the hunting season it may be timely to stress once more the need for extreme caution while you enjoy this healthful outdoor recreation. For the fact remains that each year, many hunters, both experienced woodsmen and novices, are killed or injured by carelessly-directed firearms. For many years now, the province of Ontario, and most other jurisdictions as well, have insisted that new hunters obtain a certificate of graduation from a recognized hunter safety course before they can be issued a hunting licence. That this measure has been successful is attested to by the fact that, since it has been in effect, and despite a huge increase in the number of hunters, the annual toll of these so-called accidents has been in pretty steady decline.

The first requirement, of course, for this trend to continue, is just to use plain common sense. Know your weapon, know your regulations, and obey them. They are not put there to harass anyone, but to protect you and your companions, and to perpetuate our sports hunting heritage for generations of Canadians yet unborn.

And the other axiomatic point is to never, never point a gun at anything you do not intend to kill. That is the sole purpose for which your gun, and its ammunition were made. They were never intended to clown around with, nor to aid in climbing over fences or obstacles. Make sure, before raising a gun anywhere, that your game, whether on the ground or in the water or in the air, is in your direct line of vision, and that your missile cannot strike any other living object.

Above all, please don't place yourself in the ridiculous position of saying, after a fatal shooting, "I saw something moving in the bush." That "something" you saw moving could easily turn out to be your partner, or some other hunter, or an innocent bystander. And no jurisdiction has to this date declared an open season on them.

Another "sacred trust" shot down

Masked by a great to-do about Canada's forthcoming referendum on the constitution, and supported by his majority in the House of Commons and the Senate, Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and his Conservative Government shot down one more of his "sacred trust" promises this week with the elimination of the Baby Bonus as such, a family assistance program, and feature of this country's social policy since 1945.

Members of the government have been arguing for weeks that the elimination of the universal character of the family allowance will permit more money to be given to those who need it most, and have stated that the government will be adding another $400 million to the system to help low-income Canadians.

Introduced to Canadians in 1945 by former Prime Minister Mackenzie King, the Baby Bonus presently pays $34.88 per child, and people with incomes which exceed $50,000 per year see about three-quarters of this tax back.

Under the new legislation, some 300,000 Canadian families living on welfare, will not get one extra penny in January. The only ones who would get any benefit at all are the so-called "working poor" — families with an income of less than $26,000, who would qualify for an "earned income supplement" of $500 annually. That means they would receive about $42 a month.

This Week In Morrisburg's History

Compiled from The Leader's fyles by Laurie Day

1982

Danny Robertson, a father of four children, said he would run for the trustee position representing the village of Iroquois and Matilda Township on the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Board of Education. The plant manager at Rohm and Haas, said he had been developing an increasing interest in education with four children going through the system.

Winchester Springs resident, Maureen Steel and Allen Black of Morrisburg were pictured on the front page of this issue of The Leader with the results of their summer contest on who could grow the largest pumpkin. Although Maureen's appeared t be the largest, she grudgingly had to admit, Allen won in the weight category. The two did not wish to reveal the actual weight, as each had donated their pumpkin to the public school for a weight guessing contest, but Allen did issue a challenge for anyone interested in trying their luck the next year. One of the pumpkins had a circumference of 68 inches.

Local hunters, Ernie Duvall, and Leo Lafortune posed with a portion of their goose catch after the opening day hunt. The pair managed to bag five geese and five ducks. The retriever was also pictured on the front page, who went along for her first taste of waterfowl hunting. Although too young at two months, to be active in the hunt, she appeared quite adept at posing for the Leader photographer.

Word from the arena here was that the necessary work was being done and the ice plant was scheduled to be turned on September 28th. The staff was hoping that the ice would be ready by October 8th.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, The Morrisburg Leader,
Morrisburg, Ontario

Dear Editor — After reading in your paper the proposal by Enviro-Desorption Inc. and the acceptance by Iroquois Council of an offer to purchase land in the industrial park, for a soil recycling and purification plant, I felt the need to consult some authorities who are expert in the field of waste incineration. Dr. Paul Connett, a professor at St. Lawrence University in Canton and himself an opponent to waste incineration put us in touch with citizens in Pennsylvania involved in dealing with the proposal to operate a soil recycling plant in their community. The president of Citizens Against Incineration provided us with information they had gathered in the year they have been opposing just such a plant as Enviro-Desorption Inc. is planning to locate in our community.

At a Task Force on the Environment hearing held in January 1992 in Pennsylvania, Alfred Siess Jr., a paid technical consultant, gave testimony for groups opposing the soil recycling plant. He quotes, "The thermal treatment of petroleum contaminated soils, technically is an incinerator, with the handicaps of incomplete combustion and the proclivity to synthesize hazardous compounds and release these to the environment."

Enviro-Desorption Inc. has defined its operation as a thermal treatment unit. Mr. Siess in his presentation states, "Neither low nor high thermal treatment can destroy heavy metals such as lead, mercury or cadmium. Depending on the the temperature employed, the metals are either volatized in which case they are captured by pollution control equipment or are released to the environment as stack emissions or if not volatized, the metals wind up in the soil or are released as fugitive emissions. In every case the metals remain hazardous and a potential or actual source of water pollution, air pollution or direct inhalation."

Mr. Siess claims that thermal treatment units should be moved from contaminated site to contaminated site rather than be a centralized unit such as proposed for Iroquois. This treatment plant will receive contaminated soil for all of southeastern eastern Ontario. Mr. Siess claims "When huge quantities of soil are heated or incinerated over time, even minute concentration of toxics such as lead and cadmium will build up to become exceedingly serious threats to public health.

His report also states that 21 scientists who met in July 1991 have stated with certainty that, "certain PCB forms, dioxins, furans, cadmium, lead and mercury are capable of disrupting the endocrine systems of animals including fish, wildlife and humans, precisely the chemicals of concern in either or both medical waste and contaminated soil incinerators."

It is well to remember that there are over 100 constituents in gasoline and many of these are considered hazardous by government agencies.

Considering the risks to our and our children's health, the added truck traffic with associated diesel fumes, the social impact, the potential for damage to our crops, our private and public water supplies, the few people this industry will employ (four or five) is this really the type of industry we wish to have and encourage in our industrial park?

"Green" is not always clean.

There's no place like home

Just Another Day
By LAURIE DAY

Dorothy was right when she told Toto there was no place like home, and after two weeks in England, I can honestly say that I agree with Dorothy.

But then, I had to make the best of my home away from home for the past 14 days, and what better place to do that than in a neat little down-home kind of pub (or three) here and there along the route?

Yes, it's true, the atmosphere in the English pubs is second to none, (except of course those establishments around this area that I frequent on occasion) and the barkeeps I ran into were always eager to hear a story of Canada and how we survive for 10 months of the year waist-deep in snow.

Of course I just had to add fuel to these fiery tales by telling them how we eat raw meat after days on end on the Arctic Ocean harpooning meals of seal, whale and the occasional walrus, and how we get to work via sled dogs, snowmobiles or skiis, or sometimes never at all depending of course, on how much sleet and freezing rain we get.

And yes, the tales got larger, as the body warmed with "Sheep Dip", a traditional but unique blend of scotch whiskey which incidentally smells a lot like sheep dip, so it is appropriately named.

Seriously, the trip was an experience I won't soon forget.

What our relatives didn't know about the history of the country, wasn't worth knowing, but I'll be damned if I can remember half of what they said now. I should have had my tape recorder going, I guess.

Once we landed in London, and my fingers were surgically removed from the seat in front of me on the plane, we had the first of many maniacal rides by motor vehicle through the down-town core of the city that never sleeps.

The first two days in England, we toured London and had a chance to see the high points of the city.

Riding on the "tube" was another one of those things high on the list of things to do and of course we only got lost once, which was at Victoria Station, but after I asked a nice gentleman with a safety pin in his nose and spiked purple hair where we were, we were cool.

The Bag of Nails wasn't far from the station, and that was the first of a long line of pubs we visited while abroad.

Well, our tour of London on an open-top, red, double-decker bus was the best way to do the town, as we were able to hop on and off at different attractions at our convenience.

We hit the Tower of London first, and while there we were able to catch a gape at the crown jewels. Pictures are really worth a thousand words, but unfortunately, no photographs were allowed in there. I was going to sneak a quick one, but it was a good thing I didn't because I asked later why photos weren't allowed, and the tour guide informed me that I would have set off alarms. Yikes!

Another stop in London was the palace of course, but that was all but impressive. The gate around the grounds was more exciting to look at than the palace, and no we didn't get a chance watch at the changing of the guards because that only takes place on odd-numbered days of the month and we were there on the 6th. Figures.

By this time, we hit another pub, but I can't for the life of me remember the name of it. (I didn't have a note pad either, but this was a holiday right?)

There we caught a glimpse of Fergie and her millionaire friend from LA...no, just kidding. Made ya look, made ya look.

Anyway, we also saw Piccadilly Circus, and that was a real circus. Dope dealers, skin heads, punks and drunks. Ah, there's no place like home!

Westminster Abbey was another highlight on the tour and I had a really strange feeling once I stepped through those doors.

The Abbey is one of the most famous, historic and widely visited churches not only in Britain, but in the whole Christian world. You had to pay a pound fifty ($3.50) to walk though the burial places of kings, queens, princes and poets, and it felt as though I was going to a wake. Creepy, but impressive.

I actually lost my voice and stood gawking at all the tombs including those of Elizabeth I, Mary Queen of Scots, Henry VII, Lord Byron and the memorial to William Shakespeare.

Well, after day one of the city life, we called it a night and tried to get a little sleep.

The rest of the week went extremely quickly and Mother and I took off for Bristol to meet our family and our friends who travelled with us, went to Dover and did their thing for the rest of the trip.

After meeting up with Ian he took us on a foot tour of Bristol and by the time this day was over I was never so glad to see a bed in all my life. Boy, I think Ian must be a mountain climber in real life and not the dentist he claims to be!

For the rest of the week we took in the sights in the south western part of England; Bath, Cheddar Gorge, Stonehenge, Salsbury and Wells.

At every place we saw what it was that put each on the map. Roman baths, caves, rocks, cathedrals, abbeys and castles are what England is known for and we got a first hand tour of them all by our personal top-rate guide.

During our second week of the trip, we toured the birthplace of Shakespeare, Stratford-upon-Avon. We also hit Manchester, but wished we didn't.

All in all, it was a great get-away, but funds didn't hold out too long. For a burger, fries and a beer, seven pounds, or $17.50 and that was a cheap meal. Needless to say I didn't only "sample" the beer in the pubs, restaurants and hotels. From lager to bitters, red to black £1 to £5, I was able to sample a few different brands and report back to my favorite connoisseur.

I was glad to see the CN tower and the SkyDome though on the trip home Saturday.

And the plane ride home was 10 times better than the one over because the steward kept my beer supply in tact. But the best part of all was when I saw my sweet baby at the airport with a bouquet of red and peach roses waiting patiently for me.

Sunday is pretty much a blur.

Cleaning soil in this manner might only be putting our landfills in the shape as polluted emissions.

Anyone who has a concern about this facility should come to the meeting at the Iroquois Civic Centre, Thursday, October 1, 1992 at 7 p.m. Voice your concerns and request answers of our politicians and the Ministry of the Environment officials.

We have a clean green area we call home. We should bear responsibility for our local environmental problems, but do we have to be the depot for southeastern Ontario's petroleum contaminated soil clean-up?

As a wise gentleman said to me, "At times we are all downwind. This should be a concern to us all."

Sincerely,
ELEANOR PIETERSMA

Dear Editor — I am sitting here today, completely baffled. It is my understanding that our Provincial Government, not to mention our Federal Government, are strapped for cash, and that they are sorry, but they will have to cut back on some of our essential services. Namely, providing around the clock police services that we used to enjoy.

In support of this exercise in fiscal restraint, myself, as well as other businesses situated in the Morrisburg area, have had our establishments broken into, pilfered and varying amounts of our livelihood removed by those wonderful citizens who know our police coverage is minimal to none at all in the wee hours of the mornings.

My bafflement, when on this past long weekend, namely Labor Day, I found that our police force, immigration, as well as border patrol were having a harassment exercise on the St. Lawrence in front of Morrisburg and Waddington.

Their intent was to recover a few 6-packs, carton of cigarettes or an errant 5th of whiskey or maybe to verify that we the boaters of this area have not strayed to far from the legal path and to help us return to it by paying a fine.

The number of man or woman hours spent over that weekend, not to mention the cost of boats, trailers, vehicles, equipment could have been converted into protection for our local businesses and citizens over at least the summer months.

It is hard to believe that the people who issue the orders at the top would not feel that prevention and/or protection from crimminals in our community is a far better goal publicly than harassing boaters on one last long weekend.

Let's try and be rational.

Dear Editor — I am writing to find relatives of Mahlon Zeron who was a United Counties warden in the 1960s. He is a relative of mine, and I have lost touch.

My grandfather was Sanford Zeron, born in Dundas County, Ontario and moved to Alaska when grown where my father was born in Juneau in 1905.

I would love to hear from anyone related to myself. I used to write to an aunt, Pearl L'Armour, but the last letter was returned. I just came across a newspaper clipping with Mahlon Zeron's picture about his being elected and the town's name of one other Reeve in the picture.

Any help would be appreciated greatly. Thank you.

Dear Editor — "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin," from Troilus and Cressida.

It is now three months since the world watched, as international political leaders, non-government organizations, and policy-makers converged in Rio de Janeiro to chart global environmental solutions.

Now it's our turn.

Canada has been honoured to host the first international event to follow the Brazil Earth Summit. From October 16-21, the World Congress for Education and Communication on Environment and Development (ECO-ED) will take place at the Metro Toronto Convention Centre.

EDO-ED is a not-for-profit event co-sponsored by UNESCO, the United Nations Environment Program and the International Chamber of Commerce. It is being co-hosted by the North American Association for Environmental Education, the Council of Outdoor Educators of Ontario, the Ontario Association of Geographic and Environmental Educators and Canada's Man and the Biosphere Program.

ECO-ED will bring together, for the first time, an international mix of participants to share knowledge and stimulate informed action on the environment through education and communication. A full range of concerned citizens, scientists, media, artisans, students, aboriginal peoples, business, and politicians will be there.

The conference program features a creative format of expert speakers, group presentations, excursions, workshops and other networking opportunities. An Arts Festival, ECO-Exposition as well as a Film and Video Festival will take place throughout the event.

Most importantly, ECO-ED is accessible.

If you belong to a service organization group, labour union or chamber of commerce, ECO-ED wants your input and participation.

If you are a teacher, school trustee, concerned parent or interested student, ECO-ED invites you to come and share your ideas with others.

If you want to stimulate informed action and enlightened change, ECO-ED wants your vision. As the custodians of the present and the trustees of the future, we are responsible for our actions and how they impact on ourselves, our children, our neighbours and our environment.

ECO-ED will not find all of the solutions to help guide us to a safer and better future. But it is a start--a positive point of departure in the direction of sustainable living.

We have all touched nature. Now, let's give it a hand.

Sincerely,
CHARLES HOPKINS

Constitutional debate

Turner campaigns for "No" referendum

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

CORNWALL—Annette Turner of South Mountain won the lion's share of the votes at a nomination meeting of the Stormont Dundas Reform Party's federal riding association Sunday.

Turner is a Social Adjustment teacher at Nationview Public School in South Mountain and netted 60 per cent..

Martin Labelle, vice-president and general manager of Dynamic Closures in Cornwall won 30 per cent, and Harold Theede of Mountain Township had 10 per cent.

Theede is a retired aircraft maintenance supervisor and consultant on contract to the Department of National Defense.

Between 135 to 140 riding association members attended from a total of over 300, and 101 votes were cast.

"I feel wonderful. I'm so thrilled with the number of people who came out. Receiving that many votes, I really feel I have a vote of confidence," she said after the nomination.

In her acceptance speech, Turner promised first to lead a campaign for the 'no' vote on the constitution October 25.

"The document is being sold to Canadians as something which will renew Canadian federation," Turner said. "The only thing renewed by this document is the endless cycle of constitutional wrangling."

Turner added that the Reform Party will not support because little is done to strengthen the faltering economy, as efforts are spent on perpetuating constitutional talks.

"It is time for politicians to tell Canadians that this agreement will not give us constitutional peace," Turner said. "Canadians are being asked to trade the flawed constitution we know for one which is vague, full of holes and uncertain."

At the party's executive meeting Tuesday evening at the Morrisburg Legion, a decision would be reached on how to conduct a referendum campaign.

Second on Turner's agenda is the goal of "winning Stormont Dundas for the Reform Party."

This will be done, she said "by spreading the word of the Reform Party, and what it stands for and recruiting more members."

As Mountain Township Reform director, Annette had considerable success in meeting people from door to door. "I believe elections are won through door to door campaigning," she said.

"We'll be meeting with the members to discuss how we may do this continuously, starting after the referendum," she stated.

"We'd like to have a master plan in place to implement it when the election mitt is dropped. We want to be organized and ready to go."

Stressing differences

As guest speaker, Mitch Gray, Reform MP Deborah Grey's executive assistant stressed what he felt were the "differences" between Reform and the three mainstream political parties.

In federal spending, the performance of Parliament, the cost of sustaining social services and the Constitution, Reform offers some clear-cut alternatives to the traditional parties, Gray said.

Voters of Stormont Dundas have a clear choice of increased federal spending from the Liberals and the NDP, maintain spending at an annual $30 billion deficit from the PCs or reduce federal spending from the Reformers, Gray stated.

With the two major parties, public spending will increase, "even if that drives up national debt past $500 billion, or $28,000 each Canadian now owes," he added.

"Continuing social programs by two major parties will be defined as picking up 100 per cent of bills for 100 per cent of people, 100 per cent of the time, regardless of need, income or resources."

"But Reform will sound a warning because such promises are not and cannot be sustained. If we want to save Medicare for selves and future generations, we must acknowledge it is financially sick and honestly search for a cure."

"We're 100 per cent committed to reducing taxes," he said. "It's taxes in this country that are destroying and a primary target we'll look at in this election campaign."

Grey said Reform would cut taxes until the economy reflects a lower level of taxation, cost of living and cost of doing business.

He added the Reform Party will seek to analyze reforms in social spending "so social programs can be sustained for all Canadians regardless of income or regardless where they live in the country."

Also, instead of strengthening the bureaucratic arm of government, Parliament should be strengthened by being freed from excess party discipline and making it more representative of regional and majoritarian interests.

"Voters can now choose whether they wish to have someone from Ottawa act as a representative to us, or choose your representative to Ottawa," he said.

In offering a new alternative to alienated voters, Gray said more Reform MPs in Parliament will "put pressure on public spending, democratize Parliament and press for a Constitution that treats all Canadians equally."

According to Gray, the meeting was the 53rd federal nomination meeting of the Reform Party of Canada.

Stormont Dundas is one of almost 200 new federal Reform Party associations, which have been formed in the last four years to recruit and run candidates in the next federal election.

There are over 130,000 Canadian Reform Party members. Reformers hope to build their numbers to have about 150,000 by the next election.

Deal to purchase Seafarers Institute goes up in smoke

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

CORNWALL—The "For Sale" sign at the property formerly known as the Seafarers Institute will probably be there at least a while longer.

A spokesperson for the property owner, Tom Kaneb of Cornwall, says a deal to purchase the building has expired. And presently, nothing is happening regarding a prospective sale of the multi-million dollar property.

Negotiations had proceeded during spring and summer between the prospective purchaser, the General Wellness Corporation, a publicly-based health company from Albany, New York, and Kaneb.

The General Wellness Corporation was planning to use Morrisburg as its North American headquarters. There were also plans to have the Cornwall-based Coronary Health Improvement Project operate out of the institute.

Efforts to reach Tariq Faridi, community relations director and chief stockholder in GWC for comment were unsuccessful.

"In a way, it's disappointing of course," said nutritionist Dr. Hans Diehl, director of the CHIP.

CHIP is not part of the General Wellness Corporation, Diehl added. However, the institute will be leased to CHIP next month for four "Applied Nutrition" workshops October 2 and 4, and October 9 and 12.

Workshops will include lectures, cooking demonstrations, lab exercises and two meals. "There'll be food demonstrations, with hands-on experience, and information about practical things," Diehl explained.

There is a limit of 250 per workshop, and registrants are already enrolled in Cornwall CHIP.

However, Dr. Diehl says if any Morrisburg area residents would like to register, they should phone CHIP at 936-8843.

Crime Stoppers up and going

The first Crime Stoppers program of its kind was started up Monday when the phones were plugged in. It is hoped that through the community's involvement, certain crimes can be solved that have illuded police in the past. Pictured from left to right are OPP Sgt. Dave MacDonald, volunteer Sherry Kalil, and Chairman Nelson Plamandon.

Crime Stoppers gets hand from OPP

CORNWALL — The first Crime Stoppers program in the Seaway Valley became a reality Monday morning.

That's when the phones were plugged in bringing life to the non-profit organization.

"We're a little late getting started," admitted Sgt. Dave McDonald of OPP District 11. "All of our members are volunteers and it's been a lot of work."

Nevertheless, everything is set in place now giving citizens in SD&G a new weapon in their fight against crime.

Chairman, Nelson Plamandon, said the interest level took a little time to come around but it's finally caught on.

"There was interest out there but with restraints," he said. "We wouldn't be here if the OPP didn't jump in with Dave's assistance. We needed him to operate."

Crime Stoppers is a community involvement program to stop crime. By offering cash rewards the organization encourages citizens to provide tips that could be useful in solving crimes.

Information that helps in the apprehension of a criminal doesn't go unrecognized by the OPP.

"Crime does not pay — but Crime Stoppers does," is the logo used by the organization.

"Awards will be paid up to $1,000 for tips the lead to the solution of a crime," said Plamandon.

Part of the success of Crime Stoppers is more people come forward when they know they will not have to be identified.

"Most people don't want it known that they "ratted" on someone," said Plamandon.

Canadian statistics show that Crime Stoppers does work. There is a 96 per cent conviction rate with $203,046,735 in drugs and property being recovered.

In addition there have been 38,317 arrests of the 64,403 cases investigated.

"These tips help police solve cases that have stymied them before," said Plamandon."

But in order for the program to work Crime Stoppers needs donations. The one obstacle we have to overcome is funding said McDonald.

"We can't operate without funding," he said. "The OPP pay my salary but everything else is voluntary."

With any additional money Crime Stoppers hopes to operate through television as well as radio and newspaper.

"Everyone thinks we have a Crime Stoppers here already because of what they see on CJOH. But the crimes they see are in the Ottawa area, not here," said Plamandon.

"We want to show crimes that effect the three United Counties."

The organization is modeled along the lines used by many other similar programs across the country. In 1976, the first program was created in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

"When Crime Stoppers organizes in an area, crime there is greatly reduced," said Plamandon. "It's an effective tool in the fight against crime."

Crime Stoppers needs your assistance in solving this crime.

Over the past three years an unknown male has been calling families and claiming to have kidnapped a family member.

There have been more than 70 known victims in the Cornwall, Long Sault and Lancaster areas.

"The guy's a thrill seeker," said Sgt. McDonald. "Through his questions he gets the answers he wants to hear."

Beginning Sept. 21 Crime Stoppers would like you to listen to a recording of a telephone call this man has made. Beginning a 7:35 a.m. on Cornwall radio station CJSS the recording will be broadcast.

It will be played six times a day for one week. Anyone who can identify this voice is asked to call Crime Stoppers at 534-8477.

For long distance calls dial 1-800-8477.

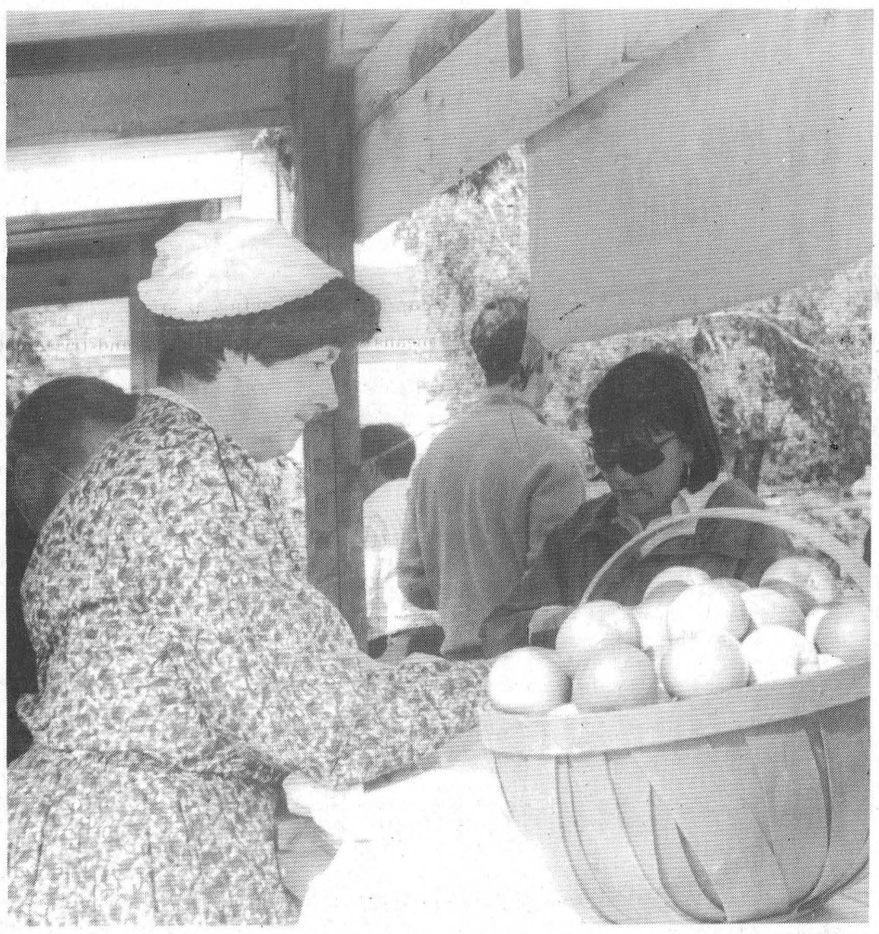
Record crowds at Village Fall Fair



MORRISBURG—The sun shone on the Upper Canada Village Fall Fair this weekend, making it one of the best attended annual events.

"We attribute the attendance of 5,000 to the beautiful weather we had both days," stated Marketing and Communications representative Kimberley MacLennan.

"It's become an annual tradition," she said.

"We had added entertainment and features. The program had something going on all the time."

Two crowd pleasers were a travelling phrenologist who read or analyzed the size and indentations on people's heads for a fee. Educated at the University of Stuttgart in Vienna by professors in the art, the phrenologist was a firm believer in the adage, "A man's hat size has a lot to do with what he can do in his life."

But to analyze ladies heads by private appointment was the gentleman's declared preference and specialty.

For a $30 fee, families could dress in 19th century attire and be photographed at The Silver Sunbeam Gallery. Photographers Claude and Susan Levet used a "Wet Plate" Cullodion process to produce black and white pictures, amazing replicas of the photographic images of 100 years ago.

Not the least attraction was entertainment supplied by Village musicians and singers, and the inevitable jibes of Abstinence leader Flora MacPherson.

Under the Floral Tent there were inviting displays of crafts, agricultural produce and artwork, obviously the results of hours of work by Village artisans, and participants near and far.

Outside in the Show Ring, cattle, oxen, teams of horses and singles vied for first, second and third prize ribbons, while swine and poultry patiently waited their judging in stalls and cages.

Horse shoe toss, ring toss and quoits drew competitors of all ages.

With a kaleidoscope of events to offer, and the weather on side, this year's Agricultural Exhibition was truly one of the best ever.

Merv Patterson had a low gross of 90 in C class, and Dave Ferguson held low net with a 67.

For the ladies, Lea Anne Munro topped the A class with a low gross of 89, Elaine McIntosh was low net winner with a 71.

Janet Levere fired a 122 to capture low gross for C class, and Mabel Ogden carded an 83 on back holes for low net.

In D class, Sue Lacombe took the low gross title with a 125 on back holes. Lorie Ryan picked up the low net with a 77.

In Junior class, Mark Vanesse held the low gross title with a 79, while Paul Brown claimed low net with a 65.

Following the awards, Captain of the Men's Team Pete Brown thanked participants for their support, which contributed to another successful and enjoyable season.

The groundskeepers and organizers were praised for keeping the golf course in good condition. "We had people in for events from other clubs who commented on the great course, and what super shape it was in," Brown said.

Dancing made easy with help of Sandy

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG--Master of Dance, Sandy Ruest, doesn't "work"at making a living.

What she does for a living: that is, teaching dancing, is a pleasure. And when asked what her job is, she states "I enjoy it, I don't regard it as work."

The Alexandria dance teacher presently teaches dance classes in Morrisburg, Cornwall, Lancaster, Alexandria, and Maxwell.

Sandy is a certified "Dance Master of America," and is also certified by the American Fitness Aerobic Association. Her favorite is tap, although she also teaches jazz, step dance and aerobic fitness classes.

Her Morrisburg classes range from a specialized program for three to six year olds, jazz and tap for children ages seven to nine, jazz and tap for older children ages 10 to 12, and a jazz and tap class for teens. She would also like to offer an aerobics class for adults.

"My fitness classes are different because I put a lot of emphasis on strengthening," she states. "To be a dancer you have to have a lot of stamina."

She has always been interested in fitness and aerobics and was athletic at Cornwall Collegiate Secondary School. "I had a baton in the cupboard, and jazz shoes in my locker. I didn't know life without these."

Sandy's dance experiences began as a toddler, "at grandmother Thelma's, they'd put me on the table and Dad would play the piano. I started dancing and the more I tap danced, the more they clapped."

Now Sandy attributes her talent to her musical father, and her success to the encouragement he gave her.

Sandy has studied in Ottawa, the United States, Michigan, Toronto, and still travels widely to conventions to learn all the latest material in dance.

Comparing the art of dance in Canada and the United States, Sandy notices it is more popular and advanced in the latter country. "I studied a lot with the Americans Everybody takes jazz and tap, but in Canada it's picking up now."

Proving that some expert American influence has rubbed off on her teaching and students, Sandy points to competitions her students have won in the last three years.

This July, her students aged 14 to 17 placed first in tap and jazz in L.A. dancer Al Gilbert's competition in Montreal, vying with dance schools from Quebec, Toronto and Ottawa.

The previous year, her senior and junior troupes came second at the Dance Caravan competition in Toronto, winning against dance schools from all over Ontario. Two years ago, her students won a first in a similar competition.

This year she intends to form a dance troupe with Morrisburg girls, hoping for more winners in the "Al Gilbert" and "Stars of Tomorrow" dance competitions to be held in Montreal next summer.

"I like children so much, I really want to build up their confidence because dancing built up my confidence," she explains. Sandy remembers that as a child her mother encouraged her to dance to overcome shyness.

Once she built up a student's self-confidence to the point, the student stopped stuttering. "I like them to see, 'hey you're good at this, you're a beautiful person outside and in,'" Sandy says.

Although performing is a natural high for some dancers, it doesn't give her the same thrill as teaching. "When I teach a kid the shuffle step, I'm almost ready to do a cartwheel I get so excited!"

On the personal side, Sandy uses dancing as a means to overcome problems.

Even breaking her ankle some years ago didn't deter her and she defied a doctor's verdict that she would never dance again. Through physiotherapy and an unbeatable attitude, it was only a matter of weeks before she was teaching again.

To wake up and get the day running properly, she simply puts on the coffee, and starts the morning with exercise and dance.

With a laugh, she says she used to think everyone did the same. "You don't dance, what's wrong with you? You don't exercise? You can't be a very happy person!" she would ask.

"And it's true, once you do exercise in the morning, how could the day not be good? Everything gets revved up and a bad day turns good."

Although she was shy as a child, this is obviously no longer a problem, and Sandy exudes confidence and strength.

"I'm a very positive person and try to get this across to my teenagers. I'm the type that whatever I want in life I know I'm going to get. And I tell my students you can do anything you want."

For Sandy, this was to be a dance teacher, and now that she has achieved her goal, she can honestly say, "I come home every day feeling happy."

Two key players start Jr. B season on DL

LAURIE DAY
Leader staff

MORRISBURG—Of the 40 odd Jr. B Lion hopefuls who tried out for a position on the Morrisburg team over the previous two weeks, only 22 remain, and according to head coach Doug Casselman, a few more cuts were scheduled for Tuesday night after their exhibition contest against the Brockville Tikis.

"We are a little farther behind this year because of injuries," he said Tuesday. "Both Andrew McEwan and Shawn Hummell are going to be out for a while yet."

McEwan, a high-scoring forward for the Lions last year in his second season, was injured in Central league tryouts with the Kanata Valley Lazers.

He was cut by a skate which severed two tendons and an artery in his left arm.

According to Casselman, McEwan won't see any ice time much before November.

As for Hummell, an operation to remove a bone spur prevented him from trying out for the Cornwall Colts of the Central league and he will be out for a few more weeks anyway, but will be back with the Lions.

On a brighter note, both Mike McAllister and Rob Domanko will return to the Lions line-up in forward positions after getting a little ice time at the Brockville Braves training camp this year.

In the team's first exhibition game this year, they edged Prescott, 4-3, Sunday afternoon in Cornwall thanks to a hat trick by Craig Villeneuve who has been signed.

Signed on as the over-aged players will be Rob Casselman and Yvon Besner who Casselman said are looking good and skating well this year.

Two new players from the Ingleside area to have made the team are Josh Gowsell, 17, and Andrew Barrie, 18.

Left winger, Gowsell, is a graduating midget of the Long Sault Minor Hockey league, and Barrie played for a North Bay college team last year.

A Morrisburg midget, Steven Serviss, 17, has also made the team, and back in the defensive line will be Mark Donnelly, Derreck Holmes and JD Hunter.

Another solid looking defenceman said Casselman is newcomer Travis Froats, 18, of Ingleside. He was protected by the Lions last year when he played in the Long Sault league.

Both Dennis Villeneuve and Jeff Hopkins are vying for a goalie position again this year, along with Cornwall's David Petryna.

"Again, I hope to narrow that choice down tonight as well," said Casselman.

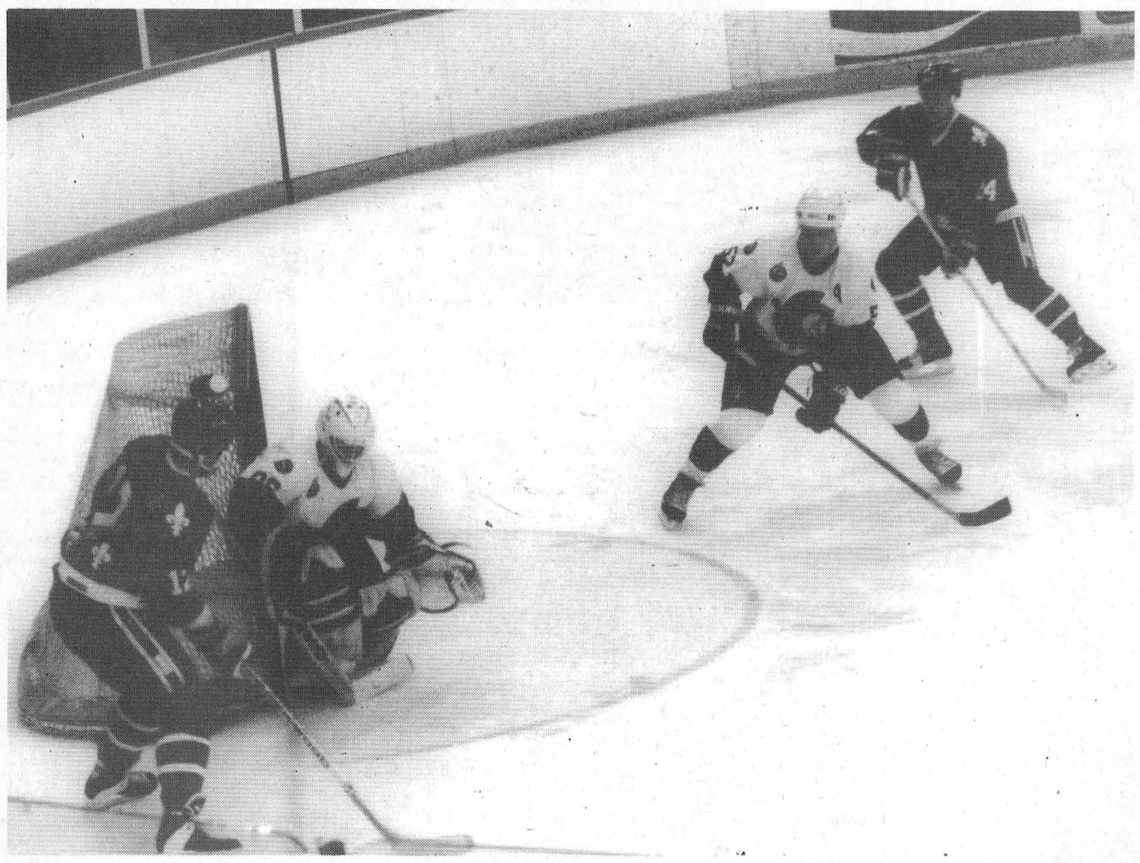
"We had a lot of Morrisburg kids try out this year and they got some exposure. There are some good hockey players in Morrisburg and these guys who tried out are the future Lions," he said.

"We will no doubt be looking to a few of them for affiliate positions, in case of injuries and such."

To catch some exhibition action, the Lions will be in Williamstown to take on the CharLan Rebels at 7:15 p.m. Thursday, and an afternoon game in Alexandria takes place at 1 p.m. Sunday

The team's opening game of the 1992-93 season will be against CharLan on Saturday, October 3rd in Williamstown.

Their home-opener will be against Winchester on Sunday, October 4th at 2 p.m.



Senators come to Cornwall

The Ottawa Senators "B" team played in Cornwall last Friday against the Quebec Nordiques "B" team. The game was close in the first period until Quebec broke it wide open in the third period, winning 6-2. Long Sault resident Doug Carpenter was in familiar position behind the bench at the Civic Center. This time though he was coaching the Quebec squad instead of the Royals.

In B class, Syd Bird fired the low gross of 38, Bert McIntosh shot a 39 on back holes, and Bruce Freer captured the low net of 30.5.

Junior Achievement set up in SD&G - students encouraged to register

IAN McMILLAN
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — The all mighty dollar — what every human dreams of obtaining yet so few actually do.

But thanks to Junior Achievement the youth of today is given the opportunity to sample what it's all about.

The free enterprise system is being offered to students in Dundas County through Junior Achievement programs.

Junior Achievement was begun in SD&G in the spring with the first Project Business Class at Viscount Alexander School in Cornwall.

The company program is now being offered in the Osnabruck\Dundas area at Seaway District, North Dundas and Rothwell-Osnabruck High Schools.

"It's up to the students involved to select a school they'd like to run out of," said Project Manager, Linda Bowers.

The program needs a minimum of 25 students to qualify for one Company program.

Our fundraising went well and we're now at the point of getting students involved said Bowers.

Those students interested between grades 9 and 12 can sign up for the program during the weeks of Sept. 21st to the 28th. The program officially begins Oct. 13.

Students enrolled meet for two to three hours, one evening a week from October to April, as an extra-curricular activity. The program lasts for 26 weeks.

The success of this Junior Achievement program is primarily due to the dedication of the business advisors, who volunteer their time and expertise in management, finance, production, and marketing to guide students through every phase of a functioning business enterprise.

Each program has five advisors selected from businesses throughout the community.

"The students draw from their expertise," said Bowers. "The advisors are with them at every meeting and help them make decisions."

To date four advisor positions have been filled. They are as follows: Laird Weagant from Weagant Farm Supplies, Debbie Stanton and Nancy Barkley, both from Kraft, and David Smith from Valu-Mart in Winchester.

Patterning their companies on actual corporations the students manage every aspect of business from selling shares to manufacturing and selling a product of their choice.

"The business community has been very supportive," said Bowers. "People at Kraft asked about the JA program about a year before it was even here."

Junior Achievement was founded to promote the free enterprise system among our youth. The Company program encourages students to work together with members of the community in such areas as marketing, finance, human resources, production and sales.

"It works like any ordinary business would work. It's a big commitment," said Bowers.

At the end of the 26 week period, if the company makes a profit the money goes back to the shareholders or is reinvested into the JA organization.

If the company doesn't make a profit the students must submit a report as to why and what went wrong. It's a learning process said Bowers.

Afterwards students liquidate their companies, close their books, and take home a better working knowledge or what the free enterprise system is all about.

"It's a 26 week commitment," said Bowers. "Students will learn how to manage time, as well as people, and experience the thrill of making a profit."

In addition to the Company program, Junior Achievement also offers Project Business. This component of JA is where a member of the business community teaches a class of grade 8 students about the free enterprise system.

Stampville Public School is offering Project Business to its students this fall. It lasts for one hour per week for a period of 12 weeks.

End of Sept. a "Beginnings" for Seaway Mill Outlet Store

IAN McMILLAN
Leader Staff

IROQUOIS – It's the Beginnings of something good.

The Mill Outlet Store at the Iroquois Mall is well on its way to being completed. For students at Seaway District High School the opening of the store couldn't arrive any sooner.

Since last year they have been working to get the store ready for opening. This past week the students involved with the entrepreneurial course came up with a name for it — Beginnings Mill Outlet Store.

Breaking off into different groups, the entrepreneurial class developed the name through co-operative learning.

Each group came up with a name, made a presentation as to why their name should be used, and then it was put to a vote, said Seaway teacher Irv Francis.

A group headed by Julie Bylsma came up with the winning name.

"They're learning about all the work that has to be done before the door is even opened," said Principal Doug Murray. "It just doesn't happen over night."

The design has also been finished for the sign. All that's left to be done before it can be installed is to build it.

But that should be done shortly as Nationview Public School teacher Anne Blackburn has offered her services to help construct it.

"She's experienced in what needs to be done," said Francis. "The sign will be a substantial size and easily recognized from the parking lot once it's finished."

Francis hopes it will be up in two weeks.

"That should get people to notice the store. Up until now all the work being done has been on the inside," said Murray.

Since Beginnings is being built without any outside funding a lot of the work done has come from volunteer labor from the community. For example, Thompson Lumber donated building supplies for the renovations inside of the store.

"The reality of having such a small budget to operate on is we have to rely on community support," said Murray. "We appreciate all the support we've received so far from all the tradesmen."

The first generation of merchandise to be sold at the store will include candles, apple products reflecting South Dundas, pot-pourri, and glass products.

The important thing to remember is that nothing sold in Beginnings will compete with other merchandise at the mall said Murray.

Once the second generation of products becomes available it will be harder to sell items other stores don't have so it might be a little competitive he added.

"But by that time we hope to have drawn people to the shopping center that haven't been here before," he said. "Free trade, bigger trade and more trade, that's what we're in to."

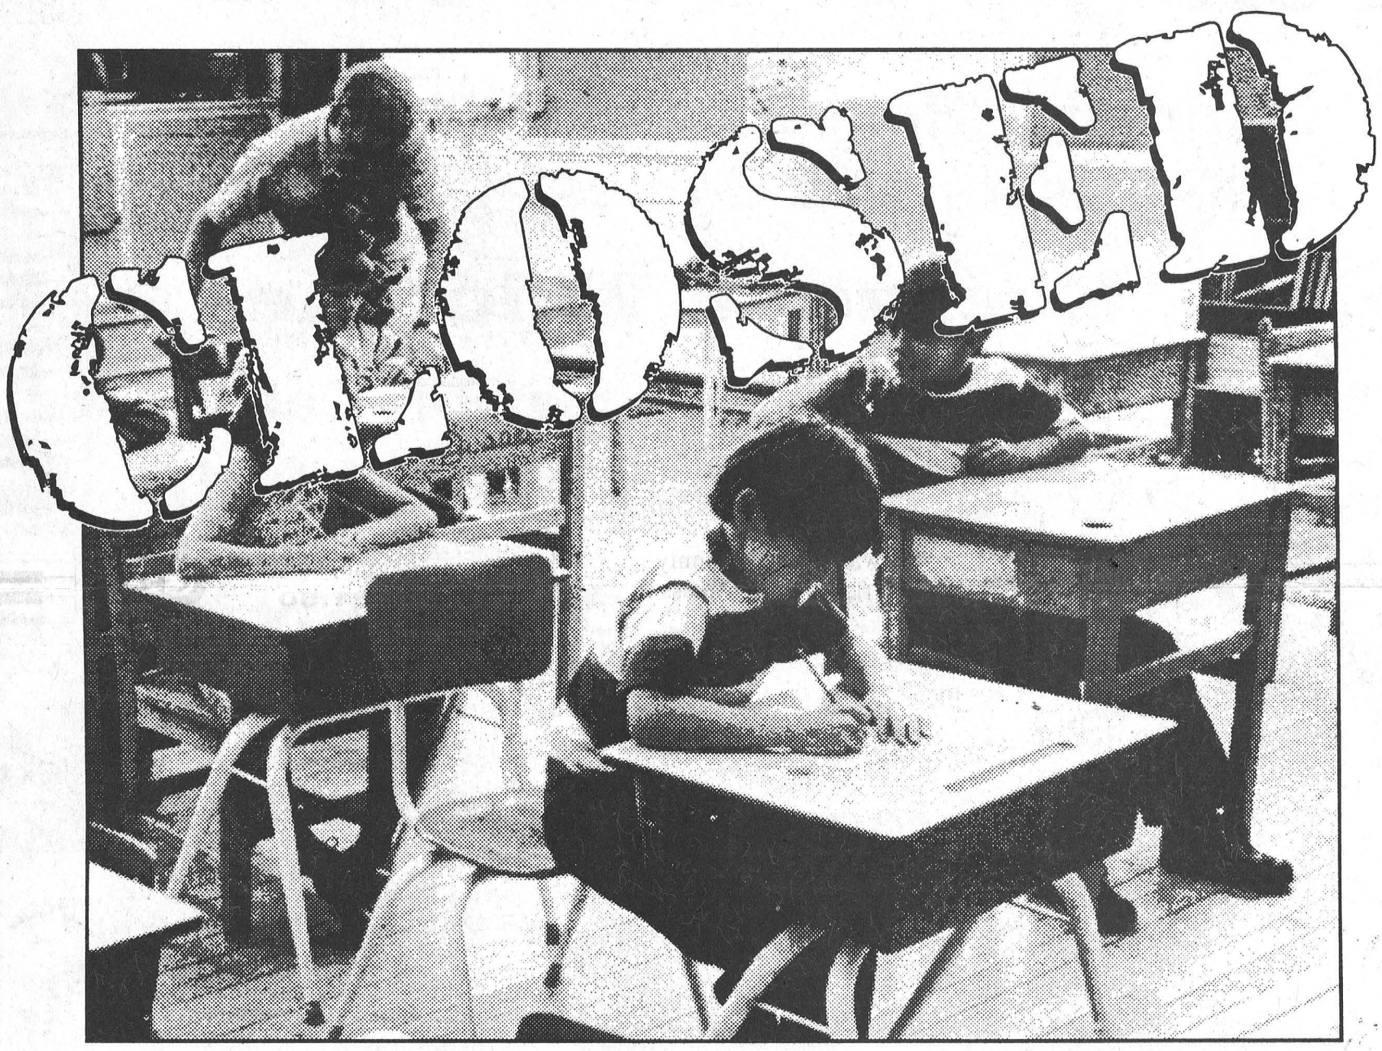
And what makes this whole project special is that not a nickel of funding comes from the school board. Everything has been done through fundraising and volunteer work.

But although the school board didn't help at funding the store, it will still be given a small portion of the profits.

"We'll give the board a small slice of two per cent," said Murray. "That teaches the kids an important lesson — head office always gets a slice of the pie."

The tentative opening date for Beginnings is set for the end of September, beginning of October.

The NDP is about to teach us all a lesson



The NDP Government's proposed labor law could shut down public services we now take for granted

Under the new law, public services such as children's aid societies, schools, public utilities and social welfare offices could be seriously disrupted. Some could be closed.

Volunteers, and all but a few staff members, will be prohibited from helping out if a strike occurs and public services are jeopardized.

Our school boards, for example, have as many as 17 separate bargaining units. If one of these groups goes on strike, schools could close.

A strike by bus drivers could close rural schools indefinitely, as could heating plant personnel in all our boards.

Ontario residents shouldn't have to lose their right to essential services.

Meals on Wheels week

Meals on Wheels benefits many members in the community who are unable, for whatever reason, to prepare themselves proper meals. Volunteers deliver well balanced dinners three times a week, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. For Ivy Perry (right) who has cataracts the program is a great help. Here Director of Outreach Services in Williamsburg, Janet Levere hands Ivy one of her meals.

Meals on Wheels benefits everyone

IAN McMILLAN

WILLIAMSBURG — Ivy Perry has trouble getting around her kitchen. Cataracts have formed over this 88-year-old's eyes and she's scheduled to have them removed.

In the meantime, Ivy has been getting help feeding herself. Meals on Wheels keeps her stomach full.

"No complaints as far as I'm concerned," she said recently at the Park Lane Seniors' Support Center in Williamsburg.

This week is Provincial Meals on Wheels Week 1992. Various events are being held during the week to commemorate the occasion.

"Two board members will go out and serve meals on one of the days," said Levere. "Also the Reeve of Williamsburg and Matilda Townships will help serve on another day."

For Ivy the benefits she receives from the program outweigh the costs. At a price of $3 a meal or $9 a week she thinks they're great.

"When I'm alone I tend not to look after myself enough," she said. "A volunteer comes to the house with a meal that's always hot, really hot."

Ivy lives with her daughter, who is a gourmet chef. But due to her job, she can't be home all the time to prepare meals.

Therefore for the past year Ivy has been getting Meals on Wheels sent to her. They deliver in the Williamsburg area three times a week on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

"My daughter said if I had a full meal once a day she'd know I wasn't missing anything," said Ivy. "So we tried them and I've been getting them ever since."

Other areas are able to serve meals five days a week but in Williamsburg they work on a three day program.

A small army of volunteers across Ontario deliver meals to those who require them. These people include special needs, convalescents needing short term assistance, and the elderly, who all want to remain in familiar surroundings.

"In addition to providing the meals, these volunteers also act as a safety check for the people they're serving," said Director of Outreach Services Janet Levere.

If a volunteer arrives at a client's home and doesn't receive an answer these volunteers will contact the proper authorities to find out if there is a problem.

"Our volunteers are terrific and we could not operate without them here at the Park Lane Seniors' Support Center," said Levere. "No matter what the weather, they arrive to deliver meals."

The Support Center is a non-profit organization whose volunteers have been delivering meals for almost two years.

Morrisburg Home Support Services, as well as Meals on Wheels facilities in Chesterville, Winchester, and Mountain Township also serve hot, nutritious meals in Dundas county.

Len Godard is the chef at the the Support Center. According to Ivy he's quite talented.

"We're served a variety of meals. Len is quite an excellent chef. He's better than most in other areas," she said.

Her sister Gertrude Barkley agrees.

"The soup is always piping hot, like you'd just taken it off the stove," she said. "Even if you're not hungry, when you take that lid off it makes you hungry."

The only thing not served with a meal is a beverage. But that doesn't bother Ivy.

"If you can't make a cup of tea or coffee in your own home you'd better quit," she said.

In Morrisburg an appreciation night is being held on Sept. 23 at the Legion. It's being catered for all volunteers who have given their time to deliver meals.

If you or someone you know is interested in becoming a volunteer you can call Outreach Services in Williamsburg at 535-2924 and in Morrisburg 543-4568.

Dr. Squire to speak at Methodist Church

IAN McMILLAN
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — The Methodist Church on Lakeshore Drive is set to celebrate.

Sept. 27 marks the Church's 112th year in Morrisburg and to help members enjoy the day guest speaker, Dr. Anne Squire will conduct a special sermon called "A Question of Unity."

Squire was the first female layperson (not a minister) to serve as the Moderator of the United Church of Canada from 1986 to 1988.

"We are very pleased to have her as our guest preacher," said Reverend Don Smith.

Rev. Smith has been with the Methodist Church for six of its 112 years in Morrisburg. Although the celebration marks a milestone in the Church's history Smith is taking it in stride.

"One hundred was very special so when you hit 112 you just roll with it," he said.

The United Church though has weathered a few storms in its time to bring it where it is today.

Built in 1880 it was first hit with disaster in the late 1930s when it caught fire.

It emerged from the flames battered but not beaten suffering more smoke damage than anything else. The most done to repair the Church was repainting the sanctuary, said Rev. Smith.

Then in 1964 lightning struck the east spire while a group of ladies was preparing meals in the basement. A portion of the spire fell taking some of the stone work with it.

"They were lucky no one was hurt," said Rev. Smith. "It used to be quite a magnificent steeple."

The Methodist Church had to overcome a few obstacles before it was built as well.

In 1857 the Wesley Methodist Church was constructed on what is now the Morrisburg ball diamond.

"It was right where second base is now," said Rev. Smith.

By 1880 this Church became too small for the congregations. At the same time the Methodist Pentecostal was built on St. Lawrence Street.

"This was just an American branch of the Methodist Church," said Rev. Smith.

Shortly afterwards the Methodist Church of Canada built the Lakeshore United Church and the two factions amalgamated.

"All the Methodists got together here in 1883," he said. The church on St. Lawrence Street was then sold to St. Mary's."

Now 112 years later everyone is welcome to celebrate the anniversary of this occasion.

"The Church seats 300 so we can accommodate anyone who wants to come," said Rev. Smith.

Buying Or Selling A Used Vehicle? Here's What You Must Know.

Starting October 1, 1992, the Ontario retail sales tax you pay when you privately buy a used car, van or light truck, will be based on the purchase price or the average wholesale value, whichever is more. The average wholesale value is set using the Canadian Red Book, a well-known standard in the used vehicle business.

The tax is paid when you change the vehicle ownership at your local Driver and Vehicle Licence Issuing Office.

Some changes in ownership, such as gifts between certain family members, are tax-free with legal proof.

Starting April 1, 1993, if you want to sell your vehicle privately, you will have to buy a vehicle transfer package and give it to the buyer before the sale is completed. The package will be available at all Driver and Vehicle Licence Issuing Offices and from the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations. Consumers will benefit from information on the vehicle's history, outstanding debts on the vehicle and retail sales tax.

If you're planning to buy or sell a used vehicle privately and would like more information, call 1-800-263-7965. Telephone Device for the Deaf, call 1-800-263-7776.

Dundas District W.I. Fall activities

Women's Institute members of Dundas District are looking forward to two great activities this fall, both right in their neighbouring county.

First will be the 77th Annual Area Convention of Eastern Ontario Women's Institutes which will be held in Crysler Community Hall, in Crysler, on October 20, registration from 8 a.m. to 8:45 a.m. The theme this year is "Shaping a Better Future" and an interesting program has been planned for the day. A turkey banquet at 5:30 p.m. will bring the program to a close. Members and visitors are encouraged to attend, but only one member from each branch has voting privileges.

Berwick Community Hall, in Berwick, will be the place to gather for the Pass is on Training Course entitled "Entertaining With a Flair." This one-day training school has a fee of $50 per organization and includes ideas for menus, themes, decorations, recipes and serving suggestions. W.I. members and ladies from other organizations who wish to attend should register immediately with Lois Dillabough, R.R. 2, Berwick, Ontario K0C 1G0.

Further information about these special days may be received by contacting your local W.I. We look forward to seeing Dundas well represented on both of these occasions.

MCI-MHS Reunion

The MCI-MHS Reunion Committee met recently to begin the process of closing their books on a most successful reunion weekend.

It was noted that approximately 900 people attended the homecoming reception, 765 attended the dinner/dance and 400 bid their former classmates and teachers farewell at the Sunday brunch. Overwhelming crowds enjoyed the afternoon tea, the memorabilia display, as well as, the slide presentation of "old Morrisburg."

Copies of the souvenir book have now been mailed out or picked up by all those who ordered their copy. Since there are still a few books available, anyone wishing to purchase a copy may do so by contacting Ruth Kirkwood (543-3129) or Barbara Sheridan (543-2349). The souvenir book would make a great gift for a former MCI-MHS student.

Following reunion weekend members of the committee were contacted by former students requesting addresses of their classmates. As a result the complete list of names and addressess of former MCI-MHS students and staff has now been placed in the Morrisburg Public Library for the convenience of anyone wishing to contact "old friends."

All members of the committee expressed a desire to thank everyone who helped in any way to make this reunion such a success.

Williamsburg Seniors meet

WILLIAMSBURG — The September meeting of the Williamsburg Township Senior Citizens was held Tuesday, Sept. 15th, in the Seniors Room in the Williamsburg Twp. Municipal Building with 40 members and three visitors attending, and memberships were paid.

Following a delicious dinner the meeting opened with O Canada, and then President Peggy welcomed all members and guests and thanked Bea McRae for being in charge of the program.

Ed Thompson introduced the guest speaker, Fran LaFlamme, a retired teacher residing in Ingleside, who is very active in her community being associated with "The Lost Villages Historical Society", as well as municipal politics.

Fran held a discussion on history from which she learned some information concerning her interests. Then, she conducted a quiz, a team effort, east vs west, that proved to be lots of fun for everyone.

Bea thanked her speaker for a very enjoyable time, and business followed with reports being heard.

Correspondence included a "Thank You" from Alfred Carkner, the trip was discussed, a decision was made to do some entertaining instead and to enjoy some other activities, and Happy Birthday was sung to Ruth Hogoboam and Nora Larsen, who were celebrating birthdays.

Upper Canada Playhouse announceswinter program

The Playhouse will be presenting its first winter series with a line-up of three shows ranging from musical comedy to folk music to light classical music.

The madcap trio from Newfoundland, Buddy Wasisname and the Other Fellers begins the series on Sunday November 8th.

In the play Buddy and the Other Fellers are a self-confessedly low-tech band, playing a medley of guitars, banjos, fiddles, and accordions. They combine vulgarity and wit while celebrating and satarising a whole culture.

This production will be followed by Tanglefoot, a three-man band from Peterborough who specialize in Canadian folk music and folk lore. It opens on February 13th at 8 p.m.

The band consists of Joe Grant, Bob Wagar and Steve Ritchie. The group has appeared everywhere from Dauphin to Cape Breton.

The final offering this winter will be the quintet of young virtuosi, the Great Lakes Brass, on Sunday, March 28th.

This poised and polished quintet of young virtuosi has developed a notable reputation for innovative programming, musicianship and winning stage personalities. Playing a variety of music from Bach, Gabrieli, Mozart, to the renegade inventions of Charles Ives the band is sure to entertain.

Subscriptions for the three-show series are $39. a limited number of single tickets for the individual shows will be on sale closer to the performance date.

For ticket information call 543-3713.
