Violent relationship ends in deaths

By Scott Ferrier
News* reporter

It was a relationship that was destined to self-destruct.

The only two questions waiting to be answered were when and how.

Friends and family of Vivian Faubert and Bob Brunet finally found the answers last Tuesday.

Faubert, 31, and Brunet, 27, perished in a violent car explosion just west of Glen Robertson around 3 p.m. The Alexandria couple's 19-month-old daughter, Sophie, also died in the blaze.

Many believe the explosion was a murder-suicide. Police will neither confirm or deny that theory but say an explosive device was inside Brunet's red Chevette when it exploded in a gravel driveway on Bureau Road in Glen Robertson.

Although family, friends and acquaintances of the couple knew the four-year-long relationship had deteriorated to the point where Brunet was physically abusing her, nobody could have predicted this.

"I can't believe this has happened. She had a rough life. She couldn't get rid of Bob even if she tried. He was too fast and she was too scared," Hubert Faubert, Vivian's father, said Friday.

Hubert last saw his daughter and Brunet together the Saturday before the explosion when he, Monique Dumont — his girlfriend — and a fifth person got together to play cards.

What started off as a friendly game led to an argument between Faubert and Brunet who, at the best of times, had a tumultuous relationship.

Brunet began pushing Faubert towards the bedroom and threw her onto the bed. He choked her but Faubert fought back kicking him and ran to the kitchen where she called the police.

He fled on foot before Alexandria police arrived.

That one incident seemed to be a perfect microcosm of their relationship.

By most accounts, Faubert was a quiet woman who kept to herself and whose world revolved around Sophie and her two sons — Adam, 9, and Justin, 10 — from a previous marriage.

"Vivian was a very nice woman. She had a hard life and didn't deserve to go like this," said a former neighbor who lived in the same apartment building in Green Valley as Faubert and Brunet.

"But maybe she's better off."

Approximately 60 family members and friends attended the Faubert's and Sophie's funeral held Monday afternoon at Sacred Heart Church.

It provided the family with a last chance to say goodbye. Adam and Justin, are both staying with Hubert because "I'm the only family they have left." The brothers returned to St. Joseph's School in Alexandria Tuesday.

The manner in which the trio died was especially disturbing, Rev. Roger Desrosiers said in his eulogy.

"We don't choose the moment of our death. It is difficult to understand, especially a death that is so violent. We can ask many questions but we do not have all the answers," he said.

Faubert moved into her Green Valley apartment in 1989 before meeting Brunet, said her neighbor. The neighbor resided in the building when the two first met and watched their relationship develop.

Brunet moved in with Faubert about six months later — late 1989.

It developed into a destructive relationship which Faubert couldn't get away from for one reason or another.

"He, I would say, was a little crazy. It was scary living beside him. Once he started drinking and once they got into drugs he would just go nuts," the former neighbor said.

"I ran into her just before Christmas of last year. She was always hoping to have a little girl and she finally got her wish when she had Sophie. She was as happy as she could be."

Faubert broke up with Brunet about two and a half years ago because "the relationship turned more sour and more physical," recalls Bonnie McDonald, a longtime friend of Faubert, who severed ties because she

Dynamite didn't come from Glengarry A/C: manager

By Scott Ferrier
News* reporter

It seems Gord Robertson has been asked this question 1,000 times.

And he says for the 1,001st time, Robert Brunet never stole one stick of dynamite from Glengarry Aggregates and Concrete.

Robertson, manager of the Green Valley concrete and gravel company, says Brunet, who worked as a mechanic, never had access to dynamite.

Brunet, Vivian Faubert and their 19-month-old daughter Sophie were killed in a violent car explosion last Tuesday afternoon on Bureau Street, just west of Glen Robertson.

While the local rumor mill has been abuzz speculating that dynamite was the explosive used, Al Crocker refused to guess what caused the explosion.

Crocker, the district public information co-ordinator at OPP District 11 Headquarters in Long Sault, says the police investigation is ongoing.

"Forensic sciences has in fact confirmed that there was an explosive device inside the car. At this point in time, we're still trying to find out what it was. But the fire and explosion did originate from the inside of the car.

"It hasn't been indicated that this is a murder-suicide at this point," Crocker says.

And if dynamite was used, none of the sticks came from Glengarry Aggregates, Robertson says.

"They're used for a lot of other things like blowing up beaver dams. It would have come from somewhere else," Robertson says.

Robertson says all the sticks are accounted for at the beginning and end of the day.

Up to a year ago, Robertson says, the dynamite had been stored in a 'magazine', a large steel safe with a special lock, in a cabin at the pit on the 8th of Lancaster. That property is owned by Glengarry Aggregates' parent company, Cruickshank Construction, and is separate from Glengarry Aggregates.

Storage of the dynamite was located to Iroquois about one year

Publishing ban is refused

Judge Diane Nicholas refused to issue a publication ban on evidence in an aggravated assault case involving a young mother and her two-week old baby in provincial court Thursday.

Defense argued for the ban because the young mother comes from a small village, an older child might hear of the charges against her mother in the community or at school, and Children's Aid legal procedures are in process.

Judge Nicholas said "publicity is the hallmark of justice."

She pointed out that recent bans on evidence in court cases in Ontario stirred up much controversy.

She explained that bans are usually issued in cases affecting public morals, for the maintenance of order, or when witnesses might be frightened to testify.

"A young child who may read about the case at a future date cannot be the basis to ban the public," the judge said.

The case is continuing.

Town animal hospital okayed

Nearby residents protest development

By Greg Kielec
News* editor

Alexandria council has approved a rezoning to allow the creation of an animal hospital in Alexandria, despite protests from residents near the site.

Council passed the zoning change after a public meeting last Tuesday.

Residents opposed to the new zoning for the Dominion Street site will have 20 days after receiving notification of the zoning's approval to file an objection.

If an is objection filed within a 20 day period, the rezoning will be stalled until the matter is reviewed at an Ontario Municipal Board hearing.

Nearby residents had protested the hospital would create noise pollution, overtax the town sewage system and pollute the air with exhaust gases and the sewage system with biological waste and the chemical cleaning agent chlorine.

Hospital proponent Dr. Donald McLeod denied the hospital would cause any of the problems.

He said the hospital would create no more sewage and use no more chlorine than a restaurant, that noise would be contained and that biological waste would be handled by a private firm mandated for such disposal.

And he said the hospital's operations would be governed by provincial laws and requirements by an association which governs the operation of animal hospitals.

In the end, it was McLeod, not the residents who won out, with council favoring the passage of the rezoning at a short general meeting at the Glengarry Sports Palace.

Council had contemplated sitting on the issue to give it more thought. But Reeve Bruno Massie suggested council pass the zoning to avoid delaying the project.

And Councillor Gary Shepherd suggested the whole showdown could be avoided if McLeod located the hospital on land near the proposed site which already has the necessary zoning.

Shepherd said locating the hospital at the site he was proposing would solve the sewage problem and would negate the need for a public rezoning process.

But the proposal was not welcomed with open arms by McLeod, who also operates animal hospitals in Vankleek Hill and Hawkesbury. "What's a businessman going to do?" he replied.

And Councillor Archie McDougall suggested that if the matter does go to the Ontario Municipal Board, council should note in its submission that a nearby site could have been selected that already had the proper zoning.

One the opponents of the planned animal hospital is Dr. Janet Lalonde, who operates a veterinary clinic east of Alexandria.

"The Alexandria Veterinary Clinic has earned its place in the community and has been working to secure its future in the Alexandria region," she said in a letter to council.

"The introduction of another veterinary clinic would seriously jeopardize the viability of both establishments."

If it is allowed, "both of us will go (out of business)," she said.

Lalonde points out that "competition exists with more than 17 veterinarians and eight veterinary clinics in the SD&G counties."

"Opening the doors to a second local hospital in this area would inevitably result in the demise of a service already cultivated in the community."

But Councillor John Hope said people living in Alexandria pay taxes to the town and should be allowed to have a service for them, even if it means competition for Lalonde.

"The sun shines for everyone," he said.

Alexandria area man killed in Green Valley

No one may ever know the cause of an accident which claimed the life of a young Alexandria area man Friday.

Alain Ladouceur, 22, was killed at 6:50 a.m. on Highway 34 at the south edge of Green Valley, in a two-vehicle collision.

The accident occurred when the 1980 Citation that Ladouceur was driving north, in Green Valley, crossed the centre line and collided head on with a dump truck.

Robert Lapensee the driver of the dump truck heading south through Green Valley, was not injured.

Lancaster OPP investigated the accident but could find no evidence to suggest why Ladouceur's car drifted over the centre line, causing the collision.

Flooding creates problem expressed concern about sewage from the hospital adding to the town's already overtaxed sewer system.

Dominion Street residents have been plagued with sewage backups flooding their basements, and residents are concerned the increased volume due to the animal hospital's sewage will worsen the situation.

She also questioned the rationale of allowing an animal hospital near a residential area when most municipalities only allow such establishments in agricultural or residential areas.

And she said the town's bylaws are "archaic and inadequate" to protect residents from the noise and smell of an animal hospital and allow "quiet and peaceful enjoyment of our properties."

"There is no reason why a small animal clinic should be situated in a commercial zone and even less so when it is close to a residential zone."

Lucien and Blanche Leroux also voiced concerns about the extra stress on sewage system.

"A small animal clinic is certainly a major contributor to the volume of sewage being dumped into our system: animals are washed, cages have to be washed on a daily basis, operating room floors are washed and animal feces disposed of.

"Because our properties are lower than the rest of the town, because the sewage pipes on the street are smaller than normally used, and because the pumping station is not adequate, we have to bear the brunt of this town's problem.

"You cannot really be asking us to accept that more sewage is going to be dumped so close as to be a very real problem to us. We don't appreciate having to deal with sewer backups anymore than anyone else would."

The couple also expressed concern about noise. "Even if all the animals are kept inside, you know the kind of noise five or six barking dogs can make."

ago. The move was made so that the dynamite would be centrally located for the other company quarries that stretch from Kingston to the Quebec border.

"We don't want the rumors going around. He did a job here very well for five years. And we're not responsible for people when they leave here," Robertson says.

"We made it very clear to Lancaster OPP that we were never missing any dynamite."

Brunet was charged with a number of offences in Alexandria and Lancaster township after Faubert complained that Brunet was in possession of explosives and restricted weapons.

In her discussions with police, Faubert revealed Brunet had dragged her to the gravel pit eight months before at gunpoint and stole dynamite from there.

A search of Faubert's car by Alexandria police turned up two blasting caps. And a search of her home turned up several restricted weapons including a sawed-off rifle and a Smith and Wesson revolver.

Alexandria police also laid a charge of assault with a weapon against Brunet in connection with Faubert's abduction at gunpoint.

A second charge of possession of explosives was laid by Lancaster OPP against Brunet after a search of a Lancaster township home turned up nine sticks of dynamite.

It was never determined where the dynamite and blasting caps came from.

According to one person, Brunet had no problem getting his hands on dynamite.

Quoting a friend of Brunet's, an area daily newspaper recently reported that the avid outdoorsman used dynamite as a "concussion lure." Brunet would toss the explosives into a river and stun the fish which would float to the top.

Doug Lucas, director of the Centre of Forensic Sciences in Toronto, says tests to determine what explosive was used and where it was detonated are not yet complete.

"We're still working on it. There's a good detail of material. It'll probably be several weeks before the report is completed," Lucas says.

The end of Creations

Plant was a risky corporate citizen from its beginning

Former Alexandria Creations plant sits idle after its closure in June.

By Scott Ferrier
News* reporter

It wasn't supposed to end like this.

This plant was expected to still be open. It was supposed to be surviving. Maybe even thriving.

Instead, the doors to Alexandria Creations are locked tight.

The old Brown Shoe Company building, where the shirt manufacturing plant operated for nearly a year, is empty.

Cutters, finishers, sewers and other workers say they were blind sided in early June when the plant manager apparently skipped town and telephoned them with news of the impending closure.

Now, a pair of municipal politicians are second-guessing themselves on what they could have done differently to alter the fate of the plant.

Alexandria Mayor Jean-Paul Touchette, chair of the town's Industrial Committee, and Alexandria Councillor Francine Richer, a member of the committee, both defended their approach to bring the plant to Alexandria and don't accept any fault.

As members of the Industrial Committee, the duo worked to bring new businesses to Alexandria and lend a helping hand to the businesses already operating here.

When the future manager of Alexandria Creations, Gerard Sauve, came to town in August, 1992, he flashed money and promised that up to 150 jobs could be created, Touchette remembers.

Both he and Richer say they didn't bother looking into Sauve's background because it was none of their business.

Sauve had been in Glengarry County as early as December, 1991 looking for a new place to set up shop - he wanted to transfer his operation from the La Beauce region in Quebec to Alexandria. He happened across the Brown Shoe building, located on Highway 43, and took out a lease with an option to buy.

"It comes back to the fact that the man has money, he buys or leases a building and then he comes to see us. There was nothing we could do," Touchette says.

"It was the same as if you were buying a house. We can't tell you that you can't buy that house because it's none of our business."

However, a quick background check may have revealed a few skeletons in Sauve's closet back home in Quebec.

The former Valleyfield man had managed another shirt manufacturing plant in St. Theophile, Quebec for several years and left on a sour note.

A Quebec union filed at least seven grievances - totalling nearly $50,000 - against Sauve in May that claim the union and employees are owed back pay, vacation pay and the union is owed some misdirected union dues.

Roger Rousseau, technical counsellor at Centrale des Syndicats the union in the Quebec plant, provided The News with a copy of the grievances which were sent to the Shirt Industry Joint Commission - a Quebec watchdog group comprised of union, management and industry officials who regulate standards in the industry.

Employees of Alexandria Creations are also owed tens of thousands of dollars in back wages, vacation pay and termination pay. The problems that festered at both plants are nearly identical. (See sidebar for more details on Quebec operation.)

Rumors circulated about the state of affairs at the plant. Anonymous phone calls made to The News in late spring prompted an in-depth telephone interview with Rousseau.

Rousseau warned that workers at the Alexandria plant — which was still open for business — would be in for a rude awakening.

"You better check into him because he's going to do the same thing to you that he did to us. He's going to play with the money (withold back wages and other pay) and when the workers yell too much he's going to close it down.

"I know that man and . . . you're going to get it too," Rousseau predicted with grim accuracy.

Both Touchette and Richer knew Sauve had previous experience managing a shirt manufacturing plant in the La Beauce region when he first approached them. However, neither one looked into his business background for fear of scaring him off.

Sauve was getting away from the Shirt Industry Joint Commission which was pushing "for better working conditions (at the Quebec plant). I think he had told me that the committee was asking for too much. They were dreaming in colors," Richer says.

"He felt he couldn't keep up with the demands they were making," and wanted to move to Ontario where he thought the labor laws weren't as rigid.

She never questioned if there were other problems.

"No, he just mentioned this committee and naturally, you know, you have to figure that the Industrial Committee couldn't go (to St. Theophile).

"We were so glad to have people coming in, we didn't go into many details and go look where he had operated."

Terry O'Reilly — who was the economic director of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Economic Development Committee from the time Sauve came to town to when the plant was shut down — says the Industrial Committee could have approached the county-wide committee for assistance.

O'Reilly, who now works as the director of development in Winchester, has built up a network of business and government contacts in Ontario and Quebec who could have made some discreet inquiries, he says.

"It's one thing to bend over backwards to bring a company into your town. But it's another when someone comes in and then leaves you high and dry.

"You can do personal credit checks, talk to bankers or accountants. There's all sorts of things you can do to check into the man's background," O'Reilly says.

He's been especially cautious about businessmen who admit to having some sort of problems with labor. As a precaution, he automatically makes several inquiries.

Touchette says approaching the SDG Economic Development Committee - which falls under the United Counties' Economic Development Department to which Alexandria contributed seven per cent of a $220,000 budget or $15,400 - was an 'option' that could have been exercised.

"I hate to tell you, but we have our own Economic Development Committee in Alexandria," Touchette says.

O'Reilly emphasizes that the SDG development committee would have kept any business leads confidential. Communities throughout the three United Counties could not get into a bidding war to bring in a new business.

Looking back on things, hindsight may really be 20-20.

"It's easy to sit back and criticize them now. But nothing ventured, nothing gained," O'Reilly says.

Various employees, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, say they would have been looking for another job while working at Alexandria Creations if they knew about Sauve's business background.

> "I thought that when this company transferred to Alexandria that it was their loss and our gain. Now, it's our nightmare."
> — Former employee

Some employees were more fortunate than others as they found employment elsewhere such as Finica Fashions. Others are still combing through the help wanted ads and anxiously awaiting the back pay owed to them.

A few employees have been forced to borrow money from friends and family to make car or mortgage payments or put food on the table.

"I thought that when this company transferred to Alexandria that it was their loss and our gain. Now, it's our nightmare," one employee says.

A small group of employees filed claims with the Ontario Ministry of Labor last November to collect vacation pay owed to them.

A team of employment standard officers spoke with Sauve and, through payroll records, determined the four workers were owed a small amount of money which was immediately paid.

Employment Standard Officers Linda Morrison and Linda Bradford suspect that Sauve's decision to pay the employees set off a chain reaction he was unable to stop.

Other employees began pressing him for back pay and vacation pay they were owed.

Tension grew between Sauve and the employees at Alexandria

Comparisons to Quebec operation are identical

By Scott Ferrier
News* reporter

When employees of Alexandria Creations look into the mirror, the reflection staring back at them could be their counterparts in Quebec.

Employees who worked at the local shirt manufacturing plant and those who worked at a similar plant in St, Theophile, Quebec share a few things in common.

The both had the same manager, Gerard Sauve. They both had problems getting their pay and, eventually, both businesses closed down just as employees began to revolt against him.

The similarities between the Alexandria Creations and its counterpart in the La Beauce Region in Quebec, Confection Deschamps 29593449 Quebec Inc., almost mirror each other.

Employees from Alexandria Creations are owed tens of thousands of dollars in back wages and vacation pay. The Ministry of Labor has stepped in and issued several orders to pay for Sauve but they have been ignored.

The employees will either get the money owed to them through those orders to pay or through Ontario's Employee Wage Protection Plan.

Employees of Confection Deschamps, which was known as La Chemise C. Roy 1990 Enr. for several years and before that known as Chemise C. Roy, aren't so lucky. In Quebec, there is no such thing as an employee wage protection plan. Only half of the money owed to employees has been collected.

Sauve owes most of the remaining balance. Efforts to contact him were unsuccessful.

Roger Rousseau, technical counsellor at the Quebec union Centrale des Syndicats which represented Confection Deschamps employees, heard the story of how workers were owed back wages and vacation pay at the local plant and was overcome with a sense of deja vu.

"He came in and ran the labor. Every week: paycheques were late, overtime for working on a holiday was never paid and the four per cent vacation pay was never paid.

"It sounds like the same thing happened to you that happened to us," Rousseau says.

Sauve gradually transferred the plant from St. Theophile to Alexandria believing labor laws were not as stringent in Ontario. Confection Deschamps closed in late April, about four months before Alexandria Creations was fully operational.

Two weeks after the plant closure, Rousseau filed at least seven grievances, against Sauve, with the Shirt Industry Joint Commission - a Quebec watchdog group that is comprised of union, management and industry officials who regulate industry standards.

Rousseau provided The Glengarry News with a copy of the grievances filed, which amount to approximately $50,000, and include:

- Back wages and vacation pay totalling $18,000 owed to employees from June to August, 1992.
- Another $6,000 owed to employees for vacation and termination pay from November, 1992.
- Another $6,000 for employees who worked on statutory holidays but were not paid overtime from

Commission seeks input on education

By Greg Kielec
News* editor

Suzanne Bujold Bleile wants your opinion.

Bleile is soliciting opinions of parents and students to form a submission for the province's Royal Commission on Learning, which is to hear submissions in Cornwall, later this month.

Bleile needs submissions, which can be dropped off at Glengarry District High School or sent to the school with students, by Nov. 10.

All the input received will be compiled into a report which will presented to the school's parent committee Nov. 15.

The resulting submission will be presented to the Royal Commission on Learning Nov. 17 at St. Lawrence High School.

Bleile said the education system is going through difficult times. "There's no funding. All the budget's have been cut."

So suggestions are needed to formulate a direction for learning for the next two decades, she maintained.

Bleile is already compiling suggestions from high school students, and wants to ensure that adults, whether or not they are parents of students, have their say.

Lancaster senior guilty of sexual assault

By Pauline Ashton
News* correspondent

Judge Diane Nicholas sentenced 60-year-old Archie Gaucher of Lancaster, to a three-year suspended sentence for sexual assault on a male hitchhiker he picked up on Highway 34, July 7.

The sentence was handed down in provincial court in Alexandria, Thursday.

Gaucher is to report regularly to a probation officer, take counselling programs suggested, and continue under the care of his physician Dr. Jean-Claude Nadeau.

The judge said she has "grave concerns about the state of Gaucher's emotional and physical health," and that the 30 to 60-day jail term suggested by Crown counsel Guy Simard, "would not benefit him."

She warned, "the community will not tolerate these kind of offenses, but I am not going to incarcerate you because of medical evidence.

"You do seem to be suffering from a number of problems both mental and physical."

Crown Counsel Simard pointed out that "a period in jail is appropriate for sexual assault because it is a very serious crime."

He said general division court is "loaded" with sexual assault cases, taking up over 80 per cent of the court's time.

Judge Nicholas asked Gaucher how he pleaded after she read his pre-sentence report in which he alleged, "I didn't do it."

Details of the assault were read including allegation that Gaucher grabbed hitchhiker Gary Hicks, 20, whom he was giving a ride, in the groin area, tried to kiss him, and hit him.

Gaucher slowed the car and Hicks jumped out.

Defense lawyer Patrick Rudden said Gaucher does not remember telling the probation officer who interviewed him for the pre-sentence report that he didn't do it.

At an earlier court hearing Gaucher had pleaded guilty and the pre-sentence report was ordered to guide the judge in sentencing.

When the charge was re-read in court, Gaucher said "I didn't hit him."

Later he told Judge Nicholas, "I'm pleading guilty because I committed the offense."

Police warn women to be wary of hijackers

Police are warning area residents, especially women, to be careful after two women were victimized by hijacking incidents this past week.

The incidents took place on Highway 34 in Lancaster Township on Oct. 29 and on Avonmore Road in Cornwall Township about 30 km east of Alexandria, on Oct. 28.

In both incidents, a woman was driving on the highway when a vehicle pulled in front of her and a vehicle came behind her, forcing her to pull over.

In the Lancaster Township incident, a woman was driving north on Highway 34 when she was stopped and four males forced her at gunpoint to get out of the car.

Her car was driven off and the men left behind the car they had driven, which was reported stolen from Montreal.

The woman, not knowing what to do, drove the stolen car back to Lancaster OPP detachment, where she reported the theft.

Her car was later found north of Alexandria, near Dunvegan.

In the Avonmore Road incident, the woman was stopped by a gray Mazda and an unknown van, but the suspects left without the vehicle.

The motive for both the theft and attempted theft has not been determined.

Court Report

The following cases were heard before Judge Diane Nicholas at Provincial Court (Criminal Division), in Alexandria, Oct. 28.

Smugglers fined

Marcel Quesnel, 57, of Vankleek Hill, was fined $7,693 for smuggling 700 cartons of cigarettes, evading $3,846 in excise duty.

His lawyer asked for two years for Quesnel to pay the fine because he recently sold his restaurant business because of ill health.

Judge Nicholas agreed, but warned default of the fine payment would result in a jail term.

Quesnel was arrested in his vehicle at the junction of Highway 417 and Highway 34, March 30.

Jean Bourbonnais, 28, of Candiac, Que., pleaded guilty to evading $3,297 of excise duty on smuggled cigarettes, when he was arrested by Lancaster OPP officers last May.

He was fined $6,594 by Judge Nicholas, given two years to pay, with default resulting in a 30-day jail term.

Bourbonnais is also charged with driving a vehicle with stolen license plates.

Hefty fine

Robert Gauthier, 39, of La Plaine, Que., was fined $41,749 by Judge Nicholas for evading $20,854 of excise tax on cigarettes found in his vehicle Sept. 16.

Gauthier, a construction worker, was allowed three years to pay his fine.

He was stopped by the RCMP on Highway 2 near the Blue Anchor restaurant, on a tip from Valleyfield police.

His vehicle was loaded with 21 cases of cigarette cartons and 14 cases of tinned tobacco.

Trucker loses license

Williamstown truck driver Roderick MacDonald, 57, was fined $500 and given a license suspension of 12 months for driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol.

His breathalyser reading was 180 milligrams of alcohol to 100 millilitres of blood when he was arrested Sept. 5, 1992.

Keeping the flame of remembrance

Is Remembrance Day losing its meaning for the veterans who participate every year?

It's a fair question, in light of the dwindling participation by veterans in the annual ceremonies.

We hope not, because if the veterans' interest in honoring their long fallen comrades is lost, how soon will it die for everybody else, including youngsters who cannot comprehend the nature and reasons behind all of those sacrifices?

Participation by veterans in Remembrance Day parades has declined in the county and elsewhere across the country in recent years. In Alexandria, the veteran's participation rate is less than 50 per cent of those still living.

This is a surprising statistic, bearing in mind that it has been the veterans all these years who have courageously and eloquently kept alive the custom of remembrance, at a time when the guardians of the political correctness movement view it as war glorification.

Of course, the declining participation in Remembrance ceremonies can't be blamed only on dwindling interest. Veterans are not immortal, and for all of the years we have taken for granted their leadership at Remembrance Day ceremonies, their health still overrides any other consideration.

But for those who are able, we join your local legion branch in urging you to participate in the upcoming ceremonies in your respective communities.

You are still the visual symbol of all of the right reasons why your fellow citizens need to gather at the cenotaph every year.

Helping to keep Halloween safe

Three cheers for the Optimists. Better yet, make it four. Members of that club were again out in force in Alexandria Halloween night on their annual kids patrol, keeping an eye on traffic control in congested neighborhoods and generally protecting little ones from the ghouls of the night.

They were easy to see, with their yellow vests and flashlights. And they were courteous and helpful.

This kind of volunteer service ensures that the old Halloween custom of children going from door to door is thriving and will at least survive here. In larger centres, trick or treating has given way to centralized parties because children's safety has been jeopardized.

Trick or treating is a great custom that confirms our existence as a small, rurally-oriented community where neighbors know neighbors. And the fact that Halloweens in recent years have not resulted in any serious damage to commercial property speaks well of the area's young folk and their ability to resist peer pressure to trash vehicles, houses or stores.

The Optimist Club reinforces that by their excellent work each Halloween. They deserve the thanks of every parent whose children roamed the town streets Sunday night.

It's another piece of proof that Optimists are well named.

Do you have the right stuff?

Alexandria's yet-to-be-born Business Improvement Association (BIA) wants you.

With the BIA now approved, a selection committee is accepting letters of application from anyone paying business taxes in the town, or their designate, who wishes to invest the time and energy for the BIA in its important first year. The purpose is to pick eight of the nine (one member is appointed by council) directors who would sit on the first BIA board of management, expected to assemble early in 1994.

This is a chance for concerned merchants, professionals and property owners to get directly involved in deciding what the BIA will do to improve the Alexandria business community with its expected $15,000 a year budget. Those funds will come from a special BIA levy from every property owner paying business taxes in town.

The committee has extended the deadline for applications to Thursday, Nov. 25 from Thursday, Nov. 4 to ensure that as many applications as possible are submitted.

The selection committee, the members of which are ineligible to sit on the BIA, is made up of Pierre Burrele of the LCBO, John MacDonald of Alexandria Moulding, Joe Banks of The Glengarry News and councillors Gary Shepherd and Francine Richer.

They will have the task of sorting through the applications and recommending a list of names to town council for approval.

The make-up of the first board will be critical to the success of the BIA. It will lay the groundwork and set the standard for subsequent boards to follow.

At the same time, Alexandria's downtown core is suffering aesthetically and from a lack of business. Obviously, the BIA will have to work closely with council to begin a program of revitalization there and elsewhere in town where the business community needs a boost.

It seems there is no better time than now to throw off the yoke of apathy and to step forward.

The awful drain of government waste

After Thoughts

by Joe Banks

One of the multitude of pains the new government will need to manage is a lot less obvious than the grievous unemployment picture. And yet, when it's brought up in casual conversation, everybody, it seems, has a favorite horror story.

It's the scourge of government waste. Kim Campbell brought it up during the election, and even went so far as to publically embarrass one of her own department minions over his propensity for needless regulations and irrevelent memos. Recall the one that advised civil servants to cease from using their briefcases to hold open elevator doors?

Well, obviously few of us were impressed enough to make a dent in her fate. And the waste issue thereafter quickly sunk into the black hole of the election campaign. Government waste took a big backseat to cancelling helicopters, reviewing the Pearson deal and short-term job creation.

Yet, bring up the topic of that waste, from unemployment insurance abuse to useless public purchases, and people quickly turn red from anger. It remains with us still, and, unless the new PM and company deems it a priority, it is likely to remain for the forseeable future.

The Auditor General proves yearly that waste is a part of the vast government workings that we are stuck with, beyond the ability of any one person to control. And rather than deal with that waste constructively, the Conservatives merely tried to cut the size of the civil service, hoping fewer bodies would force greater efficiency and less waste.

Not surprisingly, it didn't work.

For those of us toiling in small business attending a budgeting seminar in Ottawa two weeks ago, that was plain to see. About half the crowd were public servants as we found out from a show of hands.

Later in the seminar, the leader asked for another show of hands. This time he wanted to identify the people out there who were in positions to spend "excess" funds at month-end to justify a budget of equivalent size next year. We didn't count the exact number of heads, but at least a dozen hands, maybe more, went up out of a crowd of about 70.

I couldn't resist a gasp. The truth was there, in this one seminar, in this small corner of a hotel meeting room in downtown Ottawa. And these were the people who were at least HONEST about their department's spending habits.

Later my seat mate, a resident of Ottawa and reasonably unsurprised about the impromptu survey, regaled me with a story about office furniture piled high in a hallway in one government building — with no apparent destination in mind. The people on that floor had no idea where it was to go; their own furniture was still adequate.

"They had to almost squeeze through the desks and chairs to get down the hallway," he said.

Stories like that add to and confirm the myth in some minds that all public servants do is waste taxpayer's money. And that is unfair in the extreme to those who fairly earn their salaries and make valid contributions to the civil service.

But anyone attending a budgeting seminar at the Ottawa Congress Centre on Thursday, Oct. 21 might be forgiven if they concluded the old month-end budget shenanigans proves the need for a big fix. Budget-protection mentality needs to die, and in its place a new thinking that rewards public servants for their frugality.

Yes, that's a wonderful motherhood statement, and a big fix mightn't be at the top of the list of Prime Minister Jean Chretien and Company. But allowing the status quo is surely not an option.

We all — from those who work proudly in the service of the public to those who expect their tax dollars to be used efficiently — deserve to finally see an end to the horror stories. Does this new government possess the will?

We can only hope.

Losing election coverage patience

News to me

by Greg Kielec

There are few things more annoying to candidates on election night than to be told you are a loser before it is even certain you have lost.

It is like rubbing salt in the wound, stating what people already know but don't want to hear.

It is like telling people the end of a movie before the movie is actually over. It is kind of breaking an unwritten code of honor: Thou Shalt Not Give Away The Ending Until It's Over.

It is the same thing in a federal election.

You — the candidate — know you are going to lose.

Everyone else knows that you are going to lose.

But the media adds insult to injury by calling you a loser before you even have a chance to lose fully and properly on your own.

It is like playing a hockey game, and 10 minutes into the first period, the referee tells you to go home because your team is going to lose anyway.

You already know your team is going to lose. And everyone else knows your team is going to lose.

But you don't have the embarrassment of somone saying so beforehand.

At least you are allowed to live out the fantasy that somehow, some way, their team just may actually defy all odds and conventional wisdom and win.

Not so with the Oct. 25 election. When the television said you were a loser, you were a loser, like it or not.

And if the media believed you had a snowball's chance in hell of winning a seat in a particular province, electing a majority or forming the opposition, they did not hesitate to say it.

But not all the prophesies handed down were fulfilled.

In some cases the media was wrong and announcers were forced to, as graciously as possible under pressure, backpedal and explain away their miscalculations.

One such case was the declaration that the Reform party would not win a seat in Ontario.

A spiffy graphic of Ontario, the map competely covered in Liberal red, was hastily brought in front of the television cameras to show the extent of the sweep.

That was, until it was realized the Liberals had not in fact actually swept Ontario.

As it turned out, the pundits were wrong. There was no sweep. The Reform had stolen one seat and the map was in dire need of a slight touch of green.

It was the same with the Bloc Quebecois, the party which announcers relentlessly plugged as having won 53 seats, and could win no more and could win no less.

It was only the next morning, after the television coverage had gone off the air that voters realized the pompous predictions were wrong and that the Bloc could actually win more than 53 seats.

They did not win 53 seats, despite the emphatic assertions throughout election night that the Bloc could only win 53. They won 54 seats.

The powers that be obviously felt the fact there was still one seat in Quebec being contested should not get in the way of a good story.

Maybe the television media should take a page out of the sports announcer handbook for the next federal election — the page which says, "it ain't over until it's over."

Wise words to live by for all types of games, even those in the political arena.

Remember, remember

Highland Paths

by Ken McKenna

Every year at this time we commemorate those who died in battle. Originally, Nov. 11, 1918, the eleventh hour of the eleventh month, was set aside as Armistice Day, the day the Great War ended. That awful and useless war was supposed to have been "the war to end all wars." Twenty years later the lie was put to that fond hope. In the two major wars of the first half of this century, over 40 million people lost their lives. The enormity of the loss of human life is almost impossible for us to comprehend, and it is probably just as well. Shakespeare in "Henry V" has the king praying to God before the battle of Agincourt: "Take away their reckoning—" so that his soldiers would not be daunted by the opposing numbers. If the loss of a single person whom we have known and loved can be so terrible that we can never forget, how could we deal with the thought of hundreds of millions of grieving humans? There is a limit to how much suffering we can endure, so numbers become incomprehensible to us. We must get on with our lives. Life is for the living. Only by enduring can we function.

The belief that it is glorious to die in battle, the heritage of thousands of years of warfare and strife among nations, is being seriously questioned by civilized people today more than ever. There must be a better way to settle differences. Of course, there will always be "just wars," when all else fails, but history tells us that there have been very few. And there is very little glory in war. Just ask any veteran. In the Highlands of Scotland for hundreds of generations men were called out by their chiefs to do battle against opposing clans for the most trifling of reasons. Perhaps one chief had been insulted by another, or coveted lands not their own. The ordinary clansman had no choice but to obey the summons of his chief. And it was made plain to them that if they did not answer the call, their families would be burnt out of their homes. Anyone questioning the morality of such actions would be treated as a traitor. It was considered better to die for a cause than to live for it.

Our Remembrance Day ceremonies do not glorify war, but honor those who gave their most precious possessions, their lives. They did not want to die — no sane person does — but fate decided differently. They answered the call to battle as their forebears had because they believed their cause was a just one, and not because they were threatened with dire consequences. No matter how they died, famous or unsung, they were heroes, and we honor and remember them. Someday, in an idyllic future, there may be no more war, but whenever our homes and families are in danger, we will bless those brave soldiers who come to our defence.

Here is an excerpt from a poem called "The Pipes," written after the battle of the Somme in September, 1916, by Lieut. Joseph Lee, and dedicated to a Major Angus MacGillivray, who died in that battle:

The cry is in my ear, the sight is in my eye,
This is the dawning of the day that shall see me die.

What is the piper playing that battles in my blood?—
Winds in it, waves in it, waters at the flood;
Sadness in it, madness in it, weeping mists and rain—
What is the piper playing that beats within my brain?

Flame in it, fame in it, love and all desire;
The clean hills, the clear rills, the smouldering peat fire;
Glances sweet, dancing feet, beating on the floor;
Maidens fair, comrades rare, I shall meet no more.

On Friday evening, Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. at GDHS in Alexandria, The Glengarry Highland Society will present its annual St. Andrew's Concert. The Glengarry Gaelic Choir will be joined by children from five local schools. Don't miss it! For further information, call (613) 874-2861.

Letters

Anonymous donor brings history to light

To the editor:

For us, these are "Troublous Times in Canada." That's also how a veteran describes 1866 and 1870 when he served as a captain in the Ottawa and Carleton Rifles (43rd battalion) against the Fenian Raids. That's the title he gives the history he wrote of those years which he published forty years later in 1910.

Let's think of Captain John A. Macdonald on Nov. 11 as we hold our 75th Remembrance Day, especially of these words of his from 1910

Let it never be said of Canada that "When war clouds break and danger is nigh, 'God and the soldiers' is the people's cry. But when war is o'er and all things righted, God is forgot and the soldiers slighted."

In this November, 1993 we're placing hope in our government, this one newly elected. So too in 1910 Captain Macdonald also hopes that the Fenian Raid Veterans "may yet be accorded fair play" even though the Dominion Government "appreciated their service and was profuse in thanks and there the national gratitude seems to have ended..."

"Deputations have waited upon the Premier and the government and petitions have been presented asking for grants of land, but beyond spacious promises of 'consideration of their requests' no progress has been made in this respect," he writes.

Imagine, 40 years petitioning the government even though says the Captain "we have millions of acres of vacant lands in our northwest which need development... We have sons and grandsons who have the will, the knowledge, the mettle and the courage to break the prairie sod..."

Justice would have to be done to the veterans' descendants, Captain Macdonald reasons because "one by one the old veterans of 1866 and 1870 are being finally 'mustered out' and in a few years the last of them will have 'crossed the bar.' "

The Captain also complains that "Emigrants have been assisted into Canada from all parts of Europe and given slices of our public domain while the bone and sinew of our own people have been 'passed by on the other side'."

The veterans who went to oppose the Red River Rebellion got 160 acres each, "those who served against the Northwest Rebellion in 1885 were given scrip to the same value, while those who went out of Canada to serve in the South African War were granted 320 acres of Crown land each," says Captain Macdonald.

Thanks to the anonymous donor who brought the Captain's 255 page history of Canada's first years to a Glengarry rummage sale instead of putting it into a blue box for paper recycling or even worse, sending it to the dump.

Bill 86 circumventing UN ruling

To the editor:

The claim by the Province of Quebec, that freedom of expression on commercial signs has been restored by Bill 86, is false.

Section 17 of Bill 86, amending Article 58 of the French Language Charter, is a hypocritical attempt by the Quebec government to circumvent the United Nations Human Rights Committee ruling that the French Language Charter of the province of Quebec denies the freedom of expression. The Quebec government, through Bill 86, is amending the Charter so that, while the law no longer explicitly denies the right to use any other language than French on commercial signs, it gives to the Quebec cabinet the sole right to decide when and if another language may be used or banned. The government has already clearly indicated that it will not allow other languages in a variety of situations in the province and it has given itself "carte blanche" to continue the ban under any "cases, conditions or circumstances" it determines.

In this deceitful and repugnant way, the government of Quebec hopes to sidestep the United Nations ruling and that of the Supreme Court of Canada, and continue its refusal to allow freedom of expression to Canadians residing in the province of Quebec.

There is no possible justification for the action of the Quebec government in denying this fundamental right. Furthermore, the citizens of Quebec have indicated, in numerous polls, that they support freedom of expression through bilingual commercial signs. The Human Rights Committee ruling clearly states that to deny the use of any language on commercial signs is a violation of the International Covenant of the United Nations, of which Canada is a signatory and which the province of Quebec has ratified. Bill 86 is further proof of the elitism and racism that guides the Quebec nationalists. Their cry, that the needs of the collectivity, as defined by the elite, are superior to the individual rights guaranteed by the constitution of their country and by international law, echoes clearly the concepts of nationalism throughout history.

Canadians must not be deceived into thinking that freedom of expression has been restored in the Province of Quebec and that the Government of Canada has been released from its responsibility to act to uphold the International Covenant of the United Nations.

Tragic end to troubled relationship

too was afraid of Brunet.

"I broke off my friendship with Faubert about two years ago. I had to. I feared him as much as she feared him."

McDonald would visit with her friend now and again and would notice telltale signs of physical abuse such as bruises on her back and arms and also noticed she sometimes walked with a limp.

"When I walked in he was a real gentleman. But I would look at her and see how things were. She had crying eyes. She had true crying eyes," McDonald said.

Faubert secretly moved into an apartment out of town to keep away from Brunet a few years ago. But the pair got back together when she learned of her pregnancy.

Brunet, who worked at Glengarry Aggregates and Concrete for five years as a mechanic, was the classic Jekyll and Hyde case. One day he would be polite, soft-spoken and gentle and the next minute he would become agitated, hostile and abusive.

Brunet faced several possession of restricted weapons and possession of explosives charges, but the most serious was assault with a weapon.

Approximately eight months ago, Faubert was rousted out of bed by Brunet and ordered to accompany him to the pit on the 8th of Lancaster. Dressed in only a nightgown, a gun was held to her head the whole time.

"She knew that if she tried to make a run for it that was it. She told me he broke in and stole some dynamite. She had to get down on her knees and beg for her life," McDonald said.

"One day last summer she asked me to look after her kids if anything ever happened to her."

Last year, Faubert and Sophie moved to La Montee d'Elle, a women's shelter, for a few months but, like so many times before, returned to Brunet.

Alexandria police Const. James MacMaster said officers responded to half a dozen domestic disputes involving the couple beginning in 1991. All he can do now is shake his head wondering why she didn't get out.

"There was a serious progression of violence. But Vivian always took the guy back.

"I guess that's what really upsets me about the whole thing. There had been ample warning."

"People have to take some responsibility to ensure their own safety. She had certainly been warned."

Brunet was on the lam from Alexandria police for the next few days. He was to have been charged with assault and breach of undertaking but the officers never found him before Tuesday afternoon.

MacMaster said he felt frustrated that the pair would continually fight, split up and then get back together just to go through the whole situation again.

The last time she was in the police station, MacMaster lost his cool. "I shouted that if she continued, he would kill her one day. I didn't mean it but looking back at the pattern it turned out to be quite accurate."

"I've stated before that if she continued to dance with the devil, sooner or later she would get burned. Unfortunately that's what happened."

Business risky from the start

Creations. Workers staged a brief walkout in April.

Touchette made several trips to the plant to play the role of peacekeeper between Sauve and the employees. But workers grew tired of his visits and the message he delivered to them.

"Mayor Touchette came in and said: 'You guys will all get paid, just keep on working.' We did keep on working and we didn't get paid for it. They should have stopped it right away," one employee said in an interview for a story that appeared in the Oct. 6 edition of The News.

Any monies owed to the employees will be covered under Ontario's Employee Wage Protection Plan.

The ministry has already issued several orders to pay but Sauve has not complied and the employment standard officers have no jurisdiction in Quebec, where Sauve is.

The first claims from a mid-July meeting have been processed and the cheques are in the mail, Morrison says. The total amount of those cheques was unavailable and she wasn't sure when the remaining cheques would be issued.

Calls made to Robert Poirier, the real estate agent at Royal LePage in Green Valley, were not returned. Poirier is the agent who's looking after the building. It's unknown whether any interest has been expressed in the purchase or lease of the building.

Efforts to contact Sauve, who is suspected to still be somewhere in Quebec, and other plant employees he worked with closely were unsuccessful.

Sauve seemed to vanish into thin air. Now, Richer would like to see the tale of Alexandria Creations do the same.

"If you want to write another article, I don't think it will help us any," Richer says.

"It's not going to help the BIA (Business Improvement Association). It's not going to help the Industrial Committee. It's not going to help the town. It's not going to help anyone."

Similarities between business closures

November, 1992.

•The union is claiming $2,500, plus interest, for union dues deducted from employee cheques in July and August, 1992 but were never channeled into union coffers.

•A pair of employees who are owed vacation pay and back wages and a third employee who's owed just vacation pay.

Daniel Dubuc, director of the Shirt Industry Joint Commission, says the file has been all but closed on the St. Theophile plant.

"The damage is already done. In these cases there's no guarantee of recapturing funds on behalf of the employees. But at least when there's some problems like that there's some laws that reach beyond and we can get something," Dubuc says.

Under the Decrees Act, a piece of Quebec legislation, the commission has the power to apply decrees - similar to the orders to pay used by the Ontario Ministry of Labor.

Another committee member, who requested anonymity, believes Sauve was in over his head when he bought the plant from the owner, who took ill and went bankrupt around 1990.

"He thought he would be able run the shirt business and realized it was a pretty competitive market.

"I can tell you one thing, he was not treating people the way they have to be treated."

The various industry commissions are set up to ensure that workers in non- unionized industries are not overworked and underpaid.

"We need to have fair competition but not on the backs of the workers. We try, even during these bad times, to have some form of industrial peace or it will take the form of a jungle.

"Because, at this point in time, I can't say everything is under control. It's as bad here as everywhere else like Alexandria from what I've heard," Dubuc says.

More charges laid in connection with crash

Police Briefs

A Glengarry man already up on charges of criminal negligence causing death has been charged with impaired driving causing death.

The charges were laid in connection with a fatal car accident that took place in Charlottenburgh Township on Friday, Oct. 1

Jennifer Valade, 17, of Summerstown was rushed to Hotel Dieu in Cornwall where she was pronounced dead after a head-on collision in Charlottenburgh Township early Friday night.

As a southbound 1992 GMC pickup truck rounded a curb on County Road 27, just south of Paragon Road, the driver crossed over into the northbound lane.

The truck hit Valade's 1989 Pontiac head-on.

Her boyfriend — Allistair MacDonald, 19, of Williamstown — was rushed to Hotel Dieu in Cornwall where he was treated and released for minor injuries. The driver of the truck escaped injury.

Valade was taken to Hotel Dieu where she was pronounced dead.

Arthur Jamieson of RR 1 Apple Hill is scheduled to appear in Alexandria provincial court on Thursday, Nov. 18.

Pricey seizure

An information tip led Maxville OPP to stop a car filled with smuggled cigarettes and alcohol.

Approximately 180 cartons of smuggled cigarettes and 42 bottles of smuggled liquor were turned over to the anti-smuggling task force — which is comprised of the OPP, the RCMP, Cornwall police and Canada Customs.

A 1981 Pontiac was pulled over by Maxville OPP at 5:30 p.m. The car was on Highway 138, just north of Highway 417.

The cigarettes and alcohol — worth $8,100 and $1,900 respectively — were discovered in the car.

The name of the person driving the car and whether charges had been laid were not available at press time.

Driver charged

A Quebec man has been charged with careless driving following a single-car accident near Dalkeith Wednesday afternoon.

Lucas Elliott, 29, of Milleisler, Quebec was southbound on County Road 23 — just south of County Road 24.

He lost control of his 1990 Toyota at 5:55 p.m. and drove onto the west shoulder. Elliott overcompensated his steering, drove back on to the road and into the east ditch.

Elliott was uninjured.

His car sustained moderate damage.

Oh deer

An RR 5 Alexandria man escaped injury Wednesday night but the deer he struck with his car wasn't so lucky.

Emile Theoret, 41, was southbound on County Road 30 — 3 km north of Highway 43 — when a deer crossed his path and was hit.

Theoret's car sustained moderate damage.

Scary encounter

An Alexandria man had a scarey encounter on Halloween morning when a car pulled out from the curb and struck the side of his car.

Leo Poirier, 44, was eastbound on Kincardine Street when another car pulled out from the south curb and hit his 1989 Oldsmobile.

Alix Delahaye, 66, of Pembroke hit Poirier's car with her 1992 Toyota staion wagon when she pulled out from the south curb Sunday morning at 10:50 a.m.

Neither driver was injured.

Poirier's car sustained light damage and Delahaye's station wagon sustained moderate damage.

Wrong way

A 20-year-old Manotick man has been charged with driving the wrong way on a one way street after he collided with another vehicle at an intersection in Alexandria late Friday night.

Roberto Barresi was driving his 1990 Chevrolet westbound on Kenyon Street. Barresi collided with a 1991 Mazda pickup truck — driven by Kenneth Urquhart, 29, of Dalkeith — who was driving southbound on Main Street.

Neither driver was injured.

Both vehicles sustained moderate damage.

Another BE

Another weekend residence in Lochiel Township was broken into recently.

A wood burning stove and television, worth about $300, were swiped from the residence. There were no signs of forced entry.

The theft was reported to Maxville OPP last Tuesday.

The report comes on the heels of a series of break and enters that took place last weekend around the area.

A .22 calibre rifle, ammunition and a radio/cassetter player were stolen from a Marcoux Road residence Sunday at 11 p.m.

Five boxes of .22 calibre ammunition and one box of shotgun shells were swiped. The items are worth $300.

Sawing off

A chainsaw was stolen sometime overnight Thursday from a Glen Robertson Road residence. The chainsaw is worth $850.

Glengarry Halloween

Halloween was a wonderfully frightening experience for Ecole St. Joseph students in Lancaster last week. Shown front l-r are Alexa Doering, Kevin McDonell, Jessica Dupuis, Nicholas McDonell and Scott Laframboise. Middle l-r are Principal Gisele Decoeur-Lafrance, Korrie Menard, and Stephanie St. Pierre. At the back is Jean-Marc Viau, a parent who organized the Halloween festivities with teacher Louise Lafontaine.

The young competitors of the Smurfs bowling league recently received some new shirts thanks to the Alexandria branch of the Royal Canadian Legion. Making the presentation to the youngsters — who were all decked out for the Halloween season — were Legion members Bev Fournier (2nd vice-president), Rheal Fournier and Len Jaeck (3rd vice).

Members disagree over letter from law firm

By Pauline Ashton
News* correspondent

Glengarry Memorial Hospital Board Chair Sam Sultan and Wally Hope disagreed over handling a letter from a law firm threatening to sue the board.

The firm was threatening to sue over non-payment of an extra $7,000 fee, billed by consultants Peat, Marwick.

The board, dealing with the issue at its Oct. 27 meeting, voted with Sultan.

He suggested sending a letter to the law firm, and to the consulting firm Peat, Marwick, stating that $10,000 was the fee originally agreed on for the hospital administration study.

Hope wanted the letter examined by a lawyer and a reply drafted with his advice. Several board members agreed.

"We are making a mistake," Hope cautioned.

"This is too big a thing to play around with, I'd sure see a lawyer about a letter saying I'm going to be sued next week."

The board agreed to pay Peat, Marwick's $10,000 fee for an administrative study, but the firm billed $7,000 additonal costs.

Councillors outraged to find flyers in garbage

Kenyon Township councillors were "outraged" to find 50 bundles of Cornwall Standard-Freeholder Consumer Guide flyers dumped into their Dunvegan waste disposal site, last week.

Clerk Mary McCuaig was alerted by the site supervisor, who had allowed the truck in, and later had second thoughts about the correctness of it all.

McCuaig phoned Freeholder officials who pleaded "total ignorance." McCuaig suggested they pick up the bundles and Freeholder trucks hustled to the site Wednesday to complete the clean-out.

These papers are recyclable McCuaig pointed out. "We don't allow recyclable material to clutter up our waste disposal sites."

Council drafted a letter expressing "outrage" over the dumping to the Standard-Freeholder, with copies to the Glengarry News.

"We have to send a strong message to the public and business community that we are not allowing any recyclable materials into our sites," Councillor Blair Williams said Oct. 26.

"Those flyers were supposed to be distributed to Cornwall and Long Sault residents according to the labels on the bundles," Councillor Owen Walker commented.

"The advertisers are losing out too."

A life that began with "I Do!" and a kiss....
Now 20-years later, it's still wedded bliss!

Kenyon gets paid "pittance" for pits

By Pauline Ashton,
News* correspondent

"We get paid a pittance for gravel pits," Councillor Owen Walker punned when he heard Kenyon's share of gravel taken from township pits adds up to four cents a metric ton.

Council discussed a recent article published in The News, reporting Kenyon's support for a resolution from the Town of Caledon asking the provincial government for higher gravel pit fees.

Kenyon joined 50 other municipalities clamoring for increased fees to repair roads damaged by gravel trucks.

A letter from Glengarry Aggregate of Green Valley, took the story on gravel pits personally, pointing out that they had always dealt fairly and honorably with the township.

Council will write Glengarry Aggregate congratulating them for the fine work done recently repairing roads for the township.

Council said no aggregate company was mentioned or targetted in The News story.

Councillor Blair Williams criticized The News for using "catchy phrases" to report township meetings and said that "the facts of our meetings are not being reported."

Williams said "we are getting opinions and not our total picture in The News."

Railway caboose may move to Kenyon

By Pauline Ashton,
News* correspondent

A pink railway caboose, which Charlottenburgh Township has been trying to get rid of for years, may move over into Kenyon.

Donald Murray of Lot 32, Con. 4, proposes to convert the caboose into a "granny flat" on his property for the use of elderly relatives.

Kenyon council asked the Murrays to attend the next council meeting to discuss the granny flat/caboose proposal.

Clerk Mary McCuaig explained at an Oct. 26 meeting that the caboose lacks the square footage to conform to building code bylaws in Kenyon.

Consulting engineer John Uliana suggested in a report that Kenyon consider granny flat proposals on a case-by-case basis.

Provincial legislation on granny flats is in limbo at the moment.

Reeve Wilfred Vallance called for caution. "Our sister township (Charlottenburgh) has been trying for years to have that caboose removed."

Temporary granny flats, on the same lots as single family homes, have been encouraged as one way to look after elderly parents, keeping them out of overloaded nursing homes.

Road will remain open

Cashion Road from the Glen Road to Street Road in Charlottenburgh Township will remain as is, although maintenance of the road will be kept to a minimum.

Charlottenburgh Council had earlier decided to close a portion of the road because the area was being used as a garbage dump.

Officials estimated that almost $2,000 in annual litter cleanup costs could be saved by the closure.

Local landowners objected to the move, however, saying the road is used to access portions of their properties.

Roads Superintendent Ewen MacDonald recommended that the road be given just two gradings per year — one in the spring and one in the fall.

Winter maintenance will be limited to the southern portion only, in order to accommodate the residents.

Levert honored for 25 years of service

Alexandria public works head lauded by friends, colleagues at town reception

By Greg Kielec
News* editor

It is a job which requires a "serious outlook", according to Councillor Archie McDougall.

But the man, although serious about his job, is anything but a serious man.

And with some lighthearted anecdotes about the life as a public works employee, combined with some more serious praise, Alexandria paid tribute to a person amounting almost to a town living legend.

Jean Guy Levert, head of the town's public works department, was honored last Tuesday with a gold watch lauded with praise for 25 years of service to the town.

The presentation by Mayor Jean Paul Touchette took place at a gathering of council members, co-workers and friends attending the ceremony at the Glengarry Sports Palace to see Levert get his dues.

Levert was also honored with a plaque from Lochiel Township, presented by Reeve Ron MacDonell, congratulating him on his achievement.

Levert was praised by council as a "colorful and devoted employee", a man who treats the town as if it was his own property, who is willing to help people in need, whatever the time of day.

The dedicated town worker said the town has provided solid support for himself and his family, allowing he and his wife to raise a family of four and put them through college and university.

Jean Guy Levert and his wife Reina pose with a gold watch presented to Levert for 25 years of service to the town of Alexandria. The presentation was made during a ceremony at the end of an Alexandria council meeting last Tuesday. Staff photo — Greg Kielec

At one point, the emotion was too much for the always jovial public works head, choking him up as he thanked his wife, saying if it weren't for her "I wouldn't have all this."

Levert said it has always been a pleasure working for Alexandria.

"I love the town of Alexandria and all the councils I worked for," he said in a short speech at the end of the presentation.

He has always loved his job, and anyone that knows him would know he would not stay if he was not happy, he said.

Mayor Jean Paul Touchette said Levert is a "most colorful and devoted employee", who is "at the beck and call of every ratepayer" and has skills ranging from "architect to engineer."

Councillor Gary Shepherd also heaped praise on the burly head of public works.

"We are very lucky to have someone like Jean Guy as the town foreman because he treats the town property like his own," he said.

Councillor Jacques Lajoie said he could tell as a youth caught by Levert throwing apples at cars that he was a man of much pride. And he said even today he can see the pride in everything Levert does.

The presentation ceremony also included what could best be likened to a roasting of Levert by council members, namely three who sat on council back when Levert first became a town employee.

Reeve Bruno Massie recounted some of the past practices in Levert's early years, that sometimes weren't exactly on the level.

"We didn't land in jail anyway," joked Massie. "In those days we had good connections."

Touchette talked of when Levert was the town police constable, the town's attempts to get Levert to carry a gun.

"He said, 'No thanks, I have my hands,' " the mayor recounted, adding that "two battering rams" were better than a gun.

He also joked that Levert was a good bodyguard to have at Alexandria Glens games.

The security of having Levert's brawn around was a familiar vein, with McDougall describing Levert as "bodyguard to the mayors" along with the title of turkey bingo chairman at Sacre Coeur Church.

And there are 16 other duties, all with appropriate titles, which Councillor Francine Richer and her job description committee members are working on designating, McDougall said.

Students solve 'murder' at ESRG!

Oct. 25 to 29 was "Career Week" at Ecole Secondaire Regionale Glengarry. In order to focus on this subject the student services department and a group of students called J.A.S.E. (Jeunes en action aux Services à l'élève) organized a week of activities. These began with an official opening on Monday by Mr. J.P. Touchette, the mayor of Alexandria.

Some teachers and students tried to create a fun atmosphere for the week by starting it off with a "murder mystery" contest in which all the students could participate.

The school examined a tableau scene staged at an assembly on Monday morning in which the mayor was murdered by someone representing a career, then a clue was released on the PA each day as students tried to determine who killed the victim.

The suspects represented a wide range of careers: there was a plumber, a firefighter, a teacher, a doctor, a contractor, a business woman, a resource specialist, and a gardener, each of whom had a weapon which symbolized his or her trade or profession and which could have been used to kill the victim.

After the week's clues we found out that the doctor with the syringe was the culprit. Tammy Lapierre won $50 for correctly identifying the murderer.

Another activity that had students talking all week was the "Loterie de la carrière rêvée" or "Dream Career Lottery" sponsored by the Students' Council.

Students were invited to fill out one or several ballots (at 25¢ each) indicating three careers they have always dreamed about. At the end of the week one lucky student was chosen to spend one full day, all expenses paid, in the career of her choice.

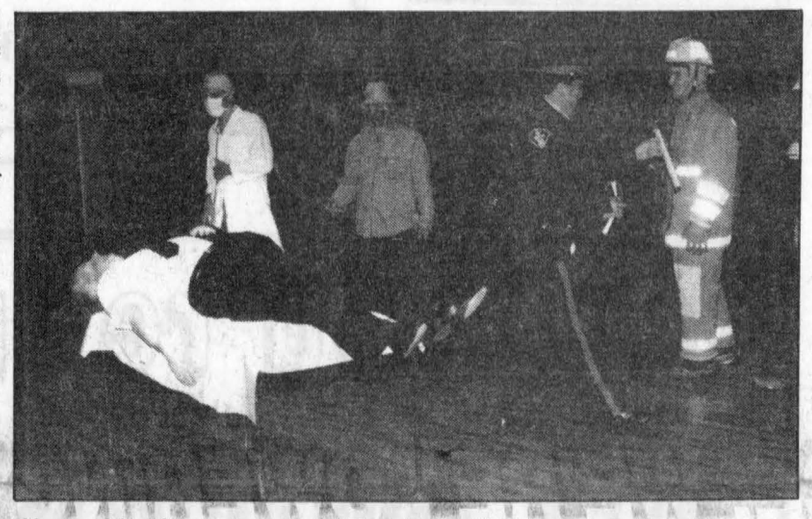
Nadine Leger will spend a day as an agronomist, her dream occupation. This was one other very interesting way to get students to think about possible careers.

The most exciting part of the week involved more than 30 people from Alexandria, Cornwall, and Ottawa who were invited into several classrooms each day throughout the week as guest speakers. Students got a chance to listen firsthand to representatives from university, college, and the military as well as from a wide variety of careers ranging from medicine to the trades, from architecture to music therapy.

Individuals from the community who accepted their invitation to come and share a bit of their lives with our students are Francine Chénier, Robert Tucker, Paul Beauregard, Chloe Ann Baker, Carole Boudreau, Dr. Camille Tittley, Pierre Vaillancourt, Manon Gosselin, Paulette Larocque-Rozon, Céline Martin, Pierre Jeaurond, Benoit Veilleux, Alain Vachon, André Ferland, Alain Lauzon, Michel Deschamps, and Marc Gauthier.

The time they so generously set aside to talk to our students about their own education and careers is greatly appreciated. The experiences of real people in the real world are invaluable to young people struggling with such important decisions at this stage in their lives.

Although this week was set aside to focus attention on careers, the task of searching for a career is not done only during one week at ESRG — it lasts all year, every year. If any citizen is interested in sharing his or her experiences with students at any time, simple contact student services at the school (ESRG — 525-3315) and they will be glad to set something up for you.



Alexandria Mayor Jean Paul Touchette did his duty for Ecole Secondaire Regionale Glengarry's Career Week, playing the victim in a murder mystery held at the school. The mayor kicked off the events at an official opening of Career Week, which ran from Oct. 25 to 29.

Halloween decorating catching on with residents

Williamstown
by Sue Harrington
347-2279

Even the three witches from MacBeth got it wrong on Halloween night. The first witch asked, "When shall we three meet again/In thunder, lightning, or in rain?" No mention of snow at all!

The second hag was a little closer to the mark when she said, "When the hurlyburly's done," In my 1843 edition of MacBeth, it says, "Hurlyburly. In Peacham's 'Garden of Eloquence,' 1577, this word is given as an example of that ornament of language which consists in a name intimating (not imitating!) the sound of that it signifieth, as hurlyburly, for an uproar and tumultuous stir."

I'd say "whirlyburly" was the more the word to describe Sunday evening's storm which snowed on trick or treaters and had them retiring home early. Certainly the eggsters were foiled, for where's the fun in hurling a blob of frozen yolk? Of course the real damage might not be assessed until spring! ("Perish the thought!" as my mother used to say.)

Anyway, I'm convinced it was that elaborate gathering of spirits over at the Gordon place, which brewed up the storm. With those flaming cauldrons and eerie lights, the supernaturals just had to justify themselves by doing something weird!

Seriously, though, what a wonderful display! In fact, the Halloween decorating thing has really caught on in Williamstown, with many homeowners making the effort.

It's a good bet that the Sloan family will be the Halloween decorators of the future. In a recent Shopper's Drugmart Halloween coloring contest held in Cornwall, three of Elsy and Wayne's four children were the winners in their age categories!

Son Kelby won for four and five year olds; Connie won for sixes and sevens, and Courtney captured the prize for the eights and nines. Kaylin, who is also a top-notch colorer, was unfortunately, too old to enter.

Congratulations to you all!

The bizarre weather has had its effect on the bird community. During the storm on Monday, Martin Bowman noticed there was an extraordinary number of birds at his feeders. A count revealed, in fact, 18 species!

Included were 12 Evening Grosbeaks and a couple of Pine Siskins — birds of mid-winter which didn't frequent our area much last year. There were also 60 Bohemian Waxwings sitting in his maples, and at one point even a Cooper's Hawk descended.

This was in addition to some robins and red-winged blackbirds who were still hanging around, and the usual birds one has about at this time.

The day before, a Golden-crowned Kinglet was spotted, but he had left by Monday.

In euchre news, ladies' winners at the Friendly Neighbors on Oct. 28 included Ann McDonald, Germaine White, Kay McDonald and Eva Collette (skunk). For the gentlemen, John Krol, Albert MacDonald and Maurice Lagroix were winners and there were no skunks!

Austin Abrams won the door prize and also one of the 50/50 draws. Other wins went to Theresa Bourdeau, Eva Collette, John Krol and Catherine Welcher.

Earlier in the month at the club's birthday party, Leo Lauzon, Roger Pilon, and Ileen Latreille were honored. The birthday cake was baked by Alda Major.

Florida Legroulx, Germaine White, John Krol, and Austin Abrams were card winners. Georgette Lavoie won the door prize; Alda Major two 50/50 prizes. Other 50/50 winners included Anna Krol, Emily MacDonald, Georgette Lavoie, Catherine Gourlay and Marie Vendette.

Flora Dumouchel came to the Nor'Westers and Loyalist Museum recently — not to auction off antiques, but to speak to the ladies of the Picnic Grove WI. Flora, who was introduced by Wendy Rozon, gave a humorous account of her experiences as an auctioneer.

She then illustrated her talk with an auction of food and articles which had been brought in by the WI members. The result was entertainment at its finest. "It's amazing how much she could raise for homemade food — especially cracked wheat bread," reported one who was present.

Prior to hearing Flora, Resolutions Convenor, Eileen Fourney distributed different resolutions which have been passed over the years. Everyone present read one aloud, for roll call.

This month's competition was "A Family Heirloom." Winners were President Nancy Woollven, and Maggie Blackmore.

Picnic Grove's next meeting will be held Nov. 9 at the home of Pat Carter.

Whilst this column has been busy with news of happenings, newcomers have been slipping into our midst unnoticed and unwelcomed, and such a thing should never be!

A big Williamstown welcome then, to Kathy McGrath, formerly of Glen Robertson, now living on Heron Road.

When I first began writing the Williamstown News, Kathy was the correspondent for Glen Robertson, and I remember Publisher Phil Rutherford advising me to read her column to get an idea of how to write this thing. "Kathy does a great job for us," said Phil, and she did!

Welcome too, to Angela Ventner, Kevin Farrell, and Brandon Osborne who are living at the O'Connells' farm, succeeding the Perjuls who are now residing on the Glen Road.

David and Chantal Chaddock, and their daughter, Victoria, have moved into the apartment above MacDonald's store, where the Nicholsons were, and, although they are no strangers to Williamstown, we welcome them to our midst.

A reminder to you all of two important community events this weekend. St. Andrew's Fall Turkey Supper, from 5 to 8 p.m. this Saturday, Nov. 6, and of the Remembrance Day ceremonies this Sunday at 11:30 a.m. at the Williamstown cenotaph.

Your support in both cases will be greatly appreciated.

Would you like to be a patron of the arts? The local arts? Your chance to be a Medici comes with the impending publication of a book of memories of students and staff who attended Williamstown and Char-Lan High Schools, from 1899 to the present day.

The book is being published in conjunction with the school's reunion in July of '94, and will be on sale at that time.

However, advance funding is necessary to make this book possible. To help in this financing, the Char-Lan Heritage Committee is looking for patrons who would each donate $25. In return, patrons will be presented with a complimentary copy of the book, and will have their names printed on a special "Patrons' Page" included in it.

If you are interested in such philanthropy, please make your donation to: The Char-Lan DHS Heritage Committee and send it to: C. M. Edwards, Treasurer, Char-Lan DHS Heritage Committee, Box 114, Williamstown, Ont. K0C 2J0.

I'm pleased to report that three of the "missing persons" listed last week have been located, thanks to you, the readers.

There are still a great many names to be found, however, and Jean Fraser is asking some people who are working on class lists to turn in to her the names of those former WHS/Char-Lan students whose whereabouts remain unknown, so that all of you reading this can have a chance to be bloodhounds and help out.

The following are still at large. They are listed according to the year in which they entered Grade 9 at the school. If you know their addresses, please call Jean at 931-1003, or Phyllis Major at 347-1734.

From 1945-46, Theresa O'Keefe and Chrys Lalonde; 1946-47, Marjorie McKinnon, Ruby Russell, Octave Sauve, Margaret Stewart and Paulette Cardinal; 1948-49, James Abrams, Philip Desroches, Hilda Marshall, Rene Seguin and Chester Kierstead; 1949-50, Christine MacDonald and Bethel McLean.

Good-Timers Euchre Results

Things were a hopping at the community centre (that's not unusual) as the Seniors room was full of euchre players (nine tables). Bridge lessons were being conducted in the main hall.

When Onagh Ross extended an invitation to the bridge players to join them for coffee break, the bridge instructor, Bert Mosher would only let his class accept this invitation, if they promised not to get too close to the euchre players.

Ladies winners at euchre: first — Rita Seguin of Maxville, second — Anne Lalonde of Cornwall, and third — Gladys Barton of Vankleek Hill. Men winners: first — John MacMaster of Laggan, second — Lucien Theoret of Alexandria, and third — Norman MacLeod of Dunvegan.

Door prize went to Gladys Seguin of St. Andrews.

Fifty-fifty draws went to Rita Seguin of Maxville and her brother Omer Derouchie of Picton, Adrienne Lauzon of Martintown, Jessie Renwick of Vankleek Hill, Simon Fraser of Cornwall and Gladys Barton of Vankleek Hill.

Next euchre will be Thursday, November 11 at 1:30 p.m.

Women's Institute

In last week's reporting on the Women's Institute's October meeting, I made an error in the beginning date of this great organization, my apologies. The Women's Institute was founded by Adelaide Hoodless of Stoney Creek, Ont. in 1897 not 1892.

Charlottenburgh-Lancaster District High School

Quite a few Martintown or students that had attended Martintown Public School, received honors at Char-Lan's Achievement awards ceremonies Oct. 20. These were for marks reached during the 1992-93 school year.

Optimists

Friday night's football game and bus trip was really enjoyed by the gang from Martintown. They had a great time and the weather was very nice, just the Ottawa scoring wasn't good, but I guess it was fine for the Winnipeg fans. And from all reports all aboard will be looking forward to another trip next year.

A teen dance is coming up this Friday, Nov. 5 from 8 to 11 p.m. The Optimist teen dances are for youths — age 12 to age 16 only; members are allowed to bring a friend, but this year the age limit will be enforced for the members as well as their guests.

There will be a disc jockey and a few refreshments (pop and chips) no gum at a cost of $2 (to help pay for the disc jockey). For further information on this call Luane Doyle at 528-4312.

Members are having a raffle on a 28'' color TV and the winning ticket will be pulled during the Dec. 16 Optimist meeting from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., at the community centre. The raffle tickets are available from Optimist members and at Martintown local businesses at $5 each. The proceeds go to the Optimist youth and community work. So don't miss out on your chance of being the winner.

St. Andrew's United Church

The Victorian Tea and Bazaar was enjoyed by quite a number of people and 106 stayed for tea.

Many enjoyed and stopped to examine the entrance depicting a Victorian sitting room, hung on the wall was the wedding picture of Jean MacIntosh's mother and father. This artistic work was arranged by Sylvia Thomson and Alison Murray.

There was an exciting visit from a very frightening and cackling witch who went home and came back for tea (Debbie Thomson).

Following the witch's exit, there was another visitor but this one was from Upper Canada Village. Ms. McPherson who was looking for recruits for starting up a Temperance Union for the Absolution of Alcoholic Beverages.

There were certainly a lot of laughs as this Methodist Sunday School teacher taught songs and encouraged everyone to mend their ways, in preparation for the Judgment Day (she also carried pledge cards with her).

The day's activities and works of baking and crafts brought in nearly $1,600.

This year the crocheters were very busy with gorgeous doilies and Christmas tree decorations. The tree decorations were sold for $1, $2 and $3 each.

But in these decorations there was one that was special and whoever bought that particular one, won a basket of goodies as well.

The person who bought this special decoration was Grace Graham from Ottawa. The sale of these crocheted tree items brought in $144.

Judy Wereley (organist from the sister church in Williamstown) filled in for Alison Murray at our Sunday morning service. Alison hadn't been feeling well off late and instead of taking it easy, the extra work of the bazaar put her to bed. One and all send Alison best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Rev. Turner reminded members of their historic religious roots in their two communities and she thinks it is one of the safest places she knows of to bring up children.

Happy birthday wishes were sung and extended to Rev. Turner from the Congregation for which she gave thanks.

There was an added thrill during Sunday service when Muriel Aitken helped Ernie Higginson take up the collection, as members don't see Muriel out too often.

Unit 4 will meet at the home of Bev Runions Monday, Nov. 15 at 7:30 p.m.

The workshop will start at 1:30 p.m. This is an audio visual educational library resource outlet for youth, seniors and topics for discussion that are available for us to use, free of rental fee, starting January 1. The Brown House Circle had a busy month of October. The regular monthly lunch meeting was held on Oct. 6 at the parish hall of St. Raphael's.

On Oct. 13 a group of 41 members took a bus trip to Massena-Potsdam-Ogdensburg visiting shops, a museum and a restaurant for lunch. The weather was sunny and fall colors were spectacular.

On Oct. 20 at 6:30 p.m. the Brown House Circle organized an all candidates night in the parish hall of St. Raphael's.

Candidates from the four major parties attended and answered many interesting questions from approximately 70 potential voters.

Hospital looking for super person for CEO

By Pauline Ashton
News* correspondent

Glengarry Memorial Hospital board is hunting for a superperson to be the new chief executive officer, and they're willing to spend $12,000 on expert advice.

''We received 62 applications to our CEO advertisement,'' Selection committee chairman Kent MacSweyn told the board Oct. 27.

''We narrowed them down to 32 applicants of excellent quality.''

The CEO post, with a salary in the $70,000-plus range, carries the responsibility of public relations with the community, building a smoothly-working team among staff, and finding solutions for provincially-mandated cost cutting.

The board voted to spend up to $12,000 for expert hiring advice from the CEO of Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario, to help make the final selection.

''This is the most important decision we'll make,'' MacSweyn explained.

''We must get the right man who will be an asset to the hospital and to the community, and win back public confidence, or our hospital might not survive.''

The hospital suffered two setbacks this year.

During the summer an inquest into the death of an elderly alcoholic patient, who had a history of 100 admissions over 15 years, found the patient was not examined by a physician before she died eight hours after admission.

In the fall, results of an administrative review study of hospital management was made public, followed by resignation of the hospital's long-serving CEO, Jerry Adams.

Surplus of $24,602

By Pauline Ashton
News* correspondent

Glengarry Memorial Hospital Finance Chair Kent MacSweyn reported a $24,602 surplus for September with revenues for year to date of $2.996 million, and expenses at $2.971 million.

MacSweyn, at an Oct. 27 meeting, said an increased patient load in September added $26,000 in expenses.

He said the hospital still hopes to stick to social contract guidelines of running a zero deficit, without asking staff to take unpaid holidays.

Renovations for construction of a lead-lined room to house new X-ray machines, and to enlarge sections of the hospital, are all coming in either on budget or below.

A report from Chief of Staff Dr. A. J. Varma, pointed out that the board's refusal to hire a social worker because of financial problems ''will result in an increasing workload on the nurses which inevitably will lead to less time with patients.''

Varma was reporting for the Medical Staff Advisory committee which suggested every physician on staff should have a performance review.

Varma's report was read in his absence by Administrator Viviane Campbell.

The staff advisory committee also decreed that doctors who fail to chart patient histories as required by the Hospitals Act, within 72 hours of admission, will have hospital privileges automatically suspended.

Ecole St. Joseph students and teachers in Lancaster had much Halloween fun this past Friday.

Louise Lafontaine, a teacher along with Jean Marc Viau and Cathy Viau, parents from the school committee co-ordinated a special celebration.

Each class went to the ''haunted'' gymnasium which was planned and run by grades 7 and 8; then a costume parade and a witches ''screech'' contest took place.

Leo Bissonnette, a grandfather, constructed bulletin boards.

The dinner committee (Huguette Rummens, Rose Good, Nicole Dupuis and Lorraine Jones) organized a lunch of pizza, hot dogs, soup and muffins.

There was a decoration committee and teacher helpers (Huguette Rummens, Pauline Paquette and Mary Bruce) and mothers Lorraine Jones, Mary Bruce and Nancy Trottier helped during the grades 1 and 2 swimming lessons.

As you can see, the community is very much involved with the school. Upcoming events are as follows: November 1 afternoon — swimming for grades 1, 2, 5 and 6; Nov. 5 morning — swimming for grades 1, 2 and kindergarten; November 9 morning — swimming for grades 1, 2, 7 and 8; November 10 — dental examination and November 12 — school is closed — students have a holiday.

Un-four-gettable

Junior Gaels edge Char-Lan in championship thriller

Last Thursday's SDG junior boys high school soccer final between Glengarry and Char-Lan lived up to everyone's highest expectations as the hometown Gaels pulled out a 4-3 victory to win their fourth consecutive league championship.

Brennan Cameron's penalty-shot goal with five minutes left in regulation proved to be the difference in what is sure to go down as one of the most memorable battles in the history of the Char-Lan-Glengarry rivalry.

An all-Glengarry County soccer final is always a little special, but this particular matchup was especially appealing for a number of reasons - not the least of which is that the teams simply don't like each other.

There are some genuine hard feelings between players on both sides, with most of the bad blood carrying over from rivalries in this past summer's Glengarry Soccer League bantam season. Many of the Crusader juniors played for the GSL championship Char-Lan team while a number of Gaels were on the runner- up Alexandria squad.

Throw in the fact that the teams match up well on paper, the electric atmosphere that always surronds a big soccer showdown in this county and a brisk but windless day, and the result was a splendid soccer game capped by a dramatic finish.

Big day for Hehn

On a day where the Crusaders paid a lot of attention to Toni Boos — the Gaels' top scorer during the regular season with 14 tallies — Karl Hehn was a major force for Glengarry, scoring two goals and setting up another.

''They were watching Toni pretty closely most of the game and that left me open,'' said Hehn, who scored four goals during the regular season.

Hehn was one of those Gaels who played for the Alexandria team that lost to the Char-Lan bantams this summer, and he openly admits that revenge was a factor in Thursday's game: ''We really like to beat Char-Lan.''

Gaels start quickly

Glengarry appeared to be on its way to burying the Crusaders early as the Gaels took a 2-0 lead 10 minutes into the game.

Hehn did most of the work on both goals, crossing the ball to Boos for the first score and then picking the far corner after a dash down the right side on the second.

The Glengarry juniors won their fourth consecutive SDG soccer championship with a thrilling 4-3 win over Char-Lan in Alexandria last Thursday. Team members are (in no particular order) Ian Robertson, Toni Boos, Steven St.Denis, Andrew Fraser, Allan Campbell, Chancey Lajoie, Craig Calvank, Jason Poirier, Daniel Steiche, Kevin Owens, Jesse Hamelin, Chad MacRae, Scott Nielsen, Karl Hehn, Marc Laferriere, Jonathan Hamelin and Brennan Cameron. At rear is coach Brian Filion while absent is manager Isabel Campbell.

The Crusaders wasted no time in picking themselves up off the floor as they immediately replied with some pressure in the Glengarry end. Less than two minutes after Hehn had given the Gaels a two-goal lead, Char-Lan was awarded a penalty shot and Jason Struthers calmly stroked the ball into the bottom right corner to get the Crusaders back in the game.

Buoyed by the approximately 100 Char-Lan students who made the trip to Alexandria to lend their noisy support, the Crusaders continued to pressure Gaels' netminder Steven St.Denis and Char-Lan missed on several good opportunities to tie the score before halftime.

The Crusaders did knot the game early in the second half as Struthers made a sliding kick to notch his second goal of the afternoon.

A short while later, Glengarry dug itself into a hole as Gaels fullback Jesse Hamelin was given a red card for flipping Struthers after the whistle.

Despite being forced to play a man short, the Gaels managed to take a 3-2 lead when Hehn knocked in a loose ball from inside the crease following a Glengarry corner kick.

The Crusaders retied the game four minutes later as Kevin O'Farrell picked the top corner.

Char-Lan appeared to take the lead in the 24th minute of the second half when Chris Lumley's brilliant shot on a direct kick hooked into the top corner of the far side of the Gaels' net.

The goal was negated by on offside flag however, and the score remained tied for another seven minutes until Cameron's penalty-shot winner.

Action too tense for coaches

As often happens in pressure-packed games such as last Thursday's championship duel, the coaches - Glengarry's Brian Filion and Char-Lan's Malcolm Fraser - were too absorbed in the action to fully enjoy the spectacle that was this year's SDG final.

''It seemed to be an interesting game, but I wasn't in the best position to notice,'' said Fraser, who helplessly watched as his team fell behind in the early going.

''I don't know if we weren't ready or what, but we gave up some easy goals at the beginning of the game to put ourselves into a hole.''

The difference is the Crusaders were able to climb out of the trench, unlike last season's final clash between the two clubs when Glengarry took a 4-0 lead on the way to a 6-3 win.

''They (the Crusaders) are a lot more mature and stable than last year when they were all in Grade 9 and 10,'' Fraser commented. ''They came back very nicely, the only problem is that Brian doesn't have any weak spots on his team. There just isn't anything to exploit.''

Filion says he fully expected Char-Lan to regroup after falling behind.

''I knew it was far from over when we took a 2-0 lead because they have so many good players. I thought they outchanced us for the most part.''

The Glengarry coach says getting offence from a different source was a must with the close marking job the Crusaders were executing on Boos. Hehn's two-goal effort fufilled Filion's hopes.

''I knew he was going to have to play a big role for us today and he did.''

Filion wasn't overly concerned about having to play most of the second half shorthanded.

''Sometimes I think it's tougher for the other team in that situation because they just automatically think it's going to be easier for them and they let up a little bit.''

Fraser says that the Crusaders' inability to take the lead prevented them from taking full advantage of the manpower situation.

''I think if we could have gone ahead, we would have had them on the ropes. It's tough to try and come back when you're a man short.''

Thanks to the disallowed Lumley goal, Glengarry never did have to play catch-up and the Gaels were able hold onto the championship trophy for a fourth consecutive season.

In three of those four championship years, the Gaels have defeated Char-Lan in the championship game.

The first of Glengarry's four consecutive title wins was oddly similar to last Thursday's game as Wade McNaughton's last-minute penalty shot goal gave Glengarry a 3-2 win over Char-Lan in the 1990 SDG final.

Senior champs are kings of the road

For the second season in a row, the Glengarry Gaels went on the road to win the SDG senior boys' soccer championship.

While there was nothing easy about last year's title win — the Gaels edged the Char-Lan Crusaders 1-0 — this year's final game at La Citadelle last Thursday turned out to be even more of a challenge for Laurent Rivard's club.

Glengarry was forced to play most of the game with a man short, but the Gaels still emerged with a 3-2 victory as Matthew Steiche converted an Alain Decoste crossing pass into the game-winning goal with 10 minutes left in regulation time.

''Al made the crossing play and I yelled to Sean (Burgess) to let it go,'' said Steiche of the play leading to the winning goal. ''I was about 12 yards out and I was able to hit the ball in the air after it took one bounce.''

Steiche's shot got past Patriotes goalkeeper Dan Lemire, putting the Gaels in front for the third time in the game and setting up the agonizing wait for the final whistle.

''There was about five minutes left in the game when I scored but the referee let it go for 10,'' said Steiche. ''It seemed like it took forever.''

Adding to the tension was the fact that the Gaels had been shorthanded since the 10-minute mark of the first half when referee Doug Gray gave a red card to Brian Mosher.

Glengarry was leading 1-0 thanks to a Decoste penalty-shot goal at the time of the ejection, and the Gaels were able to play the Pats even the rest of the way by using three halves and four fullbacks.

''Alain Decoste dropped back to play sweeper for us, but when we went on offence he would follow the play and wind up being a forward,'' said Gaels coach Rivard. ''He just played a tremendous game for us.''

Decoste scored Glengarry's first two goals in addition to setting up Steiche for the winner. The junior-aged forward was dominant in the latter stages of the season, scoring 12 goals in the Gaels' last five games including all four in Glengarry's 4-3 semi-final win over St.Joseph's on Tuesday.

''All the juniors coming up did a great job for us,'' said Rivard, referring to such players as Decoste, Eric Macdonald, Brad Harkness, James Addison, Rocky Lacombe and goaltender Eric Lavigne.

''Eric Lavigne deserves a special mention for the perseverence he showed this year,'' said the coach.

Rivard says Lavigne felt responsible for letting in a few soft goals in the first game of the season as North Dundas rallied from a 4-1 deficit to earn a 4-4 tie. The lost point wound up costing the Gaels first place in the senior division.

''He felt bad about that game because he thought he should have stopped at least two of those goals. It was quite a comeback for him to turn his season around the way he did. He made two or three really big saves against La Citadelle in the final.''

Defence held Pats

One of the reasons that the Gaels were able to overcome the adversity of losing a player in the early going was a commitment to defence that held La Citadelle off the scoreboard until after halftime.

Glengarry nursed its 1-0 lead until Hendrik Parisien scored early in the half. Decoste put the Gaels in the lead again only to have La Citadelle pull even on a Pierre Rozon marker.

The scoring stopped for a few minutes following Rozon's goal, and the tension started to mount.

''I felt we were headed for overtime the way things were going, and I didn't relish the thought,'' said Rivard. ''Fortunately, Matthew scored a big goal for us at the end.''

Thursday's victory allows Glengarry to win back-to-back United Counties championships for the first time since 1987-88. The SDG trophy has come to Alexandria three of the last four years and 11 of the last 15.

Rebs beat Rideaus in Jr. B showdown

Denis St. Jean adds to hat collection

The Char-Lan Rebels made a claim to the title as the best team in the Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League's St.Lawrence-Rideau Conference by beating the Westport Rideaus 7-4 in Williamstown on Saturday night.

The Rebels and Rideaus were first-place teams in their respective divisions heading into the week's action and both clubs sported identical 8-2-0 records.

The only major difference between the division leaders was the manner in which they built up those records.

Westport entered the week with the conference's best defensive record (31 goals allowed in 10 games) while the Rebels' attack led the Rideau-St.Lawrence with 84 goals scored.

Good offence won out over good defence on this night as Denis St.Jean notched his sixth hat trick in 11 games to lead the way.

Linemates Pete St.Jean and Marc Bellemare assisted on all three of St. Jean's goals and the line finished with a total of 11 points.

Terry O'Farrell and Rob Curran each added a pair of goals to round out Char-Lan's offence.

It was O'Farrell who iced the game by scoring the game's final two goals, including a dandy individual effort on his second of the night.

Dave Donaldson scored three times for Westport while Scott Ferguson added a single.

Rebel streak reaches five

Char-Lan has now won five games in a row with Saturday's victory and the Rebels are a perfect 6-0 on home ice this season.

Despite the the team's recent winning ways, the Rebels can't pull away from Morrisburg and Alexandria, Char-Lan's closest pursuers in the St.Lawrence Division.

The Lions have actually pulled into a first-place tie with Char-Lan after winning twice on the weekend. Char-Lan does hold two games in hand over Morrisburg.

The Glens, meanwhile, are one point behind the leaders with one more game played than Char-Lan and one fewer than Morrisburg.

Rebel Yells: Saturday's game was played at a breezy pace with a completion time of just over two hours, and the relative quickness can be attributed to a lack of penalties. There was of total of 116 minutes called, but 84 of those came as a result of fights involving Corey Payment and Adam Morris...Morris' fight came with 4:21 left in the third and the speedy centreman is automatically suspended for tonight's game against the Brockville Tikis...St.Hubert game stars were Denis St.Jean and Adam Morris...The Rebels have released midget-aged goaltender Ryan Derry and signed Jeff Cicchini to take his place. Cicchini was in uniform on Saturday and served as the backup for starter Brett Thompson...Cory Maxam, the Rebels' top scorer last year, was in attendance at the Rec Centre on Saturday. Maxam now skates with the Cornwall Colts of the Central League...It was a good weekend for the Brown family. While Philip was coaching Char-Lan to another win on Saturday, older brother Newell was piloting the American Hockey League's Adirondack Red Wings to the first of back-to-back wins over the Cornwall Aces. Philip was at the Civic Complex on Sunday as the Wings completed a home-and-home sweep with a 3-0 victory...In addition to tonight's game in Brockville, the Rebels will play host to Kemptville on Saturday and travel to Winchester on Sunday.

John Baxter wins fourth world title

Maxville's John Baxter became a world champion for the fourth time this past weekend when he won the international powerlifting championships for the blind in Ottawa.

Baxter lifted a total of 640 kg to claim the gold medal and beat out a field of 29 competitors for the world title. The lifters came from seven countries, the most ever at this event.

In addition to Canada, the United States, Kuwait, Korea, Australia, Spain and Great Britain were also represented

Baxter, who won the world crown in Perth, Australia last year, hoisted 250 kg in the squat, 130 kg in the bench press and 260 kg in the dead lift.

The owner amd operator of the Highland Athletic Club in Maxville has attracted some national attention for his exploits. Baxter was the subject of a feature on The Sports Network which aired on Sportsdesk earlier this week.

Baxter was reappointed as convenor for the world powerlifting championships, and plans are already underway for next year's event, which will be held in Costa del Sol, Spain next September.

Snow wipes out soccer

The heavy snowfall that blanketed the area earlier this week has forced the postponement of the first week of the Char-Lan Indoor Soccer League season.

The league was to have played a full slate of games at the Char-Lan District High School gym in Williamstown on Monday night, but the inclement weather and poor driving conditions prevented several clubs from fielding a full team.

Monday's games will be replayed later in the season, and the league will proceed with the regularly-scheduled Week Two games next Monday.

The action kicks off with the U2's taking on the Stars at 7 p.m., followed by the Avonmore Warriors vs. Rudi Payer Sport at 8 p.m. and the Williamstown Thunder against the SDG Nomads at 9 p.m.

Sports nuggets

Junior Gaels win twice

The Glengarry junior boys' volleyball team won a couple of matches last week to solidify the Gaels' hold on second place in the SDG standings.

The Gaels won two of three games from both General Vanier and St.Joseph's. Glengarry's record stood at 17-7 heading into yesterday's match against Tagwi.

The senior Gaels won two of three games from St.Joseph's but lost two of three to General Vanier. The senior record is now 13-11.

Sauve rink wins Opening Bonspiel

The foursome skipped by Paul Sauve took top honors at the Opening Bonspiel at the Alexandria Curling Club this past weekend.

The winning team also included Rosario Lacasse, Jean Viau and Linda Viau. The rink of Jack Paavila (skip), Sharon Gibbs, David Graham and Mary Nixon was second while the quartet comprised of Michel Lacelle, Jeannette Crevier, Claude Gallant and Peter Bellware was third.

The Thom Pritchard rink of Joy Clinton, Jim Morris and Lise MacDonell had one-game high honors

Barons rip Rapids

The Cumberland Barons broke a 2-2 tie with six unanswered goals on the way to pounding the Seaway Valley Minor Bantam Rapids 8-2 on Sunday.

Yves Ruest and Stephane Loyer scored the only goals for Seaway, who called up local products Jason Poirier and Kent McDonell to fill in for injured or suspended players.

Old Blades needed

The Old Blades Hockey League is still loooking for senior skaters to take the ice on Monday afternoons at the Glengarry Sports Palace.

The league has ice time from 1-2 p.m. and players aged 50 and over can take part simply by showing up and paying a $5 fee.

For more information, contact Ross Greer (525-1714).

One for the ages

When two old rivals met for the SD&G junior boys' soccer championship last week, the result was a classic battle that represented high school competition at its finest. The images of that day will linger in the minds of those who witnessed or participated in the spectacle.

Toni Boos (9) had that uplifting feeling after opening the scoring for Glengarry. Brennan Cameron adds some vocal celebration.

Faith volunteers her time in a number of areas: Chateau Gardens, the Palliative care program at Cornwall General Hospital, the Knox United Thrift Shop in Lancaster, the Bainsville Women's Institute in Bainsville and St. Andrew's United Church in Bainsville. As a lay preacher, Faith preaches when needed at United Churches throughout the St. Lawrence Pastoral Charge. At Chateau Gardens, she holds religious services when the United Church minister is away. She also visits one of the residents of Chateau Gardens every week.

Faith Burgess

In Nova Scotia, Faith's professional work was that of elementary teacher. Her husband was in the Canadian Armed Forces. She has two children, a son who is a professor at McGill and a daughter who is vice-president at Gandalf in Ottawa. She has four grandchildren and will soon have a fifth.

Faith has other interests outside her volunteer work. She is involved in various sports, including tennis, skiing, skating and golf. She also enjoys reading and line dancing.

Faith is greatly appreciated by both the people and the organizations that profit from her volunteer work.

Winning the hard way

Glens pull comeback routine against Hawks and 73's

Just when you think the Alexandria Glens have run out of creative ways to win hockey games, along comes Friday night's wild affair against the Winchester Hawks.

The Glens started the game by reverting back to their 1992-93 season form, falling behind 6-1 to the visiting Hawks before the contest was 11 minutes old.

Alexandria's start was capital-U ugly as the Hawks completely dominated every facet of the game.

A short while later, somebody on the Alexandria bench finally found the "on" switch and the Glens scored nine of the last 10 goals on the way to a 10-7 victory.

On Sunday in Kemptville, Alexandria rallied from deficits of 5-3 and 7-5 to defeat the 73's 9-8.

The Glens won the Kemptville game in the final minute of regulation as Richard Hutt scored the winner with 35 seconds left.

It's the second time Alexandria has won by scoring in the last minute of play and the Glens have now rallied to take four games in which they had once trailed by at least two goals.

Throw in a shootout win and an overtime victory and you can see why these guys truly deserve the nickname "Cardiac Kids."

Boisvenue returns

Sunday's game marked the return of Martin Boisvenue to the Glens lineup as the sophomore centreman had sat out the previous four games with a bruised shoulder.

Boisvenue scored once, assisted on two other Alexandria goals and seemed to have no problems in giving or taking a check.

Carl Bougie and Randy Gebbie each scored twice for Alexandria against the 73's while Pascal Joanette, Ricky Latreille and Patrick Sauve joined Boisvenue and Hutt as single-goal scorers.

Jason Collins had a pair for Kemptville while Jeff Ryan, Aaron Heath, Jeff Ricci, Sean Audet, Jeff Hyndman and Trevor Mikus each scored once.

Carl Bougie, with a four-goal night, was Alexandria's top sniper during the miraculous comeback against the Hawks on Friday.

Pascal Joanette had two goals and three assists while Randy Gebbie assisted on seven of Alexandria's 10 goals.

Patrick Sauve, Patrick Collin, Mike Closs and Richard Hutt each scored once.

The goal by Closs broke a 7-7 tie early in third period and turned out to the game-winner. Closs, who had been playing on defence until Friday's game, cut in front of the Winchester goal before slipping the puck just over the goal-line.

The Hawks argued the puck never went in but referee Jeff Baker allowed the goal to stand after consulting with the goal judge. The Glens went on to add a couple of insurance markers to seal the victory.

Derreck Holmes scored twice for Winchester while Derek Brannen, John Hamel, Mike Bergeron, Jason Desormeaux and Bruce Cameron notched singles.

All four goalies saw action in the game, which featured a 10-goal first period.

Jean-Francois Boyer came in for Glens starter Paul Seguin at the 7:50 mark of the first period when the Hawks increased their lead to 4-1. Dale Wilson replaced Duane Hoey in the Winchester goal after the Glens tied the game at 6- 6 just over four minutes into the second stanza.

Offence wins high marks

As long as Alexandria keeps winning, Glens coach Robert Boisvenue seems content to put up with the team's Russian roulette style of play.

"I'd much rather see us start slowly and come back strong than have a good start and then blow it in the third period," he rationalized.

"That just seems to be our style. I still say it shows the character we have on this team."

Despite Alexandria's high goals against total, Boisvenue believes his team does have the ability to play well in its own zone.

"Our goaltending let us down a little this past weekend. It's hard to blame the defence when your goalie can't make the saves he should," he said. "We proved we could play good defence when we only gave up one goal in the last two-and-a-half periods on Friday.

"If we give up five or six goals a game but keep scoring nine or 10, then I'll be satisfied with that. The main thing is that we're winning."

Glens Richard Hutt and Carl Bougie (16) celebrate after one of Alexandria's 10 goals against Winchester at the Billy Gebbie Arena on Friday night. Bougie scored four times as the Glens posted a 10-7 comeback victory.

Glenformation: The Glens have re-signed Ray Jock. The Cornwall Island native played for Alexandria last season - scoring 13 goals and 27 points in 15 games - and was a late cut from Char-Lan's camp last month...Dennis Dodd missed both weekend games because of work commitments. The shift nature of Dodd's employment means the overage pivot will miss one weekend out of three...Carl Bougie's six-goal weekend allows him to become the third St.Lawrence Division player to reach the 20-goal plateau. Char-Lan's Denis St.Jean and Morrisburg's Andrew McEwen were the first two...Alexandria has now won five in a row on home ice after losing to Char-Lan in the first game of the season at the Glengarry Sports Palace...Alexandria is at home to Gananoque on Friday. The Glens will be in Westport on Sunday afternoon.

Tie for first in ADIHL

Legion Br. 423 and Ernie's Cement Works are tied for first place after four weeks of play in the Alexandria and District Industrial Hockey League.

Both clubs posted victories at the Maxville and District Sports Complex on Saturday to improve their season records to 3-1.

Ernie's edged Dick's Paving Stone 6-5 as J.P. Claude and Brent Farrell each scored twice.

Gerry Blanchette and Marc Just each scored once while Mike Lapensee collected four assists.

Mark Titley scored twice for Dick's while Johnny MacSweyn had a goal and three assists.

It's the second time this season that Ernie's has defeated Dick's.

Meanwhile, the Legionnaires disposed of Decoste Welding by a score of 8-4.

Andre Seguin, Lynden Cameron and Mike Campeau each scored a deuce for the winners with singles going to Carrie Cameron and Stephen MacMaster.

Joel Doiron scored twice for Decoste while Maurice Leduc and Danny McKay rounded out the scoring.

Owen powers Crusaders

Michelle Owen poured in a season-high 16 points to lead the Char-Lan junior girls' basketball team to a 48-40 victory over the Tagwi Warriors last Friday in Williamstown.

Shonna Acheson and Shirley Bergeron each added six points for the Crusaders, who are now 2-3 on the season.

The Char-Lan midgets made it a sweep for the Crusaders by crushing the Warriors 31-6.

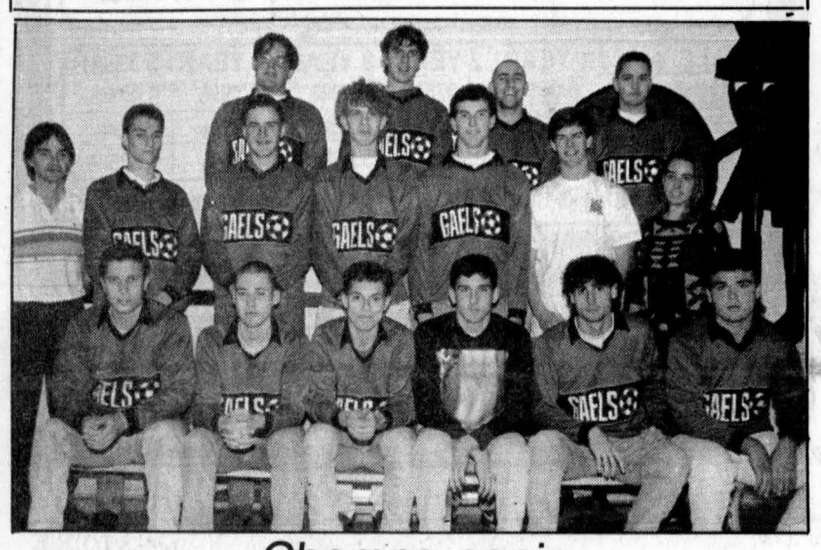
Char-Lan's offence consisted of 17 points by Jennifer Abell and seven other players with two points each.

* * *

The senior Crusaders didn't see any league action last week because Tagwi does not have a senior team.

Mona Leblanc's club did take on La Citadelle in an exhibition contest on Thursday, and the Crusaders claimed a 44-34 victory.

Katharine MacLachlan was top offensive force with 14 points while Kelly Lariviere added eight. Joanne Legault and Vicky Peacey each had six points.



Champs again

The Glengarry senior boys' soccer team repeated as SDG champions with a 3-2 victory over La Citadelle in Cornwall last Thursday. Team members (front, l-r) Matthew Steiche, Brad Harkness, James Addison, Eric Lavigne, Scott McPherson, Rocky Lacombe, (middle) coach Laurent Rivard, Martin Stadelmann, Mathias Mader, Sean Burgess, Steven MacIntosh, Shawn Robertson, manager Jennifer Williamson, (back) Eric Macdonald, Kent O'Shea, Shawn McClements and Malcolm MacPherson. Missing are Brian Mosher, Robert Meth and Alain Decoste.

Flyers still looking for win

The King Edward Flyers suffered their third consecutive loss of the Cornwall Indoor Soccer League on Sunday as Filion Jewellers handed the Glengarry club a 4-2 defeat.

Brian McCormick and Dennis St.Denis each scored once for the Flyers, who couldn't contain Filion's Mathieu Merizzi in the defensive end. Merizzi paced his team with a three-goal effort.

At the other end of the CISL's men's division standings, Rudi Payer Sport and the Atlantic Hotel Storm are both undefeated with 3-0 records.

The Storm got past Filion Jewellers 2-0 on goals by Marc Seguin and Randy Picher.

Rudi's, meanwhile, handed La Maison a 5-1 setback as Pat Burke netted two goals for the winners. Steve Lodge, Gareth Pye and Roy MacDonell also scored for RPS.

Tommy McKay scored six goals as Filion Trophies bashed M and D Sports 13-0 in the other game involving a local club.

Kirk Hill winless

Kirk Hill has yet to chalk up a "1" in the women's division win column after managing only one tie in the first three games of the season.

Kirk Hill lost a 2-1 nailbiter to the Bootleggers in Cornwall on Sunday as Lisa Poirier scored her team's only goal.

The Minimax Hearts, meanwhile, were credited with a 2-0 win over Marlin Travel, who failed to show.

VON CANADA
Caring for Life
By Dr. George McKiel
Montezuma's Revenge or "Turista"

We live in a sea of bacteria and viruses of which, fortunately, we're indifferent to. But a few are deadly while for others we adapt our immunology and so live comfortably with 'em. It's this latter group which creates problems for they are present in and on food and, of course, in drinking water. Despite being meticulous about intake, the holiday or business trip can be a most uncomfortable experience with pains and cramps, severe diarrhea, nausea and vomiting as well as a mild fever. The very real danger about these shits is the havoc evoked, not only by the loss of digestive tract contents, but the serious dehydration and, worse, the imbalance in our electrolytes (sodium + potassium).

So, the best cure is not to get the "runs", and a lot of investigation has gone into finding preventive antibiotics (good ONLY against bacteria). Now enough time has lapsed that most of these, including the popular doxycycline, are no longer of much use for the bacteria, in turn, have evolved resistance. Does that mean we must stay home?? Not according to a recent New England Journal of Medicine for Hebert Dupont and Charles Ericsson have published a simple, inexpensive preventive for "turista". These 2 experts still counsel would-be travellers to avoid uncooked vegetables, undercooked meats/shellfish. Further, if you can't peel it...don't eat - best to add a bleach (10 drops per qt) before peeling. Avoid street vendors. Then, having taken those precautions and sticking with bottled water for drinking and brushing teeth, Dupont, who is head of Infectious Diseases at Texas Med. School, advises daily doses of Pepto-Bismol. You can get this over-the-counter medicine in liquid or tablet (24 tablets for about $5 - you chew two, 262 milligram tablets four times a day, ie: with meals + bedtime). This antiviral, antibacterial medicine works by isolating the potent invaders with gucky bismuth subsalicylate and so shunts them along before they can release their nasty endotoxins.

The major advantage of using the Pepto-Bismol as a preventive, rather than antibiotics (beside the price) is as Dr. Dupont put it, "The Pepto-Bismol doesn't screw up your physiology; you can take it for long periods of time and it's effective against most diarrhea-causing organisms". It will likely darken stools / tongue and may, in some, give tinitus (ringing in the ears). Compare this to the unwanted side effects of antimicrobial drugs: skin rashes, vaginal infections (allows fungi to get out of hand by killing off our natural controllers), teeth discoloration, sun sensitivity, even bone marrow disorders. Jane Troop of Alexandria, a seasoned traveller, strongly emphasizes to be alert to ice cubes - be ABSOLUTELY sure they are frozen using bottled waters. Jane adds that when leaving the ship for inland China they were admonished to take along their own bottled water but found in the better hotels there was always bottled water in the fridges.

Should you, despite precautions, acquire travellers' diarrhea treat with anti-motility drugs like Lomotil or Imodium but continue with Pepto-Bismol in mild cases. Also, with diarrhea you must take plenty of fluids and up your electrolytes intake. Use rehydration preparations like Pedialyte or Lytren especially for the more susceptible youngsters. Likely the diarrhea will last only a few days but for the 10 + % whose condition persists it's advisable to seek professional medical care.

Montezuma's Revenge is a worldwide thing but some places are more risky than others, eg: Mexico = 40% while the U.S. = 5%.

Charlottenburgh Township

Council Briefs

A regular meeting of Charlottenburgh Township was held Oct. 26 in Williamstown. In the absence of Reeve Dave MacDonald, Deputy Reeve Leslie O'Shaughnessy presided. The following are among items discussed at the meeting.

Hall rental fee to rise

A recommendation by the township's recreation committee to increase the rental fee of the hall at the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre was approved by council. A $25 extra charge will be added to existing rental rates.

Deputy Reeve Leslie O'Shaughnessy explained the increase was necessary to cover a union fee for musicians who use the facility to play at various functions.

Although the union fee is between $52 and $57 per night, officials felt an increase to cover the full amount would be too drastic all at once. The increase will apply whether or not the renting party is using a band.

Grant to Reunion '94

A one-time grant of $2,000 will be set aside in next year's budget for the Char-Lan District High School Reunion Committee.

Reunion members appeared before the recreation committee recently to ask for use of the arena on July 1, 2 and 3 of 1994, and to seek permission to be allowed to operate the bars with personnel other than the township's.

Council decided that the reunion committee would be charged for the rental costs, staffing, etc., estimated by Recreation Director Brent Daigle to be in the neighborhood of $2,000, but that the grant would then be donated to the group to offset costs.

"I think it's a good cause," said Councillor George Shoniker.

New score clock in offing

A new score clock to replace the tempermental timepiece currently in use at the arena appears to be in the works. Clerk-Treasurer Marcel Lapierre said that Brent Daigle was going to Montreal to visit two arenas to check out their clocks.

George Shoniker said that although he agrees with the purchase of a new score clock, he has "a problem with donations from corporate sponsors," in the event such financial help is forthcoming. "I want to know about this in advance," said Shoniker.

Money for Lan-Char Medical Centre

Charlottenburgh will contribute $1,500 to "stabilize the financial status" of the Lan-Char Medical Centre.

The building, which is owned equally by Charlottenburgh, Lancaster Village and Lancaster Township is presently operating with a loan of $2,600 from the latter.

Marcel Lapierre explained that the centre's operating cash was used up because of work on the extension roof. "It will operate on its own after this," said Lapierre.

Cost of project revealed

In a memorandum to council, Treasurer/Deputy-Clerk Vanessa Bennett outlined the final capital costs of the Purcell Water & Sewer Project, completed in 1992, as totalling $6.9 million (excluding the extension project presently being pursued).

The figure includes construction, engineering, land acquisition, legal and miscellaneous costs, but not the interest carrying cost. Of the final cost, $6.8 million was eligible for Ministry of the Environment funding at 85 per cent and the township received $5.8 million in MOE grants for the project.

"Some landowners paid out their capital frontage charges, while others opted to be included in a ten-year debenture, which will be completed in 1999. The capital frontage charges applicable to township owned lands totalled $73,782.99," states the memorandum.

Charlottenburgh petitions Solicitor-General

Concern over the staffing of the Lancaster OPP detachment was expressed by council in a resolution to the Solicitor-General.

The resolution asks that the Lancaster detachment be supplied "with adequate resource and personnel" to address the task of offering the 24-hour per day service which has recently been re-established in the wake of incidents related to smuggling.

Council feels "an increase in police personnel and resources" is necessary to "adequately fulfill the mandate."

Last application approved

A request for a $7,500 loan under the Ontario Home Renewal Program (OHRP), made in June of this year, was approved by council.

Marcel Lapierre said that the application would be the last of its kind since the province has requested the return of all OHRP monies not presently being used.

A federally-funded loan program for low-income homeowners wishing to upgrade their houses is still in existence.

Recycling efforts a success

In the first 10 months of Kenyon residents recycling efforts, nearly 100 metric tons of materials were shipped off to Alexandria Recycling Centre.

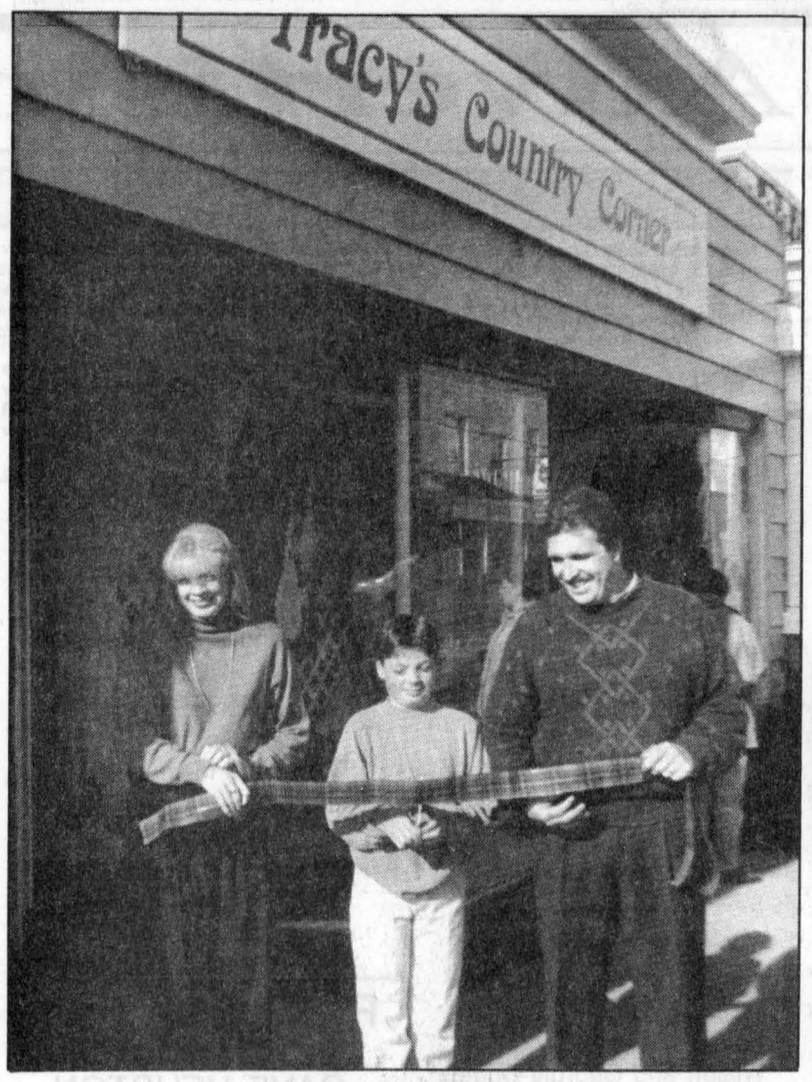
Clerk Mary McCuaig reported Oct. 26 that 94.88 metric tons of materials were shipped from Nov. 3, 1992 to Sept. 23, 1993, a "fantastic response by residents."

"That's nearly 2.5 tons a week shipped away from our dump sites," crowed Councillor Blair Williams.

Tipping fees paid by Kenyon to Alexandria Recycling Centre for unloading materials cost $6,100.

Kenyon will be negotiating a new waste disposal and recycling contract with Ontario Disposal Services for next year.

Last year's contract tied raises to the cost of living index.



Country style

The curtain went up on a new local business recently when Tracy's Country Corner opened its doors on Main St. in Maxville. Performing the ceremonial ribbon-cutting was Brandon O'Flaherty while co-owners Tracy O'Flaherty and Ewen MacDonald look on.

Annual benefit dance Friday

Child Haven International is holding its sixth annual benefit dance on Friday, Nov. 5 at St. Joseph's Hall in Lancaster.

MP Don Boudria, newly re-elected MP, will be a special guest, as will Noble Villeneuve, MPP. Master of ceremonies is Gary Geddes, local award-winning poet.

Entertainment will be provided by the music group, "Imaginary Heaven," consisting of Ian Hepburn, Kerry Steele, Nina Loretto, Troy Young. They will sing, as well as produce music on harp, keyboards, flute, cello, acoustic guitar and mandolin.

Cost of the dinner is $20. Reservations are available by calling Dorothy Dawson, 527-3239.

In Memoriam

BISSONNETTE, Antoine — In loving memory of my father who passed away Nov. 7, 1979.
We can't have the old days back
When we were all together,
But secret tears and loving thoughts
Will be with us forever.
—Lovingly remembered by Victoria and John.

KAUFMANN — In loving memory of my dear husband Philip, who passed away ten years ago November 8, 1983.
Happy hours we once enjoyed
How sweet their memory still,
But death has left a loneliness,
The world can never fill.
—Lovingly remembered, wife Helen. 44-1p

LEFEBVRE — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother who passed away a year ago Nov. 4, 1992.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Ghislaine and Arcade Menard and family. 44-1p

LAPENSEE, Clifford — In loving memory of a dear grandfather who passed away October 26, 1989.
Deep in my heart, there's a picture,
More precious than silver or gold,
'Tis a picture of a dear grandfather,
Whose memory will never grow old.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by granddaughter Josée. 44-1p

Optimists help kids celebrate Halloween

North Lancaster
Bernadette Campeau
347-2572

The North Lancaster Girl Guides celebrated at last Thursday's meeting. They played games, made crafts, had candy treats and sang happy birthday to 10-year-old Leann MacDonald.

Sunday evening was trick or treatin' time in North Lancaster. There was a slight reduction in the number of visitors this year.

After making the rounds, the kids met at the school gymnasium for treats from the Optimist Club and prizes for best costumes.

Three-year-old Ashley Glaude won for most beautiful; Marilynn Olivera, most original; Marc Bourbonnais, funniest; Alain Campeau, scariest, and Julie Dumouchel, ugliest. Congratulations to all the winners and a big pat on the back to Optimist members who made the party possible and also to those who patrolled the streets protecting our young trick or treaters.

Why does life keep us so busy all the time. We haven't yet put away our Halloween decorations and the stores are flashing Christmas trees and stuff.

For the next two months we will be suggested to, hinted at, and made to believe we need items that will be shown on TV commercials and newspapers.

How can anyone be bored? It's a matter of deciding if you start now or if you wait till the last few days.

Whatever time you decide to shop, remember to respect the environment. Don't buy goods that are overly packaged. Also, homemade crafts and goodies are always a welcome gift.

Alcide and Claire Campeau's children gave them a beautiful celebration of their 50th wedding anniversary. To mark the special date of October 23, 1943, they shared a lovely meal at the restaurant.

There is a bingo coming up at the Ste. Thérèse school on Sunday, Nov. 7 in the afternoon at 1:30 p.m. It is a turkey bingo and there will also be door prizes. Everyone is welcome.

* * *

On Saturday, Dec. 4 at the township hall there will be a bake and craft sale for Glen Nevis parish. Parishioners are asked to prepare either crafts or goodies for this event.

* * *

Happy birthday this week to Gerald Laferriere on Nov. 6, and happy anniversary to Pierre and Susan David, also on the 6th. Best wishes.

39'ers plan trip to Bayshore

Glen Sandfield
by Lorna Chapman
874-2408

The 39'ers met at the Church on the Hill hall on Oct. 20 with 55 present for their monthly meeting.

After the delicious luncheon, Lorna Chapman led a rousing sing-song in the absence of Muriel Moore, the program director.

Bessie MacLennan accompanied the singing, and gave the group words of another song to learn, This Land of Mine.

It really isn't new, having been written for the Centennial year, but it was new to most of the group, and it really went quite well.

Lorna Chapman gave the minutes followed by a summary of the recent Gideon Ladies' meeting in Hawkesbury. She outlined the mandate of the worthy non-denominational organization's projects and spoke about the wonderful presentation on video about the theme.

Many familiar faces were there that day, and so area women's groups have been hearing about the lovely cards, available free, for birthdays, in memoriams, graduations, even Christmas.

The Gideons only request a donation when the cards are used, to cover the cost of printing.

Elisabeth Groot gave a good treasurer's report, and then gave the details of the upcoming Bayshore trip for Senior's Day on Nov. 16. She would like everyone to be at the Alexandria Curling Club on that day at 8:15 a.m.

Several cards were sent to members who are ailing by Betty McDonald, the card secretary.

Plans for the Christmas dinner have been completed and it will be held on Dec. 15 at the Pizzeria at noon, and will be a buffet meal.

Dot Burnett announced the UCW soup luncheon at the Curling Club on November 4. The cost is $4 and includes dessert.

Lucky cup prizes went to Mary Van Loon, Lorna Chapman and Sadie MacMillan. October birthday celebrants were Doris Spencer, Nora Ruth and Anna May Barton.

An impromptu collection was organized to buy prizes for the games and the members were really very generous. Bingo and cards filled the rest of the afternoon.

Finding doctors tough

Finding doctors to cover the Glengarry Memorial Hospital's emergency department is becoming increasingly difficult, according to the board chairman.

Sam Sultan said local doctors are "stretched" providing the service.

Doctors staffing emergency part-time, are not granted full hospital privileges. Their patients can't get hospital service unless they list a local doctor's name who has privileges.

"The situation here is very closed-shop unless the doctor is on full time staff," MacSweyn pointed out.

"There are a number of things that don't seem right to me."

Ontario Hospital Association and the Ontario Medical Association have been called together by Health Minister Ruth Grier to develop alternative strategies for paying doctors who provide on-call services in low-volume emergency departments.

"The Minister realizes the burden small hospital bears to maintain emergency services," Sultan explained.

"Certainly something will have to be done on this."

Building the fund

A couple of donations were made to the Maxville Manor building fund Friday. Shown, top photo, accepting a donation of $1,000 from St. Michaels and All Angels Anglican Church in Maxville is James Joyce, chairperson of the Manor's fundraising committee. Flanking Joyce are church representatives Patricia Horan (left) and Jean Williams. The money was raised through the church's first ever auction and strawberry social at the end of June. Shown bottom photo are Joyce and D.A. MacMillan, chairman of the church and groups fundraising division, accepting a donation from St. James Parish Catholic Church, the second of four installments to total $1,000. Shown presenting the check are (left) Bruno Besner, chairman of the church finance committee and Monsignor Rejean Lebrun, St. James Parish priest.

Former resident in world championship show

Maxville
by Gordon Winter
527-2888

Mary Scott, the daughter of Hilda and the late Ted, grew up on Peter Street in Maxville. She became a teacher and moved to Ottawa. Now as Mary Mulligan she has realized her lifelong dream and experienced the greatest thrill of her life.

Last week Mrs. Mulligan competed in the Grand National and World Championship Morgan Horse Show in Oklahoma City, U.S.A. After qualifying over the summer by winning many riding and driving classes in Ontario, Quebec and New York State, she and her 6-year-old Morgan gelding Big Oak Celebrity (Britt) went to the Nationals. After successfully competing during the show, Britt was declared one of the "The Top Ten Classic Morgans under Saddle in the World."

We congratulate Mary Mulligan for her success in developing her Morgan for the show ring and wish her the best as she continues with her aspirations in the horse world.

Residents bid au revoir to Lynn and Bruce MacGillivray, Laura and Ian as they take up residence in their recently purchased home east of Dunvegan. They have lived on Fair Street for a few years in their home which was built by Lynn's grandparents, the late Greta and Peter McInnes on Fair St. We wish the family much happiness in their rural setting.

We extend sympathy to Hazel McIntosh in the death of her brother, Garnet Renwick, on Oct. 12. Mr. Renwick's funeral was held in Vankleek Hill.

A native of Dyer, Myrtle Ireland, died in Atlanta, Georgia last week. She was a daughter of the late Donalda Blair and the late Alexander D. Munro. Charlotte Kennedy is a cousin here and Beryle Brown in Cornwall is a sister and Blair Munro, Cornwall and Howard Munro, London, are brothers of the deceased. We offer our sympathy to these family members.

* * *

We welcome Kathleen MacLean to the village. Mrs. MacLean has been living in the former home of her brother-in-law, Neil MacLean, St. Elmo East and has now moed to the former home of Cathy Clay on Spring St.

* * *

Another relative who is helping Helen McKay in the kitchen of her bake shop and cafe is Catherine (Dan) MacRae. Mrs. MacRae's name was omitted last week when those who were helping with this new business was listed.

* * *

We extend very best wishes to Audrey Nixon, a member of the bank of Nova Scotia staff, whose marriage to Gerard Kennedy takes place this Saturday. With Mrs. Nixon's move to Lochiel with her sons Jason and Bruce, her home on Catherine Street becomes occupied by Carma Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blair Williams.

Jullie Robertson, niece of Bernie and Lois is becoming the tenant of the apartment over McKay's bake shop and cafe.

Wally Welsh, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, and his family have purchased the home on Mechanic Street West of Barbara and Hughie McLennan and are moving this week. As a result the McLennans and their two children had to move to the farm home of Allan and Doreen Crites.

From the results of last week's election, it appears that I can speak for many residents in extending congratulations to Don Boudria MP as he becomes our Member of Parliament for another term. We can be proud of Mr. Boudria in the many positive comments that have been written about him in the papers.

Charles Gordon (Ralph Connor's grandson) wrote in the Ottawa Citizen "Elections used to be fun. On election night, voters didn't have much of an idea what the results would be. Polls were less common and less sophisticated." Now, during the campaign the various media tell us how things are going for the parties and candidates and on election night we are given predicted results long before the polls in the west close. Like in many other ways, technology has truly made changes for us.

The public school Newsletter has reported that Willy Marie Gillingham (538-2953) is the new president of the School Committee and that Susan Hoar (538-2645) is the vice-president. A secretary has not been obtained yet.

For the cross country tournament the following parents who drove students and supervised were thanked: Diane Benton, Leslie Chisholm, Marilyn Blair, Ewen MacDonald, Helga Currier, Judy Russell, Janet Delaney and Eileen McIntosh.

A Japanese intern, Takako, was welcomed to the school and is starting out in Grade 5.

For ages 11-19, junior curling is being offered at the Glengarry Curling Club on Sundays from 2-4 p.m., starting on Nov. 7.

Members of the school's Student Council were elected by their peers as follows: Head Girl — Amanda MacMillan, Head Boy — Scott Coleman, Sec.-Treas. — Lindsay McIntosh; Class Reps: 8A — Amanda Collier and Clinton Leroux, 8B — Charity Franklin and Michael Neil, 7A — Leslie Brown and Matthew Marjerrison, 7B/8C — Natalie Quesnel and David Hess, Grade 6 — Lisa Sabitine and Rodney Benton, S.A. They were: Leslie Brown, Stacey Marjerrison, Amanda MacMillan, Rebecca Williamson, Melissa Tyrell, Bruce Libbos, Rodney Benton, Jennifer Little, Shannon MacEwen, David Blaney, Gordon Williamson, Emily Wensink, Julie St. Louis, Natalie Dore and Missy Marjerrison. A special thank you went to Rosemary Harden, our music teacher, who directed the students.

It has been reported to me that an authority said that we shouldn't be feeding the finches niger seed. The reason was that the seed might not be digested and be spread as a wild seed through the feces. I do not agree with this. First, the finches shell the seeds before they swallow them. Secondly, if the entire seed is not digested and is spread as a wild seed, I don't think the resulting plant could survive as a weed, especially if it turns out to be lettuce as I reported in the summer.

Robins are still lingering behind. Dried up apples on the ground seem to be furnishing their seeds as a food supply but one also sees them looking for earthworms.

With the space available, I can do more updating from the Auld Lang Syne columns and cover the last two weeks. Ninety years ago, Janet McKillican was home visiting her father William in Vankleek Hill. Once can imagine her life of service and its hardships as a foreign missionary with the American Presbyterian Mission in Peking, China. She was an aunt of Gordon and Lyman McKillican and a grand aunt of the present Janet.

Sometime later Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Sinclair moved to Maxville and built the home that now belongs to Muriel and Elmer McCaskill, Mechanic St. E.

Alex J. McEwen, the father of Agnes Campbell and grandfather of Murray, was always an active hunter and 80 years ago, he and his wife entertained the club in their home, now that of his daughter-in-law, Gwen McEwen.

George McGillivray and his wife, Alice, lived in the present Helen Baker home many years ago. They had lived in the West earlier so the visit out there would have been a renewal of friends. Mr. McGillivray used to sell farm machinery and the entire back yard was a vegetable garden.

Eddie Cameron used to clerk in Bert McDougall's store. He was married to the former Ethel McLean and moved to Cornwall where he had secured a better position fifty years ago. Some readers will remember his brother Ernie.

* * *

From last week's column, the family of Dr. J. T. Munro was mentioned ninety years ago. Son John was in California and had received an LLD degree. However, I believe he was a lawyer and not a minister. About the same time, Dr. Howard received three degrees as a result of his studies in Edinburgh. He was a village doctor here for many years. The first son, Robertson, called after his mother's family, died young and Olive O'Hara was the only daughter. Music was her field of study.

Eighty years ago, post offices were closed in Dominionville and Warina when R. R. #2 was opened. Now the two rural routes are combined.

Seventy years ago, Donald Duperron erected a garage that could hold his fleet of taxis and other cars. In those days, one of his taxis met every passenger train that stopped here with hopes that the passenger would require the hotel's services. At least four trains stopped here. The garage was behind the hotel running east and west.

It is hard to realize that Alma McDonald Umphrey was a star athlete seventy years ago when she received honors at the first field day held at the high school. Mrs. Umphrey is an active village resident and a noted artist.

At the same time, Bennett McEwen earned seven first prizes at the same field day. He became a medical doctor in the footsteps of his father, Dr. Duncan and practised here until he enlisted in World War II. He now lives in British Columbia.

The large brick home that was destroyed by fire north of Dominionville 60 years ago, at what was called Notfield was located about where the Bergeron home is now.

It was 40 years ago that Henri Seguin was convicted of the murder of Leonard Hurd and was sentenced to the death penalty. He committed suicide in his cell before his sentence was carried out.

Junior curling is starting at the Glengarry Curling Club in Maxville on Sunday, Nov. 7, 1993 for all children 11 years and up. For more information please call 527-2984 or 527-5346.
