Three Auto Accidents Here Over the Week End

CAR SOMERSAULTS IN MID-AIR.

Crashing into the railing of the Gillard Creek bridge a mile and a half east of town on the Finch highway, Fred Fulton was cut and bruised at midnight, Saturday, when his car turned a flip in mid-air and landed 71 feet from the point of contact with the bridge. Constable GarnetMcLean reported he was attempting to pass Fulton when the latter speeded up, and was travelling between 52 and 55 miles an hour when the crash occurred..

The constable said there was a shower of sparks as the auto hit the steel railing, then he saw the car, a 1930 Ford, somersault and land on its top. John Cassidy, of Maple Ridge, was a passenger in the car but escaped injury. The men were taken out through the roof of the car and Fulton was treated by Dr. W. H. Lloyd, but his injuries are not serious.

Constable McLean had seen Fulton's car in the ditch near the Community Hall corner in town and wanted to question the driver. Provincial Officer Rose was called in to assist in the investigation, and Fulton will appear in County Magistrate's court at Morrisburg Friday.

SIDESWIPED AT FOUR CORNERS.

Coming west on the Finch Road on Friday evening, Harold McDonald, a farmer, living just south of town, sideswiped the auto being driven south at the "four corners" by Lorne Marcellus, another farmer of the district, forcing Marcellus' car into the ditch and causing damages estimated at $20 to the two machines.

Constable Garnet McLean, of town, was called and held the cars and drivers until the arrival of Provincial Officer Rose of Morrisburg. He said charges would be preferred against McDonald who will appear in Magistrate John McCormick's court at Morrisburg on Friday.

OTTAWA CAR TURNS OVER.

His car entering the ditch for no apparent reason, Jas. G. MacGregor, of Rice avenue, Woodruff, had a miraculous escape when his car turned over on the Ridge road just opposite Maple Ridge cemetery late Sunday afternoon.

McGregor stated he was on his way to Newington when his car left the road, broke off a telephone pole, crossed the driveway of Pat Curran and then turned its four wheels into the air. The auto was righted and left on its own power with damage to it set at $10. Constable Garnet McLean investigated the accident.

Funeral Mrs. Stanley Servage At Trinity United Saturday

A large crowd of friends and relatives attended the funeral Saturday afternoon in Trinity United church of Mrs. Stanley Servage who died after a brief illness in the Cornwall General hospital. The service was conducted by Rev. H. M. Beach, Chalmers United church, Finch, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. R. C. Tait.

Mrs. Servage was the former Anna Desormaux, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Desormaux, and was 25 years of age, being born in the township of Winchester. She was married in 1934 and besides her husband is survived by a son, Cecil, and a daughter, Shirley, a month old. Five brothers also remain: Eugene Desormaux of Ormand; Rene, Gouverneur, N.Y.; Henry, Guelph; Alcide, Kars, and Leonard, of Ormond, and one sister, Evelyn Desormaux, of Ottawa.

Schools Re-Open Wednesday After Long Summer Vacation

Schools throughout the province will re-open next Wednesday morning after the long summer holidays. Scholars will troop back to their classes. some their first year in High school and a number starting in the Kindergarten of Public and Separate schools.

The personnel of the Chesterville High school staff was completed at a special meeting of the Board Saturday evening following the appearance of advertisements for a teach of Latin and French. The application of Mr. Kenneth L. Gauthier, a teach of six years' experience and specialist in these subjects, was finally accepted by the members, the salary to be $1500.

The staff for 1937-38 will be composed of but one of last year's staff, Miss Jean Houlehan, who teaches English and the histories: and three new teachers, Mr. W. P. Markle, principal, who takes mathematics; Miss Vivian Foster, science, and Mr. K. L. Gauthier.

Motor Accidents Increase At Alarming Rate

CHESTERVILLE district accounted for three of the large list of motor accidents reported over Ontario for the week end, but luckily none of of the persons involved were seriously hurt. Two of the autos landed with their wheels in the air, one being wrecked and the other only sightly damaged, while the other crash, the first in order, was a side-swipe at the junction of two highways, one of the cars being sent into the ditch with but slight damage to either.

The escape of the three men who occupied the two cars that "turned turtle" is miraculous. One car was estimated by police to be travelling at well over the speed limit of fifty miles an hour when it crashed into an inclined steel bridge railing five feet high. It somersaulted in mid-air and landed over 70 feet away. The guardian angels of those two men must have been doing some fast travelling to pull them out of the wreck alive.

Inquiring into the cause of all these accidents on our highways, we invariably meet with the reply that the trouble lies with the new speed limit and the ease with which intoxicating drinks may be procured. Magistrates will have to crack down unmercifully on these reckless drivers who imperil not only their own foolhardy necks but the lives of honest, law-abiding citizens who are using the King's Highway in an orderly manner. Drivers convicted of reckless driving or driving under the influence of liquor should be deprived of the right to operate a motor car. By the revoking of their licenses will these dangerous persons be kept off the highways, and the "tares" weeded from the good drivers.

HALLVILLE TEAM CHAMPIONS OF DUNDAS SOFTBALL LEAGUE

In the final game of the play-off series for the championship of the Dundas County Softball League in Winchester Monday evening, Hallville were returned champions only after two extra innings with a score of 10 to 7, giving them the edge in a three-game series which they captured with two wins, the other game being tied. All games by agreement have been seven-innings affairs but the winners required the regulation nine Monday night before getting the decision. With the game tied at the end of the seventh, the two extras were played in very poor light.

Prospects Are Very Bright For Chesterville's Big Fair

With everything practically set and entries pouring in as never before, it looks as if Chesterville's Live Stock Show will go over next Wednesday to top all records, and that is not to be wondered at when the prize list is studied a bit. Besides the many classes and the big prize money in the society's section of the list, there are almost 100 special prizes well divided among the different breeds of horses, cattle and poultry, which in itself will attract the best in their classes.

With the first day, Tuesday, given over to a track meet for the pupils of the different schools of Eastern Ontario, free and without charge, the big day will be Wednesday, the programme for which has been built up with the idea of cramming as much entertainment and as many educational events into one afternoon as the use of every minute will permit.

The live stock judging will commence at twelve, noon, and will continue with races and other specialties until four o'clock when the grand parade of live stock will take place before the grandstand. On the playing field Hallville, softball champions of Dundas county, will hook up in a game with Chesterville, who chased them to the wire in the league in the hottest finish ever experienced in the Dundas county league. The locals are out to show in broad daylight that the champs have nothing on them when the sun is shining.

An extra added evening attraction is to be a game of "Donkey Baseball" under floodlights beginning at 8.30 when an actual game of ball will be played with the players riding real honest-to-goodness donkeys, if there are such donkeys, which will produce more comedy and less real ball than any show you have ever seen.

The contestants are business men of Chesterville against business men of Winchester and it is claimed the endeavours of the local team, P. S. Boyd, Amos Clayton, W. O. Dixon, W. A. McElroy, Alex Barrie, Eric Casselman, O. L. King, Jim Hanna and Howard Fulton to stay aboard will cause the donkeys to hee-haw with glee.

The Chesterville Citizens' Band will give a programme on the grandstand during the afternoon following the march from the Community Hall. The band has been well bolstered and intensely rehearsed for this engagement and good music can be expected.

The dance in the Community Hall will follow the "Donkey Basebal"

Hawk Lived Many Years With Bell Attached to Neck

A rough-legged hawk lived for more than 20 years with a bell attached to his neck and ranged widely over the continent, it has been revealed by the Department of Mines and Resources.

Judging by his great age, the hawk apparently found the bell no handicap in capturing his prey. He was found dead recently at Strongfield, Sask., and the bell and tag attached to him bore evidence of his life.

On January 7, 1917, W. V. Shouse, of Clayton, New Mexico, caught the hawk and attached the bell to his neck by means of a leather collar, also bearing a tag with the date and Mr. Shouse's name and address.

The finder of the hawk's body returned the bell and tag to Mr. Shouse, who now lives at Booker, Tex. Because of the bell, Mr. Shouse knows the hawk spent the winters of 1918 and 1919 at Clayton. He heard the bell.

The rest of the bird's movements in the 20-year period are unknown, except that he is reported to have nested in the same tree at Strongfield, Sask., for the last four or five years of his life.

ON DIPPING SHEEP.

Ticks in sheep are more easily discernible after shearing and perhaps on that account the dipping of sheep in the early party of the year is more commonly practised than in the fall. However, two dippings a year are recommended because a few ticks in the fall may increase to large numbers by spring. So far as early dipping is concerned, all sheep not already dipped should be attended to at once. In the warm weather there is little danger from cold and the lambs have reached an age to stand dipping well.

Ticks and lice are two external parasites that are common pests to sheep. They sap the vitality of both ewes and lambs and are the cause of much discomfort. To secure the best returns from sheep, dipping should be done in the summer and early fall of the year. The cost of dipping should not exceed three cents per head. Dips are sold in two forms, powder and liquid. Any of the standard dips carry directions for use on the package and good results are usually obtained if directions are followed.

Community dipping tanks have come into common use in recent years. One of the first and main costs of dipping sheep is to make enough for the bath and after that dipping fluid is added as required. When a lot of sheep are dipped cooperatively the cost for dip is less and the labour involved is reduced also. A better dipping is usually secured.

The following are reasons why it pays to dip:

1. Sheep that are free from ticks and lice grow more and better wool.

2 A clean flock requires less feed and is more easily kept in good condition.

3. The lamb crop is stronger, ewes milk better, and lambs grow more rapidiy.

HONOURABLE EARL ROWE
States His Party's Stand on Labor

The national policy of the Liberal-Conservative Party, Provincial and Dominion, for many years has been to create industry for the purpose of providing work and wages for labor and a profitable home market for the farmer; the lumberman and other primary producers. The Party's sympathetic attitude towards labor is evidenced by the Social legislation on our statute books.

The Liberal-Conservative Party believes that labor should receive a fair share of the fruits of industry and is entitled to organize in order to improve the lot of the worker as regards wages, hours, security in old age and all other conditions of industrial life. The Liberal-Conservative Party reaffirms its traditional policy of insisting upon the maintenance of law and order in all industrial disputes and pledges itself firmly and scrupulously to uphold the laws of Canada.

1. The right of employees to bargain collectively through their own representatives chosen without dictation, coercion or intimidation.

2. It is and has for many decades been a fact that both capital and labor are International in their organization. Accordingly the right of the worker to belong to the union of his choosing, Canadian or International, craft or industrial, is fully established; provided always that the unions must observe, and that capital must observe, in all their actions, the laws of Canada.

3. The Liberal-Conservative Party is unalterably opposed to the introduction into Ontario of sit-down strikes, sabotage or other violations of our law, and for the purpose of clarity hereby places itself on record as being opposed to such illegalities whether they are introduced into Ontario by labor unions affiliated with the C. I. O., the A. F. of L., or any other organization, capital or labor.

4. That representatives from other countries, both of capital and labor, shall be subject on the same principles as other people to our immigration laws and that they shall when admitted to this country, strictly observe the laws of the land.

5. The primary function of the state in all industrial disputes is FIRST—to take no sides and to maintain law and order without the display of unnecessary or provocative force, and SECOND, to enact and impartially administer adequate legislation for the conciliation of industrial disputes.

6. The right to work in Canada is not dependent upon membership in any organization.

7. That no strike shall take place until all reasonable methods of conciliation are exhausted and the worker should have the right of secret ballot free from improper influence or coercion in all decisions relating to the dispute.

8. The Liberal-Conservative Party will continue in the future as in the past to defend the principle of freedom of association within the law. The party re-affirms its belief that the essence of democracy is trust in the people and to rely on freedom and not in dictatorship, that public opinion may be led but not driven and that the greatest safeguard of orderly progress and reform is the sound common sense of all classes of the Canadian people.

I have stated frankly and fearlessly my party's policy toward labor and law enforcement. I stand now, as always, for law and order, for all, under all circumstances. This policy is the democratic British method and I shall apply these principles in the administration of our provincial affairs.

Earl Rowe.

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE takes its name from Richard Bright, an English physician, who, in 1827, published his observations on diseases of the kidney. Bright's Disease, or nephritis, is an inflammation of the kidney.

The human body is provided with two kidneys. Their function is the removal of waste material, the product of the working body brought to the kidneys in the blood. They are indispensable organs; the life of the body cannot continue if they cease to function.

The kidneys may be damaged by being called upon to remove an excessive amount of waste, when they simply break down under the overstrain. They may be damaged by poisons which are produced in the body by germs and which are carried to the kidneys in the blood stream.

It should be borne in mind that, during childhood, when scarlet fever, tonsillitis or any infection occurs, whether severe or mild, germ poisons are produced. The proper care in such cases is necessary in order to protect the kidneys from harm.

The focal infection in tonsils, teeth, sinuses, or other parts, which makes for a chronic poisoning of the body, frequently leads to nephritis. Faulty habits of life, which strain the body, may break down the kidney function.

Nephritis exists in varying degrees from a very slight chronic condition to a severe acute stage. It is often discovered by accident. The individual, not suffering in any way, considering himself perfectly well, comes up for life insurance examination and, much to his surprise, learns that he has kidney disease. Such a chance discovery is fortunate because it permits of the proper early treatment which is so necessary if the condition is to be prevented from becoming more serious. It is surely not wise to leave such vital things to chance. Is it not much more reasonable to have a health examination once a year in order to go under treatment promptly in the earliest stages of the disease.

The prevention of nephritis begins early in life. It begins with the prevention of the common communicable diseases and their proper treatment, if they occur. No focus of infection should be allowed to continue untreated. Proper diet, the avoidance of any excesses in food or drink, the use of sufficient water, will prevent abuse of the kidney. Throughout life, the periodic health examination to detect any deviation from normal, allows for an early correction of the underlying conditions causing the trouble.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

PLOUGHING MATCH.

The 1937 annual four-day international ploughing match and demonstration of farm machinery, under the auspices of the Ontario Ploughmen's Association, will be held at Fergus, Ont., on October 12, 13, 14 and 15. Located as it is 14 miles north of Guelph, Fergus is an ideal rendezvous for this famous meeting, and it is expected by the Manager of the Association, J. A. Carroll, East Block, Parliament Buildings, Tororto, that the wide-spread interest evinced in the former meetings, particularly at Cornwall in 1936, will be eclipsed by the year's meet. Over 600 entries are enthusiasm already shown in this anticipated, and several internationally famous ploughmen have intimated their intention to compete. There will be a different programme every day. Notwithstanding that ploughing affords the chief interest, an important part of the meeting is the demonstration of the latest types of farm equipment.

A CAMP OF BLIND SCOUTS.

An experimental camp for sightless Boy Scouts of the Scout troop of the Blind School of Behala, Calcutta, was counted a promising success. The 19 blind lads, in groups of five, were in charge of "sighted" Scouts, and took care of all the camp details except cooking. A three-mile hike was one of the Scouting experiences greatly enjoyed by the boys. Because of the tidiness of the camp, and the smart appearance of the boys, visitors at first did not recognize that the Scouts were sightless.

Geoffrey Guiton formerly of Montreal, and now on the teaching staff of the Kangra Mission, Palampur, the Punjab. Scoutmaster Guiton made a notable success of the grandstand entertainment provided by the Canadian Scouts at the great World Jamboree in England in 1929. Following the All-Indian gathering, Lord Baden-Powell spent a week at the Kangra Mission, with the Canadian Scoutmaster and his Scout troop of Indian boys, and on a fishing trip they gave him in the Kulu Hills.

DEATH STALKS OUR HIGHWAYS!

If every human life in a village of 800 people in the Province of Ontario were snuffed out in one day, newspapers throughout the entire world would carry the story of the ghastly tragedy.

If one of your loved ones—or even a friend—were a victim, it would become quite a grievous, horrible, personal loss!

That is precisely what is going on in Ontario this year. Nearly 800 people will be killed on our highways. Nearly 14,000 will be injured—many of them crippled; many of them suffering almost unbearable pain. Death and untold suffering stalk our highways and this must stop!

RECKLESS DRIVERS BEWARE!

Motorists have been requested to be courteous on the road but the death toll mounts at an appalling rate. This Department, with the aid of our internationally famous police force and public-spirited citizens, intends to put reckless drivers off the road! You must stop cutting in, passing on hills and curves, crowding, racing, taking chances. Unless you have regard for the safety and convenience of other users of our highways you will soon find yourself in serious trouble.

MOTORISTS: WE ASK YOUR HELP!

When you see a motorist driving in a manner dangerous to the public, take his number, make a careful note of the actual time and place, and when you reach your destination write to the Motor Vehicles Branch, Department of Highways, Toronto, giving full details. We do not invite reports of minor infringements of the traffic laws; you are requested to use sound judgment. We will deal adequately with offenders!

George Nichols, Berwick Buried Friday Afternoon

The village of Berwick lost a prominent and highly esteemed resident in the death of Geo. A. Nichols, which occurred at his home there on Wednesday morning last. Mr. Nichols had not been in the best of health since April and had been in a serious condition for four weeks.

He had been a resident in Berwick for 16 years, prior to which he lived at Newington and Winchester, following the occupation of a farmer all his life. He was 67 years old.

Mr. Nichols took a deep interest in the affairs of his district and his services were always available for any movement tending to the betterment of the community. He sat on Finch township council for several terms and served the ratepayers as deputy-reeve with H. C. Nugent as his reeve, and as such was a member of Counties' Council. In both councils Mr. Nichlos proved a valued member. His counsel and advise were eagerly sought and freely given. He was held in warm regard, not only in Berwick, but throughout the township and by all who knew him.

His wife died five years ago. He is survived by three sons and two daughters, Garfield and Flossie at home; Auston, of Berwick; Albert, of Cornwall, and Mrs. Frank Eagles, of Massena, N.Y.; also two sisters, Mrs. Mike Casselman, of Morrisburg, and Mrs. Allan McIntyre, Massena, N.Y.

The funeral, which was very largely attended, was held from his late residence to St. Paul's United church at two p.m., Friday afternoon, being conducted by Rev. H. Beach, Finch, assisted by Rev. N. McLaren, Moose Creek. A very beautiful anthem, "Sometime We'll Understand," was sung by the choir.

Six chosen friends acted as pallbearers, H. C. Nugent, Wm. Grady, John Nephew, Harold Ouderkirk, Lorne McLean and Geo. Pollock.

Numerous floral tributes were received, including the following wreath from the family; syrays—Mrs. Allan McIntyre, Massena, N.Y.; Eliza and George, Mr. and Mrs. Minto Ackinson, Cornwall; Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Dingwall and family, Berwick W.A., Berwick W.I. Baskets—Mr. and Mrs. M. Montroy and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Ruddy and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. Notice.

AS a condition of the building of a dam below the village by Nestlé's Milk Products Ltd., the Municipal Council was required to collect the outoutflow of certain drains emptying into the river and deliver it below the dam.

The dam is completed and an interceptor drain is in operation

We now have a fine body of clean water where formerly we had a condition that was a disgrace to the village. This body of water will provide amply for the needs of Nestlé's and for fire protection. It also provides a swimming pool and boating facilities for those who care to use it.

For these purposes as well as for public health and as a matter of civic pride, the water in the pond must be kept clean.

We have provided a large refuse dump, convenient to the village for the use of all citizens. The council makes one general clean-up each spring. There are several persons who make a business of collecting refuse and garbage to be taken to the municipal refuse dump and therefore there is no longer any excuse for depositing waste materials of any kind either in the river, upon its banks or upon the streets.

The pollution of the water in the river, the use of the river banks or village streets as a dumping place for refuse can no longer be allowed.

Without further notice offenders will be promptly prosecuted.

A large number of friends and neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben J. W. Carkner met at the Beckstead schoolhouse Friday evening to bid farewell to this family who are moving to Hainsville after spending a number of years in the district. The presentation of linoleum rugs was made by Mrs. Mahlon Beckstead as an address was read, and Mr. Carkner thanked the friends for their kindness and extended an invitation to visit them in their new home.

Following is the address:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Carkner,—

We, your friends and neighbours, having learned that you are about to leave our community for another field of action, have gathered here to-night to say good-bye to you and your family and to wish you lots of prosperity and health besides many new and true friends in the new home to which you go.

You truly have been true and kind neighbours and you will be missed. Your children have attended no other school as yet and they too will be missed by the children of the school.

Mr. Carkner has done his bit as a school trustee and you, Mrs. Carkner, have also done your best as helper, friend and neighbour, and we trust that as you make new friends you will not forget the old ones who wish you the best of good things for the future.

As a remembrance of the days spent in our midst, we ask you to accept these gifts and we again assure you that our best regards accompany it and you as you journey a few miles farther west toward the sunset to your new home and friends.

Signed on behalf of your friends,

The Case For Earl Rowe

TORONTO SATURDAY NIGHT.

A WRITER who signs himself "An Ontario Conservative" states the case for the Honourable Earl Rowe leader of the Conservative Party, in the Toronto Saturday Night, this week.

"Having no journalistic representation in the Ontario capital of Toronto the Conservatives have not been able to make their case as familiar to the voters as the Liberals have," was given as an explanatory note at the beginning of the article.

"The Liberal-Conservative Party in Ontario lacks a province-wide medium through which to place its arguments before the people," states this writer, who continues:

"Hence it is that one encounters financiers and industrialists who seem to think that Premier Hepburn has saved Canada from destruction at the hands of the C.I.O. In view of Mr. Hepburn's previous record in office, it is surely astonishing that anyone should regard him as an outstanding leader on the side of law and order and established institutions.

"Not long after he formed his Government, Mr. Hepburn stood behind his Attorney-General in Queen's Park when the latter said to the embattled hunger-marchers: "Go back home and organize until you are strong enough to return here and compel any government then in power to do your will. God bless you."

"During labour troubles at Stratford, he denounced the Conservative Government of the day for its action in restoring law and order, and even proclaimed the riot leaders to be merely red-blooded men.

"Throughout his political career, Mr. Hepburn has seemed to delight in attacking those institutions and traditions upon which depend the continued stability and security of life in this country. In spite of all his swashbuckling proclamations against 'foreign agitators,' it is not to be forgotten that he favoured the cancellation of Section 98 of the Criminal Code which was the most powerful weapon in the hands of the Federal Government for the maintenance of law and order in troublous times.

"Mr. Hepburn's action in procuring the cancellaton of the Quebec power contracts was another blow against law and order.

"In public speeches, he held the courts up to ridicule when their verdicts disagreed with his own dubious conception of public policy. In so doing he paved the way for the mad course which the Aberhart Government is now pursuing in Alberta.

"It must be obvious to thinking people that every time Mr. Hepburn or Mr. Aberhart takes an action which tends to undermine confidence in the country's honesty and in its intentions to meet its financial obligations, he imperils the economic welfare not only of our great financial institutions but also of the great body of people in this country. Statistics go to show that the vast majority of Canadians possess a little property of some kind —an interest in a life insurance policy a deposit in a bank, a few shares of stock, an equity in a house, or a farm or small business. It is a multitude of small, average people who stand to suffer in the long run by Mr. Hepburn's ill-advised and reckless policies.

"Before he came into power, Mr. Hepburn talked in favour of setting the printing presses to work turning out a plentiful supply of money for the people's use. He thus revealed to the world at large that he knew nothing whatever of financial matters, though upon achieving office he took over the portfolio of Provincial Treasurer.

"Mr. Hepburn opposed the Empire trade treaties signed at Ottawa in 1932, and this year gladly renewed by the Mackenzie King Government because they were powerful factors in lifting Canada out of a long world depression and because they tend to strengthen the ties that bind the British Empire together. He closed Ontario House in London, thus depriving the Ontario farmers of a valuable agency in the sale of their products abroad. If it had not been for the Empire trade treaties giving our farm products large preferences in the United Kingdom, the consequent losses to the agriculturists of this province would have been still greater. His hostility to things British has been thoroughly demonstrated by his ill-informed boast that he never crossed the threshold of Rideau Hall, although he was shortly afterwards discovered gaily disporting himself first at Government House in Bermuda and again at Government House in the Bahamas.

"The Premier's attitude toward the preservation of law and order, about which he now prates so freely, has been disclosed by the extent to which his Government has lowered the conduct and morale of the Legislative Assembly, where debate is now carried on, frequently at least, without regard to the traditional ideas of decency and decorum. He even went so far on one occasion as to encourage the galleries to applaud or dissent as they saw fit, though he afterwards was compelled to change his stand on this point.

"It was surely not in the interests of law and order that during the general election Mr. Hepburn should have promised, on achieving office, to start an exodus of civil servants from Queen's Park that would make the Twelfth of July procession look like thirty cents; that on gaining office he should have carried out this threat in the spirit and in the letter; that he should have made these dismissals in a crude and insulting manner, some of the unfortunates being merely told to get out and to get out quick, and others finding new men in their places one morning, or learning of their execution only through the public press.

"It was not surely in the interests of law and order that the vacancies thus created should have been filled in the main by Liberal party workers, often at the expense of return soldiers and that the public service should have thus been degraded by the introduction for the first time in Canada of the vicious American spoils system.

"It is surely not in the interests of

TROUSERS.

Interesting Facts About Our Dominion of Canada.

MEN have turned to trousers almost universally in the Temperate Zone and, wherever they have gone they have introduced that nabilement. In ancient times trousers were worn by the nations of North and Central Europe, as well as the Phrygians and Persians. A few Romans began to wear them in the second century. Beau Brummel is said to have introduced trousers into England. The Scottish Highlander had to be forced by a hated Sassenach law to cover his limbs with unromantic breeks.

The old English name for the leg coverings was hose or breeches, as witness the Breeches Bible; later they were called trousers and to-day in Canadian statistical reports they are described as pants.

From hose to pants there have been many varieties of fashion, ranging from the ancient baggy trousers to the tight garments puffed at the top in the time of Henry VIII. and from the petticoat breeches of the Stuarts to the tight knee breeches worn in the reign of William III. and still used in modern court dress. The pants of today could hardly be described as graceful.

About six million pairs of men's and boys' pants, from outing shorts to full dress, were made in Canada last year, which just about represents the marketing. This means that the average Canadian man and boy, has been getting lately not quite three new pairs in two years. A man is lucky who gets two pairs in a year. This does not include baby's wear, those rubber contraptions running to about 1¼ million yearly for over 200,000 children under one year old.

THE TOMATO CROP.

Picking of tomatoes for canning in Eastern Ontario, commenced this week. They appear fairly good, but some black rot is in evidence in many fields. Factories have contracted for the crop at 30 to 35 cents per bushel, depending on the district where they were grown. The price compares with 27½ cents paid last year. The acreage of canning factory tomatoes shows a substantial gain this year. In Eastern Ontario about 9,000 acres were set out as against 5,000 acres in 1936. In Western Ontario the acreage shows a rise from 16,000 to 25,700.

The persistently recurring stories concerning sea serpents probably refer to gigantic eels, which are sometimes eight feet thick and 60 feet long.

Many vegetables used in making pickles may be ground in a food chopper. This is much quicker and much less tedious than chopping on a board or wooden bowl.

In using home-canned foods because or possible danger from botulinus poisoning, it is well to boil all vegetables for five minutes after the jar is opened. This should be done even if the food is to be served cold in a salad.

If, when the cover is loosened, there is an escape of air or liquid, it may indicate that gas has been formed by spoilage of the food. Always smell the contents, but do not taste. A peculiar odour indicates spoiled food and a single taste of food spoiled by botulinus is sometimes fatal.

The liquid should be clear and free from all clouded appearance; the food should be firm and free from mould.

Do not take chances with canned foods, if there is any doubt as to the condition, discard it. One can of food is always cheaper than a doctor bill.

Wherein Rested Comfort : :

THE BED was strewn with little long white dresses, little white skirts, little crocheted woollen socks, lace caps, ribbons and other dainty baby clothes. They were not quite new; some little child had worn them and left soft wrinkles in the ribbons and the lace frills.

Alice, who had laid the clothes out on the bed, hid her wet eyes in one of the dresses. Her own child had worn the little clothes—and never any larger clothes! All the dresses and other things that the baby had ever worn were lying on the bed—except one dress that had enfolded the tiny girl as she lay one day white and still with white flowers in her baby hands. She had been two months old just before that day; and more than two months had passed since then, but Alice remembered it as she remembered no other day in her life.

Alice was still very young. She had been out of college only a year when she married the young lawyer who had been silently waiting and planning for her before she went to college. Two years later the little girl was born. She had been such a dear little girl, and Alice, not much more than a girl herself, had looked at her with the eyes with which a woman, from the beginning of the world, has looked at her first-born child. Alice was very young, but she knew, as in the beginning women knew, that no other child can be as the first; and the tears hid in the small, wrinkled garments were very bitter. Alice did not yet know so many other things.

Very, very often since the baby had gone Alice had unfolded the dresses and caps and blankets, and wept over them, folded them again, and laid them in the places in which for so short a time they had been kept.

Today she folded them as usual, but she did not lay them all in their accustomed places. She selected several of each of the garments, enough, indeed, for one child.

"It is hard to give them away," she murmured, holding the little white clothes to her cheek, "but I don't need them." Her voice trembled as she said the words. "I don't need them; and she does. It is selfish not to give them to her. I don't need them; and they are too sweet not to be used. They are so sad when they are new and just a little used. They must not be sad. I will give them to her."

Alice had with difficulty brought herself to the point of giving them. They were so precious to her. Her mother had made some of them, and her friends had made others. Some of the things Alice herself had made. No hours of her life had been as the hours in which she had fashioned that first dress for her own first little child; and she kept it alone and apart.

"I shall never give that away," she thought," as she smoothed the garments gathered in her lap. "Never! I think perhaps I do need that—more than anyone else can need it."

She went slowly downstairs to her mother, who had asked her to give the cherished things to another woman who needed them. Her mother, being a mother, understood how precious the tiny things were to Alice. She understood, too, that they were sadder to keep than to give.

"Here they are, mother," Alice said, putting the garments into her mother's arms. "Are—are these enough?" She lifted her eyes to her mother's eyes, and the sorrow in her sweet girl face went to her mother's heart.

Putting Alice's gift on the table, she took the girl into her arms. "Some day you may have another little child," she said softly.

"Yes," said Alice, "but, mother, she—she was the first!"

"Yes," said her mother simply. She was too old and too wise to say more; and although Alice was her oldest child, and could not remember when she had not been oldest, Alice had not been the first.

Her mother began to speak of the woman for whom she had asked for the little clothes:

"She is much older than you, Alice dear. She had five children, besides the new one,—and she is poor, but a sweet, refined woman. Her husband works very hard, and she sews, besides, to help support the family. She was too busy to make many things, and she didn't have hosts of relatives and girls to make them, as you had."

"Are — are these enough?" Alice repeated. She did not speak often, even to her mother, of her litttle girl, but she knew, and it comforted her, to know, that her mother understood. She did not say much now, but she came very near her mother, never knowing how much nearer still it might yet be granted her to come.

Her mother knew; and because she knew she said, "You will take these things to that mother yourself?" won't you, dear?"

"Oh, I'd rather not!" Alice exclaimed quickly. "You take them, mother! I couldn't quite endure seeing her with her little girl; it would be too hard!" She hid her face on her mother's shoulder.

"I think you might like to see her little girl. She is a sweet little girl; and perhaps you might like to hold her." She paused; and in a moment Alice whispered:

"Would you have, mother dear?"

"My dear; my dear!" her mother said. "Yes, I would have; I did, Alice."

Alice lifted her head and kissed her mother tenderly. Then she folded the white garments, and her mother helped her gather some of the late summer roses blooming in the garden; and with the roses and the little clothes she went to see the other mother and the other little girl.

The other mother lived near by, and very soon Alice was standing at the door waiting to be admitted. She was about to ring the bell a second time when the door was opened hastily by a girl about seven years old, with curly hair and a torn dress and a rosy, happy face. Alice smiled at her involuntarily.

"How is your mother?" she asked. "May I see her, and your new little sister?"

"Yes," said the child shyly. "Mamma's upstairs; you'll have to come up, 'cause mamma has to stay up there and look at the baby. She keeps on looking at it; and doesn't do anything else."

The child's tone was full of awe, and Alice smiled in spite of herself. "Will you take these to her, and ask her if I may come up?" she said. She gave the child her card and the roses, but she kept her real gifts. "I will take these up myself," she said to herself.

She waited in the hall until the chid returned; then she followed her up the stairs to a small room. There, sitting at the window, with the baby in her arms, was the other, the older mother. She had a sweet face, with many lines of care in it, lines that softened but did not vanish as her eyes rested upon the new little girl, who must for many days add to them: for care is not the least part of motherhood.

Alice was thinking of the care-lined face as she explained her errand, and with trembling fingers unfolded her little white gifts. She was thinking, too, of the other mother's new little girl, who could at once increase and sofen care.

"I brought these for your little girl," she faltered. "They—they are almost new, and I—I don't need them now. My mother told me you might find them of use," She held them out, and the other mother took them reverently.

"It is sweet of you to bring them to me," she said. "It must have been hard; they must mean so much to you." She turned her face toward the baby. "Would you like to hold my little girl?" she asked.

Alice had not looked at the little child, and of this the child's mother was aware; but she understood. Without waiting for Alice's assent, she lifted the tiny white-robed baby and, smiling, put her into the girl's arms.

She did not look at Alice. She knew that Alice had not had a little child in her arms since her own child had lain in them, so still and white. Alice's mother had tried more than once to bring it about, and now, now it had come about. The other woman rose and went to the other side of the room, and stood arranging the roses in a tall vase; and Alice sat holding the little girl.

She had not supposed that she could hold in her arms another person's baby, or that she could look thus closely upon another mother's child, when her own had lain so still. She had told her mother again and again that she could not: and her mother had not persisted: she had waited. She had found it hard to wait, for she had longed to comfort Alice, and she knew wherein comfort rests.

Alice did not at once look at the little girl. She held her very lightly: but in a few moments the warmth of the tiny body in her arms crept about her and warmed her and, strangely, sent soft tears to her eyes. Then she looked down upon the child. Suddenly she gathered her closely, tenderly up to her. She put her cheek against the child's pink face. She smiled at her with a soft, brooding smile. Her eyes lost part of their piercing sorrow. A strange beginning of comfort came to her. She understood why her mother had urged her to think of, to see, to hold the ther woman's child. Her mother had been so wise.

She turned to the child's mother, and her face said more than her words.. Your little girl is—very dear. I hope you will like the things for her." It was beginning to soothe her to think that a warm, little pink-faced child would again wear the white garments.

She did not stay very long with the other woman. A new plan had come into her mind, and she went home to her mother, who was awaiting her.

"Mother!" she said simply. "How did you know?" She did not explain what her mother had known but her mother understood.

"I learned it," she said, "as you have learned it. So many mothers have learned it, dear, and so many will! Be sure to help them."

"I shall, mother, oh, I shall!" Alice whispered. Then she told her mother the plan that had come to her mind, which was no other than to give to the other mothers who need them all the other soft, white garments.

"I don't need them," she said, "and so many persons do; so I will find them and take things to them. They were meant to be used; and it is so lonely to keep them."

Thus it happened that Alice found other mothers with new little children and gave them all the clothes; all except the one little dress that she had made first. She kept that all her life. As she gave the little garments, and saw them put to happy human living uses, her grief lightened and became beautiful and hopeful, and the holiness left in her eyes by her tears for her first-born child deepened and shone even as her smile for her first-born had shone.

When the children to whom Alice had given the little garments were learning to speak faltering words and to take faltering steps with the aid of mother's hands, another child, a second little girl, came to Alice and her husband to fill the first child's place. She was not the first-born, but perhaps because the first-born had glorified her place she was as dear. With all that the first-born had taught them Alice and her husband looked at the second little girl and smiled with the wonderful joy that sorrow sometimes helps to lift so great and pure a height.

She was such a dear little girl! Alice's mother and her husband's mother and all her friends made sweet ltle clothes for her. All those who came to see the new little girl exclaimed over her, and held her in their arms and admired her. Finally they asked, "What are you going to name her, Alice?"

Alice lifted her eyes, with the old light that still is new shining in them.

"I am gong to name her for my mother," she said.

When they named the little girl, Alice dressed her in the dress that she had made first. She took, as many, many other mothers have taken, the wonderful comfort held in the tiny hands of the second little child.

Eastern Canada's Giant Earner

Dairy products brought farmers of Eastern Canada more than $171,000,000 during 1936. This represents over 40% of the total farm income for Quebec, Ontario and the Maritime Provinces. It is more income than is produced by any other single farm product—ten times as much as from wheat and more than double the revenue from oats.

For thousands of farm families milk is a year-around source of money, a steady dependable income paid each month or oftener.

To make this steady income possible, people must be reminded constantly of the goodness of milk and milk products. Borden helps to do this job by keeping milk foremost in the minds of millions of buyers, making ever larger markets for dairy products.

law and order that the machinery of the Liquor Board should have been used as a money-making plant instead of as an instrument for the control of the traffic in intoxicants; that authorities to conduct hotels and beverage rooms should have been conferred upon former bootleggers and other unworthy party men; and that the beer parlours themselves should have become, in hundreds of cases, malodourous resorts well calculated to debauch the young people — the boys and girls of this day and generation.

"Mr. Hepburn's ideas of law and order are amply demonstrated by the intemperate character of his attacks upon those with whom he does not agree, whether these are foes or erstwhile friends. We have already referred to the contemptuous manner which he adopted towards governmental employees whom he was dismissing. Judges, magistrates, deputy ministers alike were subjected to needless humiliation by an ego-centric Premier. Going outside the Province he has insulted a Premier of Quebec, disowned the Prime Minister of Canada, and condemned President Roosevelt. Such explosive habits surely do not make for peace, order and good government or for harmonious relationships either at home or with the neighbouring republic.

"In forcing his School Tax legislation on the statute books, he raised religious strife by setting Protestant against Catholic and Catholic against Protestant, that at Sault Ste. Marie and elsewhere he has tried to set the rest of the Province against Toronto, and that in girding at capitalists and coupon-clippers he is stirring up ill-feeling between two classes of the population.

"And now we come to the latest development in Mr. Hepburn's career —to his sudden transformation from Extreme Radical to an enemy of the Committee for Industrial Organization. We have not the slightest doubt as to the Premier's first and natural reaction to the C.I.O. His whole political history is such that it leaves no question on that point. What happened that he failed this time to run true to form? The answer to this question seems obvious. In our mind's eye we can readily reconstruct the picture. In this picture the Prime Minister was waited upon by certain rich men backed by a heavily endowed press, who said to him virtually:

"'Now, Mr. Hepburn, here's your chance. You are regarded askance by the responsible elements in the community. Your opportunity to gain the good graces of the bankers and the industrialists and the capitalists in general is before you. Capitalize this C.I.O. business. Make a big thing of it. Put yourself at the head of the forces of law and order. These rich men have short memories, and they'll forget all your radicalism, all your swinging to the Left, your invitations to hunger marchers to organize till they were strong enough to run the country, your repudiation of public contracts, your proposal to set the presses printing worthless money, your suggestions for partial repudiation of the public debt, your insults to Great Britain and to His Majesty's representatives in this country, your general attitude of disloyalty to those institutions and traditions which decent Canadians hold dear. You come across with this play-acting against the C.I.O., and we'll see that you get big headlines in the press and an ample campaign fund for the forthcoming general election.'

"Those few bankers and industrialists who have lately grown enamored of Mr. Hepburn must see that they are being merely subjected to an audacious political racket. In other words, they are being bamboozled, made monkeys of, taken for a ride, having their legs pulled. They are dealing with a man who is a clever politician, who seems to change sides overnight if he can see any personal or party advantage in so doing. Witness his sudden self-reversal on the School Taxation measure, on the Power Contract cancellations and on other public issues.

"What is more, there was never anything behind the claim that the C.I.O. was a real menace to this Province. This country, like Great Britain is a land of law and order. Labour strikes in the United States have long led to riot and bloodshed. That was the case long before the C.I.O. was ever heard of. We could quote three recent Presidents of the United States to the effect that the American republic is more subjected to crimes of violence than any other civilized nation. The American Bar Association is on record in almost similar language.

"It should be added that the settlement of the Oshawa strike was negotiated in Mr. Hepburn's office with representatives of the C.I.O. and that but for his insistence on gaining some prestige from the settlement, the Oshawa plant would probably have re-opened some days sooner. Ever since then Mr. Hepburn's conciliation again, Mr. Louis Fine, has repeatedly sat in on industrial disputes with C.I.O. officials.

"All of which goes to prove our contention that those few rich men who sit in Toronto clubs, smoke fat sigars, and think well of Mr. Hepburn are simply the victims of a daring political racket pulled off for the Premier's benefit."

Long Shots & Wide Draws

News From the Lawn Bowling Greens as Picked up By The Kitty.

Monday night the lads went out with blood in their eye and squared accounts with the Iroquois club by taking all four games, thereby taking a load off the locals' shoulders where it had rested none too comfortably since their visit to the bailiwick of the Iroquois trundlers.

Robertson got away with a bang when he took the first end from Mills by five shots and then held the Iroquois rink scoreless for nine ends as he went on piling up a lead of 17. Everyone was "on" and demonstrated that fact plenty by beating their opponents 31 to 9. Bill Dixon took Charlie Fisher to camp 23 to 18. Bill took a 7 to 0 lead early in the game and Fisher was unable to catch up with him after that. Jim Hanna and Cliff. Hess had quite a battle but Cliff. weakened in the two last ends and Jim finished two up at 15 to 13. Clayton put his game with Hyslop on ice at an early stage and kept it there, winning 18 to 11.

Wednesday night the boys played their last away from home game when they went to Iroquois, losing three and winnng one, Hanna being up on Gilder, while Robertson lost to Hislop, Hutt to Fisher, and Casselman to Hess. Eric was one man short when David failed to put in an appearance and Mr. McGinnis filled in, otherwise the Iroquois Club demanded a penalty of one-quarter of his score on account of the shortage which to the locals appeared anything else but sporting.

The complete score cards have not yet been turned in. Don't forget this is important as these are sent to the District Secretary at Prescott.
