Miss Elsie Empey is Bride of L. Allison

A pretty wedding of much interest was solemnized at St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Williamsburg, on Tuesday, September 7th, when Miss Elsie Empey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Empey of Williamsburg, became the bride of Lloyd Allison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Allison of Winchester Springs. Rev. George Innes performed the ceremony, and the wedding music was played by the organist Miss Ethel Gordier. The soloist was Mrs. George Innes.

The young bride was charming in a floor length gown of white slipper satin, made in Victoria style, with high neckline, nylon yoke, long sleeves and bustle back. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a coronet of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and maidenhair firn.

Her only jewellery was a gold wrist watch, the gift of the groom.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Mrs. Donald Morrell of Dundela. She chose a floor length dress of heavenly blue taffeta and a corsage of mixed flowers.

The best man was Clair Empey, brother of the bride, and ushers were Percy Casselman of Winchester Springs, and Donald Morell of Dundela.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the guests were received by Mrs. Empey, assisted by Mrs. Allison. The bride's mother was wearing a gown of black crepe with matching hat trimmed in pink maribou and pink gloves. Her corsage was of pink roses. Mrs. Allison chose a gown of cobblestone grey crepe, with accessories of burgundy shade and a corsage of American Beauty roses.

Following the reception, the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls and American points. For travelling the bride wore a checked suit of black and white gabardine, with red hat and accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

On their return they will reside at Winchester Springs.

Among the guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Whitteker, Dundela, grandparents of the bride; Mrs. A. Dillabough, Morewood and Mrs. A. B. Allison, Winchester, grandmothers of the groom; Miss Mary Empey, Winchester, and Misses Ethel Warren and Geraldine Smith, Morrisburg.

Women's Institute

Morrisburg branch of the Women's Institute met in the Agricultural Office on Thursday evening, September 9th, with Mrs. A. Foster, the president presiding, and Miss Coligan, sec.-treas., reading the May minutes which were approved. Correspondence included a lettr of thanks from Mrs. H. Duval and a nottice that a modern dressmaking course would be held on October 4th —8th from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day. Mrs. Lee Duval and Mrs. Frank Hummell were appointed to procure a place to hold the class, those wishing to take the course may leave their names with the secretary.

Mrs. George Clark and Mrs. Merrill read letters of appreciation from the families in England who had received parcels sent by the Institute. The need is still urgent and conditions pitiful, so please send in your contributions to Seeley's Clinic before September 18th, so the next parcel will reach England in time for Christmas.

Mrs. Hugh Shennette, Mrs. R. Coligan and Mrs. Foss were appointed a committee to receive money or clothing for a layette to be sent to a mother who had received one of these boxes.

The information brought in by Mrs. Lucy Casselman, re saving used woollens for making rugs and blankets was brought before the meeting.

Mrs. Frank Hummell gave an interesting account of the District Annual held in Iroquois with Miss J. Dillen presiding, stating that 150 delegates were registered and that this district was credited as the only one with a 100 percent report. One point stressed was that vice-presidents assume more responsibility of the meetings.

Mrs. L. Laurin took charge of the social welfare committee program. Mrs. A. Murdock delighted the ladies with a solo, accompanied by Mrs. Hugh Shennette. Miss Margaret McKenzie, district director of Public Health, gave a talk on "Health", defining health as the well being to enjoy work and pleasure, stating that there was mental health and physical health, that cure is important, but prevention is cheaper. Three phases of halth are: sanitation, laws for prevention and protection that are paid for by dominion, provincial and mun icipal governments, and adult education in public health. In the United Counties unit they have a personnel of eleven, with sanitary inspectors who see the laws are carried out for our protection of food, water and milk, but they need support of the public as well as the members of the Institute.

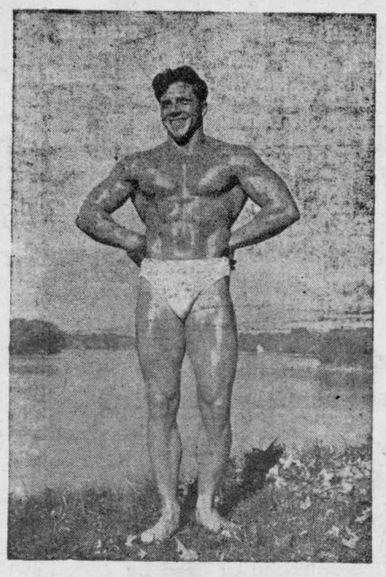

Mrs. D. Dillabough told of some of the highlights of the Canadian National Exhibition while the ladies in charge prepared to serve lunch.

Allen Paivio, Wins Mr. Canada Title

Allen Paivio, a member of the International Federation of Body Builders, a student at McGill University, who showed here with the Athletic Gymnkana sponsored by the Morrisburg Lions Club, was the winner of the "Mr. Canada" title at Montreal over the week end. Mr. Paivio made a good impression when he was here and those who saw the show will rejoice at his success.

Leo Robert, who also appeared in the show here, retained his title of Canada's most muscular man, while another star of the local show, Ed. Therriault also retained his title in weight lifting, as did Girard Blais, who was also here.

Robert Roy, 18, who also made a good impression here was runner-up for the "Mr. Canada" title.

ALLEN PAIVIO

The Ottawa Journal in an editorial in Wednesday's edition, takes a dim view of these "Mr. Canada" competitions.

We quote the Journal: "A healthy well-formed body, developed by exercise and sports is an asset of the greatest value in all walks of life. Well formed limbs and torso however could be put to much better use than for display like animals at a fat stock show.....The man who enters such a competition is surely writing himself down as empty in the head".

What the Journal editor has overlooked apparently is that almost half of those called up for military service throughout Canada and the United States in the late war, were rejected as being physically unfit.

These contests, to which the Journal refers scornfully, are all a part of an organized campaign to build up the standard of physical fitness in the North American hemisphere. Although it is unlikely that many from this district witnessed the show in Montreal in Saturday, those who saw the same performers here, were unanimous in declaring their approval of the whole show and of the idea behind it. These shows are sponsored by the International Federation of Body Builders, whose chairman is

MR. & MRS. WM. C. BARKLEY MARK 60th ANNIVERSARY

A very happy time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Barkley at Bouck's Hill on Saturday evening, when about 40 relatives neighbours and friends gathered at their home to honour them on the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Barkley were married on August 29th, 1888, in St. John's Lutheran Parsonage, Riverside, with Rev. J. Kennard officiating. Mrs. Barkley's maiden name was Miss Nellie Pruner, youngest daughter of the late William Pruner and his wife, the former Rosanna Constine of East Williamsburg. Mr. Barkley's parents were the late Mr. Matthew Barkley and his wife, Sophia Bailey. Mrs. Barkley is the last member of her family of two sisters and five brothers. Mr. Barkley was one of a family of four brothers and two sisters. Mr. and Mrs. Barkley have been practically life-long residents of this district and both are in excellent health. Their family consists of two sons, Ivan at home, and Oscar on the adjoining farm. There are five grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

About 11 o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Barkley were called to the floor, and Garnet Casselman of Ottawa spoke a few well chosen words of congratulations and good wishes on behalf of all present. Both Mr. and Mrs. Barkley replied, thanking all for their kindness and for such an enjoyable evening.

Lunch was served by Miss Clara Garlough, Mrs. Garnet Casselman, Mrs. Roy Styles, Mrs. Ray Weegar, and Mrs. Lorne Barkley.

During the day, Mr. and Mrs. Barkley were the recipients of numerous cards and messages of congratulations from their many friends who join in wishing them both health and happiness for many years ta come.

Could Have Used Some of It Around Here—More than a thousand square miles in Scotland and the north of England have been recently covered with floods following torrential rain storms. Many marooned families have had to be rescued from their homes, railways were put out of action, river banks crumbled and ripening crops ruined. Coastguards were rushed inland with life-saving apparatus—and some of them are shown here helping to assist a 73-year-old woman from her home in Berwickshire. Her husband, who is 76, was rescued by the same party.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

by Gwendoline P. Clarke

It's been a quiet house this week-end. On Friday Cicely went to Niagara Falls; Sunday Bob was off to Toronto and Johnny, as you may remember, is westward bound. The last we heard of him he was in Winnipeg—and still travelling.

So the week-end has been quiet but the preceding days have been anything but! We had hardly turned around from our first threshing before the machine was back for a second go. Unexpectedly, of course. Stook threshing was in progress on another farm when it rained so the threshers headed for the nearest farm where threshing might be needed. That happened to be here. It was five o'clock when we got word they were coming. Did we put on a spurt! I just about went on two wheels around the corners Of course we managed our rush-on my way to town for supplies. order dinner all right and although we were through threshing by two o'clock yet we had the men for supper because the machine only moved across the road to our bachelor neighbour and I offered to put up supper for his men too. After all when one has prepared one meal it isn't much more work to do two—and I did have Cicely to help.

Thursday we had invited two elderly ladies out for the day. I was just getting ready to go for them when a friend phoned from Guelph that she was coming down by bus that afternoon and would stay overnight. Her visit was the outcome of a standing invitation.

On Friday there was a threshing for Bob to go to; my friend to be taken to the nearest highway to catch a return bus to Guelph; a crate of eggs to get ready and to ship, and Cicely to be taken to Niagara. Of course Cicely could have gone on the bus but we had planned that I would go with her and Bob would drive us. Partner insisted that we go on with our plans and he would do the afternoon threshing. I didn't like the idea of leaving him to it—but oh, that man—he can be stubborn!

We saw Niagara Falls for about ten minutes and it was more beautiful than I had ever seen it before. There was more green above the falls—shrubs or brush of some kind which made the Falls a richer green in colour. The water was very low so naturally there was less spray. As we watched suddenly there appeared a beautiful rainbow over the tumbling water—my first view of a rainbow at the Falls. It was really something to remember. Much, much nicer than the artificial illuminations.

Saturday the weather had cleared and my two men were drawing in oats and working late. Because they were late, milking was late, supper was late — everything was late. But so it goes.

In between our joy rides and our big jobs we had a little job — a horrid, repulsive little job. And that was hunting tomato worms. Just before we threshed I found one of these horrid, fat green things but I didn't think much about it because any time we have grown tomatoes I have found one, or perhaps two, but no more. Well, the next time I looked at the plants I found to my horror that many of the vines had been stripped of their leaves. Then the hunt began and on our fifty plants we picked off no less than eighteen worms.

Never having grown tomatoes extensively we know little about these pests—how they come or what steps should be taken to keep them under control. But now I want to know all about them and how to deal with them. There are things I would like to know about tomatoes as well. For instance why is it that tomatoes grown in the garden are so much better than those one buys in the stores? For threshing I bought a basket of tomatoes and they were hardly fit to use—yellow at the top and tough and white inside.. What we get from the garden now are firm, meaty, and red right through.

It is truly maddening these days that so often we have to pay exorbitant prices for inferior goods. Why is it, when we have inspectors for this and inspectors for that? Everything we sell is graded without mercy. Could is be there is one standard for the producer and another for consumer? In which case where does all the good stuff go?

Answer to This Puzzle Will Appear Next Week

No Place to Go—In spite of the smile on his face four year old Gaston Lalonde is homeless—unless, in the meantime, the Montreal children's court has found him one. When his parents separated shortly after his birth Gaston was taken in charge by a garage mechanic. Tiring of the job the latter took the little lad for a walk, gave him a nickel for a cone, then walked out of his life.

Goodbye Maple Tree?

A forestry expert in Southwestern Ontario has warned that the stately hard maple is dying out. He forecasts that, in another few years, the tree will be as extinct as the passenger pigeon. The causes are manifold, but chief among them are mismanagement of the farm woodlot and the increase of disease that attacks the tree. Southern Ontario has already lost the chestnut tree which was a distinctive feature of its landscape a generation ago, and the New England elm is on the way out.

Just Slang

"What does this expression 'Sez you' mean?" asked the judge.

The clerk of the court replied: "My lord, it appears that this is a slang expression of American origin which has gained regrettable currency in the language of our people through the insidious agency of the cinema, and is, I am led to understand, employed to indicate a state of dubiety in the mind of the speaker as to the veracity or credibility of a statement made to him."

"Oh, yeah!" said the judge.

THE FARM FRONT

by John Russell

Most farmers know the value of limestone for "sweetening" certain types of soil; but there may be many who are not aware that results from liming depend to a large extent on the quality of the limestone that is used. Some varieties may run as high as 10 per cent moisture content, others not more than 3 or 4 per cent. And it stands to reason that a man who buys the former variety is paying good money for a whole lot of water.

Fineness of grind is something else that should be checked. Coarse limestone releases its benefits to the soil very slowly. For example, recent tests have shown that limestone that won't go through a four-mesh sieve—that is four spaces per inch— won't do any good in less than three years, whereas the kind that will pass through a 50-mesh sieve is 100 per cent available within a similar period.

A question often asked, especially by those who have installed septic tanks fairly recently, is whether there is any danger in running into such tanks soapy water, or water in which cleaning fluids have been dissolved.

The answer is that ordinary mild soaps, or any of the new "detergent cleaners" are not likely to cause any trouble. But care should be taken with the use of strong caustics or disinfectants, as the useful bacteria which work in the septic tanks are even more easily destroyed than harmful germs.

So great care should be taken about the use of concentrated lye, chlorine solutions, chloride of lime, carbolic acid and other strong disinfectants. Water in which any of these has been used should go some place other than into your septic tank.

It has been estimated that the livestock industry in Canada and the United States is being robbed of up to one hundred and fifty million dollars a year—and not by packing plants, price controls, lack of price controls, or anything of the sort. The robbers referred to are internal livestock parasites.

Such parasites, according to expert veterinarians, can be controlled — carbon disulfide, hexachlorethane, sodium fluoride and phenothiazine being some of the chemicals used to fight various types of the pests. But it's just as well not to fool around with such things "on your own." Better consult a vet and find out from him which parasites are causing damage, and what is the best method of treatment.

Mice can do plenty of damage to a young orchard, as no doubt plenty of you have learned to your sorrow. Three thicknesses of heavy, oiled wrapping paper tied around the young trunks with two or three pieces of string is a simple but effective method of giving them protection.

This was proved by an orcharist out on the west coast. Last year he didn't get around to wrapping 2½ acres of young pear trees —and in the spring he had to replant nearly half of that area. But on five and a half acres—more than 800 trees— that were wrapped, only twenty trees were damaged by mice.

Most lovers of cowboy stories, and those who like movies of the "Wild West" type, know that "maverick" is the name given to unbranded cattle. But perhaps you didn't know that the name was derived from an actual person—Samuel A. Maverick, a Texas politician and cattleman.

The tale goes that many years ago Texas cattle-raisers,—tired of "rustling" and the resulting feuds and shootings—decided that each of them would brand his cattle with some distinctive mark, thus doing away with disputes over ownership. So they all picked out their "brands," which were registered—all, that is to say, except one.

This was Maverick who said, "Now that all you fellows have settled on your brands, there isn't any sense in me getting one—I'll just let mine run the ranges unmarked." Which, to the rest of them, seemed like a fair enough idea—for a while; and for some years the cow punchers, when they came across some unbranded beasts, would say, "Oh, those are Mavericks."

But as time went on those unsuspecting westerners began to realize that the herds owned by the wily Mr. Maverick were increasing in numbers at a far greater rate than any of theirs. So at last they clamped down on the nifty little scheme, and insisted that Maverick get a distinctive brand of his own, and stop laying claim to all the cattle which had happened to escape the annual roundup. But the name has stuck—although no longer with a capital "M."

Not So Wonderful

In the post office of a Northern Ontario village a stranger saw the local patriarch sitting on a flour barrel and whistling. A bystander informed him that the old fellow had already passed his one hundredth birthday. Impressed, the stranger exclaimed: "Isn't that amazing!"

"We don't see nothin' amazin' 'bout it round here," was the laconic reply. "All he's done is grow old—and he took longer than most people would to do that!"

In 1890's America Went Bicycle Crazy

Back in the 1890's Canada and the United States were swept by a craze for bicycling which was a real phenomenon, commercially as well as from the standpoint of recreation. The people of North America spent over a hundred million dollars for bicycles between 1890 and 1896.

The first safely bicycles cost $300. The average bicycle still cost over $100 in 1895, when $3 bought a good pair of shoes; $15 a man's good suit; 50c a presentable shirt; and 14c for a dozen eggs seemed expensive. Men and women deprived themselves of many things to buy 'wheels' and for ten years the bicycles threw a frightening shadow over the country's economy.

Reports written during the period are evidence of the hysteria created among businessmen by the economic inroads of the bicycle. In 1896 the watch and jewelry business was all but defunct, piano business was off 50 per cent, furniture men were pleading with young ladies to stop buying bicycles with their savings, and saloon keepers were growling that the bicycle was taking bread out of their mouths."

Eggsibit 'A'—Eggs show their colors under invisible ultra-violet rays, new tests show. A really fresh egg shows scarlet, while a rotten egg appears purple. Westinghouse engineer Willett R. Wilson inspects a dozen.

Axis Sally Arraigned for Treason. Following her arraignment before a U.S. commission on charges of treason Mildred Elizabeth Gillars, better known as "Axis Sally" is interviewed by reporters. Miss Gillars, who was flown from Germany was held without bail and remanded to the district jail to await a preliminary hearing.

HANDS AT WORK... for ONTARIO

LEARNING MACHINE ASSEMBLY

ONTARIO'S products are desired and purchased by people all over the world and the capacity to produce such goods largely determines the economic welfare of every man, woman and child within her borders. Because the sale of every article produced in Ontario brings valuable dollars into this Province, we all are more assured of job security . . . and we and our children can have more of the better things in life. But to produce such goods in sufficient quantities, skilled labour is vital. That is why every single one of us should be glad that war veterans are constantly being trained to provide the skilled hands so needed by industry. They receive ON THE JOB training under expert instructors in our Ontario factories.

This training, provided through the co-operation of the Department of Veterans' Affairs, the Federal Department of Labour and the Ontario Department of Education, starts the veteran on the road to skilled craftsmanship. In assembling business machines, for example, veterans must have a thorough knowledge of electricity and must learn to perform intricate work on precision machines having thousands of separate parts. These Canadian-made business machines are sold in all parts of the world, creating new wealth for Canada and Ontario. Therefore every effort of these newly skilled veterans helps to make Ontario a finer place in which to live and contributes to the welfare and happiness of all her citizens.

MACHINE ASSEMBLY

John N. West, 25, of Toronto, a Royal Canadian Navy veteran, is shown here making an adjustment to one of the 10,000 parts in a business machine designed for a New Zealand firm.

Various types of business machines are produced in Ontario factories. Because of their intricate mechanisms it is essential that these machines be checked by expert craftsmen at every stage of their production.

LOCK YOUR CAR WHEN YOU LEAVE IT

Thieves are no respecters of persons. Any car—perhaps yours—may be their next target. An unlocked automobile is an invitation to lawbreakers, whether it is parked on a downtown street or in the driveway at home. It's a good habit to be certain that ignition keys are removed and to lock your car before you leave it. This is a simple and effective way of discouraging would-be thieves . . . it removes temptation. Discouragement of crime in any form is "Good Citizenship".

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

Cleaning Fluids—Handle With Care

Not long ago a New Jersey woman attempted to clean a pair of gloves with an inflammable cleaning fluid near a lighted coal stove. Two minutes later she was dead. So were a neighbor's two little girls who were visiting her. Her three small sons, pulled from the flaming wreckage of the home, died of burns in an ambulance on the way to a hospital.

In another instance a maid who decided to clean several articles of clothing with naptha forgot to open the doors and windows of the room in which she was working. She was found on the floor shortly afterward in a semi-conscious condition and bleeding from a laceration of the scalp. Evidently she had fallen and injured herself when overcome by the fumes of the cleaning fluid. Fortunately, she recovered, although the head injury disabled her for three weeks.

These cases are not isolated incidents. Similar ones happen repeatedly. They illustrate the danger of using solvents carelessly round the home. Protection against these organic solvents—the chemists' name for many cleaning fluids—demands a knowledge of their hazards.

These hazards are of four kinds. Some solvents are highly inflammable, and all give off harmful vapors. All can be injurious to the skin, and all are poisonous if taken internally.

Five types of organic solvents are used in the home for cleaning clothes, rugs, upholstery and leather; for thinning and removing paints; and for dozens of other purposes. The most common of these solvents are:

1. Gasoline, naptha and benzine.
2. Turpentine.
3. Benzol (sometimes called benzene; not to be confused with benzine).
4. Methyl and ethyl alcohol.
5. Carbon tetrachloride.

Care must be taken, also, to avoid breathing the vapors of organic solvents, because all the common ones are anesthetics, and some may cause more or less serious injury to internal organs if large amounts of the vapor are inhaled for a considerable period of time.

The most serious solvent hazard is that of inflammability. According to the National Fire Protection Association, about 200 persons are killed annually and a thousand injured in 23,000 fires caused by inflammable cleaning fluids used in American homes.

As far as inflammability is concerned, carbon tetrachloride is 100 per cent safe, since it will not burn and its vapors will not explode. In fact, the liquid is an efficient and widely-used fire extinguishing agent, since it vaporizes on contact with heat and smothers a fire.

Ethyl and methyl alcohol are inflammable solvents, somewhat more so than turpentine but much less inflammable than gasoline, benzine and benzol.

Highly Inflammable

Gasoline and its related products are so highly inflammable that many states have regulations gainst storing them in the home. They give off highly inflammable vapors which can flow in invisible streams as far as 200 feet from their source.

Where the inflammable solvents are concerned the danger of fire is greater inside the home than outside, since indoors there are more sources of ignition for solvent vapors, such as stoves, furnaces, electrical appliances, and the like. Also there are more combustible materials to spread a fire. Accordingly, inflammable solvents should be used out of door wherever possible.

Care must be exercised to avoid generating static electrical sparks when pouring the solvents from one metal container into another or when rubbing cleaning fluid on fabrics, leather or other articles to be cleaned. By placing the pan or basin in which the fluid is to be used on the ground out of doors, static electricity may be conducted harmlessly off into the earth. Those who tend to minimize the danger of such static electrical sparks might bear in mind that even the tiny sparks generated by rubbing a cat's fur have been known to ignite explosive solvent vapors.

All the highly inflammable solvents should be stored outdoors, in approved safety containers, and only in small quantities.

With the Movie and Radio Folks

By Grace Sharp

In commenting on the return of "The Pause that Refreshes" program to the air, after its summer layoff, The New York Times showers some nice—and well-merited—compliments in the direction of Percy Faith, Canadian orchestra leader. This is to say he was originally a Canadian, although it begins to look as if the bigger opportunities south of the border have taken a firm hold on him.

"Under the knowing hand of Percy Faith, the programming for the broadcast draws its subbstance largely from the enduring popular favorites and selections currently enjoying public approval," the review says, in part. "Mr. Faith treats each to the same skilful orchestration which brings out the richness in a song without tamepring with its melody."

Then the reviewer goes on to make some remarks which will strike a receptive note in the hearts of thousands who fairly detest the over-lengthy commercial "plugs" which mar so many of the programs we hear.

"Not the least of the program's virtues are its commercials, which are exemplary for modesty in length and tone . . . In addition to being fine entertainment (The Pause That Refreshes) is a lesson in good public relations and an asset to broadcasting."

In the British-made film entitled "Cockpit" Harcourt Williams plays the part of a priest whose hands have been completely maimed and fingers broken by torture in concentration camps in which he had been confined. How he gets this effect of maiming is rather interesting, I think.

Before he went in front of the cameras the make-up man would apply to Williams' hands a mixture of plastic and gelatine. This was then covered with a coating of collodion—which drew up the actor's hands to such an extent that he was unable to use a knife and fork while it was on, and had to be fed.

Just in case you ever get into an argument as to wha was the first motion pciture ever produced in Canada — or even if you don't — here are the facts.

It was "Hiawatha" filmed at Desbarats, Ontario, back in 1903 by Charles Urban, an American from Chicago, who later did a lot of cinema pioneering in Great Britain. The acting—or most of it anyway—was done by Ojibway Indians, and the picture consisted of some twenty scenes, and ran 825 feet in length.

They must have established some sort of a record when they made "Four Faces West" in which Joel McCrea and Frances Dee are featured. Although it is a typical Western, with bank robbers, sheriffs, posses and all "the fixin's" and although there are guns all over the place, not a single shot is fired. Nearest anybody comes to getting knocked off is when McCrea gets bit by a rattlesnake; but in spite of this the picture doesn't lack for action.

A small Nova Scotia fishing village is the setting for "Johnny Belinda" starring Lew Ayres and Jane Wyman—but whether it is the real thing or a reasonable Hollywood facsimile I haven't heard. It's said to be a very sincere and touching film, with Ayres playing the part of a young doctor who befriends a girl who is a deaf mute, and who is being badly abused by a brute of a father. Jane Wyman's performance is being hailed as one of the finest ever screened—and some of the critics are already predicting an Academy Award for her on the strength of it.

CHICKEN—COUNTRY-STYLE

Here's an easy way to prepare a tasty, hearty chicken dinner that cuts preparing time down to a minimum.

One plump 3-4 lb. frier.	Pepper.
Butter.	Flour.
Salt.	Bacon Fat.

(Exact measurements are not given as they depend on the size of the chicken and the number of parts in which the bird is cut

Cut the chicken into pieces which will make generous servings. Cover each piece thoroughly with butter (a pastry brush is an ideal utensil for this job). Sprinkle servings with salt and pepper, then dust with flour.

Heat an old-fashioned iron-handled spider (cast-iron frying pan). Pour sufficient bacon fat to "fry" the chicken pieces, which are placed in the spider cut side down. Put the spider into a 350 degree oven and BAKE for about one hour. We suggest you serve baked pepper squash halves and carrots and peas with this. Then treat the family to the New Caramel Cake.

CARAMEL CAKE

This recipe fills a 2½ quart mold, which can be any shape you want. A round mixing bowl will do if no other mold is available.)

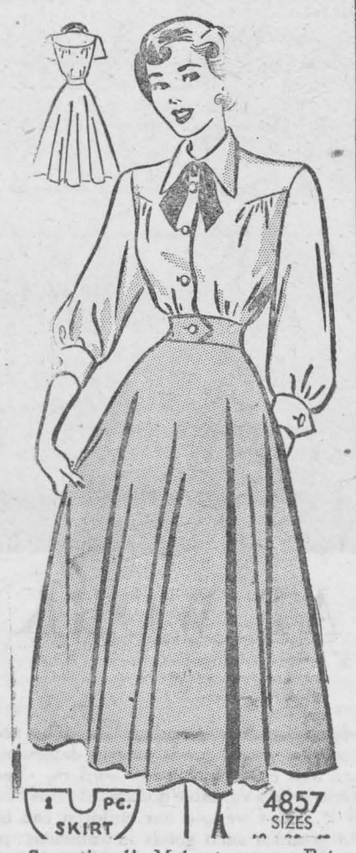

Melt 60 caramel candy squares in 5 cups milk over low heat. Soak 3 envelopes unflavored gelatin in 1 cup cold milk. Melt 6 tablespoons butter in the top of a double boiler and blend in 7 tablespoons flour. Stir in slowly 1 cup cold milk, then the hot milk in which the caramels are melted. Cook in double boiler until smooth and thick, add gelatin, 1 tablespoon vanilla and ½ teaspoon salt, and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Cool to lukewarm.

Spread 2½ cups nut meats—English walnuts or pecans—or a mixture of both—on a cookie sheet and toast in a 450 degree F. oven until brown. (This will take watching. Shake the cookie sheet often and turn nuts over with a pancake turner so they will brown evenly.) When they are cool, set aside a dozen or so perfect halves to decorate the top of the mold and cut or break the rest into fairly large pieces and stir them into the pudding.

Now line the sides of the mold with lady fingers in a pattern that suits its shape. If you're using an oblong or square mold, put lady fingers on the bottom as well as on the sides. Spread a thin coating of softened butter on the outside of the lady fingers and they will stick to the mold wherever you place them. Spoon in the pudding being careful not to disarrange the lady fingers, cover with wax paper and store in the refrigerator until set.

Before serving top with whipped cream and chocolate sauce.

The SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Barnabas, A Good Man

Acts 4:36-37; 9:26-27; 11:22-26; 13:1-3.

Golden Text:—He was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith.—Acts 11:24.

A man who has been preaching for forty-five years said, "If I were starting out again as a young man I should preach more of comfort and encouragement." Joses, a Levite from Cyprus, so excelled in this type of ministry that the apostles surnamed him Barnabas, which means "the son of consolation."

Barnabas played an important part in assisting Saul into the full-time ministry. Saul came to Jerusalem to join the disciples there but he was shunned, as they thought it might be a trick to get on the inside and secure their death. But Barnabas befriended him. He told the apostles of Saul's conversion, he was then accepted as one of them.

After the martyrdom of Stephen the disciples were scattered but they bore witness of Jesus. At Antioch many believed and Barnabas was sent to that city. Then he went to Tarsus and sought Saul, and together they ministered there for a year. It was soon apparent that Saul, now called Paul, was the greater of the two men. They disagreed at the outset of the second missionary journey with respect to taking Mark. They parted, Barnabas taking Mark and Paul taking Silas. Each pair did good work. Paul was the more eminent but Barnabas helped him to get started. Christian workers should always be on the alert to find and encourage others to work for God.

YOUR HANDWRITING and YOU

by Alex S. Arnott

A READER has sent in an excellent example of Miss Ellen Terry's handwriting, asking me to make a brief analysis of it. Miss Terry was England's most loved actress and thrilled many audiences with her superb perormances until 1928.

The writing is very clear and there is little difficulty in reading each letter. All the loop letters are open as in "e" and "l" and these are indicative of frankness, truthfulness and honesty, with a desire for fair play and justice for all. The capital letters are moderately high, showing an independent nature, and are not too tall, which would be an indication of haughtiness.

The capital letter "E," the downstroke of the "y," and the strong understrokes are the outstanding indications of Miss Terry's faith in her ideals and sincere desire to attain success. You will never find heavy understrokes in the writing of a weakling or a person who complains about difficulties. Ellen Terry's success was partly due to her ability to increase her determination to succeed when all seemed hopeless. It is a good example of courage, graciousness and love of service.

Yours truly
Ellen Terry

Complete Approval, is registered by Barry Hart, 9, as he contemplates the prize-winning angel cake. In spite of the gloomy prospect of school days soon to return, all the youngsters enjoyed the fair immensely. As a matter of fact the fair this year was a success for all concerned. The attendance on the second day, of 15,000 was a record. The prophecy of the sponsors of the fair that this year would be the greatest so far came true. The competition in all fields was very keen, from the angel cake exhibit to the Sheep and Swine show. The organization was excellent. Few people realize the great amount of work entailed in a community effort of this kind. Thousands of letters had to be written and thousands of phone calls made. Judges had to be selected and entry lists made up. For example, a committee of twelve men worked for months to direct the work of maintaining the fair grounds, and another group worked just as hard to make sure the fair was properly advertised.

NOTE: If you are interested in the pictures on this page you will be able to get prints by writing to the Ful-O-Pep photographer, Dept. B, 123-18th Street, New Toronto, Ontario.

Cattle Show Is Fair Highlight

This year as last year, your Ful-O-Pep reporter found the cattle were one of the prime drawing cards of the Fair. The champs and near-champs appearing at all the Fairs remind this reporter forcibly that unquestionably thousands of fine animals have been taken out of breeding herds simply because they were not adequately fed. It's only when good feeding and good breeding are combined that top quality animals are produced. They need sufficient vitamins for sound health and good breeding and enough organic mineral salts for sound bones and good blood if you expect good results in your breeding herd.

Full Weight Necessary

Cows that are to be bred should be in good flesh. Following the drought years, the calf crops were greatly reduced indicating that supplementary feeding on the range in summertime is as important as in winter. Cattle that are losing weight are not in good breeding condition. Watch your cattle for a month or so prior to breeding time to make sure they are holding their own or gaining slightly in weight. If not feed enough Ful-O-Pep range cubes in the short grass country to put them in good breeding condition. In the long grass country or when feeding hay, use Quaker Ful-O-Pep 32% Cattle Concentrate Cubes.

Dry Grass Supplement

Whenever there is ample rainfall and good grass, cubes are not necessary; but when the range is bare and dried up, cubes will pay for themselves many times over in the additional size of the calf crop. The amount to feed per day will depend on the severity of the condition. It may run from one to three lbs. of cubes per head per day.

Generally speaking, the amount of cube feeding required will depend on the amount of rainfall and the length of the grass. Although it will be found that due to the differing topsoil qualities slightly different treatment will obtain in different parts of the country. Careful attention to progress through the first little while will repay the observer.

Fall Fairs and World Peace

If you thought you were just having fun at the fall fair you will be surprised to learn that you were really promoting world peace on an international basis. This is exactly the claim made by the sponsors of the fair. In a letter to exhibitors the fair directors asked that entries be submitted as "contributions to peace."

World Security

At first it may be hard to see why this fall fair should be any different than the fairs of other years. But when we realize that scarcity of food is the greatest single economic factor threatening us at the moment the statement begins to make sense. It will make still more sense if we remember that the encouragement of competition is not only good fun but essential to high quality and high production.

Competitive Standard

There is no doubt that the challenge of the fair waiting for each farmer every fall helps him keep his standards high. It has been proven many times that this sporting, competitive spirit has done more even than high prices to make agricultural producers excel their last year's effort.

Curtain Time, Last Night of Fair

After the Fair Was Over—This unusual night shot was taken by the Ful-O-Pep photographer after the crowds had gone home and just before the concession lights had been dimmed. The myriad noises of the fair are now silent. The screams of children on the ferris wheel and the cries of the barkers on the Midway are over for another season. The process of dismantling the booths and exhibits is underway. The occasional figure can be seen hurrying down the strangely lonely avenues.

Behind the scenes there is still a frantic bustle of activity. While the crowds are home in bed the organizers of the fair will be working far into the night. Electricians will be clipping cables and removing generators. Carpenters will be pulling down facades and marquees. Truckers will be loading up their vans. Fair officials will be checking off lists of equipment. Many of them will be wearily declaring that they will not go through all this exhausting labour another time, but many of them said that last year and will be back again to say it next year When they recall the fair during the winter months to come they will only remember the good times that were had and their nerve wracking labours will fade into the background.
