Miss Dolorosa Curran, daughter of Mrs. Gerald Curran and the late Mr. Curran, became the bride of George Goodwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Murray, Moncton, New Brunswick, in a ceremony in St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church. Rev. S. Lesage performed the ceremony last Saturday morning.

The bride was given away by Euclid Dumouchel, Alexandria, and Ray Curran was best man. Madelane MacMillan was bridesmaid.

The bride wore a ballerina-length gown of net over satin, lace jacket with lily point sleeves. A crown of seed pearls held her fingertip veil in place, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Following a reception, the couple left on a wedding trip to New Brunswick. The bride wore a navy suit trimmed with light blue, and navy accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Fire on Emma East Close Thing on Friday
Hess and Hartwell Homes Licked by Flames

The fire siren sounded last Friday night to call out the Brigade for a small fire, that could have had serious results, back on Emma Street. A shed at the rear of the Hess house was on fire.

When the firemen arrived the flames had just about consumed the shed and were spreading rapidly to an adjoining structure on the Wallace Hartwell property. The coping at the rear of the Hess house was also aflame.

It seemed only a minute before the flames were knocked down by the pressure hoses from the pumper. One minute the red flames were reaching higher than the two nearby houses and the next, clouds of steam were rising from the embers. Spectators could breathe a sigh of relief when the flames disappeared. The word had gone around there were two steel drums of stove oil in the burning building. There were, but the fire was doused so speedily the drums only bulged.

The firemen were loud in their praise of the co-operation they received from the public on the Community Hall square. It was thickly lined with parked cars, attending a big implement and oil company rally, but there was a total lack of the usual jamming and confusion that has been so apparent in the past. It was felt that the public showed a large measure of restraint and heeded council's advertised plea to allow the fire rig to get away without interference.

Many of the firemen were attending the affair in the hall when the hooter hooted. It was our impression that the fire was almost a "full-dress" affair. It was also our impression that Sunday best or not, the hoses were laid with as much dispatch as usual.

Rotary Presidents Clasp Hands in Friendship Here

CHESTERVILLE ROTARY CLUB Monday evening of this week played host to the Rotary Club of Clayton, N.Y., and received payment due for a contest won by the local club. Last December an attendance contest was instigated by the District Governor of No. 250. Clubs were paired off and each was to try and excel the other in attendance for the months of December and January of this year. Chesterville club was fortunate in having the highest percentage attendance of the two at the end of the period. Clayton club, to pay the piper, journeyed to Chesterville last Monday night, 20 strong, supplied the speaker for the evening, put on the meeting and paid for their own turkey dinners as well as those of the Chesterville members. Pictured here are the three principals of the evening. On the left is the speaker, former District Governor John Brownell, of Alexandria Bay; Peter "Pete" Bourcy, president of Clayton Rotary Club, and Chesterville Club president, George H. Barkley.—Record Photo.

Mrs. Hector MacMillan Guest Speaker At Thank-offering

The Spring Thank-offering meeting of St. Luke's Presbyterian Women's Missionary Socity, Finch, was held in the Sunday School room. The president, Mrs. George Rupert, presided and the Scripture lesson was taken by Mrs. Alex MacDougall, with prayer by Mrs. Gell.

The four little sons of Rev. Hector MacMillan delighted the audience with a song, reciting a verse of Scripture and counting, all in the native language of the Belgian Congo.

The offering was received by Mrs. W. MacMaster and Mrs. John Bush.

A duet, "Love Lifted Me," by Mrs. Hugh Rombough and Mrs. D. K. MacLean, accompanied by Mrs. G. MacLean, was enjoyed.

Mrs. George Rupert introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Hector MacMillan, who spent 15 years 1,500 miles in the interior of Africa. Mrs. MacMillan described their journey to the Belgian Congo, where they encountered men seven feet tall, pygmies who could walk right under her arm, crocodiles 15 feet long, snakes nine feet long and many other wild animals, as well as their manner of life and the work they were doing until forced home through illness on furlough. She stated they hope to make the return journey by plane.

Mrs. MacMillan was thanked by Mrs. D. K. MacLean.

An invitation was accepted to attend the Spring Thank-offering of Morewood Women's Missionary Society on May 5th at 2 p.m.

After the meeting, lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

Hume Grisdale Heads County Federation Of Agriculture

At the annual meeting of the County Federation of Agriculture, directors of the Couny Federation of Agriculture, held in the Agricultural Office, Morrisburg, Hume Grisdale was elected president for the 1955 term.

Wm. Graham, president, gave a report of the year's activities, chief among which was the working out of the details of the Brucellosis Act. The secretary-treasurer's report showed a rather heavy spending of funds with a cash balance on hand at the end of the year (April 1st) of $243. Don Robertson gave a report for the Seaway and County Insurance Committees.

Wm. Legault, fieldman for the Ontario Federation, gave a splendid report on the many phases of Federation work, emphasizing the necessity of the directors being alert to any rosy promises made by any officer of the Farmers' Union, should they visit the county.

After discussion it was decided that the new executive should approach the officers of the two county Agricultural Societies as to the possibility of having a dairy booth on Fair days. It was proposed that this booth should be operated by the Fair boards and should have on sale whole milk, chocolate milk, butter milk, cheese, etc.

Mr. I. A. Manson, district representative for the Workmen's Compensation Board, was introduced and he explained the set-up of the Board as it affected farmers. He stated that anyone wishing information could contact him at his office at 502 Pitt St., Cornwall. An interesting film on how the Compensation Board operates was shown.

The complete list of officers for 1955 are as follows:

Hon. president, Wm. Graham; president, Hume Grisdale; vice-president, Harold McMenomy ;secretary-treasurer, Eric Casselman; executive, Harry Williams, Don Robertson, Edwin McIntosh, Chas. Harkness, Willis Riddel; auditor, Don Rutherford.

Twenty-six of the forty directors were present at the meeting.

OPINIONS . . .
Ours and Others

Sir Anthony—'Evolved'

Sir Anthony Eden has been elected "unanimously," as one report put it, leader of the Conservative Party in Britain. The news may raise some questions among folk who supposed he became leader when Sir Winston Churchill retired from the prime ministership and bestowed his political mantle on his then foreign secretary.

The supposition is quite in order. It is indeed perhaps nearer the fact than reports of his "election" can be. For the election of a Conservative Party leader is rather a formality than a method of choosing him. He is chosen some time before, and not necessarily by his former leader.

Sir Winston could not make Sir Anthony leader—he could help. Only Sir Anthony's colleagues in the upper echelons of the party could finish the job. As a Conservative spokesman in an earlier generation put it, the party leader is "evolved" rather than elected.

The process seems somewhat mystical to the outsider and has something tribal about it. But by the time the evolution is complete the leader has been chosen, and there would be very little point in voting against him at the "election." Hence the unanimity. If ever a Conservative Party leader's election is not unanimous—that will be news.

Why 'Gobbledegook'?

The General Services Administration has set out to educate government offices out of "gobbledegook" and into "straightway English." We wish it well, says the Christian Science Monitor. It will be quite a job—not because government administrators are stupid people. Far from that. But because the causes of "gobbledegook" run deep into the nature of all government operations and of many other big and long-established organizations.

"Gobbledegook" comes into being first because governments—national, state and local—have to carry on strictly in accordance with the law, the letter as well as the intent. A "bureaucrat" who in his correspondence deprts too far from "what the law says" may find himself in more trouble than the average businessman or housewife imagines. And "the law" is framed by legislators, and most legislators are lawyers, and legal language, although it has come quite a way toward simplicity, has still quite a way to go.

Another reason for mouthfilling prose is precedent. "How was it said last time?" Safer not to get too original. Saves time-consuming thought, too. That's why business offices kept on saying, "Your favour of the 13th received and contents noted . . ." and things like that long after no one spoke that way.

It takes courage to break away from tradition, effort to phrase thoughts simply. So, in order to "facilitate" printing of this page and to "ameliorate" the labour of the reader we shall "proceed to" the "finalizing" of this editorial.

Tansmit TV Pictures Without Relay Stations

Television pictures, as well as radio and television conversation can be sent over the horizon for as much as 200 miles without relay stations and at ultra-high frequencies, Bell Telephone Laboratories and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology announced recently.

This direct TV and multi-channel telephone transmission is an extension of techniques applied to the continental defence system.

Big advantage of the new technique is that longer communication bridges are possible over water and rugged terrain. The present micro-wave radio relay network across the United States makes use of relay stations 30 miles apart.

Standard radio waves follow the earth's curvature but waves used in TV and telephone relays were presumed to travel in straight lines. Scientists knew that ultra-high frequencies travelled over the horizon under certain conditions but believed them far too weak and undependable for practical use.

This theory has now been disproved at Bell Labs and M.I.T. By using bigger antennae and greater power, it is possible to use the weaker signals that drop off a straight radio beam and are reflected to distant points beyond the horizon by the atmosphere.

The new system operates similarly to a powerful searchlight which casts a beam in a straight line. A searchlight aimed at the sky can be seen from the ground miles away, even when the searchlight is behind a hill. The reason is that some of the light is reflected to the ground by the atmosphere.

Animal World Members Have Many Trades

Many animals have special talents determining their life patterns much as human beings concentrate upon some particular specialty for their life job. Some of these professional counterparts are:

Farmer: A southwestern ant cultivates a plant, appropriately called ant-rice. This ant levels about a square yard of soil, dividing it in highways. It cares for the plants tenderly and when the seed is ripe, gathers it. Husked, it is stored in long, connected underground galleries. Should the seed get damp, it is brought out and dried in the sun to prevent rot or germination.

Robbers: Many professional thieves exist in the wild. Perhaps the most notorious is the frigate bird. Its food, consisting almost entirely of fish, is obtained by fly-robbery. It waylays and attacks home-coming terns and gulls. To escape, the terrified birds eject a portion of their partly-digested supper, which the frigate bird catches in mid-air.

Soldiers: Warrior ants form into armies and lay siege to and surround the nest of rival ants. In the resultant battle, heads and legs are nipped off by the dozens. When victorious, the nest is raided, and the spoils of war are carried off—in this instance the immature pupae which are then hatched in the victor's homes, reared and brought up in slavery to work and fight for their captors.

Hunters: Most proficient are the meat-eaters, members of the dog and cat families. Some, like the cheetah, are fleet of foot; others, like the wolf, hunt in family packs; a few like the cougar may lay in wait for large prey.

Trappers: An ant-lion makes a cone-shaped pit, two to three inches across the top in loose sand. Then it hides at the bottom. When a curious bug comes along to investigate the hole, the top sand gives way and the victim tumbles headlong to the bottom—and into the waiting jaws of the trapper.

Masons: A wasp mixes fine particles of earth with her own saliva producing a mortar which hardens. With this she fashions a cell in which she deposits an egg. Along with the egg, she puts in a caterpillar which has been paralyzed but remains alive so it won't spoil. This is food for the grub when it hatches out. Then the mason seals up the entrance to her cell.

Milkmaids: Some ants keep aphids, plant lice, which they "milk" by stroking them gently with their antannae. Some aphids are kept prisoners in stables hollowed out of tree branches. These stables have exits wide enough to accomodate the slender ants but too narrow to permit the fat-sided aphids to go through.

Cooks: Female bees stir up a sort of pudding by collecting pollen and nectar from flowers and then storing this dainty mixture in cells for the grubs. The frivolous males never don an apron—they merely hang around and are fed by the cooks, and wait their turn for romance with the queen.

Undertakers: The sexton beetle buries bodies by digging beneath a dead animal and lowering it away in the earth. When deep enough, it is covered. The purpose is to permit the female to hide her eggs in the buried carcass and assures her progeny of ample food. These little sextons are extremely industrious, performing herculean feats. In one experiment, four of them buried four frogs, three small birds, two fish, a mole and two grasshoppers—all in a span of 50 days.

Light Along The Way

". . . and you shall be my witnesses . . ." At the time of the Ascension Jesus chose these words to send His followers forth and to perform the mission for which He had trained them. The force of the verb makes it clear that there is no alternative. The disciples are the only witnesses, and upon them now depends the carrying on of His mission.

A witness is one who can testify to what he knows. He has seen or heard something that set him apart from those who have not had his experience. He knows something that they do not. The followers of Jesus are called upon to witness of what they have seen and heard, having been taught by the Master Himself.

While we are no longer able to behold the Christ as the disciples did, He becomes clear to us through their eyes. The record they have left is sufficient, and we can read it at will. As we are called to witness to what we know, it is important that we give our attention to the Word of God; that we "read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" its contents, so that when the call comes to witness we will be able to meet it.

It is not just the printed word that we must witness to, however, but the living God. So we must have that intimate, personal knowledge of Him that will give our witness the worth that is demanded by the trials of life. A witness often turns out to have no worth when the opposition becomes too strong. He contradicts his own testimony, and does more harm than good. Our world is hard on the witness whose testimony is weak and unconvincing; and untold harm has been done to the cause of Christ because there are those who have no real communion with God or knowledge of His way. "Speak ye the Lord while He may be found, call ye upon Him while He is near."

For we are His witnesses today. We are the ones upon whom the work of Christ depends for its fulfillment. God has permitted it to be so; therefore, let us know the Truth, and let us venture forth fearlessly that man may know the Right and come to enjoy the Life of those who walk with Christ.

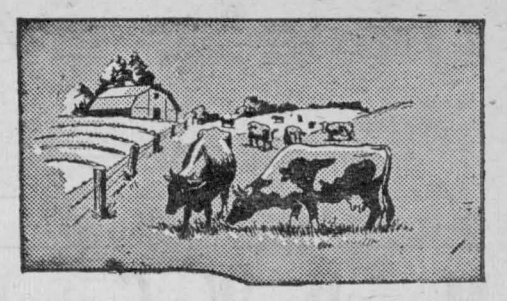
JOHN FISHER—What's this fisherman Fisher has caught? Considering that he is regarded as "Mr. Canada," it might be reasonable to expect that he would land, in one catch, a salmon from Canada's west coast and a lobster from the Maritimes. John Fisher is heard every week over the CBC Trans-Canada Network and is renowned for his broadcasts on the various aspects of Canadian life.

A little girl whose fondness for the movies and the personalities featured in them far surpassed her liking for school and textbooks, was selected by the teacher to answer the question: "What is a comet?" Perturbed, the child hesitated.

"What is a star with a tail?" pesisted the instructor.

"Why, Mickey Mouse" exclaimed the pupil, brightening.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



By Lillian Allison

A few years ago I read about an old woman who was determined to live a long and healthful life. She was quite wealthy with a maid or two so her recipe for health and longevity was quite easy to follow. She merely stayed in bed all day every Thursday. She made absolutely no appointments for Thursdays. The maids were instructed to tell Thursday callers their mistress was "not at home"—a statement which in higher circles is not considered a lie. All day Thursday the lady ate her meals in bed, read, wrote letters, napped, relaxed and literally lived the life of Riley. Next day she got up as usual and went on with her regular routine, rested and relaxed—fresh as a daisy.

Now if I had the maids I wouldn't mind at all trying out the old lady's experiment for I wouldn't object to a quiet day in bed with the radio, a pile of papers, books and magazines and three square meals served on a bed table. I guess I'm just natuarally lazy.

Take yesterday, for instance. It was a cold, rainy, dreary sort of a day anyway. I didn't feel like working so I voted to go to bed between meals. You see the maid service at our house isn't so good and meals aren't served in bed so I had to get up or starve. Fortunately the mailman brought me a new magazine so I snuggled down by a good light to enjoy my stolen leisure.

I always read the jokes first. I get a kick out of the foolish things that people say and do. There was the story of a lady in Owen Sound who phoned the police station that a skunk had got into her cellar. The officer in charge instructed her to make a trail of bread crumbs from the basement to the back yard and the skunk would follow it outside. Later the woman called the officer again. She told him she had done as he said and now she had two skunks in the cellar.

I always like those wise little sayings used as "fillers" at the end of stories and articles too like the one I read yesterday, "Swallowing angry words is much easier than having to eat them."

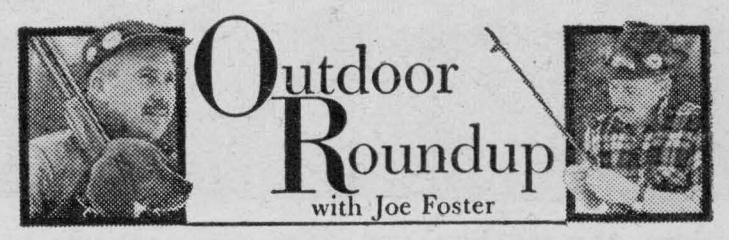
When I finished the nonsense I turned to the first article and began there. It was a pathetic, little, true story of a girl and a young man who were prisoners in an East German torture house. They became acquainted by secretly tapping messages on the partition between them. They tapped out their lifehistories and finally promised to marry if they ever regained their freedom. Then one day the guards came and took him away. But I mustn't tell you the whole story. You might want to read it yourself.

Another article described automatic machines that can do almost anything but talk. Some of them are fantastic. Fancy a painting machine that will go into action when something goes by that needs painting and will remain motionless when something goes by that doesn't. There's another intelligent apparatus which if fed a pile of boards and a keg of nails will turn out 13 boxes a minute. And a bread-maker that automatically mixes dough, forms it into loaves and puts them into an automatic oven. As they come out of it slices them and wraps them in cellophane. The story doesn't say whether it eats them. I always enjoy reading about such things as these.

I liked the article that tells about the factories, hotels, air ports, stores, etc. that are being built in Sweden hundreds of feet under the earth's surface. They simply drill out rooms in the solid rock. They make them so deep there is enough rock overhead for a self-supporting ceiling. Thousands work down in these undergrounds now and their wartime potential is enormous.

I found too that there is an American who has a plan completed for sending TV programmes all around the world. He has a lot of relay stations built now and hopes that in a few years we will be able to pick up a TV show from Tokyo or Paris or Allahabad—in colour too.

I read so many interesting stories and articles yesterday I didn't mind at all being in bed. In fact, I sort of envy the old lady who spent a day there each week. But until we get an 8-day week I doubt if I could manage it myself.



The off-beat happenings of the past few days only serve to confirm me in the belief that the craziest things happen to the craziest people and that I sometimes fit all too neatly into that pattern, For instance:

Awarded Diploma

Fancy this, with no studying, no exams to write and quite unsolicited from the Cortland Line Company's University of Fishigan, a diploma from the faculty of this all too well known college of angling. This noble parchment states in part that this writer, and I quote, "having pursued the finny denizens of the deep and shallow with patient and pertinaceous skill, and having further demonstrated outstanding acumen in the art of plausible prevarication, is awarded this degree of M.E. (Master of Exaggeration) and is qualified to forever recount, with lapsus linguae, to one and all of his piscatorial achievements without interruption for any and all present." Just where that leaves my readers if I have any left after today, I leave them to judge.

It Takes a Cow Moose!

As the ads say "Never underestimate the power of a woman" and according to Rocky Schulstad, Grand Falls, Newfoundland, this holds good even when it comes to fashioning streamer flies for land locks and rainbows. This week's mail brought me a note from Rocky and a package containing a sizable hunk of prime moose hair. Taken off the hind legs of a cow moose in second year, between pastern and hock. Rocky assures me this stuff makes the deadliest of all streamer flies. If I get right busy and tie up the pattern he described in his note. I may have a chance to prove him right or wrong in the very near future, for I got a phone call last night from one Tommy Dryden telling me of a weekend he and Frank Cloake, an old hand at salmon fishing, are trying to promote for the middle of May down at Lake Memphramagog.

Some Buy Gold Bricks

Some sweepstake tickets, others oil stocks and what do I find myself buying? No get rich proposition, yet scarcely had he finished talking and started to unfold the map he had in his pocket all along and I was making out a cheque in favour of Allan Black, one-time business associate from Vancouver, for the munificent sum of $17. It appears that Allan and Jack "Pintail" Lillington, outdoor editor of the Vancouver Province, decided to form a syndicate of three to purchase 50 acres of crown land just north of Brown's Bay, a few miles beyond road's end on the shores of Vancouver Island's inside passage. Here, according to their personal findings, is some of the world's best fishing for king and Cohoe salmon, also for steelheads and cutthroat trout. Goodness knows when I'll ever wet a line there, but do you blame me for going in for a third and only for $17?

Time for Extra Care

With the snow finally gone in the fields and only a few patches left here and there in the bush, this is the most hazardous time of year for grass fires. The dead grass of last year dries out rapidly from the welcome springtime sun. This dead grass hasn't had time to rot away or become overtopped with new green grass so anything can happen on a windy day if any of us are careless. Watch those matches, cigarettes and pipes. A

"What did father say when you asked him if you could marry me, dearest?"

"He didn't absolutely refuse," replied the young man sadly, "but he imposed a very severe condition."

"What was it?"

"He said he would see me hanged first."

ONTARIO HYDRO

ST. LAWRENCE POWER PROJECT

4,500-foot Cofferdam Being Built for Hydro On St. Lawrence

Like the fabled crow that discovered a jug containing a small amount of water and, wanting a drink, dropped stones in the jug until the water reached a level where he could satisfy his thirst, Ontario Hydro's contractor on the 4,500-foot long cofferdam C-1, situated downstream from the powerhouse site of the St. Lawrence Power Project, is busy dropping gravel into huge, steel-pile cells to displace water and ultimately complete a structure which will hold back the waters of the mighty St. Lawrence. This cofferdam, extending from the Canadian mainland to Barnhart Island in the north channel, will enable the international powerhouse to be built "in the dry."

Each of the circular cells in this cofferdam is 64½ feet in diameter. Steel piling is driven about a template into the river bed, after the latter is cleared of boulders. When the cylinder is completed. granular fill is dumped into the cell to a minimum elevation of 165 feet above sea level, or five feet above existing river water levels. Thus the water in the cell is gradually replaced with fill. The remainder of the cell is then filled with earth, with the top of the cell normally 30 feet above normal water levels. Short, semi-circular connecting links join one cell to another. As the cells are completed, a roadbed is formed, over which dump trucks can bring fill for the next cell.

Some 2½ miles upstream in the north channel, 500-foot long cofferdam A-1 has been completed from Sheek Island to Barnhart, sufficiently to stop the flow of the river in this area. With completion of the 4,500-foot long cofferdam, the powerhouse site will be sealed off. The water will then be pumped out from behind the cofferdam, permitting actual construction of the powerhouse to commence.

Soil testing of materials to be used in the project is being conducted in a new field laboratory erected by Ontario Hydro just east of the project's new Administration Offices. Approximately 60 feet across the front, and with the wings of the same depth, the laboratory houses soil-testing equipment and technicians on the one side, and the geological section and its staff on the other.

In operation about three months, replacing a temporary laboratory opened for earlier soil testing on the development, the new Hydro lab is a busy place, as scientific checking of all materials for dykes and cofferdams is carried out. Other field work includes checking of footings for transmission lines, buildings, and the section of railway to be relocated.

In consultation with Hydro's Research Division, the very latest in soil-testing equipment has been installed in the new laboratory. An example of this is the ultra-modern tri-axial testing machine which tests soil three-dimensionally—up and down and sideways—in relation to the conditions where it emanated.

With the advent of the warmer Spring weather, and with the construction pace picking up at the St. Lawrence, it is interesting to recall that only a short time ago the Niagara River was the scene of a record ice jam. Fortunately, because of the excellent condition of its facilities at Niagara, Ontario Hydro was virtually unaffected by the trouble.

Potatoes Designated As "Boilers," "Bakers"

Most consumers desire mealy potatoes for baking and for mashing but for boiling and serving whole these same customers want a potato which is not mealy, which wil hold its form and not slough during boiling, states the Markets Branch, British Columbia Department of Agriculture.

Potato chip processors and those processing frozen French fries desire mealy potatoes or those high in specific gravity. On the other hand, the potato canning trade must have low specific gravity potatoes, which remain firm and whole after cooking. Thus consumers desire potatoes that possess certain characteristics depending upon how they are to be cooked and the purpose for which they are to be used. There is no such thing as a general purpose potato because all varieties vary extensively within the same lot.

By separating lots of potatoes into specific gravity groups according to whether they sink or float in salt solutions, each lot can be labelled and advertised according to their best cooking purpose, such as "Excellent for Baking," "Guaranteed to be Mealy," "Will Not Fall Apart When Boiled," etc.

Experiments conducted by the B.C. Department of Vegetable Crops, indicate consumers are willing to pay 7 cents more for 5 pounds of "Bakers" than for the same potatoes unseparated as to specific gravity without any reduction in volume of sales. Consumers also paid more for "Boilers" than for the same potatoes unseparated.

WASHDAY TIPS
MAKE WORK EASIER

In most families washday comes at least once a week, and often small extra launderings are wedged in between ordinary daily chores, when personal items and other special articles take a dip.

Here are a few tips:

Always remove shoulder pads when wetting a garment, so you won't have to struggle with lumpy pads when they're dry. Close all slide and other fasteners and button cardigans, sweaters and jackets to help them keep their shape. Turn collars up and cuffs down. This lets the suds go to work on soiled creases.

For the same reason straighten out those balled up socks you may find in the hamper.

When washing comforters or quilts, use an extra amount of soapsuds, for the padding absorbs much more than a flat fabric does. Incidentally, this generous use of suds holds good for woollens, too.

One washing with extra rich suds does the work of two skimpy ones and thereby time and labour are saved.

When the time comes to give the pillows a shampoo, remember that the ticking is very closely woven to keep in the feathers. It also prevents the cleansing suds and rinses from penetrating as easily as they should. So transfer feathers to a muslin bag or pillow slip for quick and thorough washing, either by hand or by machine, and wash the ticking separately. If you invest time and expense in putting a slide fastener along one end of the ticking case, it will simplify future pillow-washing.

If you wash bedspreads in a tub rather than a washing machine, use a plunger—that simple plumber's assistant—to force the suds through. This saves one's back and arms, also time, and gets the spread cleaner.

"Are you positive the defendant was drunk?" asked the judge.

"No doubt," growled the officer.

"Why are you certain.'"

"Well, he put a penny in the fire alarm bol, looked at the clock on the church and yelled: 'Wow, I've lost 14 pounds'."

WHAT PRICE CROW—"The Grey Cup game will never go to Vancouver" is what sportscaster Dave Price has said over and over again on his weekly "Canadian Sports Roundup" on CBC Dominion Network. In fact, he also said he would "eat crow" if it did. Well, here he is, eating crow as promised.

The teacher was telling his class a Bible story.

"Elijah built an altar and piled wood on it," he said, "then he cut up the bullock in pieces and laid them on top. Next, he ordered the people to fill barrels with water and pour it on the altar. Now, can anyone tell me why all this was poured over the bullock on the altar?"

Up spoke a bright boy from the back of the class: "To make lots of gravy."

NEW PIG TYPE

Canada has developed a new pig, the Agriculture Department announced recently.

Product of seven years of thorough testing, selection and moderate inbreeding, the new bacon hogs are a white breed with flop ears which distinguish them from the Yorkshire breed.

The Department said the new hogs were produced at its experimental station at Lacome, Alta. They contain the blood of the Landrace, Chester White and Berkshire breeds, but not of the Yorkshire.

Tests have shown, the Department added, that the average birth weight of pigs of the new breed is about one-half pound greater than for Yorkshires.

Among other advantages of the new hogs were indications that pigs of the new breed "have good temperament and the sows are good mothers."

Anxious to buck up business, the proprietor of a large store engaged an efficieny expert whose chief delight was changing the departments around.

One day a section would be at the top of the building; the next it would be in the basement.

After three weeks of this an old lady approached a worried looking shop-walker and asked if he could tells her where the kitchen utensils were.

"No, madam, he replied, wearily; "but if you stand here for a few minutes, I'm sure you'll see it go by."

The farmer had been complaining that he could find no old clothes to put on his scarecrow.

"Well," said his wife, hopefully, "there's that flashy suit Bill wore at college last year."

"Don't be ridiculous," snorted the farmer. "I want to scare the crows, not make them laugh."

GIVE YOUR CHICKS A "FLYING START"!

FEED CHICK STARTENA—Purina Chick Startena is a COMPLETE feed, fed dry, without additions. It comes in two forms—mash and Checker-Etts. (We especially recommend Checker-Etts, varying from mash to cracked grain size. They have given exceptionally good results).

Keep Startena in front of chicks all the time. At first fill feeders full. After chicks get used to finding feeders, fill only two-thirds.

Amount needed: 2 lbs. per chick — then they're ready for a Purina growing ration.

You can economize on your growing costs by making full use of short tender green pasture; but on the best range it still pays to feed a well-balanced growing ration. In one Purina Research test, pullets grown the Purina way averaged over 1 lb. per bird heavier than their sisters grown on a poor ration, and laid 21 eggs more per bird in their first few months of laying.

Purina Growing Plans are all aimed at prroducing rapid normal growth and balancing body and sexual development. Which one to choose depends largely upon your supply of home-grown grain.

St. Lawrence River Stripers

Anglers in eastern Canada are just beginning to awake to the sporting possibilities of striped bass fishing. Now protected as a game fish with the legal season June 1st to 30th, and a minimum size of 12 inches, they are to be found in the waters of the St. Lawrence River. There is no bag limit as to the number or total weight of fish you can take. Downstream from Quebec fishing begins around mid-June at Kamouraska and Riviere-Ouelle and over at Baie St. Paul. By mid-July successful fishing may be enjoyed further upstream among the islands opposite Montmagny. In early September it is excellent opposite Quebec City between Lauzon and S. Romuald and further upstream at St. Antoine de Tilly, Ste Croix de Lobtiniere and as far as Nicolet in late October. The province of Quebec outfitters' guide for 1955 lists licensed boat owners who can cater to the sport fisherman and who can supply complete information for their fishing area.

The justice dispensed by a certain small-town Southern magistrate carried a pungent personal flavour.

"Prisoner at the bar," he announced, "I fine you one dollar and costs for shooting at Jake's dog."

Jake's friends loudly applauded.

"Order! Order!" the judge cried. "I haven't finished. I'm charging the accused one dollar and costs for shooting the dog, but listen, you bushwhackers, I'm giving him one more chance at the critter!"

IN MEMORIAM

McNAUGHTON—In fond and loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away April 28th, 1942.
Since you've gone first and we remain,
One thing we'll have you do—

That we may walk the same;
For some day down that lonely road,
You'll hear us call your name.

EAT THOSE DANDELIONS!

If dandelions are creating havoc with your lawn, eat them.

That's the word from Milton C. Geuther, marketing specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Geuther said dandelion greens can be served in a fresh salad, adding variety to meals. They're both healthful and economical, he said.

He advised eating dandelion greens early in the Spring, however, before they get a bitter taste.

Dig them out of your lawn with a knife, cut the green leaves from the stalk, wash them and serve with salad dressing.
