Uncommon artistry

Kim Robinson
Press staff

MOREWOOD — As visitors walked into artists' homes during the On Common Ground tour over the weekend, they were taking a step closer to understanding the artistic temperament.

The tour showed not only the finished products of local artists, but the process that created them as well.

Sitting in the front room of his Morewood home, Michael Blouin painted one of his folksy pieces, while in the kitchen his guest, Williamstown potter Janet Keefe, was discussing kilns and pottery wheels with two visitors.

She told them how she forms her bowls, vases and other pottery without a wheel, using the coiling method. There was even a work in progress on the kitchen counter to illustrate. Keefe explained how she applies glazes and fires the clay to achieve the array of affects in evidence on the kitchen table.

Keefe loves this opportunity to talk about her methods.

"You can't expect people to understand the work and the fanaticism that went into these pieces unless you explain it to them," she says.

She is amazed at how well people understand the urge to create and finds they become much more interested in art when they are prompted to think about how it was formed. She says art with a very personal touch has more value for viewers.

"If it's important to the artist, it makes it more special for the person buying it. Each piece has its own history," says Keefe. "There's a need for things that are very individual in a mass-produced world."

Keefe finds the tour works well for artists who produce on a small scale and have an individual approach to each piece.

Such is the case for weaver Janet Whittam. Through the tour, she is able to show how her work often differs from other woven material, for instance how her use of textured yarns in the full length of the cloth gives her material a different feel from that which has the texture in the cross weave.

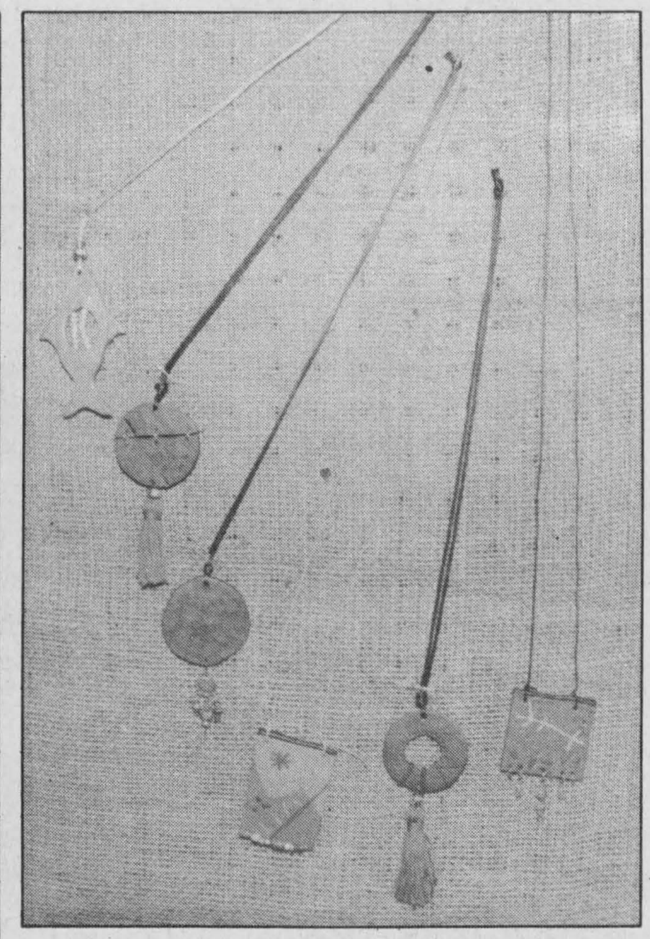
Whittam has been weaving material for clothing and other items for over 20 years. Lately she has developed an interest in more fine-textured cloth, but she says she still aims to make durable products like her grandmother's rag rugs, which are still in good condition and on display in Whittam's home near Morewood.

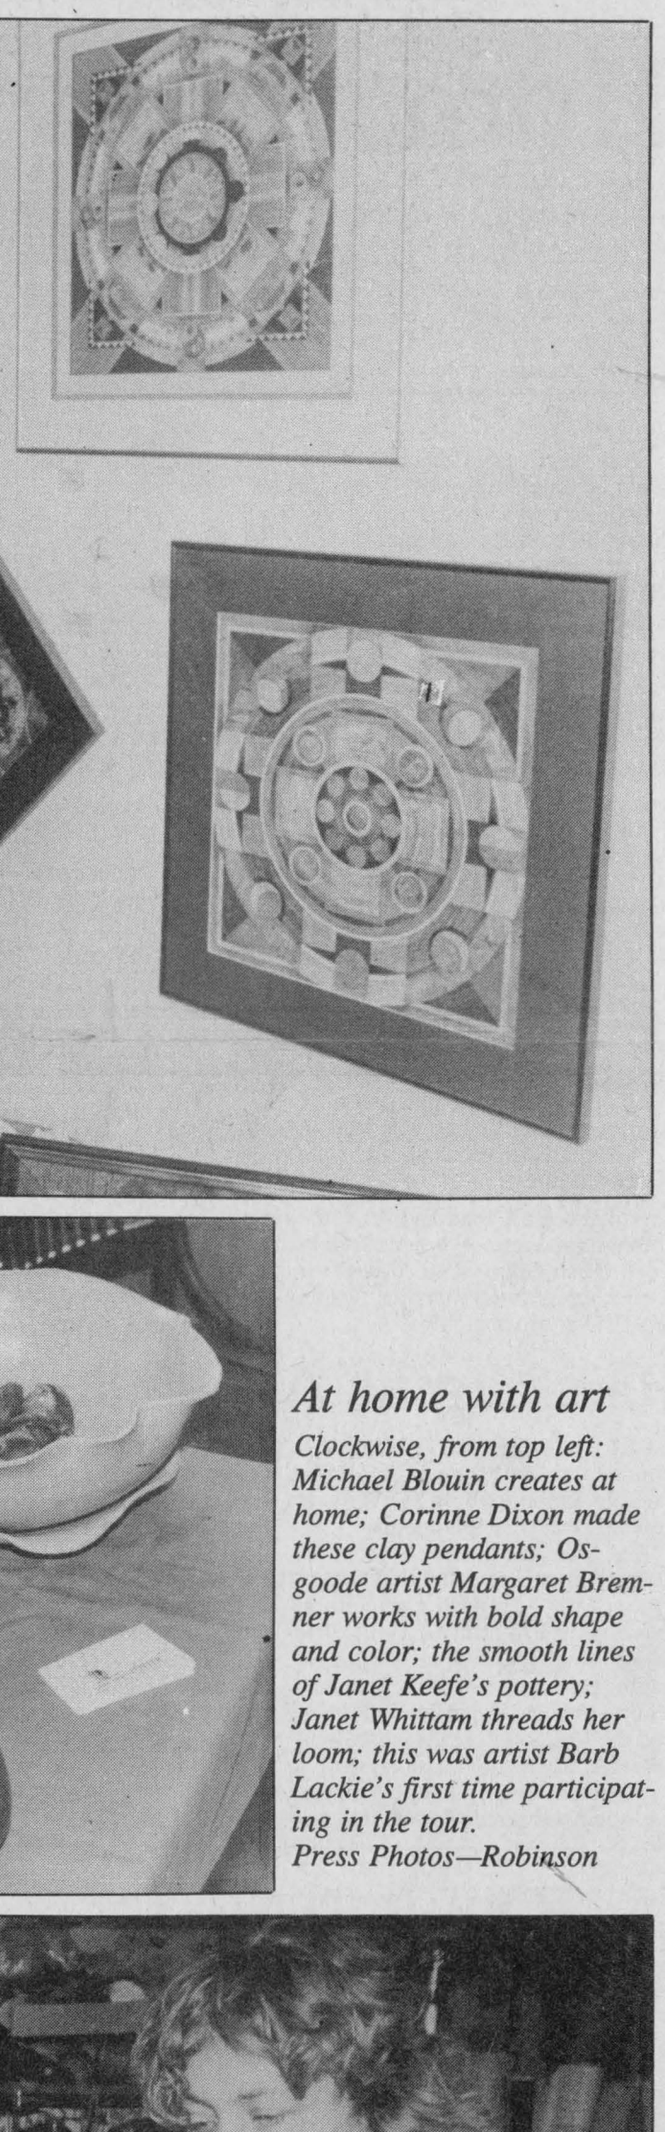
Basketweaving is another craft Whittam enjoys and some of her baskets were on display at her home. However, while she can weave in her attic studio and talk to visitors at the same time, baskets are something she must devote her full attention to.

"Basketmaking is like trying to keep three plates spinning at one time," she says. "It's full of surprises. You're into the third dimension and the materials can be unwieldy."

She was also occupied as host to a guest artist, Osgoode's Margaret Bremner.

Bremner took the opportunity to talk in detail about the variety of materials used in her mixed media work, information a visitor would not receive by simply looking at her art.





At home with art

Clockwise, from top left: Michael Blouin creates at home; Corinne Dixon made these clay pendants; Osgoode artist Margaret Bremner works with bold shape and color; the smooth lines of Janet Keefe's pottery; Janet Whittam threads her loom; this was artist Barb Lackie's first time participating in the tour.

Farm update

Canadian tradition

Home-grown breed thriving

MOUNTAIN — When Barb Buchanan recently purchased a horse from neighbor Roy Sherrer, she was helping maintain an important part of Canadian agricultural heritage.

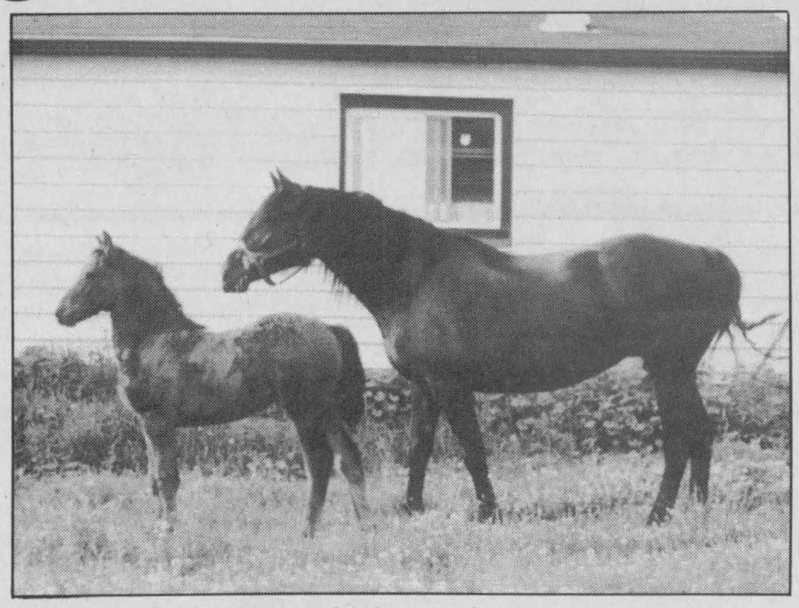
This year, the Canadian horse breed is celebrating 100 years of registration in Canada. Currently, there are only about 2,500 Canadian horses registered in this country.

"People have taken an interest in the Canadian horse in recent years because it's a good, strong dual purpose horse with great conformation, says Sherrer, who sold the purebred Canadian yearling filly to Buchanan earlier this fall.

Sherrer first got involved with Canadian horses in 1992 adding he likes to promote the breed. However, he's been involved with Belgians nearly all his life and remains loyal to that breed as well.

Buchanan says she plans to use her new Canadian filly, Shermount Jake Lady Diane, as a breeding horse and hopes to train her for dressage. A relative newcomer to the area, Buchanan has worked with horses in the past, and can help train the horse herself.

She chose a Canadian over some of the more common breeds seen in the English riding ring, partly for its nice temperment, but also for its beautiful conformation.



A younger Lady Diane with her mother.

"(The Canadian) is beautifully boned, has good feet and legs and is a nice versatile horse".

According to the Canadian Horse Breeders Association, current breed standards for the Canadian dictate a fairly small, well-proportioned horse, solidly built and well-muscled. The horse has good setting, high bone quality and strong feet. The head shows spirit, but no excessive nervousness. The Canadian is generally easy to handle and stands from 14.3 to 16.2 hands high. While black is the most common color for the Canadian, bay, dark brown and chestnut are also seen.

Buchanan, her husband Bob and their two young children Justin, two-and-a-half and five-year-old Evan moved to their 62-acre farm — Canberra — in Mountain Township a year ago from the Orangeville area. And although she previously lived in an urban setting, she kept a horse of her own boarded nearby.

It's always been a dream of Buchanan's to own a small farm in the country for horses. The couple is transforming the farm's dairy barn into a horse barn, with five sun-lit stalls now completed along the south wall of the barn. Buchanan plans to board horses and already has room for four. She will soon have stalls completed for five more.

The barn's former milkhouse will also undergo some changes, with plans to change it to a tack room later this winter.

There is also has a number of riding trails through the bush at the back of the farm and a riding ring will probably be added next summer.

EARLY BEGINNINGS

While the Canadian horse has been registered in Canada for the past century, it was first introduced in the 1600s by France to what is now Quebec.

After arriving in Quebec, many of King Louis XIV's horses were cross-bred with Norman horses, Barbs and Arabians to create a horse well-suited to the harsh climate. And the Canadian became a breed of its own.

The multi-purpose Canadian horse was used to clear and cultivate land, to pull carriages and for riding as well.

But by the mid-1800s many of the best Canadian horses had either gone to the United States or been crossed with other lines — depleting much of the best stock. By the end of the century, a breed registry was established in Canada to protect the Canadian horse bloodlines.

Today, the head office in Canada for the Canadian Horse Society is located in Pierrefonds, Quebec, while the local chapter is the Upper Canada District Canadian Horse Breeders Association in Clarence Creek, Ontario.

Pair begins AALP session

GUELPH — Brenda Trask of Osgoode and Bert Ruiter of Ramsayville embarked on a two-year adventure earlier this month.

The pair are part of a group of 30 participants selected to take part in the sixth Advanced Agricultural Leadership Program (AALP). The group met Oct. 2-4 in Guelph to begin their exploration of issues affecting Ontario's agri-food industry and the leadership skills which will help them confront those issues.

Speakers at the Guelph seminar included Ontario Federation of Agriculture President Roger George, Ontario Agricultural College dean Dr. Rob McLaughlin, and Erven Mackintosh, president of Ecological Services for Planning.

The leadership program consists of nine three-day seminars held in different Ontario locations and two two-week study tours — one in Canada and the United States and the other further abroad.

For further information contact Patricia Mighton, Box 1030, Guelph, N1H 6N1 or call 519-767-3266.

Healthy corn prices delight growers

Dianne Fetterly
Agricultural editor

WINCHESTER — Not only has this year's corn crop yielded quite well, but prices are up and according to some experts, should remain that way for the near future at least.

"To the delight of cash croppers and the agony of the livestock sector, (corn) prices are good and the trend is to remain up," said Ontario Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs farm management specialist Colin Reesor in a telephone conversation earlier this week.

According to Reesor, the Chicago Board of Trade's price for corn is currently hovering around $3.29 to $3.30 U.S. per bushel for December contracts. At press time, the local price was sitting just over $160. per metric tonne.

While there was a huge world supply of corn in the mid-1980s, that supply has slowly depleted over the past few years, resulting in low supplies and the better prices.

And coupled with the fact that many farmers, both here and in the United States, are holding onto their corn in anticipation of even higher prices in the spring, the market should remain tight, explained Reesor.

Besides deciding when to sell, producers should also be considering what crop and how much to grow for next year, says Reesor.

There is some speculation that the higher corn prices have prompted U.S. farmers to consider planting even larger acreages of corn for next year. However, Reesor suggests high fertilizer costs and good soybean prices may prompt farmers to lean towards beans.

Reesor suggests farmers talk to their American cousins and watch for articles that might indicate what the planting trends are.

Area farmers took advantage of some great weather last week to complete a good percentage of this year's grain corn harvest. Pictured, David Guy loads corn west of Winchester.

Batter-up club bakes goodies

by Marc Sheldrick

ORMOND — Meetings five and six of the Ormond Batter-up club were held recently. One group made applesauce-oat squares, the second group made refrigerated, drop and rolled gingerbread cookies. The third group made drop oatmeal cookies. We talked about plain grain and its food value.

At meeting six every member decorated a cake with leader Monique Sheldrick showing them how to do borders, etc. A special thank you to Mrs. Zollinger for all the chocolate candies and showing us how to make an Advent calendar out of ribbons and cookies.

Our achievement program will be held Nov. 2 at the Dundas 4-H award night in Matilda Township Community Hall.

Farmland values up

OTTAWA — A recent Farm Credit Corporation (FCC) study indicates the value of farmland across Canada increased by an average of four per cent in the first half of 1995.

This is the fifth consecutive semi-annual increase in Canadian farmland values. Combined with the 4.7 per cent growth from July 1994 to January 1995, this increase produced a national increase of 8.7 per cent in the past 12 months.

The research results, reported semi-annually by FCC, indicate that all provinces showed an increase, except for Nova Scotia where no change was detected.

In Ontario, research showed an increase of 2.8 per cent, with land valued at $1,005 per acre.

Milk... from moo to you!

by Anja Berends, Dundas Dairy Educator

Tooth decay is among the world's most widespread diseases, and one of the easiest to prevent. Cavities begin when bacteria on your teeth produce acids as they feed on sweets and foods containing other carbohydrates. It's these acids that, over time, cause cavities.

Cheese does not promote tooth decay, and now a number of studies suggest that eating a piece of cheese after a meal or snack may actually protect teeth against cavities.

Cheeses such as cheddar, Swiss, blue, Monterey Jack, mozzarella, Brie and Gouda contain calcium, protein, fat and phosphorus, all of which protect teeth from acids and help them stay strong.

As well, eating cheese stimulates the production of saliva, which helps to dilute and clear away sugars. Saliva also aids in neutralizing acids and remineralizing teeth.

Smile! And say cheese please.

In Memoriam

MELLON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Lyle, who passed away Oct. 30, 1984.
It is sad to walk the road alone,
Instead of side-by-side,
But to all there comes a moment
When the way of death divides!
You gave us years of happiness
Then came sorrow and tears,
But you left us beautiful memories
We will cherish through these years.
— Lovingly, wife Elaine and family.
31

SLOAN — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Bev, who passed away Nov. 7, 1994.

— John, Ross, Tobi, Thomas and Amanda, Matthew and Joanne. 31

DROPPO — Thoughts of a great dad and poppy, Foster, who passed away four years ago on Nov. 2.
Your last parting wish we would like to have heard,
And breathed in your ear, our last parting words,
Only those who have lost are able to tell
The pain in the heart of not saying farewell.
— Always missing you, Cheryl, Don, Devin and Chelsey 31

CAYER — In loving memory of a dear sister, sister-in-law, Connie, who passed away Nov. 4, 1991.

Your hopes and dreams encouraged us all,
For you were an inspiration in all that you'd do,
We will always cherish our memories of you.
— Forever in our hearts, Angus and Roxanne 31

SHAVER — In loving memory of a dear mother, and grandmother, Hazel Shaver, who passed away Nov. 4, 1994.

CAYER — In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister, Connie (nee Crump) who passed away Nov. 4, 1991.
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow,

— Always remembered, your family
31

CAYER — In loving memory of a dear sister, sister-in-law and aunt, (Connie (nee Crump) who passed away Nov. 4, 1991.

Special memories shared in love,
So treasured by us all.

We long for things to be the same,
As when they were shared with you.

THE CORPORATION OF THE VILLAGE OF WINCHESTER
Village clerk's office Ph. 774-2105

PUBLIC NOTICE

WHEREAS the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas & Glengarry are co-ordinating the implementation of Enhanced 9-1-1 Emergency Services program

WHEREAS some confusion may arise when emergency service organizations respond to calls due to the name and locations of two streets and the numbering of cul-de-sacs within the Village of Winchester

THEREFORE: the Council of the Corporation of the Village of Winchester proposes to pass a bylaw enacting the following;

1) That Louise Street, between Main and Church Streets be renamed Louise Street North. Further, that Louise Street running southward from Victoria Street be renamed Louise Street South.

2) That Dufferin Street between Howard Street and Bailey Avenue be renamed to Dufferin Street West. Further, that Dufferin Street between Gordon and Ottawa Streets be renamed Dufferin Street East.

ALSO NOTE that the council proposes to renumber all cul-de-sacs with odd numbers on the south and east, and even numbers on the north and west side of the streets, to conform with the program requirements. Affected property owners will be contacted under separate cover.

Objections to the street renaming must be filed in writing to the clerk, stating their reasons, before November 16, 1995.
