Thanksgiving and Prayer Usher In Celebration For European Victory

The war has ended. The domination of the world by the ideas of one man which gathered momentum as a snow ball rolling down hill increases in size, to threaten the liberty of all other peoples of the world, has failed in its unholy mission. Canadians in the forces commanded by Field Marshall Montgomery were in at the death, when more than a million Huns surrendered in the greatest collapse of a country's fighting forces recorded in history.

Tuesday, V-E Day the citizens of Chesterville and vicinity began celebrating the greatest event of our times in a truly reverent and thankful spirit by attending church services, rendering thankfulness to God for the salvation of mankind from a fate worse than death.

During the afternoon the celebration was carried on in a more relaxed spirit when a procession was formed on the United Church lawn headed by an improvised band of the former members of the local band assisted by others of experience, which made a very creditable showing on a few night's practice. The members of the village council and repatriated veterans occupied automobiles, followed by High School Cadets with the flags of the allies, the emergency squad of nurses with their instructresses in uniform, veterans of World War I, members of the Reserve Army, High School Girls' Cadets, Morewood's well-known Pipe Band, Pupils of the Separate, Public and High schools and the pupils of S.S. No. 10. The procession was a most creditable one organized on the shortest of notice. It proceeded by way of North Main street to the railway and out along King street, passed over the bridge and encircled the block up Victoria street and around by Church street and back to the church lawn. The route was lined by interested spectators.

On arrival at the church lawn where a truck constituted a platform at the north west corner, the band played "God Save The King" and the American National Anthem and Community singing was enjoyed led by O. L. King and an orchestra, with Mrs. Cameron Baker at the piano, the other members being P. G. Hewitt, Gordon Wragg and Mrs. Geo. Merkley.

Reeve G. H. Barkley, before calling on the clergy present, paid tribute to those of our army, navy and air force, who had made our celebration of such a victory possible. Other speakers were Rev. P. J. Keaney, Rev. A. E. Martineau, of Morewood and Rev. W. E. Wright.

Until evening nothing particular had been staged for the entertainment of the younger members of the community, until the burning of the effigy of Hitler was staged as it hung from the centre of the Main street bridge where a great throng had gathered.

A dance in Community Hall followed where no one was allowed to become a wall-flower and everybody enjoyed themselves to their heart's content. Not to be outdone when a promised orchestra failed to appear, Chesterville's stand-by of local musicians filled the gap.

MISS IDA BARKLEY

Miss Ida Barkley, 77, a resident formerly of Newington, passed away on April 16th at the home of her sister, Mrs. E. M. Vanhorne, Interlocken, Mich. Miss Barkley had been in failing health for the past three years. She was born, September 23, 1868, in Williamsburg township, a daughter of the late Luther Barkley, she lived with her parents at Newington. After the death of her parents she moved to Detroit to live with her sister and had been there for the past 19 years, who now lives in Interlochen. Left to mourn her loss are one sister, Mrs. Van Horne, a brother, Herbert, Leicester, N.Y., and a number of nephews and nieces.

The body was taken to Hibbard Chapel, Traverse City, where funeral service was held on Thursday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. Aden Davis officiated and burial was made in the family plot at Gravon.

MOREWOOD UNITED CHURCH MISSION BAND MEETING

The April meeting of the Mission Band was held in the rest room at the Morewood United Church. The meeting opened with response followed by the singing of hymn 613. Freda Byers read the bible reading. The bible story was read by Donalda McLaren. Hymn 585 was sung as a prayer. The Study Book followed by Mrs. McLaren, entitled "Tommy Two Wheels," after which Greta Irven read the minutes of the last meeting. The roll call was answered by eight members. The distribution of the "World Friends" was made by Iva Byers.

The Mission Band is to be held in Mrs. McLaren's home next month. Joan Allison read the Temperance reading. Marie Irven took up the collection which amounted to 44 cents. Hymn 594 was sung and then Mrs. McLaren gave a short prayer. The Mission Band closed with the Lord's Prayer.

RECEIVES TWO BRONZE STARS.

Mrs. Christina Shaver of Chesterville, has received word from her grandson, Johnnie A. Zeron that he has been awarded two Bronze Stars for participation in Normandy beach head and 1st Co. campaign. Johnnie has been overseas eighteen months with American Engineers. He has a brother Hugh D. Zeron in American Naval Service somewhere in Africa. They are sons of Mrs. Cassie Zeron of Massena, N.Y.

Zeron and Casselman Liberal Nominees

Mahlon Zeron, well-known farmer and reeve of Matilda township and Frank Casseman, of Morewood, former registrar of Dundas county, were selected as provincial and Federal candidates for the Liberal party in Grenville-Dundas counties at a largely attended joint convention held on Thursday last in Spencerville town hall.

Mr. Zeron was unanimously chosen as provincial nominee when Hume Grisdale of Morrisburg withdrew from the field.

There were six nominees for Federal candidate and four withdrew. Mr. Casselman defeated Charles Marselis of Dunbar, former warden of the United Counties by a vote of 59 to 39.

The other nominees, Frank Boucher, of Kemptville, coach of New York Rangers in the National Hockey League; Dr. P. A. McIntosh, Spencerville; Mayor Dr. W. J. Taugher, Prescott and Myles Marcellus, Chesterville, all declined to stand for the nomination and pledged their support to the choice of the convention."

George J. McIlraith, former member of Parliament for West Ottawa, was chief speaker, and in his address praised the record of the King government in war and peace, and predicted that the Liberal party would be returned to power on June 11.

He spoke of the necessity of maintaining full production, and full emmployment for all Canadians. He urged that the question of distribution of goods must be given ever-increasing attention and asked for the removal of all obstacles to wide and even more equitable distribution.

Mr. McIlraith also gave a detailed program for rehabilitation of war veterans.

President Charles Marselis presided.

Blood Donors Make Record With 105

The Mobile Unit of the Red Cross Blood Donor service again visited Chesterville on May 3rd. The number of donations was exceedingly gratifying and set a new record for this clinic—the grand total of 105 donations.

Mr. Leo Gallagher and Mr. O. L. King were, as usual, convenors of committees and Dr. W. H. Lloyd and Dr. Justus examined all donors either previously or on the day of the clinic. Nurses for the day under the convenorship of Mrs. Dixon were Mrs. Carley, Mrs. H. Barkley, Mrs. Glen McMillan, Mrs. R. Fulton, Miss Fairbrass, Mrs. (Dr.) Lloyd, Miss N. Thom, Mrs. B. Campbell, Mrs. Ed. Barrett, with Mrs. Cummings, assisted by Mrs. Clayton in charge of blood grouping. Stretcher bearers were Pte Cameron Baker and P.O. Jack Doering. Mrs. R. C. Dillabough assisted as a member of the emergency nursing graduates. Records were in charge of Mrs. Lyle Marcellus and Mrs. Ken McDonald. Hostesses were Mrs. Hughson and Mrs. Doering. Convenor of refreshments was Mrs. O. L. King. She was assisted by Mrs. Senn, Mrs. Barnes, Mrs. L. Moran, Mrs. E. Hutt, Mrs. (Dr.) Hutt, Mrs. Baker.

The Ottawa unit was in charge of Miss Gifford and Miss L. Johnston, with Mrs. Dalton Green as transport driver.

New Honour Rolls of donors' names have been displayed in the windows of Beamish Stores and have attracted much attention. If any errors in the number of stars opposite the names have been noticed by any one, please report the fact to Mrs. Lyle Marcellus or Mrs. Ken McDonald.

Town Oldest Citizen Passes At 93

Tuesday there passed away in Cornwall General hospital the oldest citizen of our village in the person of John Christopher Fulton at the advanced age of 93 years. Mr. Fulton for some time had been in failing health. Friday afternoon last he was found in the basement of Holy Trinity Church where he had collapsed. Not appearing for supper Mr. John Wardell with whom he lived, set out to search for Mr. Fulton and knowing his great interest in Holy Trinity and his constant effort taking care of the surroundings found him. He was taken to the hospital in Harry Henderson's ambulance. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at one o'clock in Holy Trinity. The deceased was a well-known figure in Chesterville where many years ago he was leader of the band and was reputed to be the oldest bandsman in Eastern Ontario. He was unmarried.

EDUCATING THE NORTH

The recently appointed Provincial Board on adult education will devote its attention to the extension of rural education. A start will be made in Northern Ontario. The course will be open to people of all levels of academic training and will comprise recreation, music and art followed by more standard academic subjects such as English and History in conjunction with the physical fitness program. The Department of Agriculture is already supplying agricultural education in rural areas through Junior farmers' clubs and both that department and the department of Education have appointed liaison officers to the board, which represents seven Ontario Universities and the Canadian Association for Adult education.

MEXICAN MARKET FOR HOLSTEINS

With the publicity given to the achievement of Ontario cows in the matter of milk production it is not to be wondered that the fame of the cattle have gone far afield. Farmers in this province have come to realize that it costs little more to feed and keep a big money maker than a scrub and as a result the weak sisters are gradually being weeded out, giving place to herds of producers. At recent auctions throughout the province cattlemen of note from across the Border have been prominent, paying fancy prices for the progeny of registered cows with a milk record. From Lindsay, Ontario, comes the announcement that the first complete herd of dairy cattle ever to be shipped to Mexico was assembled there last week consisting of 108 Holsteins consigned to the Guadalajara ranch of Jesus Gonzalez Callo, secretary to the Mexican president. In this connection the Mexican Ambassador to Canada regards this initial shipment as an evidence of the growing trade between Canada and Mexico. He states: "We like your Canadian cattle because of their health, high milk production and high percentage of butter fat." Wider knowledge of nutrition requirements induced by Government educational campaigns has greatly increased the consumption of milk in Mexico. To meet this increased demand it is reasonable to expect that Mexico will continue to enlarge her dairy herds with well-bred dairy cattle from Canada."

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE IMPROVES WORKERS

Any lingering doubts that women are going to quietly fade from the industrial picture with the "Cease Fire" proclamation in Germany have been dissipated by the attitude of National Women's organizations, at a meeting held in Toronto last week. Recognizing the right to earn as an essential of human personality, and seeing the consequences of unemployment, the women decided to call upon "all governments to ensure that in all postwar planning the right to earn and obtain the rate for the job, and to enjoy full opportunities for training and promotion be not denied either because of sex or marriage. A survey showing 876,000 or 73 percent of single women and 324,000 or 27 percent of married women being gainfully employed, with many supporting dependents, was shown. And in view of the number whose husbands are, or will be, casualties of war the meeting went on record as urging that Vocational Training Advisory Council support the efforts of the women's units to bring to the attention of employers of household workers the necessity of improvement in the social and economic status of the occupation. Home training and teaching of home economics were stressed as important to the welfare of the community as well as individuals. It was also emphasized that the worker should be the recipient of the money under the Family Allowance Act.

BRACE YOUR FUTURE WITH VICTORY BONDS

There may be a tendency among people who have endured five years of war to relax now that the Nazis have been brought to their knees but it should be impressed that the war and its dire consequences and aftermaths is far from over. V-E celebrations are right enough in their place but to reach the conclusion that the days of regimentation and sacrifice are at an end is but to embrace the empty phantom of a dream. As pointed out by the Governor General of Canada the winning of the Peace may call for greater effort and endurance than the struggled entailed by war. With two election campaigns in progress politicians are prone to make airy promises and predictions which may lead many astray. Not only will rationing continue in force but stiff income taxes will continue for the present and indeed for posterity. The Eighth Victory Loan is a beacon light that should engross the attention of Canadians in the general rejoicing for ready funds will be urgently required during the coming period of adjustment.

The Exploiters

By
R. J. DEACHMAN

A few days ago I wrote a story, touching upon China and its development, in which I suggested that the crying need of that country was capital, for capital alone could increase the coolie's capacity to produce and this was the only means by which the standard of living could be raised.

Then one of these curious coincidences arose which are quite common among writers, we write upon some topic and a few days later, stumble upon another article dealing with the same subject. So I picked up a copy of an address delivered by Dr. George S. Benson, president of Harding College, Searcy, Arkansas, on November 17, 1943. He had lived in China and had the light of practical experience to throw on this problem. He puts a slightly different emphasis upon it. His claim is that China needs peace so that private enterprise may be permittd to function—but here is Dr. Benson's Statement in his own words:

"China has long been under selfish grasping war lords, who provided no protection for private enterprise. This is the cause of China's poverty. Give China peace and protection for private enterprise and her resources will be rapidly developed and her poverty dispelled.

"China's transportation system is exceedingly primitive. For instance, I burned kerosene which had been carried one hundred miles overland on the shoulders of coolies. Each coolie carried ten gallons of kerosene about ten miles a day and was paid about 10 cents a day. This made a cost of 10 cents for each hundred miles that a gallon of kerosene was carried, and accordingly increased the selling price by 100% of the original cost for each hundred miles the kerosene was moved. The poor coolie had only 10 cents investment and with much labor was able to earn a most meager existence."

Now there is a nice little problem which we might mull over for a few moments in our leisure hours. Is the coolie exploited by the rich in this particular case. If you were buying a gallon of kerosene would you want to pay 10 cents for each hundred miles it was moved? Doesn't it make clear the idea that without capital, or with limited use of capital, or with capital restricted by stupid laws or war-lords the cost of everything, in relation to capacity to pay, must be incredibly high. As a result progress in China is slow, very slow.

Now let us see what happens under capitalism: Our railways move wheat in Western Canada from Calgary to Fort William, a distance of 1,250 miles for 26 cents per hundred pounds. If it had to be moved by coolies that distance it would cost $12.50 per 100 pounds. From Morden Manitoba, to Fort William, the distance is 500 miles, the railway rate is 15 cents per 100 pounds, the coolie rate would be $5.00. The railway men who move it are paid about fifty times as much as the coolie and work less than half the number of hours.

Yet there are people who sometimes refer to capitalistic exploitation. The most villainous exploitation which takes place in this world takes place where capital is scarce, or where it has been restricted by unfair legislation and is therefore unable to perform its proper function. Do not think for a moment that the achievement of these mighty deeds means the end of progress. Unless capital comes to the aid of the coolie he will be doing things the same way in a thousand years. Not so with capital, it never rests, progress is continuous. Under freedom the vision broadens—always, there is the expanding outlook, the hope of better things to come.

PLIGHT OF FRENCH CHILDREN.

We have commented on the tragic fate of the Jewish children of France who through the heartless conduct of the collaborators and the Gestapo simply disappeared beyond trace. Many of them, it is known, have died and no one can say with any certainty what has become of the others. Another story comes from France—this time dealing with the Gentile children—equally gruesome The details of their early sufferings are given in Le Populaire, which recounts how, on "the mornings of horror of July. 1942," the streets resounded with the screams of children being torn from their parents. The latter had been dragged off by the brutal Nazis to work in Germany. The ages of those unhappy little victims ranged from ten to twelve; many of them were herded into sealed trucks and went off to their doom singing the Marselllaise. A few more were spirited away by neighbours and hidden. Clandestine organizations undertook to look after others, changing their names and placing them out in peasant homes. This was not done without great risk. "The discovery of any one hiding such a child." it is explained, "meant arrest and deportation to Germany."

Now a special section of the Ministry of Prisoners and Deported Workers has been set up to seek out these children and, if possible, restore them to their parents. Though every French person who can do so has been asked to give information respecting the whereabouts of the children, it is not expected that any great number of them will find their parents again. In the meantime. the nation is the god-parent. providing for their care and education. Where foster-parents have become attached to a child. and desire to adopt it, they will be permitted to do so unless the rightful parents are found. Heartrending stories are told of the experiences of some of these poor little innocents who got away from their German captors and sought to return home. One little girl escaped from a train and succeeded in reaching her native village, but, finding none of her people there, "overcome with grief and fatigue, died within a few hours." What retribution is too heavy for those guilty of so black a record?

ANCIENT WEAPON STILL USEFUL

I don't suppose we shall ever know what was the first weapon used by primitive man. Possibly it was a stick or stone. Both are world-wide in use. Many more elaborate weapons displayed in the Royal Ontario Museum, such as the bow and arrow, the lance, the spear and even the sword, have virtually passed into history. The simple and convenient club is still a serviceable weapon. Probably most of us would prefer an oval, short, blunt piece of hardwood like the policeman's truncheon. But clubs are subject to local dictates of style. The Iroquois preferred a club which expanded into a round, wooden head; the natives of New Guinea used one with a stone head, something like the Mills bomb of the last war. The Australian aborigine used a clumsy wooden stick; the Solomon Islander, going to the other extreme, carved his club so elaborately that its balance was upset. In this latter example art has triumphed over utility. In Polynesia each island group had its own characteristic, beautifully carved type of club. In the matter of decorated weapons, the old motto "Art is long, life is short" is doubly appropriate.

Opportunities for ALL

YOUR Liberal Government under Mackenzie King has taken practical steps to see that every Canadian after the war shall have a wide-open chance to make a real success of his life. It can be done by giving everybody the opportunity to get ahead faster and go further.

Isn't that what you want — a chance to make your own way IN your own way?

Here are definite, practical steps which the Liberal Government has taken (not just talked about, but taken) to make this Canada a better place to work in and bring up your children.

You will have to decide whether you want the men who devised these measures to carry them through, or whether you wish to entrust your own and your family's future to others.

Rt. Hon. W. L. MACKENZIE KING, Prime Minister

1 Reconstruction
Plans for jobs for 900,000 more workers than in 1939; and 60,000 more each year as the population grows. Every kind of enterprise will be encouraged. The Liberal Government has already set up the machinery: the Department of Reconstruction.

2 Foreign Trade
Liberal objective: Sixty percent increase in value over Canada's pre-war export trade. This means thousands of jobs, and is based on the number of jobs created by Canada's normal export trade.

3 Credit for Enterprise
The Liberal Government set up the Industrial Development Bank to provide money at low interest for long terms to help enterprising Canadians to develop new business. Another step towards creating full employment.

4 Exports Encouraged
War-torn countries will want to buy tremendous quantities of Canadian goods. To facilitate this, the Liberal Government has set up the Export Credit Insurance Act to do two things: (1) to insure Canadian exporters against loss, and (2) to make loans to foreign governments under contract to Canadian exporters.

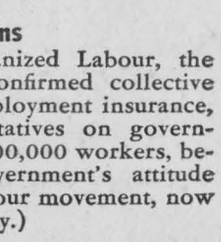
5 Farm Improvement Loans
Your Liberal Government has made low interest loans available to farmers to finance their work and make improvements.

6 Guaranteed Markets
To provide farmers with a better wartime income, the Liberal Government made contracts for definite quantities of important products at agreed prices—notably bacon, eggs, cheese and beef. These contracts have worked out so well the Liberal Government extended many for longer periods.

7 Family Allowances
From July next, Family Allowances are to be paid monthly to assist parents in raising their children—$250,000,000 a year direct spending power in the hands of people who need it most.

8 New Homes for Canadians
The Liberal Government's new $400,000,000 National Housing Act enables hundreds of thousands of Canadians to own their own homes. In the first year after Germany's defeat, at least 50,000 dwellings will be built.

9 Returning Veterans
Gratuities, benefits and grants of $750,000,000 will enable men and women of the Armed Services to apply their energies in building the prosperous Canada for which your Liberal Government has been planning.



10 Floor Prices under Fish and Farm Products
To protect farmers and fishermen and to maintain prices, the Liberal Government has provided floor prices under their products. Prosperous farmers and fishermen make a prosperous Canada.

11 Better Labour Conditions
In co-operation with organized Labour, the Liberal Government has confirmed collective bargaining, provided unemployment insurance, appointed labour representatives on government boards. (More than 600,000 workers, because of the Liberal Government's attitude towards Labour and the labour movement, now get annual vacations with pay.)

12 Reduction in Taxation
The Liberal Government will gradually reduce taxation when the European war is over to free spending power and to give Canadians every opportunity for prosperity, employment and freedom.

What you have done in war—you can do in peace. You can do your part by supporting the Liberal Candidate in your constituency.

FAMILY ALLOWANCES AND INCOME TAX

THE following announcement will help to clarify the relationship between Family Allowances and Income Tax credits for dependent children. Family Allowances are payable from July 1st, 1945, and the registration of children is now taking place.

The Family Allowances Act was designed to help equalize opportunities for all children, and when the Act was passed, Parliament approved the principle that there should be no duplication of benefits by way of Family Allowances and Income Tax credits for the same child. An amendment to the Income War Tax Act will be made to deal with this duplication. In the meantime, however, the Government proposes, for the last six months of 1945 during which Family Allowances are payable, to remove duplication by adjusting the income tax credits received for children.

It is natural that parents in the low income groups will be expected to receive maximum benefits from Family Allowances. Partial benefits will be received, however, by parents with incomes up to $3,000.

The table below shows the effect of the adjustments which the Government has decided to make. For convenience and simplicity the benefits received by each income group are shown as a per cent of the Family Allowances received. The table shows:

(a) Heads of families receiving incomes in 1945 of $1200 or less will benefit to the extent of the full amount of the Family Allowances received. As they are not required to pay income tax, there is no duplication to remove.

(b) Heads of families receiving incomes in 1945 in excess of $1200, but not in excess of $3,000, will in effect retain the full value of their present income tax credits and in addition a percentage of the actual Family Allowances received.

(c) Heads of families with incomes in excess of $3,000 will retain their full income tax credits for children if they do not receive Family Allowances. These taxpayers may, however, apply for Family Allowances to protect themselves against a possible decrease in income at a later date which might bring them into a lower income range where they would benefit from Family Allowances. In such cases if the income remains in excess of $3,000, the income tax credits for children would be reduced by the full amount of Family Allowances received.

NOTE:—This table applies to married persons and others having the status of married persons for income tax purposes. For the relatively small number of single persons supporting children and not having married status for income tax purposes, and for members of the Armed Forces, special tables can be obtained from the Regional Director of Family Allowances in each provincial capital.

Family Allowances will be paid in full

In all cases, those who apply for and are eligible to receive Family Allowances will receive them in full, month by month. See scale below:

SCALE OF MONTHLY ALLOWANCES FOR THE FIRST FOUR CHILDREN

For each child
Under 6	$5.00
From 6 to 9 . (inclusive) .	6.00
From 10 to 12 (inclusive) .	7.00
From 13 to 15 (inclusive) .	8.00

Where there are more than four children under 16 in the family, the monthly allowance for each child after the fourth will be reduced in accordance with the provisions of the Family Allowances Act.

As far as is possible, to take care of the adjustments necessary to avoid duplication of benefits, current income tax deductions at the source will be adjusted to take into account the new situation when Family Allowance payments commence. This will avoid placing an awkward burden on the taxpayers at the end of the year.

FAMILY ALLOWANCES ARE NOT TAXABLE

Special attention is drawn to the fact that the income ranges used in the table above refer to taxable income, and any amounts received as Family Allowances should not therefore be included in calculating income for this purpose because Family Allowances are not taxable.

Family Allowances are also additional to dependents' allowances for servicemen's families and military pensions.

For children registered after July 1st, 1945, Family Allowances will be paid as from the month following the month when registration is made. Family Allowances are not paid retroactively.

SPRING BRINGS SONG TO THE MARSHES

As I write this, the trill of the toad and the more metalic sound of the swamp tree frog are borne on the wind to me. Distance converts this into a haunting music of the marshes. Just when in the remote past the forefathers of our toads and frogs first took up their spring song I do not know. But in the Royal Ontario Museum we have on view at present the well preserved fossilized remains of a little animal, suggestive of our frogs and salamanders. Ths form of life flourished 200 million years ago in the countries now overrun by warring armies. Closely related to this small creature, and contemporaneous with it, were giant amphibians, the triangular heads of which reached from two to four feet in length. From Texas come fossilized skeletons of these animals, an example of which is also included in the Museum collections.

TEA, COFFEE DRINKERS ..

An interesting feature with regard to the use of tea and coffee in the United States, Canada, and Britain is the high consumption of tea in Britain relative to coffee both in the present and pre-war times, compared with the reverse situation in the United States. Canada consumed about equal quantities of both beverages before the war but the consumption of coffee increased during the war period at the expense of tea. Before the war cocoa was consumed in about equal quantities in the United States and Britain, but in Canada consumption was somewhat lower. In all three countries, supplies declined during the war. Britain now consumes the most cocoa and Canada the least.—Combined Food Board report.

HIGHER RETURNS BY FEEDING GRAIN

"A suggestion has gone out that farmers who produce wheat are getting and will continue to get $1.50 basis No. 1 Northern Fort William for their wheat. Farmers' wheat has never been disposed of at a return of more than $1.35 a bushel Fort William for any year since the war began. There is nothing known down to the present which would assure him a higher return for the future" said Hon. James G. Gardiner, Dominion Minister of Agriculture.

"On the other hand a much higher return can be secured by feeding grain to hogs or cattle. Every possible effort is being made to retain or provide manpower on the farm to made possible the feeding of live stock. It is hoped that farmers will seed as much oats and barley as possible to assure meat production. Meat is necessary to the winning of the peace," said Mr. Gardiner.

"Is this the speedometer?" asked the pretty girl, tapping the glass with her fingers.

"Yes, dear," he replied.

"And that's the clutch?"

"That's the clutch, darling," he said, jamming on his brakes to avoid a fast-approaching truck.

"But what on earth is this?" she inquired at the same time giving the accelerator a vigorous push with her foot.

"This dear," he said, in a soft celestial voice, "is Heaven." And, pick-

"PRAISE GOD FROM WHOM ALL BLESSINGS FLOW"

From each heart today ascends a prayer of Thankfulness. The expressions will vary in word and form, but the spirit of gratitude will be Universal.

We have come through great trials together . . . there are tremendous problems ahead; but with the same fortitude shown in Peace as in War the goal of building a more harmonious world will be an achievement for which all will have reason to be grateful. May this day of Victory strengthen our determination to continue our task until the remaining enemy is crushed and War is forever banished from the face of this Earth.

My Kind of Man

When I was a patch-seated kid, Charlie used to come to our house. Charlie was a bachelor who lived with four hound-dogs over on Wolf Branch. He had a chicken-coop shack there under the elms and pecans. I was always glad when Charlie came by our house, but Mom wasn't.

"Do you want to grow up and live wild," she'd scold, "with a passel of pesky hound-dogs underfoot? Never doing nothing but roving the woods? Just living from hand to mouth?"

And I'd say: "No'm, I guess not."

But I was lying. The truth was that I could think of no better way of living—out in the woods where there were no cotton patches to hoe, no corn to weed, no hot sand to burn my bare feet. I couldn't see anything wrong with it. Charlie was ragged most of the time. Winters, he wore two or three pairs of pants so that the holes wouldn't match and let the cold air in. He hobbled around in old cast-off shoes, and the skunk scent he acquired in the winter trapping season never quite left his clothes all summer.

But he was my kind of man. He could tear off a piece of oak leaf and hold it against the roof of his mouth with his tongue and blow on it and call a fat turkey within gun range at gobbling time. And he could imitate a lovesick hen quail's call till half the rooster quails in the country would be whistling and strutting and dragging their wings all about us.

Mom said Charlie was shiftless; he wouldn't work, he'd never have any money. She wanted me to be like Cullen Morten, the banker, who owned the finest house in town. The banker was a "respectable citizen," Mom said.

Charlie didn't think much of Cullen Morten. "He's got a watch-chain belly," he said scornfully. "His tongue'd be hanging out of his mouth a foot by the time he'd follered a pack of real coon-hounds half an hour!" Charlie was as lean as one of his own hounds; he could run with them all night.

One night Charlie came hobbling up to the house just in time for supper. He usually came in time for a meal. He was coatless and his wiry frame shivered in the raw air. He said he'd stuffed his coat and a chunk of firewood in the opening of a hollow post oak that grew on a ridge above the cattle tank in Jim Frenzel's pasture. There was a big boar coon in that hollow tree. The two hounds he had with him, Red and Bulger, had run the coon in there. The coon couldn't get out now till we got back with an axe to cut him out. We sure could have us a big coon fight, Charlie said.

Mom said I was too little to go. She said I'd scuff up my new winter shoes and they had to last me till time to go barefooted next spring. She said I had to get my lessons. But Papa got Mom off in another room and talked her into letting me go. He said he'd watch out for me.

A big-bellied moon was climbing up over the mesquite ridges when we left the house. Frost was fuzzing the grass and the dried cow chips along the trail. You'd never think just an old cow chip could be pretty till you've seen one all fuzzy with white frost, and the moonlight shining down on it, making it glimmer like a crust of diamonds.

Papa carried the lantern. Charlie carried the axe. We walked a long time across the rolling Texas hills. Finally Charlie pointed out the post oak on top of a ridge. The hounds bounded ahead and set up a loud baying when they reached the tree.

Red was mighty anxious to get at that coon. He'd back off and take a running start and do his best to jump to the first fork in the tree. Finally, he made it. He stood on the lowest branch and reared up on his hind legs and whined and gnawed at the edges of the hole where Charlie had stuffed his coat. Red was a good coon hound, Charlie said. He said that Red had plenty of grit and would tackle anything that travelled on four feet, but he liked coons best. He said he thought sometimes that Red had more grit than sense.

I sure did wish I had a coon dog like Red.

Papa lit the lantern so Charlie could see to use his axe. They made me hold Bulger, so he wouldn't maybe run up and get his head chopped off. Charlie showed me how to sit beside Bulger and hold his forelegs.

When Charlie knocked a hole in the bottom of the tree, he must have hit the coon. We heard a loud squall and the next minute the coon was sticking his head out and growling in the lantern light.

I couldn't hold Bulger any longer then. He leaped for the coon. Old Red tumbled down out of the tree, roaring like a bull. The coon squalled again and came charging out to meet them. Red and Bulger tied in, and the whole biting, slashing tangle of them rolled over me and swirled down the sharp incline of the brush tangled slope.

Charlie tore out after them, yelling to papa, "Head 'em, Beck! Head 'em! Don't let 'em git in that tank!"

The lantern had been knocked out but in the moonlight I could see Papa plain, leaping through the brush and yelling. Charlie was following, waving his axe and yelling some more. I couldn't see the fight but I could hear the brush popping, the dogs yelping and growling, the coon squalling.

Down below was water trapped behind a dirt dam thrown up across a spring branch. The pool was bright in the moonlight, its smooth surface shiny as a looking-glass. A black raging whirl of dogs and coon rolled out of the brush toward the water and dropped in.

"He'll drown 'em Charlie hollered. "He'll climb on their heads and hold 'em under!"

Fear for the hounds tied my insides all up in knots and made me weak and sick. I ran down to the edge of the water. But I couldn't do anything. There just wasn't anything a little old scared boy could do.

Charlie had stumbled out into the water, following the fight. The water was waist deep to him right at the bank. It was getting deeper every step. Charlie had his axe drawn back; he aimed to cave that boar coon's head in if he ever got a chance. He was hollering: "You, Red! Turn him loose! Bulger! Git outta there!"

But Red and Bulger, they couldn't hear. They were flailing the water with their feet, whipping it into a white froth, trying to keep their heads above the surface. But the squalling coon was climbing on them and shoving them under.

Charlie got hold of Bulger's hind leg and dragged him loose from the coon. He waded to the bank, pulling Bulger behind him. Bulger was howling. He didn't want to be pulled out of the fight. Charlie reached Bulger's hind leg to Papa and told him to hold tight, not to let him get back in there with that coon. Then he hurried out into the water with his axe again. He had to try and save Red.

Red and the big boar coon were out in the middle of the tank by now. They were biting and snarling, squalling and clawing. But the coon had the bulge. That big varmint was riding Red under, straining him. Red wasn't half a match for him out there in that deep water. Red had killed many a coon in his time but he sure was taking a whipping now.

Charlie was swimming with one hand and and holding the axe with the other, still hollering to Red to come out of there.

But Red couldn't hear. He wouldn't have listened if he could. Red had tackled himself a big boar coon; he'd fight to the finish. Red was a coon-fighting hound.

I wished Mom could have been there and seen Charlie swimming out there to save Red. She'd have known then that Charlie wasn't just a no-account rake. Only a brave man would swim right into the face of a big boar coon, just to save a hound-dog. I squatted, there on the bank and shivered and hoped I'd grow up and do something as brave and noble some time.

The big boar coon had Red under again when Charlie reached them. Charlie drew back and struck with his axe. But it wasn't much of a blow. You can't swing an axe in swimming water—you can't brace yourself. Charlie struck and went under. The coon squalled and went under. Red bobbed to the top, coughing and churning the water. The coon came up and climbed right back on Red. Charlie came up and knocked him off again.

"Look out Charlie!" Papa called. "He's after you now!"

Sure enough, the coon was swimming for Charlie's head. He was mighty mad, that coon was, and he bared his white teeth in the moonlight and growled.

"Better get out of there, Charlie," Papa warned. "That coon's fixing to drown you both!"

"Turn Bulger loose!" Charlie gasped. "He ain't drowned us yit!"

He hit the coon and went under again. The coon swam back and got on top of Red's head.

Bulger hit the water with a splash and a roar. He headed for the fight, swimming fast. But Bulger used his head this time. He swam up and jerked the coon off Red's head, then fell back out of reach. When the coon made for Charlie, Bulger grabbed him and shook him. Then he turned him loose and the coon made a grab for Bulger, and Bulger he hit out for shallow water, swimming fast with the coon right after him.

Charlie followed, swimming on his back. He had to swim reading-the-Bible style like that because he had an axe in one hand and Red's tail in the other. Red was petered out; he never could have made it to the bank by himself.

Bulger worried the coon into shallow water and then lit into the varmint. He was savage now, Bulger was. He'd been held out of that fight too long to suit him.

When Charlie's feet hit bottom and he got his wind he kicked Bulger and the big boar coon apart. He swung his wet axe aloft. It glistened in the moonlight and the water ran down the handle and streamed off Charlie's arm in a silvery spray. He struck once. The coon fight was over.

Bulger dragged the dead coon ashore, still shaking it and growling. Charlie staggered out on the bank, the water running from his clothes and gurgling in his shoes. He flung himself down on the grass and lay there, blowing and heaving. Papa ran into the brush and started gathering wood for a fire. Red grunted and got to his feet. He shook himself, popping his long ears against his head and showering me with muddy water. Then he went over and licked Charlie in the face. He knew who'd saved his life, old Red did.

Charlie cussed him and shoved him aside. But Charlie was laughing when he did it, and it looked like Red was laughing with him.

Charlie's dead now and his chicken-coop shack has been rotted down for years. But on frosty moonlight nights, when I hear the long, lonesome baying of some coon hound drifting across the ridges, I like to think that following that hound is the ghost of old Charlie.

In a way, I'm glad he's not here any more. I'd sure hate to face him now with the watch-chain belly I've developed behind Cullen Morten's cashier window.

Sometimes I wish Mom had let me grow up to be a coon hunter like Charlie.

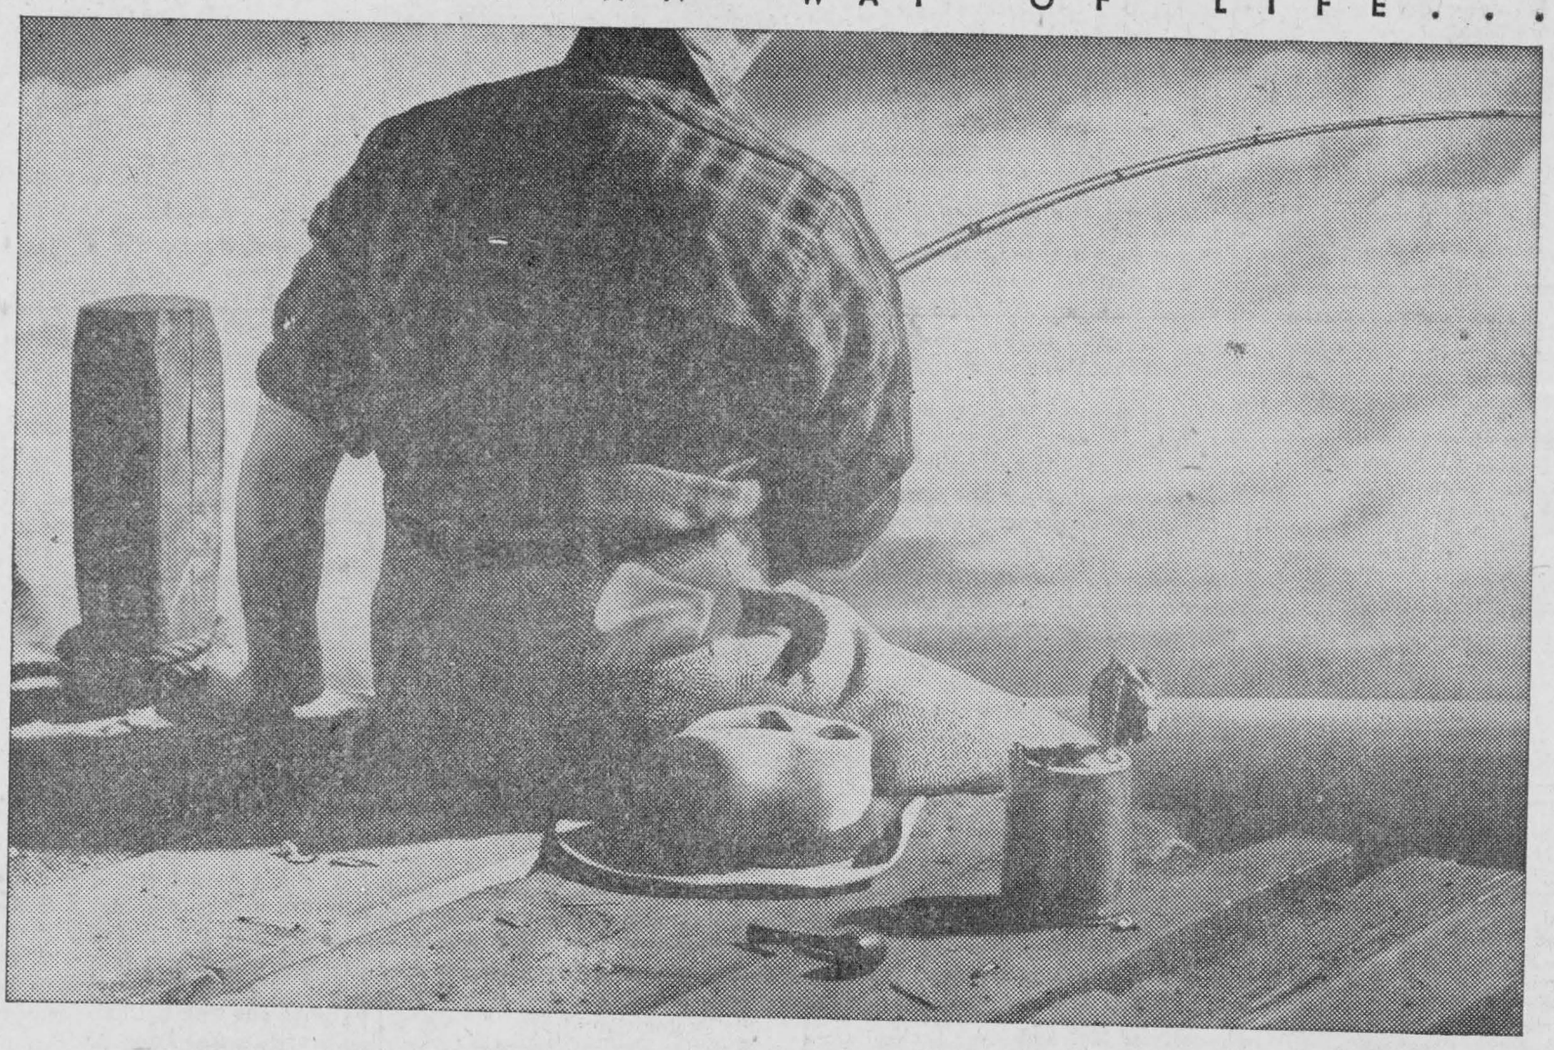
THE CANADIAN WAY OF LIFE . . .



A Chance to Go Fishin' . . . !

YES, and the right to go fishin' . . . the right to enjoy the simple, pleasant things of life! Picnics by the river—week-end trips in the old family jalopy—these are some of the things that your boy is fighting for today! And he won't be able to enjoy those things, unless we at home fight for him against inflation—unless we make sure when he gets back his dollar will be worth a dollar.

To protect his dollar, we must realize NOW the dangers of careless, unnecessary buying! We must buy only what we need—never buy two where one will do! We must not evade rationing or price control, or deal with black markets. If we break the rules, our country—the country he's fighting for—will start on that spiral of prices known as inflation!

Remember! Every time ONE of us breaks ONE of these rules, we're lowering the value of our soldier's dollar. We're helping to shoot prices sky-high . . . and sky-high prices mean inflation. The value of every dollar in Canada goes down, and when the men overseas come back their dollar might buy only a quarter's worth of goods!

We can prevent inflation! We can give our fighting man his "right to go fishin'", if we make sure his dollar will be worth a dollar, when he comes home. We can't give back to him his lost years, or his lost youth. But if we keep up the fight against inflation, he can look forward to pleasant, satisfying living — the Canadian way of life!

Make this Pledge Today!

I pledge myself to do my part in fighting inflation:

By observing rationing and avoiding black markets in any shape or form.

By respecting price controls and other anti-inflation measures, and refraining from careless and unnecessary buying. I will not buy two where one will do, nor will I buy a "new" where an "old" will do.

By buying Victory Bonds and War Savings Stamps, supporting taxation, and abiding by all such measures which will lower the cost of living and help keep prices at a normal level.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Did you ever notice how your appetite changes with the weather? At this time of year we begin to look forward eagerly to the produce of our Victory Garden. Meanwhile there is an abundance of inexpensive seasonal foods, such as parsnips, cress and rhubarb, which can be used to add zest to our table.

Parsnips may be scrubbed and boiled in their skins; they may be peeled and boiled, served mashed, diced, cubed in cream sauce or butter sauce; they are good baked in bacon fat; and a small amount of raw parsnip grated into the salad bowl is a splendid variation.

As for watercress, its colour, flavour and perkiness is a delight for salads, garnishes and sandwiches.

Our requests this week have been for rhubarb recipes, so without more ado, we list a few.

BAKED RHUBARB

4 cups cut rhubarb, ½ cup sugar or ¼ cup sugar and ¼ cup honey.

Wash rhubarb and cut into inch lengths. Place in casserole, add sugar and cover. Bake in preheated electric oven for 20 mins. at 350 degrees.

RHUBARB SHORTCAKE

2 cups flour, ½ tsp. soda, 1 cup thick sour milk, 1 tsp. salt, 2 tbsps. shortening.

Cut shortening into measured flour soda and salt. Add liquid gradually while mixing with a fork to a soft dough. Owing to the difference in sour milk, it is not always possible to determine the exact amount of liquid. Turn dough on lightly floured board and pat out. Cut into circles and bake in electric oven at 450 deg. for 10 mins. Split and serve with thick rhubarb sauce between and on top.

SAUCE: Cook 6 cups of cut washed rhubarb in saucepan placed on electric element turned to Low for 5 mins., then to High. Add about 2/3 cup of sugar and cook only a few minutes stirring frequently.

RHUBARB TARTS

2 cups thick rhubarb sauce, 2 eggs separated, 1 tsp. grated orange rind, ¼ cup fine sugar.

Combine the rhubarb sauce, egg yolks and orange peel. Cook in top of double boiler, stirring constantly, until thickened. Pour into tart shells. Beat the egg white till stiff and add sugar gradually, beating until mixture stands in peaks. Place a spoonful in each tart and bake in electric oven (350 deg.) about 12 to 15 mins. or until delicately browned. Makes 8 tarts of fairly large size.

TO CAN RHUBARB.

Wash and trim slender stalks. Do not remove skin. Cut into ¾ inch pieces. Use 1 cup of sugar to each quart jar (or ½ cup to a pint). Put a thin layer of sugar in the bottom of the jar, then alternate layers of rhubarb and sugar with a layer of sugar on top. Pack very tightly, using a wooden spoon or masher. Partially seal and process in boiler by gently boiling on electric element 25 mins.

TO CAN RHUBARB SAUCE.

Add enough water to rhubarb to prevent burning. Cook until soft. Add ¾ cup of sugar to 1 quart rhubarb. Fill sterilized jars. Seal tightly.

TAKE A TIP

1. To prevent rhubarb pies from boiling over, use strips of wet cheesecloth or butter-wrapping cut in 2-inch widths. Press the one edge to rim of pie and let the other edge fall over fluted pie crust. Overlap ends well.
2. Other variations for rhubarb desserts: Upside-down Cake, Rhubarb Betty, Rhubarb Steamed Pudding, Deep Rhubarb Pie, Rhubarb Sponge.

THE SUGGESTION BOX

Mr. C. M. says: To protect seed potatoes against blight soak them for one hour before planting in a solution of one gallon of water and 2 tsps. of Copper H.

Miss G. B. says: Before putting your badminton racket away cover strings with vaseline.

Mrs. K. O. says: Never cool boiled meat in a broth. Remove as soon as it is cooked; cool and store meat broth separately.

Mrs. C.A. says: Any burned food stuck to enamelware should be soaked off the utensil, but never scraped. Javel water helps a lot.

A. A. says: Watercress leaves are very tender. If stored with other vegetables they crush and break. Watercress should be washed and stored in a closed sealer in the electric refrigerator.

A Barefaced Reply. ..

Once when Clarence Darrow was a fledgling lawyer beginning his career, he was opposed in court by a veteran attorney who, during the course of the trial, repeatedly and insultingly referred to Darrow as "that beardless youth."

At length Darrow, capturing the undivided attention of court and spectators, rejoined:

"My opponent seems to condemn me for not having a beard. Let me reply with a little story.

"The King of Spain once dispatched a youthful nobleman to the court of a neighboring king, who received the visitor with the outraged complaint: "Does the King of Spain lack men that he sends me a beardless boy?"

"To which the young ambassador rejoined 'Sire, if my king had supposed you imputed wisdom to a beard he would have sent you a goat.

Darrow won the case.

London, Eng., Rotarian Addresses Local Club

Perfectly timed with the Allies' Day of Victory, Chesterville Rotarians were addressed by Mr. Daniel Dendy, visiting Rotarian from Britain on Monday night. In one of the years' most interesting meetings, the guest speaker, a veteran of the Great War and whose background showed a prominent and colorful military career paid Canada a high tribute for her contribution to the Allied Cause. It was at Dunkirk, he explained, during England's darkest hour when she was forced to leave behind all her major arms and fighting equipment that she needed the aid of her allies so sorely and profoundly.

Canada made the first contribution and it was this contribution with the arrival of the first corps and the Canadian arms and equipment and vehicles of war that helped so materially to bolster Engand's courage and morale thus providing the first ray of hope for eventual victory.

When the old Veterans offered their service to the country by voluntarily organizing the Home Guard among themselves from the first day of the war and in their earlier training they used only broom handles for equipment before they were finally fully armed and equipped.

The Britons conscripted every man and woman of ages 18 to 51 and 18 to 40 respectively, and placed them into positions where they could render the most effective service.

During the Blitzkrieg of 1940 the German Luftwaffe rained countless explosive bombs over London before they resorted to incendiaries for terrorizing effects. But the amazingly effective ARP organization soon learned to put out these incendiaries as fast as they landed. Defeated in this purpose the Luftwaffe changed their tactics and reversed their order by raining incendiaries first and followed with the explosives to keep the ARP workers off the streets. But the price proved too costly to the Luftwaffe.

Then the speaker told of the terrors and the treachery in purpose of the Robot and Flying Bombs. This weapon was truly the most terrorizing to the islanders due to the uncertainty of its landings.

Mr. Dendy greatly enlightened his listeners further when he invited questions and answered them all with the expert thoroughness that only a Londoner could provide.

The speaker has two daughters living in Canada since 1940 and who have been living among Rotarians in Montreal, since their arrival. Now, he said, that the dangers of war are over in Europe he will soon return to his homeland.

Mr. Dendy was introduced by L. A. David and the appreciation of the club was expressed by H. Brown.

PEDALING PIANIST TICKLES TROOPS

An old bicycle and a pair of nimble fingers—not to mention powerful leg muscles—have brought a lot of entertainment to men and women in the services from Fredricton, N.B. to Southern Alberta and the turn of the west coast will not be long delayed.

The hero of the story is a young man named Harrison Randall from the New Brunswick city. Back in 1942 he was rejected from military service. However, he was determined that the mere fact that he couldn't wear a uniform would not keep him from contributing in some practical way to the war effort. So he wheeled out his old bike, flexed his fingers a few times and started on his way to visit army camps across Canada. At every point he stopped—sometimes for a few hours, sometimes for a couple of days. Always some place he managed to dig up a piano and set his flexed fingers to work.

This was entirely on his own. No one was paying his expenses. How he lived had best be left to the imagination, and to an awful lot of mess sergeants who like music. However, in September 1943 the Canadian Legion War Services decided that a man with that much determination was worthy of a spot on the pay roll even if a special job had to be created. So Randall now travels, still with the same old bike, under the auspices of the Legion.

His piano playing is something that troops dream about after he's gone. He doesn't know one printed note of music from another, but he includes in his repertoire 1,800 selections—classical, semi-classical, soft and slow, and sweet and hot.

When Randall is resting from his exertions at the piano he can always be counted on to warm up on the harmonica. Troops declare he can even play it while he's sound asleep. If a poll were taken Randall would probably get a unanimous vote as the "best one man war effort in Canada".

MRS. SHEPPERD BIDDEN FAREWELL

A number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Senn this week to honour Mrs. Robert Shepherd who, with her husband, have resided here for several years. As Mr. Shepherd is now on Active Service Overseas, Mrs. Shepherd is leaving town to reside with relatives in Carleton Place.

A pleasant evening was spent in music and games, at the close of which the hostess, in a few well-chosen words expressed regret over Mrs. Shepherd's departure and Mrs. Devaney presented her with two beautiful pieces of silver.

Mrs. Shepherd thanked her friends for their kindness and expressed her appreciation of this thoughtful gesture.

CARD OF THANKS. ..

I wish to take this opportunity to thank all my friends who so thoughtfully remembered me with cards, letters, flowers, fruits and candy during my recent stay in the hospital.

Hubert Shay.

IN MEMORIAM.

ST. PIERRE—In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Ida Mary St. Pierre, who died May 14th, 1944.

Quickly and suddenly came the call,
Her sudden death surprised us all;
Dearer to memory than words can tell,
The loss of a mother and grandmother we loved so well.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Harper and family.

INSECTS USE JET PROPULSION

Dragonflies, popularly known as "darning needles", are graceful, colourful creatures that look like miniature fighter planes. They are benficial to man as they feed on mosquitoes and other pests. Dragonflies, in their immature or "nywphal" state live in ponds and rivers. The nymph has two unusual characteristics: it can project its large hinged jaw and it can move forward by forcibly expelling water from its rear end. Dragonflies, in their humble fashion, have been using jet propulsion for millions of years. Dragonflies, both ancient and modern, may be seen at the Royal Ontario Museum.

BONES ARE THE TELL-TALE EVIDENCE

In many a murder investigation a few charred bones figure prominently. In scientific investigations carried out at the Royal Ontario Museum bones help in the unravelling of another and deeper mystery—unknown nature. Because they are hard, skeletons make up most of the fossiled remains of the large extinct animals, such as dinosaurs and mammoth, that once inhabited Canada. These bones are important clues in deciphering the life of the remote past. Skeletal remains found in Indian refuse heaps, deposited a few centuries ago, throw light on the kinds of animals used as food and as a source of raw material for tools, as well as on the natural history of an earlier day. In this latter regard, we now know definitely from the bones found in midden heaps that the gray fox once lived in our province. For the students of present day animals, skeletons are essential in biological classification. They help to trace out the course of evolution and to link up modern types of animals with extinct kinds known only from fossils. To the layman, bones are awesome things. To the scientist they are as pages of evidence.
