Beachburg suffered a $25.000 fire on Monday.

A fire destroyed two houses at Crysler on Tuesday.

A very timely and heavy rain visited this section last night.

Never mention your own faults; others will attend to that for you.

Those looking forward instead of backward see what's coming first.

A new turn is being laid out at Harmony Church for the new highway.

It may be necessary for you to sow your wild oats, but don't try to do it with a motor car.

Morrisburg had a "clean up" day last week, and judging from the amount of rubbish carted to the dump, and the fuss made over the event, it must have been a long time since the village on the St. Lawrence had its last clean up. In Winchester it is an annual affair, and that is why Winchester always looks so clean

Here is a fact which Canadians are not at all proud to contemplate: In New York City under a prohibitory law, there are less than 15 per 10,000 of the population arrests for drunkeness; while arrests for drunkeness in Toronto, under the Liquor Control Law, are over 106 per 10,000.

The Ottawa Journol protests against the possibility of an outsider, being appointed postmaster of Ottawa. It claims that the position should go to the assistant postmaster and not to some politician. The Journal is right, but in Pembroke, under both Liberal and Conservative governments, we saw the assistant postmaster ignored and the position given to another.

"The Old New Hampshire Home," a Three-Act Play, will be presented by Group 1 of the Women's Association of Morewood United Church in the United Church Hall, Morewood, on Friday evening, May 22nd, at 8.15. Admisssion Adults 35c, Children 15c.

The storm that threatened this section the first of the week, but happily did not come too close, seems to had done considerable damage in Leeds, Frontenac, Prince Edward and Hastings Counties, when the heavy hail broke windows, beat down the trees and garden stuff, and in some places killed young fowl. Even as far east as Gananoque and Lansdowne windows were broken, and hail stones an inch in thickness fell.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Docksteader, Ormond, wish to announce the engagement of their only daughter, Helen Mae, to William Gerald, son of Mr and the late Mrs. J. L. Henderson, Billings' Bridge. Marriage to tade place early in June.

Must Pay Poll Tax

Six young men of Alexandria, Ont. were each committed to Cornwall jail for failing to pay their poll tax as ordered by the magistrate. Instead of the poll tax the youths have to pay $10 fine and costs. They might better have made the effort to pay the poll tax when notified.

Fined $25. and Costs

Two merchants doing business outside of Winchester and one Winchester business man were before Magistrate McCormick on Wednesday, charged with buying eggs and not properly grading same. The first two were each fined $25. and costs, and the case against the latter was adjourned until a later date.

Still Digging Away

Mr. Andrew Christie, who will soon be numbered among the four score in age, of our much respected citizens, and who has for many years been able to maintain a reputation for having one of the choicest little gardens in this community, on Monday last gave evidence of old time vigour and determination, when, being unable to secure the necessary help, took the shovel and hoe, and planted his own garden. Yes, it made him puff a little, and he would not like to have to be compelled to repeat the exercise daily. But it also proved that the "old boy" has much of the old vigour and determination of youth Mr. Christie, is, however, too good a citizen to be taking such chances, and—hang those gardens anyway.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Police Magistrate Hopewell, of Ottawa, committed suicide by drowning last Friday. Ill health and financial worries are claimed to have caused him to take his life.

The head office representative from the famous Progress Brand Clothes Limited, will be at Sweet's on Saturday, May 23rd, with a set of samples. He will personally measure each customer and will guarantee a fit. Call and see him

A grand Missionary Rally is to be held at Iroquois United Church on Friday of this week, May 22nd, when Miss Effie Jamieson, General Sec'y of the W. M. S. Board will bring a word picture of Africa and the work in progress there. There will be afternoon and evening sessions and tea will be served by the Iroquois W. M. S.

Following an illness of two months' duration a promising young life was cut short at the General Hospital, Brockville, in the person of Mrs. Lorne McPherson of Williamsburg, Ont., on Wednesday, May 6th. Her passing, which was not entirely unexpected, cast a gloom of sorrow around the commnity in which she was loved and esteemed. Mrs. McPherson, (nee Miss Ethel Merkley) was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Merkley and was born near Williamsburg on June 6th 1885.

Missing since April 22 when she was seen walking along No. 2 highway in an easterly direction, the body of Edna Hutchcroft, aged 16, of Cardinal, was found Tuesday morning of last week floating in the Cardinal canal two miles east of that village. A search for the girl throughout Ontario and Quebec had been prosecuted by the police. Miss Hutchcroft, who left home without visible cause, had recently been working in the works of the Canada Starch Co. at Cardinal, and is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merrick Hutchcroft, Cardinal, as well as several brothers and sisters.

With startling suddenness death came to Mrs. Alvin Merkley at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Garlough, of Williamsburg, on Monday morning, May 11, 1931, about 9.30 a m. Mrs. Merklev complained to her daughter a short time before her death of not feeling well and said she would rest in bed. Mrs. Garlough went about her household duties and in a few minutes heard a noise and on going to her mother's room found her unconscious. In about fifteen minutes and before medical aid could be summoned, Mrs. Merkley breathed her last.

Mrs. Merkley, whose maiden name was Miss Jennie Coulter, was born at Brantford, Ont., 75 years and seven months ago. On June 1st, 1877, she was married to Mr. Alvin Merkley, of Morrisburg, who predeceased her on Sept. 23rd. 1906. To this union was born two daughters and three sons, who are left to mourn. The daughters are Mrs. Henry Garlough, Williamsburg, with whom the deceased had spent the winter months, and Mrs. Andrew Barkley of Davenport. N. Y. The sons are: Howard Merkley, of Williamsburg; Harry Merkley, of Smiths Falls, and Dr. R. W. Merkley, of New York, N. Y.; also one sister, Mrs. Annie Shields of Shelburne, Ont., and one brother, Mr. William Coulter, of Knights Landing.

M. P. Buys Farm

Mr. A. C. Casselman of Prescott, M. P. for Dundas-Grenville, purchased the Ezra Summer farm, just South of Winchester, at the sale yesterday held at the law office of W. J. Cass. The price paid was $7.950. There are 75 acres, with fine large house and one of the best barns in the County.

Empire Day

The school day proceding May 24th is observed throughout British nations as Empire Day. Accordingly, a patriotic programme will be given tomorrow afternoon, beginning at two, in the Susie Annable Memorial Hall. Some handiwork of the pupils will be on display. Parents and others interested are cordially invited.

Meeting of Directors

A meeting of the directors of the M. F. Beach Mfg. Co., was held in the office of the Company here on Tuesday afternoon and the report of the Manager, Mr. F. W. Beach, was a most encouraging one. The following were elected officers, President C. A. Beach, Cornwall; Vice-President—R. G. McMaster, Kemptville; Sec'y-Treas.—N. W. Beach, Winchester; Manager—F. W. Beach, Winchester; Superintendent—C. W. Turner, Winchester. The other member of the Board of Directors are J. R. Beach and B. C. Beach of Ottawa, and G. W. Beach, Toronto. The stockholders will receive their usual dividends in August next.

Womens' Institute

A meeting of the new Executive was held Tuesday night at the home of the President, Mrs J. Singleton. Plans were made for the special meeting to be held in the Town Hall on June 12th, at 2 30 p. m. to hear Mrs. Hamm, a government speaker. Committees were appointed to look after the musical part of the program and the refreshments. Discussions took place about the coming years work and programme and a crusade was organized to see last years members who have not yet joined up for this year. The new President wishes the co-operation of all the ladies who are interested in community work. Ice cream and cake was served by the hostess.

A Bold Thief

It was a bold thief who entered the farm home of Mr. Joseph McCreary, ex-reeve of Montogue, near Smith Falls, and carried away $25.00 in cash. Mr. McCreary came home in the evening and saw a light upstairs. Then a man with a mask over his face, carrying a revolver in his hand, came down the stairs and ordered Mr. McCreary to hold up his hands and back against the wall. He then went out, but Mr. McCreary let loose his watch dog which took after the burglar. A shot at the dog seemed to have the necessary effect of changing the dog's mind, and the thief got clear away before the police at Smiths Falls could be notified. He has not yet been found, and it is thought he was a tramp. The wonderful part is that an ex-reeve and farmer should have $25. in cash in his house.

On Wednesday, May 13th, there passed to the Great Beyond, Mary A. Munroe, widow of the late David D. Munroe, at the age of 72 years. Deceased, with her late husband, has been a resident of Moose Creek for over fifty years and for the last year has been in indifferent health.

Mr. Arthur Porteous, formerly with the United Farmers of Ontario in their Stations at Winchester and Morrisburg has accepted a position as Manager and Official Candler in the newly formed egg-grading station which is being operated by Mr Hy. Bessin in the rear of his Winchester Store. Let's give genial Art a big hand and wish him luck in his new undertakings.

Rev. D. A. McPhee, parish priest, when driving his car at Cornwall on Tuesday, fell asleep at the wheel, and when he woke up was still at the wheel, but his car was at the bottom of the canal. Fortunately the canal was dry, but it was 20 ft. deep, and the car in falling did not turn over, but fell on its four wheels. The Rev. Father had a rude awakening and narrow escape, but was not seriously hurt, and his car was not much damaged.

On Tuesday of last week a special meeting of the Ontario Religious Education Council was held in Winchester Springs United Church. Mr. McInnis of Iroquois, the County President, was in chair. It has been arranged that the Township Conventions would be held during the week of June 16th to 19th, but owing to the meeting of the Baptist Association at Ottawa that week, it was decided to hold the convention the week following.

Williamsburg Township, at Morrisburg, June 23rd; Matilda Township, at Hulbert June 24th; Mountain Township, (place to be arranged,) June 25th; Winchester ownship, at Ormond, June 26th Rev. Lloyd Houlding of McPhail Baptist Church, Ottawa, will be the special speaker at each of these Conventions.

The County Convention will be held at Chesterville on Oct. 13th. An effort is being made to secure services of Rev. C. A. Myers, D. D., of Toronto for the occasion with the idea of placing special emphasis on Teacher-training.

The Montreal and Ottawa Conference of the United Church of Canada will hold their sessions this year in Sherbrooke, Que. The Conference opens on June 3, and will continue until June 9th or 10th. The lay representatives from the local Church are: Messrs. N. W. Beach and John A. Carkner. The Committees will meet on June 2nd to have their work in readiness for the opening session of Conference.

Late William Henry Barkley

William Henry Barkley, 58, formerly foreman of the City Board of Works of New Westminster for many years, died suddenly on Saturday, May 9th, at his home, 504 Columbia Street east. Born in Ontario, he went to New Westminster twenty-two years ago. Besides his wife he leaves three sons, William of Vancouver, and James and Donald at home, and one daughter, Miss Jean Barkley, at home. The funeral was held at 2. p. m. on Monday from the Columbia Funeral Service Parlors to the Fraser Cemetery. Rev. Duncan Campbell conducted the service. The late William Barkley was a resident of New Westminster, B. C., and a brother of the late Eveard Barkley of Winchester, Ont.

Oddfellows Attend Church

The Annual Church Service of Kemptville District I. O. O. F. No. 53, was held in the United Church, Winchester, on Sunday afternoon last. There was a fair turnout, all the lodges in the district being represented. The brothers met in the Oddfellows Hall and proceeded in procession to the church. There were over one hundred in the procession, and they occupied the centre pews of the church. Rev. J. A. Waddell, pastor, preached a very appropriate sermon, and the service throughout was a most impressive and inspiring one. A pleasing feature was the singing by the Oddfellows male quartette from Chesterville, who rendered two selections, which were much enjoyed. After the service the Oddfellows returned to the lodge room, when Past Master John McCormick was asked to take the chair. Resolutions expressing their gratitude and appreciation to the officials of the United Church and Church choir were passed. A very pleasing feature of this after gathering was the presentation made by Mr. McCormick, on behalf of the district, of a Past Master's Jewel, to the Past District Deputy Grand Master, Mr. Roy Annable. Mr. Annable made a feeling reply. The service throughout was one of the most enjoyable ever held in this district.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. H. Pierce, Smiths Falls was a guest of his brother, Mr. O. Pierce, for a few days this week.

Mrs. C. W. Stewart of Rockford, Ill., spent the week-end the guest of her brother, Mr. G. E. Payne.

Miss Edith Docksteader of Ottawa is spending a month with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Docksteader.

Mrs. Durwood A. Weese and Miss Weese of Hamilton are the guests of the Rev. G. Oliver and Mrs. Davies at the Rectory.

Mrs. Katherine Dickson and son, Geo. of Waddington were week end guests of the formers brother, Mr. Fred Mulloy of Maple Grove.

Miss Pauline Docksteader, Mr K. A. Cameron, and Mr. J. Armitage of Ottawa spent the week end with the formers parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Docksteader.

Mrs. W. J. Stewart was bereaved by the death of her sister, Mrs. Lorne Fraser on Wednesday morning. The funeral is being held in Martintown on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

After an absence of over 30 years from Winchester, Mrs. Findley McPherson, (nee Hester McCargar) of B. C., is renewing old acquaintances and is at present the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Wm. Johnston.

The many friends of Mrs. K. Helmer, who returned home from the Cornwall General Hospital lask week, will be pleased to know that she is rapidly regaining her strength, and is now able to move about the house some.

Miss Helen McGregor, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. McGregor of Winnipeg, Man., received her Bachelor of Arts degree in the University of Manitoba on May 14, 1931, at the age of nineteen. She is a grand daughter of the late Donald McGregor of Ormond, Ont., and grand daughter of the late Thos. Corscadden of Russell, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rennick and daughter Bessie motored to Toronto last week, and then accompanied by their daughter, Mrs Delong Preston, went on to Cleveland, Ohio, where the latter went into an hospital and underwent an operation for appendicitis. When they returned the beginning of the week, Mrs. Preston was making splendid progress. They returned home on Saturday accompanied by Mr. Preston and his two children.

Same Directors Elected

The Annual meeting of the Winchester Rink Co. was held in the Town Hall last night, the President, Mr. D. H. Weir presiding. The Financial Statement was a gratifying one, showing a balance on hand of $204.01. The property and plant is valued at $14,450. The officers and directors of 1930 were all re-elected.

Found Many Tramps

A woman living in the vicinity of Brockville telephoned to police headquarters on Thursday afternoon when she became alarmed at a large number of tramps congregated in the district to the east of North Augusta Road. Three policemen were dispatched to the scene by Acting Chief Constable Arnold Edwards and after going through the bush discovered more than 100 tramps sitting around cooking food over small fires, etc. They were promptly dispersed and given orders to proceed on their way. The constables experienced no trouble in breaking up the gathering.

Dairymen Meet

A very interesting and instructive meeting was held in the Inkerman Cheese Factory on Tuesday evening, May 12th. A number of prominent men were present including Prof. Shutt of Guelph Agricultural College, Mr. Mitchel and Cabbys, instructors for the neighboring districts as well as Mr. Bolton, the local instructor. A large number of Cheese makers were present, some coming a great distance as well as nearly all the patrons. Mr. George Martin of Hallville acted as chairman. Short addresses were given by instructors Mitchel. Cabby and Bolton, followed by a lengthly and very instructive one by Prof. Shutt. He dealt with the care of milk, also the cleaning of cans by the patrons and the cleaning of all factory utensils with steam and asked everyone, patron and maker, to work together for the betterment of the cheese industry.

Mr. P. McIntosh of Winchester Springs moved a note of thanks for the speakers which was seconded by Mr. J. Cameron of South Mountain. The evening was brought to a close by the serving of a very fine lunch, which consisted of ice cream cake, sandwiches and coffee by the cheese maker, Mr. G. Clark.

King Finds Recreation In Pool and Billiards

London.—King George is fond of billiards although better still he likes a game of pool. He is often to be found during the two hours after dinner, playing a game of billiards or pool with a friend or one of his staff.

The King, however, would be among the first to admit that he is by no means a good player. Recently he received the Australian Walter Lindrum, the foremost exponent of English billiards, and showed a great interest in his feats. Lindrum said the King displayed an extraordinary knowledge of the delicacies of the game.

The Duke of York is said to be the best billiard player of the royal family. He plays left-handed as in most other games. The Duke of Gloucester can give his brother a good game but is not quite so consistent.

America Inhabited Long Ages Ago

Early Man in Arizona Lived in Pleistocene Age — New Evidence

Cleveland, O.—Discovery in Arizona of a "butcher shop" more than 20,000 years old was reported at the recent meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Dr. Harold J. Cook, of the Cook Museum of Natural History, Agate, Nebraska.

Bones of the huge elephant-like mammoth that had been hacked with flint knives by the ancient butchers, and some of the knives themselves, have been found in Yuma County, Arizona, by Perry and Harold Anderson, Dr. Cook said. The knives buried with the bones show men must have lived there at the same time as the mammoths, Dr. Cook believes. Some of the mammoth bones showed evidence of having been hacked while still fresh, or tough and green. A bison bone evidently used in flaking off particles of flint in making the stone knives also was discovered.

"Some of the bison and mammoth bones found here also appear to have been gnawed," Dr. Cook said.

IN PLEISTOCENE AGE.

The dry Arizona plateau where the bones and knives were discovered was a well watered flood plain when the ancient butcher shop was in operation, Dr. Cook explained. Streams were flowing across it from the mountains toward the east. All evidence indicates the flood plain existed in the pleistocene age, which extended from about 1,000,000 years ago to within 20,000 years of the present. There is no probability that the flood basin is more recent than that, he declared.

The flint knives were similar to those found at Colorado, Texas and Torrington, Wyoming. They are well made indicating their makers were comparatively far advanced toward civilization.

"The constantly increasing evidence of this character makes it appear that early man not only existed at a much earlier date in America than has been, until recently commonly believed, but that he had reached a relatively high state of advancement, at least in certain directions, in pleistocene time in this country," Dr. Cook said.

Britain and India

Calcutta Englishman: A huge concession was made in 1917 on certain conditions. Since that date Great Britain has gone on giving one concession after another, although the original conditions were never observed by Indian politicians, and as time has passed have been totally jettisoned. Had the abandonment of the conditions laid down in the preamble of the Government of India Act been followed by political peace and prosperity, there would have been much to say in favor of abandonment, but the state of India during the last ten years and the alluring prospect of a "civil war for a little time" held out by Mr. Gandhi suggest that perhaps a mistake has been made in making so many advances without security.

Plans Flight Over Himalayas

Survey of Sinkiang for Motor Routes May Restore Trade of Huge Province to China

Shanghai, China.—Seven British motor trucks have arrived at Tientsin and are to be shipped by rail to Kweihua, after which they will strike out on a 2,000-mile trip into Sinkiang to prepare landing fields for a British survey airplane which will fly from the south, over the Himalaya Mountains late in July, and begin an eighteen months' period of aerial exploration.

The leader of the expedition is Lieut. Col. James Stewart, who has obtained permission for the expedition from Nanking, has been assured of the co-operation of the Sinkiang Provincial Government, and has been to England to obtain permission of the British Government to fly from Rawalpindi over the Karakoram Range to Yarkand.

This will mean crossing at a height of 13,400 feet. On his return to India by plane eighteen months later, the Himalayas will be crossed at a height of 18,500 feet, and new passes will be photographed from the air.

The motor trucks, leaving from the China coast, will first prepare a landing base at Yarkand, and then proceed to Urumchi to prepare another field. The aerial surveys will cover about 60,000 square miles of the 400,000 square miles which comprises the Province of Sinkiang, formerly known as Chinese Turkestan.

The flight from Rawadpindi, it is expected, will be made in four and a half hours. The trip by camel caravan now takes forty-two days. The motor trucks should reach Yarkand in five weeks. The caravan trip from there to Peking consumes from three to five months.

This trip is believed to have a great significance politically and economically, and to be a British step assisting China to combat the steady Russian absorption of the trade of Sinkiang. By virtually encircling Sinkiang with the Turk-Sib Railway, Russia has brought Urumchi vastly closer to Moscow than it ever was to Peiping, and the incessant civil wars and banditry in China between Peiping and this "far northwest" has served to cripple trade to the point that the old caravan routes are deserted and now almost obliterated.

If to Sinkiang can be given a quick and relatively short trade outlet through India, Russia's economic domination of the huge province can be checked, and if the expedition proves the feasibility of a motor road from Tientsin into the heart of Sinkiang, China may again renew the bonds with the now almost lost dependency.

Zeppelin To Meet Wilkins at Pole

Friedrichshafen, Ger.—Dr. Hugo Eckener, master of the Graf Zeppelin, recently announced that he will start for the north pole in his big ship about the middle of July to meet Sir Herbert Wilkins, who is going there in a submarine.

This attempt to make a contact with Sir Hubert at or near the pole, he said, should clarify the question as to whether the airship is the most appropriate means for landing polar expeditions near this destination, picking them up later and providing them with supplies during their stay in the arctic.

The Graf will carry 45 persons on the arctic flight, including Lieut.-Commander Smith, U.S.N., Professor Samolovitch, who was abroad the Krassin when it rescued the Nobile expedition, and Lady Drummond Hay.

Because of her greater speed, the Graf will not leave Franz Joseph Land until Sir Hubert's submarine Nautilus, is within two days of the pole.

French Police Put on Trail Of Truant School Children

Truant schoolchildren of France will tremble when they read a circular which has been addressed by the Minister of War to the National Gendarmerie. Henceforth, writes the Paris correspondent of "The London Daily Telegaph," it will be the duty of every member of that force as he goes on his rounds to look out, not only for housebreakers and poachers and motorists who are breaking the law, but also for boys and girls who ought to be at school and are not.

The circular, which would be regarded by any collector of literary efforts of this kind as a masterpiece, is explicit. "Gendarmes should display great tact and discretion," it is explained, "intervening only in cases of deliberate absenteeism and not in cases of brief accidental absences. Without going out of their way gendarmes will question children of school age whom they meet during school hours, asking them what their motives for absence are and reporting to the brigade commander."

When it has been established beyond all doubt that a genuine offender has been caught, the commander is to prepare a summons. Copies of this, and also of the relevant evidence, must be forwarded to the Prefect and the chief school inspector of the department.

Asparagus Time

It wasn't so very long ago that asparagus was considered a luxury, but now nearly every gardener who boasts any kind of a garden has his little asparagus bed, from which such thick, juicy stalks spring as quickly as the mushroom.

The housekeeper is wise who uses seasonable vegetables when they are cheapest to bring down the high cost of living. They are always best when cheapest, too, because they are cheapest when they are the most plentiful. Of course, coming right from the garden to the table, they are their best and taste very different to the vegetables which have been standing in the air all day long.

One can prepare asparagus so many different ways that it can appear in some form each day throughout the season without monotony.

Cream of Asparagus

Here is a place where the tougher stalks can be used from which the tops have been removed. To make a delicious soup cut a bunch of asparagus stalks into one-inch pieces. Boil until tender and put through a sieve; add to it and the liquid that goes with it a quart of milk. Season with salt and pepper. Heat, then pour slowly into it two tablespoons of flour creamed with the same amount of butter, stirring constantly. Allow to come to boil and serve with croutons.

Asparagus and Peas

Cook canned peas and asparagus in separate saucepans, drain and use two cups of asparagus tips and the tender part of the stalks, cut in half-inch lengths, to this add one can of peas, a quarter cup thin cream and butter, pepper and salt.

Boiled Asparagus

Perhaps it is best served all by itself either with a white, rich sauce or a dressing of melted butter and seasoning after it is cooked tender in water. Never cook it longer than the required time to make it tender. Serve without breaking the stalks. A good way to cook it to avoid breaking the tips is to stand a bunch on end in a dish. Since the tips do not need much cooking fill the dish with water up to three-quarters of the way, and the steam will cook the tips. It should always be boiled in salted water. After it is carefully removed to a platter melt one tablespoon butter, to which add one cup bread crumbs. Stir over the fire until brown then cover asparagus on plate.

Asparagus With Eggs

Cut asparagus in 2-inch parts and boil in salted water till tender, drain, put in a casserole, sprinkle with melted butter, seasoning and add 3 well-beaten eggs, bake until brown in a hot oven.

TWILIGHT HOUR STORY

About Wee Chicks and Other Little Friends

I'm sure you remember last week we named one of the little chicks. We called her Squatty, didn't we? Because she was so short and fat and had such funny short bill. Then, of course, we named Jimmie Chick a long time ago, didn't we?

Well, how about the other two? Since they had grown so much bigger they certainly did look very different for, do you know, one of the other two sisters left wasn't like Squatty one bit. She had a long neck and long legs and, instead of her beak being short like Squatty's, it was long and pointed. She was a little cross, too, and bossed all the others around. How would it be if we call her Bridget? She ate just as much, even more, sometimes than Squatty, who was so fat, but she just stayed thin. I wonder why that is, don't you? Are you fatter than your little sister? Or perhaps you are the thin kind. Well, anyway, we have only one chicky left, haven't we? We haven't said anything about it, but you know I wanted to leave the best till the last for Oh, she was a lovely chicken. She wasn't too fat or too thin. She was just right, and she had such a pretty head and then she had especially beautiful white feathers. I don't know where she got all that beauty, but there she was. Mamma Lady loved to show her off and now she picked her up and said to Billy, "Isn't she a beauty? and son, besides being so beautiful her body is made just right, so she will lay far more eggs than Bridget or Squatty, perhaps more than both of them put together. How is that for a chicken. In fact, Billy, she is such a fine chicken I believe we will show her too, along with Jimmie, at the show when she grows a little bigger."

Billy looked at her with admiring eyes, then said, "Well, we will need to have a pretty nice name for her. I tell you, Mammy, she's so white let us call her "Lily, white as a lily."

"That is a fine name, I'm sure she'll be a good chick with a name like that," smiled Mamma. "But now I'm sure I know a little boy who is very, very sleepy, for he has done so much to-day. How about your good old bed that has been wondering where you have been for such a long time?"

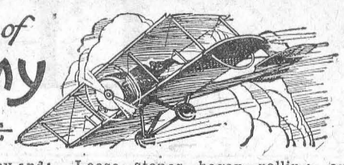
The ADVENTURES of CAPTAIN JIMMY and his Dog SCOTTIE



What came before: Captain Jimmy and Scottie became lost in the darkness while flying over the Chinese war zone. On landing, they are captured by Chinese bandits. Captain Jimmy escapes and plans to set free the remainder of his party.

Cautiously I moved toward the camp. The fires had burned to embers and now and then flamed up fitfully. Certainly the outlaws wouldn't be looking for an escaped prisoner prowling around their tents at that hour.

Rolled near the largest of the fires, lay the figure of a man. Carefully I crawled nearer. A small twig broke under my knee and I stopped, motionless, not even breathing for a minute or two.

As I wiggled closer I could make out his features — Sure enough, it was poor old Fu Hsu (Foo Soo) the interpreter. He was cramped and so cold and scared. I held up a finger in a warning, and worked myself along to a point where I could cut his bonds with a jack knife.

"All asleep?" I whispered.

He nodded. Quietly we crept away toward the cool spring. The fresh, cold water revived him wonderfully. He drank as though he never intended to stop. Then I questioned him.

"What happened to Scottie? The dog. Bow-wow?"

"Blandit hit him on the head—dog he bite blandit. Tie dog to tree. No idea where doggie."

"And the Colonel?" I asked.

"Colonel, he blandit, now. He Cook," whispered the interpreter.

"He'll probably make a better bandit than a Colonel."

Meanwhile, a plan had been forming in my mind. Quietly we picked our way to where the Burros were hitched. We tied a dozen of them together so they would lead in a line. The other burros we cut loose, so it would take time for the bandits to catch them and get on our trail.

Taking the halter of the lead burro, I headed down the valley that led through the cleft in the mountains. Fu brought up the rear with two more burros—their lead ropes tied around his waist for fear he might drop it! He was the most hopeless Chinese I ever saw.

Loose stones began rolling, and the burros instead of walking on their tip toes, seemed to stamp along on their heels. You know how loud everything sounds when you want to be quiet, and it certainly seemed as if the noise we were making must wake the whole camp.

Finally we came to the narrow defile. Beyond that notch there was a bit of a plateau. It was here that the bandit guard would be.

The bandits had just risen to their feet at the sound of our burros coming through the pass. Plainly they were puzzled. Had we come riding out into them like a whirlwind, they would have understood, and started firing on us. But here was a string of burros peacefully wending their way into the light of their camp fire.

Leaning forward from the neck of my burro, I pricked the last of the string with my jack-knife, With a shrill cry he jumped against the next one ahead, who in turn rushed the next. In a moment they were in headlong flight.

They scattered right and left among the bandits, and when a burro failed to bowl one over, the rope caught his feet and tripped him. Then, in the midst of the uproar, we dashed out yelling. The rout was complete. We just waited long enough to grab a rifle and went on a mad scramble down the mountain side.

Mile after mile we rode at breakneck pace. Far back up the valley the whole bandit camp were in hot pursuit. When my burro showed signs of slackening speed, I thumped him in the ribs and off he went again amid a shower of dust and loose stones.

Rounding a corner we came suddenly to a railroad track, where five or six decrepit old freight cars stood, and a rickety old engine. We could hear the hoofs of the outlaws' burros pounding down the valley as we reached the cars. I leaned over and grabbed Fu by the slack of his pants. As I heaved to pull him in, a dark body came hurtling in, caught me amidships, and over we all went in a pile on the floor.

Chinese Youth Illiterate

Shanghai, China.—Though there are 130,000 children of school age in Peiping, formerly Peking, China's ancient capital, only 11,000 of them can read and write, according to a report sent to the Nanking Government by Wang Chieh-hsia, director of the Peiping Educational Bureau. Mr. Wang asks for largely increased appropriations to establish more primary and secondary schools in the city.

At present, according to the report, the schools of Peiping can accommodate only 20,000 children, and at this rate of progress only very slow improvement can be made in reducing the percentage of illiteracy.

This Peiping report is not characteristic of the illiteracy and the school problem in China. Peiping has for centuries been the principal seat of Chinese culture and learning, and has far more schools, in relation to the population, than any other city except the great treaty ports like Shanghai, Canton, Tientsin and Hankow.

ONTARIO

A Message from the Premier

on the subject of

Highways and Highway Safety

Probably no single development in the history of our province has had more widespread influence upon the lives and habits of our citizens than the automobile.

Ontario was one of the first provinces to recognize the importance of this modern means of transportation, and first, also to adopt a progressive policy of road building and road maintenance.

Today, of Ontario's 72,000 miles of roads, more than 38,000 miles are improved gravel, 7,000 miles are paved, and 69 per cent of all roads are surfaced.

These roads are not only a remarkable convenience, but, as well, they are a responsibility. The seriousness of the responsibility is evidenced by the fact that in Ontario last year, 524 persons lost their lives through automobile accidents. All available statistics would seem to indicate that most of these accidents were avoidable—and were caused by either thoughtlessness or wilful violations of the common-sense rules of the road.

The Ontario Department of Highways is about to publish in the press of Ontario, a series of educational advertisements, in which an effort will be made to keep drivers and pedestrians alike, alive to the necessity for the continuous exercise of care, courtesy and common-sense in the use of our highways. Suggestions made in these announcements will be, in effect, a digest of all the information gathered from every section of the world which has been found to be of assistance to drivers and pedestrians in avoiding highway accidents and making these same highways of inestimably greater value and benefit to every citizen.

The first of the announcements referred to will be published at an early date. Your attention is invited thereto, and your co-operation in making our streets and highways safe is earnestly solicited.

Geo. Henry

Premier.

People are needlessly mean to each other. We would all be better off if gentler in our manners. Occasionally a man must be rough, but as a very general rule gentleness is easier than a fight.

"The real fool is he who does not know himself," said Oscar Wilde. . . . I have always believed everyone knows himself, and lies when he says he does not.

Those odd persons who believe they are superior to the plain people, and struggle unsuccessfully for years to prove it, have a very poor opinion of us. Their formula of abuse is always about the same. One of them lately wrote: "Another eager human soul on the threshold longing to find some suitable high work in the world, all unwitting of the fact that ideal strivings are everywhere despised and discouraged." . . Clarence Whistler, a real Art man who could at least paint pictures which sold readily, and afforded him a living, said there never was an artistic period; never an art-living nation.

I have observed that the more lenient the world is with criminals, the bolder and more impudent criminals become.

In reading I often encounter letters from famous people. They usually are dull, though exploited by the magazines or newspapers in which I see them. Letters have not been marked in my life as a means of imparting wisdom. I find conversation more valuable. A large per cent of it is foolish, but in the steady stream a jewel is frequently encountered. My objection to print is that it is monotonous big talk from persons on parade trying to attract favor by flattering the prejudices of prejudiced persons. It is in conversation one finds real opinions.

Oscar Wilde, most tremendous of critics of plain people, once made an admission I thought surprising. He wrote: "One who is entirely ignorant of the modes of Art in its revelation, or the moods of thought in its progress; of the pomp of the Latin line, or the richer music of the voweled Greek; of Tuscan sculpture or Elizabethan song, may yet be full of the very sweetest wisdom." Most of the really important things in the world have been accomplished by men who knew nothing of Tuscan sculpture, voweled Greek or Latin line.

"WHATEVER WILL I DO?"

Jimmy had been ailing for a couple of days . . . but she didn't think it was serious — till this afternoon . . . she called the doctor . . . hospital tomorrow . . . just a minor operation, but it couldn't wait.

Whatever would she do? She must be with Jimmy . . . but there was the baby too. If mother were only there . . . but a letter couldn't reach mother till late tomorrow.

Then she thought of the telephone. In two minutes she was speaking to her mother. Yes, she could catch the evening train — would be there at 8 in the morning.

What a relief! Now she could go about her preparations for the morrow. The telephone had made everything easy. And the cost of the call had been less than a dollar.

Evening rates on "Anyone" (station-to-station) calls begin at 7 p.m. Night rates begin at 8.30 p.m. Just give "Long Distance" the number you want — it speeds up the service.

Choose Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks for low first cost and unsurpassed economy

THE economy of using Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks is an actual dollars-and-cents economy that shows up, month after month, on the balance sheet. It starts with a purchase price that is one of the lowest in the market for a complete unit. It continues throughout Chevrolet's long life with an operating cost so low that it will give you a new conception of truck efficiency.

Consider, for example, the cost-records of leading national organizations who use large fleets of Chevrolets. They prove that no other trucks of equal capacity give any better gasoline, oil or tire mileage than Chevrolet. That the cost of keeping a Chevrolet in satisfactory running order is exceptionally low. That Chevrolet trucks are good for tens of thousands of miles of dependable low-cost service.

Today, Chevrolet's proved economy is available to truck users in every hauling field. For Canadian body builders offer a new line of quality bodies for the three Chevrolet truck chassis.

SOME CONSOLATION

There is always consolation in the thought that "Times are not so bad but that they might be worse," and there is also consolation in the thought that the trade and business depression has reached a place where it cannot go much lower. There are few, whether business man or farmer, who, two years ago, would have predicted that wheat would sell for 50c a bus., cheese at less than 10c per lb., butter at less than 20c per lb., and so on. That, two years ago, was looked upon as an impossibility. Still we have reached that limit in trade depression and low prices and yet the people are apparently no worse off than they were two years. The Renfrew farmer, Mr. Frank Morris, quoted as saying "that if farmers cannot keep their heads above water, even during these hard times, it is their own fault" may refer to the farmer who has no mortgage on his farm or stock. The farmer who has interest to pay on farm, as well as taxes, and keeps his head above water at this time is a hero, and an exceptional man. It should be no trouble for the farmer who has his land and stock paid for to be able to keep his head high, and smile at hard times. And so might the business man and the mechanic, as well as the laborer, if they would pause to take stock and buy according to their means, live within their means. To the man who has lost his job, who is out of work, or who is handicapped with sickness or other trouble, there is always the dark and discouraging outlook. It simply can't be helped under the present state of society. The time may come when all deserving cases will be looked after by the state. But that time is not yet and until such a time does come all we can do is to make the best of conditions as we find them.

A MILLION-MILLION YEARS HENCE

St. Thomas Times

To those who sometimes express the wish that they might return to life one hundred years hence to see what the world looks like, the prophecy of Sir James Jeans that it will last for about one million million years makes their wish seem a very trivial thing.

It is only twelve thousand years since mankind was living in the stone age. It was only after the advent of the steam age in the early part of last century that scientific progress began to make any headway. To-day steam has very largely been displaced by electricity. And electricity itself is only in its infancy. Scientists do not even know what it is. To-morrow, electricity may be a back number. When man harnesses the atom—and he is trying hard every day—the world may be completely revolutionized. A single atom may drive the new Cunard liner across the Atlantic in a few hours. Human beings may be projected in steel cases from here to Australia. All present day machinery may be as obsolete as the implements of primitive human beings.

Millions of years before the Jeans' prophecy is put to the test inhabitants of Earth may take trips to Mars and other planets and vice versa. When we get there the Martians may have something to show us that we do not dream. Perhaps they will discover these secrets before we do and surprise us by dropping in on us one day.

It all staggers imagination. Those who believe in reincarnation must rejoice at the prospects.

CANADA'S GROWTH IN POPULATION

The taking of a census in Canada this summer recalls the fact that it was in 1665 that the first modern census was taken in the world, and it was taken in Canada. It was the 18th century before Europe followed the lead of the Dominion of Canada and in 1790 the United States took its first census. The population of Canada in 1665 was 3,215 souls, in 1700 it had passed 15,000 and in 1763 when Canada was ceded to Great Britain there were 70,000 people. The 19th century was begun with between 250,000 and 260,000 people and by 1901 there were 5,371,315 residents. In 1911 the figures were 7,206,643, in 1921, 8,788,483 and to-day it is estimated the total figure will reach 10,500,000. In 1921 over one million were reported as not being able to speak the English language and it is expected the number has grown now. These figures are of interest:

1608, Population of Quebec—60.
1641, Resident Population of Canada—240.
1665, New France, 3,215.
1667, New France, 3,918.
1698, New France, 15,355.
1739, New France, 21,701.
1765, Canada, 69,810.
1784, Canada, 113,012.
1814, Upper Canada, Ontario, 95,000; Lower Canada, Quebec 335,000.

The third racial group in Canada is now the Ukrainian, English and French being the first and second.

THOSE WHO COMMIT SUICIDE

The suicide reported from Ottawa last week when a man of good education, sound judgment, splendid moral character, looked upon as a Christian example, and one selected by the rulers of the land to dispense justice in fairness and mercy, is one of the very strange and unaccountable incidents in this hurried life that causes one to stop and think. It was in this case undoubtedly a deliberate and pre-meditated act. It is difficult indeed to try to analyze or describe the mental attitude of one who is driven to an act that is beyond recall. An act, though it places him beyond the censure, and even scorn, of former friends and acquaintances, yet places a load of shame, humiliation and remorse on the shoulders of those who were supposed to be nearest and dearest to him. Some say that anyone who commits suicide is a coward. Not necessarily. Many a brave man, who would face any dangers for a friend or those dear to him, has deliberately taken his own life to relieve those same dear ones of responsibilities, and very often himself of most terrible mental torture. It is a pity that records left by suicides are not made public. There were no doubt strong reasons that led the Ottawa magistrate to take his own life. Those reasons will never, in all probability, be made public. Anyway, the man who deliberately takes his own life is taking an awful chance, but just what, well—

YOUTHS' TROUBLES

Ottawa is talking about imposing a license on all owners of bicycles. A lady in Morrisburg wants the Council to prohibit the children riding their little wagons or using roller skates on the sidewalks. In Winchester someone protested against the boys playing marbles on the sidewalks. Altogether the youth of our land are having a hard time of it. The dangers of the highways are too many to permit the children to use them with their wagons or skates, and a few old ladies refuse to be annoyed by stepping aside to allow the noisy little ones to have any freedom on the sidewalks. One sometimes wonders if the average "grown-up" person ever stops to reflect of the time when they were children, and of the many unkind as well as unnecessary instructions they were subjected to. Our children are the nations only real asset, only real hope for the future, and yet with too many they receive so little consideration that fully one half of them never reach manhood or womanhood.

SUMMER HOMES
should have this FIRE PROTECTION

FAR from every hope of aid if a blaze takes hold, the inflammable construction of the average summer home makes it a source of danger and anxiety.

Minimize the fire hazard by lining inside walls and ceilings with inexpensive Gyproc Wallboard that does not burn.

This building material is made from gypsum rock into sheets 4 to 10 feet long, 4 feet wide and 3/8 of an inch thick. It nails and cuts as easily as lumber and with minimum waste.

Find out from your dealer how inexpensive Gyproc is; how easy to erect. Ask him for full information about its application or request a direction sheet from him.

Besides being fire-resistant, Gyproc has structural strength and insulation value. It is also draught and vermin-proof.

By panelling, you can save the expense of decoration, yet Gyproc is an excellent base for Alabastine, Gyptex or wallpaper.

BERRYHOLM POULTRY FARM
"THE HOME OF BETTER POULTRY."
Baby Chicks, Brooded Chicks, Custom Hatching

Twenty thousand is the number of chicks that we have placed in Dundas this year and twenty thousand more is about the number yet to go out from our farm. A good many of these are booked but can as yet supply either Rocks or Leghorns any time in May or June.

LET US TAKE THE RISK

Let us brood them for you for the first week, over the danger period. We have the proper equipment for this work and at one week will give you chicks as large as chicks at two weeks brooded in the ordinary way. These are proving more popular each year. Over half our chicks are going out as week olds this year. We would like to have you come and see them whether you buy or not.

Prices of Day Old Chicks as follows:

In lots of	May 13th and 20th	May 27th and June 3rd	June 10th and 17th
100 or more	$14.00 per hundred	$13.00 per hundred	$12.00 per hundred
500 or more	$13.00 per hundred	$12.00 per hundred	$11.00 per hundred
1000 or more	$12.00 per hundred	$11.00 per hundred	$10.00 per hundred

Week Old Chicks $3.00 over the above prices.

Lone Scouts throughout the province will be gratified to hear that, on the nomination of the Chief Scout for Canada (His Excellency the Earl of Bessborough), a very well-known and outstanding man has been elected to the Presidency of the Canadian General Council of the Boy Scouts Association. This is no other than E. W. Beatty, Esq., K.C., LL.D., etc., the President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who for many years has taken a great interest in Scouting activities in this country. The fact that such outstanding men as this are pleased to associate themselves with our movement is a further proof of public recognition of the value of Scout training, and we have every reason to be proud of the fact that we are members of the Great Brotherhood of Scouts.

Recently a very interesting Lone Scout meeting was held at Markham, when Scoutmaster Don Hutchison of the 2nd Troop, together with Mr. Edgar Jones, Provincial Field Secretary, visited the "Lonies" in that town. The local hotel proprietor kindly placed a room at the disposal of the Scouts, and the evening was occupied with the playing of games and instruction, and Mr. Jones had his lantern with him and entertained the boys with pictures of Scouting activities.

In the course of the evening a Patrol was formed and officially recognized, which is to be known as the Peewit Patrol, and Scout Muir North was elected Patrol Leader. It was tentatively arranged to organize a joint meeting, some time in the near future, of the Markham, Stouffville and Unionville Lonies. We congratulate the Peewit Patrol and wish them all good luck.

Last week we told you about the Artificial Respiration Campaign, which is being carried on by the Scouts all over Ontario during this month, and we told you how to go about obtaining instruction on this subject. Recently "The Globe" published an editoral about this matter, commending the Boy Scouts Association on their organization of this campaign, and for the benefit of those Lone Scouts who are unable to obtain the information elsewhere, we outline below the standard method of applying Schafer's Method of artificial respiration.

1. Lay the patient on his belly, one arm extended directly overhead, the other arm bent at elbow and with the face turned outward and resting on hand and forearm, so that the nose and mouth are free for breathing.

2. Kneel straddling the patient's thighs with your knees placed at such a distance from the hip bones as will allow you to assume the first position, which is as follows:

Knees on floor opposite the hips of patient. Body slightly bent forward, palms of hands on the small of back with fingers resting on the ribs, the little finger just touching the lowest rib, with the thumb and fingers in a natural position, and the tips of the fingers just out of sight. Arms rigid.

3. With arms held straight, swing forward slowly so that the weight of your body is gradually brought to bear upon the patient. The shoulder should be directly over the heel of the hand at the end of the forward swing. Do not bend your elbows. This operation should take about two seconds.

4. Now immediately swing backward so as to completely remove the pressure.

5. After two seconds swing forward again. Thus repeat deliberately twelve to fifteen times a minute the double movement of compression and release, a complete respiration in four or five seconds.

6. Continue artificial respiration without interruption until natural breathing is restored, if necessary, four hours or longer, or until a physician declares the patient is dead.

7. As soon as this artificial respiration has been started and while it is being continued, an assistant should loosen any tight clothing about the patient's neck, chest or waist. Keep the patient warm. Do not give any liquids whatever by mouth until the patient is fully conscious.

8. To avoid strain on the heart when the patient revives, he should be kept lying down and not allowed to stand or sit up. If the doctor has not arrived by the time the patient has revived, he should be given some stimulant, such as one teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in a small glass of water or a hot drink of coffee or tea, etc. The patient should be kept warm.

9. Resuscitation should be carried on at the nearest possible point to where the patient received his injuries. He should not be moved from this point until he is breathing normally of his own volition, and then moved only in a lying position. Should it be necessary, due to extreme weather condition, etc., to move the patient before he is breathing normally, resuscitation should be carried on during the time that he is being moved.

10. A brief return of natural respiration is not a certain indication for stopping the resucitation. Not infrequently the patient after a temporary recovery of respiration, stops breathing again. The patient must be watched and, if natural breathing stops, artificial respiration should be resumed at once.

11. In carrying out resuscitation, it may be necessary to change the operator. This change must be made without losing the rhythm of respiration. By this procedure no confusion results at the time of change of operator and a regular rhythm is kept up.

Important Points

The most important points in connection with artificial respiration are:

1. Start artificial respiration as quickly as possible after the accident.
2. Know Prone Pressure Method perfectly.
3. Keep the patient warm.
4. Carry out artificial respiration until the patient breathes or there are definite signs of death.

(Success has been achieved after 8 hours of effort.)

5. Transport the patient to home or hospital in a lying-down position and put him to bed.

If the above method is carried out by trained persons after an accident, there is no doubt that many persons will be alive to enjoy next Christmas that but for the action of artificial respiration would have passed on.

"Lone E."

Young Swimmers Are Given Warning

Lifeguards are now preparing for their summer work at the various watering places and with the swimming season in the offing, parents are warned to see that their children are first acquainted with the depth of the water in which they intend to bathe or swim.

Children, these life-guards point out, often seek the first swimming place available when the weather becomes warm and plunge into the water without knowing its depth or currents.

"Be sure the children know the water first," these lifeguards warn. "Don't let your children take chances and now that warmer weather is on its way and the swimming season not far distant, parents should do all possible in seeing that the toll of life due to drownings is kept at a minimum."

Ontario Berry Crop

Northern Ontario has other sources of revenue than its farm lands and rich mineral deposits. One of these is the crop of blueberries, which grow bountifully in that part of the country. This year about 140,000 bushels were shipped from northern Ontario to Toronto and other centers. During the height of the season as many as 1,100 baskets were shipped daily from North Bay by express. While principally famous for mining, northern Ontario is also a very productive mixed farming area, and has great resources in forests and water power.—"Canada Week by Week."

20-Storey Building in Paris Has 10 Floors Under Ground

Paris has no skyscrapers and the Versailles authorities have recently banned a project for a building less than 100 feet high as being too lofty for its classic landscape. Yet Paris has a building twenty stories high, although few people know it, writes a correspondent of "The Christian Science Monitor." Half of its twenty stories, it is true, are underground and the rest have such low ceilings that the building does not loom very high against the horizon. Still, there is no denying it it is a twenty-storey building. It is the structure which houses the archives of the Cour des Comptes.

German Production of Paper Shows Heavy Decline in 1930

German production of paper in 1930 was adversely affected generally—newsprint production perhaps less than other lines, although the latter attained only 539,500 metric tons in 1930 as against 556,000 tons in 1929. This a 3 per cent. lorr, compared with a decrease estimated at between 15 and 20 per cent. in sales of refined paper.

The aggregate paper production in 1930 was 7 per cent. less than in 1929, while board output shows a loss of 6 per cent., according to figures compiled by the Central Paper and Pulp Industry in Berlin. Paper production totaled 1,961,394 tons, as against 2,112,500 in 1929, while the board output amounted to 401,487 tons, a loss of 25,513 tons.—U.S. Commerce Reports.

A Champion Needed

Manitoba Free Press (Lib): The question of the deportation of British citizens from Canada—ruthless, inconsiderate, brutal ejection of our own flesh and blood for the crime of economic failure—is again before the attention of the public both of Canada and Great Britain. Is there no voice to be raised in defence of these people who were invited and urged to come to this country, and who came with the hope and expectation of making homes for themselves?

Sunday School Lesson

May 31. Lesson IX—Jesus in Gethsemane—Luke 22: 39-54. Golden Text—Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me; nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done. —Luke 22: 42.

ANALYSIS.

I. The Agony on the Mount of Olives, 22: 39-46.

II. The Arrest, 22: 47-54.

I. The Agony on the Mount of Olives, 22: 39-46.

What is meant by saying that Jesus went, "as his custom was," to the Mount of Olives? It might be that he was wont to retreat thither for prayer and meditation, but more probably it was not safe for him to sleep in the city. Jesus did not refuse to die when the time came, but he refused to be assassinated before his hour. Whether he slept in the open air or with friends, perhaps at Bethany, is not quite certain.

The disciples are to pray that they enter not into "temptation." We are reminded of the conclusion of the Lord's Prayer. The word translated "temptation" seems to mean rather "fiery trial," such a searching test as Peter underwent when accused of being a disciple, or as many Christians underwent in times of persecution. How do we know the words of Jesus' prayer? The disciples, apparently were asleep. Who, then, overheard the prayer of Jesus? The only possible person seems to be the young man of Mark 15: 51, whom some have supposed to be Mark himself. This is interesting guess-work, but we cannot tell. The prayer itself is reminiscent of two other passages: First, the question, "Are ye able to drink of the cup that I drink?" Matt. 20: 22. Second, the petition in the Lord's Prayer, "Thy will be done."

Why should the disciples fall asleep through "grief"? v. 45. Grief tends to keep people awake. No doubt the disciples may have been more or less aware of the storm that was about to burst over their heads, but it looks as if "from grief" was put in by the Evangelist as some sort of excuse. It is, on the whole, more likely that the disciples, assuming that Jesus proposed to spend the night on the Mount of Olives and to sleep there himself, had simply lain down in the ordinary way, and fallen asleep. What was it that caused the great distress of Jesus? We are very much out of our depth when we attempt to define the thoughts and feelings of Jesus at this time.

We may not know, we cannot tell
What pains he had to bear.

We can but indicate some of the elements which may have entered into his desperate distress No doubt Jesus, who was but some thirty years old, may have shared man's natural shrinking from death, and the death to which he must look forward was one peculiarly painful and normally very slow. But others before and since have faced a painful death bravely and quietly, and we may be sure that this does not account for Jesus' "Agony." It may well have come to Jesus with overwhelming horror that he, a Jew, the lover of his people, was to be executed by the Romans. Better far, perhaps, that he might die like the prophets at the hands of his own people. Moreover, death by crucifixion, the "hanging upon a tree," seemed to bring with it the curse of the Law, and therefore of God, the Divine Author of the Law. Could he really be the Son of God, if God allowed this to befall him? Again, if he were handed over to the Romans, it would mean that he had failed. His religious revolution, symbolized by the cleansing of the Temple, would have collapsed, and he was to be done to death as another political fanatic, misunderstood, contemptuously removed.

In the dark, dark hour of Gethsemane we may see "desperate tides of the whole world's anguish" (and the whole world's sin "forced through the channels of a single heart." It was usual for men to linger two or three days upon the Cross. It has been said that Jssus died quickly because his heart was broken. Finally, it must be remembered that Jesus walked by faith, as we also are called to do. His arrest and death, just when he seemed to be succeeding, must have been utterly baffling to faith. It is easy for us after the event to see how, through his death, he triumphed, but we must not assume that this was easy for him to see. Jesus is set before us, in the epistle to the Hebrews, as the great example of faith; the leader of the faithful. His faith in God was tested to the uttermost, as alone he faced absolute disaster. We dare not think what it would have meant for the world if his faith had failed, but it held firm.

II. The Arrest, 22: 47-54.

Luke says that chief priests and elders came to arrest Jesus, but they would surely have recognized him, and there would have been no need for the traitor's kiss. The arrest was more probably effected, as Mark indicates, by servants. Exactly what happened is not clear. There seems to have been some sort of a scuffle, but Jesus did not attempt to escape arrest. It is rather surprising to find one at least of the disciples armed, but Jesus knew that "two swords" would be of no avail, once Pilate was invoked.

European Lines Stress Faster, Quieter Travel

London.—Higher speed, new long-distance routes and greater silence and comfort in flights are combining to make the summer timetables of the airways of Europe something like "magic carpet" documents.

Transportation experts of twenty European air lines are putting finishing touches on timetables of super-speed holiday and business travel.

The main lines of Europe, through increasingly cordial co-operation, now dovetail at all important airway junctions. Transferring from one line to another this summer will be done without delay or inconvenience.

Thirty-seven passenger machines employed by Imperial Airways will permit the saving of a quarter of an hour between London and Paris. Trips to Malo, Sweden and Prague, Berlin and Zurich are now one-day affairs. A fast service will be opened this summer from London to Le Touquet and Switzerland, with connections to the Mediterranean.

Malta may be reached from London in thirty-five hours by a combined use of airplane, flying boat and train.

Oxygen in Oceans Studied

There is less free oxygen in the water of the Pacific Ocean than in that of the Atlantic, and there is more in the water of great deeps of both oceans than in that from moderate depths, says "Popular Mechanics Magazine." These discoveries were made by Dr. Erik G. Moberg, oceanographer, after a chemical study of thousands of samples. Since all plant and animal life in the ocean is dependent on oxygen, the results announced are of fundamental as well as theoretical importance.

Sleepless Canadian Muffles Whistles of Paris Trains

Paris.—Colonel Beckles Willson, Canadian author and resident of Paris, has succeeded in muffling railroad whistles within Paris.

Colonel Willson, who wrote a book on American Ambassadors to France, lives close to a railroad station in one of Paris's most exclusive quarters. He was awakened at all hours of the night by the shrill shriek of engines.

Colonel Willson wrote a firm but polite letter to railroad officials and government authorities requesting the muffling of the whistles. He received many polite answers asking how could they control the whistles, the only language known to engine drivers and railroad employees.

But Colonel Willson was obdurate. He argued that the trains whistled too much and too loudly, insisting that the number and volume of the toots could be reduced to a minimum. Being of a scientific turn of mind he even demonstrated new types of whistles which would serve the same purpose but not awaken persons sleeping a short distance from the train tracks.

The officials experimented with the whistles and found them satisfactory. The Ministry of Public Works has issued orders that within two months all trains must be equipped with the muffled whistles.

A Spring Sonnet For Devon

The Lady April flings her purple cloak
About the patient shoulders of the down,
And with soft fingers spreads her flower gown
As carpet for the elm trees and the oak
A while ago the cuckoo's echo broke
The slumber of the orchards; and the brown
Frore rags of stingy winter's make were thrown
To rot, when Spring's so splendid sunshine woke—
But I am far away, I do not see
The Lenten lilies dancing by the Dart
That tumbles laughing past; nor where they shine,
Those hills and streams, those valleys of the free
Gorse-flaming moor; but in my exalted heart
They sing, and sing, and sing that they are mine.

King George Begins 22nd Year of Reign

London.—King George V completed 21 years hpon the British throne on May 6th and observed this anniversary with characteristic absence of formality at a quiet family reunion at Windsor Castle.

A royal salute fired in Hyde Park at noon was the chief notification to the people of London that anything out of the ordinary had occurred.

Ice Age Relics Found in Prussia

Various implements of bone and a bronze axe have been found in the Memel district, bordering on Lithuania. They probably date from the period 1400 to 1000 B.C. Much older, and of especial interest for geologists, are a number of pieces of amber unearthed in Neudorf, West Prussia, thirty miles inland from the Baltic.

Queen Mary Adds to Rare Collection

Fine Strings of Gems Acquired in Frequent Visits to London Antique Shops

London—Queen Mary not only is an expert at valuation and selection of jewels but she has one of the finest collections in the world. She is particularly interested in their history.

In addition to the crown jewels, she has a collection of her own which has taken many years to gather. She passes much of her time in searching antique shops, especially for jade and amber, and she has lately acquired some fine strings of these gems. These have been placed together on black satin beds in a cabinet in her boudoir.

Her collection is usually kept in a chippendale cabinet in the blue drawing room at Buckingham Palace, and it is a special favor to be asked to view them.

The most admired pieces are those of the rare "creamy" jade, several of which have been presents. There are also some beautiful sets of amber jewelry.

The Queen has some other rare treasures among her personal presents, including a magnificent diamond bracelet and drop pendant, a gift from the King.

The wearing of jewels is an art, and few women can display gems as well as Queen Mary. Her stately bearing adds to the dazzling splendor of her regalia when she is attending state affairs. Her jewels always seem particularly appropropriate to her dress. They are always carefully chosen and never does she appear twice successively with the same jewel scheme.

Emeralds are among the Queen's favorite stones. The royal set of these green, and usually regarded unlucky stones, have a romantic history. They were worn by the Queen's grandmother, the Duchess of Cambridge, in a lottery. Afterwards they were bequeathed to the Duchess of Teck, and then later were left by her to Prince Francis of Teck.

Since they have come into the Queen's possession she has added many other pieces, with the result that her collection of emeralds is now one of the finest in the world. Her favorite piece in the set is an exquisitely carved emerald pendant.

The Queen is also fond of pearls, and on unofficial occasions may often be seen wearing a double row of these gems with single pearl earrings. This partiality to pearls was also held by Queen Alexandra and Queen Victoria.

Canadian Co-Pilot On Record Flight

Vancouver.—R. Chaplin, who will accompany Capt. T. Neville Stack, English airman, as co-pilot on an attempted round-trip flight from England to Australia in 21 days, is the son of Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Reggie Chaplin, Vancouver.

Chaplin is well-known in Vancouver and Ottawa, having served as aide-de-camp to Lord Byng of Vimy while Governor-General of Canada. He served as an officer in the 10th Huzzars, his father's regiment.

A start was made on the flight, but bad weather over the Rhine Valley forced the flyers to return to their base to await more favorable conditions.

Finds Russia Puzzling

Berlin.—"Russia today is either the most stupendously magnificent experiment or the most diabolical plot the world has ever seen," said Henry B. Sell, New York advertising man, upon his return here recently from Moscow, where he spent a week.

"What is more, I doubt whether any one can honestly say which it is," he continued, explaining that his opinion could go either way from the present point. He said it was the "first time any people ever seriously tried to spend 90 per cent. of their energies in building for future generations and only 10 per cent. on themselves," and that only time would tell whether Russia would live up to her plans or whether they would devolve into a Napoleonic means of aggrandizement.

The temptation must be great for the men in the Kremlin, he believes. He said he thought the tempo of the five-year plan was showing plans of flagging and that the people were beginning to fail to respond to the exhortations to do bigger and better things.

Black Opal Valued at $10,000

London.—Weighing twenty-five carats, a black opal, declared to be one of the finest in the world, has arrived in London from Nw South Wales. I. Atishuler, finder of the stone, estimates its value at $10,000. He calls it "Queen of the World."

"Empire First" Not "Canada First"

Sir Arthur Duckham, British Trade Envoy, Stresses Need of Co-operation

Montreal—With the world facing a crisis more dangerous than the Great War, co-operation between Great Britain and the other nations in the British Empire would solve the Empire's difficulties and be a potent force for peace, Sir Arthur Duckham, president-elect of the Federation of British Industries and a member of the British Trade Mission now in Canada under the presidency of Sir James Lithgow, declared recently, in addressing the Montreal Canadian Club.

The cry, he said, should not be Canada first, Australia first or Great Britain first, but Empire first.

A change of heart had been experienced by British industry, Sir Arthur said. He predicted industry was exploring the possibilities in Canada. Nations must buy if they want to sell, and Canada, if she wanted to sell her wheat, must buy in proportion to what she sells.

Canada, Sir Arthur added, would be a nation of little importance without the Empire; and her only hope, as it was the only hope of Great Britain and the other British nations, lay within the Empire.

Born a Liberal and a free trader, Sir Arthur had changed. "World conditions have changed our minds," he commented. "I was a free trader so long as imports to our country meant more work for our people. To-day that is not so, and it is time some change should be made if the Old Country is to recover from the depression of the last 10 years."

Referring to the aims of the Trade Mission, Sir Arthur said, in part: "We know it is no good to come here and try to compete with home industries, but we feel that there is much Canada buys that might be bought in the home country, and that by co-operation we in Great Britain could complement and implement our manufactures so that the turn of trade may go east instead of south. That is the line that has been taken and it is possible to go along it."

A Constituent of Concrete

Portland cement is used as one of the constituents of concrete for the construction of foundations, dams, road surfaces, buildings, and building blocks, cement mortars, and for many other purposes. It is one of the most important of our structural materials. Materials suitable for the manufacture of Portland cement occur in all but one of the provinces of Canada.

New Glider Record

Munich, Bavaria.—Pilot Groenhoff of the Rhoen Rossitten Glider Flying Society, recently set a new sail plane mark when he flew his motorless machine from here to Kaadn, Czechoslovakia, a distance of 165 miles.

The previous mark was 101 miles, held by Robert Kronfeld.

Australia's Own Tree

"The Bush" is a designation used in two sense All of Australia that is not city, town or suburb, is loosely referred to as "the bush" by most people. In its narrower and more correct meaning it still comprises a great part of the continent—that is when it is used to mean the actual timber and scrub country. . . .

In dealing with Australia we must remember that we are speaking of a vast continent lying in many latitudes, and consisting of many soils and climates, and with a distinctive vegetation in its varied parts. There is no such things as an "Australian climate" at all. Under its skies its soils produce every class of vegetation known to every kind of climate. There are places in Australia where the snows never melt, other places where the nights are always cool, however hot the days may be, and there are places where, in the summer hot spells, the nights make little difference to the day temperature. . . . .

The eucalyptus in some form is, it may be said, the connecting link between the different parts. Australia's wonderful tree, in leaf and form and stature so varied, grows over the whole face of the continent. It is met with in scrub or tree, from Cape York Peninsula to Bass's Straits, from Dirk Hartog Island in the west to Bulli in the east—that is to say that the eucalyptus is the bush. Now a couching shrub, now wild tangled scrub through which a man cannot force a passage, now towering straight and tall, now stunted and dwarfed, now broad leaved and umbrageous, again scant of foliage. Now slim-stemmed and graceful, now mighty of bole and tufted of top, now narrow-leafed and drooping like a willow, now scented of leaf like the lemon, now pungent of turpentine, again acrid to the sense, or gorgeous of flower, ranging from oleander glow to the chaste texture and creaminess of color of the waterlily.—From "The Australian Bush," by Mary E. Fullerton.

I am a common vine;
This is a common year;
The usual sun hangs clear
Above my neighboring pine,
And beauty comes, draws near.

It cannot pass me by;
It threads sheer elegance
And charm along my lance,
And breaks a bud on high,
And bids me to a dance.

It lures a jocund air
To curve me as I grow;
There's dew upon my bow,
And clusters full and fair
As rarer vines might know.

I am a common vine.
How rich the common are
That clamber block and bar
With beauty's fair design;
How blest the simple are.

Health Protection In Old Quebec

By Hon. Athanese David
Provincial Secretary and Registrar, Province Quebec

(Condensed from the Montreal Gazette)

Some forty-three years ago the Provincial Bureau of Health was humbly started when the Prime Minister of the Province of Quebec placed the sum of $5,000 a year at the disposal of Dr. Persillier Lachapelle, so that he might do something to promote better knowledge of the elements of hygiene among our population.

Along with the cash, went a recommendation. The good doctor was urged to make no noise about it and not to frighten people with too much publicity. This was a wise admonition. How often it has been—and still is—said: "Our forefathers did not take so much care, and yet they lived to old age." How often did those who carried on the work meet with what I have called, and still call, remains of paganism such as makes parents and others say at the death of a child: "One more little angel." All these and many other objections had to be appeased before the real work could be done.

Much real work, however, has been done. Public opinion has been awakened, which, realizing the importance of preventive measures in protecting lives and health, does not object to seeing large amounts devoted to these purposes. Year after year that original $5,000 was increased until by 1920 it had grown to $119,694, which was then considered to be quite a large amount for public health. Since 1920 more determined efforts to increase public health activities have been made in the Province. The former Board was replaced by a Department, and striking contrast is afforded in comparing the 1920 and 1930 budgets. For during the latter year, the amount devoted to public health work was $621,859. During these years of increasing public interest in public health, a tremendous campaign of education was first undertaken, directed principally against our two greatest scourges, tuberculosis and infantil mortality. Then actual institutions were opened to deal with these two problems. In 1923 but two Quebec cities had such organizations. That year monies were voted for the purpose and within three years, twenty-one clinics and dispensaries were at work.

In 1926 a departure was made in the Domain of public health with the creation throughout the Province of health centres. After the war, the Rockefeller Foundation in France created in Seine-Oise such a unit with great success. Having observed on the spot the work accomplished, I thought the experiment well worth being tried in this Province. A law was passed to promote the creation in the rural areas of these centres, with the result that the work has progressed with tremendous strides, and this is no exaggeration if anyone will compare the results with those in any other country. Inside four years twenty-nine rural counties consented to tax themselves at the rate of two, three or four cents per hundred dollars to collaborate with the Government in the establishment of these centres. This goodwill on the part of our people has had immediate results in the establishment of twenty-threee centres covering the twenty-nine counties.

These 23 units at present protect 767,062 county-dwellers — or 47 per cent. of that entire portion of our population eligible for organization under the Rural Sanitary Unit plan. Demands and requests before us lead us to believe that within the next five years every rural part of the Province will be completely organized. One fact in this connection will, I believe, interest the public. It is that the great majority of the heads of the County Councils, which are composed of agriculturists, not only accepted the principle of imposing upon themselves special taxation for the creation of these units, but went further, giving therein a splendid example of citizenship, by increasing when needed the rate of their taxation, and this has been done without, to our knowledge, any complaint being made in any part of the Province where the system exists. These organizations cost for the fiscal year of 1929-30 the sum of $246,951.07, and the results have been such that hygienists have come from Europe, from the United States and from all over Canada to inspect these units, and we should, I think, be proud in saying it. The most recent visitor was the Director of Public Health of Greece.

What have been the results, may be asked? Just a few figures will show them. In the County of Beauce in 1926 infantile mortality was 121.5; in 1929 it was 87.7. Mortality through contagious diseases in 1925 was 84.4 in 1929 it was 55.3. In Temiscouata in 1926 infantile mortality was 134.2; in 1929 it was 98.7. Mortality through contagious diseases in 1926 was 124.5, in 1929 it was 21.6. In Nicolet in 1926 infantile mortality was 167.6, in 1929 it was 177.2. Mortality through contagious diseases in 1926 was 59.0, in 1929 it was 19.8. One more point, while I am on the subject, is the gratitous distribution through these centres of serums and vaccine. For instances through our campaign for the immunization of childhood against diphtheria by means of anti-toxine our health centres immunized from the 1st of June, 1930, to the 1st of October last, 36,000 children, and this campaign will continue during 1931 with even greater intensity.

Something quite new, I believe in Canada was instituted in the Province of Quebec in 1928. There has been functioning in France a system known as "l'Oeuvre Grancher," which consists in placing with healthy families in the country children menaced by contact with tuberculosis when living in infected surroundings. Experience shows that if children remain in contact with tubercular-affected persons, 60 per cent. of them will become patients, and 40 per cent. of this 60 per cent. will die of the scourge. On the other hand, the proportion of victims of tuberculosis among children taken away from their unhealthful surroundings is one per cent. It is, therefore, logical to believe that the greater the number of these children taken away, with the consent of parents, from surroundings that are a danger to them, the sooner will be checked the spread of the worst disease that today affects the Province of Quebec. There are two purposes achieved by this work. First, we combat tuberculosis in its own entrenchments, secondly, children taken away from the city and kept on the farm realizing what they have received from country life, will remain attached to the soil. Already one hundred of such children are located with healthy and devoted rural families.

These facts will, I believe, convince the population of the Province of Quebec that the Government has acknowledged as a political truth, as well as an economic truth, the words of Disraeli—often repeated, yet never too often—that "The first care of public health." We shall, therefore, continue the work, and deserve from those whom we represent the acknowledgement that we are trying to do our duty. But let the people of Quebec, each and every one, understand that no work of this kind, and of its magnitude, can attain its goal without the sincere and intelligent collaboration of all citizens.

Famous Painter of Birds Gives Them Protection

Allan Brooks, who is now world-famous as a painter of birds came to Canada from England in 1887, but it was not until ten years later that he settled on Okanagan Lake, B.C. Ever since that time he has carried on relentless warfare against the natural enemies of birds in that region, with the result that his sanctuary now shelters more varieties of birds than any area of similar size on the continent of North America.

It is very gratifying to Mr. Brooks that the birds he loves so well seem to love him also. Certainly they show not the slightest fear of him, or his wife and little son Allan. They come in flocks for their daily feedings, and they make free use of the scores of bird houses scattered over the estate. In times of danger, as on the rare occasions when a bald-headed eagle swoops across lake from his distant eerie, the little feathered folk fly to the Brooks' home for protection, and seem to realize that the rifle shots fired at their enemy are not going to do them any harm.

It is a tribute to Mr. Brooks that he has succeeded in converting all his neighbors to his views regarding bird conservation, though many years had to be spent in missionary work before success came his way. Now there isn't a farm in the district without its quota of bird houses for nesting time, and a plentiful supply of grain for the hard days when the frost is on the ground and feed is hard to find for the feathered friends. —From Star Weekly, January 17, 1931.

A BEAR OF A STORY

Little Mary, given to excessive imagination, seeing a red calf in the orchard, told her mother that there was a big red bear out in the orchard. The mother, aware of Mary's besetting sin, said: "Now, Mary, you know well enough there is no bear out there, and you had better go right into the closet and ask God to forgive you."

Mary did as she was told and soon came out smiling and said: "Mother, it's all right; God said he thought that calf was a bear, too, the first time he saw it."—"Animal Life."

Britain Plans 5-Day Plane Service to India

London—A cut of two days from the present seven-day air journey between England and India is being planned as the result of agreements recently concluded by Britian, Italy and Greece. The newly opened central African air mali service will also be speeded up if the agreements are ratified.

It is hoped that beginning May 16 the present route across central Europe will be discontinued and passengers and mail will travel via Switzerland, Italy and Greece to Egypt, on three-engineed Armstrong Siddeley air liners carrying the combined Indian and African air mail.

At Basle, Switzerland, passengers and mail will be transferred to a new night train to Genoa where the trip will be continued by a four-engineed Short flying boat to Alexandria via Naples, Corfu and Athens. This leg of the journey will be completed two days, seven hours, after leaving London.

Graf Zeppelin Flight Schedule For this Year is Announced

Friedrichshafen.—With its Egyptian cruise as a start, the Graf Zeppelin will make flights to South America, Norway and Spain, the Zeppelin Corporation has announced.

Short "round tours" during stopovers in various countries will be available primarily for passengers not making regular cruises.

MOURNING WARDROBE

"A death occurred in our family and I had to go in mourning. I could hardly afford to buy all black clothes, so decided to dye what I had. I consulted our druggist and he advised using Diamond Dyes. Everything came out beautifully; coats, wool dresses, stockings and all. I have since learned to appreciate the excellence of the black Diamond Dyes. I tried another black dye and the results were impossible. I had to get Diamond Dyes and do the work over. Recently I have tinted my curtains a beautiful raspberry shade and dyed a rug a lovely garnet with Diamond Dyes. They are real money savers—the finest dyes money can buy—I truly believe."

HAD TO GO TO SEA AGAIN

Rheumatism or No Rheumatism

BUT KRUSCHEN KEPT HIM FREE FROM PAIN

This skipper of a steam trawler was "up against it." He had Rheumatism, and his doctor said he must not go to sea. But times were hard, and he was forced to go afloat again. That was two years ago. Now see what he says:—

"I go to sea and two years ago I was laid up for six months with very much suffering from rheumatism and general breakdown, and was forbidden by my doctor to go to sea, or to touch water. But it was 'Hobson's Choice' with me. There was so much unemployment I was forced to get somewhere. So I am still here weathering the storms of the last two winters, and I can honestly say I have never felt the slightest pain from my old complaints, since I started two years ago to take Kruschen Salts. I wish Kruschen every success, and you may make whatever use you think fit of this letter."—Skipper J. J.

It is common knowledge that rheumatism is associated with an excess of uric acid in the system. Uric acid is composed of needle-like crystals, and the pain of rheumatism is caused by those "needles" settling down in the joints, muscles and tendons.

Kruschen is a powerful solvent of these torturing crystals. It swiftly dulls their sharp edges, then expels them from the system. Your pains ease; swellings subside, knotted joints become loose. Afterwards, the "little daily dose" so stimulates the liver and kidneys that regular and complete elimination is ensured. Your inside is kept clean. Mischievous uric acid never gets the chance to accumulate again.

Start on Kruschen to-morrow. Keep up "the little daily dose" and you'll soon joyfully agree with thousands of others that rheumatism meets its master in Kruschen.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church was held in the S. S. Rooms, Thursday afternoon, with the President, Mrs. T. O. Keyes presiding. The Scripture lesson from Matt. 25th was read by Mrs. R. L. Suffell. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. A motion was passed that Mrs. MacDougall be "Literature Sec'y" in the place of the late Mrs. Flora. A discussion was held regarding the organization of a Baby Band but no decision was made. The Pres. asked the groups in charge to try to have all dues collected by June. Mrs. J. Singleton read a letter from the Presbyterial Secretary urging as many members as possible to get the Blue Book, in order to keep in touch with missionary work. Mrs. Russell Crowder gave an interesting reading on Christian Stewardship. Mrs. Waddell spoke briefly about the Anniversary of Missions. Mrs. H Faith had charge of the program which was as follows: a musical selection entitled, "Seeking Lost Jewels" by Mrs. P. Durant; devotional Leaflet on "The Light of the World" by Mrs. Dukelow; excellent reports of the Stormont, Dundas and Grenville Presbyterial were given by Mrs Davidson and Mrs. J. Singleton. The meeting was closed with prayer by the President, Mrs. T. O. Keyes.

The United Church

(Contributed)

A forceful message was given by Rev. J. A. Waddell on Sunday morning from the texts, Prov. 11:30 and Matt 4:19, on the subject of evangelism which he said is the primary concern of the church. He defined it as making folks aware of Christ and His gospel and bringing men and women to a vital knowledge of the saving grace of God and His divine power. This should be the perpetual and increasing concern of the church. Christ calls everyone of us to be a living witness for him as everyone of the early Christians were. The pastor urged his hearers to begin some definite work along this line and to keep it up. Every one of us should have a desire to win others for Christ and to let our lives be a radiating centre for others.

The evening message was from John 15. 14 & 15. These words describe an ideal friend, Jesus, compelled friendship wherever he went. His friendship transcends all others. He is the same yesterday, today and forever. He has the same influence over men to-day as He had long ago. He is so near in the common round and the trivial task. Jesus brings us into a wonderful fellowship. Note the condition, "if ye do whatsoever I command you." In closing the pastor asked, 'when do you intend to take Him as your friend and say, I will love Him yet more the older I grow."

Next Sunday morning one of Canada's outstanding speakers will preach, in the person of Rev. Dr. J. H. Arnup. The morning service will be at 11 o'clock, and Sunday School will be at 2. p. m. until June.

Successful Play at Dundela

Before an enthusiastic audience which filled the building to capacity, the Young People's Society of Dundela United Church presented their play' "The Eyes of Love" last Friday night. The play, which was written by Lillian Mortimer is a good wholesome comedy and was very capably performed by a well chosen cast. A well furnished well lighted stage added much to the value of the play, and it was evident that no trouble has been spared to present a pleasing program. The cast of characters was as follows: Carolina, a negro servant, Ruth Strader; Gailya, an adopted daughter, Flora Knox Reeta, Gailya's friend, Mrs. Guy Strader; Burt Wade, Reeta's brother, Ralph Turner; Mrs. Barry, Gailya's foster mother, Olive Strader; Lora a lively housemaid, Olive Cook; Clark, a busy butler, Harold Millar; Judge Barry, Gailya's foster-father, James Eastcott; Royal Manton, Burt's rival, Lloyd Cook; Jim Rankin, the menacled man, Fred Cooper. During the intermissions, pianoforte selections were rendered by Miss Ethel Gordier, and vocal solos by Miss Beryl Hanson accompanied by Mrs. Jay Tuttle. Mr. Mahlon Strader acted very capably as Chairman. The Dundela Young People are already engaged to repeat their performance at Mainsville, Thursday May 21, and at Williamsburg, Wednesday May 27th.

HENRY'S SHORTHAND SCHOOL

Ottawa, Ontario

No school in Canada offers a better training, or ensures a more successful future. Henry's leads all others, and ranks among employers as "THE SCHOOL OF HIGHER EFFICIENCY"—a fact borne out by more than 600 pupils who have, since January, 1913, left other Ottawa Schools to come to it.

Therefore, it is not surprising that business men, in advertising for stenographers should specially say, "Graduates of Henry's School preferred."

To the Holders of WAR LOAN AND VICTORY BONDS

A Statement by the Minister of Finance

IN THE dark days of the War, Canadians loaned to the Government of the Dominion many hundred millions of dollars to enable the operations of the Allies to be carried to a successful conclusion.

When Canadians loaned their money to the Government, they received bonds which were promises to repay them the sum loaned with interest at the rate of 5% or 5½% per annum. On the 1st of October next, $53,000,000 of these bonds become due; on the 1st of November, 1932, the maturity will be $73,000,000; on the 1st of November, 1933, $446,000,000; and, in 1934, $511,000,000 must be provided for.

It would not be prudent, either in the interest of the security holders or the country itself, to wait until these loans become due before providing for their payment or conversion. Action must be taken well in advance of the due dates to protect the credit of the country. The Government believes this an opportune time to afford Canadians the opportunity to exchange the bonds, which they own maturing in the next few years, for new bonds of the Dominion of Canada carrying interest at the rate of 4½% per annum, which is a very attractive return. Prior to the maturity date of the present bonds, those who accept this offer will, of course, continue to be paid interest at the rate as provided by the bonds they exchange.

Canadians who have always shown confidence in their country are earnestly invited to exchange the bonds they now own for bonds of the new issue. By so doing, they will render less difficult the task of providing for the future finances of the country, will enhance its credit and will greatly assist the Government in the present period of worldwide readjustments.

No money will be asked for and no new bonds will be sold at this time. It is proposed to limit the present conversion to $250,000,000, but the Government has the right at its discretion to increase the amount if Canadians indicate a general desire to continue their investments in the securities of their Dominion. The subscription books will close on the 23rd of May.

I earnestly seek the active support of my fellow Canadians in making this conversion, which is one of the largest financial operations our country has undertaken in recent years, creditable alike to Canada and its citizens.

R. B. Bennett

Minister of Finance.
