Even if it were possible to build a better mouse trap, someone would come up with a better mouse.

CRUMBS
Graham's Loaf

Here we are sitting quietly in the corner of the west keep of the Castle, barely able to endure it, The reason lies in the sudden notion of the v.p. to cover the concourse leading from the ballroom to the bear's den with a wall to wall tapestry. When we wandered in after a hard day with the family creditors, there was a bunch of bent-over characters busily covering the family mosaic. They had hustled all the furniture out of the place into another room and left it looking like a small kid's face after a couple of teeth dropped out.

We rumbled about the inconvenience, took a couple of sad looks at the family jewels that will have to be pawned to pay for the rug and went out to the private part of the dwelling. There George, the female cat, and this tired scribe consoled one another with stories of better days and night life that is no more. When a floor is upholstered now, it is best to forego any thoughts of illicit affairs or even reasonably licit excitements. Of course, there will be some small satisfaction in being able to tread about again in one's stocking feet. The last time we took to the soles, a big fat splinter rose from the premium oak and entered our hide via a toe nail. Possibly the uproar that followed had something to do with the sudden decision to cover the cracks.

We have been flattered by the number of people who have wished us luck in our attempts to keep the Castle operating. Just the other day a friend of ours in Calgary suggested we keep the fire up in the hearth. Occasionally we are even invited to feed the flames with our own person, as happened recently when our emotions got the better of our discretion. It had to do with a small municipal affair about which we have had, on occasion, to expound. All in all, the Castle is in good shape, but the loafing corner sometimes is sadly short of news. This is one of the weeks.

We mentioned George a few lines back. That cat has been a great trial to the Crumb estate of late. There was a spell when we thought she would remain a constant kitten, with all the kitten's ways. Her only interest seemed to be eating and sleeping in the washbowl in the bathroom, with an occasional foray after the S.C.'s knitting. Then all of a sudden, things took a change for the worse. On the coldest night of the winter, the multi-coloured cat became a tiger. Her normal "meow" went up two tones higher and she demanded to be let out into the dark cold night, positively flickering surging ambition.

From then on until late in the morning hours a most interesting symphony orchestra played out its program below these ancient walls. The racket was enough to make Noah ashamed he ever let a pair of the beasts into the Ark. When morning dawned and life stirred again in the Castle, in staggered George. She was exhausted, tattered, dirty, hungry and the most self-satisfied female we have encountered since the day we muttered "I do."

There is a feeling abroad in the premises we may have to ready the nursery again one of these fine weeks. The kitten creche will need airing and we will start the weary round of wondering at the marvels of Nature's generosity.

Tenders called--

Liquor store to rise next month

Chesterville Legion recently held its installation ceremonies at Legion Hall. Present to officiate was Zone Commander Alex Bullock and deputy Zone Commander J. O'Brien. Pictured here after the induction are officers and the executive committee for 1962. McElheran property site just west of village

Tenders have been called today for the erection of a liquor store in Chesterville. The advertisement appears in this week's issue of the "Record." Tendrs will be opened in about three weeks in Toronto. It is expected the building will start very soon after the tender is let on March 2. The building is to be a combination store, selling both liquor and beer.

Plans were laid some time ago to make application to LCBO for a liquor store in the village. Sparked by the Chamber of Commerce, the application went through the usual stages, until now the store is just about a reality.

A site was purchased by the Board last Fall from Ethan McElheran. It is the acreage just west of his laneway, at the curve of the highway coming up to the race track and fair grounds.

It is understood the building will be the same style as the LCBO store at Embrun.

Winchester village businessmen last week met and discussed the possibility of a package store for their town. That village is local option and would need a plebicite if a petition raised the question.

C. A. Graham guest speaker at local W. I. meeting

C. A. Graham, principal of the Chesterville High School, was guest speaker at the January meeting of Chesterville Women's Institute held Wednesday evening in the library.

Mrs Myles Merkley, president, welcomed the members and guests after which the secretary, Mrs Dalton Docksteader, called the roll which was answered by members naming their birthplace.

The minutes of the December meeting and the treasurer's report followed. Mrs Fay Shaver, the treasurer, also reported for the March of Dimes canvass which was sponsored by the Institute. More than $225 was collected for this worthy cause.

Mrs Foster Bowman reported that the 4-H Club had grown and now was divided into two groups. The girls are engaged in a sewing project, 'Separates for Summer."

The euchres sponsored by the W.I. have been most successful so far, with the third of the series to be held in the near future.

The president stated that Mrs James Fyke of Colquhoun's Ladies' Wear had consented to present a spring fashion show in aid of W.I. work.

A twice-postponed report of the District Annual held last October in Ottawa was given in a very interesting manner by the president who attended as the branch delegate.

Mr Graham, who was introduced by Mrs Merkley, spoke on the new courses being introduced by the Ontario Department of Education in the secondary schools of the province. Some complexities of the new system were skilfully clarified by Mr Graham. Mrs Howard Kittle thanked the speaker and presented him with a gift.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs Kittle, Mrs Harold E. Merkley and their committee.

Air waves to feature Chesterville folk

Chesterville will be able to hear a couple of members of its community on radio and on TV in the next few days.

Miss Isabel Forward, daughter of Mrs Fred Forward, will appear on CBOT on Tuesday, Feb 13 at 7.30 p.m. A home economics teacher at Lisgar Collegiate, Ottawa, Isabel will have some of her class girls model dresses, begining with costumes back 118 years ago when Lisgar was opened. The program is called "Teen Time."

Also on the program will be a daughter of the former Jessie Bolster, who comes from Chesterville. Now Mrs Taylor Waddell, her daughter will play the cello in the school orchestra.

Dr. B. W. Lapp will team up with Frank Ryan next Wednesday, Feb. 14 on "Farmer's Notebook" when they will discuss some of the problems relating to hogs. The program is heard every weekday at noon over popular radio station CFRA, Ottawa.

CARD OF THANKS

Chesterville W.I. is most grateful for the generous response to the "March of Dimes" canvass, and for the fine work done by the volunteer canvassers.

William Maginnis, president Stormont Hog Producers Assoc.

Members of the Stormont Hog Producers' Association elected William Maginnis of Lunenburg and George Baker of Newington to represent them on the committee to elect a director to the Ontario Hog Producers' Marketing Board, Zone One. The meeting was held in the fire hall at Newington.

The 22-member committee represents producers in 10 Eastern Ontario counties.

In an election of officers separate from the selection of committeemen, Mr Maginnis was re-elected president of the local association, Mr Baker, vice-president, and W. W. Henry, of Berwick, secretary.

Directors for townships in the county include: Donald McLean and William Sanderson, Osnabruck; Alfred Beaudette and Jay Barker, Cornwall; James Pollock and Henry Moss, Finch; Orin Flanigan and Marcel Legault, Roxborough.

Mr Baker and Mr Maginnis will also serve as delegates to the Association's annual meeting, with Orin Zummach and Charles Hart as alternates.

In his president's report, Mr Maginnis outlined some of the local changes and improvements the Association had played a part in, notably the establishment of a sales point at Finch. He said that further improvements were expected. Weight scales are to be installed at Finch as soon as weather permits.

Guest speaker for the afternon was Kenneth Thompson of Kemptville, Zone director for the Marketing Board in Eastern Ontario. Outlining present policies and trends in the association. Mr Thompson, said: "Fighting days are over. We are going to sit down and do business as a business-like organization in future.

"It's a wonderful piece of machinery." Mr Thompson said, referring to the teletype sales system used by the hog marketing organization. "I feel the teletype selling organization is the best thing we have." Mr Thompson explained briefly the method of bidding on hogs according to data transmitted by wire to sales points scattered across Ontario.

"Eighty-five per cent of our people are satisfied with this set-up," Mr Thompson affirmed.

The guest speaker offered to answer questions. One matter that came to the fore was the difference in price between Montreal and Toronto market. The association officers pointed out that the difference was not always in favour of the Montreal market, and costs of selling also entered the picture, reducing the presumed advantage to selling in Montreal.

The local association officers reported that Stormont has won a prize of $200, payable to the local group, for showing improvement in the number of Grade "A" hogs marketed. This placed the local group in a comparatively favourable position financially, in a report read by Mr Baker as auditor.

In conclusion Mr Thompson remarked: "I think we've come a long way. There are still complaints and matters to be straightened out. But I think we are headed in the right direction."

The guest speaker was introduced by Mr Maginnis and thanked by Mr Baker. Election of committee members and officers was conducted by Kenneth Best, Stormont.

Local doctor speaks at Rotary meet

Dr Duane Justus was the featured speaker at Chesterville Rotary Club last Monday night. He talked about cancer, the symptoms, the treatments and the present medical assault against the disease.

The young doctor noted that cancer was one of the most heavily publicized diseases of mankind. Up to a point, that was as it should be, and he emphasized the need for early medical diagnosis and treatment. But there was sometimes a danger that some harm could be done by overstressing the danger and causing needless panic. Statistics show that Canadians die at a rate of 1-3 from cancer but 1-4 from heart disease. The sadness of a community is marked by a child's death from cancer of the blood. "But," said the medical man, "there are 500 more children killed a year in Canada than die of cancer."

A general review of the disease, disclosed there are many types ranging from the almost benign to the highly malignant. It is a difficult disease to diagnose for many reasons. Absence of pain is common, where tumours are concerned, because in most cases the growths are not nerve-bearing. Usually it is late in the disease when symptoms become very apparent.

Dr. Justus stressed the need for early medical treatment if any strange growth or sore became apparent. Figures show that just 25 years ago nearly 60% of cancer cases were fatal. Better education, better medical facilities and increasing awareness on the public's part has

High School News

Last week Chesterville High School hockey team played two games. Tuesday they played in Winchester and ended with a score of 4-1 for Winchester. Thursday they played in Kemptville and did better, winning with a score of 4-2. Good luck on future games, boys!

In December it was reported that our Science teacher, Mr Blondin, had given out several projects to Grades Nine and Ten. February 1st the results came in —in the form of 14 mice, all grown up and thriving, and a pair of hamsters. The animals were raised by the Grade Tens. Grade Nine raised plants and Room Five looks more like a greenhouse than a Science lab. The students made written reports of their projects.

Several of the C.H.S. girls have been asked to atttnd the winter skating carnival in Winchester as contestants in the Carnival Queen contest. It will be held later this week. We wish each of you every success and hope to see one of you crowned Carnival Queen. Good luck, girls!

The school was given small book marks last week with information about the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Last Monday the first meeting of the Literary Society was held. The making of the year book was discussed. Several plays were given out to members to read and discuss for future use.

Monday afternoon the majorettes received white boots for their outfits. They were paid for by a Student Council grant which the girls are paying back by selling soft drinks in the noon hour.

Tuesday Teams C and B in girls' broomball played at the school rink. Cathy Price's Team C defeated Pat Barker's Team B by a score of 4-2.

OPINIONS . . .
OURS AND OTHERS

Such peculiar weather

A subject of absorbing interest is the weather. No matter what the occasion, or the place, it is always proper to go over the immediate, past and future weather prospects. Nine times out of ten when the whispering couple ahead move down the church aisle aimed for home, they are discussing the day's temperature, not the heat of the minister's discourse. And for rural folk, especially, the weather is vital to their livelihood.

This district has had an average sample of the weather book of late. Nice winter days of above zero suddenly turned into real winter days of well below zero. When the temperature slumped to a nasty minus 23, then we had something to talk about. In spite of the bitter cold, last week, the little kids made the outdoor rink their second home. A few nipped ears and noses resulted but hardly anyone cared.

This newspaper does not keep a careful calendar of cold and hot days of the year. But it seems to us the coldest weather we ever experienced here was one memorable morning at thirty-eight below. That would be in January, 1930. The cold spell lasted for a week then, although it did not get as cold again.

In case present day bus riders feel like grumbling about waiting at the road for their school bus, that week every kid on the Finch Road walked, skiied or rode the sleighs to school and never missed a day. Of course, one froze an ear that remains scarred to this day, another ended the season in bed with scarlet fever and a couple more coughed until Spring. But kids were tough then and if they survived, they are the parents who now pay for the buses.

Chesterville and Castro

Usually a small weekly newspaper has little to say about international affairs. We confine ourselves to remarks about the local government and mild complaints aimed at Queen's Park and Ottawa.

There seems to be a movement afoot, egged on by the U.S.A., to enforce a dollar boycott with Castro's Cuba. Mr Kennedy feels dollars in the hands of the communist-minded dictator are being used for no good purpose too close to home for comfort.

Canada does trade with Cuba. But as Mr Diefenbaker pointed out, only in materials that are non-strategic or unwarlike. Like Holstein cattle, for example. And unless we tangle with a mean old black and white bull, nothing is less warlike than a placid milk cow. Our trading with the Castro regime is our own business, as long as it follows the general pattern of democratic procedure. Because of this, it is not for the United States government to lay undue stress on our trading patterns. Especially when our dollars come out to some four millions paid Cuba as against about six times that amount paid for tobacco and other items by the U.S.A.

Our big neighbour is upset to think the Cuban ruler is all set to allow a base be prepared for communist aggression against the American states. It is a worry, no doubt. But then we always understood the navel base at Guantanamo was a leased affair to the big worried republic to the north of the little island. For some reason, we can't get too excited over the Cuban uproar. It would seem Canada can continue to trade, within reason, following her own sensible pattern. "Cry wolf" is fine, if the wolf is not all hair and wind. Until the threat is proven greater than that, Mr Diefenbaker has the right word.

At last, it pays to grow old

The way things are shaping up in the hustings and on Parliament Hill, the sky's the limit in pension matters. One of the best barometers of an early election has always been the readiness of the elected members of our government to spend the public purse with a flourish at the starting gate. In January Liberal leader L. B. Pearson unveiled his contributory pension plan, aimed at an increase of $20 per month for old age pensioners. It was to be contributory, but with the employer as usual,, getting another piece of his hide nailed to the national barn door.

Dr Diefenbaker whipped up a brew, almost immediately, to cure the spreading miasma of Liberal hopes. He bypassed the speech from the throne, in favour of headlines at his own convenience, and offered a flat ten bucks more a month to the pensioners, The Tory program is estimated to cost a yearly additional bite of $120,000,000. Not to be outdone, the Grits announced they had the idea in mind all the time, and they too would offer an immediate ten spot raise.

The New Democratic Party always did favour giving all the rich fellows' pelf to the poor, so they have nothing new to offer.

What with one thing and another, it seems someone will soon have to either add more to the tax income of this country or develop a new way to make rubber money. By the time an election rolls around, pensioners will be drawing monthly interest on a government nut of between $15,-$16,000 per person.

Where does it stop, this cradle to grave insurance?

Watch that furnace or stove

This Sunday the chilling whine of the fire siren reminded us again of one of the dangers inherent with cold weather. Stoves and furnaces work overtime during the below zero spells. Fires in the home become more numerous and more costly.

The newspapers carry stories every day of fires caused by overheated pipes, improperly adjusted stoves and just plain carelessness.

It would be well to be especially careful on these cold days. Do not give fire a chance to be anything but warming comfort. Out of control, it destroys and kills.

"SPACE BUGS" LAND DEAD ON EARTH

The possibility that life began on earth as seeds from another world was ruled out by two scientists at a meeting in Denver.

Naked "space bugs" that might reach earth from another planetary system would be dead on arrival—victims of the sun's ultra-violet radiation—according to calculations reported by Dr Carl Sagan, a young astronomer from the University of California's Berkeley campus.

Even if the spores were inside a meteorite, they would be killed by thermo degradation and irradiation from the radioactive elements inside their vehicle, Dr Philip H. Abelson of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, D.C., reported.

His calculations appear to cast doubt on the "unearthly" [illegible] spores that two other scientists had reported recovering from a meteorite. The spores were probably the result of terrestial contamination, it was said.

The theory that the earth became populated with living things by spores from another planet was popular during the early part of this century.

[illegible] drivers who get stuck [illegible] now would get out quicker, Ontario Safety League, realized that drifts [illegible] the front wheels usually obstruct the car more than snow around the rear wheels.

Federal Government Report

By Mrs Jean Casselman, M.P.

the most practical terms, we face an enemy who is able, through the regimentation of a police state, to literally direct and compel the energies of his people to the accomplishment of the national aims, whether these be industrial, agricultural, military, or academic. This, of course, is tyranny. It is ruthless. It is the antithesis of democracy. But it is not bad for efficiency. He can win in these fields—and I am convinced that our people realize this. He can win and he will win unless we are able to accomplish by self-discipline and voluntary dedication to the job, what he is able to achieve by imposed discipline and forced labour. Surely in a democracy, measures are enacted in order to provide the type of climate which will stimulate personal and private initiative, which will release the energies of the people, which will provide a greater opportunity for individual effort."

Junior Farmers meet at Kemptville

Close to 160 Junior Farmers from counties of Eastern Ontario attended a one-day conference at Kemptville Agricultural School recently.

Sessions in the morning included brief addresses by Carolyn Murray, Stormont, Stanley Vanden Bosch, Lanark; Robert May, Prince Edward; Donald Johnson, Dundas; Nancy McWilliams, Russell; Delmer Kavanaugh, Carleton, and Karen Briscoe, Renfrew.

Delegates split into two groups following lunch.

Girls listened to talks on programming by Miss Edna Strong, president, Junior Farmers Association of Ontario; Ruth Shaver, home economist, Carleton, Russell and Grenville counties, and Alison Reid, home economist for Prescott, Glengarry, Stormont and Dundas counties.

Boys were taken on a guided tour of the KAS livestock barns and heard talks on livestock feeding methods and animal breeding by J. A. Dalrymple and C. A. Gracey of the school's animal husbandry division.

A. E. Fahl, supervisor of the Ontario Department of Agriculture Exhibit Service, gave an hour-long illustrated lecture on the planning, constructing and judging of educational exhibits.

Speaker at the evening banquet in Leslie Hall, Kemptville, was T. R. Hilliard, assistant deputy minister of Agriculture.

Also taking part in the banquet program were Edna Strong, Junior Farmer president; Ford Patterson, Carleton; Sheila Kennedy, Glengarry Sharon Young, Stormont; David Reid, Renfrew, and Barton McLean, Lennox and Addington.

ONTARIO WINTER APPLE FESTIVAL

February 1 saw the start of the Ontario Winter Apple Festival, when apples from last fall's crop —one of the biggest and best in years—moved from cold storage to market.

Such varieties as Spies, McIntosh, Greening, Cortland, Delicious, Winesap and Golden Delicious, among others, grew under ideal conditions for a longer growing period than usual, due to the fine fall weather.

They are ideal as a dessert fruit, for cooking, and for special desserts. For those on a diet they provide a low-calorie and tasty substitute for more fattening foods. They are good for the teeth and gums, and favourable tests have been carried out by dentists that prove their tooth cleansing properties.

Apples are nutritious, and provide many of the vitamins, minerals and other elements needed by growing youngsters. They make an ideal lunch box dessert, and between-meal snack, and won't spoil appetites.

This fine Ontario home-grown fruit is also processed and canned as juice, some if it fortified with Vitamin C. This contains at least 35 milligrams of Vitamin C per 100 c.c.'s of apple juice. This fortified juice taken in large quantities has been recommended for sufferers from the common cold.

Improvements in keeping qualities and storage facilities make it possible now for apples to be marketed all year, and improved packaging such as the development of polythylene bags and other packages that safeguard the quality of the fruit ensure top condition when it reaches the consumer.

Canadian apples have found favour all over the world, and have helped to improve Canada's export position.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

People really are funny. The truth of that statement was impressed upon me once again when I was reading Dean Hughes' column the other day. (Mr Hughes is the fellow who writes "The Craigs" on CBC radio.) He said, 'It is costing more and more to produce meat, milk, vegetables and fruit. Meantime city folk protest the slightest increase in the price of the food that keeps them alive but do little more than shrug when the price of liquor, entertainment and transportation goes up. The fact that one is a luxury and the other a necessity doesn't quite explain that either."

And any time you want proof of that just ask our breadman to report his experiences the last time bread went up a cent a loaf. He received a real blast from many of his customers but some were downright abusive. You'd think, he said, that he was pocketing that extra penny himself and getting fabulously rich.

If his report isn't sufficient to convince you of the peculiarities of people try circulating a story around town that milk will cost two cents a quart more next week. The reaction would be enough to sour every quart of milk in the place and give the cows personality problems from which they would never recover.

And yet, Mr Hughes says, when liquor, entertainment or carfare go up people tend to accept it as inevitable .

The fact is we're an odd bunch when it comes to matters concerning our pocketbooks.

Many of us would think quite a while before making a $1 phone call. Talking "long distance" is expensive and wasteful we've been led to believe. But we'd never give a thought to driving our cars to, say, Morrisburg and back and who can do that these days for a dollar?

There's the careful shopper too who would walk all over town to find cornflakes that were a cent a box cheaper than the others. Then next day she'd throw a dollar's worth of good food into the garbage because she carelessly let it sour.

Many a man would gladly pay $500 more for a certain model of car. What's $500 on the price of a $4,000 car? he'd argue. But let his wife suggest buying a $300 fur coat and he'd practically bite off her head. "Are you some kind of a nut?" he'd shout in a tone that would make her forget the coat for another year.

And often the very people who can't afford butter for their bread will bring home liquid refreshment by the case with no thought of the price tag or the total bill.

The thrifty householder who wouldn't waste a nickel on something foolish is often the very person who can be persuaded by a door-to-door salesman to sign the dotted line for a few hundred dollars' worth of aluminum windows, an expensive vacuum cleaner or some other big deal.

And have you ever noticed how many very careful spenders are anxious to invest in sweepstakes or tickets on cars, etc.? They'd certainly not donate their money to any other cause.

"Penny wise and pound foolish," the English say. And we're all guilty.

We'd turn off a light to save power then open the door to let out the excess heat. We'd cut Junior's hair to save $1 then gladly get a $10 permanent instead of a $5 one. We'd drive fifteen miles to buy gasoline two cents a gallon cheaper. We're really funny.

Of course there's a certain amount of enjoyment in the fact that we all have different ideas of what is extravagant and what isn't. You can look at your friend and wonder how he can afford to drive an expensive car while you have to drive one ten years old. And he can look at you and marvel that you can have broadloom on your livingroom with your wages. John Doe wonders how the Joneses can have their house full of books and the Joneses can't understand how the Does can afford to own a big, expensive motorboat.

It would seem that a great many people can afford to buy the things they really want whether it's butter or broadloom, grapefruit or gasoline, milk or martinis. So let's quit complaining about the price of food.

The Missionary and Maintenance allocation of $16,200, plus $454 for conference and Presbytery expenses, was accepted by the U.C.W. Presbyterial.

Rev L. Ferguson, Spencerville, spoke briefly on the new curriculum in the Christian education department and explained the part to be played by the United Church Women in this field.

A delicious supper was served in the church hall by the Kemptville ladies.

In the evening the inaugural service was conducted in the church by Mr Bugden, assisted by Mrs Earle Comstock, last president of Dundas - Grenville Presbyterial Woman's Association, and Mrs Roy Leizert, last president of Dundas - Grenville Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society. Rev Angus McDonald, of Winchester, led the service of dedication of the executive.

Just before the closing hymn, Mrs Roy Leizert presented to the first Presbyterial U.C.W. president, Mrs A. S. Allan, a gavel which had been given to Dundas-Grenville Presbyterial W.M.S. in 1925 and had been used since then. Mrs Donald Empey gave the new corresponding secretary a binder from Presbytery W.A.

Guest speaker for the inaugural service was Miss Harriet Christie, B.D., principal of the United Church Training School, who based her address on the words of St. Paul to the Philippians in Chapter 3, verses 13, 14: "But this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

She quoted the purpose of the new women's organization: "To unite all women of the congregation for the total mission of the church and to provide a medium through which they express their loyalty and devotion to Jesus Christ in Christian witness, fellowship and service." She mentioned hurdles that would need to be overcome and of how the United Church Women, the most significant step in the church since church union, will affect every aspect of the United Church of Canada.

HOT WATER PROBLEMS

If you like to collect miscellaneous information we know you will be pleased to learn that most people use more hot water in Summer than Winter. This is due to many factors among them being that small boys don't seem to mind taking a shower as much when the outside temperature is high as they do when it's below 32 degrees F.

An inadequate supply of hot water can be caused by many factors. One of them is sediment in the bottom of the hot water storage tank. Sediment acts as insulation and if the source of heat is at the base of the tank, the sediment will prevent the heat from reaching the water. The solution to this problem is to drain the sediment out of the tank. Another cause for lack of hot water is that the coils of the hot water heater have become coated with soot. This occurs mostly on oil and kerosene hot water heaters. The cure is to wipe the soot and dirt off the coils.

Many electric hot water heaters have two heating elements and sometimes one of them will fail. The other element continues to work but it can't do the whole job so you're in trouble. The solution is to have the element replaced.

The main reason for inadequate hot water is that the hot water heating system is not large enough. We require much more hot water today than we did 10 years ago and a 20 or 30 gallon hot water tank just isn't enough for the average size family. The thing to do is to get a larger unit that has sufficient capacity and recovery rate for your size household.

WATERING HOUSE PLANTS

Watering your house plants may seem like a simple thing and so it is if you keep a few simple rules in mind.

Many people do not realize that they can kill a plant by giving it too much water—just as easily as watering too little. The roots of a plant need to breathe. If you add too much water, you are robbing the plant of the valuable air that it gets from the soil. A water-logged soil is poorly aerated and plants growing under these conditions will have trouble from root rot and the leaves will fade and wilt.

To overcome this ,horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture suggest that you water less frequently and check to see whether the pot is allowing proper drainage. Pots should always have some gravel or broken pot pieces in the bottom to ensure good drainage.

There is no rule of thumb as to how often to water your plants; too much depends on their location. If they are growing well in a bright, sunny location, they may need it once a day. However if they are in a cool, darker spot, once a week may be sufficient.

One way to check is by tapping the pot. When the pot is dry, it will give a clear, ringing sound, while a wet pot gives a dull note.

If your tap water has been treated with sodium softeners, don't use it. The sodium may prove toxic. Use rain water or melted snow. Take the chill off the water before using it Cold water can be harmful to many plants.

When watering, soak the soil to make sure that it is wet to the bottom of the pot. This can easily be done by watering from the bottom. If you do this, water from above occasionally to prevent harmful crystal deposits on the soil surface.

WATERING PLANTS

If you are going away for a few days, and have nowhere to leave your house plants for watering while you are away, Ontario Department of Agriculture horticulturists advise the following:

Take a cloth with a fairly close weave and cut it into strips about one inch wide. Wet the strips and bury one end in the flower pot. Put the other end in a container of water. The water will seep up the "wick" and keep the soil moist. If the pot is large, you may need one or more wicks. Keep them away from the side of the pot or they will not work satisfactorily.

Pulp and paper account for 22 per cent of Canada's exports.

CANADIAN CARGO CARRIERS FOR U.S. ARMY

Forty new Canadian manufactured tracked "go-everywhere" cargo carriers will be used in the big U.S. Army winter manoeuvres to be held in the far north of Alaska this month.

These "wilderness work horses" arrived in Alaska recently for service on overland supply missions for the Army in the rugged far-northern areas.

Equipped with an eight-cylinder, 192-cubic inch engine, each vehicle can transport 11,000 pounds, in addition to a 50-gallon gasoline tank. Maximum speed, fully loaded, is 45 miles an hour.

Some of the vehicles, known as Nodwells (after the name of their Canadian manufacturers), were submitted to extensive tests in combat-like conditions by U.S. Army officials during winter manoeuvres in the interior of Alaska last February.

After these operations, a U.S. Army spokesman reported the Nodwells had "proved their superior over-snow capabilities in the face of deep snow, severe weather, and over some of the most difficult terrain in the far north."

As the principle of floatation is used in their design, they have a ground pressure of less than two pounds a square inch.

Six of them now are being used as training vehicles for future drivers and mechanics.

In simulated combat between Tok Junction and Nielson Air Force base, where temperatures can drop to 75 degrees below zero, the Nodwells will be used to cover trackless wildnerness, containing mountains, forested foothills and frozen streams buried under deep snow.

STOPS ESCALATOR

Carol Sue Ramey, 11, stopped by Tampo courthouse on her way to the bank to make a deposit. While riding an escalator, she dropped her piggy bank. It shattered and 1,350 pennies scattered.

The stairway was out of action two hours while repairmen extricated pennies from the machinery. Most of the pennies were recovered and Carol completed her trip to the bank with a shoe box.

KEEP THAT NEW PUPPY HEALTHY AND HAPPY

Now that the excitement of Christmas is over, you may want to give some serious thought to the welfare of your family's new puppy. He needs and deserves good care to keep him healthy and happy. In fact, his appealing ways and frolicsome antics depend largely on good health.

Distemper is one of the greatest hazards facing the puppy as soon as he is weaned, according to Dr L. H. Lord of the Ontario Veterinary College, Guelph. "Recent research indicates that puppies vaccinated at nine weeks of age and again at fifteen weeks will develop the highest degree of protection," says Dr Lord. He also recommends that dogs be given a booster injection one year later.

USE SEALER

It is well to remember the usefulness of sealer when it comes to painting.

Before you paint or varnish new wood, seal all knots and sap streaks with a prepared sealer or white shellac. Sand the defective surface smooth, fill any cracks or breaks in the knot or discolouration, then apply the sealer.

Homemaking Clubs of Stor. hold Achievement Day

The achievement day for Stormont 4-H Homemaking Clubs was held on Saturday at St. Matthew's Presbyterian Church Hall, Ingleside. This marked the end of the project "Featuring Fruit," which has occupied some sixty girls since last fall.

In the morning the girls tested their knowledge gained from this project. They practised menu building and breakfast planning, as well as answering questions on this food project. Their results were discussed by Miss Marion Waddell, visiting home economist from Lindsay, Ont., and Miss Alison Reid, county home economist.

Many parents and friends came for the afternoon program of exhibits, skits and demonstrations —all put on by the 4-H Homemaking Club girls themselves. Such topics as various ways of serving fruit, meal planning with at least two fruits a day, fruit salads and the importance of good breakfasts, were used in these presentations.

It was truly an afternoon for awards for both Club girls and leaders. Miss Jill Robertson, of Cornwall Centre, received a certificate and pin for County Honours on the completion of six 4-H Homemaking Club projects. Provincial Honours, given at the end of twelve projects, were given to Lois Robertson and Margaret Roberts of Cornwall Centre, and Jean Duff, Finch. The girls receiving Provincial Honours were also presented with Encyclopedia Britannica Year Books. These awards were presented by Mrs A. W. Loverin, district president of the Women's Institute.

A special leadership award was presented to Mrs Harry Pollock, Lunenburg, for five years participation as club leader.

The Spring project is "Separates for Summer" and the leaders' training course will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, February 27 and 28, in St. John's Sunday School Hall, Eamers Corners.

Expect local entries in Carnival Queen contest

Interest is running high in this year's annual Winchester 100 Club Carnival Queen contest to be held this Friday night, February 9, in Winchester Community Centre. The committee in charge said this week that all districts would very likely be represented and that the number of entrants in the contest may be a record.

For the first time, the committee continued, it is expected that there will be a good representation from Chesterville area in the Queen contest. According to word received this week it is anticipated that at least six Chesterville young women will be in the running for the top spot and the two runner-up positions.

The winner receives a host of good prizes, plus the 100 Club trophy. Runners-up each receive cash awards and all contestants will get theatre passes.

Outstanding judges in the persons of CFRA news director Campbell McDonald and Mrs McDonald and Ottawa Rough Rider stars Russ Jackson and Mrs Jackson and Ted Smale and Mrs Smale will do the judging of the contest.

Other features at the carnival this year will include race and costume events, high school skating drill and an exhiibtion of figure skating by the Ottawa Minto Club.

A record crowd is expected to attend.

Early flood at "Record"

One thing and another always rises to haunt the hard-working printer. The latest in torture is to have a tap run part of the night and flood the front premises.

Tuesday night a phone call at 11 p.m., by Tom Fleming, told us something was wrong at the office. He reported a small waterfall pouring over the front steps.

We arrived to find exactly that. An upstairs tap had flooded a sink, and the overflow rushed merrily down through the floor, outside and inside, to turn the place into a wading pool. We got it shut off and went wetly to bed.

Our gratitude to Tom for his welcome phone call is great. Damage might have been a great deal more if he had not noticed the trouble.

Newington West Mixed League

There's a rumour making the rounds up in Sandtown today that last-place team's captain George Hehir is making overtures to Rangers' Doug Harvey in a frantic effort to bolster his team and try to escape the cellar in the Newington West Mixed League.

Should he come up with a formidable replacement (or one of any kind), it will be a toss-up whether Harry Gove or Doug Zeran gets shipped to Lower Slobovia.

Betty Zeran's six took 5 points from last-place George Hehir's tea to tie Wilfred Otto for second place. First-place Norma Hehir took all 7 points from Wilfred's team despite Pete Zeran's best night of the season—an 845 triple, high for the league.

Ladies' high singles: Verla Gallinger, 258, 258; Norma Hehir, 230, 205; Zeta Godard, 207; Joyce Gove, 198; Thelma Gove, 185. High triples: Verla Gallinger, 765; Norma Hehir, 592; Joyce Gove, 475.

Men's high singles: Jim Zeran, 333; Pete Zeran, 322, 293; Fab Godard, 246; Medi Godard, 242; John Gallinger, 242; Johnny Gove, 245. High triples: Pete Zeran, 845; Jim Zeran, 763; Johnny Gove, 664.

LONG WAY HOME

Rickie Oprondk, a 10-year-old model airplane builder and an altar boy, left his Chicago home Sunday morning carrying $4 and a prayer book to attend mass.

He got home from mass, by way of San Francisco, covered by a round-trip jet flight, Tuesday night.

While police and his distraught parents sought the missing boy, he was found in San Francisco.

He got there, he said, by sneaking aboard an American Airlines jet passenger plane Sunday night.

"I didn't want to go nowhere," he said. "I wanted to see how it (the jet plane) looked. And it started. I didn't know the plane was going to take off."

Rickie said that after the plane took off he wanted to tell the stewardess he was a stowaway, "but I was too scared."

He spent two days in San Francisco, most of the time wandering around International Airport looking at planes and asking airline personnel questions about flights.

Airport employees noticed the boy was alone and called police. Police established his identity by means of the name written in the prayer book he had in his coat. Then they got in touch with his parents.

American Airlines sent him back to Chicago.

Police held the boy as a juvenile pending appearance in court on a charge of running away from home.

United Messengers hold meeting

On February 5 Trinity United Church Messengers met in the Sunday School rooms. While children assembled they played "What's Missing?"

The meeting opened with a hymn and Purpose. The offering was received and dedicated by Linda Reid. Minutes and roll call by Lois Kittle followed.

Mrs H. Marcellus told the stories from the study book, "Timmy's Team."

The worship service was led by Mrs D. Docksteader after which the members worked at making Scripture booklets.

World Friends magazines were distributed to the 22 present.

"DEATH DANCE" BY FISH BAFFLES SCIENTISTS

Australian scientists are baffled by the case of the suicidal fish.

For four days beaches on the northern coast of New South Wales were littered with hundreds of thousands of dead or dying fish. When people threw them back into the water the fish struggled to shore again in a vertical position with heads out of the water.

A reporter who went to sea on a trawler to observe the phenomenon said later: "I saw the amazing sight of fish swimming in an upright position, gasping for breath—then dying. They swam crazily on their tails round and round in small circles—an inexplicable, spiraling death dance."

The main death area was Evans Head, 512 miles north of Sydney, but the affected area covered 180 miles of coastline.

One trawler working half a mile off Evans Head and in 180 feet of water hauled up 200 pounds of dead fish in two drags. The fish included snapper, mulle, break, jewfish, yellowtail, mackerel, whiting and pilchards.

Some people ascribed the mystery death wave to bombing practice by the Australian Air Force, but experts pointed out that a bomb blast would kill fish only in the immediate area.

A marine biologist suggested three possibilities. chemical contamination of the Evans River, which flows into the sea at Evans Head; an outbreak of disease peculiar to certain species of fish, and a form of plankton that produces chemicals poisonous to fish.

The curator of invertebrates at the Australian Museum, Miss E. Pope, said the fish probably had been poisoned by "red tide" —a floating mass of organisms that consume oxygen in the water and force fish to surface.

After four days the fantastic episode suddenly ended. Fish in the area again swam horizontally and again struggled for their lives when caught.

ROOTSTOCKS AND APPLE YIELDS

Choice of rootstock for an apple tree is an important factor in productivity later.

At the Canada Department of Agriculture's experimental farm at Smithfield, Ont., the highest yields of McIntosh apples have been obtained from trees on Malus robusta No. 5 rootstock, according to researcher W. M. Rutherford.

The trees on this rootstock are intermediate in vigor and can be maintained at a satisfactory commercial size by proper pruning methods. Malus robusta No. 5 is also capable of developing a strong hardy trunk and scaffold limb area. This effect may be obtained by planting the stock directly in the orchard and in two or three years' time working the tree by budding or grafting to the desired commercial variety. This method is particulary desirable in the colder areas of Ontario and Quebec where low temperatures may cause injury to the trunk or main scaffold limbs. Topworking may also be disired in all areas for such varieties as Delicious and Northern Spy that normally produce main branches with narrow angles and frequent splitting.

Whatever the rootstock, the yield of fruit depends to a large extent upon the number of trees per acre. Tree size measurements at Smithfield suggest the following for commercial plantings: standard sized trees at 41 trees per acre; moderate sized trees at 58 trees per acre and semi-drawf at 87 trees per acre.

Based on these planting distances, the moderate sized trees on Malus robusta No. 5 produced 2,250 bushels per acre of McIntosh after 13 years planted in the field. Antonovka, a standard sized seedling rootstock with a tendency toward late maturity produced 1,615 bushels per acre. East Malling VII, a semi-drawf rootstock developed in England produced only 1,450 bushels per acre.

AUTO SALES SHOW GAIN

Lively interest in new model offerings pushed cross-Canada automible sales during October 33% higher than in September, reports Ralph P. Young in The Financial Post. September has been a slow month for sales with many dealers short of Canadian models.

New car registrations in the 10 provinces are now within 4% of the 1960 total to date. November sales are maintaining or exceeding the pace set in October manufacturers say.

Compact cars continue to take a steadily, if slowly, increasing share of the market, accounting for 17.5% of all automobile sales so far this year. Imports are holding about 25% of the total market compared with almost 30% a year ago.

Claude Merkley

Claude Merkley passed away in Woodstock General Hospital on Monday, January 29.

Born at Dunbar 71 years ago, he was a son of the late George Merkley and his wife, Emma Hanes.

Left to mourn are three brothers, Henry, Spring Water, Sask.; Samuel, Cobden, Ont., and Johnny Myles, Winchester.

SMART HIPPO

Jenny, a hippo at the Detroit Zoo, has shattered the notion that a hippo is all mouth and no brain.

Zoo director Frank McInnis said that on three mornings in one week keepers found Jenny lolling with her feet up on a guard rail around her pool.

She could accomplish this because, for some unknown reason, the water in the pool was several feet above normal.

Unable to find anything wrong with the faucet that lets water into the pool, McInnis posted a spy in Jenny's quarters.

"As soon as her door was locked for the night," said McInnis, "our man saw Jenny float over to the faucet, grab the knob with her mouth, and a great rolling and twisting turned it on full force."

McInnis said the pool had been built with a hippo's alleged stupidity in mind. No overflow valve had been installed.

"Now, we have made a couple of alterations. We have raised our sights on Jenny's mentality and we've added a length of pipe to raise the faucet out of her reach."

Cutting logs this winter? Mentally grade the tree before you start cutting it into logs. Choose cutting points on the tree that will group defects, such as branch stubs and overgrown knots. This will increase the lumber value of the logs and bring you more money for your labour.

RESTORING COBBLESTONES

Cobblestones, gradually disappearing in Britain, may be relaid in the ancient Buckinghamshire town of Amersham.

The main street with its timbered Tudor cottages and Georgian residences is one of the finest examples of "Olde England" and the council feels a cobbled street would add to its charm.

BUFFALO DISHES FOR THE GOURMET

The Northern Affairs Department is making another attempt to rescue Canadian palates from monotony.

Its latest suggestions include buffalo cutlets marinated in red wine, buffalo and beer pie, and even a piece de resistance called sweetgrass buffalo tenderloin en chemise Strasbourgeoise.

The latter dish calls for buffalo tenderloin brushed with brandy, alternated with slices of ham that are spread with pate de foie gras, roasted until half-done and sprinkled with chopped truffles, then baked in a pie crust and served with mushroom sauce flavoured with Madeira.

The department, by now an old hand at plugging Arctic char as a culinary delight, has sunk its promotional teeth into the "unusual eating experience" of Sweetgrass buffalo.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

The Rev Maynard Booth, Secretary of the joint agency of the British and Foreign Bible Society and the National Bible Society of Scotland in Rhodesia and Nyasaland, reports increased activity in his area since the opening of the new Bible House in Salisbury last year where Scriptures in 84 languages are distributed.

An interesting Bible quiz (of which 23,000 have been distributed) has been undertaken and Mr Booth has received some interesting answers to the quiz. One reply to the question "Who was Jesus' first disciple and whom did he bring?" was "Peter was the first disciple and he brought fish." To the question "Why did Jesus wash the disciples' feet?" one answer was "Because they were dirty" and another, "So his disciples could wash the soles of other people." It was learned from another reply that some of the disciples were fishermen and the others were sinners.

The men, called colporteurs, who distribute the Scriptures to the remotest part of the territory report great interest and increased demand. One old man after some of the Bible stories were explained to him said, "I must have these books." The colporteur asked, "What use will these books be to you when you cannot read?" The old man replied, "My son has learned to read at school and he will read them to me." So the Word of God is made known through God's little ones.

ONCE ROAMED PRAIRIES

Some of Saskatchewan's earliest residents were roving predators wth powerful tails and paddle-shaped feet.

They swam in a vast sea which covered much of the North American continent and most of Saskatchewan. Cup-and-ball vertebrae made them flexible of body and they captured slippery prey with sharp, two-inch teeth set in jaws that opened sideways as well as up and down. They ate quickly, swallowing their food whole or bolting it in great chunks.

The museum of natural history at Regina identifies them as mosasaurs — marine contemporaries of the dinosaur — and during the last two summers the museum has removed the remains of two of them from the shaly basin of the South Saskatchewan River dam.

The Ontario Safety League quotes from a mental health magazine: "It's foolish to expect complete disarmament - some crazy drivers will never give up their cars".

Friendly Circle meets at Finch

The regular meeting of St. Luke's Presbyterian Friendly Circle, Finch, was held at the home of Marguerite Susyczynski, with fourteen in attendance.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs Carl Waldroff.

BIG SILVER EYE TO PEER INTO TIME

A huge silver eye peering 1,000-000 light years back into time may one day allow man to write the last chapters of the book of creation.

The "eye" is the 210-foot-wide parabolic aerial of the world's newest, most powerful radio telescope.

Swinging against the clear sky from the pastures and fields of waving grain in central western New South Wales near Parkes, the huge dish-shaped aerial will gather in radio waves from the remote fringes if the universe.

It may give the world the answer to one of the great problems facing man—is the universe expanding?

The theory of the scientists who will man the Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organization's radio telescope may clash with chapter two, verse one, of Genesis.

After chapter one, explaining how the world and the heavens were made in six days, chapter two adds: "Thus, the heavens and the earth were finished and all the rest of them."

But the scientists believe that millions of new worlds and new planets and galaxies are being exploded in the infinite universe all the time.

They have already established that new celestial bodies are forming and that some of the old stars and galaxies are being destroyed.

Now they want to know whether this change in the heavens is expansion or creation.

The new telescope, the result of international co-operation, is surpassed in size by Britain's Jodrell Bank telescope, with its 250-foot diameter "dish" reflector. But the much greater accuracy of the 210-foot "dish" of the Australian telescope makes it superior for the detection of radio short waves.

Scientists say it is possible the Australian telescope, with its superior sensitivity and unique southern location, may receive the first pictures of living things on another planet.

Because many distant stars may have their own planetary systems there could be a multitude of planets like the earth, with their own intelligent creatures, scattered throughout space. If so, scientists believe indications of life may be found in the feeble radio waves emanating from nearby stars.

FAILED TO TRACE ROUTE OF MARCO POLO

Two Oxford students and a photographer who set out to follow Marco Polo's route to China failed to get there—but they returned with tales almost as intriguing as those of the 13th century Venetian traveller.

They started out on two motorcycles and came back with one, having left the other in Iran. They also brought back a fund of stories of arrests, a kidnapping and a camel trek.

When they arrived at the Afghan-Chinese border they were refused entry to Red China on a route rarely travelled since the Communist revolution.

The students were Stanley Johnson of Exeter College and Giles Watkins of Keble College, both 20. With them was professional photographer Michel de Larrabeiti, 28.

"The real aim of our journey was to demonstrate that there is still room in the world for mad enterprises and still people who are willing to carry them out," said Johnson.

They flew across the English Channel in a cargo plane and travelled uneventfully across Europe to Venice. There, police stopped them from driving into St. Mark's Square where vehicular traffic isn't allowed.

They journeyed through Yugoslavia and Bulgaria to Istanbul where they spent a week at a gypsy encampment.

Their first trouble came in Iran. Watkins hurt his foot and was left in Tehran, rejoining the expedition later after a long trek through mountains on camelback.

Letter to the Editor

Room 410,
Montreal Neurological Institute,
Montreal Que.,
Saturday, February 3, 1962.

The Editor,
The Chesterville Record.
Dear Sir:

I feel that I must write to thank you for your kindness in forwarding me copies of the "Record" each week. It is such a pleasure to read all the local news when one is rather far from home, and when I finish it —from cover to cover—it is passed on to other patients who seem to enjoy it also, even though they may never have been in Ontario in their lives.

Many thanks for your kind thought.

Marguerite S. Cole.

AN APPLE A DAY KEEPS THE DOCTOR AWAY

Why does an apple a day reportedly keep the doctor away?

One good reason is the nutritional value apples contain.

They carry vitamins A, B, C and D in quantities, that vary according to the degree of ripeness.

Minerals are also present, including calcium and iron, sodium, potassium, magnesium, sulphur, phosphorous, chlorine and copper.

When other foods are eaten with apples, the calcium and iron they contain become more readily available to the system.

Other vegetables containing calcium also have large quantities of oxalic acid, which makes the calcium unavailable to the system.

Apples are about 85 per cent water, and they also contain pectin. This helps to retain the water, and with the waste solids, provides bulk for the diet.

Apples also contain acids in amounts that are helpful to the system. Uronic acids together with vitamin A aid in the formation of mucous. This aids the system by inhibiting respiratory infections. These elements are available in apples as well as in other foods.

Although apples release acids while in the mouth and in the stomach, they eventually are consumed to an alkaline ash. This helps to overcome excess body acidity.

Apples are appealing enough to start alkaline saliva flowing too, further helping to neutralize excess acids.

Fruit sugars in apples help to give the body a lift by providing quick energy. They are easily assimilated by the system. Mineral salts contained in the apple may have a mild laxative function.

Dentists have commented on the natural tooth cleansing and gum massage action of the skin and flesh of the apple. The minerals contained in the fruit are also helpful to the teeth.

England uses on aggressive phrase to urge drivers to switch to low beam headlights when meeting or overtaking other traffic, says the Ontario Safety League — "Dip - Don't Dazzle!"

THE ONTARIO WINTER APPLE FESTIVAL

THE ONTARIO WINTER APPLE FESTIVAL is being celebrated during the first part of February. Why not join in the celebration by serving apples more frequently?

Pork Chops and Fried Apple Rings

6 pork chops
Salt and pepper
3 medium tart apples
2 tbsps. brown sugar

Brown pork chops in frying pan, season. Ten minutes before serving wash apples, cut in ¾" slices. Place in pan with pork chops. Turn apple slices to coat with fat; sprinkle with brown sugar and cook till tender but not mushy. Use apple rings as a garnish around meat.

Baked Apples

6 apples, cored
½ cup ground dates
½cup finely-chopped walnuts
2 tbsps. butter
1 cup sugar
½ cup water
Vanilla ice cream

Heat oven to 350 degrees.

Put apples in baking dish. Combine dates and walnuts. Fill centres of apples with date-nut mixture. Dot with butter. Add sugar and water.

Bake until apples are tender, about 45 minutes or less depending on type of apple used. Baste several times.

Serve warm topped with ice cream. Serves 6.

Deep-dish Apple Pie

Pastry for a two-crust pie:
Grated rind of ½ lemon
3 large baking apples
½ cup sugar
¼ tsp. nutmeg
¼ tsp. cinnamon
Dash salt
1 tbsp. flour
½ cup raisins
¾ cup confectioner's sugar
¼ tsp. vanilla extract

Make pastry and add grated lemon rind to the mixture. Divide in half. Roll one half on a lightly floured board and line a baking dish. Refrigerate remaining pastry while you make the filling.

Pare, core and slice apples thinly. Mix sugar, nutmeg, cinnamon and salt together. Mix flour and raisins together. Put half the apple slices in the pastry lined dish. Sprinkle with part of the sugar mixture, and all the raisin mixture. Layer remaining apples and sugar, and cover with top crust, slashed in several places. Bake in a preheated, moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 50 to 60 minutes or until pastry is golden. Cool.

Last step: Make a smooth mixture of confectioner's sugar, 2 tsps. water and vanilla. Dribble this frosting over cold pie and serve.

Cranberry, Apple and Pineapple Pie

1 cup chopped cranberries
1 cup chopped apples
¼ cup crushed pineapple
1 cup sugar
⅛ tsp. salt
Few drops almond extract

Combine fruits, sugar and salt. Let stand one hour. Pour into pastry-lined pie pan; adjust top crust and bake in hot oven of 400 degrees for 30 minutes.

lowered that figure. Today, fatalities stand at only 30%, a net gain of 30 in just 25 years.

Concluding his talk, the doctor told of the continuing research to find the cause of cancer. If that can be done, then it is felt a cure will follow. One of the most promising approaches at the moment is through the study of viruses. There is some evidence the chemical changes that are evident in the disease might be caused by a virus or a group of viruses.

The speaker was thanked by James Moonie. President Carl Merkley was in the chair.

It's pretty much a waste of time to drive back nails that have worked their way out. The right thing to do is to pull out the nail and replace it with one that is slightly longer and larger in diameter.

DOUBLE-DUTY TWEEZERS

If your hobby is model railroading or hi-fi building, here are the tweezers for you. They solder and hold at the same time. Each leg acts as a tiny soldering iron. What's more, application of heat from both sides at once speeds your work. The manufacturer says they're easy to use and don't get uncomfortably hot to handle.

Newington United Church has banner year

Representatives of the 80 families under pastoral care of Newington United Church held their annual meeting in the church hall on Wednesday evening, January 31.

Chicken and biscuits with all the trimmings were served to young and old at 7 p.m., followed by a short devotional period conducted by Mr Arthur Boal, student minister.

John Rutley reported for the Session — two weddings, two deaths and seven baptisms. Clifford Rombough, treasurer, retiring after nine years in that office, showed receipts of $5,562.81. Eldon Thompson, envelope secretary, also retired after 13 years service. New appointments are, respectively, Mrs Harley Weegar and Mancel Flegg.

Gerald Duvall showed $583.70 in the M. and M. statement.

B. H. McQuaig gave the statement for the building fund for the church hall, started and built in 1960. The very satisfactory report revealed: Receipts for 1961, $2,813.24; total receipts from May, 1960, to date, $12,757.74; unpaid balance on hall and furnace, $3,098.72.

All branches of Christian education have made praiseworthy progress. On the rolls of the church school are 97, with an average attendance for 49 Sundays of 71. The Hi-C group, under the leadership of the minister, A. Boal, had an average attendance of 27 for 29 meetings.

The W.M.S. and W.A., now the United Church Women, each met their objectives, financial and otherwise, and look forward with hopeful purpose to fruitful years of joint labour.

Four new members were inducted into the Session late in the year: James Webber, J. E. Thompson, C. E. Rombough and Edwin Waldroff.

The contribution of the junior choir of 20 voices under the leadership of Mrs Gordon Ross and Miss Phyllis Raymond, organist, has been much appreciated. They are responsible for church service once a month.

The combined efforts of all make for a very happy congregation.
