No Liberal Candidate in the Field.

At a convention held at Winchester Springs on Tuesday the Liberals decided not to place a candidate in the field for the coming election. The motion to that effect was moved by Mr. C. E. Cameron, of Iroquois, and seconded by Mr. G. L. Brown, of Morrisburg, and carried. During the afternoon addresses were delivered by Messrs. C. E. Cameron, W. L. Redmond, G. L. Brown, W. B. Lawson and J. H. Meikle.

Dago Killed at Mountain.

Early on Sunday morning of last week a terrible accident took place just west of Mountain on the C.P.R. which resulted in the death of an Italian laborer. It appears that the Dagos had a camp alongside of the track, some distance above the station, where they are employed on the improvements now going on at the station. About 5 a.m. one Italian had occasion to cross the track to secure a pail of water, and owing to the very heavy fog which made going to and fro very difficult, did not see the approaching morning express due at Mountain about 5.39 a.m, with the result that the express struck the man as he was crossing the track, severing the entire upper portion of his head and crushing his body up considerable. Mr. Hurd, the new agent, was in South Mountain in the afternoon procuring a casket for the body, which was shipped to Montreal Monday morning.—Mountain Herald.

Strader—Barkley.

A quiet but happy event occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Barkley of Inkerman, on Wednesday evening of last week at 5.30, when their daughter, Miss Jessie Myrtle, was united in marriage to Mr. Donald Strader, a prosperous young farmer of Winchester. Miss Carrie Patterson, of Merrickville, played the wedding march as the party entered the parlor. Rev. H. E. Warren, of Inkerman, performed the ceremony in the presence of nearest friends. Little Miss Winnibel Smith, niece of the bride, acted as flower girl. The bride was dressed in cream taffeta and her travelling suit was of blue broadcloth, with point d'esprit waist. The groom's gift was a handsome gold watch and chain. The other gifts were numerous and valuable After the ceremony the guests entered the dining room and sat down to a dainty supper. The young couple left on the evening train for Ottawa amid showers of rice and heartiest congratulations.

Auction Sale of Horses, Cattle, Etc.

Owing to the lack of help, Mr. D Christie, who lives at Winchester village, will offer for sale by public auction horses, cattle, swine, etc., on Saturday, October the 3rd The stock consists of nine head of first-class horses, 14 head of milch cows and a number of choice pigs. Also 7 acres of corn and a quantity of good hay. Sale commences at 1 o'clock. Thos. Irving, auctioneer.

Life for Small Game.

By an Order-in-Council which appears in this week's Gazette the purchase or sale of snipe, quail, woodcock and partridge is prohibited for a period of three years from the 1st day of September, 1908.

An order passed on September 16 merely prohibited the purchase of this game but a subsequent order includes the sale as well.

The Phoenix Bridge company is settling the claims of those who lost relatives in the Quebec bridge disaster.

DISCUSSION INVITED

A. BRODER

God Save the King.

In Montreal Next Year.

Earl Grey's annual dramatic and musical competition will be held next year at Montreal at His Majesty's Theatre, beginning the week of April 19th. Montreal and Toronto were in view, but the Executive Committee, after considering matters, decided on Montreal. A circular, as to the conditions of the competition will soon be issued.

Found at Brockville.

A few days ago a dirty looking individual was arrested and locked up at Brockville charged with vagrancy. He gave the name Peter De Smith, a hotel keeper of Rock Island, Ills., and word was received from his family which corroborated his statement but they were terribly surprised to learn of his predicament. He left his home on August 27th for Belguim with a quantity of new clothing and cash bound for a visit to his father, but when arrested was in rags and penniless. De Smith will give no account of his wanderings.

Andrew Broder Renominated.

The Conservatives of Dundas county, in convention on Monday at Winchester Springs, unanimously nominated Andrew Broder, the old member, as their standard bearer in the approaching Dominion election. No other name was proposed. There was a good attendance from all parts of the county, and much enthusiasm displayed.

A resolution expressing confidence in Mr. Borden as leader, and Mr. Broder, as their representative, was carried, amid cheers. Another resolution, expressing sorrow at the death of the late Dr. C. E. Hickey, who represented this county in the House of Commons for ten years, was carried by a silent standing vote.

Township Council.

A special meeting of the Winchester township Council was held in the town hall here on Saturday afternoon.

Members all present except Geo. Black.

Moved by J. W. Bogart seconded by Patrick Kirby that this Council permit the Morrisburg Electric Railway Co., to construct their proposed railway upon such of the public highways in the township Winchester and subject to such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon between the said company and this Council when said proposed line of railroad is definitely located and a plan showing such location filed with this Council.—Carried.

A Well-known Priest Dead.

Rev. Father D. C. McRae, of St. Andrews, Ont., one of the best known and most popular priests in Eastern Ontario, died at the Hotel Dieu, Cornwall, Sunday morning, after an illness of only ten days. He was operated upon for appendicitis a week go and was apparently doing well till Saturday night.

Deceased was 51 years of age and was a son of the late Christopher McRae, of the North Branch, Glengarry. He was educated at St. Therese College, Montreal College and the Grand Seminary, Montreal, and was ordained at Kingston His first work was in that city and neighboring parishes, after which he was in charge of St. Columbus Cornwall, for ten months.

In 1890 he was appointed parish priest of Glen Nevis, where he remained sixteen years, being transferred in July, 1906, to St. Andrew's. When in Glen Nevis he along with the present Bishop of Alexandria, visited Rome and other places in Europe. In January, 1907, he was obliged to go south for some months owing to throat trouble, but apart from this ailment he seemed in good health till stricken with appendicits. The funeral took place at St. Andrews yesterday.

Council Meeting.

A special meeting of the countil was held on Friday evening.

Members all present except John Jordan.

Moved by T. J. McGee, seconded by J. C. Simser, that the following accounts be passed and paid:—

Miss Oliver, of Belleville, is visiting Miss Gertie Brown.

Mr. E A. Robertson of Wales, is junior clerk in the Molsons Bank here.

Mrs. Thos. Barrington and son Mahlon of Morewood and Mrs. Wm. Hamilton are visiting Mrs. John Mulloy at Morrisburg.

Mr. J. Bell, C.P.R. operator at Smith's Falls, is acting as station agent at Winchester during the absence of the agent.

Messrs. Howard Barnes, of Kemptville, and Bert Newton and J. Bell, of Smith's Falls, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Foster on Sunday.

Messrs. John Foster and Howard Merkley left on Tuesday for Toronto, the former to enter and the latter to resume his studies at the Dental College.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McRae, who have been visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Harrop, for several weeks, left yesterday for their home in North Battleford, Sask.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill and little son Clinton, of Massena Springs, N. Y., have returned home after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy. They also attended the exhibition at Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson of the city of Leeds, England, have secured apartments in the residence of Mr. C. L. Casselman, and intend residing here for some time. Mr. Wilson is a commercial traveller.

Sir J. P. Whitney Home.

Sir James P. Whitney arrived home Monday night after a two months stay in England. Ontario's Premier is in the best of health. He annonnced that the provincial Government will soon open a permanent immigration office in London, England, with a view to securing, not only the best class of farm laborers for Ontario, but also farmers with capital to invest. Hon Nelson Monteith will reach Toronto from London about a week from now, and the Premier said that on his return a statement would be made as to the portfolio of Agriculture.

Sunny South Co.

The Sunny South Co. appeared in Foster's Hall on Monday night of this week before a good sized audience. The night was rather disagreeable, which no doubt had a tendency to keep a number away. The show for the kind was a good one and seemed to please the majority. The show was a vaudeville and comedy one, and special mention should be made of the feats accomplished by a member of the company with different kinds of bicycles.

There are now 50 names on the Indian list in Hamilton.

THREE TRAINMEN KILLED

ent on T. H. & B. Between Hamilton and Brantford

A despatch from Hamilton says: The most serious wreck in the history of the T., H. and B. Railway occurred at an early hour on Sunday morning a short distance from Mineral Springs station, about ten miles from Hamilton. Three men were killed and two were injured. A freight train, which left Brantford at 5 o'clock Sunday morning, crashed through a bridge and the engine and five care were plunged into the bed of the creek below. The bridge was not a long affair, being but 40 feet from end to end, and the height of the embankment was about 40 feet. The dead are:—

Robert McFadden, engine driver. 151 Queen Street south.

E. Brown, fireman, Hill Street.

Wm. Maloney, yardmaster at the International Harvester Works, 76 Garth St.

No very clear account of the accident can be given. The members of the train crew who survived cannot explain the cause of the disaster. The theory is that the bridge, which was a wooden structure, got on fire some way in the night and was nearly, if not totally destroyed by the time the freight train struck it on Sunday morning. The memb rs of the crew state there was a very heavy fog all along the line and they could not see more than a few feet ahead. They believe that if the bridge had been only partly burned that there would have been sufficient impetus to drive the locomotive across the bridge and possibly several of the cars. Instead of that the locomotive plunged headlong into the bed of the creek, carrying the five freight cars with it. The three men in the cab had no possible chance to escape. Their death must have been instantaneous.

GAS WRECKS A HOUSE.

St. Catharines' Residence Ruined by the Explosion.

A despatch from St. Catharines says: A disastrous gas explosion late Sunday night wrecked the home of John Reece, Niagara street, and the owner was seriously, though not fatally, injured. He is now resting quietly in the General Hospital. Early in the afternoon Reece and family went out to visit a sick family and remained until late in the evening. When Reece reached home he opened the front door, struck a match and the explosion followed. The whole front of the house was blown out and the rear walls were also entirely carried away. Reece was thrown out on the street. Not a particle of furniture nor a shred of carpet remained in the front room, save a sofa pillow, which clung to a nail on the ceiling. The house took fire, but the blaze had made but little headway before it was extinguished by the brigade. The report of the explosion was quite loud and a big crowd soon gathered on the scene.

WHEAT MOVING WELL.

One Thousand Cars a Day Now Being Marketed.

A despatch from Montreal says: Mr. W. R. McInnes, freight traffic manager of the C. P. R., returned to Montreal on Monday, after six weeks' trip through the west, having gone over some of the Canadian Northern lines as well as those of the C. P. R. He was accompanied by Mr. W. B. Lannigan. "A week ago to-day," said Mr. McInnes, "grain was moving very easily, averaging on the C. P. R. and C. N. R. 1,000 cars a day, this gain being taken chiefly from country elevators west of Winnipeg." Mr. McInnes estimated the crop as follows: Six million acres of wheat, at eighteen bushels to the acre, giving a total of 108,000,000 bushels. The oat crop, estimated at 2,000,000 acres at 35 bushels to acre, giving a total of 91,000,000 bushels. Barley has an average of 855,650, at 28 bushels to the acre, giving 24,000,000 bushels in all. The whole crop will, it is estimated, mean $130,000,000 to $125,000,000 to the country.

IN THE KLONDIKE.

The Output This Year has Increased by $2,000,000.

A despatch from Dawson says: The Klondike's output this year will be increased $2,000,000 over that of last year, making a total of $5,000,000 this year. The increase is due to the installation of new dredges, electric conveyors and hydraulic plants. The output will be greatly increased next year, and the Klondike soon will be yielding by a big process as much annually as in its palmiest days. The only difference is that the corporations are getting the bulk of the gold instead of the individual miners, yet many individuals are still employed. The upper Yukon River is in first-class condition for travel, and there is every indication that passengers leaving for Seattle as late as Sept. 25 will be able to reach Dawson without trouble.

WALKED IN HER SLEEP.

Miss Marjory Robertson Injured Near Montreal.

A despatch from Montreal says: Miss Marjory Robertson, daughter of Jas. M. Robertson, a prominent manufacturer of this city, was found in a dying condition early on Sunday morning near her father's home at Beaconsfield. The young lady was addicted to the habit of walking in her sleep, and in that condition left her home about 5 o'clock in the morning. She was missed about an hour later, and the family started in search of her. She was found lying beside the C. P. R. tracks, where she had been thrown by a passing freight train. She was found unconscious, and badly cut and bruised. She was hurried to the city hospital, where she lies in a dying condition. Her engagement to Mr. Charles Shearer of this city was only announced two weeks ago.

CAR INSPECTORS STOLE.

Grand Trunk Punishes Unfaithful Employees.

A despatch from Belleville, Ont., says: In the Police Court on Friday morning, Police Magistrate Masson sentenced Patrick McHugh, and Allen Stapley, two Grand Trunk car inspectors, employed in the local yards, to years in the Penitentiary on two charges of entering and stealing grain and tobacco from sealed cars several days ago. The sentence came as a big surprise to a crowded court room, mostly railway men. The men are both married, with families, and old employes of the road. Grand Trunk Detective Brown of Montreal was sent here some time ago to discover who was breaking into the cars, and he worked among the men as an ordinary workman, and discovered the accused in the act. The trial lasted three days. Detective Brown has been assaulted on two occasions since the trial began and now has ex-employes of the Grand Trunk charged with assault. A lot of thieving has been going on here from cars recently and the company intend to stop it.

The late W. G. Elliott of Brantford left $230,000. Among his bequests is $5,000 to establish a children's ward in the John H. Stratford Hospital.

WRECKED IN A SNOWSTORM

Nineteen Persons Killed in a Collision in Montana.

A despatch from Livingston, Mont., says: Ploughing through a snowstorm, eastward bound, a Chicago, Burlington & Quincy passenger train, running over the Northern Pacific Railroad on Friday, ashed head-on into a freight train siding at Young's Point, where rains were to pass, and in the tion that ensued a score of e crushed out and a score were injured. Several tally. The freight flagto signal the passenger vent the collision, it e of the blinding telescoped with d most of the were of persons in the latter car. The express car raised over the platform of the smoking car, and the superstruction swept the seats away. Not a passenger in the smoking car escaped death or injury. Passengers in other care escaped with cuts and bruises.

Fireman Ora Babcock jumped and was killed, striking his head. Milo Halloway, a brakeman, was killed. The smoking car debris was hopelessly mixed with heads, bodies, legs and arms, presenting a horrible sight. In one place seven bodies were so tightly wedged together that they were separated only with great difficulty. It was impossible to succor the wounded without trampling on the dead.

CATTLE MARKET.

Toronto, Sept. 29. — Drovers claim that the choicest of cattle for butchering purposes would sell at $5 per cwt. Owing to none of these having been offered, the best price going was about $4.60 per cwt. Good cows were a little firmer at $3.75 to $4 per cwt.

Stockers were in improved demand. Prices are about steady.

Sheep and lambs were unchanged on large arrivals.

Milch cows were scarce and firmer.

Select hogs were worth $7 per cwt. off cars, Toronto. For thin hogs, which are plentiful, buyers will pay no more than $6.50 per cwt.

FREIGHT TRAINS CRASH.

Fireman Killed in a Wreck on the C. P. R.

A despatch from Toronto says: Two C. P. R. freight trains came together in a head-on collision at Islington Station, five miles from West Toronto, about 5.30 a.m., Saturday, and as a result fireman James Kendall, of Chatham, was instantly killed, while three other trainmen, Engineer Bert Eaton, of Willoughby Avenue, and Fireman Woodman, all of West Toronto, were cut about their heads and shoulders. The collision occurred in front of the station at Islington, and as the morning was dark and foggy, neither crew saw the other until the trains came together. Both were going at a good speed, and the two engines, No. 641 eastbound, and N. 648 westbound, were completely wrecked. The westbound train mounted the eastbound, creating a wild chaos of wrecked rolling stock, and scattered merchandise, and doing thousands of dollars' damage. The first car following the engine on the eastbound train was undamaged, but the following six were splintered to matchwood. The body of the dead fireman was jammed between the engine and tender. The unfortunate man was evidently caught as he was endeavoring to jump to safety, as his body was on the engineer's side of the cab. The cause of the wreck has not yet been ascertained, but was evidently the result of an operator's mistake. There is no night operator at Islington, but there are operators at the stations each side, Lambton and Cooksville, about eight miles apart.

SEVEN YEARS FOR THEFT.

Thief, Who Was Also Charged with Arson, Sentenced.

A despatch from St. Catharines says: George F. Raybould was on Friday sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary for stealing a horse and buggy from Byron Beamer, whose barns were burned at the time the rig was stolen, several weeks ago. Raybould pleaded guilty to the theft, but not guilty to the charge of arson. The judge in reviewing the evidence said he was satisfied the prisoner had caused the fire intentionally or by negligence, but on the evidence dismissed the charge of arson and sentenced him as above on the charge of theft.

GRAIN FROM ST. JOHN.

Fourteen Million Bushels to be Shipped There During Winter.

A despatch from Fort William says: Fourteen million bushels of grain is prospected for the elevators at St. John during the coming winter. This grain will all be handled at Fort William. As the grain arrives here from the west it is unloaded into elevators, and after being weighed is reloaded into cars for shipment east. Last year was a very busy season for all-rail wheat traffic, but it is expected that all records will be broken this winter.

THREE YEARS FOR CHAREST.

Montreal ex-Civic Employe is Sent Down for Fraud.

A despatch from Montreal says: Three years in the penitentiary was the sentence imposed by Judge Piche in the Court of Special Sessions on Thursday on Auguste Charest, the former assistant foreman of the Municipal Road Department, who, when arraigned on a charge of defrauding the city out of between $1,400 and $1,500, entered a plea of guilty. Charest, when he became aware of the fact that his actions in obtaining money from the treasury by the use of padded pay rolls was discovered, left the city, but was arrested at New Bedford, Mass., and returned without fighting extradition.

ANOTHER FALLS SUICIDE.

Woman's Hat and Handbag Found on the Bank.

A despatch from Niagara Falls, N. Y., says: Wednesday morning, Officer Burch, of the State Reservation, noticed a woman go to an unusual point on Green Island. She told him she awaited the coming of friends. Later on he found her handbag and hat upon the island shore. She had disappeared. In the handbag was a spectacle case, No. 79,297, purchased of the Buffalo Optical Company, who say it was sold to a young lady of that city. This young lady could not be located in Buffalo on Wednesday afternoon. The recovery of the body may be necessary to unravel what now seems a mystery.

A lot of Chinamen smuggled into Canada as merchants by way of Mexico have been detected at Montreal and will be sent back.

As a result of pouring oil on the fire to make it burn quickly, Maggie Majury, aged 16, was burned to death in Toronto, on Saturday.

HUNDRED WERE DROWNED

The Ship "Star of Bengal" Went Down Off the Alaskan Coast.

A despatch from Wrangel, Alaska, says: One hundred and ten out of a total of one hundred and thirty-seven persons aboard the cannery ship Star of Bengal were drowned last Sunday afternoon, when the vessel was torn from the hold of protecting tugs and dashed ashore at Helm Point, at the southeast end of Coronation Island. The news was brought by the tug Hattie Gage, Captain Farrer, which carried the survivors, 27 in all.

The ship was being towed to sea from the Wrangel cannery by the tugs Hattie Gage and Kayak. Captain Farrer of the Hattie Gage gives the following account of the disaster:

"As we came within reach of the gale we could see we were making leeway and drifting toward Coronation Island. The Kayak was light and could do nothing. The Hattie Gage could not handle the ship alone. At 4 o'clock the Star of Bengal drifted into a narrow bight and we could see land on both sides abreast. We sounded and found eight fathoms. We could see the vessel dimly by the phosphorescent rocks which were all around. We cut the two-line and steamed out into open water, but could not see anything in the driving rain except one blue light burning on the ship. The storm increased and the tugs steamed away to Shipley Bay, 26 miles away."

Captain Wagner of the Star of Bengal charges the captains of the tugs Kyak and Hattie Gage, who cut loose from him, with rank cowardice. The captain was unconscious for an hour after the rescue.

SWEPT BY TYPHOON.

Great Damage Wrought by Storm in Philippines.

A despatch from Manilla says. A typhoon of terrific velocity swept over the central portion of the Philippine group, sweeping part of the island of Samar, northern Leyte, southeastern Luzon, northern Penay, Masbate and part of Remblon, on Thursday. The typhoon disappeared in the China Sea, moving in a direction west by northwest. Wires are prostrated and available details of the damage done are meagre. It is evident, however, that serious disaster followed in the wake of the sudden storm. A telegram from the town in Masbate reports that every building in the place was razed with the single exception of the postal building. A despatch received from Remblon says that the typhoon caused a great loss of property, and that undoubtedly many persons have been killed.

HEALTH OF ONTARIO.

Report of Board of Health of Deaths in August.

A despatch from Toronto says: There were 2,449 deaths from all causes in Ontario in August, according to the report of the Provincial Board of Health, making a death rate of 13.4 in 1,000. Typhoid fever has been more prevalent. There were 329 cases and 50 deaths from the disease, as compared with 155 cases and 33 deaths in August, 1907. Two patients out of 74 died of scarlet fever; 14 out of 115 succumbed to diphtheria, and 141 out of 145 from tuberculosis. There were only three cases of smallpox, and none proved fatal. Two out of three sufferers died of measles, while out of 26 persons afflicted with whooping cough 19 died.

WHEAT GRADES HIGH.

Eight Million Bushels Pass Through Winnipeg.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: So far eight million bushels of wheat have passed through Winnipeg, and been inspected, as compared with only one million bushels same date last year. But the most encouraging feature is that this amount no less than e cent. is high grade milling which almost constitutes reco centage. If the wheat continu grade to this high average the will be very profitable.

William Sangster, who accused himself of the murder of Pierre Delorme for the purpose of getting a free trip from New York to Montreal, was acquitted of the crime at Montreal, the Crown withdrawing the charge.

NAVY FOR AUSTRALIA.

British Admiralty Consents to the Proposed Scheme.

A despatch from Melbourne says: The British Admiralty has given its general approval to the scheme of the Australian Commonwealth for the formation of a flotilla of six torpedo-boat destroyers, nine submarines, and two depot ships, as the nucleus of an Australian navy. It is believed that Parliament will vote readily the $6,250,000 required for the construction of the suggested flotilla. The officers and men will total 1,200, and will be provided by the Imperial navy. But they will be paid by the Commonwealth, which will retain administrative control of the flotilla.

ORDERS FOR "SOO" MILLS.

Transcontinental Will Take 15,000 Tons of Rails.

A despatch from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., says: Announcement was made on Wednesday by Manager Franz, of the Lake Superior Corporation, that the Transcontinental Railway had placed an order at the "Soo" rail mill for 15,000 tons of rails for the Western division. The management expects to receive a supplementary order for the Transcontinental, and the order is expected daily.

PLOUGHED INTO GANG.

Passenger Train Kills Two Men at English River.

A despatch from Fort William, Ont., says: The west-bound passenger train ploughed into a section gang at English River about one o'clock on Wednesday. Two foreigners, Kalla and Ludst, were instantly killed. Their bodies are being brought here.

CHOLERA IN CZA

Dread Disease Enters th Emperor and Empr

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: Not only is the number of cases of Asiatic cholera in this city increasing, but the disease has invaded the aristocratic precincts of St. Petersburg. It has even reached the Winter Palace, one case having been discovered in the servants' quarters of the palace, in which extensive preparations are going on in the expectation that the Emperor and Empress will spend part of the coming season in the capital. Other cases have been discovered in the palace of Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaevitch, the Tauride Palace, the palace of Prince Alexander Oldenburg, a cousin of the Emperor, and the Imperial Opera House. A number of diplomas and prominent society people have hurried their departure abroad.

In order to test the efficacy of vacination in cholera cases s graduate students of St. Petersburg University voluntarily permitted themselves to be vaccinated, after which they drank a solution containing cholera germs.

Among the cases reported in St. Petersburg on Wednesday is that of Court Councillor Nechiporenko, who was stricken while entertaining a party of guests. Two prominent merchants, several officials in the various Ministries, and other members of the better classes in the capital are down with the dread disease. The accumulation of corpses at the graveyards continues to increase.

The report for the twenty-four hours ending at noon on Wednesday shows 436 cases and 153 deaths. The disease has broken out among the cadets at the Pavlowsk Military Academy.

A PHYSICAL WRECK

MR. RENE ST. JEAN.

A Resident of Ottawa Finds Relief in Pe-ru-na.

MR. RENE ST. JEAN, 210 St. Patrick street, Ottawa, Ont., Can., writes:

"I believed a year ago that I could stand anything. I worked hard, kept irregular hours, and did not mind the loss of a few meals, but in six weeks I had changed to a physical wreck.

"Eight bottles of Peruna brought back my strength."

Mr. A. O. Harding, 503 W. 146 St., New York City, formerly one of the leading druggists of Prescott, Ont., has been presented with a twenty-five year Medal of Honor in Odd Fellowship. He writes as follows:

"Ever since—I have been handling Peruna, I have had a fine trade. Once a family buys a bottle, I am sure of selling them more, and it never fails to bring additional customers.

"I have nothing better for catarrh in all of its various forms. As a household remedy it is without compare, splendid for mothers and excellent for children."

OPTOMISTIC TO THE END.

Some time ago there was a flood in Western Pennsylvania. An old fellow who had lost nearly everything he possessed was sitting on the roof of the house as it floated along, when a boat approached.

"Hello, John!"

"Hello, Dave!"

"Are your fowls all washed away, John?"

"Yes, but the ducks can swim," replied the old man.

"Apple trees gone?"

"Well, they said the crop would be a failure, anyhow."

"I see the flood's away above your window."

'That's all right, Dave. Them winders needed washin', anyhow."

NO USE.

Visitor—So you've got a dog and a cat for pets. They must be splendid companions for you.

Tommy—Oh not very! They won't eat cake or jam.

Visitor—Well, what has that to do with it?

Tommy—Well, when there's any cake and jam missing they don't get blamed for it.

A Sure Cure for Headache.—Bilious headache, to which women are more subject than men, becomes so acute in some subjects that they are utterly prostrated. The stomach refuses food, and there is a constant and distressing effort to free the stomach from bile which has become unduly secreted there. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are a speedy alterative, and in neutralizing the effects of the intruding bile relieves the pressure on the nerves which cause the headache. Try them.

A PLAIN CONCLUSION.

"Why did Mrs. Youngmother come down to this farm to rusticate?"

"I think it was for the benefit of a little son and heir."

Dobson—"There goes Figgers, the expert accountant. They say he's going crazy." Jobson—"What's the trouble?" Dobson—"He's been trying to straighten out his wife's household accounts."

WILL DEPICT IDEAL HOME.

Exhibition in London Under Patronage of the Queen.

Extraordinary interest is being displayed in the ideal home exhibition, which opens under the patronage of her Majesty the Queen at Olympia, on Oct. 9. In a year which will be memorable in London for splendid exhibitions, this promises to be in every respect one of the most popular, appealing as it does to all classes of the community.

Put briefly, the exhibition is the first attempt by practical demonstration to portray the ideal home ception, construction and equipment.

On entering the amphitheatre the visitors will find himself in the sections devoted to construction, decoration and sanitation. Every type of metal work, flooring and building material, wood carving and turning, beautiful pictures, engravings, hangings and draperies, artificial flowers and ornaments, fascinating new methods of lighting, in town and country houses, all types of geysers, stoves and radiators will be displayed.

In the section devoted to ventilation not only will there be all sorts of patent windows, fans, and other devices, but a completely fitted billiard room will be filled with tobacco smoke at intervals, and practical methods for clearing it demonstrated.

Those who take interest in the interior charm of home will doubtless linger in the furnishing sections. There the rich and those of humbler means alike will have demonstrated what art refinement, science and invention have accomplished to make the home beautiful and comfortable. Leading firms will exhibit complete rooms furnished in various styles. Near by there will be a remarkable display of antique and historical furniture—one of the most original ever arranged in London.

But the exhibition will be notable in another direction. Furniture and equipment, such excellent adjuncts, do not constitute a home. Hence the promoters have arranged that all that tends to make home life social—its music and its recreations—shall have place in the foreground of the splendid display. There will be a section devoted to music and indoor pastimes.

Every woman will seek the "babyland" section, with its model creche, model ward in a children's hospital, children's furniture and games and toys of every description.

The practical housekeeper will examine with interest the infinite variety of cleaning materials, carpet sweepers, brushes, brooms, laundry appliances, washing and knife cleaning machines.

MOTHERS!

Give the Children a Chance.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 103, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

EXTREMES IN LIFE.

Extatic Young Father—My baby has just cut his first tooth!

Despairing Old Grandsire—My last tooth has just cut me!

If you are out of sorts get a bottle of 'Ferrozim' the best tonic, and you will be surprised how quickly that tired feeling will wear off. $1.00 bottles. All dealers in medicine

Mrs. Baldwin—"That husband of mine is a most careless man. I expect he'll lose his head some of these days." Mrs. Bunn—"I see he's lost the next thing to it—his hair."

To Those of Sedentary Occupation.—Men who follow sedentary occupations, which deprive them of fresh air and exercise, are more prone to disorders of the liver and kidneys than those who lead active, outdoor lives. The former will find in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills a restorative without question the most efficacious on the market. They are easily procurable, easily taken, act expeditiously, and they are surprisingly cheap considering their excellence.

JUDGMENT OF SOLOMON.

First Guest—"Hi, waiter, open that window, please. I can't stand this heat."

Waiter—"Directly, sir." (Opens the window.)

Second Guest (a little later)—"Waiter, there's draught enough to give one a death of cold. Do shut the window."

Waiter—"Yes, sir." (Shuts the window.)

First Guest—"Waiter, are you mad? Why have you closed the window? Open it again at once."

Waiter—"Very good, sir." (Goes to landlord.) "Sir, one of the gentlemen wants the window open, and the other wants me to shut it. What am I to do?"

Landlord—"Do what the gentleman says who hasn't dined yet."

When a girl gets a fellow on the string she usually expects him to tie a true lovers' knot.

ILLS OF CHILDHOOD, HOW TO CURE THEM

In thousands of homes Baby's Own Tablets is the only medicine used when children are ailing, and the mother who keeps this medicine on hand may feel as safe as though there was a doctor constantly in the home. Baby's Own Tablets cure all stomach and bowel troubles, break up colds, expel worms, and make teething easy. The mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine contains no opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. Mrs. H. H. Bonnyman, Mattall, N. S., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my little girl while teething and for constipation, and think there is no medicine can equal them." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PLAYGROUND FOR ENGLISH.

Twenty Trains From London for Scotland in a Day.

The great playing ground of the British aristocracy and of the sporting rich is Scotland. There is no country in the world which depends so much for its living on sport, says a writer in Harper's Weekly.

Millions of acres that fifty years ago were let at a peppercorn rent now bring in vast sums as grouse moors and deer forests, and the time is not far off when all Scotchmen will be gillies, caddies or beaters, or will serve in some other capacity in the vast and expanding organization that ministers to sport.

Personally, as a man of very moderate means, I would rather go anywhere for a holiday than to Scotland. To be invited as a guest to some great Scottish mansion with its private golf links, its brawling trout and salmon stream, its unequaled apparatus for grouse shooting and deer stalking, and its intoxicating scenery is, of course, another matter, although even under such circumstances, the expense of the journey and the prodigality of the tips expected from one make the acceptance of hospitality anything but a cheap undertaking.

But to go to Scotland as a non-millionaire is to herd with peripatetic tourists in the trains, coaches and steamers that make the tour of the Higlands. To be out of things in Great Britain is to be enormously out of them, to belong in fact to a totally different world with different standards, possibilities and pursuits.

The number of these who are in them, however, seems to be always increasing. On Aug. 11, the day before grouse shooting opened, 20 special trains left a single London station for Scotland and the north, bearing a regular army of sportsmen and their families, valets, maids, chauffeurs and grooms, pointers and setters.

Father, who was conversing with some of his children on "Truthfulness," remarked that, when he was a boy, if he or any of his brothers or sisters told a lie their mouths were thoroughly washed with soap and water. Little Tommy, who was seated in the corner of the room, exclaimed: "Papa, you would soon get used to it."

MAGISTRATE SPEAKS FOR ZAM-BUK

Magistrate Perry, of Goldfields, B.C., believes in making a good thing known. Writing of Zam-Buk, the great household balm, he says:—"After a very fair trial I have proved Zam-Buk eminently satisfactory. In my case it cured a skin rash of five years' standing which no doctor had been able to do any good for. I would certainly encourage any person to keep Zam-Buk in his home." The magistrate is quite right. Every home needs Zam-Buk! Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, blood poisoning and all skin diseases. All stores and druggists sell it at 50 cents a box. Sure cure for piles.

DON'T NEGLECT THAT SORE!

A Chicago man has just died from blood poisoning arising from neglect of a small sore. Don't neglect a cut, a patch of eczema, or an open sore of any kind. The air is full of poison germs, waiting to start up their evil results in neglected sores, wounds, etc. In Zam-Buk is safety. Zam-Buk is so highly antiseptic that applied to any skindisease or injury it makes blood poisoning impossible. In using Zam-Buk you have three processes going on at once for Zam-Buk is healing soothing and antiseptic. Try it without delay.

A GENUINE OFFER.

TEST ZAM-BUK AT OUR EXPENSE!

We appreciate the position taken by the man or woman who says:—"If your preparation is what you claim, you should have no objection to letting us try it before spending our money on it." To every person taking this view we say, send one cent stamp (to pay return postage) and name and date of this paper to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, and we will mail you a free trial box of Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk is purely herbal, suitable for the delicate skin of little children, yet powerful enough to heal chronic sores of long years' standing. All druggists and stores, 50c. per box, 3 for $1.25.

BLAMEFUL.

When the average man fails to make good he begins to look around for some one to blame it on.

A Good Medicine requires little advertising. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil gained the good name it now enjoys, not through elaborate advertising, but on its great merits as a remedy for bodily pains and ailments of the respiratory organs. It has carried its fame with it wherever it has gone, and it is prized at the antipodes as well as at home. Dose small, effect sure.

Mother—"Jane, you must choose between the two. Will you marry the man who loves you or the man who can dress you?" Daughter—"Mamma, as an up-to-date girl, I must reply to your question that, although love is a very desirable thing, clothes are an absolute necessity."

It will be noticed in the Singer Sewing Machine Company's advertisement that there are three addresses at the bottom of the announcement. Any one writing will please address them at the nearest one of the three places to his post office.

Mother—"Oh, Bobby, you naughty boy, you've been smoking!" (Pause.) "Poor darling! Do you feel very bad?" Bobby (who has been well brought up)—"Thank you! I'm dying!"

These two desirable qualifications, pleasant to the taste and at the same time effectual, are to be found in Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. Children like it.

"The village boasts a choral society, does it not?" inquired the visitor. The resident shook his head. "Boast," he said, "is not precisely the right word. I should say rather that the village endures a choral society with manly resignation."

Increase Pay of Election Officers.

A meeting of Cabinet Council, attended by the four ministers in the Capital, Hon. Messrs. Aylesworth, Lemieux, Fisher, and Scott, was held Friday afternoon and all arrears of departmental business requiring consideration in council were cleaned up.

An order-in-council was passed proclaiming Thanksgiving Day for Monday November 9th, which is also the King's birthday.

A new civil service classification and scale of salaries for lighthouse keepers was adopted. The new schedule will have the effect of slightly raising the salaries now in force and will generally better the conditions of the men who have hitherto as a rule been paid comparatively inadequate salaries.

Permission was given for the passage through Canada of the ancient and honorable artillery company of Boston, bearing arms on October 4th next en route from Boston to Chicago.

Several amendments were made to the existing schedule of salaries and allowances of returning officers, constables, and other officials connected with the carrying out of the provisions of the election act. Secretary of State Hon. R. W. Scott has found that owing to the small amount now authorized for the payment of individual election officials there have been many refusals to accept the positions offered. Accordingly the pay of election constables has been raised from $1 to $1.50 per day and a travelling allowance of eight cents per mile has been authorized. In the case of returning officers remuneration has been fixed at $40 in cases where no poll is demanded, and a minimum of $60 where vote is taken. In cases where the number of polls is over 30, an allowance of $2 per poll is made to returning officers.

Why Liquid Catarrh Remedies Fail.

They go direct to the stomach, have very little effect on the linings of the nose and throat, and entirely fail to cure. Only by cleansing the air passages by relieving the inflamation and killing the germs is cure possible. No combination of Antiseptics is so successful as Catarrhozone. In breathing it, you send the richest pine balsams right to the seat to the disease. Irritating phlegm is cleared out, hoarseness, coughing and hacking are cured. For a permanent cure for catarrh, nothing equals Catarrhozone, 25 cts. and $1.00 at all dealers.

The Late Geo. A. Holt.

After an illness of but a few days there passed from this life on Wednesday morning a resident of Morrisburg, who for some years had been closely identified with the business interests of Morrisburg.

Geo. A. Holt, the subject of this notice, was born in New Hampshire in 1835 At the age of 25 years he came to Canada and established a tinsmith business here. Later he took as partner A. G. F. Drew, the firm Holt and Drew doing a flourishing business for some years Mr. Holt was at one time a member of the village council and took a deep interest in everything pertaining to the welfare of Morrisburg.

SLEEPLESS?

Nerves are Racked. Vitality is Lowered Brain is Congested. Health Undermined. Narcotics, Worse than Useless. Produce no permanent Good.

Worry, overwork, overstudy and indigestion cause insomnia.

Healthy, natural sleep can't be produced by drugs.

First, the blood circulation must be improved:

Congestion of blood in the head must be relieved.

It's because Ferrozone equalizes circulation, because it soothes the irritation, because it removes congestion that it does cure insomnia.

For building blood and nerve, for instilling force and life into over worked organs, for establishing strength and vitality- where can you find anything so sure as Ferrozone.

Remember, sleep is just as important as food.

You must sleep or break down.

You can if you'll use Ferrozone and thereby remove the conditions which now keep you from sleep.

Ferrozone is not a narcotic, not a dope; it is a healthgiving tonic that any child or delicate woman can use.

Absolutely safe is Ferrozone.

Take it for a month, take it for a year—no harm—no harm, but unmeasurable good will result.

To sleep well, look well, feel well, to be free from depression, nervousness or blues—use Ferrozone. It's a food tonic, a healer to the weak and wretched, a boon to the sleepless—sold everywhere in 50c. boxes.

"Take my compliments to Miss Leake. I particularly wish to see her," he said to a servant, who returning next minute requested him to walk up-stairs.

"I want to speak to little Crepton," was the manner and fashion of his salutation to Judith. "Will you let me see her here?"

"Little Crepton is at this minute engaged in a very interesting conversation with Dr. Duvard," answered Judith, with a smile. "I imagine they are making up a lovers' quarrel, and will get through the performance better without our assistance;" and as she concluded, the olderly man and the young woman, to both of whom such things seemed but as sad, dreamy memories of a lovelier and brighter shore looked into each other's faces, and smiled mournfully.

"Sit down," said Judith, after a pause. "Dr. Duvard will call in here as he comes down, and we can then send him back for her. I dare say he will not object to execute the commission."

"So he is smitten there?" remarked Mr. Gartmore, taking a chair. "Poor fellow!"

"Yes, he has caught the infection," said Judith. "It is one few escape; and though the hearts of some can be healed after the ordeal they are, to my thinking, never worth the having; there is a deal said against first love, Mr. Gartmore, but I believe in none other."

"Do you believe in love at all?" he inquired.

"Do I believe in Heaven?" she answered. "The capacity of the human heart for love, I believe to be as large as its capacity for suffering, and that is awful!"

"And does he really care for her?" asked Mr. Gartmore, with slight relevancy to his last question.

"Yes; it is first love on both sides. They were to have been married long ago, only he dreaded dragging her down to poverty. He is very poor still; and there really seems no chance of his fortunes mending, unless," she added, laughingly, "you could get some fine, fanciful lady to 'take him up' and make him the fashion. You had better, however, not recommend him to Sir John Lestock's attention; as I feel quite sure he would poison the baronet and his daughter, if the chance were given him, without the slightest scruple of conscience."

"I have a great mind then to send him to prescribe for my brother's gout," growled out Mr. Gartmore; "but stay, here he comes. Well, doctor, how is your patient? I mean Miss Crepton; there, there, man, don't look so foolish—I see by your face all is as you could wish. Now, away up to Miss Crepton again, and say I want to see her here. An old fellow's privilege, you know," he added, noticing Charles did not altogether like his mode of address, "to order young ones about."

Very timidly Alice came in, followed closely by one, on whose shoulder she had wept out, poor little soul, an ocean of repentant tears. Very timidly she entered, with her heart throbbing violently, and a color in her face, and a moisture in her eyes; but Mr. Gartmore, more kindly and considerately than was his wont, taking no notice of her embarrassment, introduced her, formally, to Miss Leake—motioned her to a seat on the sofa, and began:

"I wanted to tell you, little one, that I have disposed of your book."

"Already!" she cried, and a bright, earnest look of delight and surprise broke out over her face, like sunshine after a shower—"already!"

"Yes, and here is the price; little enough, you will say—but we shall do better next time. Take it, child; don't you see what it is?"

"Fifty pounds—all mine?" she asked, doubtingly.

"Honestly earned," replied Mr. Gartmore, with a smile.

"And may I do what I like with it?" she demanded, still incredulous.

"Certainly, it is your own."

"My own!" she repeated; "my —and, perfectly regardless presence of strangers, she ross the room to Charles, ing the money into his looking beseechingly up worn face, fell to cry-as though he would, by this simple action, have shielded her constancy and purity, even from suspicion.

"There, there, don't be angry," said Mr. Gartmore, deprecatingly, "I did not mean to grieve you; only having had a hand in the getting of the money, I thought I had a right to make what comments I chose on the way in which it was spent. What say you, Miss Leake?" added he, turning towards the chair she usually occupied, but it was empty.

Silently she had stolen from the room, and flinging herself across her bed, wept such scalding tears as seemed as though they had been poured from some demon's cauldron, not wrung from any mortal heart. Dust and ashes!—love, happiness, fame, wealth! She had touched them all—and this was what they crumbled to under her fingers.

It was only the bitterness of the contrast which struck home to her so forcibly and suddenly, that she could not subdue the promptings of her rebellious heart, but felt herself constrained to lie there weeping, till the fit was over and the fountain dry.

At last she arose, and bathed her eyes, and re-entered the apartment. As she crossed the threshold, she heard Mr. Gartmore say, in a somewhat excited tone, "It really strikes me, young people, you have waited far too long already; I insist upon its taking place at once."

Then Judith knew they were to be married immediately, and that Mr. Gartmore was going to help them on in the world.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Alice and Charles went abroad for the honeymoon and during their absence Mr. Gartmore amused himself by having a house "done up" nicely for them, and by spreading amongst all his acquaintances an account of Dr. Duvard's extraordinary talents and abilities.

Miss Lestock, too, hearing of the young doctor whom her rich uncle thought fit to praise, inquired concerning him; but Mr. Gartmore put his veto on Charles being called in for her case, by declaring it was one only fit for a surgeon, and that he should recommend her at once to repair to the most eminent in London. In brief—between upholsterers and paperhangers, painters and ladies afflicted with fingeraches, Mr. Gartmore's time was pretty fully occupied—so fully, indeed, that he should have had little leisure left to attend to Judith, even had she desired his society, which she did not.

One day, however, he told her he had seen her husband, who was on the eve of starting off for Wales; and being subsequently informed of his arrival there, Judith ventured to stir out—to drive away miles and miles from London—to breathe once more the pure fresh air of heaven—to feel again, even for a few minutes, free.

It seemed to give her fresh life that strange, unwonted holiday; and even whilst her disease was making greater strides than ever, she looked better than she had done for months previously. Her last book was out, and successful. In it she had put forth the best powers of her mind—into it she had flung the best and richest treasures of her imagination.

And yet the applause of the world echoing back as it did into her desolate room, seemed to give her no pleasure. Adverse criticism could not touch her now—the riches and the praises, the censures and the vanities of this earth had power over her no longer. No thought of temporal success or temporal failure disturbed her heart then, for she was looking out from the very shores of time over the calm boundless ocean of eternity.

It was something like this she once said to Mrs. Duvard, who, after her return to London, came, gently forcing her presence on the invalid. All unconscious of the relationship existing between them, ignorant of the fact that the authoress, whose works were her ideal of perfection, was identical with the beautiful woman who stood so solitary in the world—she poured out her admiration into ears that had never before listened to such words of genuine unaffected praise. The great voice of the public was never so sweet or soothing to her vain woman's heart as the tones in which Alice spoke of "the love she felt for a woman she had never seen, of all the good her books had done her."

"And is it not a shame," said the young wife one day, "that her works should be so cut to pieces as they are in many papers? I declare I get quite angry; it must grieve and vex her to such a degree!"

Judith laughed. "If t had not been cut up, it wo proved there was nothing What is not worth pullin es cannot be worth read if you go on writing, you that the higher up you g literary ladder, so in pr portion will be the a harsh, but really service cism you will have to en

"Do you think so?" as doubtfully. "It seems to hard, nevertheless. It unjust—so cruel!"

"My dear child," i Judith, "what are these this woman that you sho indignant about the mat you think the worst rev was ever written could ef our sex like a harsh or c tence at home? Believe never through her vanity man can be really touche be through her love. Brin home to yourself—and y that your pity and your i are alike thrown away—t favorable criticism may b adverse remarks are not to bear after all."

"But then she is so m er than I could ever b books are so beautiful."

"To your thinking, pe not to her own."

"Then you really b those reviews do not gr said Alice, earnestly.

"I know they do not reply. "The woman those books has passe such an ocean of suffering trifles seem to her but a spray that relieves the m the breakers on which sh been drifting; but she doe pity from any one; she without it, and she can it—of a truth—yes."

And as Judith con rose and would have w to the window, but a pa ing arms were around Alice was crying out—

"Oh! you know her, you do. Are you she Mrs. Spierson?"

"Not Mrs. Spierson, Leake, Alice," was the your most wretched co Mazingford."

"Sit down, you loo exclaimed Alice; and spoke, Judith tottered

"I have talked too leave me," she mutter

"Never again — nev again. You shall come me, and I will nurse health; you will be ne and the very servants n know you are in the ho listen to any objection come away the minute y ter."

And the result of the that Mrs. Duvard carri and bore Judith off in her own house, where and attention, and s pause was obtained in the terrible disease wh ling her.

Once she went out tale which Alice wishe cepted—for though sh writing herself, yet st the atmosphere of a p fice and the associatio erature.

She told Alice after a curious chance which that place, at that part and so perhaps it migh called, if it were not events which we style are really nothing more extraordinary than the meeting places of two roads, to which we must inevitably come if we pursue the path alloted to us.

The fact was, that coming out of the publisher's, she beheld an old man enter, and, with an excited manner, address a few words to the assistant behind the counter.

Judith never could tell what impelled her to pause on the threshold and watch out that little play to the end; only she did so, and saw a parcel which she knew by intuition contained manuscripts, handed back to the new-comer without a word.

"Rejected," said the old man, despairingly.

"Won't do—not suitable," answered the lad, and he was turning away whistling.

'Who is that gentleman?" Judith demanded.

"Don't know, ma'am—never saw him till the other day, when he first called about these papers," was the reply with which Judith had to content herself.

Perhaps it was a thought of her own father—of his disappointed life and fruitless endeavors, that induced Mrs. Mazingford to follow the stranger, whom she overtook in St. Paul's Churchyard, just as he staggered up against the railings of the Cathedral.

KNEW WHY.

"If I were you," said the old bachelor to the benedict, "I'd either rule or know why."

"Well," was the reply, "as I already know why, I suppose that's half the battle."

GREAT LOCUST PLAGUE

WIDE AREAS MADE DESOLATE IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Five Governments are Fighting the Pest, Which is Yearly Getting Worse.

A cable despatch received in France a while ago described how in the province of Catamarca, Argentina, many women had fallen to the ground in convulsions of weeping and for a time were almost bereft of their senses, repeating over and over only the words: "The locusts, the locusts!" It was the third successive season in which they had seen the skies darkened with clouds of locusts that settled down upon their fields and plains, destroying the crops and every vestige of the vegetation on which their cattle and sheep subsist.

No other part of the world has in recent years suffered from such a plague of locusts as the agricultural States of subtropical and temperate South America—Argentina, Bolivia, southern Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay share the affliction.

In these regions the swarms have been steadily increasing for a number of years. They are supposed to originate in the southerly part of the Amazon basin and in the Chaco of Bolivia and of northern Argentina.

They come from the north in clouds that sometimes darken the sun and some of the swarms have been estimated to be sixty miles long and from twelve to fifteen miles wide. But these billions of flying insects are only the forerunners of the GREATER MISCHIEF TO COME.

They make desolate the area in which they settle, but often jump wide areas in their flight. Before they take to the wing they lay billions of eggs in the warm earth which in a few weeks become hoppers. It is this young, voracious brood, before it can fly, that utterly strips the land of everything green as thought it had been burned over.

All the Governments are fighting the evil. Two years ago the Aregntine Government organized a bureau under the name of Defensa general agricola para la extinction de langosta, or Commission for the Destruction of the Locust. Last year the Argentine congress placed $4,500,000 at the disposal of this commission.

Sub-committees represent the general commission in every department exposed to these invasions and they extend from the northern limit of agriculture in the republic to the Neuquen River, almost to Patagonia. Everything possible is done to minimize the damage.

A fine of 100 pesos is imposed upon any settler failing to report to the sub-committee in his district the presence of locust swarms or hopper eggs on his land. An organized service embracing thousands of men is in readiness at any moment to send a force to any place where danger is reported. The most effective war is waged against the young hoppers.

THE OFFICIAL REPORT

is that as many as 52,000 hoppers eggs have been counted in a space less than three and a half feet square. A prodigious number of the young insects are destroyed soon after hatching by means of sprinkling carts filled with arsenic water or other poisonous liquids. Still many of them escape and the country they cover is too vast to be entirely treated with the sprinkling process. Fortunately the young hoppers have a habit that facilitates the destruction of millions more of them.

By the time they are two weeks old they have developed an enormous appetite. But they do not set out to eat up the world in thin array or scattered detachments.

They collect here and there in compact masses to move forward on the food, and when an army of hoppers advances from one space to another there is nothing left to eat on the ground they have deserted. They cannot fly, they move forward only from 400 to 600 feet a day. Now is the time to trap them.

In front of them a trench is dug about six feet deep and wide and 100 to 200 feet long. From each end of the trench pieces of sheet tin about seventy-five feet long and a foot and a half high are stuck into the ground, forming two lines of fence spreading fanlike from the ends of the trench. These fences are extended till their outer ends are hundreds of feet apart, wide enough to enclose the flanks of the invading army. Then all is ready for the drive.

IT IS HOT WORK,

beginning at sunrise, and all the settlers and the Government men sent to their aid take part in it with weapons that are effective, though they are only pieces of cloth, with which they flap the ground and urge the hoppers forward. Very often darkness falls and the rear guard of the hoppers has not yet reached the brink over which they tumble to their fate. The hoppers will not stir till sunrise, and then the flapping of the cloth is resumed till this particular army is engulfed. The crops and grass just ahead are safe for a while.

But such work as this spread over several countries is enormously expensive and is only a palliative of the terrible evil, not a remedy for it. A remedy has not yet been found. Can the plague of locusts be quenched if attacked at its head sources? Is there any parasite or natural enemy of the insect that can be introduced to quench the plague or mitigate it? Such questions as these are now being anxiously discussed in South America.

Less Costly to Protect Forests Than Plant New Ones.

"Prevention is better than cure." A new application of the old saying may be made in considering forestry policy. In this case the saying may be expanded into something like the following: "It is better to prevent forest fires (and so save many thousands of dollars' worth of valuable timber) than to try to remedy the evil by planting trees to fill the places of those destroyed."

Five dollars per acre is the minimum price given by forestry experts for forest tree planting; and the price ranges from this up to $1[illegible] per acre and more.

When the lower figure is taken as the basis of calculation, the planting of one square mile will cost $3,200; to plant ten square miles will require $32,00,0 and the planting up of a township six miles square (area, thirty-six square miles) will require the expenditure of $115,200. Such figures are apt to make one stop and think before advocating extensive planting.

The cost to the Dominion Government of patrolling the Railway Belt in British Columbia during the last fiscal year (April 1st, 1907, to March 31st, 1908) amounted to $14,-111.64. The area of the Railway Belt is a little over ten million acres. The cost, then, of patrolling this tract was less than 1½ mills per acre, or about 90 cents per square mile. No fire of any magnitude was reported during the year. The railway belt is exceptionally well guarded, but even with the cost several times what it is, the expense is well worth while, considering the value of the mature timber and young growth thus saved.

STONE CARRIERS OF [illegible]

Laborers [illegible]

Ca[illegible]

Recently an interesting water impounding scheme has been carried to successful completion in southern India at the Mari-Kanave gorge upon the Vedarati River in Mysore State.

When constructional work was in full swing more than 5,000 natives were employed and the undertaking offered a novel and interesting example of the cheapness of manual labor as compared with the mechanical appliances.

In India there exists a class of laborers generally described as "nowgunnies," or professional stone carriers, who, owing to their capacity for hard work, are in great demand for such enterprises as this. They are of powerful physique and possess considerable stamina. They will work for ten hours a day and transport from 70 to 150 pounds of stone a man. They form gangs according to the character of the work in hand, ranging from two, four, eight, twelve to sixteen men a unit.

Although such transportation seems somewhat slow in comparison with the possibilities of handling plants, yet they prosecute their task very energetically and the scale of pay, ranging from 10 to 16 cents a man a day, and so low as to render such labor far cheaper than mechanical transport. Indeed, a complete installation of the latter was laid down, a cable being stretched across the gorge over the site, bringing the stone direct from the quarries on the hillsides to the site ready for setting, but this had to be abandoned owing to its being far more expensive than the "nowgunny" labor.

These men carried the masonry from the end of the railroad track connecting the site of the barrage with the quarries to its destination and placed it in position.

When a man gets that tired feeling there is no way of judging how long it is going to last.

About the Farm

THE GREATEST CALLING.

The best thing about farming is that no man living knows all there is to learn regarding it, and scarcely any man is so ignorant but he knows something about it. An agriculturist may be anything from a fool to a philosopher; he may have the manners and the tastes of a brute, or he may be the highest product of Christian civilization. The man is everything; and everything depends upon the man. The most brainless creature that walks on two legs can usually manage to make a living out of a rich soil, while the best trained and most thoroughly equipped intellectual giant finds ample scope on the farm for all his powers. Truly farming is a God-given industry, a divine calling! No other industry or calling in the whole world appeals to the affections of man so strongly or stirs up their hatred so successfully. Some people condemn the farm and farming, while other people praise the farm and rejoice in being farmers. Are both classes right- Many farms are not farmed or cultivated or managed with the slightest regard for their requirements, while countless farmers are merely "soil robbers," who do not know the most elementary principles of agriculture. Before people condemn farming or cry down tillers of the soil they should have a basis of proof. At the present time only the failures—the farms that are not cultivated—are offered as proof. It is time we heard the last of criticism of the agriculturist, but a little criticism of the agriculturist will do him good. Condemn not the calling. Every farmer needs a mirror that he may have his weakness and his wrong methods revealed to him. When he studies himself, his methods, his fields, his stock, his implements and his family, with now and then a brief survey of his bank account, and then makes broad comparisons with the best that is being done elsewhere, he finds it reasonably easy to measure his progress. No f[illegible] ther h[illegible]

[illegible] impoverished, full of weeds, [illegible] buildings decayed or their stock lacking in health, thrift or selling quality. How very often one sees all of these calamities overtake the farmer at one time. 'Tis a pity and yet the pity of it 'tis true. Let us be of the number that having once put their hand to the plow goes forward to the path of progress. The path is plainly blazed and he who runs may read. It was not so in the days of our forebears; they did not enjoy the privileges of the valuable research that has been and is being carried on by private individuals and public institutions. They have gone before, but they have left their foot-prints. Where they lead to progress, let us follow, with zeal, for our work and our reward will be sure. Modern, as well as ancient research, are some of the blessings for which we farmers should feel grateful. It has promoted the standing of the farming profession until it can no longer be gainsayed or denied that farming is the greatest calling in the world.—Maritime Farmer.

THE PIG PEN.

While pigs may live on grass, they will hardly thrive on it alone.

Any weakness in the legs is a great objection in a breeding pig.

Whenever the pig is going backward he is losing his owner money.

It will not always do to condemn a sow because she is lazy and sluggish.

The health of the pig is the most important point in securing a profitable growth.

Ground barley and skim milk cannot be surpassed for feeding sows just after farrowing, as it produces a great deal of milk of fine quality.

The Argentine Republic contains more horses than any other country, the proportion being about 111 to every 100 of the population.

Only One Conservative to be Nominated in Stormont, Says Mr. Pringle.

Cornwall, Sept. 28.—Despite the disagreeable weather, the Music Hall was well filled to-night when a meeting was held in the interest of R. A. Pringle, M.P., the Liberal-Conservative standard-bearer. The crowd was enthusiastic and the speakers were frequently interrupted by hearty rounds of applause. J. C. Milligan presided, and introduced R. Larmour, ex-mayor of Cornwall, who spoke at some length. He was followed by Mr. Pringle, who assured the gathering that, despite various rumors to the contrary, only one Conservative candidate would be nominated in Stormont on October 19. He accused the Liberals of abondoning their platform of 1903 and tinkering with the tariff to the detriment of business. He defended his action regarding the proposed damming of the Longue Sault Rapids, and said this scheme would mean the expenditure of over thirty millions of dollars, and would some time produce the greatest electrical development in the world. He had it on the authority of expert engineers that the proposed dam would not interfere with navigation, and would not flood a foot of land that had not been bought and already partly paid for. He also spoke at some length, defending his work for the inspection of banks, and the aiding of the aged poor.

At the close of the meeting it was announced that Mr. R. L Borden, leacer of the Conservative party, would speak in Cornwall on October 13, and that Sir James Whitney would speak here later on.

Waddell—McCormick.

A very pretty house wedding took place last night in the home of Mr. Robert McCormick of this village. The occasion was the marriage of his daughter Nellie to Mr. Russell Waddel of Vernon. About 8 p. m. Miss Hazel Saucier played the wedding march, when the bridal party entered the room. Little Miss Thompson made a dainty ring bearer. Mitchell Waddell acted as best man, while Miss Ruby Shaver supported the bride. The wedding was solemnized under a beautiful arch of evergreens and flowers with a wedding bell hanging from it. The background of the arch was banked with palms. The house was was prettily decorated with evergreens and flowers. The bride looked sweet in a charming gown of white taffeta trimmed with handsome lace. She wore a wedding veil caught up with orange blossoms, and carried a large boquet of white asters. The bridesmaid wore a pretty white gown After the service the guests to the number of fifty sat down to a sumptuous dinner. The gifts to the bride were numerous and costly testifying to the high esteem in which the bride is held by a large circle of friends.

Her father gave her a beautiful upright piano and her mother a handsome sable stole. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold chain and locket set with diamonds; to the bridesmaid a gold ring set with amethysts and a pretty gold ring to the little ring bearer. Cow in Well Two Weeks Yet alive.

On August 31st Mr. J. J. Black had a valuable mich cow stray away, which he advertised for but could gain no tidings of until last week, when she was found but had to be put to death. It appears the cow fell into a hole about six feet deep on B. C. Beach's swamp farm from which the Indians secured their supply of water in the winter. The cow had remained there for two weeks and continued to live until found by Allie Annable. Mr. Annable was returning home about dusk and was some distance from the well when he heard a doelful sound and went over to investigate. Looking into the well he saw the cow and securing assistance got her out. She had stood in several feet of water all this time and was alive, but was so emaciated that she had to be killed.—PRESS.

VISIT TO RUSSIAN PRISON

SCHLUSSELBURG IS REGARDED AS PLACE OF HORRORS.

A Writer Says Prisoners are Better Treated There Than Prisoners in England.

Every now and again one hears reports of the terrible conditions prevalent in the Russian prisons—the damp, filthy, overcrowded cells; the coarse, disgusting food; the harsh, cruel treatment of the hapless prisoners.

Quite lately a tale of the sufferings of the political prisoners in the fortress of Schlusselburg was unfolded. Chained hands and feet day and night, fed only on black bread and water, mercilessly beaten with the knout for the slightest offence, men and women huddled together in damp dens—such as the picture presented to an indignant world.

It is perhaps only natural that in the fancy of men Schlusselburg is particularly singled out as a place of horrors. There is something in the words "island prison" that involuntarily carries one's imagination back to that other island made famous by the stirring tale of Dumas, Monte Cristo's prison on the Chateau d'If in the harbor of Marseilles—with the additional terror of the icy northerly gales from over the bleak waters of the Ladoga, instead of the blue, dancing waves and the mild breezes of the Mediterranean.

Frankly, when from the deck of the steamer taking me to Schlusselburg, writes B. W. Norregaard in the London Daily Mail, I espied the old walls and the low, round watch towers of the the memory of a visit to Chateau d'If, creeping through subterranean passages from one terrible, dark, damp dungeon cut in the solid rock to another, rose before my mind with vivid clearness.

The fortress, rich in memories of hard fought battles between the Russians and the Swedes, has served as prison for many a fallen grandee. Here the wonderful adventurer and statesman Biron was imprisoned after the death of his patroness, Empress Anna. Here the favorite of Peter, Menshikoff, and the pretender, Johan Antonovitch, spent years of their lives. The large room where Biron was kept imprisoned is still to be seen.

I had obtained the permission of the president of the Board of Prisons to visit Schlusselburg and see with my own eyes what foundation there might be for the allegations ...ve been made.

...uld have preferred me to ... in the summer. "We are ... new prisons there," he ... "We have not more than ... prisoners there at present, ... so we have had in some ... to put two in one cell. In ...mn we will have room for ...r hundred, and next year we will be able to accommodate nearly a thousand.

"The question of housing the immense, evergrowing number of criminals is a most difficult and most pressing one. There are at present nearly and we have, properly speaking, only room for 100,000. This, as you will understand, is as unsatisfactory for ourselves as for the prisoners.

"We are constantly asking for money for the construction of new prisons, but as you know money is not very plentiful in Russia just at present. However, there is every probability that the necessary means will be granted by the Duma."

I went through the whole fortress. I visited the present prison, went into many of the cells, being allowed to point out those which I wanted to see.

I spoke to many of the prisoners, learned of their occupation and their prison routine. I visited the kitchen, the bathrooms, the workshops, the punitive cells. I tasted the food. Then I went through the new buildings, which were nearly completed.

I can sum up my impressions in a few words. The prisoners in Schlusselburg are in every way better off than their conferes in similar institutions in England. The prisoners are treated more leniently, they have greater liberties, they are as well or better housed, their food is as nourishing and palatable, the care of their personal cleanliness is greater.

The excellently ventilated cells are 7½ feet by 12 feet and 12 feet under the ceiling. The air in them is fresh and pure. They are heated by hot water radiators and abundantly lighted through a large window. After dark they are lighted by an electric green shaded lamp which the prisoner may place on his table or in some corner.

A prisoner here is given two pounds of black bread daily, of the kind used by practically all Russians. Three times a day he receives a big kettle of boiling water. The prison does not supply him with tea, coffee or cocoa, but he may buy these things for himself.

AT NOON HE HAS A HOT MEAL,

consisting generally of a large bowl of soup with a piece of meat and some vegetables in, and a large dish of "kasha," a kind of porridge much favored by all Russians. I went to the kitchen, which with its majolica covered floor, its large stove and the beautiful copper pans would do credit to any restaurant. I tasted the "shtshi" (meat soup) and the kasha, both rather better than what is given to the soldiers of the imperial guard.

In the kitchen, as everywhere, the most scrupulous cleanliness is maintained. For their daily ablutions the prisoners in their cells have a basin and a tap, and once a week they are given a steam bath in a large, well-equipped bathroom.

The prisoners are allowed to smoke in their cells—of course they have to buy their cigarettes themselves. Twice a month they may receive visits from their nearest relations—of course under supervision and generally through grilled screens. There is a very good library, from which they may borrow three books at a time.

Of course there are no novels, but scientific books in every branch of science, books of travel, history and geography. They may write and receive letters—of course after being read and stamped by the chief of the prison.

People who have learned some handicraft may work in their profession. I saw being done by carpenters and cabinet makers, but the dearth of space makes it for the present impossible for more than a few to be occupied in this way. It will be better in the new prison.

The prisoners are given three-quarters of an hour exercise in the open air daily, six at a time. They walk about in couples and are allowed to converse together, the warders keeping at some distance. Their beds are provided with hair mattresses, white cased pillows and a blanket and if they like they may lie down for a couple of hours after dinner.

Frankly, where in the world are prisoners, even political prisoners, better treated? It must be remembered that these men are not theoretical politicans or dreamers. Most of them have taken part in armed insurrections (Sebastopol, the Baltics); two of them have accomplished political murders, several were caught redhanded manufacturing bombs.

The majority of them are uneducated men, sailors or farmers. All I saw looked well fed, clear eyed, hale and healthy. I was much struck with the confident and pleasant way in which they greeted and conversed with the inspector. Every one of them was asked if he had anything to complain of or if there was anything he wished. One man asked to have a certain book purchased for him; all the others answered in the negative.

According to the prison regulations every man sentenced to more than eight years penal servitude during the first two years exceptions being made for men of weaker health. The chains, polished like silver, are not heavy and do not trail, being lifted up in the middle and fixed to a strap hanging from a belt round their waists.

Punishments are of rare occurrence. For minor offences the prisoners are for some days deprived of books and writing materials, they are refused permission to smoke or disallowed visits from their relatives. For more serious offences they are placed in punitive cells which are lighted only by electricity day and night, where the bed is a wooden pallet and their food bread and water, with, however, a hot meal every fourth day.

Only once has a prisoner received corporal punishment—not by the knout but by the birch. A dangerous and violent anarchist tried to assault the president of the board of prisons visiting his cell.

Godfrey's Helpfulness

"GODFREY! oh, Godfrey!"

No sooner did he hear this summons, than a little boy appeared from the grape arbor in which he had been half hidden. Turning his head toward the balcony where stood the lady who had called, he shouted:

"Dost want me, mother?"

"I need thee ever so much," said the young mother, laughingly; "for I have lost a second time the book with the pretty binding of blue and gold. And since thou wast so successful in finding the book for thy careless mother when last 'twas lost, I must needs call again upon the services of my knight."

"I'll find it, mother! I'll find it!" cried Godfrey, with assurance. His chest swelled with importance as he swiftly made his way to the house.

But, for the once, Godfrey failed in his purpose. Not a trace of the book could be found. However, he did not lose all hope of bringing the volume to his mother, and he pleaded for a little more time in which to hunt for it.

A day or so later Godfrey was trundling his hoop along one of the streets of Boston town, when something brought him to a sudden stop. His hoop, which had been spinning several feet ahead, was permitted to roll unnoticed into the gutter while he hurriedly examined the shop window nearby. It was a bookshop at which he paused, and that which attracted his attention was nothing less than a volume with a beautiful binding of blue and gold.

"Mother's book, of a surety!" gasped the lad.

Then, getting his jaw determinedly, he muttered:

"Mother SHALL have her book, for I have promised it!"

First glancing around to see that no one observed, he struck savagely at the window with his hoop-stick, shattering the glass to bits. Quickly thrusting his hand through the opening, he grabbed the precious book and dashed recklessly down the street.

In vain the old bookseller pursued. The boy was more fleet of foot than he and, darting down side streets and twisting through alleys, soon eluded him.

Triumphantly Godfrey bore his capture home. Seeking his mother, he laid it before her, saying, proudly:

"See, lady mother, I have brought back thy book and kept my promise!"

"But this book is not mine, e'en though the binding be of a striking likeness," exclaimed the mother, in astonishment. "Tell me, my son, where didst thou get it?"

"Some one stole it and took it to the bookshop, mother, and I went thither and ran away with the book from Mr. Jenkins," Godfrey explained, his eyes sparkling with pride at the thought of his achievement.

Godfrey's father straightened out the tangle that evening. When he returned home, after paying the bookseller for his book and the damage done to the window, he drew Godfrey aside and told him very carefully that however much little boys may wish to help, they should always first make sure they do the right thing in the right way.
