Solving septic waste disposal problem harder than Rubik's Cube

by Joanne Stevenson

Had the City of Cornwall maintained its decision to close its sewage treatment facilities to Charlottenburgh Township septic haulers on Sunday, both septic tank cleaners and their customers would have faced the insoluable mystery of where to dump the waste.

Cornwall has given Charlottenburgh an unofficial extension but, the township's request must be presented to city council later this month.

Owners of septic tanks need only worry about disposal every two years when the tank is full. Property owners on smaller lots with holding tanks to be emptied every six weeks regularly use the services of septic tank cleaners.

These days, professional septic haulers are faced with a dilemma which may eventually cause everyone to become more aware of the problems of septic waste disposal.

RUBIK'S CUBE

A Cornwall ban would result in a puzzle harder to solve than Rubik's Cube. Right now, there is no other public facility closer than Morrisburg for haulers to legally dump their loads.

In the past, Cornwall and Long Sault allowed dumping.

By December 1986, the Ministry of the Environment (MOE) would no longer permit dumping in the village system. Long Sault will only accept waste from Cornwall Township.

MOE closed off facilities to protect the lagoons. Septic tank waste is highly concentrated and not easily absorbed into the systems.

According to Alexandria Mayor J. P. Touchette, the town lagoon has always been restricted to users of the sewer system, except for an emergency once at Ecole Ste. Marie in Green Valley.

The travel costs of using the Morrisburg lagoon makes it an unrealistic alternative.

Long-term solutions are being offered. In the interim, septic haulers without their own lagoons, may be faced with the choice of dumping illegally in farmer's fields or in roadside ditches, or shutting down operations.

Alexandria subdivision on track after residents withdraw objections

by Lesley Cadham

Bishop Street residents quietly withdrew objections to a subdivider's plans for land development in the nor-eastern section of Alexandria, Monday night.

Landowner and former Glengarry-Prescott-Russell MP Denis Ethier, town council and seven townspeople attended a public meeting to discuss aspects of Mr. Ethier's plans. After a quiet 45 minutes, residents gave the project their stamp of approval.

Mr. Ethier purchased 32 acres of land 1 1/2 years ago, with sons Carl and Marc. The land lies east of the Carnation plant and is approximately bordered by the Lochiel Township line to the east, Kenyon Street to the south and Kincardine Street to the north.

Plans to zone a small piece of the property commercial, to accommodate a convenience store and, perhaps, a barber shop, had met objections. In a May 4 letter to the town, a delegation led by Stuart Upton stated convenience stores caused a "terrific amount of litter and there is a problem controlling this."

In addition, the letter contained a recommendation that a vehicle bridge be constructed north across the Garry River, or to a continuation of Sandfield Street, to accept traffic into the development. Residents reasoned this woul decrease traffic on Bishop Street. They also suggested a park area be situated in the centre of the project, instead of at the river's edge, where consultants originally placed it.

Mr. Ethier agreed to withdraw plans for the convenience store, explaining his intent was not to implement a Becker's or Mac's Milk type of business, but rather a small shop where senior citizens would be able to pick up necessities.

Council then agreed to install a bridge if the need arises, explaining, it might be a few years before the housing in the new development creates an overflow of traffic on Bishop Street. Mr. Upton agreed to take council's word on this issue.

Finally, Mr. Ethier agreed to dedicate a section of property at the foot of Elgin Street, just off Bishop, to the town. This will become a park, accessible by foot and open to the public.

"It's too these problems weren't solved on April 14," said Mr. Upton, referring to another public meeting during which concerns were first raised.

According to Mayor J.P. Touchette, construction, hoped to start as early as July, could have been delayed by up to a year if residents had not withdrawn objections.

Both men were pleased negotiations had gone so smoothly.

Mr. Ethier will not wait for the provincial government to approve his final plan.

He plans to break ground between Kincardine and St. George streets, just east of Bishop, to build 33 townshouses. The units are expected to be available as early as late fall and will sport a price tag in the $60,000 range.

Once that portion of the project is complete, he will commence another phase. A section of the land at the foot of Elgin Street has been zoned to accommodate 40 senior citizens' units. A study completed by the Winchester firm Larry D. Cotton and Associates determined there is an urgent need for that type of affordable housing.

Next door to that building will be 18 condominiums, to be individually sold. Mr. Ethier is still undecided as to their design.

About 25 acres will be divided into 83 lots, to be sold for construction of single family homes.

Access into the development would be through an extension of Kincardine and St. George streets.

Roth only declared candidate for Cornwall NDP nomination

APPLE HILL—Charlottenburgh Township Deputy-reeve Bob Roth has formally announced he will seek the New Democratic Party nomination for Cornwall in the next provincial election, expected this summer or fall.

With no other declared candidate so far, Mr. Roth may be acclaimed the NDP standard-bearer in the provincial association's nomination meeting, May 27 in Cornwall. If successful, he would challenge incumbent Conservative MPP Luc Guindon, who won the riding in 1985 following an 11-year NDP reign under former MPP George Samis.

The riding, which now includes the City of Cornwall and Cornwall Township, is being expanded to take in Charlottenburgh Township, where Mr. Roth has served in municipal politics for nearly five years. An outspoken man with strong views on numerous issues, Mr. Roth has frequently drawn the ire of other municipal politicians over the years, particularly at the county level.

He is a veteran member of the Raisin Region Conservation Authority and has served with other groups.

A journalist by trade, Mr. Roth first became known in Glengarry County as assistant editor of The Glengarry News, where he organized the first weekly newspaper union in Ontario. He resigned in 1983 and later founded Counterpoint, a free monthly "newsmagazine," which he later expanded to twice-a-month publication. More recently, Counterpoint appears to have fallen on difficult times and has published only twice in 1987.

"It's still alive," he said Tuesday. "We're still doing business."

Mr. Roth said he may suspend further publication of Counterpoint until after the election, if he wins the nomination. Should he be elected, he may find it difficult to continue publishing while serving full-time in Queen's Park, he added.

He rejected suggestions he may have a conflict of interest in publishing a newspaper that comments on local and provincial politics, while serving as an active politican himself.

"Most newspapers are biased. That's been well documented," he said. "We're above board with ours.

Mr. Roth feels he has a good chance of winning the election, noting the NDP won the riding in four consecutive elections prior to 1985.

Helko moving to Charlottenburgh

WILLIAMSTOWN — Charlottenburgh Township Council removed all obstacles in the path of a Cornwall industry's relocation to Charlottenburgh at its regular meeting, May 12.

Helko Systems Furniture Inc., a company specializing in the manufacture of business systems and office furniture, is expected to become a tenant in the Gray's Landing building which was originally the Edo plant.

Located just east of the City of Cornwall, on Highway No. 2, the building, vacant for some time, has seen a variety of uses, from roller skating rink to bingo palace. Present owners Peter C. Renes and Debra J. Flemming made application for an Official Plan amendment and rezoning to enable them to accommodate Helko as tenants.

Charlottenburgh Council held a public meeting on April 29 to receive comments on amendments to the official plan and the zoning bylaw. Allan MacEwen, who, along with his brother owns Farlinger's Point adjacent to the property, said the proposed use of the building is not consistent with the residential neighborhood next to it.

Mr. MacEwen, representing the interests of several area residents, said they were opposed to the change to allow light manufacturing because of the fear of noise and an increase in traffic.

Council members voted in favor of the rezoning to light manufacturing.

The Russians love their children too

Dann Rogers

After a week-long visit to the Soviet Union with the Ambassadors of Peace, Alexandria-resident Dr. Frans Manouvrier is convinced more than ever that the Russians love their children, too.

He also believes, because there is less family violence in the USSR, soviet children may be better suited to the task of making the earth a safe place to live.

The Ambassadors of Peace project involved sending 30 Quebec youths, aged 12 to 14, to the Soviet Union on a mission of peace and friendship, May 1 to 8.

The students met with other school children from SD&G and Prescott-Russell on April 13 to collect posters and letters of peace, which they gave to Soviet students.

"You can't teach kids about peace if they live in an atmosphere of violence," Dr. Manouvrier said Thursday. "Violence in the family is a wall against peace. We have to understand the develpment of social structures which lead to violence."

Another Alexandria resident, Claire Hains, a psychotherapist who accompanied the students, also feels strides have to be made to reduce family violence before global peace initiatives can be undertaken.

"Family violence in North America usually arises because couples don't communicate with each other or with the rest of the community," Ms. Hains said Tuesday.

"In a sense, they are twice isolated. When people lack communication, they feel trapped, their back is against the wall and they will strike out at people close to them."

She feels family violence can be lessened in the short term through couples making conscious attemps to communicate, but an overhaul of western society and consumerism seems necessary if the root causes of domestic violence are to be eliminated.

"There is much the two cultures can learn from each other," said Dr. Manouvrier.

"The West can learn discipline and to not be distressed over the lack of material possessions, and the Soviets need a new sense of individuality, which we could show them. It's just a question of each side approaching the other with an open mind," he said.

The Canadian delegation first met their Soviet hosts on May 2 and were introduced to the duputy minister for sport and 10 French-speaking Soviet students who accompanied them for the whole trip.

On their first day, the students visited the War Memorial Monument just outside Moscow, marking the place where the Soviets stopped the German military advance in the Se-

Angus night

Just a reminder, the testimonial dinner for Glengarry's Angus H. McDonell is on schedule for Wednesday, May 27, at the Maxville Sports Complex. Tickets are still available at $17.50. Get them while you still can.

Word has it that Angus, one of the most confident and self-assured people we know, is actually beginning to feel a little bit nervous about the dinner and all the expected fuss. Doesn't sound like him. There's still no reason to assume he'll be at a loss for words.

We hear he's a little worried that the ''testimonial'' may turn into a bit of a ''roast.'' Angus has ''roasted'' a lot of people over the last 50 or 60 years and it'll be no surprise if a few are tempted to return the compliment. When you've led as active and involved a life as Angus has for so many years, you can be sure there is plenty of ''roast'' ammunition.

He needn't worry very much, however. We all know who is going to get the last word and, with that in mind, everyone is bound to be on his best behaviour.

Glengarry Memorial Hospital is receiving a grant of nearly $3,500 to pay half the cost of installing electrical current limiters in 300 incandescent and 378 fluorescent lighting fixtures. The grant covers half of the costs of the project, estimated at $7,000.

The investment is expected to save the hospital more than $2,700 a year in energy costs, with the full expenditure recovered in less than three years.

Glengarry Memorial is just one of 26 hospitals sharing $1 million in energy management grants announced last week by Ontario Energy Minister Vincent Kerrio.

The total value of the projects is about $3 million, with the hospitals financing two-thirds.

The projects are expected to save up to $1 million per year in energy costs and pay for themselves in an average of three years.

The energy ministry estimates such action has saved $30 million for improved patient care in the last 10 years, holding the energy bill for Ontario's health care institutions to $90 million.

Roger Lalonde of Bainsville called up Tuesday to correct something he had written in a covering letter to the story he passed along concerning the Lalonde family saga in Canada.

He stated there were probably just as many Lalondes as MacDonalds in the area. It seems that isn't quite accurate. He counted all the Lalondes and MacDonalds and McDonalds in our local phone book and came up with 950 Lalondes compared to a total of 575 MacDonalds, spelled either way.

She also pointed out a special youth project aimed at promoting interest in local history and sponsored by the Dunvegan Recreational Association.

Time for the humble stuff. Prophoto is having a sale on video camera recorders, but not to the extend we led you to believe in last week's issue.

The state of the art equipment sells for $1,895 and $1,995 and not $189.95 and $199.95. Sorry, Andy.

It seems, though we held the Progress issue back a little while to try to make it the best one ever, a few mistakes still managed to creep in. One photo, supposedly showing the Kenyon Township road crew and new truck, was actually a photo of the Roxborough Township road crew. Kenyon has not purchased a new truck yet.

Also, we published ap hoto of the Lochiel Township staff that was taken last year. Several people shown don't work there anymore.

On a happier note, our photography should be excellent this wek. John Peterson, professor, photographer and newspaper design hotshot, spent the past week teaching The News crew how to take photos. He deserves all the praise, but if we left any events out, address the complaints to him at Loyalist College in Belleville.

Disposal problem harder than Rubik's Cube

Maxville sewer systems are planning to accommodate the Green Valley system. As well, Charlottenburgh Township is investigating feasibility of a municipally-owned lagoon.

PRIVATE LAGOONS

Some private operators are also preparing to construct their own lagoons. Moose Creek Cement, which services some of Kenyon Township, already uses its own lagoon.

Don Conroy and Floyd Lafave are two Summerstown area septic haulers who worry about the future and wonder if the current emergency situation could have been avoided.

Mr. Lafave criticizes previous and current Charlottenburgh councils, saying, ''We've had this problem for the last 20 years. The township should see it is resolved. Rather than spending money on heritage buildings of the past, we need something for the future. People are still building homes.

''The township is looking into it, but we are in a bind right now. People have to be pumped out every day.''

Had Cornwall not agreed to the extension, he would have been forced to close his operations.

Mr. Conroy sees construciton of his own lagoon as the suitable solution and hopes to receive the support of neighboring landowners of the property he will use.

''I hope the local residents will consider the location and the problem. The problem is there, so let's solve it,'' he said.

He has requested an official plan and zoning amendment. Charlottenburgh is considering the request. If council approves, there is a 60-day period following public notification. If there are no objections, the amendments will be passed. Mr. Conroy expects the lagoon will be dug immediately.

Mr. Conroy has been investigating the building of a private lagoon since last year and wonders why it took council so long to decide to build a municipal lagoon.

''They've been in power 19 months. I've been there for 14 months. Why didn't they think of it then?'' he asked.

Charlottenburgh Administrator Jay Currier noted his council favors both the Green Valley and municipally-owned lagoons as solutions to the septic disposal problem. At its May 12 meeting, council agreed to ''actively consider'' both proposals.

In his report concerning a municipal lagoon, Mr. Currier suggested a dumping charge of $19 per 500 gallons to cover costs. Mr. Conroy noted that charge is nearly four times the current fee of $10 per 1,000 gallons.

A. J. Graham Engineering of Ottawa submitted a report to the joint committee for the Green Valley sewer project estimating the dumping fee at $10 to $15 per 1,000 gallons.

The report concludes, ''Up to approximately 70 per cent of the hauled sewage from the townships of Lancaster and Charlottenburgh might be reasonably, safely and economically disposed of at the proposed lagoon.''

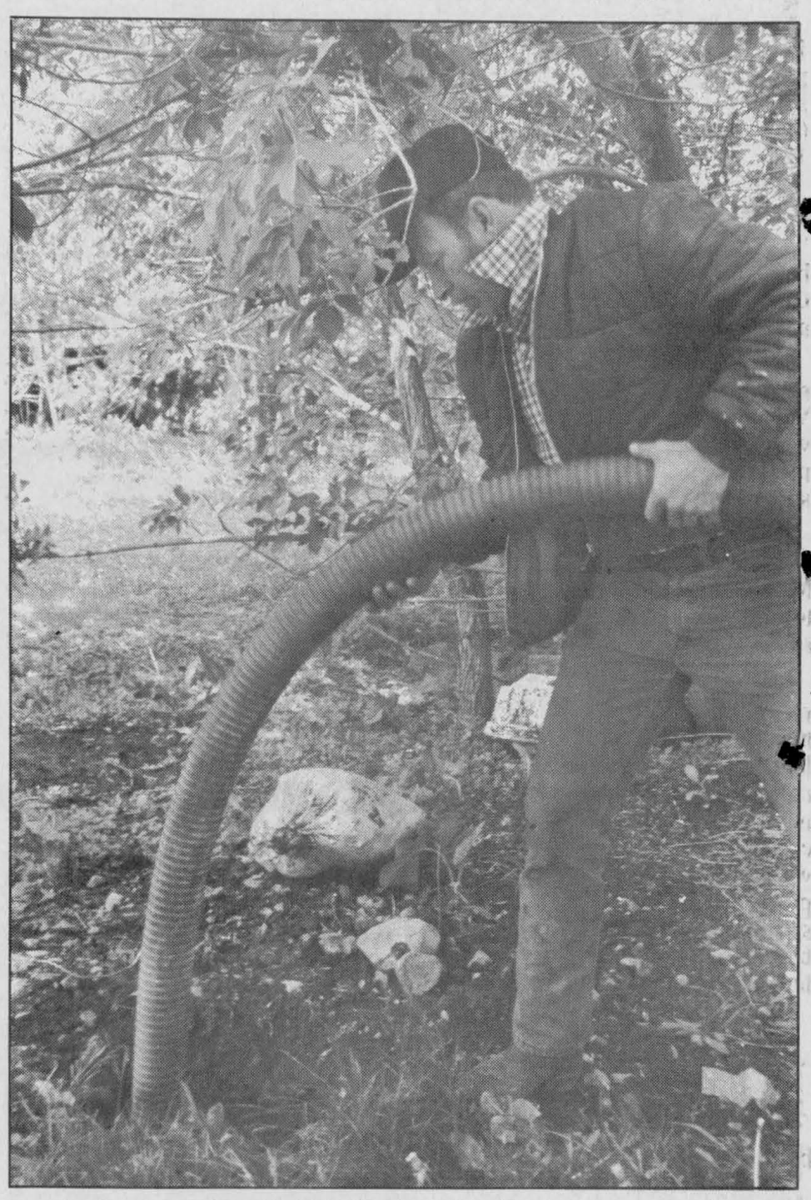
Committee Chairman Roch Major, a Lancaster township councillor, approves of the idea of providing additional capacity within the proposed lagoon to accommodate septic waste.

''It's a good idea as long as the dumping fees are separate and it won't add any more cost to Green Valley residents,'' he explained.

Reaction to the Graham report from MOE officials is expected at the committee's meeting next Wednesday.

However, Larry Benoit, senior environmental officer, said he felt the Green Valley proposal could help solve the current situation.

Mr. Lafave suggests it's time the public get involved. He has decided to discuss the problem with customers and hopes, with a little pressure from residents, the situation can be remedied more quickly.



WHERE GOES THE WASTE?—Don Conroy, a private septic waste hauler from Summerstown, thinks the ideal solution to disposal problems is for him to build his own lagoon. The City of Cornwall was to close its sewage treatment facilities to Charlottenburgh Township haulers Sunday, but an extension was granted.

On May 4, the students visited a children's hospital in Moscow and the adults attended a peace education seminar led by Dr. Manouvrier.

''We tried to outline some basic objectives for the peace course we hope to propose to the SD&G and Prescott-Russell boards of education,'' he said.

''One thing that became clear was that we can no longer study peace in a national conception, it has to be broadened to include an international scope. The causes of war are international and cannot be limited to our own country. We can't pretend we are independent. What happens in one part of the world influences another part,'' said Dr. Manouvrier.

On May 7, another peace education seminar was held and a decision taken to twin schools from Moscow with those in SD&G and Prescott-Russell.

Dr. Manouvrier expects to meet with officials from the SD&G boards of education next week to discuss the idea of having a peace course or program included in the curriculum.

He has helped found an organization, the Centre for Endeavours for Peace in Canada, to promote more student exchanges and peace courses.

Charlottenburgh takes step towards lagoon

by Sue Harrington

WILLIAMSTOWN — Councillor Paul Rozon once again tried to propel Charlottenburgh into establishing its own municipal sewage lagoon at the township's regular meeting, May 12.

After hearing of the frustrations of township residents who are reportedly "pumping stuff in their own backyards," Mr. Rozon suggested Charlottenburgh "purchase the land and go ahead."

The horror tales of sewage dispersal were told to council by Glen Walter resident George Shoniker, Jr., who claimed he could take council members to the offending sites and show them.

"It costs me $80 every three weeks to have my tank pumped out," said Mr. Shoniker. "Everyone in the township thinks that the township should maintain its own lagoon."

Councillor Carol-Ann Ross reminded Mr. Rozon the township had not budgetted any money for a lagoon. According to a report to council prepared by township administrator Jay Currier, the cost for construction of a septic disposal site would be about $90,000, including purchase of some 50 acres of land for spreading treated septic waste and to buffer adjacent properties from holding ponds.

"It appears, from a cursory review, that the north and south landfill properties (already owned by the township) are unsuitable for septage waste disposal," he stated.

The township would recover about $40,000 a year for capital costs, operations and maintenance. The Ministry of the Environment has advised Mr. Currier there are no grants for the establishment of septic waste disposal sites.

On hearing that there may be a special one time-grant available should the township wish to pursue it, council decided to begin investigation of this method of funding. According to Mr. Currier, staff at the Ministry of the Environment in Cornwall have indicated their support for such a request.

Meanwhile, a private hauler in Charlottenburgh has officially applied to have property rezoned so that he can open a lagoon of his own. When the seriousness of his intent was questioned by Councillor Rozon, township staff answered that the hauler had already paid $1,500 with his application.

While admitting he has done an about-face on the subject, Councillor Larry Gordon said since December he has had a chance to "re-think" and now believes that the municipality is the only one which could police and maintain a lagoon site.

Villeneuve endorses trade effort with reservations

MAPLE RIDGE—SD&G MPP Noble Villeneuve endorsed the federal government's march toward free trade with the United States in a speech to about 350 Conservative supporters at his party's nomination meeting, here, recently.

He told the enthusiastic crowd, who had applauded his acclamation as the Progressive-Conservative candidate in the next provincial election, that Ontario would benefit "in the long run" from free trade, but some sectors of the agricultural industry would have to be protected.

He said he and Stormont-Dundas MP Norm Warner, who attended the meeting, would work together to help ensure Eastern Ontario's interests were protected in any free trade agreement.

Mr. Villeneuve also said he would continue his lobbying efforts to have distillery equipment installed at the grain elevator near Prescott to produce ethanol, a clean additive for gasoline. He said the plant, in addition to reducing demand for crude oil and lessening air pollution, would create jobs for the riding and consume excess corn from the area.

He said the future would likely be difficult for farmers and government would have to guard the agriculture industry diligently.

The MPP also reiterated his opposition to Bill 7, provincial legislation which amended the Ontario Human Rights Code to prohibit discrimination against homosexuals in housing and employment.

He said the bill effectively gave homosexuals special rights and recognition and could give young people the message that a homosexual lifestyle is sanctioned by the Ontario government.

Mr. Villeneuve agreed there appeared to be inequities in automobile insurance and conceded some government action might be needed, but made it clear he was firmly opposed to state-run insurance schemes, particularly any similar to the Quebec government's plan.

He added he would do all he could to prevent CN Rail from closing its line through Alexandria.

He said he was not worried about Liberal Party polls that indicated the Liberals were well ahead in the riding, adding the Conservatives would not conduct similar polls.

Province taken to task

by Sue Harrington

WILLIAMSTOWN — The Ministry of Transportation and Communications was bad-mouthed Tuesday by Charlottenburgh Township Council when it received notice that it would be allocated only $22,000 for temporary repairs to Finney's Bridge. The township had applied for $650,000 in order to initiate its five-year plan in an attempt to upgrade Charlottenburgh's sub-standard road system.

Upon learning of the ministry's allotment, Deputy-reeve Bob Roth threw up his hands in despair. "It's simply a hopless case," said Mr. Roth. "I think we're being taken for a ride and I think it's time to say so."

Mr. Roth claimed, as a result of the latest figures, Charlottenburgh will not be able to carry out its proposed roads program.

Charlottenburgh's roads currently rate basement status in the group of 135 municipalities in Ontario with which the township is classed.

An angry Councillor Carol Ann Ross, stating, "the niceties are over: the gloves are off," described Charlottenburgh's attempts to obtain funding from Toronto. In March 1986 a delegation from the township travelled to Queen's Park and made a presentation to Ed Fulton, Minister of Transportation and Communications. Mr. Fulton suggested the township apply for funding out of a "special pot", urging, though it was then too late for 1986, members of the delegation return to Charlottenburgh, prepare some documentation and re-apply in 1987.

Mr. Roth said, though council did just that, spending $6,000 to prepare a five-year plan, it was "horribly misled."

"The clear implication from the MTC was that if we documented our case, we would get the funding," he said.

Angus to be feted

Glengarrians will get an opportunity to pay tribute to Angus H. McDonell and his wife Bea next Wednesday night at the Maxville and District Sports Complex, during a testimonial dinner. Organizers are expecting a large turnout for the evening.

A social hour will be held from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m., followed by a dinner. Following dinner, organizations and friends will present the couple with gifts.

Tickets are $17.50 per person and can be purchased from The Glengarry News; Danskin's Scottish Shop in Alexandria and Maxville; Bill Campbell, Bill Shields and Garry Smith in the Maxville area; Jim Hill in Williamstown; The Priest's Mill and the Atlantic Hotel.

Séguin re-instated

Alexandria Town Councillor Fern Séguin was re-instated as chairman of the committee to hired bylaw enforcement officer, at a council meeting May 12.

Mr. Séguin, who resigned from all committees about two months ago, told council, due to the difficulty involved in that particular committee, he would resume his position. His news was met with applause from fellow councillors.

MINOR VARIANCE

Alexandria town council endorsed a request for a second minor variance from a Sandfield Street apartment building owner, May 12.

Jean Yves Menard, owner of the new six-unit building across from Ecole Elda Rouleau, requested a variance from 12 feet to 11.6 feet for the north side yard. Last year, Mr. Menard requested a variance for the same yard, to decrease the required space from 15 feet to 12 feet.

The committee of adjustment will meet to discuss the request, May 27.

ZONING AMENDMENT

Council has agreed to prepare a bylaw to rezone a piece of Main Street property from R-1 single resident dwelling, to commercial.

Huguette and Fern Theoret, owners of Theoret Video at 171 Main Street, requested the amendment after Mr. Theoret's brother, Romeo, reported to town hall that the shop was operating on a residential lot. Romeo owns The Video House, recently opened behind the Dairy Queen.

Theoret Video opened five years ago.

EDITORIALS/OPINION

Great party

Hat's off to the Village of Lancaster, again!

It's a small community that knows how to think big and no one can throw a better party.

The village is celebrating its centennial this year, with a number of activities planned throughout 1987. Last weekend, with a ''mini-highland games,'' recalling Glengarry County's first games nearly 150 years ago, combined with a fabulous heritage concert and an entertaining parade, villagers effectively stated, ''The sky's the limit in this town.''

Everything went off nearly as planned, despite miserable weather. It seem's you can't rain on a parade in Lancaster. The folks there will just ignore the stuff, anyway.

It was a great time, the solid result of a lot of hard work by a lot of dedicated volunteers. Everyone involved should take a bow.

And best of all, there's more to come. The party isn't over yet, it's just in recess.

Happy anniversary, Lancaster!

Reactionary

Nearly a generation has passed since bilingualism became a legal fact of life in Canada. Realistically, this country has been dominated by two major languages for more than 200 years.

Outside of Quebec, anglophones have had no reason to complain. In communities with a substantial francophone population the trend has been to offer government services at all levels in both English and French.

French has not been ''shoved down the throats'' of anglophones. Alexandria, where francophones are an obvious majority, has developed into a prosperous, bilingual community, where neither language group is left with reason to complain. Most residents speak both languages, but unilingual anglophones can still go about their work and family lives without any obvious handicap.

It's unfortunate that elsewhere in Ontario the English-speaking majority continues to be embarassed by the outspoken few, seemingly inspired by paranoia, who do all they can to block fair-minded efforts to properly serve bilingual communities.

Last year the Ontario Legislature approved legislation that would enable the government to declare municipalities bilingual, where numbers warrant. In these communities all services provided by the government and provincially-funded agencies would be available in both official languages. That's hardly draconian. The vast majority of Ontarians will never notice a change, especially in towns like Alexandria.

But the legislation did prompt some backlash, manifested by the founding of the Alliance for the Preservation of English in Canada. The organization's name is misleading in itself, leaving the impression that the language is in some danger, an absurb assumption in any part of English Canada.

Some of these people may mean well, but, in their ignorance, they are dangerous. They frighten others into supporting the cause. A local chapter of the alliance came up with a 500-name petition demanding that Morrisburg declare itself ''officially unilingual.'' Village councillors took the safest route by refusing to take any action, based on the assumption that language rights are beyond the authority of municipal councils.

But in nearby Matilda Township the alliance met with considerable success. Township council unanimously approved the same resolution Morrisburg rejected, giving that community the dubious distinction of being the first municipality to declare itself officially unilingual in the history of Ontario.

The resolution is tantamount to erecting ominous signs along the township's boundary roads, warning, ''French not welcome here!''

Matilda councillors have done nothing to aid preservation of their already unassailable English language. What they have done is secure for their community an image of intolerance and ignorance and add fuel to the spread of the same kind of damaging prejudice elsewhere.

Why move back six days to mark the Monday holiday?

RAMBLING REPORTER
Eugene Macdonald

Canadians were off work Monday because of the public holiday. It came as a surprise to your Rambling Reporter who was expecting the holiday weekend one week later.

Why, we wondered, is the 24th of May holiday marked on the 18th when it could be moved only one day forward to Monday, May 25? Wouldn't that be more sensible than moving it back six days?

We're hardly naive enough to think it could be celebrated on the actual day, Sunday. Not in this day and age when Labor is so well organized it can insist public holidays not be observed on work-free weekends, but on the Monday.

But why not on the nearest Monday, rather than moving it back practically a whole week, as in this instance?

Way back when we knew it as a school holiday it wasn't the teachers who demanded the day off. They weren't as well organized as they are now. As we recall it, it was the students who were so militant they'd go about the school corridors singing a bit of doggerel that must have impressed the school board for we always were free from classes on Queen Victoria's birthday.

Remember it?

It's the 24th of May
The queen's birthday
If we don't get a holiday
We'll run away and play.

Or words to that effect.

That trip back down memory lane has left us with another recollection. Did we not enjoy another holiday from classes on King George's birthday? Was it June 3rd or 4th?

Maybe we should keep that to ourself lest the unions find another excuse to take a day off.

May they rest in pieces and while we're on the subject of days off; it must come as a relief for those Montreal Canadiens to finally hang up their skates and take the summer off. They must have been tired; it was noticeable in the way they weren't skating in that last series.

We were tired too; fed up with the stupid game hockey has degenerated to in the National Hockey League.

Then why do you watch it you say. We seldom do, not even in the play-offs. There's too much mayhem on ice, boarding, high-sticking, cross-checking, grabbing, tripping and even going through the motions of fighting.

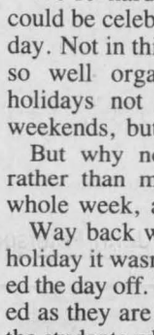
And all this right in front of the referee and linemen who must have orders to let go anything short of murder. Wonder how well those linemen get paid for the punishing act they put on. Whatever they get, they earn it!

Your Rambling Reporter kcan't convince his boys there was a superior brand of hockey played 50 years ago when the pros played the puck rather than the man. The body-check was hard but clean way back then; the passing was pinpoint and goals weren't all scored from scrambles or deflections. Or is memory painting a picture that wasn't real?

There must be films of Howie Morenz, Bill and Bun Cook and such in action. Couldn't they be resurrected to teach our stars of tomorrow how the game should be played?

Once there were hockey greats;
today, hockey grates.

Rick Hanson: disabled man towers above able majority



SECOND LOOK
Phil Rutherford

On Friday, Rick Hanson is expected to wheel into a shopping plaza in Vancouver, ending a world-spanning odyssey that will have raised more than $10 million to aid victims of spinal cord injuries.

At least as important as the money and the research it will help fund, is the fact that this man drew millions of Canadians, and others around the world, to the now-obvious conclusion that disabled people are often extremely able.

Most of us wouldn't think of crossing town without a car. This man spanned the globe in a wheelchair, stroking it through nearly 25,000 miles in 24 months.

Through snow and rain, often fighting intense pain and, sometimes, personal illness, he beat all the odds and persisted, proving himself a hero deserving equal billing with the memory of a personal friend, Terry Fox.

Canada's outstanding disabled athlete in 1983, he had competed and won medals in the Pan Am Games, as well as marathons in Canada, the United States and Australia. He was becoming well known in some circles, but his name was still far from a household word.

His Man in Motion tour turned Rick Hanson into an international celebrity and a beloved hero at home in Canada. He met world leaders and had an audience with the pope. In Canada, the prime minister and the provincial premiers were enthusiastic in their welcomes.

Throughout the tour, he used his growing fame and his access to the media to further promote public awareness of spinal cord injury and its victims. A reporter's dream and a television crew's delight, Mr. Hanson is a handsome, intelligent young man with an ability to speak eloquently and from the heart. His words could not be ignored.

But the effort was ignored for a time. In the U.S., police often refused to provide the escort he needed for protection from highway traffic. Motorists screamed and cursed. He was forced onto back roads where he could meet only a few people and collect even fewer donations. The American media all but ignored him late last year as he wheeled the entire eastern seaboard, raising only $20,000.

All that changed once he crossed the border into Canada. He had been raising just enough money to cover expenses and keep the tour going, but in the Maritimes alone he raised $1.15 million, nearly as much money as in all the countries he had visited combined. Less came from Quebec, but in Ontario, propelled by a $1 million federal cheque handed to him in Ottawa by the prime minister, the campaign went into high gear. Wherever he went, the streets and roads were crowded with well-wishers. Crossing the Prairies in the dead of winter, he went on to collect millions more.

Deposited in a special trust, the principal will never be touched. Instead, interest earned, estimated at $800,000 in the first year alone, will be used to assist research, rehabilitation and public awareness programs and wheelchair sports. His tour was a tremendous ordeal for Rick Hanson and an exhausting effort for the loyal friends who supported him along the way, but it is reaping dividends that will continue to help disabled Canadians for decades to come. It was an act of courage and generosity that defies measure.

On Saturday, Rick Hanson will be honored before a crowd of 60,000 and a television audience of millions more during a special ceremony in Vancouver's B.C. Place. It will be worth watching, to study the face of a ''disabled'' man who towers above the ''able'' majority.

This is no ordinary man.

Games guest

LOOK OUT
Dann Rogers

The Glengarry Highland Games are only 10 weeks away and everyone involved is busy making last month preparations.

Angus H. McDonell should be bombarding The News with stories leading up to the 40th annual staging of the Games in Maxville any day and President Murray MacQueen will soon be knocking on our door to see what sort of special edition we will do.

This is where the Games guests come in. We would like this year's Games supplement to include letters from people living outside of Glengarry who attend the Games on a regular basis.

Since about 25,000 visitors converge on Maxville each August to experience the pageantry of Scottish culture, we're certain there must be a lot of stories circulating out there which can be published in a family newspaper.

Therefore, we ask all subscribers, or people planning to subscribe to The News, who live outside of Glengarry, to write us letters about their Games experiences.

As a minimum, we would appreciate it if the letter contains your name, address, how far that is from Glengarry or Maxville, the first year you came to the Games, how many times you have been since, the route you take to get to the Games, what places or people you regularly visit along the way, who you visit in Glengarry, what your favorite events are, other places and attractions you visit in Glengarry and some of your favorite memories from the Games.

If you really want to get creative, and we encourage you to do so, tell us an anecdote or two of something that happened to you or someone you know.

These stories could include things like how you got lost coming to the Games, or meeting up with long lost relatives or friends, or humanitarian gestures you observed during the celebrations.

Also, we would appreciate any black and white photographs taken at or on the way to the Games. These will eventually be returned to you.

All letters should be addressed to The Editor, The Glengarry News, Box 10, Alexandria, Ontario, K0C 1AO and marked, attention: Games supplement.

The News is mailed to about 2,400 subscribers outside of Glengarry, but there is still a role for in-county readers to play, should they be so inclined.

Perish the thought, but some Games guests may not be subscribers to The News. If you happen to know of such a person, perhaps you could pass along the message that we are looking for letters.

You could also buy them subscriptions since our paper makes for great presents of mind.

I'd like to receive the letteres by the end of June or early July.

Stoning a swan

THAT'S LIFE
Lesley Cadham

Swazette the signet swan opened one eye lazily and looked out over Alexandria Lake. The sun was beginning to rise. She could tell, because shadows were replacing the night's pitch blackness. She slowly ventured from her spot beneath an old wharf, stretching her magnificent snowy wings and grooming them proudly.

One afternoon, Swaz noticed a small child playing near the water. The youngster was cooing and calling to her, waving a piece of bread. Swaz knew what bread looked like; many kind people near her wharf threw her pieces, for which she was grateful.

The tiny blonde-haired child called again, ''Here swan. I have some bread for you. Won't you come here?''

Swazette didn't feel threatened by this human and paddled a bit closer. But she kept an alert eye on both the food and the child. As she drew nearer, the youngster's voice took on a new tone. She laughed and giggled and cooed some more. Swazette, caught up in the fun, swam to where the child knelt and gingerly pulled a small piece of crust from her fingers.

It tasted so good and the little girl seemed so kind, Swazette knew there was nothing to fear. ''My name is Carolyn,'' the child told the swan. Every afternoon, Carolyn returned to the spot where the swan rested, to bring friendship and breadcrusts. Every afternoon, Swaz waited anxiously for her visit and soon, the unusual two-some became an attraction to passers-by.

One evening, after Carolyn's visit, Swaz reflected on how silly it was to be afraid of humans. All her afternoon visitors were kind, gentle people who occasionally stroked her feathers and frequently said how pretty she was.

Then one of the boys saw her. He picked up a stone and threw it. Swazette looked around, thinking it was a bread crust, but found nothing. Then another stone hit her forehead. She was momentarily stunned and tried to duck a third stone coming her way. She felt tears coming to her eyes and paddled as quickly as possible toward her little sanctuary. The boys were chasing her along the shore, but they couldn't catch her.

The next afternoon, Caroly waited on the shore for her little friend, but Swazette's heart was broken.

Our Alexandria Lake swan is a beautiful creature, deserving of our protection and respect. Let's give it to her.

Assertion

WORD SKETCH

Sybil Carello

Assertiveness has been a catchword of the 70's and 80's. To be assertive, say the experts, is to thumb your nose at debilitating anger which sears through you the minute someone exploits your innate weaknesses.

Millions of dollars have exchanged hands in an all-out scramble to learn the secrets of successful assertion.

Those lacking monetary means for professional training get together regularly with a couple of friends and play Hearts, a card game filled with passion, revenge and an enormous display of name calling.

In addition to the numerous assertiveness training programs, some of which have since proven to be psychologically damaging, self-help mavens offer a multitudinous collection of tapes, videos, and T-shirts with self-actualizing, re-inforcing messages like, I Am Alive; or, Don't Forget To Pick Up Some Kitty Litter.

A quick glance at one of the many magazines proffering similar fare, reveals these titles: (brackets are mine) The Right To Be Your Own Boss (even when you don't have a job); Yes. You Can Go Back To College (but first you must go back to high school); Knowledge Is Power: You Won't Believe What You Need To Learn To Live In The Future (would you believe how to make money?); and of course, the obligatory cover-hook, How To Loose 15 lbs. In Seven Days (throw away all your shoulder pad inserts).

Sadly, some individuals do not even realize they lack assertiveness. For these people, I offer a few far-fetched case studies in extreme nonassertive behavior. See if you identify with the main character:

•Your boss says no to yet another raise request. That you are his firstborn and through a (failed) marriage have presented him with nine grandchildren (all screaming for milk and pop-tarts) has little impact on his pocketbook. You are reminded for the 100th time that he took a nickel and turned it into a billion-dollar empire; and no sniveling son is going to take it away from him. His anger is in direct proportion to the froth quickly gathering at the sides of his mouth. This frightens you. Heart pounding, you flee the richly furnished office.

•Your accountant runs away with your money, your moto-cross, and some 5,000 comic books you've collected over the years. A note, hastily scrawled across your cancelled American Express Gold Card, offers a succinct explanation: Sorry, Dad wouldn't give me a raise.

•Your doctor schedules an appointment to discuss the prognosis of your recently discovered brain tumor during her coffee break. You try to convey all of your fears within the three minute time frame, but the large chocolate donut which she force-dunks into the narrow confines of the coffee-filled styrofoam cup, mesmerize you. As do the chocolate crumbs which fall out of her mouth while she answers your questions in the blithest of tones. "What are my chanc--?" but you are cut off as she clicks down her designer stop-watch. "Mother," you call out in despair.

But she is already gone. You hear the roar of a big engine outside the clinic and remember it's Thursday, her day to host the highly rated game show—Name that Malpractice Suit."

You may wonder why I made mention of Pop Tarts in the first scenario. Those of you who are up-to-date on their medical journal perusals, will immediately know the answer. For all others, read on. There is now substantial proof that Pop Tarts contain just the right number of additives to foster assertive (sometimes, wild) behavior. When combined with milk, a unique chemical reaction occurs which effectively cuts down on plaque build-up.

LETTERS

The editor,
The Glengarry News:

I would like to call attention to the dismantling of our educational system. It is a process of fragmentation that began with the French-English split. Now, I am all in favor of francophones being able to have their schooling in their mother tongue where numbers can reasonably support a school. What we are witnessing is an almost hysterical scramble for a cross-country bilingual educational system which owes more to political cant than to the realities of education.

For the truth is that there are no bilingual nations on earth. There are countries where more than one language is spoken and where some individuals speak more than one. Most people are lucky to learn to master one language, let alone two. Immersion programs are short-cuts to bilingual illiteracy, except for bright students, and they would be better serrved by a sound method of second-language teaching, of which we get next to nothing.

Vast sums of money are being wasted to accommodate tiny numbers of students, busing them hither and thither, facilities and classes are split, staff relocated. All this, in the final analysis, to assuage the chauvinistic rage of a few and to satisfy the gross appetites of the inveterate vote-garnerers in our midst. To these we sacrifice our children.

There are elements to this process of fragmentation which space does not allow me to address here, but the latest blow to our educational system is the extension of funding for separate schools. To accord to one particular religious sect the privilege of running its own school system at public expense is immoral, unless, of course, you are willing to use public funds to maintain a seperate school system for every religious creed represented in the community in sufficient numbers to justify a school.

That would mean schools for Jews, atheists, Moslems, agnostics, Hindus, etcetera. That is patently absurd, and yet it is the direction in which we are going.

A civilized community has a single public school system, the function of which is to educate the young to become responsible, intelligent, free beings. The religious concerns of parents can easily be satified in such a system. Those who insist that mathematics, history, geography and the sciences must be taught with a particular religious bias must pay for such a school system out of their own pockets. It's as simple as that.

Instead we are racing off in the opposite direction in obedience to the political manipulation of various interest groups. Once again, vast sums of money are being wasted, students are being shuffled around, teachers are being dislocated and schools are closed and opened like revolving doors. And our children, once again, are being sacrificed to bigotry and political opportunism.

Over the past several months I have been involved in the fight to save the Maxville Public School and I have seen the consequence of this process of dismantling our public school system. I co-authored a brief that argued cogently in favor of keeping the school open on pedagogic and educational grounds, as well as in the interest of the Maxville community. Here was a bunch of parents, serious about the education of their children, willing to sit down with the authorities to discuss things. And what did we get?

Oh, we were listened to, alright, but our arguments went in one ear and out the other. I am talking about the trustees of th SD&G County Board of Education. I have looked in their faces and I have listened to them talk. I'll grant them they are well-meaning, but I don't think they understand what education is about.

At the end of the day, after paying lip-service to our "excellent brief," they decided to close the Maxville Senior School anyway. They did so for lack of funds. This is the board that during this same period gave away $300,000 for the benefit of 11 francophone students! No doubt, there are financial problems, but if the members of the board had any real understanding, they would fight on behalf of our children, not on behalf of politicians.

And now the facilities committee of that same board of trustees has, in its collective obtuseness, recommended that the Maxville Senior School be closed as of June 1987. With less than a month to go, our children are suddenly confronted with the likelihood of being bused to Tagwi Secondary School in September. To the Maxville parents, this is totally unacceptable because of the extended bus journey involved and because we regard it as destructive to throw these youngsters at an extremely vulnerable stage of their development into the teenage melee at Tagwi, a school that exists without community links, in a vacuum.

If the SD&G school board created its own Mirabel, let it not visit its errors on our children. We shall see on Tuesday when the trustees vote on the recommendations of the facilities committee, what real commitment to the education of our children is.

Walter Pilkington who sadly announced he hadn't run for president a second term because of ill health was installed as past president. Eric Newman the past secretary-treasurer, was installed as the new president.

Prior to the commencement of the meeting, Josée Dubeau, accompanied by her parents, was presented with three awards: the best poem, the best poster in Zone G4 and the best poster in district G. Her poster has been entered in the provincial contest but, as yet, no results have been publicized. Josée is the daughter of Yvette and Gaetan Dubeau and a Grade 7 student at St. Joseph's Separate School.

Tanya Blumell was the winner of the Zone G4 Essay Contest, but has since moved to British Columbia so was unable to attend and receive her award.

As you are all aware, a new building has been erected adjacent to the old Legion Hall. The grand opening is to take place on the afternoon of June 20, with Doug Fisher and various Legion officials in attendance. A dance will follow in the evening so be sure to keep the date open and we'll see you there.

Native celebrates 90th birthday

MARTINTOWN
Lorne MacDonald
528-4378

A special gathering took place last Wednesday at the home of Finley and Jean MacIntosh, to honor Finley on his 90th birthday. Friends and relatives paid a visit in the afternoon, as well, Mr. MacIntosh received many cards and bouquets.

He also was presented with plaques from Her Majesty, The Govenor-General, Premier David Peterson and MPP Noble Villeneuve. I stopped by the MacIntosh's that morning and they both look well, in fact, Finley looks better than some people do in their 50s. Happy Birthday Finley and many more to come.

Congratulations to Mrs. Eugene Lapierre on being named Mother-of-the-Year at St. William's parish. What a great honor to be bestowed on such a nice lady. Well deserved and long overdue!

Performances will be given Thursday, at Iona Academy at 7:30 p.m., and Monday at Tagwi High School at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $2 and available at the door. Where else can one get excellent entertainment at this price?

We say so long this week to Angela Bold as secretary of Martintown Hydro after five years of service. Our new secretary will be Anita Goudie, and at this time I would like to say welcome Anita and best of luck Angie.

This past week has been a busy one for many of Martintown Public School students competing in the Kinsmen Music Festival. The school sent a primary choir comprised of students from Grades one through three and a senior choir of students from Grades four through eight. There was a double duet and 20 soloists. The students all placed well and their teachers are very happy with the results.

Another Martintown resident, Ariana Wynn, who attends Iona Academy, won an award for her recorder solo. Congratulations Ariana, keep up the good work.

I would like to extend get well soon wishes to Hartley Dupuis who is recovering in hospital in Cornwall. Hope to see you out and about real soon.

Speaking of hospitals, I noticed a couple of Martintown area gals were hard at work checking the blood pressure of a couple of Alexandria Town officials. I'm of course refering to none other than Shirley Evrall and Marilyn Sloan. We can be very thankful for the devoted work done by the RNs. A huge bouquet to all of you ladies, and gents.

Andy McCuaig, son of Bruce and Marion, has returned home for the summer months. Andy is attending the University of New Brunswick studying Forestry Engineering. Welcome home Andy.

Wedding bells rang Saturday for a Martintown couple. I send sincere congratulations out to Cliff and Evelyn (Dicaire) Morris. Best wishes to Martintown's newest newlyweds.

George and Bev Runions and family and Don and Carol-Ann Ross and family spent the long weekend visiting friends in Barrie's Bay.

Robert and Nancy Kenney spent the long weekend visiting with Nancy's parents Alan and Brenda Lalonde of Kitchener. Robert made a hasty but quiet escape from Martintown after Les Canadiens went down at the hands of the Broad Street Bullies.

Tonight is bingo night at the Martintown Community centre at 7:30 p.m. For any information or hall rental, call 528-4369 or 528-4635.

Last but certainly not least I would like to say a big thank you to all of you great people who provided me with all the news in our area. Don't hesitate to call me as I'm always on the lookout for current events or salutations.

APPROACHING MARRIAGE— Mervyn and Anna Margaret MacDonald, of Green Valley, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Elaine to Brian, son of Kevin and Frances Miller of Orleans. The marriage will take place on Saturday at St. Raphael's Church at 4 p.m.

Jailed for impaired

A Cornwall man was sentenced to five days in jail Thursday after pleading guilty to impaired driving.

John Primeau, 33, of Cornwall, was charged May 8 in Charlottenburgh Township and appeared in Alexandria Provincial Court last week.

Court was told Mr. Primeau was driving his motorcycle three kilometres west of Lancaster when he lost control and crashed into the ditch causing about $1,800 damage to the bike.

While talking to police, the man's speech was slurred and he was unsteady of his feet. He was taken to Long Sault OPP for a breathalyzer test and his readings were 130 mgs. of alcohol in 100 mls. of blood.

Although it was Mr. Primeau's first impaired driving conviction, Judge Reginald Levesque said a short jail term was handed down because Mr. Primeau was involved in a single-vehicle accident.

The man's license was suspended for 14 months.

The May dinner meeting of the Maxville and District Lions Club was one to be remembered. Special guests were the volunteer firefighters of Maxville along with three Maxville students who participated in the recent Effective Speaking contest. This contest is jointly sponsored by the Lions Club of Maxville and Finch. Each of the students, Shawn Milne, Kristen Jones and Carrie Libbos gave a short repeat performance to show the skill and talent that earned them standings in the competition.

COMMUNICATION DEVICE

Representatives of Motorola were on hand to demonstrate a new communication equipment that our Fire Department will have about July 1. This pager-receiver system will put our firefighters in constant touch with the department chief, and each other at the scene of a fire. The Lions Club will contribute to the cost of what will become a critical part of each fireman's equipment.

The highlight of this evening's program was the recognition of long service to Albert Russell and Joe Rolland who received awards from the office of the Governor General.

On May 9, the Lions Club celebrated its 23rd anniversary with a dinner and dance at the Maxville Sports Complex.

The guest speaker after the dinner was Dr. Bernard Esche from the Cancer Clinic at the Ottawa Civic Hospital. Dr. Esche is a specialist in radiation oncology and gave a most interesting and educational talk on cancer. Last year, Dr. Esche and his wife Dr. Juanita Crook who accompanied him to Maxville and who is in the same field in the Ottawa General Hospital, studied in France through a grant from the Canadian Cancer Society.

Dr. Esche was introduced by Maxville reeve and Lion, George Currier and thanked by Lion President Alex McConnell who presented him with a personal gift along with a cheque for $1,000 to be used by the cancer society. Noble Villeneuve, MPP, was also asked to speak.

Dancing was enjoyed for the remainder of the evening.

EUCHRE PARTY

This bimonthly euchre party attracted enough players for 9 1/2 tables of euchre in the Senior Citizens' Room in Maxville on May 11.

Rita Séguin was top lady, followed by Dorothy Cutts from Riceville and Gladys Barton from Vankleek Hill.

Ross Fraser of Skye, not only won the door prize but also came first for the men with Herbie O''Byrne, second and Walter Beehler of Crysler, third.

The 50-50 draw winners were Ranald MacPherson, Alexandria, Ann Michaud, twice, Catherine MacRae, Eldon Cutts, Riceville, Herbie O'Byrne and Chester Valley, Tayside.

The next party will be on Monday, same time and place.

MANOR EUCHRE

On May 13, 16 tables of euchre players enjoyed an evening at the Manor.

Rita Séguin was a repeat winner for the week but in third place Laura Beehler, Crysler and Jean Chisholm had higher scores.

Top men were Clifford Locey, Long Sault, Arthur Franklin, Laggan and Emile Cardinal.

Mac O'Byrne won the door prize and 50-50 draw winners were Nina Ryan, Riceville, Homer MacLeod, Maxville Manor, Bill Johnson, Maxville Manor, George Essery, Moose Creek, Jean Smith, Vankleek Hill, Margaret Michaud, Dave Valley, Moose Creek, Mac O'Byrne, Rhoda MacRae, Dunvegan, Ena McLeod, Dunvegan and Ella Van Putten, Apple Hill.

The next euchre will be next Wednesday, same time and place.

PASSING NOTES

Your correspondent recently received a most interesting letter from Helen Morrow, a retired teacher living in Crysler. It was in response to an appeal for examples of positive things which happen in the classroom.

Ms. Morrow is a life member of the Ottawa Humane Society and cited three examples when her students did special things for animals in distress. One happened this time of the year when two boys saw a robin entangled in string up in a tree. One stood on the other's shoulders to reach the bird.

Nothing was said until a neighbor reported the incident to the school's principal who recognized the boys' good deed with an announcement throughout the school.

Ms. Morrow related two other incidents of a similar nature which all helped to reinforce the positive aspects of students' behavior.

Char-Lan lady in red leads fashion parade

WILLIAMSTOWN
Sue Harrington
347-2279

If you happened to be driving through Williamstown on Friday night, and if you just happened to park your car in front of Char-Lan High School, you could have had a ring-side seat to one of the most glamorous fashion parades of late in all of Glengarry. I'm referring, of course, to the parade into the school by all the students attending the annual prom.

Unlike several years ago when proms hit an all time low in popularity, and, I believe, actually vanished for a season or two, 1987 saw a large number of students make the transformation from ugly duckling to swan-for-a-night. But that's putting it rather nastily. In reality the dresses were truly beautiful. Most were long, with pink predominating, though there were a few emerald greens and sapphire blues dotting the dance floor. And who could ever forget the ''lady in red?''

The variety of male plummage made me realize that girls no longer have all the fun when it comes to getting ready for the big event. With a choice of pale blue or scarlet cummerbund, white or black patent shoes, tux or kilt, our young men are to be forgiven if they appear vague and dreamy in pre-prom days. Decisions, decisions!

I had a little peek into the gym on Friday afternoon and I must congratulate the prom committee for the lovely decorations. Char-Lan had its very own ''festival of spring'' with a multitude of yellow tulips and yellow, white and green balloons everywhere.

It would be nice in the years to come, if villagers could stand and watch as the young people arrived in their finery. As it is, only the youngsters are brave enough to get close enough to see the finer details, while we adults feel a bit voyeurish, peering as we do from our parked cars. Besides, it's hard on the batteries, keeping those headlights glaring!

Although not the big band sounds coming from the high school on Friday night, the public school choir managed to take second at the Kinsman Music Festival in Cornwall Friday afternoon. I'm told that in the shuffle from seats to stage, things got a bit confused and there were altos peppered among the sopranos, and vice versa. Maybe that's what caused the ''good blending'' which the choir produced. But I think it's more likely from the tuition the students received from their music teacher, Mrs. Meldrum, during their many practices prior to performing.

Williamstown had several individual winners, as well. Maria MacDonald and Tina Burson were both first place winners for solos, while Ruth Greer won second for the girls' solo, 12 and under. I happened to be there when the adjudicator commented on Ruth's performance and she said, ''In a few years that's going to be a very beautiful voice.'' So look out, Julie Andrews!

Amanda McCue of Grade 1 and Chris Leduc of Grade 5 both were awarded third prizes in their categories. And as for a certain foursome of giggling hyenas who disgraced themselves and drew ire from the adjudicator, what can I possibly say?

NEW ARRIVALS

Other members of the animal family have their tongues wagging this week, however. The canine community is all agog over the new pup in town, one ''Jake'' McDonell, who can be seen frolicking on Bruce and Linda's lawn.

Not to be outdone, our felines have welcomed young ''Porsche'' Sloan, a calico kitten into their midst. A classy name for a classy cat!

I'm happy to say that the human community is also doing its bit for Williamstown. Bev and Dan Schaefer have had a new baby girl, ''Victoria Paige'' for whom Laurie and Robb have been counting the days, and whom we welcome with open arms. (Imagine welcoming a baby with closed arms!)

We are also pleased that the Cutters have moved to Williamstown, living as they now are in the newly-renovated blue house on Middle Street.

If any of you readers have been dying to move into our village, now is your chance. In what must be a modern day record, there are actually at least two houses for sale in Williamstown at the moment.

Latest on the market is Maurice and Beryl Lagroix's house, located in a prime spot. Maurice andf Beryl are planning a move to Cornwall. Could bridge have anything to do with it, I wonder?

I don't know what I'll do if I don't have Maurice to give me the scores of the Williamstown Bridge Club each week. Two weeks ago Theresa and Bruno Carriere were first and Maurice Lagroix and Garry O'Connell were second. Third were Audrey Blair and Isobel Quail. This week's winners were Daisy and Ernie Pelley, Maurice Lagroix and Garry O'Connell, and Mary and Angus McDonell.

A former Williamstown resident, Armstrong MacCrimmon, along with his wife Connie, visited Bill and Norma Cattanach recently. Armstrong, a first cousin of Bill's, who now lives in Calgary, had a tour through the Caron house where he used to live from 1932 to '42.

Someone else who was home for the weekend was Charlie Pilon, who has been in hospital since suffering a stroke a while back. Charlie has been making stready progress and we await the day when he will be back in Williamstown to stay.

ANGUS H. NIGHT

From Jim Hill comes the following item which I'm sure will interest many of you readers. Jim writes, ''Next Wednesday night, May 27, the people of Glengarry and surrounding territories will honor Angus H. McDonell, the well-known sports columnist and historian. Tribute will be paid to him by his friends and fellow members of the Glengarry Sports Hall of Fame at the Maxville Sports Complex.

Angus is also a longtime member of the Nor'Westers Beaver Club of Glengarry and many of his fellow Wintering Partners, Voyageurs and Comforting Squaws will be on hand to enjoy the event. Any Williamstowners and local area residents are welcome to join the Beaver club at their table and take part in the festivities.

Should any further information be required, contact Jim Hill or Ernie Larocque. Get your dog teams ready and canoes patched and shiny and we'll go up to Maxville to join the fun.

A popular community event takes place at St. Andrew's Church Hall on Monday at 8 p.m.

At that time the Green Thumbs Horticultural Society is holding its annual garden auction. Everyone is most welcome to attend and bring and/or bid on the perennials, annuals and vegetables which will be on the block.

Our local reading group, the CHRU, met at the home of Thelma Rose last week. Bridget Grice spoke to the group about Greek drama and theatre, winding up this year's topic of ''All the World's a Stage.'' Members of the CHRU made up the agenda for next year when the topic will be ''Achievers.''

On JUne 1st, the CHRU is sponsoring a ''Day for Seniors'' to be held at the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre at 2 p.m. Entertainment will include a one-act play, ''The Dear Departed'' which is directed by the former head librarian at the Beaconsfield Public Library. That prize winning choir from Williamstown Public School will also perform.

The Lancaster District Chamber of Commerce held its first executive meeting on May 5 and the first board of directors' meeting followed.

All directors' meetings will be held at 8 p.m. on the first Tuesday of each month at the Claude Nunney Legion Hall and will be open to all members.

The next meeting is scheduled for June 2 and all members are asked to attend. Anyone interested in joining the chamber may do so at this time.

Belleville man fined $200 for assault

A Belleville man was fined $200 Thursday after pleading guilty to assaulting a 13-year-old girl in December.

Barry Trudel, 39, was charged Dec. 14 in Alexandria and appeared in Alexandria Provincial Court last week.

Court was told Mr. Trudel was living in Alexandria and employed as a taxi driver at the time of the incident. The accused picked up the victim in Glen Robertson and drove her back to his apartment in Alexandria.

The accused asked the victim if he could rub oil on her back, but after she refused, Mr. Trudel proceeded to do so anyway.

A short while later, the victim's sister arrived at the apartment to take her home.

The accused has since moved to Belleville. He was given two months to pay the fine.

On Thursday, the Dunvegan Women's Institute will meet at the hall. The motto, "Nothing is waste that makes a memory" will be commented on by Elizabeth Stewart. The roll call will be answered with "A pleasant memory of your mother." For the program, bring a Mother's Day poem.

The new president, Ann Stewart asked that a special invitation be extended to all mothers and especially mothers of 4-H Club members.

Because this was written Friday, it is not easy to report on some happenings. However, I wanted to draw everyone's attention to the new time for having your news in to me—Sunday night from now on.

Call me at 527-2284, or if you are on the 525 line, call The News office on Monday morning.

If you are interested in having this column continue, I must have things to report.

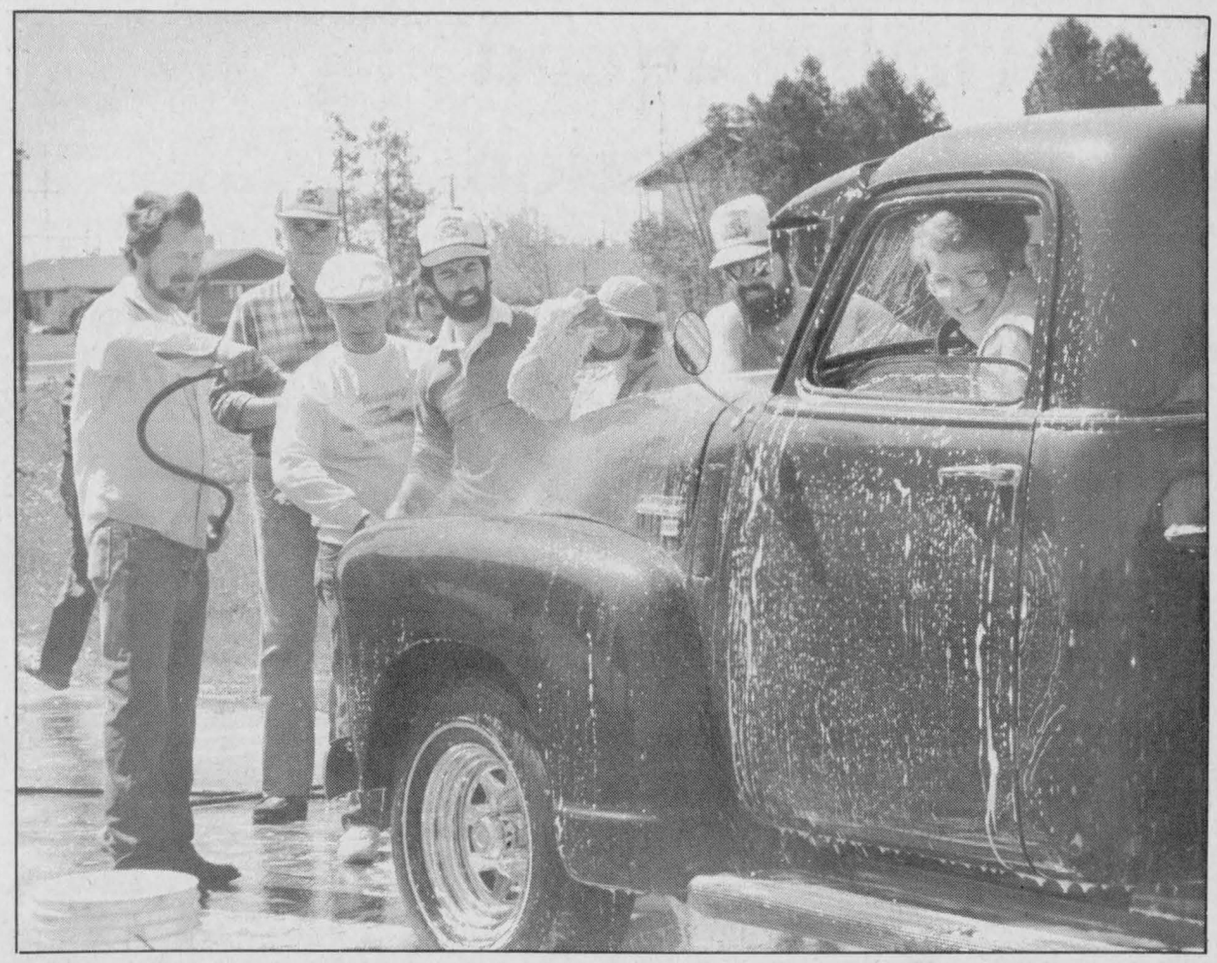
Don't forget the youth group's car wash and bake sale on Saturday. All donations of baking will be gratefully received. Get your car all shined up and buy some goodies.

The event takes place at MacLeod's Grocery Store at Laggan.



SUDS FOR THE CAUSE— Members of the Easy Cruiser Street Car Club give Linda Rines a lesson in fundraising. The club will donate all proceeds of their Saturday car wash to Mt. Carmel House where Mrs. Rines is administrative assistant. The shiny truck belongs to club president Rejean Larocque. This is the third year the club has staged the event. Last year they were able to donate $500.

Mrs. Sidney Hay, Mrs. Stanley Forbes and Mrs. Leslie McNaughton recently attended the 15th annual three-day spring convention of 'Women Alive', at the University of Waterloo. About 2,000 ladies attended.

Special music was provided by the lovely voices of three sisters, the Parschauer Trio of Huron, Ohio. Exceptional speakers were Dr. Helen Roseveare, from Northern Ireland and Dr. Pauline Hamilton from Florida.

This year's theme was Break Me, Melt Me, Use Me.

Those who attended have nothing but high praise for the organizers, the staff and the wonderful program.

Mrs. Lionel Brunet received many beautiful local quilts for the exhibition recently held in Dalkeith.

They certainly added to the wonderful variety of handicraft displays and were much admired and appreciated by all.

Quilts, quilts and more quilts! Seventy-seven quilts were displayed at the Craft Display in St. Paul's Hall in Dalkeith last Wednesday.

Quilters from far and near displayed their masterpieces. It was interesting to see so many color combinations and so many different patterns side by side.

The centre tables were laden with knitting, crocheting, sculpture, wicker and much more.

As usual, the bake table was overflowing with cakes, pies, rolls, cookies, squares and leeks.

The ladies of the parish report the display was a real success. A real success because of the many exhibitors and the many friends who came.

Bethune-Thompson house to be renovated by foundation

by Sue Harrington

WILLIAMSTOWN—History repeats itself. The more things change, the more they stay the same. All sorts of quotes are to be found, which, with the odd tuck here and dart there, fittingly describe the alterations to the historic Bethune-Thompson House in Williamstown.

The imposing white stucco building, home over the years to a variety of men with a variety of occupations, has come full circle, from humble origins to Georgian splendour with Regency accents. The house is undergoing a face-lift which will see it restored to the periods of the three separate stages in which it was built.

In charge of the surgery on the House is the Ontario Heritage Foundation, which purchased the building in 1977. From the findings of the foundation we learn that the architecture of the house "contributes to the site's significance as much as the two prominent owners, John Bethune and David Thompson did."

The original structure, owned by Peter Ferguson, a Loyalist farmer, appears to have been built in 1784 or 1785. This is the south wing of the building. Though typical of early settlers' homes in that it had an open ground floor, a masonry fireplace and chimney stack at one end, it was constructed in an unusual manner in a technique considered to be "early French-Canadian." The common method of contruction in Upper Canada had the timbers laid horizontally, but here they were set vertically into a sill and top plate. This house and the Manor House, also in Williamstown, are the only known examples of this building type still existing in Ontario.

PRIMATIVE STRUCTURE

To date, the restoration of the Ferguson section of the home, later used as a kitchen, has exposed the original ceiling beams and stripped five layers of flooring to reveal rough eight inch wide planks. The fireplace, which had at one point been sealed up, looms prominently at the south end of the building, its stone walls more than two feet thick. The original door remains, as do the brackets which have held it fast over the generations.

It was the Rev. John Bethune, first Presbyterian minister in Upper Canada, who changed the caterpillar into a butterfly. Rev. Bethune bought the property in 1804 when he moved to Williamstown where he had previously established a congregation in 1787.

Rev. Bethune's years in Montreal, where he lived prior to moving to Glengarry, bear their mark on the Williamstown house. The bell-case roof and stucco finish are both French-Canadian features.

SWAN-NECK

Inside Rev. Bethune's house, the graceful stairway, with its "swan-neck" railing, still adorns the front hall. The wallpaper in the parlor has been stripped down to its original layer, believed to be from the 1805-1815 period, an early example of paper hanging in Ontario.

Interesting construction techniques in the building included "pugging," a form of insulation which was placed underneath the first floor, in the attic and also in the partition walls. According to a display in the Nor'-Westers and Loyalists Museum, the infilling, the material placed next to exterior walls, was extremely rare in Rev. Bethune's house, being made of a mixture of sticks, stones, and animal hair with mud.

While some houses are able to boast one man of fame or perhpas fortune who inhabited them, seldom do they shelter two such individuals. But in 1815, Veronique Bethune, after the death of her husband in the same year, sold the house to David Thompson, explorer and map-maker.

In his 19 years as landowner, Thompson built the verandahs on the house and constructed three outbuildings. He also installed a drainage system and plastered the kitchen ceiling. The grounds of the property were landscaped during the Thompson period.

In 1834 the house entered the McLennan-Robertston dynasty which was to last until 1937. During Farquhar McLennan's residence there appears to have been no known renovations. Murdoch McLennan and his sister Catherine revamped the interior with additional plaster, wallpaper and paint. They built a woodshed at the south end of the kitchen and re-roofed the south wing. In the 1840's the shutters on the house were replaced by blinds. In the 1980's the shutters are returning.

In 1904, the house passed into the hands of Farquhar Robertson who demolished the north wing and replaced it with the two-story structure which we see today.

Kenneth Robertson who acquired the house in 1929 modernized it by installing plumbing and electricity. During his time there was a fire in the new north wing of the house, though there is no report on evidence of damage.

EARLY MEMORIES

Mae Smart of Williamstown has early recollections of the house at this time. "My father would send me over to Mr. Kenny's (Kenneth Robertson) when I was a teenager to pay the ground rent. It was at its best then. I remember the big white gates off the street. Mr. Kenny's housekeeper would take me into the sitting room. I never dreamt that someday I would be living there."

Mrs. Smart, nee Major, moved into the house in 1945, when her husband, Bill, took over the farm from his father, Morris. The senior Mr. Smart, a native of Scotland, had worked for Mr. Robertson before buying the house in 1937.

Mae Smart recalls "it was a good life." The dairy farm consisted of 165 acres, including land where the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre now stands. During their life there, Mrs. Smart says the family didn't really think about the historical significance of the house. It wasn't until son Neville was in high school and was doing a project that the historical significance of the place had an impact on the Smarts.

Ten years later, the foundation is nearly ready to decide what is to be done with the historic building. A study which looks at viable uses for the house has been completed. Public input into the decision-making was invited and received and results of the survey and the foundation's plans should be made known this fall. Whether the Bethune-Thompson house will become a tea-room, a museum, a restaurant, or a bed and breakfast place remains to be seen. One thing which is certain, is that the public will have access to it, however it is used.

HISTORIC HOME—A feasibility study to find a viable community use for Williamstown's Bethune-Thompson House was complete last month. Debbie Emerton was in charge of the study and says results should be available in the fall.

Trade show a huge success despite heavy competition

Attendance at the Alexandria and District Chamber of Commerce Trade Show was high despite competition with the Canadien-Flyers hockey game, sunny weather and the Victoria Day weekend. About 2,500 people turned out during the three-day show, which started Thursday evening.

According to Chamber President Jacques Trottier, the steady stream of traffic came Thursday and Friday nights, dropping off Saturday.

While the show offered about 50 local businesses an opportunity to promote their goods and services, visitors were able to gather information and in some cases, purchase merchandise or place orders.

Displays included cars, water purifiers, yard funiture, beauty care products and broadloom. Local banks were even passing out information. There was something for everyone.

Names were also being drawn for prizes ranging from computerized thermostats to clock radios to microwave cookware and some merchants passed out discount coupons.

Claude Poirier, owner of The Bootique in Alexandria, measured his success at the trade show by the number of coupons coming into his store last week. By Saturday afternoon, about 20 buyers had taken advantage of the discount.

Pierre Miron of Miron Electronics TV Sales and Service says he sold several televisions, microwave ovens and VCR's. And many folks also stopped at the booth to nibble on the microwave goodies being set out by a Quasar representative.

Owner Andy Basara says, "The show gives people the opportunity to stop by at their leisure, to discuss things they normally have no time for."

Sky-Hi Video strategically placed its booth at the entrance to the trade show and featured videos to entertain children while parents browsed though displays.

And many parents bringing children stopped at the Ident-A-Kid booth, where children were fingerprinted. A card containing the prints and vital information such as child's height, weight and hair color were given to the parents by co-sponsors Canadian Air Force Assocation and chamber, at no charge.

Entertainment included a fashion show, organized by Alexandria's Natalie St. Denis and featuring the fashions of seven local merchants.

Saturday, a performance was given by students of the Lancaster-based Sandy's School of Dance, drawing everyone's attention to the half-hour show.

Passers-by commented they believed the event was well organized and the booths were professionally displayed.

Almost all participants agreed opening night drew more people than any other time and while they felt the show was successful, most hoped the next one would not be held on a holiday weekend.

Mr. Trottier plans to shorten the trade show's hours next time. He feels opening the doors from 7-10 p.m. on the first two days and from 1-5 p.m. on the Saturday, would be sufficient.

He says he also hopes to charge admission. The proceeds would go toward a prize, drawn at the end of the final day and the tickets would allow the chamber to determine the exact number of visitors.

Competitive soccer season begins

Glen Sandfield, Glen Nevis win titles at tournament with penalty kicks

by George Kampouris

LOCHIEL—The Glengarry Soccer League kicked off its 1987 season Sunday with the annual Gerald MacDonald Tournament held at Lochiel under grey skies. Six teams competed in each of the Senior Men's and Ladies Divisions kindling rivalries and showcasing the season's new formations. In the end, old strength returned with Glen Sandfield ladies and Glen Nevis men becoming 1987 cup holders.

In first round action, Alexandria B ladies beat Laggan in an impressive 10-0 win to gain a bye to the final. Top scorers were Donna St. Denis with four goals and Debbie Charlebois with two. Brenda Cameron, Natalie Lapierre, Kelly Oma and Wendy Maler each added singles.

Greenfield men took a 3-1 decision over Pine Grove. Scoring for the defending league champions were Donny Morris, Robert Wensink and Frank Morris with a 50-yard run to score what was maybe the tournament's finest goal. Hugh MacMaster replied for Pine Grove.

Dunvegan's Tammy Lasalle scored in the final minute of play to force Glen Sandfield to win on penalty kicks. Marnie MacRae gave Glen Sandfield their early lead.

An all new Glengarry Stars squad made its senior men's debut by beating Glen Sandfield 2-1 on penalties to earn a bye into the final. Brent Barton gave Glen Sandfield an early lead before Steve Cameron equalized late in the game. Trevor Marley scored the decisive penalty shot.

Sherry MacLean led Greenfield ladies over Alexandria A with two goals in a 4-0 win. Geraldine St. Denis and Shirley Van Loon each scored singles.

Glen Nevis men passed the first round by beating the Glengarry Old Timers 2-1 after penalty kicks. Glen Campbell gave Glen Nevis the lead on a penalty shot in the first half and Ewen McLeod evened the score. Nathan Hoedemann came out of goal to take the decisive penalty shot.

SEMI-FINALS

In semi-final action Glen Sandfield ladies beat Greenfield 2-0. Micheline Paquette gave her team the lead early in a second half almost completely dominated by the Glen Sandfield offence. Wendy Hay added the insurance goal.

In the men's semi-final, Glen Nevis was held to a scoreless draw by a short-handed Greenfield squad. Glen Campbell gave his Glen Nevis team the victory on the decisive penalty shot.

The senior ladies final was also decided on penalty kicks after a hard fought 0-0 draw that saw a young, determined Alexandria B team go down to an experienced Glen Sandfield. Ladies Division MVP Guylaine Chenier made several clutch stops in the final shootout and then scored the winner. Wendy Hay was voted the most 'gentlemanly' player and the Bees' Natalie Seguin earned the medal as the best goaltender.

The main event of the day saw the rookie Glengarry Stars battle Glen Nevis to a 1-1 deadlock after 90 minutes of entertaining firewagon ball. Tournament MVP Glen Campbell opened the score for last year's league finalists with a header from inside the goal area. The Stars evened the score on a spectacular goal when Trevor Marley took a perfect pass up the middle and driving between two defenders stroked it past a helpless goalie. For the rest of the game, Glen Nevis fought hard to contain the Stars explosive attack, a feat that earned Kennedy MacDonald the best goalie award for excellence under fire.

Glen Nevis finally won the game after a tense series of penalty kicks that went back and forth and even saw a key save by goalie Pierre Roman called back at the referee's discretion. Finally, rookie back David Smith delivered the decisive penalty shot. The performance of the Stars' Travis Giroux was recognized by the awarding of the tournament's most gentlemanly player medal.

SPORTS

Peter Conway

Angus H. McDonell, since I've known him, has never been at a loss for words. That may come to an end next Wednesday night when Glengarrians pay tribute to him and his wife Bea at a testimonial dinner at the Maxville Sports Complex.

A couple of months ago, a group of people felt it was time that a special night be held for Angus, thanking him for his work and effort promoting sports and Scottish heritage in Glengarry over the years.

Well, it's been more than a few years for Angus. He turned 82 years young last Wednesday. I shouldn't have to say that he celebrated his birthday with a little nip of scotch.

Everyone in Glengarry knows Angus. He's been a contributing columnist to this newspaper for 62 years. He's been involved in the Glengarry Highland Games as chairman for 25 years. He's been the backbone in the construction of the Glengarry Sports Hall of Fame building in Maxville.

He's been involved in other events such as the annual Robbie Burns Night and he took an active role in Alexandria's centennial celebations a couple of years ago.

He is an amazing person. I'm astonished how he continues to promote Scottish heritage in the county in a tireless fashion. Last weekend Angus took part in the Lancaster centennial celebrations. He was master of ceremonies during the Scottish concert Friday night and continued the role Sunday during the presentation of awards following the heavy events program.

A Scottish event in Glengarry just wouldn't be the same without Angus. The Glengarry Highland Games and the Glengarry Sports Hall of Fame are his pride and joy.

He has always promoted athletes in Glengarry, giving a plug in print here and there. Just ask J. T. Hay if Angus promotes local athletes. He'll be the first person to tell you that Angus opened the door for a tryout with the Canadian Football League's Ottawa Rough Riders. Prior to his pro career, it was a plug to Ottawa Sooners' GM Don Holtby, that a young kid from Lochiel had a future in pro ball. The rest is history as J. T. has gone on to become one of the top kickers in the CFL.

Angus has given so much to Glengarry over the years. He has become a valuable friend to most of us. Sure, he's made a few enemies along the way, but as Angus would say, "That's par for the course my son."

In the newspaper business, particularly covering sports, you meet a lot of nice people. Athletes come and go. You make friends and you make enemies in the business. There have been times in the past when I've needed information for a story and Angus has always been there to help.

Angus knows everyone in Glengarry and everyone knows him. I'm not the only employee at this newspaper he's helped in the past.

To get an idea on what he's meant to The Glengarry News, you just have to ask former Editor Anna Margaret MacDonald.

She was in the business for more than 20 years and she knows the contribution he made to this newspaper over the years.

I am not a true Glengarrian, but rather an adopted one. But, there are times I feel that I've lived in Glengarry all my life. I knew many people in the county because of sports prior to taking up residence in Glengarry. You can't imagine, however, the many friends I've made through Angus in the four corners of the county.

A fete for Angus and Bea is long overdue. I'm told Glengarrians always wait to the last moment when it comes to organizing and attending functions. In this special night for Angus and Bea, it was no exception.

But, the organizing committee is delighted that preparations have been finalized and next Wednesday night's affair should be an enjoyable one.

I honestly hope that Glengarrians come out and pay tribute to Angus and Bea. He's touched so many of us in some capacity over the years. It's time we came out and thanked him for all he's done.

Palmer captures heavy events

by Peter Conway

LANCASTER—Talk about making a first impression.

Mark Palmer had never competed in a Glengarry heavy events program until Sunday's mini Highland Games during Lancaster's centennial celebrations.

Palmer, of Rochester, New York, was a big hit among the competitors and spectators as he walked off with the overall championship.

He finished with 36 points, edging Ottawa's George Chiappa's total of 34 1/2 points. Williamstown's Willie Lang had a strong showing, finishing with 27 points.

Members of the Glengarry Caber Club used the event as their annual spring meet. The fall competition is expected to take place in September at Loch Garry.

"The whole affair was a huge success and I was told it was the biggest crowd ever for a Glengarry Cabers Club event," said Finlay McDonell, who along with Donald J. MacDonald, Lloyd Kennedy and Doug Fales acted as judges. The official scorer was Val McDonald, the wife of John McDonald of Syracuse, New York, who was one of the athletes competing. Both have been active members in the Glengarry Cabers Club since the competitions started 10 years ago.

The seven events were dominated by Palmer, Chiappa and Lang. Chiappa won the 22-pound stone throw with a distance of 46.5 feet, while Palmer was next at 45.7 and Ian Sandilands third at 37.8.

Chiappa, with a toss of 31.8 feet, captured the 56-pound-for-distance. Palmer was second at 28.6, while Sandilands was third at 27.3.

In the 28-pound-for-distance, Chiappa's winning toss was 63.7 feet, followed by Palmer at 62.8 and Syracuse's Pat Lynn at 61. Chiappa then won the 22-pound hammer throw with a distance of 93 feet, while Palmer's toss was 89 and Willie Lang's was 84.2.

The 16-pound hammer throw turned out to be a close affair as Palmer edged Lang and Chiappa for the title. Palmer's winning mark was 112.6 feet, while Lang and Chiappa finished at 111.4 and 111 respectively.

Lang captured the 56-pound-for-height with a mark of 13 feet, tied with Palmer. Chiappa was next at 12 feet.

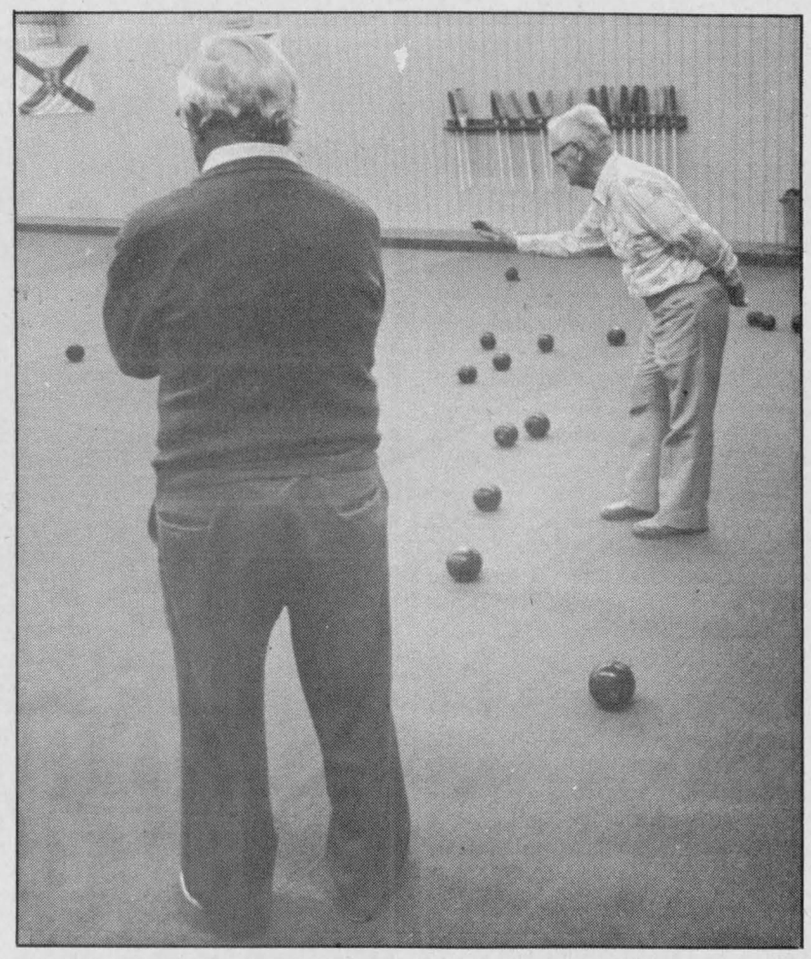
Lang, with a total of 23 feet, won the sheaf toss, edging past Palmer and Ron MacDonell, who finished at 22 and 21 feet respectively.

The main event and crowd pleaser at Scottish heavy events is the caber toss. Competitors used a 20-foot caber, weighing 100 pounds.

Palmer won the event almost turning the caber at 12 o'clock. His best throw was at 11.55, while Willie Lang was second at 1:30 and George Chiappa third at 10:20.

Another entertaining event in the program was the celebrity sheaf toss between local politicians. Kenyon Township Deputy-reeve Finlay McDonell won a close struggle over Lancaster Township Deputy-reeve Charlie Sangster.

Part of the day-long festivities was a parade held on Main Street in early afternoon. Organizers were pleased with the support from local people who viewed the events throughout the day.



LAWN BOWLING BEGINS—Members of the Glengarry Lawn Bowling Club began their season at the Alexandria Curling Club Wednesday. Jack Paavila, organizer, said he expects to have six to eight teams of three ready for the third year of competition.

New president

Archie Stewart was elected the new president of the club for the 1987-'88 season. Back for another term as manager is Claude Roy, while Leo Poirier returns to handle the secretary-treasurer duties.

Lancaster holds anniversary bash

LANCASTER—About 200 people packed the Lancaster Village Legion, Friday night, to enjoy an evening brimming with Scottish culture.

The Scottish Heritage Concert drew popular Glengarry legends such as Major J. T. MacKenzie and the Glengarry Pipe Band, the MacCulloch Dancers and the Lochiel Strings.

The evening part of Lancaster's centennial celebrations opened with a performance by the dancers, accompanied by the pipe band. Alexandria Mayor J. P. Touchette later sang ''Danny Boy,'' followed by a duet with Lancaster Reeve Milton MacDonald.

Brian MacDonell accompanied singers on his guitar.

Rev. Bruce Ross of the Cardinal and Johstown United Churches, near Prescott, fiddled his way into the hearts of the concert guests. The visiting Bishop Faber MacDonald, who travelled from Newfoundland to ordain a Cornwall priest, joined Rev. Ross in a duet.

''If the clergy can be fiddlin' together, it means they won't be fighting,'' joked one of the clergymen. It seems the two fiddle up a storm every three years.

Robert Taylor of the Brigadoons and his accordian made a guest appearance.

During intermission, Rae MacCulloch was presented a bouquet of carnations. Master of Ceremonies Angus H. McDonell awarded Major MacKenzie a bottle of beer.

Sunday, centennial celebrations continued with mini-highland games, despite dismal weather. The games recessed for a short while and spectators were treated to a parade on Main Street.

Museum re-opens its doors and features quilt display

WILLIAMSTOWN—In a gesture befitting its fealty to the British crown, the Nor'Westers and Loyalist Museum opened its doors for another season on the Victoria Day weekend. The museum, located in Williamstown, has a permanent collection of items pertaining to both the Loyalists who first settled the area and to the Nor'West fur traders who later put the region on the historical map.

New curator of the museum this year is Deborah Emerton of Cornwall who will be applying her ten years of experience in the heritage conservation field to the local showpiece. With a B.A. in History from Queen's University and a diploma in Museum technology from Algonquin, Deborah is enthusiastic about her new position.

Rachel Bradbury, presently enrolled in a museum internship at Wilfrid Laurier University in Waterloo, will be assisting the curator with the general operations of the museum. Rachel will also continue research for a book on the Nor'Westers which was started last summer.

A special opening exhibit is a collection of quilts on display from the Ottawa Quilter's Guild. The exhibit features wall-hangings, crib quilts, cushions, bags, as well as full-sized quilts, some of which have been "taken quite literally off the guild members' beds," says Deborah.

The quilt display continues until June 23. Museum hours are Saturdays and holidays from 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and weekdays and Sundays from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m.

MUSEUM OPENS—The Nor'Westers and Loyalist Museum in Williamstown opened its doors for another season on the Victoria Day Weekend. Marg Jackman, left, Deborah Emerton and Lynne Johnston were busy preparing the quilt display Friday afternoon.

Looking for recruits

CORNWALL — If you're attracted by the prospect of learning about every gambit of warfare, not to mention survival in the bush, you may want to look into joining the SD&G Highlanders.

The Highlanders is a volunteer army reserve force, operating under the Canadian Armed Forces. Recruiters will be in Alexandria in mid-September, looking for recruits and young officer candidates to command the regiment.

The force will accept up to 50 men and women, age 17 to 34. There is no obligation to remain in the reserve for a specified duration. The program will begin around mid-October and continue until June 1988.

Successful candidates will be required to serve a minimum of 4 1/2 days each month and will receive a nine-month schedule when they begin.

Initially, recruits will be taught marching, weapons handling, saluting and proper wear of the uniform.

Later training may include driving, terrain recognition, military law, how to use maps and compasses and how to use and repair radios. Information on drug use may also be part of the program.

Recruits will spend some time in the classroom, but will also join in field exercises, during which they will learn to move undetected during daylight or at night, travel on foot with equipment and survive in the bush.

The SD&G Highlanders have not attracted many recruits from Alexandria and the area for several years, says Lt. Col. James Sheflin. He believes the distance to the Cornwall armory, where training takes place, is a major factor.

This year, the army will provide transportation into Cornwall.

Recruiters will be stationed in a tent at Glengarry District High School and candidates should bring their birth certificates, social insurance numbers and basic family information.

New recruits would start training about a month later, having been accepted on the basis of physical condition and health status. They must also pass tests in general comprehension.

Level of education can influence a recruit's starting rank and the force accepts non-Canadian citizens.

Should there be a national emergency, the Highlanders may be called out.

TOWNSHIP OF LANCASTER

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 31, 1986

1. ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The financial statements of the municipality are the representation of management prepared in accordance with accounting policies prescribed for Ontario municipalities by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs. Since precise determination of many assets and liabilities is dependent upon future events, the preparation of periodic financial statements necessarily involves the use of estimates and approximations. These have been made using careful judgements.

(a) Basis of Consolidation

(i) Financial Statements

These statements reflect the assets, liabilities, sources of financing and expenditures of the revenue fund, capital fund, reserve fund and reserves and include the activities of all committees of Council.

All interfund assets and liabilities and sources of financing and expenditures have been eliminated with the exception of loans or advances between the reserve fund and any other fund of the municipality and the resulting interest income and expenditures.

(ii) Non-consolidated Entities

There are no non-consolidated entities.

(iii) Accounting for County and School Board transactions

The taxation, other revenues, expenditures, assets and liabilities with respect to the operations of the school boards, and the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry are not reflected in the municipal fund balances of these financial statements. Net underlevies are reported on the Consolidated Balance Sheet as "other current assets".

(iv) Trust Fund

The Township of Lancaster Ontario Home Renewal Program trust fund and its related operations administered by the municipality are not consolidated, but are reported separately on the "Trust Fund Statement of Continuity and Balance Sheet".

1. ACCOUNTING POLICIES (Cont'd)

(a) Basis of Consolidation (Cont'd)

(v) The charges for long term liabilities assumed by individuals, in the case of tile drainage loans, are not reflected in these financial statements.

(b) Basis of Accounting

(i) Sources of financing and expenditures are reported on the accrual basis of accounting with the exception of principal and interest charges on long term liabilities, which are charged against operations in the periods in which they are paid.

(ii) The accrual basis of accounting recognizes revenues as they become available and measurable; expenditures are recognized as they are incurred and measurable as a result of receipt of goods or services and the creation of a legal obligation to pay.

(iii) The historical cost and accumulated depreciation of fixed assets are not reported for municipal purposes. Fixed assets acquired with current funds are reported as an expenditure on the "Statement of Operations" in the year of acquisition.

(iv) "Capital outlay to be recovered in future years", which represents the outstanding principal portion of unmatured long term liabilities for municipal expenditures or capital funds transferred to other organizations, is reported on the "Balance Sheet".

2. OPERATIONS OF SCHOOL BOARDS AND THE UNITED COUNTIES OF STORMONT, DUNDAS AND GLENGARRY
