26 Months in German Prisoner of War Camp Described by Flt.-Lt. Harold Williamson

Twenty-six months as a prisoner-of-war in Germany, climaxed by a gruelling trip across Germany from east to west as the Russian advance swept into Germany this year, was described by Flt. Lt. Harold (Andy) Williamson to a large attendance at the Chesterville Rotary Club, Monday evening.

Eighteen guests were introduced, Ingram and Clarence Cross, Pay Lt. Don Fulton, A. T. David, Stanley David, Ron McLean, Ralph Allison, Stanley Shay, G. C. Lacey, Geo. G. Merkley, Frank Hess, Clare McMillan, Dwight Dillabough, P. O. Jack Doering, Beverley Boyd, A. Bogue, Capt. Verne Lowens and John Turner.

The business session included a report from Thos. Barnes on the Bingo games held last week which netted $31.60; district Governor's letter showed the club's attendance at 85.17 per cent for fifth place last month; a directors' meeting was arranged for Thursday evening at the home of P. S. Boyd.

Introduced by J. Howard Fulton, Flt. Lt. Williamson held his listeners in rapt attention as he told of his experiences from his enlistment in September, 1940, until he was on his way back home from the RCAF repatriation camp at Bournemouth, Eng., in July of this year.

Flt. Lt. Williamson went overseas in November, 1941, with the rank of Pilot Officer and following training in Great Britain was posted to Casseltown, Scotland; Peterhead, 30 miles from Aberdeen and near Melrose, Scotland; then to 164 squadron in the Orkneys and the Shetland Islands. During the Canadian raid at Dieppe, just three years ago, 402 squadron sustained a number of casualties and Andy was posted there to reinforce the group. He was stationed at Kenley airdrome, 30 miles south of London, with the largest fighter group in England, where the duties consisted of intercepting raids on London, fighter sweeps over the Channel and escorting bombers on sorties over enemy territory.

It was on a fighter sweep over Northern France, at the conclusion of a seven-day leave that Andy got his "chop" on 16 Feb., 1943. Flying a Spitfire other than his own, he was taking part in a "sweep" when, flying at 25,000 feet, his windscreen frosted up on making a turn in a layer of unstable air. Although the vents were open to check the frosting, the only way the ice could be melted was to fly the plane straight ahead.

Coming out of such a manouvre he sighted two Focke Wulf fighters coming at him almost head-on and "firing everything they had". He managed to evade them, but the windscreen frosted again on the turn. Straightening out again and flying blind, he was unable to sight the Fw's as they came in from behind and put his plane out of control with a burst of 20-millimetre fire.

His plane went completely out of control and it was a few moments before Andy realized his left earphone had been shot away and he had been wounded on the temple. After releasing the hood of the plane, he was catapulted into space as he made ready to jump, and almost immediately became unconscious as his oxygen supply was gone.

Regaining consciousness as he reached the denser atmosphere, Andy said the feeling he experienced was "wizard", there was no sensation of falling and when he wiggled his toes he seemed to "zoom" about. When he became in full possession of his senses and realized what was happening, he pulled the ripcord and was brought to a sudden jolt as his 'chute filled out.

The two FW's came around to have a look at him as he floated down, and as they banked away waved to him. That was a big relief, declared Flt. Lt. Williamson, as he fully expected the Germans would "shoot him up after shooting him down."

As he neared the ground he twisted his body and 'chute to correct his backward drift, but the parachute caught in a tree and he dangled 40 feet from the ground. As he attempted to swing on the shrouds to catch the nearest tree, his chute was disentangled and Andy fell to the ground.

Immediately, excited French civilians gathered about him, looking at his wound; however—just as Andy was walking away with the Frenchmen—German troops appeared and said in English: "For you, the war is over."

Andy was taken to a police station where a headquarters was phoned to report the capture. "I never heard so many 'Heil Hitlers' in my life as during that conversation," declared the speaker. Three hours later he was taken by ambulance to a hospital at Dieppe where his wound was attended to.

After being cared for by the French Sisters for two days, he was moved with a number of other prisoners to Dulag Luft near Frankfurt, and again hospitalized as the head wound was causing considerable pain. Then followed a gruelling three day train journey as, with a group of 200 captured airmen, he was sent to Schubin, near Bromberg in the Polish Corridor.

The Germans attempted to photograph the group as they were lined up for the train, but each time the airmen gave the V-for-Victory or Thumbs-Up sign, until the Germans started to shout angrily and they decided to allow the photographers to have their way.

FLY TO HAMILTON

Borden Fawcett, of Dunbar, and Walter Devaney, of town flew to Hamilton on Monday in the former's Fleet aircraft. At the airfield in Hamilton, Mr. Fawcett is having his plane completely overhauled in a periodic check-up as called for by air regulations.

National Thanksgiving Observed in Local Churches

Thanks for the final victory and prayers for those who gave their lives to make it possible were offered up by the congregations of Chesterville churches on Sunday, the day of National Thanksgiving and Prayer ordered by Royal Proclamation.

Following are reports of the services. The congregations of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church met with Trinity United church when the minister scheduled to take the Sunday services, Rev. Mr. Huston, was unable to reach Chesterville.

Holy Trinity Church.

At Holy Trinity Anglican church special prayes of thanksgiving for victory were offered for the deliverance of the Empire from the hands of our enemies. Hymns sung included Kipling's Recessional, "Now Thank We All Our God," and "Faith of Our Fathers."

St. Mary's Church.

Sunday was observed as a day of Prayer and Thanksgiving in St. Mary's Church. In accordance with a proclamation issued by His Grace, the Most Rev. J. A. O'Sulivan, D. D., Archbishop of Kingston, special prayers and acts of thanksgiving were offered up to Almighty God for the cessation of hostilities and for the preservation of peace. Reference was made in sermons at both masses on the necessity of thanksgiving for the end of the war, and the 10 o'clock mass was a solemn mass of thanksgiving with special prayers for the repose and the souls of those who gave their lives during the awful conflict for God and country. The evening devotions closed with Benediction of the blessed Sacrament, the "Te Deum Laudamus" and "Holy God We Praise Thy Name."

Trinity United Church

In Trinity United church prayers were offered on behalf of those whose loved ones had paid the supreme sacrifice, and by their lives had contributed to our great victory. Also prayers of thanksgiving were made to Almighty God for His gracious help in our time of trouble and distress, for the Royal Family, for all leaders in government, in industry and in the church, for all our men and women in uniform, for all artisans and farmers, and all other civilians who nobly served in the way allotted to them.

Rev. Wm. E. Wright took for his subject, "The Dawn of a New Day", and after reminding the congregation of the unmistakable evidence of the arriving of the new day, urged all Christians to renew their consecration to Christ and His Kingdom that they might thereby become more efficient in the great service to which the Saviour is calling all His followers, and meet the challenge that victory has thrust upon us.

For their anthem the choir sang Rudyard Kipling's "Lest We Forget" with O. L. King taking the solo.

CPL. GEO. H. OLSEN HOME

Cpl. Geo. H. Olsen, RCAF, son of Mrs. August Olsen and the late Mr. Olsen, arrived home Monday evening after almost four years of service overseas. With Mobile Radar Servicing, he was stationed in coastal radar establishments and at the servicing depot in Ruislip. While in England he was married to Cpl. Hilda Taylor, WAAF, whom he expects will join him about Christmas time.

AMONG RCAF REPATS.

LAC F. H. Hess, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hess is listed in the names of district airmen to arrive in Quebec next Tuesday, August 28th, aboard the troopship Samaria.

50TH ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Coons of Winchester will be at home to their friends on their 50th wedding anniversary Tuesday, August 28th, from 3 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mrs. Milton Shay wishes to thank all those who so kindly remembered her while a patient in the Hotel Dieu hospital, by their many cards and letters, including the WMS and Philathea Bible Class; also the Women's Association for their lovely flowers.

Graduate of Chesterville High Helped Develop Atomic Bomb

Prof. Bernice W. Sargent, son of Mr. Henry J. Sargent and the late Mrs. Sargent of Spruce Grove, is a member of the largest and most distinguished group of scientists ever assembled for a single investigation in a British country which worked on the experimental and development work on atomic energy.

Prof. Sargent is a graduate of Chesterville High School and Queen's University where he became a member of the teaching staff after distinguishing himself in his studies. He has supervised the section of the Montreal Laboratories that is engaged in research in nuclear physics. Before joining the Montreal Laboratory in 1942, he had collaborated during the summers of 1941 and 1942 in the work on uranium fission in the National Research Council Laboratories in Ottawa.

Prof. Sargent, who had been released by Queen's University to participate in uranium work, was born in Williamsburg township, near Chesterville, in 1906. His university career brought him the Medal in Physics on his graduation with the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1926. He held an N.R.C. bursary in 1927-28, obtained his Master of Arts degree from Queen's University in 1928. He held an Exhibition of 1941 Overseas Scholarship in the Cavendish Laboratory, Cambridge from 1928 to 1930, and received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Cambridge University in 1930. Since then he has been a member of the teaching staff of Queen's University.

Dr. Sargent was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada in 1941. He has made important contributions to the knowledge of the behaviour of the beta rays emitted by radium and similar substances, and is perhaps best known for his discovery of na important principle connected with the emission of beta rays which has been called "Sargent's Law".

Morewood High School

Opens for Fall Term on September 4th

All students are urgently requested to register on Tuesday in order to receive their list of books and so that the staff may learn the requirements of the individual pupils.

Students entering upon High School studies will be welcomed to Morewood High School along with those returning to complete their courses.

MEMBERS OF TEACHING STAFF:

CLAIR E. WILSON, B. A., PRINCIPAL

CONSTANCE MERRITT, B. A.

J. W. McVICAR, B. A.

As is the custom, the Morewood High School will offer the subjects required for the 2nd year University Entrance in both Science and Arts.

The Morewood High School Board appreciates the results obtained by the staff in the large number of students who have qualified for the universities of Queen's and McGill.

Farm option students must remember that they cannot receive their Diplomas until they have returned their Farm Application Forms. These should be brought to school on Tuesday, Sept. 4.

ROY FETTERLY,
Chairman.

We are at the service of the public at all times—day and night—every day in the year.

WOMEN AND POST WAR WORK

What is to become of Ontario's large army of female war workers? Experience, it is claimed, indicates that the majority of women do not wish to continue in factory employment. Indeed it is said to be amazing how they evaporate in large lay-offs. There are a number of women, however, who may exhibit an over-weening desire to retain industrial jobs although it was abnormal war conditions which pitchforked them into mechanical positions at 70 cents an hour as specialists but now that period is past and they can no longer be regarded as skilled labour. There are many married women and girls whose fathers are well able to support them who will simply fade out of the picture. There are young people lured from distant parts by the bait of high pay who will return to their homes. According to Selective Service the situation in this province is not at all gloomy. There are about 50,000 vacancies for women on file. There are jobs in the professional and managerial brackets, in the services—restaurants, hotels, laundries, etc.,—there are secretarial and sales jobs, and there are jobs in domestic service. And as far as Selective Service knows, there are only about 15,000 jobless women to fill them.

NEW SYSTEM WANTED FOR FARMER'S GAS

Ontario gasoline companies are endeavoring to prevail upon the Highways Department to abolish the present permit system granting exemption from the 8 cents a gallon provincial tax to farmers, fishermen and others. The permit system in use since 1943 gave to more than 40,000 farmers and others who use gasoline in their work and not for driving on Provincial highways the privilege of cheaper gasoline, free of Provincial tax. The end of gasoline rationing has made the system not only unacceptable longer to gasoline companies but technically illegal as far as the Government is concerned. It is proposed that instead of the permit farmers and other eligible for exemption from tax should buy their gasoline in the usual way and then send declarations to the Highways Department setting out the use made of gasoline and requesting tax refunds. This would ensure the usual refunds, amounting last year to more than $3,800,000 and eliminate the abuse of permits which the Government claims has cost it nearly $1,000,000 a year during the war.

HYDRO WILL TEACH NEW MEN

With a view to the rehabilitation of servicemen and as an aid in securing personnel to carry out its five-year rural electricfication scheme, which will begin next month, the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission has decided to enter on an elaborate training planl. The Ontario Municipal Electrical Association and the Department of Vteerans' Affairs are co-operating in the scheme which will provide men for the building of more than 7,000 miles of new rural distribution lines and for local hydro utilities positions in municipalities. An estimated 50 students wil lbe trained every three months.

WHEN ARE COMMUNISTS 'NOT COMMUNISTS?

In Ontario at least it was generally recognized that the Labor Progressive Party was the old Communist Party under a new name and with a real desire to win the war following Russia's entry into the contest in June, 1941. The lifting of the ban on Communists is said to have no particular significance which is probably true as long as the Soviet Union remains in alignment with the Allies. It may be taken for granted that with the removal of restrictions the Communists will re-enter the arena under their true colours and the labor Progressives will be thrown into the discard. As the Communists in this province have ceased to be a revolutionary organization their revival should not cause any uneasiness.

MEAT RATIONING WILL COME

The coming of Peace does not mean that regimentation is at an end. There are certain restraints that remain necessary to guard against inflation and priorities that will obtain to place civilian construction on an even keel. In the meantime the Government has decided to impose meat rationing although many Ontario cattle producers maintain that such a course will answer no useful purpose despite the acute nee- for food for the hungry millions of Europe. There is the suggestion, too, that the United States has virtually decided to abandon meat rationing.

JAPAN'S GREED COSTS HER LARGE EMPIRE

Even before Tokyo made its first inquiry about the terms of surrender last week, it was clear Japan as no other major power, excepting Germany, ever has been smashed since the conquerors of old.

It seems passing strange that Japan should have to learn that crime doesn't pay by making war on the United Nations. The fact that she had the temerity to do so is just another proof that she hadn't yet emerged fully from the dim past. She thought naively that because she had a big Army and Navy, she had caught up with the western world. But it is clear that she still was treading the paths of by gone centuries.

Japan's greed will cost her a big empire. She no longer will rank as a great power. She will drop back to about the place she occupied in 1853-54 when Commodore Perry introduced her to civilization.

Since that time she has extended her domains vastly, partly through receiving islands under mandate after the First Great War and partly through aggression which brought her Korea and finally great and potentially rich Manchuria from China, and she might have continued long in possession of it had she recognized her limitations.

But now she will be losing all excepting her ancient four-island kingdom. She will be deprived of her navy, her air force, her army and every industry which could be utilized for purposes of war. She is to suffer the indignity of having her sacred islands occupied by Allied troops, and of being under Allied military rule.

It is a terrible punishment for Japan. And one wonders whether the peculiar Japanese code of honor may not result in some shocking "face-saving" sacrifices after capitulation has been made effective. Through time immemorial it has been the practice of the Japanese to commit hara-kiri to wipe out stain upon honor. We have seen innumerable cases in the present war.

Will high military and naval officers and members of Government, immolate themselves on the altar of "honor" in this fashion?

There have even been suggestions that the Emperor himself might abide by this code and do away with himself.

I'm not suggesting that these things will happen, but only call attention to the possibilities of this great drama.

Claims Weeds Worst Crop Thieves

"Weeds are the greatest crop thieves in Canada," says Dr. E. S. Archibald, Director, Dominion Experimental Farms Service. "Inaction on the part of farmers, indifference on the part of municipalities, railroads and others are causing ever-increasing losses through weeds in crops and by increased costs of production among those farmers who are attempting control measures. Diligence and thoroughness are the only sure remedy," he says. "In cultural measures, the use of clean seed and the prevention of the introduction of still worse weeds for which there are no control measures, is urgent. Why take 20 percent less crop of grains, hay and pasture and why use 50 percent more labour on all the crops if adequate control measures by individuals in communities would save these?" he asks.

Strange

"Do you know who I am?" shouted the irate general to the Australian who had neglected to salute him.

"Do you know who I am?" persisted, as the soldier looked blankly at him.

"Here boys," said the Australian, turning to his friends. "Here's something good. A general who doesn't know his own name!"

RAF LANCASTER'S FLIGHT TO NORTH POLE

The British built Lancaster "Aries" which flew round the world on a navigational mission to the Pacific in the autumn of 1944, is now being used in a series of flights over the geographical and magnetic North Pole. The flights are being made mainly to study navigation in Polar conditions and to examine the behaviour of certain equipment. The expedition which is from the Empire Air Navigation School of RAF Flying Training Command at Shawbury, is headed by Wing Commander D. C. McKinley, DFC, AFC. Pictures, taken just before the "Aries" left on the first stage of the flights, show: "Aries" and her crew. Wing Commander D. C. McKinley, DFC, AFC, is centre, hand on hip.

PREVENT ACTIVITIES OF ROBBER BEES

There is nothing more persistent than a band of robber bees, and once they have been able to obtain stolen sweets, they will go to almost any extreme to get more. Robbing may occur at any time there is a dearth of nectar, but the most dangerous period is during the fall immediately following the close of the honey flow. This is especially true in regions where there is little or no fall flow. Once the robbers get well started in an apiary there is little the beekeeper can do to stop them without loss.

Because robbing is much more easily prevented than cured, C. B. Gooderham, Dominion Apiarist, issues a timely warning. Do not, he advises, open hives more than necessary towards the end or after the honey flows. If necessary to open hives, cover all exposed supers with robber cloths or sacks to prevent robbing. Protect and strengthen all week colonies. If there is any tendency to rob, reduce all entrances. Any colony that is in danger of being overcome by robbers should be moved to the cellar for a few days. See that the honey house is bee proof and keep the door closed all the time. If any colonies have to be examined, do it in the evening or under a bee tent. Carelessness in these respects will likely result in general robbing being started, which will cause much trouble and possible loss of colonies.

THE MAN WHO THINKS HE CAN

If you think you are beaten, you are;
If you think you dare not, you don't.
If you'd like to win, but think you can't,
It's almost a cinch you won't.
If you think you'll lose, you're lost,
For out in the world we find
Success begins with a fellow's will;
It's all in the state of mind.

If you think you're outclassed, you are;
You've got to be sure of yourself before
You can ever win a prize.
Life's battles don't always go
To the stronger or faster man;
But soon or late the man who wins
Is the one who thinks he can.

BEST LILIES FOR CANADIAN GARDENS

Except for two varieties of lilies (known to gardeners as Lilium Candidum and Lilium Martagon) which should be planted in August, lily bulbs are best planted in late September or October. In districts where teh ground does not freeze until late, they will probably grow if planted later, says Miss Isabella Preston, Division of Horticulture, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, in the pamphlet "Lilies for Canadian Gardens." Unlike the bulbs of daffodils or tulips which can be kept dry for several months during the rest period, lily bulbs are seriously weakened if the scales become dried out and withered. If bulbs are very dry on arrival it is an advantage to cover tehm with slightly damp sphagnum moss and leave them in a cool place before planting.

All lilies have roots at the base of the bulbs and some have roots on that part of the stem which is below ground. Those with stem roots should be planted from 8 to 12 inches deep, but, for bulbs with basal roots only, four to six inches is deep enough. They can be planted more deeply in light soils than in heavy ones. They can be grown in beds by themselves in front of a shrubbery border, or in a mixed perennial border. They will grow in a variety of soils and situations, but good drainage is essential. Further information about planting, propagation, diseases and varieties is contained in the pamphlet "Lilies for Canadian Gardens," a copy of which may be obtained by writing to Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Flowers Across the World

Among the interesting people 'who were in Town' the other Saturday night was Mr. John Besemer from Canada. He told BBC listeners to "In Town To-Night" that he belonged to the "Say It With Flowers" association and of what wide use has been made of it during the war.

This flowers-by-wire scheme, he explained, is international and non-profit-making. It enables people in almost any town to give an order to their local florist with the knowledge that the flowers will be delivered to any part of the world—no matter where.

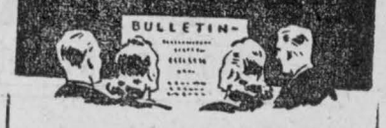

The troops, Mr. Besemer said, have "fallen for it in a big way." For instance, a young wife in London recently arrived home to find a mass of bloom "sent" to her by her soldier husband in Italy; a mother in America, living 250 miles from a florist, was given a similar thrill by her son in Germany.

The forces place their orders through War Services, NAAFI and other canteens. Last year, it appears USA servicemen placed orders at a round cost of eight million pounds and one out of six Canadian soldiers overseas "said it with flowers" to their folks back home last Christmas. British soldiers have spent nearly a million pounds in this way since D-Day. A civilian could likewise send flowers to a girl in the ATS in Paris, or Cairo, or Delhi.

Mr. Besemer gave another striking fact in connection with this scheme. He's had a check made, and finds that eighty percent of the people who receive the flowers in wartime have never before had any flowers delivered by a professional florist.

To some recipients it is almost a shock. When a bunch of roses was delivered to a mother in a poor district of London, a crowd of children gathered round and called out to the messenger: "Coo, Mister! Who's dead?" Flowers to them could only mean a funeral. But there's a humorous side, too, to saying it with flowers. An A.T.S. girl wrote to say she'd received flowers from "Jim," but she knew three Jims. Well, the Association can say it with flowers, but not with television.

JACQUES LABRECQUE.

The tenor voice heard weekly on "Serenade for Strings," Sundays, at 7 p.m. EDT, on the CBC Trans-Canada network is that of Jacques Labrecque, one of Montreal's favourite gifts to radio. He has been singing regularly for CBC audiences since 1936 and has made several appearances among the distinguished company heard in Canada's Victory Star Shows.

He Knew

On his way home a drunk stopped at a lamppost and pulled out his house key.

A passing policeman noticed him fumbling around, trying to insert the key into the post and asked politely, "Nobody home?"

"I'll say there is," said the drunk. "There's a light upstairs."

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Weegar Honoured by Elma Friends

On Thursday evening of last week a large number of friends from Williamsburg, Elma and Dunbar gathered in the IOOF Hall, Williamsburg, to honor Mr. and Mrs. Ray Weegar of Elma, who were recently married. The evening was pleasantly spent in social intercourse and dancing with music furnished for dancing by the Serenaders' orchestra.

During the evening the honored couple was called to the front of the hall and Mrs. Gerald McMillan read the presentation address in which the congratulations and good wishes were extended to Mr. and Mrs. Weegar and the hope expressed that they would enjoy a long and prosperous wedded life. The honored guests were then presented with a studio couch and an occasional chair on behalf of their friends.

Mr. Weegar fittingly replied expressing sincere appreciation for himself and Mrs. Weegar, for the gifts and the good wishes.

After the singing of "For they are Jolly Good Fellows" refreshments were served and dancing was again enjoyed.

TRIPLE THREAT

Pert actress June Whitley has always managed to have roles with a suggestion of menace. She has played in Hollywood in Suspense," and Orson Welles' "Mercury Theatre." Now she is in Vancouver playing "Triple Threat" over mid-east stations of the CBC Trans-Canada network, Fridays, at 11.30 p.m. EDT.

Many friends in the district will be interested to learn that Professor Bernice W. Sargeant, Professor of Physics at Queen's University, Kingston, and head of the Nuclear Physics Division of the Montreal Laboratory, is one of the group of the Canadian scientists, whose research helped in the development of the Atomic bomb which forced Japan to capitulate to the Allied armies, after only two such bombs had hit their country, worked in the National Research Council Laboratories in Canadian Universities.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crombie, Mrs. Philip Crombie and Pte William Booth of Elma spent Saturday in Brockville.

Mr. Bert Merkley, who has been spending a few days vacation in town with his sister, Mrs. Geo. W. Strader and family returned to Detroit, Mich., on Friday. He was accompanied to Toronto by his niece, Miss Betty Strader, who will spend a few days in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Beckstead and family, Morrisburg, were guests on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Donald McIntosh at Elma.

Freely Given

The teacher: And you see, children live is the one thing you can give in abundance and still have plenty left.

Jimmy: How about measles?

IMMATURE BARLEY

The increase in the use of the combine has resulted in a marked increase in the amount of immature and weather-damaged barley reaching the market. This seems to emphasize, states the Dominion Experimental Farm at Brandon, Man., the mature before swathing, and picking up with as little delay as possible once the grain is dry enough to thresh.

The teacher was trying to teach his class the meaning of fractions. She asked: "Tommy, if the butcher cut a pound of beefsteak into four pieces, what would he have?"

"Four customers waiting for it," Tommy replied.

To live in hearts we leave behind
Is not to die.

Uncle Lyle and Aunt Anna.

IN MEMORIAM.

DILLABOUGH—In loving memory of Mrs. Orrin Dillabough, who, after a lingering sickness, passed away August 16th, 1944.

Asleep in Jesus! blessed sleep
From which none ever wakes to
A calm and undisturbed repose [weep
Unbroken by the last of foes.

Sister, Mrs. Alex B. McConnell.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of a dear father and grandfather, who passed away August 20th, 1941.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him, who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.

Daughter Mrs. Russell Froats,
Grand-daughters, Beatrice and Leona.

BRIDE-TO-BE HONOURED

On Saturday evening, August 18th, Miss Ruth McIntosh was hostess at a delightfully arranged showed held at her home near Berwick in honour of Miss Nellie McDonald, on the occasion of her approaching marriage. The house was tastefully decorated with gladioli and snapdragons.

About forty-five guests were present. Mrs. John Foster, on behalf of the gathering addressed the guest of honour, welcoming her again to their midst and recalling the days when she taught in their community. Miss Elizabeth Ruddy added a few remarks appropriate to the occasion, then little Miss Mary Agnes Montcalm presented the bride-to-be with a set of crystal.

With very deep feeling Miss McDonald thanked her many friends for such a kind token of remembrance of many happy days spent in Riverside.

A dainty lunch was then served with Miss Hilda Casselman and Mrs. Jack McQuaig presiding at the tea table.

PRENUPTIAL SHOWER.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Chas. Graham, Friday, when Miss Aura Graham and Mrs. K. D. McQuaig entertained a large gathering in honour of the approaching marriage of their cousin, Miss Rose Allison of Morrisburg. Her marriage to Mr. Frank Johnston of Temple City, Calif., will take place in early fall.

The early part of the evening was spent in renewing acquaintances by the bride-to-be, her mother, Mrs. W. P. Allison and sister, Mrs. Max Bush of Montreal.

The bride-to-be was becomingly attired in a 2-piece cotton plaid trousseau dress. During the course of the evening she was presented with three pairs of sheets, three pairs of pillow cases and a dozen linen tea towels. She expressed her appreciation in a few well-chosen words.

A very tasty lunch was served by the hostess, very capably assisted by Mrs. Max Bush, Mrs. C. A. Graham, Mrs. Harry Allison, Miss Olive Casselman and Miss Beryl Hewitt.

Among those present from out-of-town were, Mrs. Mary York of Morrisburg; Miss Martha Cunningham of Huntington; Miss Marion Casselman of Kingston; Miss Lila Weegar of Ottawa: Miss Helen Lacey of North Bay; Miss Betty Bolster of Brockville and Mrs. Turner of Ottawa.

MISS MARY FORAN HONORED

Miss Mary Foran was honoured at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McCloskey when a pre-nuptial shower was given by Miss Mary McCloskey, Friday evening. The evening was spent in games and music. The following address was read by Mrs. Jean Loughridge and Miss Foran thanked her friends for the lovely gifts and invited them to visit her in her new home. Lunch was served during the evening.

The address: Chesterville, Ont.,
August 17, 1945.

Dear Mary:—Hearing of your approaching marriage, we, your friends have assembled here this evening to extend to you our very best wishes for a happy future.

We have always found you, Mary, worthy of our warmest regard and highest esteem, and trust that God will bestow upon you abundant blessings.

As a tangible expression of our desires we ask you to accept these gifts, hoping that your future will be just perfect in every way and that as the years bring happiness you'll often think of your Chesterville friends.

Over a Century of Banking Experience

Out of the Wealth of Our Soils

By: G. N. Ruhnke, FCIC, Head of the Department of Chemistry and Director of Soils Survey, Ontario Agricultural College

Ontario farmers have done a splendid job of food production during these war years, in spite of the shortages of labour and equipment which had to be met. They have shown a high degree of efficiency in the use of land and a note-worthy resourcefulness in adapting their farm operations to meet the changing wartime needs for the various agricultural products.

For the present, the demand for intensive production on our farms is still upon us. Food is still a weapon of war in the Pacific and although the war in Europe is over, the great needs of the liberated countries there must be met until their own production can be made sufficient. How long this may be is not too certain, but one authority has estimated that the 1944 level of Canadian farm production will be required for at least the next two years. After the war is over, the changed position with respect to world supplies and world markets for farm products may neicessitate profound adjustments in our agricultural program.

As a result of the experiences following the last war, farmers are looking ahead with more concern for the future. Among other things they recognize that greater efficiency in the use of land, labor and machinery will be necessary. A low cost of production will be an important factor in meeting postwar competition.

In general, the lowest cost of production is obtained with high yield levels, and high yields can be maintained only on fertile and productive soils. Food is fabricated soil fertility. It is out of the wealth of our soils that we have produced the food to fight the war, and it is out of the wealth of our soils that we must continue to produce the food to win the peace.

It is timely then, in our post-war planning, to ask ourselves what measures are we taking to insure that soil fertility on our farms is being maintained in the interest of efficient use of land, and a prosperous and enduring agriculture. During the past ten years, the total tonnage of fertilizers used in Ontario has approximately trebled, yet in spite of this, and the introduction of improved varieties of crops, improved drainage, and the wider use of more efficient tillage, seeding and harvesting machinery, the average yields of the common farm crops have failed to show a corresponding improvement.

It is true, however, that on many farms crop yields have been increased far above the average where good soil management is being practised. Thus we are forced to conclude that on a much larger proportion of our Ontario farms the yields are considerably lower than the average, and we are taking more out of the soil than is being put back.

There are other striking indications that point to the need for a vigorous program for soil improvement and soil conservation in Ontario. The increasing difficulty in growing alfalfa and clover, on soils which formerly produced them in abundance, is but another reflection of failing fertility in the soil. The depletion of the humus or organic matter, in our intensively cultivated, heavy-textured soils has made them harder to work, more difficult to drain and less productive. The lack of humus in our sandy soils is making them more subject to leaching of plantfood in wet seasons and less retentive of moisture in dry seasons. The decline in fertility; the failure to balance adequately the soil-depleting (clean-cultivated) crops with soil-conserving (hay-pasture) crops in the rotation; the lack of manure; and inadequate use of commercial fertilizers under intensive cropping have contributed also to our soil erosion problems. We do not need to look far to see unmistakable evidences of the need for a province-wide program for soil conservation.

During these times of higher farm incomes, far-sighted farmers are investing surplus earnings in Victory Bonds, to create reserve capital for postwar adjustments and farm improvements. Money invested in Victory Bonds now will insure ready funds for future financing of individual soil-building programs, and will contribute greatly to the stability and security of the farming industry.

Benjamin J. Carr, Morrisburg Passed Away In Hospital

The death occurred early Friday morning at Kingston General hospital of one of Morrisburg's best-known residents, in the person of Benjamin L. Carr. While Mr. Carr had been in extremely poor health for the past few months, he had rallied somewhat earlier during the week, and his death came as a shock to a very wide circle of friends.

Mr. Carr was active in community enterprises. An ardent hunter, he camped for years at Plevna, Ont. Some years ago, he served as a member of the Morrisburg town council.

Mr. Carr was born on April 27, 1880, the eldest of the 13 children of the late Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Carr of Commanda, Ont., in the Parry Sound district. After receiving his education, he followed the career of a land surveyor, and working with the firm of Routley and Summers, surveyed many of the townships in Northern Ontario. On November 9th, 1918, he was united in marriage at Winchester by Rev. J. Miller to the former Miss Mabel Sweet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Sweet of Winchester.

In 1927, he went to Morrisburg and established a successful tourist business at the old Flagg home at Flagg's Creek, west of Morrisburg. In 1932 he purchased the former J. Wesley Allison property in town and later the Merkley farm, where he carried on his tourist business on a larger scale. At the latter place, he also set out a 1200-tree apple orchard one of the finest in the district.

A staunch Liberal in politics, Mr. Carr was a member of the local United Church, and a member of Henderson Lodge, AF and AM, Winchester. Surviving, besides his widow, are two sons, Langton Carr, at home, and Flt. Lieut. John A. Carr, DFC, who returned to Canada only a few days ago after serving overseas with the RCAF, and one granddaughter, Judy Ann Carr; there are also five sisters and two brothers.

Funeral service was held Sunday, from his late home "The Ship's Mate", to the Morriburg United Church, at 2 30 p.m. in charge of Rev. J. G. Stones. Interment was made in Maple Ridge Cemetery, Winchester.

PEANUT HANDBAGS.

Peanut hulls have become the source of a new material. Women's handbags, chair pads, wallboard, floor covering, furniture panels, shoes and felt hats are a few of the products that have been developed from the new material.

"OUT IN THE MID-DAY SUN."

"I had heard that at Andimeshk in Persia in summer-time even the flies die; and when I arrived there, I remember, I asked an officer if that was true, or just a story. He looked at me as if I'd asked him if grass was green. "Of course it's true," he said: "They either die or go underground. Even the Persians go underground. Nothing lives and moves above ground except the British soldier!"

BOOST POTATO CROPS.

"Low average yields of potatoes in all Central Canada are due to the lack of use of certified disease-free seed, improper fertilizer, indifference toward the control of light blight, potato bugs, and other pests," says Dr. E. S. Archibald, Director, Dominion Experimental Farms Service. "Why choose to produce potatoes at the rate of only 80 to 90 bushels of commercial potatoes per acre when 320 bushels can be acquired with little extra cost per acre and infinitely less per bushel?" he asks.

Hydro Inaugurates School To Train Vets as Linemen

An important rehabilitiation plan, designed to speed the return of hundreds of service men to civilian life and at the same time, make available a corps of trained personnel required to launch Hydro's five-year rural electrification project, has been announced by Dr. Thomas H. Hogg, chairman of The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

On September 4 this plan becomes effective with the opening of the Commission's school for the training of linemen. Located on the site of the York transformer station on Royal York Road, this school, which comes under the direction of the Commission's personnel department, headed by Wills Maclachlan, will be under the immediate supervision of S. K. Cheney with K. W. MacDermott acting as chief instructor.

Present plans indicate that approximately 50 students will be trained every three months, or some 200 students each year to fill positions as linemen required to meet the needs of the Commission's post-war plans which include the five-year rural electrification programme, announced recently by Hon. George H. Challies, vice-chairman of the Commission, and involving the building of over 7,000 miles of new rural distribution line.

Hydro municipalities throughout Ontario, through the Ontario Municipal Electric Association, headed by W. Ross Strike, former mayor of Bowmanville and now a member of the Hydro Commission, have had an active role in bringing the new plan into effect. Both the Association and the Commission, it is pointed out, recognized the need for such a school where linemen could be trained for Commission service and also for positons with local Hydro utilities. At the same time, the Department of Veterans' Affairs is co-operating closely in the development of the plan.

The Commission indicated that this school would be the largest of its kind in Canada and that it was highly probable its facilities would be extended to include training in other trades associated with the operation of Hydro.

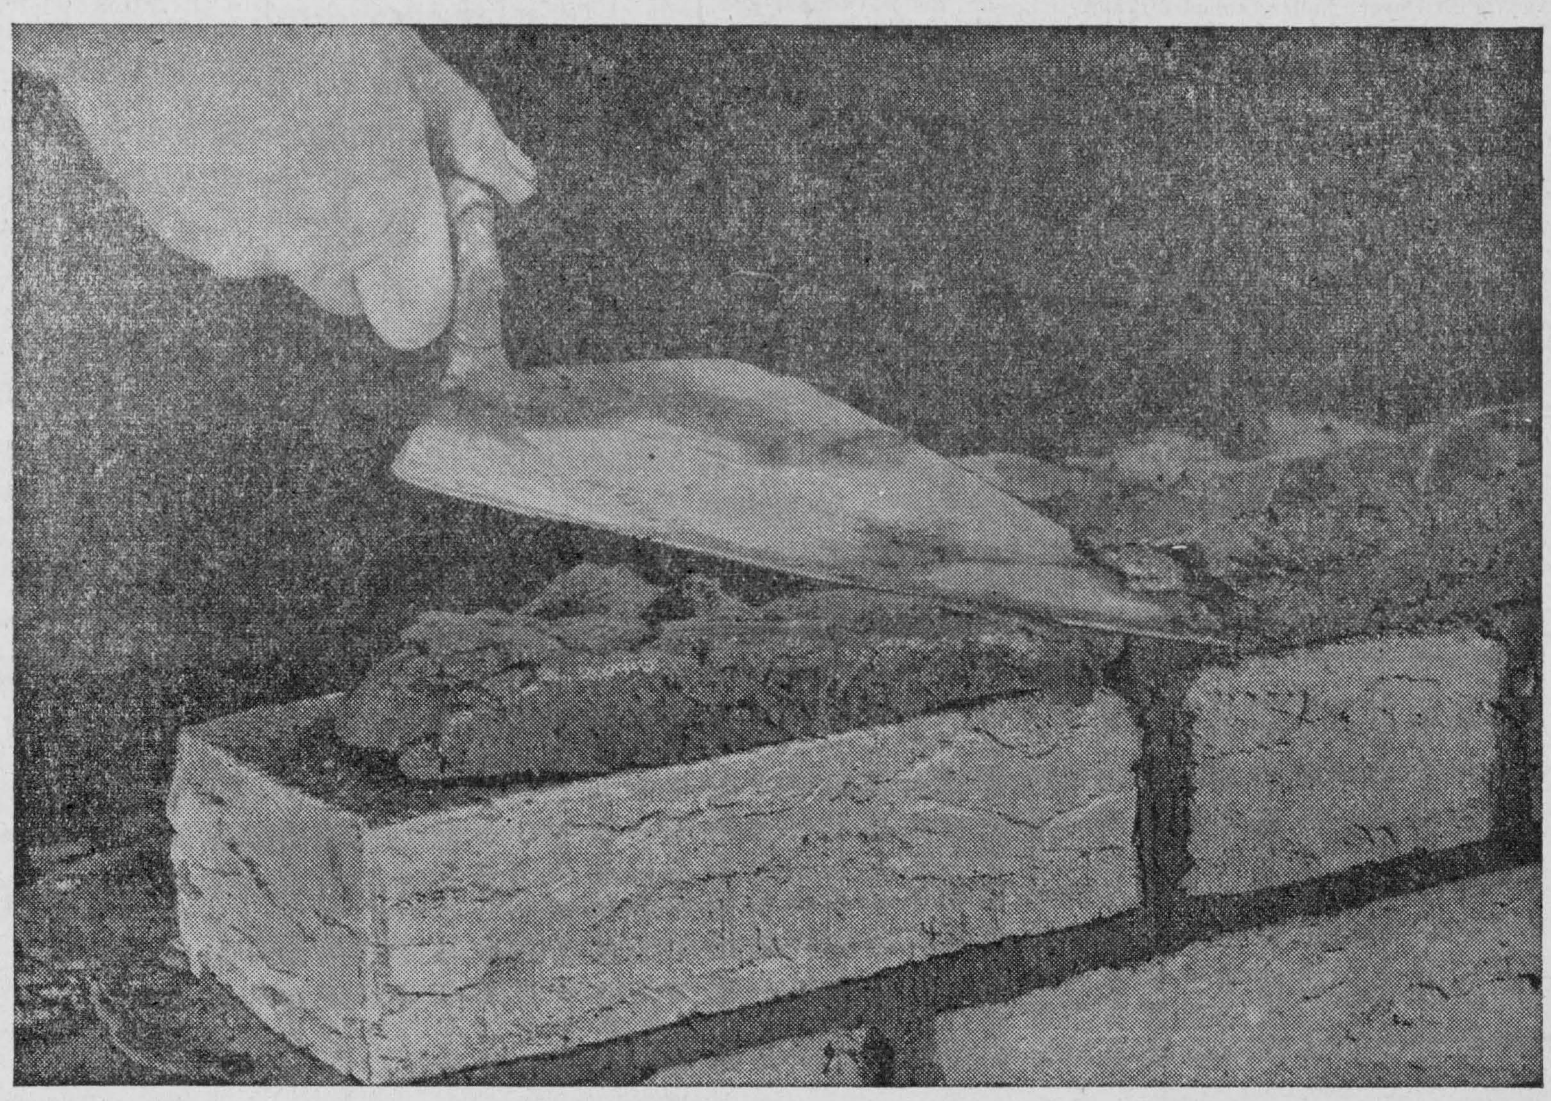

The present building, although of a temporary character is completely equipped. In addition to the school proper, there will be sleeping and dining accommodation for the student and instructors. Present facilities in the school include all the tools used in line work.

The course is one in which the emphasis is definitely on the practical work which will be supplemented by lectures and visual education methods involving the use of sound pictures. In this way men who "green" at the start will, at the close of the course, be thoroughly familiar with the most modern methods of line construction, the theory of electricity and safety practices. Students who pass the examination will then be ready to take positions as junior linemen.

The men who direct the operations of the school are specially fitted for the work, the supervisory and teaching personnel have had years of experience in many phases of Hydro work, while they have been specially trained for their new tasks.

For the most part, students will come from the ranks of returning service men. To qualify for enrolment, a student must have a minimum of two year's high school education, be physically fit and have a liking for outdoor work.

Picobac
THE PICK OF TOBACCO
It DOES taste good in a pipe

It takes more than bricks!

SOMEDAY THAT DREAM home will be yours—if you are willing to fight for it today! Bricks may build a house, but to build a home you need more than bricks! You need security—a job—a future! And these depend on a Canadian dollar that will always buy a full dollar's worth of goods—a steady, sound dollar that's not pulled down to half its value by inflation! That's why it's necessary NOW—more than ever now—for all of us to fight and work to keep that dollar worth a dollar!

Why is it so important NOW? Because now is the time civilian goods are scarce, and money is plentiful. NOW is the time we must guard against paying MORE than things are worth . . . or buying things we don't really need. We must support rationing, observe price ceilings, and avoid black markets. If we do this, we can keep prices from shooting sky high. If we don't, some day we'll be paying a dollar for fifty cents' worth of goods. This means your dollars—those dollars you've saved to buy your home—will only be worth fifty cents! This is inflation!

And after inflation comes depression! We know what happened after the last war! It mustn't be allowed to happen again. That's why, for our own sakes, and for the sake of the returned men to whom we owe a job, a future, a home of their own—we must make sure Canada's dollar remains steady. We must keep up a constant fight against our country's enemy—inflation!

Make this Pledge Today!

I pledge myself to do my part in fighting inflation:

By observing rationing and avoiding black markets in any shape or form.

By respecting price controls and other anti-inflation measures, and refraining from careless and unnecessary buying. I will not buy two where one will do, nor will I buy a "new" where an "old" will do.

By buying Victory Bonds, supporting taxation and abiding by all such measures which will lower the cost of living and help keep prices at a normal level.

26 Months in German Prisoner of War Camp

The prison proved to be the block formerly housing French PW's, and was cold and damp. With but two blankets, several of the group became ill. Tins were "bashed up" to make cooking utensils, and they settled down to bring order out of their misery. The main occupation was tunnelling from the huts and the military guards had a tough assignment watching these burrowing airmen. As tunnelling was discovered the group responsible would be shifted, with the result that Andy's lot were moved six times in the five weeks spent at this camp.

The Camp Commandant was a very happy officer when he saw the airmen taken out by the Luftwaffe. When they were marched out to head for the railway station, the road was lined both sides with German Air Force guards every few feet. But the Commandant had further worries. The Luftwaffe were not satisfied with the cattle trucks provided for the railway trip as the airmen could not be kept under a watchful eye, so back they went to the harassed army guards.

One week later the group was sent to Stalag Luft III, Saagen, in fourth class coaches. The "Goons", as the German guards were nicknamed, had a full-time job watching them. Three managed to escape via the lavatories but were captured as the train was brought to a sharp halt when a "goon" saw a pair of legs go walking past his window as an escapee made his way along the platform on the outside of the carriage.

Once the group was established in the new camp, an orderly routine was established. Gardens were planted and the food raised was a grand supplement to the rations. The Germans provided only vegetables for soup and black bread, and without the Red Cross parcels the food situation would have been very critical, declared Flt. Lt. Williamson. Everything raised in the gardens was carefully counted and in one season his group harvested 1700 tomatoes—the best yield of the garden crops.

Each man was given one Red Cross parcel each week, and even though they sometimes missed breakfast, the airmen got along fairly well. A kitchen was set up, and each took his turn at cooking and fatigues.

A playing field was organized, consisting of a baseball diamond, cricket pitch, and a football field—all on top of each other—but a good deal of sport was provided to give the men exercise and keep their morale high. Winter time was the most difficult as sports were harder to organize, and fuel was so scarce fires were available only in the afternoon and evening. As a result many of them remained in bed during the morning for warmth.

The pool set aside for fier fighting was used for swimming and "yatching club", but they were very careful not to allow the Germans to photograph them swimming as the pictures would have been used for propaganda. There were plenty of showers in the camp, but on hot water.

Each compound within the camp was surrounded by barbed wire, and the whole camp enclosed by two 12-foot fences of barbed wire. Between these fences was piled concertina or coiled, barbed wire. Searchlights were played on the fences constantly at night. It could be seen that the Luftwaffe were taking no chances with the escaspe-minded British, and Empire airmen.

When he entered the camp, there were 50 American airmen being held but as the U. S. raids over Germany were stepped up in late '43 and '44 this number grew sharply. The Germans placed the British Empire and American prisoners in separate compounds and then attempted to foster hatred between the groups—without result.

Following the invasion, the food situation became critical as German transport was transferred to the new fighting front. Rations were reduced to half a Red Cross box per man a week. In August, 1944, Andy said they had just enough food to "tickle" their appetites. Food became the uppermost subject of conversation.

As the season wore on and Christmas approached the food situation was really grim. The officers in charge decided a small portion would be laid aside each week to provide a Christmas meal of sorts. And then the seemingly impossible happened. They went back on full rations as 7,000 American Christmas boxes arrived one week before Christmas.

A New Zealander volunteered to cook for Andy's group, and turned out a wonderful Christmas meal. So heartily did they eat, that supper went untouched. In another week they were back on half rations, but the interlude was a happy one.

Secretly a radio receiver was built of bits of wire, tin foil, or what-have-you. The tubes were secured from guards who were "Black-mailed" after receiving cigarettes or coffee from the prisoners. In spite of constant searches, the guards failed to discover the set. Prisoners who were not in the "know" had no idea where or how the set was operated. They only realized that the news from the BBC came through regularly.

When Andy was let in on the secret, he went to the appointed hut, exchanging his bed with an airman from that hut so his absence would not be noted. After a table was brought into the room and the set was shown to him—built under the table top—he realized he had seen and used that piece of furniture many times. It was the table from the library, used by the librarian for checking out books to the airmen.

The first voice he heard over the radio was a girl announcing from New York. The thrill of hearing a girl's voice after so many months was indescribable, said Andy. Then the set was switched over to London for the BBC. He listened to the news for the first time in over two years. He said he couldn't remember a word of the broadcast when it was over. He was so interested in merely listening to voices from "home."

When word of the Russian advance came through the BBC, speculations spread as to whether they should march away or be left for liberation by the Soviet. But on the night of January 22nd, they were told to be ready to march at an hour's notice.

Then followed an amazing sight as each airman dumped his kit and tried to decide what he could take and carry. Finally someone made a sled, and in a twinkling beds were translated into sleds, with a ratio of about one for two men. The 2,000 men left in five groups, Andy's getting away at 8.00 the next morning.

The Germans did not appear to have any orders of where to go, and the confusion mounted as the roads became jammed with troops moving to the Eastern Front and refugees making their pitiful way back. These refugees consisted of very old people and children who were taking their few remaining belongings in whatever fashion they could manage.

In spite of their own lack of food, the marching prisoners were moved by the hunger of the refugees. They gave away packets of prunes which were grabbed up and eaten ravishly. Cigarettes were doled out by the prisoners occasionally, and whisked away by the men who rushed back to their caravans.

The food situation on the long trek was very difficult, as none knew how long the journey would be and consequently had no idea how much food would be required. After a brief stop at a village named Moscow, the sleds had to be discarded as a sudden thaw banished the snow, and once more kits had to be reduced in weight.

Reaching Spremberg, they were quartered in an armoured division headquarters, sleeping on the stone floor. After a few hours, during which they received the first bread ration since leaving the camp, they were taken to a railway station to board cattle trucks. These were very filthy, and they spent two days cleaning their trucks out. Then the airmen were packed in 48 to a truck—so tightly that when they lay down to sleep every man had to lay on the same side and one daren't move or his place would be gone.

As Bremen was neared, they stopped at Tarmstadt and marched three kilometers to a camp. Each of the 2,000 men was searched as the camp was entered, which kept some of the men waiting on the road until 2.00 a.m.

When roll was called on April 10, after news of the British advance had boosted morale again, the group was ordered to move on. With warm weather at hand, it was decided to take only the clothes they wore. For ten days they slept in the open fields by the road wherever they halted. But after enduring several nights of rain, the officers representing the airmen asked their guards to provide cover, and barns were taken over.

Considerable trouble was experienced from our own fighters attempting to shoot up the long column and the trucks at the rear which were clearly marked with red crosses. But after the airmen witnessed large fleets of German "ambulances" carrying armed soldiers and munitions, they understood the tactics of their own brothers in the air.

Lubeck was the final stop. Halting seven miles from the town, Andy's "block", which was on the tail of the column, went into the place in search of sleeping quarters, but were disappointed. Returning they found some barns along the road and spent a dry night.

The barracks in which it was planned to house the 2,000 prisoners, was built to accommodate 600, and were indescribably filthy. The medical Officer in charge was persuaded to have the billets cleaned up, and then allowed the men to remain in the country where they established themselves in a 2,000-acre estate 10 kilometres from Lubeck.

Troops of the 11th British Armoured Division liberated them after the third day, and on their first "free" day, the men wandered about picking up cars and bicycles to visit the countryside. Army lorries moved them to Lunenburg on the third day of their liberation for the start of the journey home.

At the Lunenburg airfield, Andy bumped into an engineer officer he had known in his squadron back in England, and a fellow pilot from Kenley, who could scarcely believe their eyes when he walked in.

From the Diepholtz airfield the liberated men were flown to England, and were overjoyed during the flight to hear the news that the next day was V-E Day. They arrived by train in London about noon on V-E day, but were disappointed as they were not allowed to stay to look up old friends or take part in the celebrations.

The group was sent to the RCAF repat camp at Bournemouth, and spent two months awaiting transport to Canada. Flt. Lt. Williamson arrived home on the 17th of July after crossing on the Ile de France.

Capt. J. A. Morris, who had spent part of a leave with the speaker in England shortly before Flt. Lt. Williamson was shot down, expressed the thanks of the club following a very hearty applause from the members and guests.

YOUR HELP

IS NEEDED NOW... IF WE ARE TO SAVE OUR LATE FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Thousands of Tons are Ready for Harvest

Will You Lend a Hand?

Food is precious—let's not waste it through lack of help! Now, in addition to our own needs, we must also help feed the millions of starving people in liberated Europe. This is a tremendous task, but it can be done, IF—we all do our share. This is the last harvesting emergency we are liable to meet this year—so let's all pitch in and do a real Job! Help will be needed from August 20th through to October 20th.

Fill in coupon below and mail TODAY!

FREE TRANSPORTATION

For four weeks' service, transportation will be paid one way. For full season (August 20th to October 20th) transportation will be paid both ways.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello homemakers! A search is being made for sugarless recipes for relishes. More than ever this year, ways must be found to store vegetables such as cucumbers, pickling onions and beets without sugar. Since pickles make a plain entree very tempting, we list a few recipes that may be helpful.

UNCOOKED MUSTARD PICKLE.

1 gallon cider vinegar, 1 cup salt, 2 ounces white mustard seed, 1 ounce of turmeric, ¼ lb dry mustard, 1 tsp. cayenne pepper, 2 cups brown sugar, saccharine (two ¼-grain tablets), cucumber, onions, cauliflower, etc

Combine vinegar and flavourings. Cut prepared vegetables in suitable sizes and place in the liquid. Cover with heavy plate to keep vegetables under liquid. The longer the vegetables are left in the liquid the better the flavour. Stone or glass jars are desirable.

PICCALILLI.

1 peck green tomatoes, 6 green peppers, 6 onions, 1 cup salt, 1 cup horseradisih, 1 cup sugar, 1 tbsp. cloves, 1 tbsp. cinnamon, 4 tbsps. allspice, vinegar.

Chop the tomatoes, peppers and onions very fine. Stir all together with the salt, and let the mixture stand over night. In the morning pour off water, add the remaining ingredients and cover with vinegar. Cook on electric element turned Low until tender, tasting at the last, and adding more salt if needed. Seal in clean hot jars.

PICKLED HORSERADISH.

1 cup grated horseradish, 2 tbsps white vinegar, ½ tsp. salt, 3 cups cold vinegar.

To the grated horseradish add the sugar, salt and vinegar. Mix well and seal in clean, cold jars.

PICKLED ONIONS

Peel small onions until the white is reached. Scald in strong salted water (4 tbsps. salt to one quart water), then drain. Pack in jars and sprinkle white mustard and pepper over the onions. Cover them with boiling hot vinegar. When cold, put in clean, cold jars and seal. One tbsp of salad oil may be added to the top of the mixture.

TAKE A TIP

1. White onions, cabbage and cauliflower tend to keep their colour if cooked in water to which has been added ½ tsp. cream of tartar. This softens the water.

2. There are two ways to prevent pickle sauce from burning as it begins to thicken—slip an old tin pan under the preserving kettle during the last ½ hour of cooking. If you have to leave the kitchen for any length of time, put the kettle (if it has not a wooden handle) in a 350 degree oven, leaving the door ajar.

3. Substitute 2 sprigs of dill for 1½ tbsps. dill seed.

4. Before fastening corks into bottles, boil them for 5 mins. to soften. Then, while hot, press them into bottles. The corks will fit tightly when cold.

Three Strikes—And Out!

Mr. Ash had a weakness for meek, mousy women. The first Mrs. Ash was a mild little creature, and when she died her grieving mate left one of her hats hanging on the hat-rack in the hall to remind him of her tender, yielding nature.

The second Mrs. Ash was likewise a quiet, meekly accommodating woman, and she showed her meekness by permitting the hat of the first Mrs. Ash to remain on the hat-rack.

When Mrs. Ash No. 2 gave up the ghost, Mr. Ash found another apparently indulgent and tolerant wife in the person of a certain friend and neighbour.

As he carried his third mate over the threshhold, Mr. Ash nodded to the two hats hanging side by side on the hat-rack and requested that they be permitted to remain.

"I will not disturb them," said the new Mrs. Ash. "But," she added as she disengaged herself from her new mate and stood firmly upon her own two capable feet, "the next hat that hangs there will be a man's."

And it was.
