Grit Gathering Best in Years Prescott Mayor Favourite Son Ballot Defeats Local Woman

Liberals in Grenville-Dundas seem to have caught fire for the first time in many years. Tuesday night nearly one thousand strong crowded the hall and grounds of Spencerville Township Hall to nominate Mark P. Salmon as candidate for the by-election and to wildly acclaim Liberal Leader L. B. Pearson in his maiden speech in the riding. Salmon defeated a Chesterville woman, Mrs Lillian Allison, in the balloting for the nomination. Two hundred and twenty-two delegates cast ballots.

Grenville-Dundas voters will have a choice next month of two Prescott names on the ballots. The Liberal candidate is the present mayor of that town, Mark P. Salmon, and Mrs Jean Casselman will carry the Conservative banner.

Liberals of the riding held their first delegated convention Tuesday night. They filled the hall with voting and alternate delegates and with the public that crowded in, over 500 people stood, sat and nearly hung from the rafters to take part and watch the proceedings.

Smooth Affair

Chairman R. H. Armstrong, of Morrisburg, got things off to a flying start. He spoke briefly of the pattern that would be followed and added a small pep talk to the crowd. He stressed the need for continued enthusiasm right up to election time.

Nominations were called from the floor. The name of Mrs Allison was entered by Mrs Geo. Gillispie and seconded by E. B. Moore, of Chesterville. Mahlon Zeron, Iroquois, nominated Mark Salmon and he was seconded by Guy Kempffer, of Kemptville. The mayor of Morrisburg, Geo. Beavers, was nominated but he withdrew.

Mrs Allison was given the first speaking spot. She carried her audience along with humour and catching enthusiasm and made one of the best speeches of the evening. She pointed out that women today are demonstrating their abilities in all lines of endeavour and accepting challenges never attempted a few years ago. She promised to give of her full time and strength to the riding and stressed now was the time for the voice of the riding to be heard in the House of Commons.

Salmon Speaks

Mark Salmon followed with a fervent appeal to the Liberals of the riding to get out and work for the Liberal party in the by-election. He declared it was time to prove this riding was not a push-over for one party anymore. The large crowd at the meeting, he stated, was ample evidence a fire was lighted that would burn Conservative hopes in Grenville-Dundas at last. Mr Salmon also emphasized the need for a voice to be heard from the riding. Too long a time had passed, he felt, in which the constituency had been suffering from representative neglect.

Balloting

Balloting followed the Salmon speech. Scrutineers found 222 ballots cast in the final count. The totals were one-sided with Mrs Allison getting 43 and Salmon 179.

Peter Manley, MLA for Stormont spoke briefly during the counting of the ballots. He was thrilled to see such a crowd at the meeting and it was his feeling the Liberals were well on their way to victory if they could hold the enthusiasm.

Mr Manley outlined the need for close organization work to be done and maintained in the riding. He stressed the need for dedicated missionary work on the part of everyone there to sell Liberalism throughout the limits of Grenville-Dundas. The speaker concluded with greetings from Stormont and expressed his pleasure at being able to attend the meeting.

Tom Cossitt, president of Eastern Ontario Liberal Federation also took the occasion to say a few words. Mr. Cossitt is a Brockville business man.

"Mike" Pearson

The leader of the Liberal Party, L. B. Pearson, was ushered into the hall to the wailing of Scottish bagpipes. He worked his way through the packed crowd, and was introduced from the platform by Col. Wm. Abel, Liberal organizer.

Mr. Pearson congratulated those in charge for the excellent turnout of interested Liberal. He said, "after tonight, this riding will not be forgotten." It was a good omen that the first by-election should show so much activity.

The Liberal leader talked at length of what was being done and not being done by the present government in Ottawa. He reported the Liberal opposition doing its utmost with its small numbers to maintain the Liberal reputation of looking after the rights of all.

The speaker had much to say about some Conservative policies that featured their last campaign speeches. He felt the spell-binding of Mr. Diefenbaker can never hide all the excellent things the Liberal party has done for Canada and especially in the ten years after the last war.

Diversion of trade was not a Liberal policy the speaker said. He thought any recession is aided, not helped, by changing old established patterns of trade; especially is it important to see the Tory pattern of high tariffs develop. Liberals believe in expanded economies, not diverted and lost trade the speaker went on.

Mr. Pearson touched on many points in his address that were met with waves of applause from the large crowd. He concluded by promising to back the new candidate of Grenville-Dundas. He stressed the great need was to get out to work in the riding for the party.

Mossman Dubrule, lawyer of Prescott, expressed the thanks of the crowd and executive to Mr. Pearson for his address.

Chesterville Fair Ready To Go

Chesterville Fair is ready for business again this year. When Tuesday and Wednesday rolls around, fair patrons are promised a really big "shoo."

The fair board have spent large sums of money rebuilding and replacing at the grounds. They have graded and widened the race track, built new rails and fences and generally tied up loose ends. Barriers have been arranged to close all entrances when races are in progress. safety's sake.

Tuesday is traditionally children's day. Then the kids have everything pretty much to themselves. Midway rides, booths and games will be there and a couple softball games are planned, if the teams are able to make it.

Wednesday is the biggest day. It will be opened in style with the Minister of Highways, the Hon. F. M. Cass, officating at that ceremony. At the same time a couple of special horse classes will be judged in front of the stands and the "Bank Special" silver plate awarded.

Cattle exhibits will be up to the usual standards. Entries are flooding in to secretary Hosea Droppo and the special Red and White and Guernsey field days are well in hand.

This year promises to be one of the best fairs yet for Chesterville and district. As in other years, from now to fair day, the word is: "See You at Chesterville Fair."

OMMISSION

In our report of the death of Mrs Wm Ouderkirk that appeared in last week's Record we ommitted the name of a surviving brother. He is Mr. Simeon Droppo of Chesterville.

90TH BIRTHDAY

Last Sunday Mrs Wesley Cross marked her 90th birthday at her home on Water Street. Her family gathered for the weekend and made the occasion a gala one. Mrs Cross is as active as a lady half her age, keeps her own home and generally finds the days too short for all she wants to do.

Members of her family who were present and who shared with their mother the many calls and gifts were Mr and Mrs Elmer Cross, of North Syracuse; Mr and Mrs Gordon Symes and James, Montreal; Mr and Mrs Jack Cross, Cathy and Ronald, Ottawa; Mr and Mrs Clark Smith. Crysler; Mr and Mrs Donald Cross and boys and Mr and Mrs Hulbert Cross, Chesterville.

Knox Church Groups Hold Meeting At McRae Home

Knox Presbyterian Church W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid, Crysler, met at the home of Mrs Carl McRae. Mrs K. McGillivray, presiding for the W.M.S., opened the meeting with prayer.

A hymn was sung and a chapter from the Bible was read responsively, led by Mrs McGillivray. Roll call was answered by a verse containing the word "Strength."

The minutes of the last meeting were given by Mrs W. Ouderkirk. Collection was taken by Mrs Paul and offertory prayer was made by Mrs McGillivray.

Mrs W. Ouderkirk read a letter on missions. Business was discussed and Mrs W. Paul read a list of articles that are requested for the mission bale.

Readings from "Women of the Bible" were given by Mrs K. McGillivray, Mrs S. L. Begg and Mrs W. Ouderkirk.

Mrs Paul gave a very interesting reading entitled "Light a Lamp."

Ladies' Aid Meeting

Mrs W. Paul presided for the Ladies' Aid. Roll call and collection were taken by Mrs W. Ouderkirk in the absence of Mrs F. Carruthers.

Mrs C. McRae read cards of thanks. Following a business discussion, a hymn was sung.

Mrs W. Paul closed the meeting with prayer.

Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs J. McDermid.

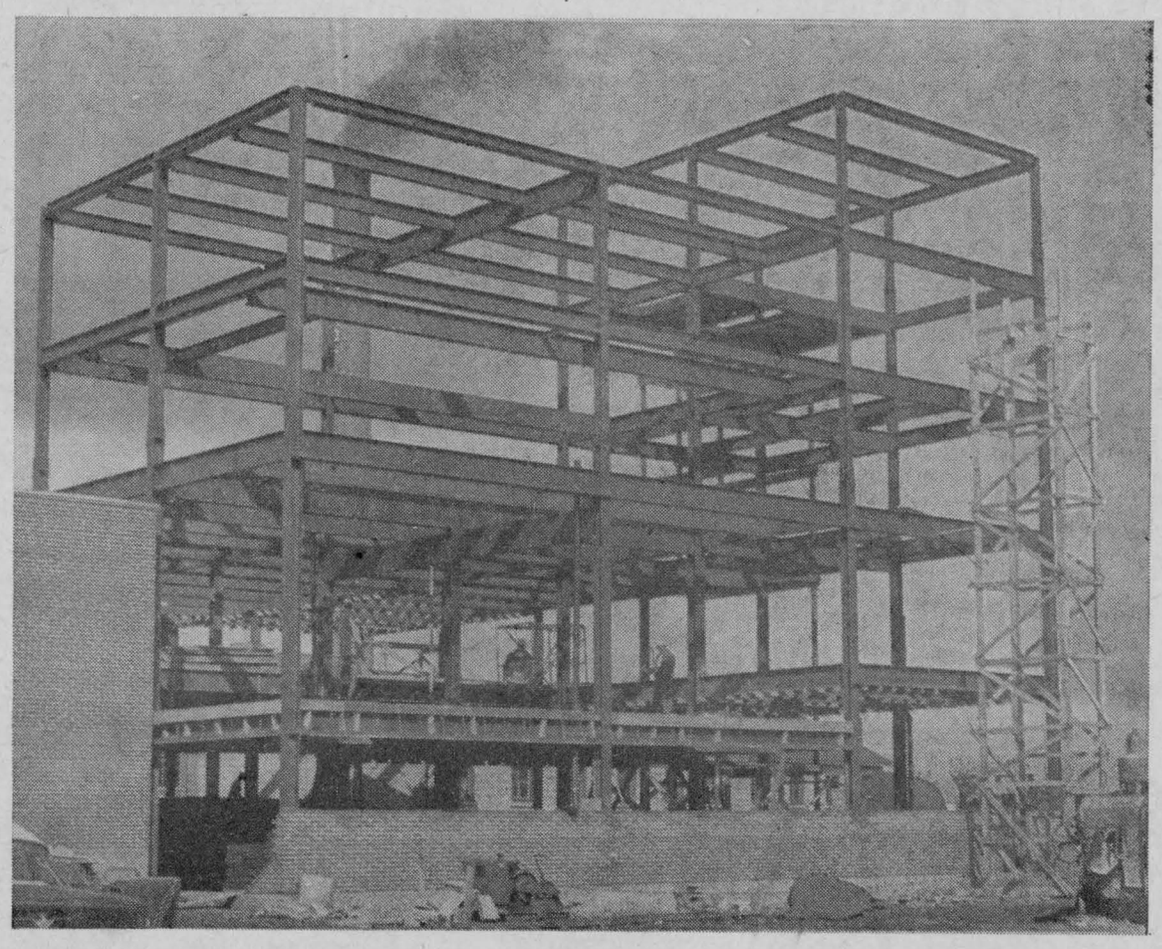

ENGAGEMENT

Mr and Mrs Lloyd Graham, of South Mountain, announce the engagement of their daughter, Betty Irene, to Mr Edward John Styles, son of Mr and Mrs Murray Styles, Morrisburg. Marriage to take place September 20, 1958, in South Mountain United Church at 2 p.m.

LABOUR DAY HOLIDAY

Monday, September 1, next Monday, will be a holiday in the village. All places of business will be closed all day. It would be well that householders take note of the need for extra supplies for the long weekend and do their extra shopping on Friday and Saturday to tide them over.

Farmers will not appreciate Labour Day around here. If the weather holds clear it will be a real "labour day;" grain crops are getting to be a problem because of the heavy rains. Every minute is used to try and get in the crop.

The local plant of Nestle's is busy again with a construction program. A new building to enlarge the Quik facilities is rising at the east end of the big factory will cost something over $100,000 before it is finished. The work is being done by Wiseman and Thompson of Chesterville and Finch. — Record Photo.

OPINIONS . . .
OURS AND OTHERS

Reporting on the Bias

We were considerably startled this past week to read an editorial in one of our neighbouring weeklies. Editor Jack Morris of the Prescott Journal had occasion to outline in print what he felt about an accusation that his paper was biased in its reporting. We were saddened to find the lad who did the accusing was a member of the Liberal executive of the riding association. And he really did not know what he was talking about.

The Prescott Journal offers a comprehensive coverage of the news to its readers, and in the news columns, is just and fair, as are most weekly papers worth their salt. Editor Morris on his editorial page also has a definite attitude towards the news, and unlike some of us, is quite willing to express it. There is very little run-over from opinion to news. He was right to define the difference between news and opinion to the young man, and any others who sound off are apt to get the same answer from any member of the newspaper fraternity.

Weekly newspapers, daily newspapers and magazines try to be objective in their reporting, but objective reporting must not be confused with directed or ordered reporting. Especially in the weekly field, is the cry raised about our biased attitudes but we generally have a ready answer. It is that we are small enough that the personality of the editor is often the spark of the paper; the impersonality of the big daily is a cold thing, usually marked by press wire reports, besides which the step-mother's heart is a thing of fire. We try to be objective but our neighbours know us too well to be fooled by mere words and they often read more between the lines than appears on the surface. That is very often the cause for the cry of bias, when actually it is only an impression of character rather than printed words.

If you as readers did not know us so well, then weeklies would not continue to be the part they are of our communities. Newspapers, to be alive and worthwhile, must be mirrors of editorial opinion, shaped by the news that is reported as such.

Road Ruin

It would seem necessary to destroy occasionally to renew and build. A good case in hand is the country road leading to Morewood. These busy days it is slowly disintegrating under the pound of heavy gravel trucks. Every day as the new grade is improved on Highway 43, old County Road No. 7 gets more threadbare.

Gravel on the Ridge finally did not reach up to specifications and the contractor had to look elsewhere for the topping coat. A pit back on the Ninth was finally decided on, the Christie pit, and the big trucks are drawing from there.

It is an interesting bit of speculation who will pay for the destruction of the Morewood road. There is little doubt a lot of rebuilding will have to be done just as soon as the big outfits move out. A sizeable sum of money will be spent to mend the broken pavement and restore the usually well-surfaced road, and we have a sneaking suspicion the township and the county won't be too undecided where to send the bill.

What's In a Promise?

A sorry example of politician's promises has risen in our neighbouring county. There the Seaway Authority building is standing, in the heart of Cornwall, a proof of the adage that a campaign promise must be taken lightly.

The last election was hotly contested in Stormont. One of the points raised by the Liberals was the rumour the Seaway Building, a $1,500,000 structure, was to be used only to house a small part of the seaway people who will run the big system.

The Hon. George Hees quickly refuted the story and in a public advertisement announced the building would be used as was intended, and that the 300-odd members of the staff would be there when the contractors were finished.

Now the Minister of Transport has made a complete about face. He announced from Ottawa the employees of the Seaway Authority did not like the idea of moving to Cornwall, so the big building would only house a skeleton staff after all.

It would almost appear one should work for the Tory government, or even for any government. Unlike private business, government employees seem to have it their own way in certain departments. The expenditure of a million and a half for a new building at the site of the work means very little; especially when it is only a fragile platform promise that needs to be broken to keep the hired help happy.

Pretty soon a sign is apt to appear on the Seaway Building. It would probably read: "For Rent—Lots of Office space, not suitable for Seaway Authority; good enough for private industry."

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

During the past two weeks I've developed considerable respect for the problems of the travelling salesman — especially the ones who make house to house calls along the concession roads in areas that aren't too familiar. I've been doing a sort of selling job myself recently and it is an occupation thoroughly beset with ups and downs.

First of all there is the problem of the roads. The man who drew the road maps didn't have the courage to try to include the township roads. So we who travel them must go by our native sense of direction or ask.

I've had more experience asking than I thought possible. And most people are amazing when it comes to giving directions. For instance, they'd direct me a mile to the right, then turn left, then right again over the bridge to the first stone house. It's easy to follow instructions like that.

But one man was really cornered. "Is it possible to go across country from here to Bishop's Mills?" I asked.

"It is," he replied, "but it is an awful crooked road." He thought a minute. "Go up to the corner and turn left," he instructed me. "Go for about four miles until you think you're going to drive into a barn then ask again." I got to Bishop's Mills too thanks to him and the directions the next man gave me.

One day I drove eighteen miles out of my way by passing the house I was looking for and not realizing it until I was in the next township. Another time I covered one mile three times looking for a stone house by a gully. I had the wrong gully. Another time I went in a long lane, over a railroad and on and on. I knew I was in the right place for I'd seen the name on the mailbox. But I was wrong. The box said Leo. I was looking for Leonard.

Dogs are another hazard. Sometimes I bounce out of the car and up on the steps and then wonder if there'd be a cross dog any where. The other day two dogs came tearing out at the car when I drove into the yard. I sat firm until the lady of the house appeared. They were perfectly harmless, she assured me.

Another day I stepped up on a veranda and knocked on the sun-porch door. At the other end of the veranda sat the biggest, ugliest-looking bulldog I've ever seen. Believe me I was thankful that the man was sitting in the porch. "Is the dog cross?" I asked him.

"No," he said, "she's too friendly." And I believe him for before I left, Susie, the bulldog, practically had her arms around my neck.

Perhaps the most rewarding part of travelling around the countryside is being reassured over and over that people are basically good and helpful. Time and time again people have gone to endless trouble to direct me to another farm. Even when I was a little stupid they were patient and kind.

One lady directed me back a narrow sideroad that was barely wider than the car. She assured me it was all right. And it was until I saw a big milk truck coming. I pulled off at a little clearing and waited. Woman-like, I stalled the car when I attempted to drive on. I stalled it a second time for there was a mound ahead of the front wheel. As I started it a third time I glanced into the mirror and there stanling behind his truck was the driver, who didn't know me from Adam's ox, waiting to see if I got away all right.

During the past two weeks I have driven almost 800 miles over the counties of Grenville and Dundas. It has been a very rewarding experience. And if I don't achieve anything else from it at least I have renewed my faith in the goodness and kindness of country people to the stranger who passes their way.

Letter to the Editor

Thornhill, Ont.,
August 19, 1958.

Mr Keith Graham,
Editor and Publisher,
The Chesterville Record,
Chesterville, Ont.

Dear Mr Graham:

In its issue of Saturday, August 9, 1958, The Ottawa Journal carried on page three an article headed "Plan Huge Dam on Nation River." This article was in fact more of an explanation of three projects at present under way by the South Nation River Conservation Authority with help from the Province of Ontario as authorized by the Conservation Authorities Act.

The first of the three projects being undertaken by the Authority is the 500-foot submerged weir-type dam which is now almost completed at Casselman. The contractor, Dodge Construction Company, of Cardinal, having quoted a price of $18,860.00, was awarded the contract and has done a remarkably fine job in carrying this project to its present stage in six weeks operations.

I am mentioning the Casselman scheme at some length because the problems faced by both Chesterville and Casselman are almost identical. Because these problems were not stated well in the article in "The Journal" (due, no doubt, to the young reporter who handled the interview with the undersigned having definite space limitations, and having to concentrate on items which he felt would catch the public eye), I feel that your readers might like to see these problems stated by one who has investigated conditions in the watershed of the South Nation River at some considerable expense to the Ontario government.

IN MEMORIAM

FROATS—In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mrs Elgin Froats, who passed away August 23, 1950.

The rolling stream of life flows on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice and smile,
Of one who once sat there.

Ever remembered by Percy, Helen and David.

IN MEMORIAM

ROBINSON—In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs John Robinson, who passed away August 22, 1955.

Today recalls the memory
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of her today
Are those who loved her best.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past;
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.

Sadly missed by Olive and Melvin MacMillan, Sheldon and Shirley.

CONFUSION

The sign at two holes dug by the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., of Toledo, crews said: "Danger area—no smoking. No open flames. No matches."

No one had trouble reading it. It was lighted by red kerosene lanterns and open pot flares.

A gas company spokesman explained the flares were put up to light the holes, not the sign. Workers had failed to find a reported gas leak but the signs were left there.

"The men who put out flares don't handle signs," the company spokesman said.

MUSICAL INTERLUDE

Spritely 77-year-old John Emerson played his harmonica the other morning while his $20,000 Vancouver house burned.

He delighted spectators with such tunes as "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and "Marching Through Georgia."

Said Emerson, "If Nero could do it, so can I."

But unlike Nero he did something about the fire. He raced to turn in the alarm and rouse his tenants.

When there was nothing else he could do Emerson decided to entertain with his mouth organ.

When nearest the earth Mars' reddish light has more than twice the intensity of the brightest star.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR—

The first problem is brought about by a lack of a continuous steady flow of water down the South Nation. Instead of a fairly uniform volume of water passing between the banks all year round, we find uncontrolled and often disastrous floods following the spring thaws or heavy summer floods. An identical problem in the watershed of the Grand River has now been solved by building expensive, large dams that hold back the flood waters in large reservoirs, but which can also let the water out during the summer months, resulting in a continuous supply of fresh water for the farmer to water his stock and the townsman to use for industrial or sanitary purposes. Neither the dam at Casselman nor the proposed dam at Chesterville will create reservoirs of sufficient size to do the job now in effect on the Grand River Valley. This problem can only be solved by carrying out the "Big Scheme" first proposed by hydraulic engineers in 1948. The cure would seem to be in creating large reservoirs near Domville, Spencerville and Spencerville Mills, that would raise the water to a height that would enable much of the surplus flood waters to be diverted to the St. Lawrence River by a canal east of the town of Prescott.

The "Huge Dam" mentioned in the Journal's headline is, in fact, then, three proposed dams. The figure $2,000,000 quoted is also misleading, since no one can accurately estimate the cost at this time, no tenders having been called for, nor likely to be called for until the 28 municipalities included in the South Nation River Conservation Authority themselves see the merit in the suggestions of competent engineers. The Ontario Department of Planning and Development at no time resorts to "an expensive and drastic means" of preventing spring flooding until the people of a watershed request it to do so through their representatives on the local Conservation Authority. This involves assuming 50% of the cost of such projects by the benefitting municipalities.

The second problem faced by both Casselman and Chesterville is the lack of an adequate reservoir for fire-fighting purposes. This is now solved in Casselman, and can similarly be solved in Chesterville if the town approves of a permanent, concrete dam with control gates that is owned and controlled by the people of the area for their own benefit. This problem was not mentioned in the Journal.

Nor was the third. One does not have to walk along the banks of the South Nation very far either near Casselman or Chesterville before it is apparent that pollution from several sources is also a problem. The more we can dilute the offending materials, and the more we can maintain a flushing action by water in motion, the sooner is that problem minimized.

The fourth problem was presented in the last sentence of the article in question, That is, the large requirements of some modern industries for a constant, adequate supply of cool, unpolluted water for their processes. When one considers what the contributions of a large processing plant means in wages and material needs to villages like Casselman and Chesterville, it is not difficult to concede its right to a suitable source of water, if it is to maintain its operations in that area.

Since I was a party to the interview that led up to the article in the Journal, I feel that the least I can do is to try to clarify any erroneous impressions that may have resulted from that article.

I have listed my permanent address at the top, since my work in the Valley of the South Nation is almost finished for this summer. Many of your readers have made that work most pleasant and profitable.

Yours truly,
G. A. Crutcher.

summertime popularity

Of all the electric appliances that help to make our lives more pleasant, an electric refrigerator is a good example. Particularly on these hot summer days when it is a regular "port of call" for all the family.

And at mealtime—even when unexpected guests drop in—you're sure to be popular with those delicious cold plates and crisp salads that an electric refrigerator enables you to serve at a moment's notice.
