MOTOR ACCIDENT

Mountain Herald—While returning to their home in Kemptville, last Thursday evening, Mrs. B. L. Crowder and family, who had a Mr. Moore driving them in his car, met with a very serious accident, just at the turn back of Mountain.. The driver, not being accustomed to the road and at the time it was raining hard, did not notice the corner and the car plunged over the roadside into a six foot ditch, throwing the occupants out and badly cutting Mrs. Crowder about the face, that required twelve stitches to close the wound. The rest of the occupants escaped with a bad shaken-up.

COW LIVED WITH WIRE EMBEDDED IN HEART

A strange discovery was made recently by an Ingersoll butcher while removing the heart from a cow that had just been slaughtered. Firmly embedded in the heart was a piece of small wire about eight inches in length. The knife came in contact with the wire, which could not be plainly seen at the time. Investigation showed that the wire had entered the heart at one side and had been forced almost completely through that organ. The wire was of the kind that is used in bailing hay, and it is regarded as remarkable that it did not prove fatal to the animal, which is supposed to have swallowed it.

POLICE ARE WATCHING ALLEGED SMUGGLERS

Principals in an attempt to smuggle two men into the United States through Cornwall port, who were drowned in the river between Cornwall Island and Racquet Point, N.Y., are being kept under police surveillance for an enquiry which will follow the finding of the bodies of the drowned men. The dead men have been identified through information received by immigration authorities as Wilfred Massey, aged 30 years, of Chambly, Que., and Urgel Bassett, of Ste. Brez, Men. according to Thomas W. Supple, United States immigration inspector at Cornwall, Ont., were being rowed across the St. Lawrence to the American shore on April 24 by Lawrence David, a Cornwall Island Indian, with the intention of eluding the immigration officers.

PRESERVING COMPOSITE SAMPLES OF MILK FOR TEST

Investigational work carried out by the Department of Bacteriology O.A. C., that is of special interest to the cheesemakers and managers of factories, was concluded during the past year. Many factory managers had experienced trouble in keeping the composite samples of milk in good condition for the period required by the Dairy Standards Act. The result of the O. A. C. Bacteriological Department investigation shows that not less than six grains of corrosive sublimate is required to keep a one pint sample in good condition for forty days. This amount should be used if the butter fat tests are made either once or twice a month.

PREDICT BIG REVENUE FROM MOTOR TOURISTS

It is predicted by the touring department of the Ontario Motor League that the Province will benefit to the extent of at least between sixty and sixty-five million dollars this season from the million and a quarter tourists' cars expected to visit Ontario during the coming season.

This prediction is based on the fact that more than a million cars visited Ontario last year, some staying here the full thirty day period allowed without the taking out of a license being required, and that at a very conservative estimate the occupants of each car spent at least $50 among them while here.

Owing to the much better condition of the roadways this season, due to the elimation of most of the annoying detours, and the fact that Ontario is yearly growing in popularity with touring motorists, it is confidently believed that there will be an increase in traffic this season of at least twenty-five per cent.

WILLIAM A. BOWEN

Iroquois Post—We have to record the death of Mr. William A. Bowen, who was, for nearly his whole life, a very useful and highly respected citizen of Iroquois.

Mr. Bowen passed away on 30th of April, 1924, the immediate cause of death being cerebral hemorrhage, or what is commonly known as paralysis. He had enjoyed good health until about two years ago, when he had to retire from his profession, the continuous strain of his many years teaching being followed by cerebral hemorrhages resulting in a nervous breakdown.

The funeral service was held at his late home on Asa Street, Kemptville, Saturday, May 3rd, conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. H. Miller, assisted by Rev. A. Wilkinson, of Perth, a former pastor. Mr. Wilkinson took as his text "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches" Prov. 22; 1. The solo "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" was rendered by Mr. Medcof. The remains were placed in Point Iroquois Methodist vault.

Mr. Bowen was born in Matilda Township, Dec. 15th, 1868, and was therefore in his 66th year. He came to Iroquois when he was three years old and from that time, while in Iroquois, resided continuously on the same premises where he built his nice residence.

He was a life long Methodist, having become a member of the church when quite young, and as a layman, held most responsible offices in the Iroquois Methodist Church, being for quite a number of years secretary of the Trustee and Quarterly Official Boards, also a great many years Superintendent of the Sunday School.

He taught school forty-two years, thirty-four of which were in Iroquois, then in Chesterville and two years in Kemptville. His life work was teaching and in that work he was successful. He was a splendid disciplinarian, and this with his exemplary Christian manhood have certainly had a great influence on the lives of those who have come under his teaching.

As a citizen he could be depended upon to bear his share in any good work. He served in the Municipal Council and was a member of the Canadian order of Chosen Friends.

He was united in marriage on Sept. 21st, 1892, to Jennie, daughter of Mr. Guy C. Ault, who survives him.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his widow, his brother, James of Toronto, and sister, Mrs. J. Will Smith, of Iroquois; also one neice, Mrs. H. H. Frick, Erie, Penn., and a nephew, Mahlon Loucks, of Montreal.

"VISITERS."

(By little Benny, in Montreal Herald)

Visiters are people that come and see you, especially wen you dont ixpect them and wish they had of come some other time, if ever. Wen the visiters ring the bell and you run up and tell your mother who's down there, your mother is libel to say something like, "O shaw," or "Izzent that pervoking?" or "How am I ever going to get this swetter done?" but when she goes down in the parler to see them she is libel to say something on the contrary, sutch as, "Well, well, well, I'm delighted to see you," or "Tis is an unixpected plezzure, well well, well."

A lady visitor stays longer than a man visiter and 2 lady visiters stay longer than one on account of them both having a lot they wunt to say and not being able to talk at the same time all the time. Sometimes two lady visiters and your mother all tawk at the same time without any of them lissening, proving wats fair to one if fair to all. If a lady visiter wunts to say something wile your mother is tawking she jest starts rite in enyware insted of waiting till the end of a sentents, and your mother does the same thing back being the cause of many sentents having starts but no ends.

When a man visiter comes with a lady visiter he pulls out his watch about 6 times and looks at it without the lady visiter doing enything about it, and then he stands up saying, "Well," and the lady visiter had to get up out of politniss and go home with him Proving politniss is one of the greatest things there is.

Wen other fellows come in to see you and suppir is reddy your father says "Tell your little friends to go home now," but wen lady visiters come to see your mother and suppir is all reddy your father jests wawks up and down the hall and without dasting to say: "Tell your big friends to go home now," no matter how hungry he is. Proving everybody maybe born equal but they don't stay that way.

Palms on Every Hand

First Guest—"I'm sure I don't know why they call this hotel 'The Palms,' do you? I've never seen a palm anywhere near the place.

Second Guest—"You'll see them before you go. It's a pleasant little surprise the waiters keep for the guests on the last day of their stay." —The Watchman-Examiner (New York.)

Wife: "I must have been a fool when I married you." Husband: "Undoubtedly; but the old adage stood by you: 'A fool for luck.'"

"My daddy's taller than yours," boasted Billie. "He isn't!" retorted Jack, indignantly. "My daddy's so tall he has to stand on a chair to put hiscollar on!"

TRAIN A MILE LONG

St. Thomas, Ont., May 13.—What is believed to be the first time in the Dominion of Canada, a freight train, reaching one mile in length, was operated over the Canadian division of the Michigan Central Railway on Saturday. The train left the St. Thomas terminal for Detroit and was comprised of 110 empty aptomobile cars.

HOW CHILDREN CAN ASSIST.
Migratory Birds Convention Act

Lesson No. 3.

Birds make excellent friends. They are very interesting, and they respond readily to kindness and protection. Many are bright and beautiful in appearance, others delight us with their songs, and nearly all our small birds are useful in destroying harmful insects, or weed seeds, or both. Any girl or boy will enjoy bird friends and the birds will help the children pass many pleasant hours.

How can we attract our friends, the birds, to live about our homes, so that they will destroy as many as possible of the insects that trouble us?

Both boys and girls can help in many ways in this work by protecting our birds. In the first place you can befriend them during the snowy winter months by putting out bits of suet, hayseed or crumbs. A good idea is to build a small shelf in a sheltered spot in your yard or garden. Black-capped Chichadees will probably be your most frequent, and desirable guests.

Not many native birds can be attracted to live in summer in the closely built-up sections of the cities. A few Nighthawks may lay their eggs on pebble-covered roofs, and number of chimney swifts may nest in unused chimneys, but most other native birds will refuse to live where there are no green leaves, but hordes of House Sparrows, rows and rows of brick and stone buildings, and the continual disturbances of a city.

Many birds may be attracted, however, to the vicinity of parks, gardens, tree-lined streets, suburbs, villages and farms. Try to attract, if possible the birds about your school and your home. Trees, shrubery, grasslands, and small water areas will provide vegetable food for birds and will also attract the insects upon which many birds prefer to feed. Additional food, such as grain and weed seed, may be scattered in sheltered places in early spring, and may cause some birds to remain in the vicinity for the summer.

A good supply of water will help greatly in attracting the birds. If shallow running water is in the vicinity, you are lucky. If no such water is near, a bird bath should be provided, and any boy or girl can make one and enjoy the fun of watching the birds bathe and drink. It may be made of a shallow pan or dish, as large as is convenient. The water in it should be about two inches deep on one side and not more than half an inch deep on the other. This can be arranged by up one side of the pan, or by placing a layer of pebbles in the bottom, sloping up toward one side. If running water is available, a drip may be provided so that the water in the bath may be constantly changing, if not, the water should be changed at least once a day. The bath should be on anopen-lawn, or on top of a post five or six feet high, where cats and enemies of birds cannot surprise the bathers.

Trees and tangles of shrubbery supply places for the nests of many birds. Shelves nailed up under eaves, porches, or sheds may be used by Robins and Phoebes as foundations for their home. Brackets fastened to barn rafters will often please the Barn Swallows, and long strips nailed under wide barn eaves will assist the Cliff Swallows to place their mud nests securely. As spring approaches put out nesting boxes about your home and school grounds. These you can make yourself. A rough box about eight inches long, six inches wide, and six inches high, with an opening about one and one-half inches in diameter in one end will please the Tree Swallow, Bluebird, Chickadee or Nuthatch. It should be placed on the side of a building or on a pole ten to twenty feet high, so that cats can't get at it. Sometimes cats will climb a bare pole, but if it is sheathed for about three feet, at a neight of three to six feet from the ground, with tin (which make be cut from old tin cans), cats cannot climb it. House sparrows must not be allowed to take possession of the boxes, or they will drive away the other birds, more useful and beautiful than they. If they are troublesome, it is best to get rid of them by judicious shooting, or by catching them in the boxes at dusk. A box five inches long, four inches wide, and three or four inches high, with an opening as large as a twenty-five cent piece will do very well for the House Wren. A box eleven or twelve inches square and fifteen inches high, with an opening three inches across is suitable for Flickers or Screech Owls. For Purple Martins a more elaborate construction with several compartments should be erected. All boxes should be solidly built of rough material with watertight roof, and few or no open cracks. Boxes built of boards one-half inch thick or one thick are preferable to flimsy constructions of shingles. They should be placed where rain will not drive into the entrance-hole. Old varnish tins, kerosene cans, apple cans, or funnels may also be placed as homes for birds, and will often be accepted. They should not be placed where they will receive the direct rays of the sun in the warm part of the day, and they should have no sharp edges on which birds may injure themselves. More elaborate and artistic boxes may be constructed or purchased if desired.

Robins, bluebirds, orioles, fly catchers, and other birds may often be encouraged and assisted in nest building by a ready supply of building material. Try putting out such materials as mud, string and cotton, bits of cloth, bits of paper, feathers, and straw, on lawn or bushes, for the birds and watch closely to see which kind of bird prefers one material and which another for house-building.

It is of no use to attract birds about our schools or our homes if they are to be killed or robbed of their eggs there. Boys and girls and men and women, must not molest the useful native birds if we are to have birds for our friends. Cats, even the best of cats, like to kill birds, and they must be kept away from any sanctuary we wish to create if it is to be indeed a sanctuary. A cat-proof fence is rather costly and difficult to maintain. It is best to dispose humanely of vagabond cats, and to keep pet cats from roaming at large, particularly puring the nesting season. Crows, jays and red squirrels, destroy many young birds. Cooper's Hawks and Sharp-shinned Hawks catch the adult birds, and they cannot be allowed to nest near any bird sanctuary.

By the general adoption of such means for attracting and protecting birds about our schools and homes, a great and most desirable increase in the numbers of our common bird friends and helpers can be brought about. It is best unless one can give full time to the work, to begin by adopting a few only of the measures recommended, and to increase the work from year to year.

Try to learn more about birds. Watch them closely and you will learn something new each day about their ways of living. Keep on record of their first spring appearance and note from year to year how regularly they arrive. You will soon begin to look for them on certain dates. and should get a lot of pleasure by seeing them return.

You should tell your parents and friends about the Migratory Birds Convention Act. Tell them about the closed seasons, about the illegal methods and times of shooting. Also try to remember the names of those birds which are specially protected because they are getting so scarce. By explaining these matters to your friends who may be ignorant of the law, you may save them from getting into trouble with the game wardens, who have been employed to protect the birds.

Note.—Teachers may obtain a supply of a pamphlet entitled "Bird Houses and Their Occupants" from Mr. J. B. Harkin, Commissioner of Canadian National Parks, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, upon request.

WHO WAS TO BLAME?

It was his duty to remain at the factory till the night-watchman came on.

"What's the good," he said, "I've been here a year and nothing has happened." So he slipped away an hour earlier.

The watchman found the place in flames.

Whose fault was it?

The fire-bugs?

Or the unfaithful caretaker's?

If Prohibition is ever ovethrown in Ontaio, whose fault will it be?

The Moderation League's?

No.

The blame will lie at the door of self-centered indifferent voters. There are loads of them. Scores of places in this Province suffered for years, before Prohibition, under the licensed bar, because of them.

"O, Mrs. Thornton, WHY didn't you come out to vote? Do you know five more ballots would have carried Local Option? And there were treble that number right in our own Church, that were not polled."

"Well, really, I couldn't. We were washing that day, and had unexpected company. I was sure the by-law would carry, anyway. So sorry."

Her questioner turned away, oppressed by such blanq, crass, selfishness.

That night as Mrs. Thornton gathered her little brood about her. and thought, with a shiver, of the Mother next door, who would listen for hours for the stumbling feet of her one boy, did she hear a sub-conscious echo of the Master's words—"With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again?"

There was a Local Option contest lost by a single vote. An out-of-town voter wanted to go and cast his ballot. His wife objected to the R.R. ticket expense—$2.75. In one of the hotels of that place a perfect orgie of drunkness continued for three years longer. Who'd want to shoulder that, to save $2.75!

Here is the beautiful reverse of that sordid picture (and the writer knew both men.)

A Township Local Option Com. in Muskoka—in the days when it took a three-fifths majority to carry the Act—sent an urgent appeal to a London summer resident, to come and vote. It was mid-winter, and bitterly cold. The voter was a very busy man. Yet, at an expense of $15.00 and though the trip involved a 12 mile drive over the ice, when the thermometer registered twelve below, he went.

Having cast his vote, the Londoner became the guest of a member of the Com. At 11 p. m., when he and his host were cowering over a stove, trying to keep warm, loud sounds of hilarious joy took them to the door.

Here they found the Chairman of the Com., the School Teacher and the Methodist Minister. They had walked three miles down the river to bear the good news that the By-Law was carried by two votes—(one of which was subsequently thrown out)—and to pour out their gratitude in words that are still a happy memory.

It is not conscious selfishness, or wilful indifference, that is responsible for most of the stay-at-home women voters. They only need to be awakened and educated. And the force that will do it is now in the field

"The Ontario Woman's Prohibition Committee," which will work in harmony with "The Ontario Prohibition Union," was organized in Toronto, April 24th. Representatives were present from 14 Provincial, 4 Dominion organizations; and from several Toronto societies—as the Toronto Home and School and the Y.W.C.A., etc.

Prominent women connected with Executives that have not yet had opportunity to consider the question, attended, as for example, Mrs. McGarragh, President Ontario Woman's Labor League, Mrs. Geo. Edwards, Pres. Provincial Woman's Institutes. They expressed hearty sympathy; as did also Mrs. Bundy, Pres. Toronto Woman's Council. Mrs. D. McKee, of Canadian Countryman. Miss Louise Rorke, of "The Canadian Teacher," Dr. Margaret Patterson, Judge of the Toronto Juvenile Court.

A long-time Prohibition worker told the writer (unavoidably prevented from attendance) that it just thrilled her to hear so many notable women—not a few of whom had never before publicly espoused the cause—promising their influence and active support, should the O.T.A. be in danger.

To the Government these women say—"The bootleggers must go; and we will back you in a crusade against them."

To the Moderation League, they say—"We want none of your wares; neither Government Sale, nor wine and beer licenses. The O. T. A. enforced is good enough for us.

---o---

Why Not?

Professor—"Now, suppose you had been called to see a patient with hysterics—someone, for example, who had begun to laugh and found it impossible to stop, what would you do?"

Student (after a little hesitation) —"Amputate his funny-bone, sir."

SHUT UP.

(Con. by Wos. Inst.)

What's the use of kickin'
In an aimless sort of way?
What's the use of knockin'
If you've nothing good to say,
SHUT UP!
What's the use complainin'
That the game ain't on the square?
There's mighty few will listen,
An' fewer still will care—
SHUT UP!
What's the use of talkin'
Of the "good old days gone by?"
There's lots to do preparin'
For them that's drawin' nigh.
SHUT UP!
What's the use of blamin'
Everything upon your luck,
When it's ten times better bettin'
That it's juck your lack of pluck?
SHUT UP!
What's the use declarin'
That the cards is always stacked,
An' that nothin's on the level,
Fer you know it's not the fact?
SHUT UP!
Get out an' study laughin'
Go on an' learn to smile,
You might even tackle singin'
If you practised fer a while—
TUNE UP!
