36% of Spending Here Comes from Tourists

"Tourism is worth four times to the Seaway Valley what it is to the province", Frederick J. Boyer told members and guests of Seaway Valley Tourist Council last Wednesday night. Speaking to the annual meeting of the Council which attracted 125 people, Mr. Boyer, executive director of the Ontario Department of Tourism and Information, and the key man in promoting tourism in Ontario, said that research indicated tourism spending is 36 per cent of all spending in this (Seaway) area, compared with nine percent for the province.

During 1967, Centennial Year, the speaker told his attentive audience, Seaway Valley welcomed 4,509,000 visitors who spent some $140,000,000. "Seaway Valley ranks fourth among all Ontario vacation regions in both numbers of visitors and their expenditures", he said. The figures for 1969, although not released yet, will be close to that record year of 1967, he added.

In commenting on the "local" tourist association problems, the speaker said: "you suffer from organization problems that tourist councils share throughout the province. You had fewer dollars for promotion last year, yet cost of promotion has grown. Consequently, you are achieving less now than you were six years ago". He suggested the pooling together of efforts by the Cornwall Tourist and Convention Bureau and the Seaway Valley group. A white paper on tourist councils presently being prepared, hopes to strengthen, to broaden and make more purposeful the work of tourist councils. "We believe industry needs tourist councils to develop and promote tourism at the local level, and we need industry to give us information on all aspects of tourism in every part of the province".

A great percentage of the department's promotion dollars will be used in a series of colourful television spots on United States television outlets. During his address, Mr. Boyer showed his audience the commercials now in use and proposed new format to be started

He commented briefly on Seaway Valley attractions, in addition to St. Lawrence Parks and Upper Canada Village and said "it is my personal experience there are few first-class eating places in the area".

Introduced by John Reimer of the New Parkway Hotel, Cornwall, the speaker was thanked by Geo. Assaly, also of Cornwall. Reg. Workman, immediate past president of the association, was master of ceremonies and other speakers included Mayor Nick Kaneb of Cornwall, and the association president, Mrs. Beatrice Price of Prescott.

Born at Williamsburg, November 23rd, 1882, he was a son of the late Sylvanus Casselman and his wife, the former Catherine Merkley. missed a game at the local diamond.

Their 25th Anniversary celebration commenced about 5:30, when their immediate family escorted them to dinner at The Gran View, Ogdensburg, and then to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McInnis, where about 25 guests awaited them. Their family presented them with a new kitchen chrome set, which was beautifully adorned with a floral centrepiece and the traditional wedding cake. The popular couple were presented with many other beautiful gifts by those attending.

After the bride and groom of 25 years had cut their cake, Mr. and Mrs. McInnis thanked everyone present for tendering them such a lovely surprise on their anniversary. Lunch was served and a pleasant social evening was enjoyed.

CONDUCTS MOCK TRIAL AT PUBLIC SCHOOL HERE

Constable Ralph O'Brien, Morrisburg O.P.P. safety officer held a mock trial at Morrisburg Public School, complete with police investigation, witnesses, lawyers and jury.

Investigation into an alleged theft was conducted. Witness were found following registration of the complaint, a warrant was sworn out by the Justice of the Peace and the court case was prepared.

As the case proceeded Joanne Cameron and Peggy Steer, witnesses and police constables John Vaughn and Bruce Beaupre with skilful questioning by crown representative Bob Mitchell built a formidable case against Tim Cassell. Tim had allegedly stolen a $100 bill from Tom Corden and passed it on to Paul Doney. However, defense counsel Ricky Brown cleverly confused the witnesses and successfully defended Tim with the result that the jury could not agree and no decision was reached.

Principal Stewart Peters, Morrisburg Public School was proud of the acting of the grade 7 and 8 pupils and everyone considered the project an educational and interesting lesson in court procedure.

DONALD C. MacDONALD, M.P.P.,
Ontario Leader
New Democratic Party

The big political news of November, for all Canadians, must surely be concerned with taxes. The proposals of the Federal government to change our tax systems will affect all of us, rich or poor, farmer or city-dweller, and it is a subject that always excites passionate discussion.

It is disappointing then, that the Robarts Government in Ontario refused to take a position early in the discussions of taxation reform. Immediately after the publication of the Carter Report, and again during the hearings of the Select Committee on Taxation in Ontario, we urged the Robarts Government to state its case so that Ottawa would be fully aware of Ontario's views. There was nothing but silence.

This means, of course, that Ontario is now in a very weak bargaining position if it desires any change in the Ottawa proposals. Fortunately, the general thrust of these proposals is in the right direction. The capital gains tax, the deductions for child care services, the closing of loopholes surrounding expense accounts, the deduction allowed employees for expenses incurred in maintaining employment, all move towards accepting the underlying principle of tax equity which was the theme of the Carter Report.

Nevertheless, there are serious deficiencies in these latest federal proposals about which the Ontario Government should be concerned.

First, while the basic exemption was raised from $1,000 to $1,400, this does not even keep pace with the rise in the cost of living since the $1,000 level was established 20 years ago.

Secondly, it would be considerably more efficient to introduce tax credits as a means of bringing tax relief to lower income groups rather than continuing to opt for exemptions. It has been estimated that the use of tax credits for this purpose would save the federal treasury some $360 million dollars. Surely this is a worthwhile saving.

Third, dividend recipients receive an unfair advantage under the federal government proposals. What about the wageearner who has always contributed the bulk of tax revenues?

Fourth, the mining companies continue to receive a tax holiday until 1974, continue to receive depletion allowances, in short, continue to enjoy concessions which, as the Carter Report suggested, are completely unjustified.

Fifth, the proposals would do great damage to credit unions and co-ops, which in turn would hurt many industrial workers and many farmers. Again, this proposal must be opposed.

Sixth, there is no real justification for fixing a 51 per cent ceiling on income tax payments. This simply means that the proposals would shift the burden of taxation from the low income groups to middle income groups while reducing it for high income groups. This is clearly a wrong-headed approach, and Ontario should object.

Finally, the plans for a Guaranteed Annual Income and the problem of derelict home building programs as a result of higher taxes on construction companies, bring into question the whole relationship of Ontario to this federal scheme. There are obvious and great advantages to participating in the federal collection mechanisms, and the New Democratic Party is generally in favour of this approach. However, we call on the Provincial government to obtain some answers to these problems, in order that Ontario can assure its citizens that house building will not slow down, and there will be no federal taxation bar to the introduction of a Guaranteed Income and that the proposals mentioned

PREGNANCY AFTER MENOPAUSE

Dear Miss Brookfield:
Would you advise if it is possible for a woman of 49 to become pregnant. I haven't had a period in 18 months and I have symptoms of the menopause.

Dear R. B.:

In his book "The Ageless Woman", Dr. Sherwin Kaufman, a prominent gynecologist - obstetrician, writes as follows: "When a year has passed without menstruation, the menopause is considered fully established. This also marks the end of fertility".

We assume that your question may have been prompted solely for birth control reasons - but there is always the possibility that you are connecting the symptoms of the menopause with the possibility of pregnancy. We suggest that you see your physician. So many women

en ignore this advice, but when they reach their forties and fifties, an annual or semi-annual checkup is important.

Many women are inhibited about discussing "female complaints" with their doctors, forgetting that he has heard it all. Whatever your menopausal complaints are, today doctors can relieve the distress by prescribing the female hormone, estrogen. Medical science knows now that the majority of menopausal symptoms are caused by a decline in the body's production of estrogen in the menopausal years. But for the last three decades estrogen has been available to medicine to change the 'change' into a better life.

MORE LONELY WIDOWS

Dear Miss Brookfield:
I read the letter from the lonely widower in my newspaper. I am a widow. Could you send him my address. Maybe we could write to each other and pass the time.

Dear M. M.:
Sorry, we can't do that. Besides, we don't think the widower is looking merely for a correspondent to pass the time.

THREE'S A CROWD

Dear Miss Brookfield:
I have a big problem and it is getting me down. I am in love with a married man and he is in love with me. We both have children. His children love me. His wife isn't in her right mind. Right now I am living with them, taking care of her, the children and "my man". He can't take care of the house, his wife and the children. His wife knows that we are in love. I am 46. Please let me know what I should do.

—M. R.
Dear M. R.: We think your boyfriend's WIFE has the "big problem" and it is getting HER down. With her husband's mistress ensconced in the house, with her own children favorably disposed to the "other woman" — no wonder she "isn't in her right mind". Who would be? You have asked us to tell you what to do but we doubt whether you'll follow our advice. Here it is anyway: tell your boyfriend to get a medical opinion on his wife's condition — and you start packing.

Have you a problem as a mature woman, or with one? For advice and help, write to Margaret Brookfield, Information Centre on the Mature Woman, 3 West 57th Street New York, N.Y. 10019.

Bill Smiley

Yes, madam, times change

Do you know what the upcoming generation of Canadian men is going to marry? Rotten wives. And do you know why? Because the mothers of these potential wives have spoiled them rotten.

They have over-protected them, tried unsuccessfully to impose their own dubious taste on them, and refused to allow their daughters to learn anything practical, like sewing or cooking.

This is not a blanket condemnation, but it certainly applies to many people I know. Nor must I blame it all on mothers. Many fathers aid and abet.

I speak from experience. These middle-aged spoliators are driven by several motives. Most of them were growing up when things were tough all over, and they are ruthlessly determined that their kids are going to have all the "advantages" they couldn't have.

Thus we have a plethora of lessons in music, ballet, figure-skating. We have the very latest fashions and fads, regardless of cost. We have cars for kids who would be dangerous on a tricycle.

Another motive is fear. By shielding their children from any and all unpleasantness, including work, they hope to keep them "straight" and out of the clutches of drugs, sex and hippiedom. More often they drive them into trying something out of sheer boredom with their diet of pabulum.

Another reason for the cocoon-like over-protection is love. You don't like to see someone you love in trouble, whether it's emotional, financial or legal.

And a final motive is plain laziness. Mothers say, "I'd rather do it myself than have to nag at her (or him)." So do fathers. Thus many of the things which middle-aged people consider virtues: punctuality, diligence, courtesy, cleanliness go by the board.

But when you have to tell an 18-year-old girl to wash her feet, there's something wrong.

My neighbor, whose son is at college, was wakened early Saturday morning by a long-distance (collect, naturally) call from said son. His car had collapsed and he wanted to buy another one.

Choking back his natural fury, father said he would think it over. Result? He and his wife drove about 300 miles to see the kid and get something settled.

Example two. Our daughter is at college. My wife writes about three times a week, and her letters consist mostly of "Do this" and "Don't do that."

The kid needed winter boots and a winter coat. This of course is very unusual in Canada, and demands urgent action. And, of course, at 18, she's much too young to buy them for herself. And of course she might be lonely in that big city, with no friends.

So we drive through 450 miles of that fog and rain. Counting hotel bill, tips, gas, and a couple of dinners out, those boots and that coat cost about four times what they should have.

And then the brat says she isn't lonely at all. That's the only reason I went, and I told her so.

However and despite, we had a pleasant weekend. Dining out, we sat beside a young couple. He was a Czech, not long out, very smooth, very handsome. She was a Newfoundland, very friendly, very open.

Then a Sikh (Indian, turban and beard) came in and sat nearby, looking desperately lonely. I asked him over. The chef, a young Czech who was a friend of the other one, joined us and said he'd like to take my daughter out. Kim spilled something on her mother's best blouse.

We adjourned to our hotel room for a couple of pleasant hours. The Newfy girl asked Kim if she'd like to share an apartment. I wouldn't be surprised if a Czech did, too. My wife worried about the smooth Czechs. The Sikh lost his melancholy.

Don't think I've strayed from my theme. Our kid is spoiled rotten. She cooks like a one-armed paper-hanger and couldn't sew two burlap bags together. My deepest sympathy is extended to her future husband.

I'm frigid, I guess

DEAR DORIS — I have always found it hard to show affection. Now I am 30. I am engaged to marry a man 35. I love him, but he is always the first to squeeze my hand or give me a hug.

It leaves me feeling unhappy with myself when my boy friend says: "It would be nice if just once in a while you would put your arms around me instead!" Will this cause future heartaches if I marry him?

Arm's Length
DEAR ARMS — It might — if you let it stand at that. We need the human touch for fulfillment. Demonstrations of affection can actually help love grow.

The psychologists tell us we run not only because we are afraid; also, the more we run the scarier we get! Similarly, we commit ourselves with a hug and a kiss, and find that we love our dear one more!

I'd make an educated guess that affection has been lacking in your life, or you'd have solid, hand-squeezing, heartwarming habits for the man in your life. Practice makes perfect "Nuff said?"

DEAR DORIS — I would like to know on which side should the mothers of the bride and groom wear their corsages. My mother wore hers on the right shoulder and the bride's mother wore hers on the left.

Wanting To Know
DEAR WANTING — They were both right — since there's no special rule. Sometimes when a girl is dancing, she pins her corsage on the right shoulder where it is less likely to be crushed. Or she can transfer it to her evening bag.

It might land at her waistline, or on a bracelet — wherever it looks and feels best.

DEAR DORIS — A number of young married couples get together in the basement of a home for a party. They are all very close friends.

Is it always necessary for both host and hostess to escort each couple to the door when they leave at different intervals, or is it acceptable for the earlier couples leaving to say their goodbyes downstairs, and either host or hostess to escort them to the door?

Wondering
DEAR WONDERING — No need for both to go — but it is proper etiquette for at least one of the home team to see guests to the door.

DEAR DORIS — When this boy takes me out with a group of others we have a good time, but when we go anywhere alone it is a boring evening. Is it fair to him for me to let him think I like him the same way he likes me?

He has asked me to go out again, to dinner and a show. I don't think I should, but my mother thinks I should.

To Go Or Not To Go
DEAR TO GO OR NOT — No sense in leading him on; yet we can't expect every date to be terrific.

If you have done your level best to draw him out, if you are certain there are no hidden depths and that you are simply operating on different wave lengths, I can't see stretching it out.

PROFESSOR TO SPEAK AT CPTA MEETING

In the Morrisburg Civic Centre, Morrisburg, Ont., on November 24, at 8 o'clock p.m. a distinguished guest speaker, in the person of Dr. J. M. Beniskos, Ph.D. of the Ottawa University, will speak on problems in the modern society — his subject will be entitled "Person-Parent".

This is a rare chance to hear a well qualified speaker of this calibre. There will be some time spent on a Question - Answer Period. There will be no set charge; a collection will be taken up to help defray expenses.

This talk is being sponsored by the Iroquois - Morrisburg Catholic Parent - Teachers Association. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Parents, now that the days are getting colder, we have to start reminding our children to stay away from ponds where thin sheets of ice have formed. Every year we hear of youngsters falling through thin ice and drowning. With the temperature of the water so cold, a youngster could not survive for long if he accidentally broke through thin ice. The added clothing would make it very difficult to stay afloat for any length of time when wet. By warning our children now, of the possible hazards they may encounter on thin ice, we may be able to avert a tragedy in the near future.

Drivers, now is the time to have your car winterized. Snow tires should be put on, anti-freeze should be checked and your car should be given a tune up for the cold months ahead. A few minutes taken now to check your car over may save time, money, and misery in the future.

Ontario Provincial Police in Dundas County patrolled 11,122 miles while working 1,014 hours. During this time, 38 charges were laid and 48 warnings were issued under the Highway Traffic Act of Ontario.

Officers from Morrisburg and Winchester Detachments investigated 6 Break and Enters, 7 thefts 5 disturbances, and 20 miscellaneous complaints. Four persons were charged under the Liquor Control Act of Ontario. One person was arrested and charged with impaired driving while one person was charged with fraud and another was charged with theft. Two persons were charged with creating a disturbance by fighting. A car stolen from Ottawa was recovered in the Winchester area.

Ontario Provincial Police were again kept busy on our highways with officers investigating 7 property damage accidents and 3 personal injury accidents in which 3 persons received minor injuries.

NOW HEAR THIS

Anyone over 30 will recall with affection the radio series from the early '50s, Jake and The Kid. Good news for them — and anyone else wanting to acquaint themselves with W. O. Mitchell's delightful chronicles of Crocus, Sask. Theatre 10:30 will present (five episodes) of this classic the week of Nov. 24. Starring as Jake Trumper, the hired man (in the role created by the late John Drainie) will be Calgary actor-producer Fred Diehl. Returning as the 12-year-old Kid will be Billie Mae Richards. Some 160 candidates for the major parts were auditioned in Alberta. The series will be directed by Esse W. Ljungh who recently retired as supervisor of radio drama.

Most people will be watching the Appollo XII Moon Flight on other medium, but for those who aren't handy to a TV set, CBC radio will carry live coverage of the re-entry of the spaceship into earth's atmosphere and the recovery aboard the USS Hornet. That's Monday, November 24th, at 3:30 p.m., EST. later.

Well known star of stage, TV screen and radio, Bruno Gerussi, will guest on the Nov. 23rd edition of Funny You Should Say That, Canada's wackiest radio show.

Grey Cup fever is mounting across the country as the winning teams in the eastern and western CFL conferences prepare to do battle in Montreal, Nov. 30. Experienced commentators Fred Sgam-bati, Bill Stephenson and Zeke O'Connor will be alongside the field to bring listeners the color and excitement, starting at 12:30 p.m. EST. The preceding day, Friday, Nov. 28, the Miss Grey Cup Gala will be broadcast live from Montreal's Queen Elizabeth Hotel Ballroom, when Miss Grey Cup 1969 will be chosen from among the 9 lovelies representing the teams of the CFL. Quebec pop singer France Castel and folk singer Gordon Lightfoot will entertain.

Nov. 26 is the 80th birthday of Canadian historian Frank H. Underhill. As a tribute to the co-founder of the OCF (now the NDP) CBC on Tuesday night (Nov. 25), presents a program tracing the career of Underhill, featuring interviews with some of his friends and associates. Part II will feature the talented Glenn Gould in recital, playing works by Mozart and Scriabin.

The story of James Earl Ray, accused killer of Dr. Martin Luther King, who fled from the U.S. to Canada, obtained a passport and flew to England, reads more like fiction than fact. On Nov. 26th, Soundings reconstructs Ray's activities from the time he entered Canada, four days after the assassination, April 8, 1968, until his apprehension in England two months later.

In certain areas which will be specifically designated, brightly coloured reflector markers will be placed as directional aids. Some locations will be prohibited due to high property values or because other winter activities are programmed.

In the area south of Inglestide a measured course will be laid out and marked.

In making parklands available for this exciting winter recreation, the Commission hopes it will add to the enjoyment and safety for those looking forward to family outings on the trails.

CFL isn't third-rate

Here we go: Facts and figures time.

Believe it or not, sportswriters do become bored writing their own viewpoints week after week, tossing about an orchid here and an onion there. Undoubtedly, readers of sports columns also must become somewhat tired of reading one man's opinion, week after week.

One of the biggest drawbacks to writing a facts and figures column is correctly copying the facts and figures from press releases. (Ed. note: That line was written with tongue-in-cheek).

A recent dispatch from the Canadian Football League somehow found its way to this department. Indeed, there must have been an ill wind swirling somewhere close by. The aforementioned release contained the usual mundane items such as who did what in the opening playoff games in the Eastern and Western Conferences. It also pointed out which television network would be carrying upcoming games, and that November 30 is Grey Cup Day in Canada.

It also revealed that the CFL final statistics will be released after the Grey Cup contest.

Reaching for a ninth cup of coffee (after all, it was only 11:30 a.m.) something almost sprang out of the green CFL Football Facts sheet! A chart was enclosed which compared the aggregate performance of both teams in the "average" 1969 CFL games with the average 1967 and 1968 game, and the National Football League and American Football League games in 1968.

Now, this was worth reading. And, after reading it, these facts had to be chronicled in this space.

However, we will only deal with the 1969 season in the CFL and the 1968 season in the American leagues as their 1969 season hasn't been completed.

In total points scored the AFL led the way with 44.3, followed by the CFL with 41.2 and the NFL with 41.0. In total first downs the CFL was ahead with a figure of 25.7. The AFL had 23.1 and the NFL 31.7.

Now in rushing plays the AFL had 63.4 and the NFL 63.0 with the CFL trailing at 56.2. But in rushing yardage the CFL, strange as it may seem, came out on top with a 2,849 total. The NFL had 253.5 and the AFL 251.2. Taking it on a step further, a 5.1 figure was the length of the average rush in the CFL. In the American leagues it was an even four yards per rush.

Going to the air, the AFL figures proved highest. AFL quarterbacks averaged 57.7 passes thrown per game while the NFL had 53.5 and the CFL 53.2 aeriels. The completion prize was won by the NFL with a 27.6 mark, but the CFL was at 27.5 and the AFL at 27.4. Almost no difference.

The passing yardage was another surprise. The CFL was way ahead with 419.4 per game. The AFL had 355.7 and the NFL 337.2. In percentage of passes completed, again it was the CFL showing the way with a mark of 51.7 to be followed by the NFL with 51.6 and the AFL with a surprisingly low 47.4.

The average gain per pass was 7.9 yards in the CFL, 6.3 in the NFL and 6.2 in the AFL. Interceptions: CFL 3.8, AFL 3.2 and NFL 2.9.

In punting you must remember the four downs in the American leagues.

In the CFL there were 18.3 punts a game. In the AFL there were 11.1 and the NFL recorded 9.4 punts per game. The average punting yardage per game was, naturally, in the CFL's favor, 75.4 to the AFL's 46.6 and the NFL's 37.9.

The average punt was 41.9 in the AFL, 40.3 in the CFL and 40.0 in the NFL. The punt return average was won by the AFL with a mark of 8.6 followed by the NFL with 7.0. The CFL's average was 6.4.

However, the average return per punt had the CFL at 5.6, the AFL at 4.3 and the NFL at 3.2.

These weren't all the figures available, but they were the most interesting.

Don't you agree?

Report from the Ontario Legislature

by:
Fred M. Cass, Q.C., M.P.P.

Remembrance Day this year falling on a Tuesday and being a statutory holiday, the week's sitting of the Legislature last week was broken by the departure of many Members on this holiday to participate in Riding Services to commemorate our fallen heroes of the two great wars with in the memory of so many of us. The following day in the House some Members suggested that it might be more appropriate if, instead of a holiday, our schools would each in its own manner during a regular school day on November 11th each year mark this anniversary. However no action was taken by the House.

The new procedures in the Legislature have been most successful and Members now try to observe rather than rail against the House rules. As a result, a great deal of legislation has gone forward and estimates debates have proceeded to the point where almost the end is in sight.

The most important of the new legislation and the bill which attracted the most debate, was that to provide Provincial assessment of realty. A great many Members expressed the fear, shared by many more people, that not only was this an unnecessary and unwarranted trespass by the Provincial Government on local municipal autonomy but that its cost would, like certain other recent Provincial programs — Regional Municipalities, OHSIP and Regional School Boards to mention three, quickly mount to a figure much in excess of any projected savings. And of course all are fearful of an assessment made by persons not responsible to local authorities and based on a Provincial Assessment Manual compiled in the inflated value atmosphere of Metropolitan Toronto.

On Thursday, November 13th, the House paid tribute on his 75th birthday to James N. Allan, Member for Haldimand-Norfolk and former Minister of Highways and Provincial Treasurer who has spent almost half a century in public service and who is affectionately admired by friend and foe alike.

A new Canadian tax era

The long-awaited White Paper on Taxation will take a lot of understanding. The capital gains section alone requires that average Canadians take a crash course in accounting to figure out what they owe Ottawa every time they sell a house, tractor, farm, stock or stamp collection.

Of course, by the time the new tax structure becomes law, probably in 1971, even Finance Minister Edgar Benson admits there will be plenty of alterations in his report.

That's one of the purposes of the White Paper — to let the country know what tax changes are planned and to give citizens, companies and members of parliament a chance to present briefs and offer alternatives.

It is obvious that Mr. Benson had to do a lot of selling right in Cabinet before the policy was set out.

But the Carter Report on Taxation, filed in 1967 after five years, was written with one basic principle — equal treatment for all taxpayers. And the White Paper had adopted many of the Carter proposals, in order to come closer to the premises that "a buck, is a buck, is a buck." It doesn't matter whether the dollar is earned in bank interest, life insurance dividends, pension cheques or salary. All that should matter to the tax office is that all income is taxed at the same rate.

This principle is difficult to challenge, provided it is carried all the way as proposed by Carter. But the present government plan stops short of treating all citizens, corporate or private, as equal.

For example, Carter came out strongly against any kind of preferential tax treatment for the natural resources industry — mining, oil and gas. This led to an extensive campaign by these industries to try and prove that such proposals would result in a general slowdown of development due to high costs.

The government has taken this argument into account, but Mr. Benson underlined that "support on a less generous scale" should prove sufficient for continued development of Canada's resources.

The decision to go along with the Carter Commission proposal on small businesses is certain to lead to complaints. Until now, the first $35,000 of corporate profits is taxed at 21 percent, with everything over that figure charged 50 percent. There are hundreds of small concerns paying the 21 percent figure — their profits never exceed the $35,000 mark.

The new proposal means that a company today making $30,000 after paying all hidden taxes, insurance, employee benefits and operating costs, will realize only $15,000 net profit. Under present tax laws, the profit is $23,700 — a difference of $8,700. This extra cash was designed to give the small businessman additional opportunities to set up cash reserves.

For farmers, the changes should result in few problems for the majority. By raising the base exemption, some will escape tax. Others will find accounting problems when they go to sell the farm. But by setting a "Valuation Day" in 1970, the average farmer, or city dweller for that matter, should suffer little hardship from the change. The government proposal enables a farmer or homeowner to add $1,000 annually to the "Valuation Day" figure as well as include the cost of improvements. If your farm is valued at $50,000 in 1970, and you want to sell in 1975, the first $55,000 is tax-free. Chances are good that the farm didn't cost half that amount and the difference reflects the value of the dollar now with the original purchase day.

If early editorial reaction is an indicator, the government will gain wide approval for the tax reform package. And the opposition in Ottawa really is left with little ammunition.

How can the NDP fight the capital gains tax or, for that matter, the government that eliminated or reduced taxes for the low income Canadians? And how can Robert Stanfield attack the principles of equality in taxation? Certainly, details can be attacked and many will be changed.

But the basic White Paper signals a new era for Canadian taxpayers — and new popularity for the Trudeau government.
