On Monday afternoon about 5 o'clock while the tug Bronson was bringing down a Standard Oil Co's. barge loaded with oil, something went wrong and the tug had to let go the tow-rope near the head of the locks and the barge drifted down and dragged anchor until near the entrance to the lock. Both the tug and the barge remained there until about ten o'clock, when they managed to get into the dock, where they remained until ten o'clock Tuesday, when they proceeded down the river, but had only got as far as "Indian" island, when something again went wrong, and the barge now lies in the bay near the island. Unauthorized liberties are frequently taken with shade trees in towns and cities. Under the Ontario Tree Planting Act, any person destroying or injuring (even tying to a street tree) is liable to a fine not exceeding $25 and costs, or imprisonment for 30 days, half of the fine going to the informant.

The latest in door locks is built on the phonographic principle, and can only be opened when talked to by its owner. It might be easier, of course, for some people to talk into the keyhole than to insert a key in it on occasion, but at such times the lock might have a difficulty in recognizing its master's voice, and the last state of the man might be worse than the first.

OUTLINES HIS POLICY

SIR JAMES WHITNEY ISSUES PRE-ELECTION ADDRESS TO VOTERS.

Progressive Platform of Ontario Government Includes the Creation of a Minister of Power to Supercede the Commission—Arrangement to Have G. T. R. Run Over T. & N. O. Federal Aid Given Immigration.

Toronto, Oct. 31.—Sir James Whitney last night announced that the Provincial elections are to be held on Monday, Dec. 11, the nominations on the previous Monday, the 4th.

The new Legislature will be the thirteenth since 1867, and may be counted upon for some ill luck for one side of the house or the other. The Legislature dissolved on May 2, 1908, had endured for three years and a quarter; the present Legislature has already exceeded that term by about two months.

Formal dissolution of the House and the issue of the writs for the new Legislature will take place shortly, the delay being intended to give the municipal officers the longest possible time for the preparation of the poll lists.

This duty should have been undertaken during the summer, but, as usual, was generally allowed to go by default.

A statement to the press accompanied the announcement of the election date, and in it the record of the Government was outlined along with the proposals for the future.

Premier Whitney gives as the more important questions upon which the people of the province should have an opportunity of pronouncing:

(1) As to the advisability of further provincial appropriations if necessary to any scheme of development by reason of the financial aid to be given by the Dominion Government, and also of any statutory enactment which may be found to be necessary under the circumstances.

(2) Whether the Government of the province shall continue to urge upon the Dominion Government the payment of a bonus or subsidy on account of the construction of the T. & N. O. Railway.

(3) Whether a department of the Government shall be created, with a Cabinet minister at its head, to take over and carry on the work heretofore done by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

The question of the opening up of Northern Ontario is said to be obviously of great importance and should be dealt with without delay. The only result of the addition to population in the newer districts is to increase the provincial expenditure while the Dominion derives an increased income from the greater consumption of goods paying tariff duties. The Provincial Government, therefore, notes with satisfaction Mr. Borden's announcement, that he would favor the giving of financial aid by the Dominion to the province in the work of immigration to Northern Ontario; the construction of permanent highways for the province, and for providing practical instruction in agriculture. Legislation to provide for the disposition of any sums voted by the Dominion for these purposes is contemplated and mentioned as "the enactment of statutory provisions of a very important character."

The T. & N. O. Railway policy is an important feature of the address. An engagement has been entered into with the Grand Trunk Railway for running rights of its trains over the line, in consideration of which the company assumes an equitable share of the general maintenance of the road, and pays the sum of $300,000 per annum as rental for such running rights, this sum representing one-half of the interest on the total cost of construction of the railway.

Sir James refers to the "bitter and relentless opposition" to the Hydro-Electric power scheme, which is intended to furnish power at cost to all sections of Ontario, and the great efforts which "have been made by interested individuals to hamper and prevent the carrying out of the intentions of the Government in the central and eastern parts of the provinces. So far have these efforts gone that in all probability we shall be compelled," says Sir James, "to use the powers given us by statute with reference to expropriation."

Sir James refers to the "very patriotic and unselfish exertions of Hon. Adam Beck, Hon. J. S. Hendrie and Mr. W. K. McNaught to the commission, and announces the discontinuance of the commission, and the establishment of a new power department with a Cabinet Minister at its head.

"The Right of Way"

"The Right of Way" is a powerful, interest-stimulating drama, introducing rapid movement and acute situations, and amid a succession of picturesque scenic effects. It is the story of the degeneration of a man through drink, and his regeneration through a life spent in the service of others, and particularly in the radiating glory of a pure woman's unselfish love that dispels the gloom that envelops a noble man's soul and saves him from himself.

Interest is principally centred in two strangely contrasting figures—Charley Steele, once a brilliant lawyer, and Joe Portugais, a man of nature in its most uncouth aspect. In the earlier scenes of this strong, pulsating play, the heartless cynicism of the jaded man of the world, Charley Steele, almost revolts one, just as much as one finds joy in the beauty of his real nature, as shown by the change that comes after the accident that temporarily deprives him of his memory. The awakening of his love for the country maid, Rosalie, instead of his wife, whom he has found a frozen fact in his world, is exquisite in its simplicity its sincerity and its truth, and affords one of the most pathetically sweet tales told on the stage.

The other chief character—Joe Portugais, has, earlier in his life, killed a rival; has been tried and acquitted through the legal skill of Charley Steele, but deep down beneath the surface beats a great heart, loyal, steadfast and unselfish. There is an intensely interesting love story running through the play which involves the girl, Rosalie, Charley Steele and his wife.

SIFTON HAD CLOSE CALL

Pulled From Track as Train Sped by While Out on Ottawa Hunt

A narrow escape from being run down by a C. P. R. Prescott train was experienced on Monday by several participants of the Ottawa Hunt Club while giving chase to two foxes along the railway track which passes through the course. The huntsmen barely escaped in time while two of the dogs and one of the foxes, who seemingly became bewildered, were run over and crushed and mangled to death.

Included in the party was Hon. Clifford Sifton. He was slightly in advance of the others, seemingly was not apprised of the danger and it at once became apparent that he must be instantly given the alarm or else the train would be upon him. Dr. Webster was the first to reach his side, and the two left the track only a few instants before the train sped by.

Dedication Service

On the evening of the Festival of All Saints the Archbishop of Ottawa officiated at a solemn and most impressive service in St. James' church.

The service began with the hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers" and during the singing of the hymn His Grace, the Archbishop and the clergy moved down the centre aisle of the church to the south end where a beautiful bronze tablet has been erected to the memory of the late Frederick Bradfield, one of the founders of the parish of Morrisburg, and for over fifty years a worshipper in St. James' church. After the unveiling of the tablet by the rector, the Archbishop standing near the memorial offered appropriate prayers.

The hymn "Let Saints on Earth in Concert Sing" was then sung and the procession moved slowly back to the sanctuary where stands the massive carved oak altar erected recently to the memory of the late Henry G. Merkle. Then the Archbishop standing in front of the altar humbly presented and dedicated it to the service of Almighty God. After the singing of the hymn, "For All the Saints Who From Their Labours Rest," shortened evensong was said by the Rev. Rural Dean Carson, M.A., of Wales, the lesson being read by the Rev. Rural Dean Patton, M.A., of Prescott. The hymn "They Whose Course on Earth is O'er."

"Think They of Their Brethren More" was then sung, and the Archbishop delivered an interesting and very instructive address on "The Communion of Saints" basing his remarks on Heb. XII 22. The service was brought to a close by singing the hymn "There is a Land of Pure Delight."

An oak hymn board that is being placed in the church in memory of the late Mrs. William Eager was to have been dedicated with the other memorials but being delayed in transportation it has not yet arrived.

St. James' church has 13 stained glass windows, 5 mural tablets, a memorial reared, an altar and a brass eagle lectern besides other smaller memorials, and another window is being talked of.

Spencer—Barkley

A very enjoyable wedding took place at the home of Mr. Ed. Barkley, South Mountain, on the 25th Oct., when Miss Martha Barkley became the bride of Mr. Cephas Spencer, of Carnduff, Sask. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. Millar, of South Mountain, in the presence of about twenty-five invited guests and friends.

Miss Bessie Robinson, of Winchester, cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Walter Barkley, of Montreal, as groomsmen.

The bride entered the parlor at 3 p. m. leaning on her father's arm dressed in white silk trimmed with overlace and silk applique carrying a bouquet of white roses and maiden-hair fern.

The bridesmaid was dressed in cream lustré carrying a bouquet of pink carnations and maiden-hair fern. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold ring set with pearls, to the bridesmaid a toilet set and case, to the groomsmen a cuff and collar box. After the ceremony and congratulations the company repaired to the dining room where a splendid repast was served, the dining room being decorated in pink and white. After tea a very pleasant evening was spent in music and games.

The bride is a niece of Mrs. Henry Clark of this town, and they spent a couple of days with her.

SUDDEN SUMMONS

Mr. F. B. Carman, the Well Known and Highly Respected Druggist of Town Succumbs to Heart Trouble.

The residents of Morrisburg were greatly shocked on learning between nine and ten o'clock Tuesday night, that Mr. F. B. Carman, the well-known and highly respected druggist of this town, had suddenly succumbed to heart trouble, as it was known that he had been in the store until closing up time about 8.30. As had been the custom of late, Mrs. Carman accompanied him home, and then went to the Lutheran church, where there was some special service going on. On her return home she found her husband lying prostrate on the floor. She at once summoned aid and Dr. Casselman was soon at hand, and though the body was still warm the spark of life had flown. Everything was done to revive him, but without avail.

The deceased was a son of the late Nicholas Carman, and was born north of Cardinal, May 30th, 1836. He was educated at Iroquois, and was for a time freight agent of the Grand Trunk here, afterwards entering the drug store of Dr. T. F. Chamberlain, and became a most proficient pharmacist. He afterwards succeeded to the business in partnership with Mr. Reuben Brown, finally purchasing Mr. Brown's interest. On June 11th, 1872, he was married to Miss Emma, youngest daughter of the late Rev. H. Hayunga, of Riverside, and to this union there were born three children, Dr. Herman Carman, of New York; Mr. Bert Carman, of Toronto, the well-known pianist, and Mrs. John F. Casselman, of Morrisburg, who together with the heart-broken widow, mourn the loss of a most lovable husband and indulgent father. He was a man of most quiet disposition and loved his home.

In 1889 he sold out his business here and went down to Florida where he remained but a year, returning to Morrisburg and repurchasing his old business in 1890, which he had since successfully conducted. Everybody knew Mr. F. B. Carman and all felt that when purchasing anything from him it was as he stated. He always had a kindly word and friendly greeting that drew him a large trade. He was a veteran of the Fenian Raid, being a lieutenant in one of the companies of those trying times.

He was a member of the Lutheran Church, having been its treasurer for a great many years.

The funeral will take place tomorrow (Friday) at 2 o'clock to the Lutheran church and cemetery.

The Leader extends its sympathy to the bereaved relatives in their hour of sorrow.

WILL SIT TILL MARCH

Dominion House Will Have One Long Sitting After All

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—It is practically certain now that there will be only one session of Parliament, which will adjourn at Christmas and run after New Year's, probably until March. It was at first expected there would be a short session of a month and then possibly another called in the spring.

Instructions have been given by the Finance Minister to the various Departments to prepare their estimates, not only for the remainder of this year, but for the 1912-1913 fiscal year, which clearly indicates a session lasting until well after Christmas. Officials this week are hard at work on the estimates, and an effort will be made to have everything in ship shape by Nov. 15. They will be submitted to the Ministers for revision and approval next week.

Last night only two Ministers were in the city, Hon. W. T. White and Hon. T. W. Crothers. Except the western Ministers, who are expected towards the end of the week, the rest of the Cabinet have gone to Halifax to attend the big national banquet to the Premier. They will be back Friday or Saturday, and next week will see a busy time for the Ministers preparing their program for the session.

Little important constructive legislation is expected until after Christmas, as the Ministers have not had time to definitely settle their policy or map out their plans.

Liberal papers continue daily to map out new naval policies for the Government, the latest being that of subsidized ocean steamers, to be turned into fast auxiliary cruisers. As a matter of fact, the Government has not yet taken up the naval question. Before any policy is decided upon, even if there is a referendum or not, the British Admiralty is likely to be consulted and their advice as to the assistance which is most valuable to the Motherland will be secured.

Dr. A. F. Pringle.

(Cornwall Freeholder.)

Dr. Alexander Fraser Pringle, of Northfield, Minn., died very suddenly on Wednesday at the residence of his brother-in-law, G. C. Carman, West Second Street, where he had been visiting for several weeks on his way home from a summer tour of Europe. A couple of months ago he was one of the victims of an automobile accident in London, England, and as a result spent some time in a hospital before returning to Canada. Dr. Pringle was a celebrated eye specialist, residing in Minnesota for a quarter of a century. He was a son of the late Judge Pringle and a brother of R. A. Pringle, K. C., ex-M.P.; Mrs. Corbett, and Mrs. Carman, of Cornwall, Mrs. Ritchie of Halifax, N. S.; Mrs. Aylmer of Peterborough, Geo. Pringle, Rochester, N. Y.; and James in the West. He was in his 58th year.

The funeral took place on Sunday from the residence of his brother-in-law to Woodlawn cemetery.

A Gift With a Thought in It

A TALK ON RHEUMATISM

Telling How to Cure This Painful Malady.

This article is for the man or woman who suffers from rheumatism who wants to be cured, not merely relieved—but actually cured. The most a rheumatic sufferer can hope for in rubbing something on the tender, aching joint, is a little relief. No lotion or liniment ever did or ever can make a cure. The rheumatic poison is rooted in the blood. Therefore, rheumatism can only be cured when this poisonous acid is driven out of the blood. That's why rubbing and liniments and outward applications are no good—they can't reach the cause in the blood. Any doctor will tell you this is true. If you want something that will go right to the root of the trouble in the blood every time take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make new, rich blood which drives out the poisonous acid and cures rheumatism to stay cured. This is a solemn truth which has been proved in thousands of cases, and the following is a striking instance. Mrs. W. H. Elnor, Sarnia, Ont., says: "I feel it my duty to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as they completely cured me of rheumatism after I had been almost an invalid for three years. I doctored with two skilled doctors and took electric treatment, but without benefit. On going to a third doctor he recommended mineral baths as the only thing that would help me. After taking this treatment for some time I felt that I was really growing worse instead of better, and I began to think there was no cure for me and that I was doomed to be a helpless sufferer. For some months I discontinued all treatment and then I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking a few boxes I could notice a distinct improvement, and I continued taking the Pills for several months, when the cure was complete. That is some two years ago, and I have ever since been perfectly free from the trouble. I would, therefore, advise anyone afflicted with rheumatism to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they certainly made a remarkable cure in my case."

These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BRITAIN WAS NOT READY

When France and Germany Were Almost at War.

It now appears that the Morocco war scare led to a good deal of searching of hearts among the British military authorities, and that if the negotiations between France and Germany had come to a quick and belligerent end Britain would have been caught in a state of unpreparedness almost equal to that in which she found herself at the outbreak of the Boer war. Writes a London correspondent. Wonders have been worked during the last two months, however, and recently a British military expert told the writer that Britain was now ready to take the field at any moment.

Although the war cloud has lifted for the time being, this expert was anything but optimistic about the future. The delay, he declared, was solely due to strategic reasons on the part of Germany. If war were to break out now, Germany would have to deal single-handed with France, Britain and Russia, and if Austria backed her up actively, Italy would probably join the anti-German coalition, with the idea of avenging ancient defeats and winning back her lost provinces. If the outbreak of hostilities is deferred until winter, however, Russia will be snowbound, and Italy will also be prevented from sending an army across the Alps. The Balkan States also have a grudge against Austria and they, too, would have to deal with "General February." My informant, therefore, thinks that another and more serious crisis may be expected in December or January.

At any rate, Britain has profited by the delay. Immense stores of food, clothing and ammunition have been accumulated and even the army nurses have been kept busy preparing medical and surgical supplies. The plan of campaign has been worked out to the last detail and Britain is ready within a week of the declaration of war to throw an army of 120,000 men into Belgium, where it is expected some of the heaviest fighting would take place.

General Sir John French, who represented Britain at the recent French army maneuvers, has returned home enthusiastic about the French soldiers, who, he says, is the best fighting man in Europe. He also has nothing but praise for the organization of the French army and there isn't the slightest doubt that he has come to an understanding with the French generals about the military part Britain will play in the coming struggle. The naval side of the war, of course, would be controlled from London.

It is surprising how British feeling on the subject of a war with Germany has changed in the last few weeks. Before the Agadir incident there was a lot of irritation in England against Germany, but the great majority of Englishmen felt that war was a thing to be avoided at all costs. To-day most Englishmen declare that Germany "has asked for it" and that the safety of Europe demands that she be crushed—and the sooner the better. There is also the feeling that no time is more favorable than the present, before the Kaiser's great naval programme is complete and while practically all the rest of Europe is united against Germany and Austria.

One thing that worries the British government is whether or not Germany could be made to pay the whole cost of the war, not only because of the British taxpayer's pocket, but also because of the hope of crippling Germany so effectually that she will be kept out of mischief from the British viewpoint, for years to come.

AS GOOD AS A DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE.

Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in every home where there are little ones. They are as good as a doctor; are absolutely safe and can always be relied upon to drive away any malady arising from derangements of the stomach or bowels. Concerning them Mrs. O. A. Wheeler, Northlands, Sask., says: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets an invaluable medicine. I live twenty miles from town and doctor, so am glad to have so reliable a medicine at hand. I consider the Tablets a real necessity in the home and shall never be without them. They have kept my baby well and have made him a bonnie baby." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PLEASING OCCUPATION.

"Slithers made a pile of money in that gold mine of his, didn't he?" asked Willoughby. "Yes—about five million," said Hickenlooper. "What's he doing now?" asked Willoughby. "Oh, he's resting on his ore," said Hickenlooper. It was upon presentation of the above under oath that the court acquitted Willoughby of assault and battery on the ground of extreme provocation.

A FORGER'S JOB.

"Now," said the warden to the forger, who had just arrived at the prison. "We'll set you to work. What can you do best?" "Well, if you'll give me a week's practice on your signature, I'll sign your official papers for you," said the prisoner.

THE HINT.

The young man had talked for 10 or 15 minutes without a break, when the girl at the other end of the wire interrupted.

"Just a moment, Guy!" she said. "What is it, Flo?" "I want to change the receiver to the other ear. This one is tired."

"I wish Fritz would write his figures plainer. I can't possibly tell from his letter whether it is 1,000 or 10,000 kisses that he sends me."

HE COULD NOT SLEEP AT NIGHTS

TILL HE FOUND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Fred. Swanson, of Saskatchewan, sends a message of cheer to those who feel the weariness and discouragement that comes from broken rest.

Macklin, Sask., Oct. 23 (Special)—Those who suffer from sleepless nights and get up in the morning feeling tired and discouraged will find renewed hope in the statement made by Fred. Swanson of this place. He could not sleep at nights. He discovered the cause. It was kidney trouble. He discovered the cure. It is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Yes," Mr. Swanson says, in an interview regarding his case, "I was troubled with my kidneys for over a year, so bad that I could not sleep at nights. After using one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I found great relief. Four boxes removed all my pain and now I sleep well and I am as strong in my kidneys as any man."

If the kidneys are wrong the blood becomes clogged with impurities and natural rest is an impossibility. Strong, healthy kidneys mean pure blood, new life all over the body and that delightful rest that is the sweetest thing in life. Dodd's Kidney Pills always make strong, healthy kidneys.

RIGHT BACK AT HIM.

"Why do you put the hair of another woman on your head?" he asked her, severely.

"Why do you," she replied sweetly, "put the skin of another calf on your feet?"

Sleeplessness.—Sleep is the great restorer and to be deprived of it is vital loss. Whatever may be the cause of it, indigestion, nervous derangement or mental worry, try a course of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. By regulating the action of the stomach, where the trouble lies, they will restore normal conditions and healthful sleep will follow. They exert a sedative force upon the nerves and where there is unrest they bring rest.

ALUM AN UNSEEN DANGER IN FOOD.

Noted food scientists have decided that alum is an unseen danger in food, and as a result of their investigations, rigorous laws have been enacted and are now being vigorously enforced in England, France and Germany, prohibiting the use of alum in foods.

Until suitable laws are passed in Canada prohibiting the use of alum baking-powders, every housewife should be careful to buy only a baking-powder that has the ingredients printed plainly on the label.

RICHELIEU'S REISE.

Statesmen who take their dismissal with humor are so rare that one of whom Mr. Blount-Burton tells, in his recent book, "The Fate of Henry of Navarre," seems to merit further commemoration.

The Duc d'Epemon had fallen into disfavor with King Henry. Descending the great staircase of the Louvre, he met Richelieu ascending.

"Is there anything new taking place?" the cardinal indifferently asked.

"Nothing," returned the duke, "except that, as you see, I am going down and you are going up."

CLEANING A SILVER PURSE.

A writer in Harper's Bazar advises: Any woman who owns a silver purse, either sterling or German, and who constantly pays the jeweler for cleaning it, in order to save gloves and light dresses, will be very glad to know that common baking soda will clean it in a few minutes. That is what most jewelers use. I have found after having paid for having mine cleaned dozens of times. Just take plenty of soda and a little water and wash between the hands or with a brush; rinse and dry—and think of the money saved.

A Safe Pill for Sufferers.—There are pills that violently purge, and fill the stomach and intestines with pain. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are mild and effective. They are purely vegetable, no mineral purgative entering into their composition and their effect is soothing and beneficial. Try them and be convinced. Thousands can attest their great curative qualities because thousands owe their health and strength to timely use of the most excellent medicine.

SCOTTISH COPPER FIND.

What is described as an unusually rich mineral-bearing reef has been discovered at Castleton, on Loch Eyne, Scotland. The lode is 8 ft. in width, and, although it has not yet been assayed, has been pronounced by experienced miners to contain a large percentage of copper, as well as gold, silver, and lead. The discovery is the result of the systematized prospecting which has been going on owing to the accidental finding of the reef some months ago. The reef has been proved to over 100 ft. in depth, and is there much richer than at 60 ft.

THE COFFEE!

The other morning, at the breakfast-table, Mr. Skillings, who was in a highly self-satisfied mood, remarked to his wife:

"What if I were one of those husbands, my dear, who get up cross in the morning, bang things round, and kick because the coffee is cold?" "Why," responded Mrs. Skillings, sweetly, "I should make it hot for you."

SUFFERERS FROM PILES!

Zam-Buk Has Cured These!

Friction on the hemorrhoid veins that are swollen, inflamed and gorged with blood, is what causes the terrible pain and stinging and smarting of piles. Zam-Buk applied at night will be found to give ease before morning.

Mr. Thomas Pearson, of Prince Albert, Sask., writes: "I must thank you for the benefit I have received from Zam-Buk. Last summer I suffered greatly from piles. I started to use Zam-Buk and found it gave me relief, so I continued it, and after using three or four boxes it effected a complete cure."

Magistrate Sanford, of Weston, King's Co., N.S., says: "I suffered long from itching piles, but Zam-Buk has now cured me." Mr. William Kenty, of Upper Nine Mile River, Hants Co., N.S., says: "I suffered terribly from piles, the pain at times being almost unbearable. I tried various ointments, but everything I tried failed to do me the slightest good. I was tired of trying various remedies, when I heard of Zam-Buk, and thought as a last resource I would give this balm a trial. After a very short time Zam-Buk effected a complete cure."

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for skin injuries and diseases, eczema, ulcers, varicose veins, cuts, burns, bruises, chaps, cold sores, etc. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse imitations. Try Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

HOT BREADS FOR WINTER.

Indian Griddle Cakes.—Sift together three cups of yellow cornmeal, one cup of flour, one teaspoonful of brown sugar, half teaspoonful of salt, and a heaping tablespoonful of baking powder; then mix to a smooth batter with two eggs beaten well with a pint of sweet milk. Bake brown on a hot griddle. Serve with maple syrup and butter.

Ginger Muffins.—Into "one-half cupful of New Orleans molasses stir one-half teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of ginger, one-half cupful of granulated sugar, and one tablespoonful of melted butter. Into two and one-fourth cups of sifted flour stir one and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda, then add these to the ingredients with molasses and thin to a batter with a cupful of sour milk. Beat well, fill buttered muffin tins partly full, and bake in moderate oven for twenty minutes.

Buttermilk Biscuits.—Sift a quart of flour, then stir into it a heaping tablespoonful of baking powder and a teaspoonful of salt. Melt two level tablespoonfuls of lard and mix with the flour, then moisten to a soft dough with a pint of buttermilk, into which one-half a teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved. Roll out to half an inch thickness and cut into the usual size biscuits, handling as little as possible. Bake in a quick oven.

Graham Griddle Cakes.—For these are required a pint of graham flour, one-half pint each of yellow cornmeal and flour; with these mix one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of brown sugar, two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and after they are thoroughly stirred together mix to a batter with one-half each of milk and water and one egg, well beaten. The griddle must be hot to bake these cakes brown. Serve with cream and grated maple sugar.

Buckwheat Cakes.—This is an old and well liked recipe. For the cakes are required one and one-half pints of buckwheat, one cupful each of yellow corn meal and flour. Stir these together, then add three heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a teaspoonful of salt, and a tablespoonful of molasses, which will add to their brownness when baked. Mix to a batter with water, not too cold. The cakes should be mixed just before they are needed for baking. Serve with maple syrup and plenty of butter.

Johnny Cake.—One egg, one tablespoonful lard, one pinch of salt, one cup of sweet milk, two scant cups of flour, one teaspoonful baking powder. Mix well and bake in quick oven for twenty minutes.

IN THE SEWING ROOM.

It may surprise most women to learn that it is not conducive to good health to sit in a rocking chair while sewing if the material has to be kept on one's lap. A rocking chair throws the body out of balance by pitching it backward at an unnatural angle. In it the muscles of the front of the body—the muscles of the chest and diaphragm—are contracted, the chest is made hollow, the ribs are pulled down, and the back is rounded.

A chair with a straight back should be used, and the body should be held in the same erect position that the cutting table requires—chin and abdomen in, back straight, chest out. Of course, it is necessary when sewing on the lap to bend forward, but the bending should be done from the hips—the back should not be rounded. Sewing at the machine properly conducted is an admirable exercise. Be sure to sit erect, bending only at the hips, and you will find the rapid pedaling will be beneficial as a healthful exercise.

Correct sewing is readily governed by a few simple rules, which, if followed out, make the plying of the needle and thread an exercise which deepens the chest, improves the carriage, strengthens the back and shoulders, clears the complexion, and brightens the eyes.

In the first place the sewing room should be well ventilated. The air in it should be as fresh and pure as the air out of doors. Three operations go on in the sewing room—viz.: cutting, the seamstress standing at the table; stitching, seated at a machine; sewing, with the material in the lap. In cutting the manner in which the seamstress bends over the table is everything. The following exercise taken two or three times a day is a wonderful help toward correct bending at the work table, that is, bending without constricting the chest or abdomen. Stand perfectly erect with the heels together, the chin and abdomen in, the chest out, the back straight. Slowly filling the lungs with air, raise the arms, held stiff, from the sides outward, until the hands meet over the head, and at the time the hands meet, the lungs should be filled to their fullest extent with air. Slowly exhaling the air, lower the arms to the sides again. Repeat this movement twenty times.

There is a right way and a wrong way to sew, and she who pursues the right way arises from her sewing after a day's work greatly benefited. She may be weary, but her weariness is that derived from healthful work, like the weariness which follows a game of tennis, for instance, but the woman who habitually takes the wrong position runs a great risk of developing indigestion, to say the least, if not more serious lung trouble.

CAKE.

German Apple Cake.—One pint flour, one-half teaspoonful baking powder, one-half teaspoonful salt, mixed and sifted; rub in two tablespoonfuls of butter, and one beaten egg, and milk to make thick batter. Spread one inch deep in greased shallow tin. Have ready several pared, cored, and quartered apples. Press points into dough, sprinkle thickly with sugar mixed with little cinnamon. Bake in hot oven.

Christmas Cake.—Two pounds of flour, one pound and a quarter currants, one pound and a quarter raisins, three-quarters of a pound of candied peel, two ounces of almonds, half a pound of butter, three-quarters of a pound of lard, one pound and a quarter of granulated sugar, one tablespoonful of baking powder, two teaspoonfuls of mixed spice or a few drops of essence of lemon, eight eggs, and a little milk. Stone the raisins and wash thoroughly the currants, blanch and chop the almonds; cut the peel very fine and mix all the flour well together. In another bowl mix the flour, baking powder and spice. Take another bowl and beat the butter and lard to a cream; add the sugar, then the eggs (well beaten); next add the fruit, then last of all the flour; beat well and pour into buttered tins. Bake from two and a half to three hours. The oven must be hot at first, and then cool down. This makes an excellent cake.

SWEETS.

Date Delight.—Two cupfuls of light brown sugar, one cupful granulated sugar, one cupful of milk, one cupful of chopped dates, one tablespoonful of butter, and vanilla flavoring. Mix sugar and milk together and let it come to a boil. It is done when it will form a soft ball. Take from fire and beat till creamy. Stir in dates, spread and cut.

Toothsomeness.—Stone a quantity of nice firm dates, stiff with Neufchatel cheese, roll in lemon juice, and then in powdered sugar. These make a delicious after dinner sweet.

Bonbon Balls.—Chop equal quantities of figs, dates and pecans. Mix them with a little cream, roll into balls, coating the outside with sugar.

Gingerettes.—Cut preserved ginger in small pieces and pour fondant over them; before this sets lay on a strip of ginger so as to have a piece on each strip when cut into oblongs. These are especially nice for luncheons.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Cold rain water and soap will remove machine grease from washable fabrics.

The teapot should be carefully dried after washing keep it sweet. Before turning out a pudding let it stand three or four minutes for the steam to escape.

To test the freshness of eggs drop them slowly into a bowl of water, and if the small ends come up they are fresh.

Rub the hands with celery after using onions, and the pungent, disagreeable smell will soon disappear. Flour baked in a tin dish till it is well browned is a very good "coloring" to keep ready for use.

When making coffee in a jug, place the ground coffee in a muslin bag, beat the jug, and use perfectly boiling water.

Choose jugs for household use which are wide enough at the top to allow of a thorough cleaning with the hand or a cloth.

Frozen meat should be gradually thawed by being placed in the kitchen for several hours before it is cooked. If cooked at once it will be tough.

Moths can be prevented in carpets by scrubbing floor with hot strong salt water solution before laying the carpet and frequently sprinkling the carpet with salt besweeping.

To clean your rugs put them upside down on bed springs laid down in the yard. Beat them thoroughly, then turn them over and sweep. This saves the dirt from the ground getting into the rugs.

To clean fruit jars that have been exposed to dust and dirt, possibly left open, just throw into them a small handful of sand and a little cold water. Shake a moment and you will be surprised at the result. They come out as clean as new.

How to get rid of rats—Get pieces of unslaked lime and scatter about the places they come from and by running over it their feet get burned and they run away and never come again and do not lie about the place dead.

Wallpaper Cleaner.—One heaping cup sifted flour, one tablespoon salt, one tablespoon coal oil, two tablespoons vinegar, two tablespoons ammonia, one-half cup warm water. Mix in a small kettle. Boil until flour is well scalded and moisture is used up. Stir continually. Remove from stove and knead with the hands until ready for use. Make into balls and rub the walls with this.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL STUDY

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, NOVEMBER 5.

Lesson VI.—Esther pleading for people, Esth. 4. 1 to 5. 3. Golden Text, Psa. 145. 20.

Verse 1. Mordecai—His ancestry and relation to Esther are described in Esther 2. 5-7. It is interesting to trace his lineage back to Saul the son of Kish, and that of Haman back to Saul's enemy, Agag (Esther 3. 1). The unselfishness of Mordecai appears in his reporting to the king a murderous intrigue, thus proving his loyalty, though a sternly patriotic Jew, to a foreign ruler. Also he is the constant promoter of the interests of his lovely ward. Though in the end he receives highest honors, he never seeks them.

All that was done—As described in the previous chapter. His knowledge of the peril of his people plunged him into despair, which found expression in the usual outward, Oriental, symbols of grief, sackcloth and ashes. His dismay was shared by the Jews in every province (3), their mourning being accompanied, in true Eastern fashion, by loud and bitter lamentations. Their fasting is the nearest approach to anything like a religious act in the book.

5. Esther—She had been an orphan of obscure origin, reared in the home of her own cousin. After spending a year in preparation at the palace, she had been chosen as queen from among the most beautiful maidens of Persia. The new name given her, Istar, was that of a Babylonian goddess, equivalent to the Greek Aphrodite. In her ignorance of the course of events, she could not understand the meaning of Mordecai's sackcloth, and so sent fresh raiment for him, and when he refused it made further inquiries as to what it was and why. In her lofty position she never for a moment forgot her kind benefactor. From childhood she had followed his command, and even from her royal elevation she looks up to him with reverent admiration.

6. The broad place—The wide, open square of the city of Susa, or Shusan, one of the three capitals of the empire. It was situated in the province of Elam, to the north of the Persian Gulf.

7. The exact sum of money—As described in Esther 3. 9-11. Haman was a man of fierce enterprise, determined that nothing should thwart his will. When he had once formed his villainous design, he clinched his proposition to the king by the offer of a huge bribe, equal to the revenue of a kingdom.

8. Charge her that she should go—Mordecai saw that the disaster that seemed to await his people was due entirely to the affront he had offered Haman. Hence he called upon every possible resource

ANOTHER LIFE SAVED.

Weak Lungs Restored by Morriscy's "No. 10."

ST. JOHN, N. B., Nov. 17, 1910. "I had Pleuro-Pneumonia, and was taken to the City Hospital to have my lungs tapped. After this was done I seemed to get worse, and never expected to walk again. In fact, I was given up and wanted to be taken home from the hospital. I was in a terribly rundown condition and felt that I was going right into consumption, and for six months was just a shadow. I tried every means to get well, but there was no cure for me until I began taking your No. 10 Lung Tonic, of which I used 22 bottles in all. It was not long after returning home that I surprised my neighbors by gaining in strength and health, and now I am in good health, and feel it my duty to publish it everywhere, as I am living to-day—saved from the grave by your wonderful prescription. You may publish this letter if you wish, for I am willing to let the world know what this medicine did for me, and I cannot praise it too highly."

Mrs. John S. Barker.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 41 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

MAN IN THE CONCRETE.—Life

VITALITY OF BACTERIA.

Microbes Show Remarkable Recuperative Powers.

The extraordinary vitality of bacteria is illustrated by a series of experiments undertaken by Prof. Busson, of which the German scientific review Microcosmos gives an account.

Seven years ago Prof. Busson transferred a culture of bacteria coli to a glass tube filled with chemically pure water, which is a germicide, as it anoints no nourishment for the microbes. Yet that didn't kill the bacteria. In the period stated they had prospered and increased.

The explanation given is that as soon as the water became tinged, however slightly, with alkali detached from the inner wall of the test tube it lost its germicidal properties, and those bacteria that had succumbed at first provided food for the survivors.

A striking experiment was that made with bacteria of cattle disease, which seventeen years ago were preserved, baked and dried or silk threads. They were supposed to be quite dead, but after they were transferred to a slab of gelatin it was found that after this long period of inactivity they soon took nourishment and were as virulently poisonous as ever.

If a man doesn't look out for himself he will never be able to get a look-in.

that, therefore, hers was a great responsibility.

2. She obtained favor in his sight—The fact, as well as the resourcefulness and courage of Esther should not escape us. She was arrayed in all the gorgeous splendor of her royal apparel (1). Her beautiful face shone with the light of her unselfish purpose. How could the king disdain such loveliness? She had not prostrated her beauty to a silly vanity in the sensuous life of the palace, but had consecrated it to lofty uses.

Touched the top of the scepter—A mark of devotion and gratitude.

3. The half of the kingdom—A common proffer of the flattered pride of kings (compare Mark 6. 22).

"NOT PLAYIN'."

Pat, thinking to enliven the party, stated, with watch in hand: "I'll present a box of candy to the lady that makes the homeliest face within the next three minutes."

The time expired, Pat announced: "Ah, Mrs. McGuire, you get the prize."

"But," protested Mrs. McGuire, "go 'way wid ye! I wasn't playin' at all."

PARK LIKE STREETS OF PARIS

All wide Paris streets are in effect parks. They have rows of shade trees. Many of them have a central park strip planted with trees, grass and flowers, and benches are placed here. Along the chief streets are perhaps 100,000 trees, a large number for a city so compactly built.

Father—You mustn't cry for it; wait till you are older. Tommy—Then I'll be too old to cry.

"Gee! Now tell me, as man to man, what would you do if you were married to that woman?" "You tell me what you would do; I am married to her."

"Think of it! I just planted one can of peas and one of turnips.—Life.

LIFE SENTENCE

Was Meted Out to Farquhar McRae for the Shooting of Wm. Shaw—Prisoner Has Been Remanded to Kingston Penitentiary and Will Go Into the Hospital Ward.

The trial of Farquhar McRae at Cornwall last week for the shooting of Wm. Shaw, of Carp, on July 1st, at Bridge End, came to an end Friday night, and was the cause of bringing out a great crowd. Judge Sutherland rendered his verdict Saturday morning, which was that he should be incarcerated in the Kingston penitentiary for the remainder of his life, which came as a distinct surprise, as most everyone expected a much lighter sentence, especially in view of the recommendation of mercy from nine of the jury.

Farquhar McRae was a witness in his own behalf, and told a straightforward story, but it did not leave the impression on the judge that many thought it would.

Cornwall, Nov. 1.—“F. D. McRae is a dazed man. He is absolutely unable to understand why the judge and jury could not accept his story. It is the same story,” declares J. A. Chisholm, one of his counsel, “as the story he told me on July 6th, the first time I saw him after the shooting, and before the inquest. The importance of his testimony as to whether he was excited or not when the shot was fired was represented to him, but he absolutely refused to change his evidence a particle, whatever the cost, and if he had sworn that he was excited he could not have been contradicted.”

“I told facts just as they happened, and I can’t understand why it was not seen as I see it,” McRae declares again and again.

“There is a man,” added Mr. Chisholm, “who refuses to budge absolutely from the truth, and who holds the opinion that the marriage tie is indissoluble, and there he is,” and the lawyer motioned in the direction of the cells.

McRae will go into the hospital of the penitentiary as soon as he arrives at Kingston. During his stay in Cornwall jail for the past two months he has had medical treatment every other day.

The village of Carp has been less interested in the fate of William Shaw’s slayer since word came from the Old Country that Shaw, who was about to be married to a young lady of Carp, was already married. His wife is in England, and he has not seen her for two years.

D. C. McRae, father of Mrs. Magee, is apprehensive that further efforts may be made by Dr. Magee to get possession of his child. Dr. Magee has, however, assured him that if he takes any further steps it will be through the courts.

Concerning the arrival of McRae at Kingston the British Whig of yesterday says:—

The noon train from the east brought two prisoners for the big prison at Portsmouth, accompanied by the deputy sheriff of Glengarry and the governor of the gaol. Farquhar McRae, sentenced to life imprisonment at Cornwall, last Saturday, for manslaughter, was one of the prisoners and a young man named McGillivray, of Morrisburg, sentenced to three years for an attempted criminal offence, was the other.

McRae, who was dressed in a blue suit, is tall and stooped. He was in no mood for conversation, and, as he has been under medical care, will go into the hospital when he arrives at the prison. He was not handcuffed.

The prisoners had dinner at the depot restaurant, from whence they were driven to the prison, one to finish his days and the other, in time, to be released and, it is hoped, start life anew.

Sudden Death at Ottawa

(Cornwall Standard.)
Mr. C. W. Young, of the Cornwall Freeholder, received the sad intelligence of the death of his brother, Mr. R. E. Young, of Ottawa, on Tuesday morning, Oct. 23. The deceased was a frequent visitor here and the news of his death was a great shock to his many friends, whose deepest sympathy goes out to his brother and the other members of the family. The Ottawa Citizen makes the following reference to the sad event:—

Robert Evans Young, D.L.S., chief geographer of the Dominion of Canada and superintendent of the Lands Division Department of the Interior, was found dead in his bed at his home on Rideau Street, Ottawa, at half past seven on Tuesday morning.

The late Mr. Young retired at half-past ten on Monday night, apparently in the very best of health, not even complaining of a headache. When found next morning he was sitting up in bed with a copy of “The Life of Gladstone” in his hands. The doctors said he had been dead probably six hours or more and attributed his death to heart failure.

The late Mr. Young was born in Georgetown, Ont., in the year 1861. In 1887 he married Miss Winnifred Francis, daughter of the late Henry Lowe, D.L.S., formerly of Dunnville, Ont. He succeeded in passing examinations as Dominion Land Surveyor and Provincial Land Surveyor of Manitoba in Winnipeg, 1882, and Provincial Land Surveyor of British Columbia, in Victoria, in 1899. He spent twenty years surveying in Manitoba and British Columbia, and in 1904 he made a special survey of the city of Winnipeg, which was rendered necessary by the introduction of the Torrens system of land transfer, and was carried out under the Provincial Government and the City Council of Winnipeg jointly. He also wrote several articles on “The Northlands of Canada.”

He was predeceased by his wife two years ago, and he leaves to survive him four daughters, Misses Winnifred, Edith, Patricia and Elizabeth; two brothers, Messrs. W. C. Young, Brantford, and C. W. Young, proprietor of the Cornwall Freeholder, and one sister, Mrs. G. Evans, residing in Scotland.

MEN’S MISSIONARY CONVENTION AT OTTAWA

Notable Speakers Will Deliver Addresses.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 13th, 14th and 15th, a great missionary convention will be held in Ottawa in connection with the Laymen’s Missionary Movement. These meetings form a link in a chain of similar conventions extending from the Pacific to the Atlantic Coast and participated in by men of wealth, men of commerce, men of rank.

A notable list of speakers will be heard in Ottawa, orators who have moved large audiences to enthusiasm by their forceful and impressive addresses. Among these speakers will be Sir Andrew Fraser, ex Governor of Bengal, and Dr. Robert Speer, of New York, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

This convention is inter-denominational, thus comprising workers from every church for the advancement of the missionary cause throughout the world. It is expected that several hundred delegates from outside the city will be in attendance, which, together with the local members will bring the conference numerically well over the thousand mark.

In order to meet the expenses incidental to such an event the delegate’s membership fees will be two dollars for the local delegates and one dollar for those from points outside Ottawa. The usual convention rates will be granted by the railroads, and a list of the hotels and lodging houses will be furnished delegates from outside places.

The secretary of the Executive Committee is Mr. Frederick Baxter, Canadian Building, Slater street, from whom all information may be obtained, or those so wishing may communicate with the secretary of their own denomination. These secretaries are as follows: Presbyterian, Mr. John McJanet, 170 Waverley street; Methodist, Rev. G. S. Clendinning, 65 Stewart street; Anglican, Mr. George Hann, Mounted Police Department; Congregational, Rev. G. Watt Smith, 96 Patterson avenue; Baptist, Rev. R. R. McKay, 64 Mutchmor street; Reformed Episcopal, C. Donaldson, 157 Stanley avenue. Folders containing full information may be obtained from any of the above gentlemen.

TRIED EVERYTHING WITHOUT RELIEF

Until I took “Fruit-a-tives”

SARNIA, ONT., Feb. 5th, 1910.
“I have been a sufferer for the past 25 years with Constipation, Indigestion and Catarrh of the Stomach. I tried many remedies and many doctors but derived no benefit whatever.

Finally, I read an advertisement of ‘Fruit-a-tives’. I decided to give ‘Fruit-a-tives’ a trial and found they did exactly what was claimed for them.

I have now taken ‘Fruit-a-tives’ for some months and find that they are the only remedy that does me good.

I have recommended ‘Fruit-a-tives’ to a great many of my friends and I cannot praise these fruit tablets too highly.”

“Fruit-a-tives” is the only natural cure for Constipation and Stomach Trouble, because it is the only medicine in the world that is made of fruit juices and valuable tonics. Hundreds of people have been cured, as if by a miracle, by taking ‘Fruit-a-tives’, the famous fruit medicine.

MacKAY FAIR FOE SO SAYS PREMIER

Sir James Always Found Relations With Former Opposition Leader Satisfactory—No Comment on Mr. Rowell.

(Toronto World)

Sir James Whitney would make no statement yesterday regarding the change in leadership of the Ontario Liberals.

“As regards the selection of Mr. Rowell, I have nothing to say—at present,” remarked the premier, “but I do want to say a word about Hon. A. G. MacKay, and it will be a good word. Mr. MacKay’s capability is well known. I always found him ready to meet me on reasonable terms in order to expedite the business of the legislative assembly, and, as far as my memory goes, I have no reason to complain of his treatment of me at any time. I always endeavored to reciprocate his treatment of me, and I think I must have succeeded.”

“With regard to the circumstances that brought about his resignation, I have nothing to say, but I repeat that my intercourse with Mr. MacKay as leader of the opposition was very satisfactory, and I wish him every prosperity in the future.”

BOTH LEGS CUT OFF

Shocking Fatality at Brockville—Port Hope Man the Victim

Brockville, October 30.—Two car inspectors of the Grand Trunk Railway, at an early hour yesterday following the departure of No. 82 express for Montreal, found a young man in the station yards lying beside the track with both legs severed, one above and the other below the knee.

The victim turned out to be Frank Keeler, of Port Hope, aged 30 years. Six hours after his removal to the hospital death ensued from shock. Keeler was unable to give any account of the accident, but it is supposed he was riding the blind baggage of the express into Brockville, and in jumping off before the train stopped stumbled and went under the wheels.

You will be proud of the bread you’ll make with PURITY FLOUR

AFTER seeing a batch of big, golden-cruised, snowy-white loaves, that you have baked from PURITY FLOUR, you will, indeed, be proud of your cooking-ability—and proud of your wisdom in deciding to pay the little extra it costs to procure such high-class flour. You will admit, too, that we are justified in the pride we take in milling this superb flour.

PURITY FLOUR

“More bread and better bread”

PURITY FLOUR is milled exclusively from the best Western hard wheat—the world’s finest. More than that, PURITY FLOUR consists entirely of the high-grade portions of the wheat. The low-grade portions are separated and excluded during the PURITY process of milling. Such high-class flour, of course, expands more in the baking. It makes “more bread and better bread.”

It makes lighter, flakier pastry, too, if you just take the precaution to add more shortening. On account of its unusual strength PURITY FLOUR, for best results, requires more shortening than ordinary flour.

Progressive dealers, everywhere, sell PURITY FLOUR and take pride in recommending it.

Add PURITY FLOUR to your grocery list right now. 106

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

SOME SIGNIFICANT CONTRASTS BETWEEN BONDS AND REAL ESTATE MORTGAGES.

Difficulty of Subdividing a Mortgage and Necessity of Examination of Property Makes Sale Difficult, if Not Impossible—All Right for Big Estates and Companies—More Suitable Investments for Those of Small Means.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible, saving them from losing money through placing it in "wildcat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

The question of distribution of risk is one that few mortgage investors bear in mind. As a rule, the average investor has but limited means, and, therefore, cannot buy more than a few mortgages at the most. These, too, are altogether likely to be in his own neighborhood. The result is that when a year like the present comes—severe drought in many places, perhaps causing a total failure of the crop in the particular district in which one has been loaning—there is a very good chance that interest, at least, will not be forthcoming. It is hard, if not impossible, for a person of small capital to get a sufficient number of small mortgages to enable him to distribute his risk properly. On the other hand, in the case of many bonds, one can buy denominations of $100 and upwards. The farmer who is willing to place a mortgage for so small a sum as that on his property in all probability is in such straitened circumstances that the security is very doubtful.

Of course, in the case of a very large estate the question of proper distribution of risk demands that a certain proportion of the money involved be put into sound mortgages.

As pointed out last week, the fact that mortgages are saleable only with difficulty, is a serious drawback in the case of many investors. The reason for this is quite obvious. In the first place, mortgages, that is, real estate mortgages, are usually made by private individuals. They are not divisible, so that it is impossible for a purchaser to buy part of a mortgage. In the case of a bond, on the contrary, the holder of a thousand dollar Wm. Davies bond, for example, can divide it into ten bonds of $100 each, each of which is equally as secure as the whole, and it is issued by a company whose shareholders, in their desire for dividends, will see that its earning power is kept up, if at all possible. Then the prospective purchaser of a mortgage will have to go to the expense of a careful search of the title of the property mortgaged; he will have to go to the expense and trouble of having the property valued, and he will have to worry about the question of insurance. In short, it is no great wonder that mortgages cannot be sold for their face value. If, on the other hand, the seller of a mortgage has to pay all these expenses when the purchaser demands it, he is that much worse off, as the expense adds to his loss.

In the case of bonds all this trouble is obviated for the reason that the legality and security of a bond issue are, as a rule, carefully examined and passed upon once for all by one or more of the most skilled lawyers in Canada. Except in the case of small municipal bond issues the issues are for large amounts and are therefore generally so well known that there is no need for more than the mere statement that one wishes to sell in order, at most times, to find a ready purchaser.

For the small private investor, then, there is no comparison between the two classes of securities.

The writer will, of course, be accused of prejudice against mortgages. That is quite true, but it is based on experience. For, many years ago I loaned a small sum on a first mortgage. The amount was small and on ample security—residential property in a part of Toronto which was rapidly growing in population and value. It so happened that I found it necessary to get some ready cash for another and much more desirable investment. I tried to sell the mortgage. The first and only offer was for an amount equal to only 80 per cent. of its face value. As this meant a substantial loss of $200 out of every thousand, it was naturally not accepted. Finally, the other investment, which proved profitable to those who "got in on it," had to be passed by.

The reason why large companies like insurance, mortgage and loan companies find mortgages so attractive is this: In the first place, they employ large staffs whose duties are so divided that all such small, but important, details of a mortgage as insurance, etc., are attended to as part of the routine of the day's work. They can afford to employ their own skilled valuers who do nothing else but pass on the security of mortgage opportunities offered them. Finally, their yearly incomes are so great and from such a diversity of districts that if John Jones and, perhaps, a score of others find it impossible to meet their interest payments they are by no means worried—they let it rest for a season, when, in the usual course of events it will be caught up.

Unless, therefore, you are willing to go to a lot of trouble and worry, not only over making your original investment, but in all the time it is current, it is best to avoid mortgages. Of course, many people have made money out of mortgages—but not in a way any respectable person would care to do.

EUROPE'S TIPS NO BIGGER

NEED OF A FIXED SCALE STILL FELT BY TOURISTS.

Standards in Different Countries—Wealthy Men Sometimes Disappoint.

Most travellers will agree that the painful and disagreeable thing about tipping is not the extraction of extra money from their pockets but the calculation of the proper tip and the perpetual fear of doing the calculation wrongly. We are all weak minded when the expectant staff gather around the door.

It is a poor spirited traveller that won't face secretary, manager and proprietor of he thinks he has been overcharged; few are they who do not dread more than the galleys the imagined sneer or pity of the under-tipped menial. The concierge makes cowards of us all.

The trouble is that there is no fixed tariff, no regular scale. Hotel tips vary from so many causes, writes A. G. Throssell in the London Evening Standard, that only long experience and observation can teach the traveller what he ought to give in each case. Not only do they vary according to the quality and amount of service rendered and the characteristics of the tipper—a teetotaler, for instance, might tip the head waiter extra well to show that he shunned the wine list on principle not parsimony—but they also vary according to whether they are called "tips," "pourboire," "tinkgeld," or "bakshish."

A SURPRISED PORTER.

At Ventimiglia, which is the worst arranged of all Italian frontier stations, the porter wants two francs for taking a very little truckload of luggage from one train through the customs to the other. But at Riva, the southern entrance to Tyrol, the grizzled Austrian porter regarded me as a reckless spendthrift when I gave him two kronen (1s. 8d.) for taking the same load through the customs over a hundred yards of heavy gravel and up a flight of hotel stairs. It was only later I discovered that in Austria, where coins of the value of one-tenth and one-fifth of a penny are frequent and useful, 50 heller or fivepence, will go as far to make a porter or waiter smile as a franc does in France or Italy.

One thing to be thankful for is that tips on the whole are probably not growing larger. A few years ago Americans got themselves disliked by their efforts to get special attention for themselves, the result being to raise the standard for every one, but most particularly for themselves, to an extent they did not bargain for. Americans of known wealth were expected to give huge donations (they could not be called mere tips) after the shortest stay. For instance, the staff of a well known hotel on the Italian lakes was deeply disappointed when Mr. Andrew Carnegie, after a visit of two or three days, gave "only" ten lire apiece.

MILLIONAIRES' TIPS.

They would not have been astonished if they had got a hundred lire each; not realizing that Mr. Carnegie's generosity has usually a purpose. But if this tip was sensible, another and even better known multi-millionaire carried common sense to the limit. Mr. J. D. Rockefeller stayed at the same hotel a week, and his tip to those of the staff who did anything for him was two lire. Even Frankfurter Germans give more than that. But possibly his courier could have thrown light on the matter.

Still less adequate to the circumstances, but a mistake of ignorance, was a tip given by a lady in Melbourne. She was a stranger, on her way from New Zealand to England, and an hour or so before her steamer was due to leave she awakened from an entrancing conversation to the fact that the train had taken her to the terminus of a short suburban line exactly in the opposite point of the compass to the wharf. It was as if she aimed at Tilbury and reached Hammersmith Broadway.

The train would start back in a few minutes, but still it might be a close thing. She said to him, "Oh, couldn't the driver start sooner, and do please ask him to go as quickly as possible?" And she pressed into the guard's hand half a crown with which to bribe the engine driver to ignore the time table and turn a respectable suburban slow into

A THROUGH EXPRESS.

The guard, I regret to say, said he would do his best. Quite in accordance with feminine nature that lady is a successful business woman, and of course she wants a vote.

Australian railway stations, by the way, are (or were recently) among the few places on earth where you do not have to tip for services rendered. You can, of course, walk out of almost any hotel and "forget" the servants, and they won't seize your luggage or call the police or even, like the railway porter, politely but firmly remind you. But it calls for the thickest sort of "hide" and a certainty that you will never want to stay in that hotel again.

There is only one authenticated instance of a traveller making a dignified and applauded exit without giving any tips. He too was an American; not, presumably, a plutocrat, but of a manner both imposing and genial, and he left amid a shower of smiles and good wishes. Afterwards all the staff were asking each other the same question, to which the same answer came: "No, he didn't give me anything, but he shook hands with me." So much for the power of affability to disarm the predatory instinct. Most of us can only offer up the harmless, necessary cash.

And what a handsome "muckle" their many "mickles" make most travellers are no doubt vaguely aware. It is by their tips that head waiters blossom in due season into hotel owners. For the sake of the tips in big houses the concierges pay large premiums to get the position. One Riviera concierge usually goes for a three months motor tour in his £1,000 car while his hotel is closed in the summer. Another further north, after playing the civil and obliging servant all day, walks out of the hotel at night to be picked up around the corner by his own private landaulette with liveried chauffeur and driven home to his own private villa, which is not the least desirable in the neighborhood.

SCIENCE SAYS ALUM IS UNFIT FOR USE IN FOOD.

In Great Britain no one is allowed to sell alum hidden in baking-powder, because the English law protects the people from this injurious acid.

Canada has not yet enacted a law against the use of alum, and as alum in baking-powder cannot be detected by its appearance, many manufacturers are using this condemned acid because it is a cheap adulterant.

It is a fact, that alum in your stomach produces the same disagreeable results to the delicate organism as you will feel in your mouth by putting a tiny piece on your tongue. Science shows that alum reduces the flow of the gastric juices and weakens their power of assimilation, causing indigestion and the ills that follow.

No housewife should buy a baking-powder made by a manufacturer that is afraid to print the ingredients plainly on the label of each can, and the wording should state that there is no alum in disguise inside.

SANITY AND BIG FEET.

New and startling doctrines are constantly being sprung upon us. One of the latest is that sanity can be measured by the feet. It comes from the Paris Academy of Sciences, where two distinguished professors, after patient investigation, have arrived at the conclusion that sane men have large feet and sane women small feet. According to the report of the scientists, eighteen out of every hundred normal men have small feet; and out of a hundred insane men, only twenty-four have large feet. The proportions for women are almost exactly reversed. Out of every hundred sane women, twenty-three have large feet, and, on the contrary, only 18 per cent. of madwomen have small feet. Thus is proved sound the ancient, popular opinion that a small foot is a beauty in women. Even the Chinese may be justified if, by reducing a woman's foot, you say "increase her sanity."

TIP TIPS.

Porters and hotel servants on the Continent use very ingenious marks on luggage directly a tip has been given. The symbol indicates to all other porters the character and generosity of the traveller. A curved mark on the top left-hand corner signifies that the traveller is quite a "novice and inexperienced." A diagonal scratch on the bottom left-hand corner means "very precise and disagreeable." A cross on the bottom right-hand corner means "exact but liberal." Small vertical marks near the lock indicate "magnanimous," and a traveller whose luggage bears this mark can be sure of the most careful attention. But a horizontal line on the top right-hand corner shows that the person is miserly, and that tips are very small and few in number.

THE WARNING OF FOOD EXPERTS AGAINST THE USE OF ALUM POWDERS.

There are many housewives that unthinkingly use alum baking-powders in making biscuits, cake and pastry, when it would only take a little precaution to avoid doing so. Baking-powders that contain alum cause indigestion and nerve disorders. English food experts condemn alum as an injurious adulterant unfit for a baking-powder ingredient. If you are not careful you may be buying alum in your baking-powder and putting it in food. The way to be sure is to read the label on the baking-powder, and if the ingredients are not plainly printed on it, refuse to accept it.

WEAVERS OF PERSIAN RUGS

PRODUCED ON THE VERY RUDEST OF LOOMS.

Choice of Dyes and Materials—How They Determine Shape and Pattern.

By the beginning of the seventeenth century the Persian had attained to the greatest skill in the weaving of rugs, consequently the industry must have originated at a much earlier date. This theory would seem to be borne out by the fact that the weavers often sing songs some of which are so ancient that they are in a language which is not now understood.

During all these centuries the Persians have produced their own dyes, yet, strange to say, during the past hundred years the secret of making certain colors, particularly the dark blue so much admired in the finest old rugs, has been lost. Dyes of superior quality, especially reds and greens, which even European ingenuity has been unable to equal, are obtained by the people of Kurdistan from flowers and herds growing in their mountains. The art of extracting these dyes has been known for ages to the people of those regions; but alas, says Mary A. C. Colquhoun in the Los Angeles Times, these vegetable dyes are being superseded by aniline dyes.

The former were used by the Persians as long as the making of rugs was in their own hands. They gave great softness and richness of color to the old rugs, and retained their brightness, so that the shades in a rug are as clear and bright and beautiful to-day as on the day that it left the loom. But now the rug industry is largely in the hands of European firms, which unfortunately are introducing the cheaper aniline dyes.

If you have ever seen a Persian rug fifty years old or older which had been used only in its native country you have doubtless observed that, though made of wool, it had the sheen of velvet. This was due partly to the excellence of the dyes and the workmanship, but partly also to the fact that it had never known the touch of a shoe, but had been walked over in stockinged feet. If a man should enter your drawing room and stand on the sofa and upholstered chairs it would appear no more outrageous to you than it does to a Persian to walk with shoes upon his rug.

It seems impossible that such a beautiful thing as a Persian rug should be produced on the rudest of looms, consisting, as they do, merely of crooked, irregular beams of wood roughly fastened together. The rude construction of the loom explains why it is that every genuine Persian rug of any length is more or less crooked. This is because after part of it is woven it must be removed from the loom and lowered; and on so crude an affair it is impossible to get the warp of the second part exactly straight with that of the first part.

Until quite recently each province had its own style of rug, each village its own pattern, and yet each rug had an individuality of its own and no two rugs were identical in design. The weaver copied designs and effects from or from common objects in every day use. Sometimes a verse from the Koran or a stanza of a poem, in the graceful, intricate Arabic character, formed part of the pattern.

One reason why the Persian rug is more beautiful than the European is that its pattern does not represent flowers, bouquets or other objects thrown up in a layer of flowers or leaves strewn on the ground, certainly a more suitable style for a fabric meant to be used under foot, and one, also, which makes possible a more harmonious blending of shades.

The rugs are always narrow in proportion to their length. This is due partly to the fact that they are woven for rooms which conditions of construction make of that same shape, partly to the fact that a narrow carpet, since it does not require a large frame on which to stretch the warp, is more easily woven than a wide one. The only rugs which approach a square in shape are those which of late years are being made for foreign trade.

The customary arrangement of carpets in a Persian room is as follows: On the two sides and at the end opposite the door are rugs about two and a half feet wide and the length of the space to be covered. They are sometimes woven, but more often are of the soft, silky camel's hair, which is pressed to gether into a mass an inch or more in thickness and has some pattern stamped upon it. In the space between these three narrow strips is the real woven rug.

THE PRAYER RUG

has a shape or rather a design peculiar to itself, the border being square at the bottom and having an arch at the top. This arch indicates the proper place for the prayer stone to which the devout Mohammedan frequently touches his forehead while performing his devotions. Thus we see that circumstances largely determine the shape and pattern of a Persian rug.

The amount of labor that goes to the weaving of a rug is almost incredible. In the finest silk rugs there are hundreds, yes, sometimes thousands, of knots to the square inch. Every bit of the work is done by hand. It is not surprising, therefore, that the weaving of such a rug of ordinary size requires years of time.

Often the one who begins the rug dies before it is finished and another takes up the work, and as the pattern was only in the mind of the first worker the second part of it is more or less different from the first. But these things, the slight crookedness, the change of pattern and the irregularities of design, things which might be considered blemishes in machine made European articles, only serve to enhance the artistic value of a Persian rug.

Until recent years the rugs were not woven in factories by women who devoted their entire time to that work. Rather each village woman had her own rough loom stretched under a rude awning in her own courtyard. She perhaps devoted but a short time each day to this work, the few moments which she could snatch from more sordid duties, and this was the only artistic bit of work in her whole existence.

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores

When the sewers of the body—bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up, the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:

"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this.

At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."

CLOSE QUARTERS;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE
RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER VII.

Brett was called at ten o'clock. After reinvigorating himself with a bath and a hearty breakfast, he was ready to meet Captain Gaultier, who arrived promptly at 11.30.

"Come to my room," said Brett. "There we will be able to talk without interruption."

Once comfortably seated, Brett resumed the conversation where he had broken it off in the train overnight.

"You say you know Hussein-ul-Mulk," he commenced.

"Yes," replied the King's messenger, "and what is more, I have discovered his residence since we parted. It seems that one of the attaches at the Embassy met him recently and thought it advisable to keep in touch with the Young Turkish party, of which Hussein-ul-Mulk is a shining light. So he asked him where he lived, and as the result I have jotted down the address in my note-book."

Gaultier searched through his memoranda, and speedily found what he wanted.

"Wait a minute," interrupted Brett. "Does it happen to be No. 11, Rue Barbette?"

The barrister had more than once surprised his companion during the previous night, but this time Gaultier seemed to be more annoyed than startled.

"If you know all these things," he said stiffly, "I don't see why you should bother me to get you the information."

Brett smiled.

"You mean," he said, "that Hussein-ul-Mulk does live at No. 11 Rue Barbette?"

"Why, of course he does," was the irritable answer.

"That is very odd," said the barrister. "It was a mere guess on my part, I assure you."

His assurance evidently did not weigh much with Captain Gaultier, who replaced the note-book in his pocket and obviously cast about in his mind for a convenient excuse to take his departure.

Brett knew exactly what was troubling him.

"I am quite in earnest," he said, "in telling you that I simply hazarded a guess at the address. To prove that this is so, I must place you in possession of certain incidents which took place after we parted at the Gare du Nord."

Rapidly but succinctly he told the amazed King's messenger of the chase in the cab across Paris, and how he (Brett) had followed the Frenchman who was tracking Gaultier's movements so closely.

"You will understand," he concluded, "that, in view of my preconceived theory, it was not a very far-fetched assumption to connect Hussein-ul-Mulk with the house in the Rue Barbette into which your spy vanished."

"Well," gasped his astonished hearer, "I must say, Mr. Brett, that I owe you an apology, but I do not see what reason any one can have for shadowing my movements."

"I regard it as mere chance. I imagine that our fellow-passenger in the train caught the name of Hussein-ul-Mulk in our conversation and this decided him to shadow your movements, by means of the confederate who awaited his arrival at the station. As it happened, they simply hit upon the wrong person. It might have paid them much better to follow me. The outcome of the blunder is that I am in a fair way towards ascertaining all I want to know about them, whereas, up to the present, they do not even suspect my existence as an active agent in the affair."

"Well, now, in what way can I help you regarding Hussein-ul-Mulk?"

"Can you introduce me to him?"

"In what capacity?"

Brett reflected for a moment before replying.

"I might pose as a friend of yours interested in Turkish carpets, or coffee, or cigarettes, but for the purpose of my inquiry it would be well to jump preliminaries at once and make this chance acquaintance under the guise of a wire puller."

"All right," said Gaultier. "I don't see that it matters much to me, and the letter you have in your possession from the Under-Secretary is sufficient warrant for me to give you any assistance that lies in my power."

He glanced at his watch. "It is just about time for dejeuner," he continued. "What do you say if we drive to the Rue Barbette at once?"

The barrister assented, and they were soon crossing Paris with the superb disregard for other people's feelings that characterises the local cab-driver.

"By the way," inquired Gaultier, "have you learned anything else since your arrival?"

"Only this—it was not our friend Talbot who came here on Tuesday with a lady."

"You are sure?"

"Positive. I have compared the handwriting in the local register with a letter undoubtedly written by Mr. Talbot, and the two do not agree. The entry of 'Mr. and Mrs. Talbot, London,' in the visitors' book of the Grand Hotel, was a mere trick intended to amuse the police for a few hours until the conspirators had perfected their scheme for final and complete disappearance."

"It was a bold move."

"Very. Quite in keeping with the rest of the details of an uncommon crime."

At last the fiacre stopped in front of the house in the Rue Barbette which Brett had already scrutinized during the early hours of the morning.

"Here we are," said Gaultier with a laugh. "If we find Hussein-ul-Mulk at home I don't know what the deuce we are going to say to him."

"I think I will be able to interest him," said Brett calmly, and without further preliminary Gaultier ascertained from the concierge that the Turkish gentleman was within.

The two men ascended to the second story.

Gaultier rapped loudly on the first door he encountered, and the summons appeared to scatter some of the inhabitants, judging by the rapid opening and closing of doors that preceded the appearance of an elderly and solemn-looking Turk, who cautiously demanded their business.

Gaultier sent in his card, and the servant locked the door in the faces of the two men while he went to ascertain his master's orders.

"They evidently do not mean to take many risks," said the King's messenger in a low voice.

The door was re-opened, and the elderly Turk ushered them into a spacious room on the right of the entrance hall, where they were received by a young man—a tall, dignified Mohammedan, who rose hastily from a chair, having apparently abandoned the perusal of a newspaper.

"Ah, mon brave Gaultier," he cried, "I am so pleased to see you. I did not know you were in Paris. I have been spending an idle moment over smoke and scandal."

He spoke excellent French, and appeared to be quite at his ease, but Brett noticed that Hussein-ul-Mulk held the discarded newspaper, upside down. He was smoking a cigarette, lighted the instant before their appearance, and notwithstanding his Oriental phlegm he seemed to be laboring under intense excitement. Nevertheless, Hussein-ul-Mulk could control his nerves.

"Have you had dejeuner, or have you time to join me in a cigarette?" he went on.

"We will be delighted," said Gaultier, taking the proffered case. "The fact is, I only heard of your presence in Paris by accident, and I mentioned the fact to my friend here, who has interested himself in the Armenian cause in London. He at once expressed a keen desire to make your acquaintance, so I ventured to bring him here and introduce him to you. This is Mr. Reginald Brett, an English barrister, and one who keenly sympathizes with the reform movement in Turkey."

"I am delighted to know you, Mr. Brett," said the suave Oriental.

"It is a greater pleasure to me," Brett replied, "to find myself talking to a reformer so distinguished as you. Your name is well known in England. Indeed, in some quarters, it has come to be feared, which in this world is one of the signs of success."

Hussein-ul-Mulk was puzzled, but he remained outwardly unperturbed.

"I was not aware," he purred, "that my poor services to my country were so appreciated by my English friends."

"Ah," said Brett, with a smile that conveyed much, "a man like you cannot long remain hidden. I have good reasons to know that at the present moment your achievements are earnestly attracting the attention of the Foreign Office."

Hussein-ul-Mulk became even more puzzled. Indeed, he exhibited some slight tokens of alarm lest Brett's vehement admiration should reach the ears of others in the adjoining room.

"Really," he said, "you flatter me. Will you not try these cigarettes? They are the best; they are made from tobacco grown especially for the Sultan's household, and it is death to export them. I understand that the cigarette habit has grown very much of recent years in England?"

"Yes," said Brett, "it certainly has developed with amazing rapidity. In trade, as in politics, this is an astounding age."

Gaultier knew that there was more behind the apparent exchange of compliments than appeared on the surface. Having fulfilled his pledge to Brett, he said hurriedly, "Both of you gentlemen will understand that I cannot very well take part in a political discussion. With your permission, Hussein, I will now leave my friend with you for a half-hour's chat, as I have an appointment at the Cafe Riche."

Although Hussein was profoundly disconcerted by Brett's manner no less than his utterances, he could not well refuse to accord him a further audience, so Gaultier quitted the apartment and the Englishman and the Mussulman were left face to face.

Brett felt that the situation demanded a bold game. Under some circumstances he knew that to throw away the scabbard and dash with naked sword into the fray was the right policy.

"I came to see you, Hussein-ul-Mulk," he said, speaking deliberately, "not only because I have an interest in the progressive policy voiced by the Young Turkish party, but on account of matters of personal interest to you, and to friends of mine in England."

The Turk bowed silent recognition of the barrister's motives.

"You are aware," said Brett,

"that a large number of valuable diamonds were stolen from the special Envoy of his Majesty the Sultan, in London, last Tuesday night, and that the theft was accompanied by the murder of four of the Sultan's subjects and the abduction of a prominent official in the British Foreign Office?"

For some few seconds Hussein-ul-Mulk strove hard to regain his composure and frame a reply, but Brett, nonchalantly puffing a cloud of smoke into the intervening space, and thus helping his hearer to control his emotions, went on—

"I do not propose wasting time by describing to you the details of a crime with which you are thoroughly acquainted. Let me say, in a sentence, that my chief, perhaps my only, motive in coming here today is to secure the release of my friend Mr. Talbot from the place where he is at present confined, and at the same time to obtain from you a statement which will satisfactorily clear Mr. Talbot in the eyes of his superiors of all personal complicity in the Albert Gate incident." Again there was a breathless silence.

Hussein-ul-Mulk had regained his nerve. He was now considering how best he could dispose of this Englishman who knew so much. To purchase his silence was too hopeless. He must die as speedily and unostentatiously as possible. So he answered not, but thought hard as to ways and means.

Brett, in imminent danger of his life, disregarded all semblance of danger. He leaned back in his chair, closed his eyes in complete enjoyment of Hussein's cigarettes, which were really excellent, and said, in the even, matter-of-fact tones of one who discusses an abstract problem.

"Of course, my dear friend, you are thinking that the best answer

If Your Food Fails to Sustain You, Change.

One sort of diet may make a person despondent, depressed and blue and a change to the kind of food the body demands will change the whole thing.

A young woman from Phila. says: "For several years I kept in a rundown, miserable sort of condition, was depressed and apprehensive of trouble. I lost flesh in a distressing way and seemed in a perpetual sort of dreamy nightmare. No one serious disease showed, but the 'all-over' sickness was enough."

"Finally, between the doctor and father I was put on Grape-Nuts and cream, as it was decided I must have nourishing food that the body could make use of."

"The wonderful change that came over me was not, like Jonah's gourd, the growth of a single night, and yet it came with a rapidity that astonished me."

"During the first week I gained in weight, my spirits improved, and the world began to look brighter and more worth while."

"And this has continued steadily, till now, after the use of Grape-Nuts for only a few weeks, I am perfectly well, feel splendidly, take a lively interest in everything, and am a changed person in every way."

I have not come here without safeguarding my movements. You are aware that Captain Gaultier, a trusted Foreign Office messenger, brought me here in person. Some members of the British Government, and several important officials of Scotland Yard know that I am in your house and discussing this matter with you.

If any accident interferes with my future movements, you will simply precipitate a crisis quite lamentable in its results to yourself, to your association, and to your cause. You will see, therefore, Hussein, that to kill me cannot really be thought of. A man of your penetration and undoubted sagacity must surely admit this at once, and we can then proceed to discuss matters in a friendly and pleasant manner."

THE WARNING OF FOOD EXPERTS AGAINST THE USE OF ALUM POWDERS.

There are many housewives that unthinkingly use alum baking-powders in making biscuits, cake and pastry, when it would only take a little precaution to avoid doing so.

Baking-powders that contain alum cause indigestion and nerve disorders. English food experts condemn alum as an injurious adulterant unfit for a baking-powder ingredient. If you are not careful you may be buying alum in your baking-powder and putting it in food. The way to be sure is to read the label on the baking-powder, and if the ingredients are not plainly printed on it, refuse to accept it.

An Innovation in Oil Heaters

The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater, with its drums enameled in turquoise, is an ornament to any room, whether in the country or city home.

No home is quite complete without a Perfection Oil Heater. It is a necessity in the fall and spring, when it is too warm to start the regular heating apparatus, and too cool to be without heat. In the midst of winter it is often convenient as an auxiliary heater, as there are always some cold corners in a house.

The enameled heater always presents a nice appearance, as the enamel will not tarnish or burn off. It is not an "enamel paint," but it is the same as the enamel of your cooking utensils.

The Perfection is the most reliable and convenient portable heating device you can find. An automatically-locking flame spreader prevents turning the wick high enough to smoke.

LUTHERAN SYNOD

Third Annual Convention of the Eastern Conference of the Synod of Central Canada—
Good Attendance of Delegates.

The second annual Luther League Rally of the Eastern district of the Synod of Central Canada was held in St. Paul's Church, Morrisburg, Oct. 30.
About fifty delegates were present, representing the Leagues from Ottawa, Montreal, Williamsburg, Dunbar, Riverside and Morrisburg.

Afternoon and evening sessions were held. Rev. J. J. Clemens, of Ottawa, conducted the devotional service and presided at both sessions. The afternoon session was devoted mostly to business and hearing the reports from the different Leagues.

Rev. J. J. Clemens, of Ottawa, was elected president, and Mr. Henry Shennett, Morrisburg, secretary-treasurer.

Papers were read and discussed on the following topics: "A Plea to Luther Leaguers," Mrs. Jesse Casselman, Riverside; "Thanksgiving and Thanksgiving," Mrs. Edgar Casselman, Williamsburg;
"Lessons to be Learned from the Luther League Badge," Mr. Henry Shennett, Morrisburg; "The Luther League of Canada," Mr. George Hayunga, Riverside; "Some of the Most Urgent Needs of the Church To-day, and How the Luther League Can Help to Supply Them," Mr. J. A. Lo, Ottawa. This paper was discussed by Mrs. E. Grannary, Montreal.

The choir from the Church of the Redeemer, Montreal, sang "O Lord
How Wonderful Are Thy Works," in a most acceptable manner. Miss Lottie
McIntosh, Morrisburg, sang a solo,
"Angel Land." She was in excellent voice, and pleased the large audience present.

The Lutheran Sunday School Convention of the Eastern Conference of Central Canada was held in St. Paul's Church, Morrisburg, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 31st, 1911. The Rev. A. M.
Hahn, of Dunbar, opened and closed the meeting by use of Vesper Service.
There were seven schools represented,
each giving quite a satisfactory report.

The officers, viz., Mr. A. H. Casselman, Morrisburg, president; Miss Meda Whittaker, Williamsburg, secretary, and Mrs. H. Hayunga, Riverside, treasurer, were re-elected.

Mr. A. Akerlind, of Ottawa, read an excellent paper on "The Sunday School and Home." He emphasized the fact that the Sunday School was not meant to supplant but to assist the religious training received in the home. Rev. C.
A. Dennig, Williamsburg, in discussing the paper, spoke very earnestly in regard to the responsibility of parents in Sunday School work. He stated they should not say to their children, "go," but "come" to Sunday School, and that habits formed in childhood were invariably lasting. Misses Eloie Casselman and Gertrude McCreery then sang a duet, after which Mrs. J. C. Casselman, of Montreal, read a paper on "The Sunday School and Missions." The paper from beginning to end was filled with the very best suggestions for an ideal school. Rev. J. J. Clemens, of Ottawa, emphasized the thoughts of the paper, showing clearly that a Sunday that was not missionary had lost its mission.

Football Game at Cornwall

A picked football team from this town played in Cornwall on Thanks-
