Roxborough may get new bomb centre

by Sybil Carello

MOOSE CREEK—Once a formal application is received, Roxborough Council will begin re-zoning procedures on a tract of land in its municipality so it can be used as a temporary testing, research and training range by the Canadian Explosives Disposal and Technology branch in Ottawa.

Inspector Don Salt, who is in charge of the branch, along with Tim Parras, a consultant with the Canadian Bomb Data Center (a national police service information center) made a formal presentation and request for a zoning change at a council meeting here last week.

Until recently, the branch, established in 1985, carried out its operations at a Gloucester range, near the corner of Albion and Rideau Road. But an increase in construction in that area soon cut the distance between the range and public safety, forcing council there to ask that operations be discontinued.

Presently, until another range is found the Canadian Police College has permission to use the Gloucester range for its up-coming re-validation courses (a two-week intensive re-training program for bomb technicians). But, regular, on-going branch operations have flagged, pending a new location.

While branch officials hope to eventually establish operations elsewhere ''this will take time'', they explained, adding that the Roxborough location would be needed for ''at least 18 months.''

Meanwhile, the branch, over-due with quarterly training, needs ''an authorized designated, safe range'' now.

Property owner, André LaFleche, and surrounding neighbors told officials there wouldn't be a problem so long as ''necessary safety precautions are taken.''

That's really not an issue'' said Mr. Parras. ''Safety is the number one consideration in bomb disposal.''

The site, presently zoned as a sand quarry is on the Allaire Road, off Hwy. 138. Its use as a potential range site was suggested by area police officials following earlier investigations.

The report submitted to Inspector Salt, indicated no resident is close enough to the proposed site to be disrupted by noises. The nearest neighbor to the proposed range site is .8 kilometers away. ''They might hear a dull thud,'' said Mr. Parras, ''but nothing overly disturbing.''

''Basically, the guys in our branch have been around quite a few years, some in bomb disposal for 20 - 25 years. They know what they're doing. There won't be accidents or a lot of noise,'' said Mr. Parras.

A policeman would be present at all times and necessary signs would be posted around the range, officials said. They also assured council that five pounds would be the average size bomb charge set off, with ''more than enough area there'' to ensure safety. The maximum charge - 50 pounds of dynamite - would be a ''very rare incident.''

Inspector Salt said although a lot of cars are towed to a range, and disruptions done, car bombs would not be towed to the Roxborough range.

During the viewing of the video portion of the presentation which dealt with training and testing operations, officials

SPINNING—Alexandria's Mae Aalders was busy spinning her yarn Sunday afternoon during Wool Day at the Pioneer Museum in Dunvegan. She used two different spinning wheels on the porch of the Ivan Grant Building and answered questions by the hour from the many people who took in the annual exhibition. ## Third sex assault charge for Dunvegan man

A Dunvegan man, charged with two counts of sexual assault last month, has been arraigned on an additional charge of gross indecency.

Keith Deschamps, 33, appeared in Alexandria Provincial Court Thursday, along with his father, Peter, 71, who has also been charged with two countes of sexual assault.

Both men pleaded not guilty and elected trial by judge. The trial begins Feb. 12 in provincial court.

The additional charge to Mr. Deschamps was laid by Maxville OPP during a subsequent investigation.

Judge Reginald Levesque has placed a ban on publication of the names of the victims, or any information which might identify them.

Donald Clark, also of Dunvegan, faces two charges of sexual assault in connection with the investigation. Mr. Clark, 39, will appear in court Thursday to enter a plea.

Mr. Clark appeared in court on two other occasions the past month, but his case was adjourned so he could retain legal help.

Three years probation for sexually assaulting girls

A Lancaster man received a suspended sentence and was placed on probation for three years, Thursday, in Alexandria Provincial Court, after pleading guilty to sexually assaulting two young girls.

Judge Reginald Levesque ordered a ban on publication of the man's name in order to protect the identity of the victims, two sisters, three and five years of age.

The accused was employed at a Kenyon Township farm and one of his functions was to occasionally babysit.

Police received information concerning incidents of ''fondling'' between February and October of 1985. The man was charged by police in February.

The man did not use force and the girls were not harmed physically.

During his probation, the man will continue to receive counselling in a rehabilitation program at the Royal Ottawa Hospital.

Sports hall of fame directors seek support from local municipalities

The initial step in the construction of a Glengarry Sports Hall of Fame was unveiled by directors before Glengarry's municipal representatives, Monday evening, in the Alexandria Town Council Chambers. Observers said there was an enthusiastic response indicating that the program appeared to have met with favorable approval.

It was made known at the outset that the Ontario Ministry of Citizenship and Culture was positively impressed by the application for a hall of fame building grant and stated funds were available. However, in view of the fact the organization represents all of Glengarry County, the ministry's first priority was confirmation from the councils that they, too, support the project.

Sports Hall of Fame Board Chairman Angus H. McDonell conducted the meeting and described reasons for founding of a hall of fame.

Some 25 years ago, Mr. McDonell recalled, writing his Sports In The Glens column in The Glengarry News required research on various subjects. While browsing through world and Canadian achievements by Glengarry athletes, sport builders and championship teams, he developed the idea that a sports hall of fame was necessary to house the heritage for all time. The idea was mentioned occasionally in his column and response from readers was encouraging, he said.

About 15 years ago, the chairman continued, the nucleus of Williamstown sportsmen were approached with a building proposal but considered it too big an undertaking.

The was also a brief reference to the Mill Square grist mill, which now houses the Priest's Mill, by an Alexandria sportsman, but that received a lukewarm reception.

Finally, in 1978, Dr. Don Gamble of Maxville, a widely known sportsman and community leader, especially in the interests of the Glengarry Highland Games and the Kenyon Agriculture Society, accepted the challenge and the Glengarry Sports Hall of Fame was launched.

Mr. Archibald MacDonell, the hall of fame's property co-chairman, related the progress of the organization to date, stating a solid foundation was the first objective and that had been realized.

Assistant historian Jim Hill outlined the selection of inductees into the hall of fame. He emphasized the fact every part of Glengarry was represented and the necessary enshrinement credentials were merit, not language, church or school attended.

Secretary-treasurer Bill Campbell of Maxville, gave an extended review of building costs, based on architects' figures and anticipated operation charges. He then gave a fund raising program which was similar to the building of the Maxville and District Sports Complex.

The site was provided through the cooperation of the Kenyon Agricultural Society and Maxville Village Council, a gesture that was greatly appreciated, he said. The major factor in the location was the proximity of the Glengarry Highland Games, which attracts upwards of 20,000 visitors each year, providing a source of revenue expected to offset operation costs.

In the question and answer session that followed it was noted additional suggestions were tabled in regards to fundraising that were greatly appreciated by the directors, Mr. McDonell said later.

''Such important advice, coupled with an apparent consensus of approval, appeared to indicate that the purpose of the meeting was well received. The Glengarry Sports Hall of Fame appears to be on its way,'' he said.

Jail term for disturbance

A Lancaster Man was sentenced to five days in jail and placed on probation for six months, Thursday, for causing a disturbance.

Barry Leonard Gunn, 21, pleaded guilty in Alexandria Provincial Court. He was charged Aug. 5 in Lancaster Village.

After a man entered Mario's Chipstand, Mr. Gunn followed and began to tease him. A fight ensued and the man went to his car to leave. Mr. Gunn followed the man and put his arms through the window of the car trying to stop him from leaving. The man put his car window up and the accused broke it. Damage to the window was about $260.

Mr. Gunn must make full restitution.

Helping illiterates catch up with the fast-moving world

by Lesley Cadham

In 1983, Anne enrolled in school to begin studying Grade 1 reading, spelling and phonics. Though she was scared and lacked confidence, she persisted. Three years later, she has advanced to Grade 10 and is helping the teacher instruct other students.

The 52-year-old Cornwall Island woman was illiterate. She is a student in the Adult Basic Education program at The Alternative School in Cornwall. Anne is not her real name, as she preferred to remain anonymous.

She started thinking about going back to school to brush up on her reading, spelling and pronunciation skills when her youngest daughter began high school. Anne felt she wasn't accomplishing anything watching daytime television and though she believed she had fared well without the skills, she wondered how long her luck would last.

Before she entered the school, she could not read a sales contract and recalls relying on contractors who were to renovate her home, to tell her what was written in fine print. When writing a letter, she couldn't look up the spelling of words in the dictionary because she didn't know how to spell them.

Now she is studying ''Man in Society'' a course combining anthropology and sociology.

Anne's learning difficulties began in Grade 7. One month before the fall semester started, Anne's mother suffered a stroke and Anne was elected to look after her. It was October before she entered seventh grade and she had already fallen too far behind.

Her problem was compounded when she was faced with new material in Grade 8 and when she failed Grade 9 she gave up.

Over the years, she has raised seven children, alone, by taking on work requiring less skill and once raised a few head of cattle on her small farm. She often wonders what it would have been like to work in an office or a department store and beams at the recollection of a recent week's work at K-Mart, arranged by the school.

According to the Ministry of Citizenship and Culture, there are more than one million functionally illiterate adults in Ontario - people who have not completed Grade 9 and are over 15 years of age.

The Ontario government has earmarked $5 million for the ministry to support community-based literacy programs.

Glengarry District High School Principal Brian McKinley believes people become illiterate because they drop out of school and for years do not read anything they don't absolutely have to. They simply forget how to read, he says.

St. Lawrence College in Cornwall will submit a program proposal to the Ministry of Skills Development to implement an Ontario Basic Skills program which will teach literacy as well as numeracy, computer literacy, job search techniques and life skills.

''The general objective is to improve skills in individuals so they can get back into the work force,'' says Arleen Adams, dean of applied arts and health services at the college. She hopes the program will be under way November 1.

Mary Mayer, teacher at The Alternative School says illiterate adults can hold down a job for years.

''As long as there are no changes in the job or manuals to read, they can hold a job for years,'' she says.

There are currently about 30 adults in the school's literacy program and the majority are between 25-35 years old. Mrs. Mayer believes younger adults have not yet become interested in upgrading literacy skills.

Anne is pleased with her progress at The Alternative School. Mrs. Mayers says Anne is ''truly a success story'' because while most students feel a Grade 7 reading level is adequate, Anne has continued and plans to go on to Grade 12.

''I came back to understnad more of what's going on and to catch up in this fast-moving world. I didn't have a good chance in the elementary level,'' says Anne.

Unemployed can work and earn more money on job creation program

by Lesley Cadham

Lee-Anne Christie pushes the lawnmower back and forth across a lawn belonging to the Raisin Region Conservation Authority. She stops for a moment and smiles at General Manager Mike Lalonde, then goes back to her work.

This 22-year-old Apple Hill woman is part of the Section 38 Job Creation Program under the umbrella of Canada Employment and Immigration, which is open to recipients of unemployment insurance benefits.

She started collecting benefits almost a year ago and has done work, such as the removal of beaver dams, for the authority on several occasions.

According to Vince McAlear, employment market advisor and public relations spokesman for Cornwall's Canada Employment Centre, the program was formed to give unemployment recipients a chance to gain valuable experience and create jobs.

"It's a matter of getting people out in proper occupations and getting them experience. Often they are called back by a firm to work full-time because once the employer sees how they work, they are hired," says Mr. McAlear.

The program also provides the opportunity for companies to complete projects that could not normally be done, due to lack of funding or manpower.

The worker can earn more money by working than by staying home.

An employer must submit a proposal to Canada Employment and Immigration, stating why he needs another employee, what skills would be required for the task and the established salary.

Canada Employment Centre can provide persons with a wide range of skills. Mr. McAlear said employers have been outfitted with historical researchers and construction workers.

There are 47 unemployment insurance recipients in the work force in the area.

The demand for workers was high when the program started in 1982, due to the recession, but there is less need now, said Mr. McAlear.

Society invites Glengarrians to meet

by Lesley Cadham

The Cornwall and area chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada will be holding its annual meeting on Oct. 21 at 7:30 p.m.

Glengarry patients and their families are invited to attend the meeting, during which the diagnosis, treatment and research of this crippling disease and the role of the multiple scelerosis (MS) clinic will be discussed. A question period will follow.

Dr. Robert Nelson, a neurologist and director at the MS clinic in the Ottawa General Hospital and Danielle Wagner, a registered nurse of the same clinic, will be guest speakers.

According to Public Relations Director Madeleine Germain, MS strikes its victims during their most productive years, usually between the ages of 20 and 40. Mrs. Germain, diagnosed during her late 50's, was an exception.

MS is a neurological disorder which affects the brain and spine. It interrupts the brain's ability to control walking, talking and other important functions. Because it is a difficult disease to diagnose, people can have the virus for many years before being aware of it.

MS does not cause death, but complications which arise as a result of the disease can kill the victim.

Mrs. Germain says there are many MS victims in Glengarry County.

"You have to learn to live with what you have left, not with what you have lost," says Mrs. Germain.

The meeting will take place at St. Joseph's Villa, 14 York St., in Cornwall.

Board names two assistants

CORNWALL — The SD&G County Board of Education has appointed two assistant superintendents to fill positions left vacant following the retirement of veteran superintendents Lorne Lawson and John Comtois.

In a press release, the board said Karl Duncan and Marc Schaefer were to assume their new positions for a two-year term, beginning Oct. 1 and ending Aug. 31, 1988.

Following the recent retirements, the board approved an administrative reorganization which it believes will allow for much greater flexibility in dealing with the administrative structure.

The appointments "realize and capitalize upon upon excellence within the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Board of Education," states the release, signed by board chairman William Fleming and Rosaire Léger, director of education.

Mr. Duncan is currently principal of the board's largest elementary school, Central Public School in Cornwall, and previously served as principal of Long Sault Public School.

stressed the importance of having a designated range to carry out their training and development of new technology.

Transporting explosives from Ottawa to the range is done in a special vehicle called a bomb hopper. This method of transportation was deemed "reasonably safe" by officials.

In a final summation, Mr. Parras told council their efforts will help make a big contribution towards Canada's role in the explosives disposal field.

Tragic death not forgotten by OPP

MAXVILLE — Three years after the tragic death of 16-year-old Grant Hardy in a hit-and-run accident, Ontario Provincial Police are still offering a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of his killer.

An OPP spokesman said at the time the suspect would eventually be apprehended, but investigations have been fruitless so far.

Grant Hardy of Dunvegan died on Oct. 22, 1983 after being struck by a car while bicycling with a friend just west of the community, not far from his home.

Witnesses, including the victim's companion, and occupants of an approaching vehicle, said the driver got out of his car for a moment following the collision and then drove away. He was decribed as approximately 30 years old, 5'6'' or 5'7'', of medium build, with medium length brown hair and a goatee-type beard.

OPP suspected the vehicle was a tan-colored Toyota, possibly a 1980 Tercel, bearing Ontario licence plates with the letter ''M'' in the letter series, followed by the number one in first place, the number eight in last and six as the possible middle digit.

The OPP circulated a composite drawing of the driver as described by witnesses, as well as a photo of the suspected vehicle.

Several people called The Glengarry News last week to repeat rumors that the vehicle had been located, but circumstances varied from caller to caller.

OPP detachments in Maxville, Lancaster and Hawkesbury said they knew nothing of the rumors, but Maxville OPP Corporal John Mesich instructed constables to investigate.

''I can only assume that there is nothing to it, (the rumor)'' he said yesterday (Tues.).

Grant Hardy was a Grade 11 student at Glengarry District High School and the son of Gordon and Beverley Hardy, who had been living in Dunvegan about four years. The family had moved to Ottawa, temporarily, following a fire which destroyed their home. Grant had been staying at the home of John and Marion Loewen in order to attend high school in Alexandria.

Anyone with information regarding the vehicle or driver is asked to contact the Maxville OPP detachment at 527-2124.

HIT-AND-RUN SUSPECT—A sixteen-year-old Dunvegan youth was fatally injured by a hit-and-run driver three years ago. OPP developed this composite sketch of the driver from witnesses' descriptions and suspect the vehicle is a 1980 Toyota Tercel. Recent unconfirmed rumors are that the car has been found. Maxville OPP want to remind everyone there is still a hefty reward for information leading to an arrest.

Lancaster to wrap up seniors project

by Joanne Stevenson

LANCASTER—At its Oct. 7 meeting, Lancaster Village Council discussed options regarding the unsuccessful bid for funding of the Lancaster Senior Citizen Project.

On Sept. 27, the Ontario Housing Corporation sent the Lancaster and District Non-Profit Housing Corporation a letter notifying it of the province's decision not to fund the project.

The board of directors of the corporation held a meeting Oct. 6 during which they debated what to do with the corporation now that the project has been refused. The directors then decided to let council, which had invested $8,000 in a loan to the corporation, determine whether or not it should continue.

Coun. Denise McClements, a member of the housing corporation, explained the situation to council.

''They (the province) can't give us any hope,'' she said. Council must therefore decide whether to allow the corporation to remain in a dormant state or close it off permanently.

''Some of the directors would not be willing to give their time for a family housing project,'' she added.

Janette Abbey suggested the corporation remain.

''We should close out the bank account and keep the corporation because it would cost more to dissolve it,'' she said.

Therefore council will not be dissolving the non-profit corporation in the near future.

RRCA

Janette Abbey, who represents the municipality on the Raisin Region Conservation Authority (RRCA), noted members of the authority would be happy to meet with Lancaster council and the general public at their convenience. The village is the smallest municipality on the board and no member of the RRCA has ever addressed council.

Council appeared interested in setting up such an information session with the RRCA.

OPTIMIST CLUB

The recreation committee and village council, in an effort to encourage the success of the newly-organized local Optimist Club, will, for a period of time, be donating the use of Smith's Field Hall for meetings. The Optimists are dedicated to enhancing recreational outlets for youth.

The village, however, will charge for use of the hall for social and fundraising events.

CABLEVISION

The community channel on Lancaster's cablevision will be broadcasting news of social and community activities. The system should be set up this November. At that time, announcements can be dropped off at the village office where Clerk Ian MacDonald will place them on the community channel.

CENTENNIAL

Coun. Jennifer Charbonneau of Lancaster's Centennial Committee notes a variety of activities are currently in the works. The committee's next meeting will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. at the recreation hall.

Mill Lake up six inches

Incessant rainfall throughout late summer and fall has forced the water level in Alexandria's Mill Lake up at least six inches over normal and continues to threaten some local homes with flooding.

Raisin Region Conservation Authority (RRCA) staff took water level readings at 9 a.m. Tuesday and found, in addition to the high mark in Alexandria, water was 6 1/2'' higher than normal at the Kenyon Dam and 3 1/2'' higher at Loch Garry.

Authority General Manager Mike Lalonde insists there is no real risk to homes on the north side of Mill Lake at the moment, but ''it's on the fringe of causing water problems.''

The authority has opened the dam at the Priest's Mill in an attempt to keep water levels at a manageable level and, if necessary, another log can be removed, said Mr. Lalonde.

A heavy fall storm could still raise Mill Lake even further and cause minor flooding for some homes, he conceded, but a great deal of rainfall would be needed before property owners on Middle Lake or Loch Garry would experience any problems.

The amount of rain this fall has been substantially greater than in average years, noted Mr. Lalonde. After a major storm about two weeks ago, water flow in the Raisin River was 25 to 30 per cent higher than in the spring run-off.

The water situation is almost the reverse of last year, he said, when conservation authority officials were concerned about maintaining an adequate supply of drinking water for Alexandria.

''Last summer (1985) the water level was 16 inches lower than normal,'' said Mr. Lalonde. ''We were concerned that the smaller channels would be too shallow and could freeze,'' cutting off water which normally feeds into the Mill Lake.

''In the fall heavier rainfall brought the water level up.''

Alexandria man fined $400

An Alexandria man was fined $400 and placed on probation for 18 months, Thursday, in Alexandria Provincial Court, after pleading guilty to making threatening telephone calls.

Martin Wylie, 38, admitted phoning a Charlottenburgh Township man eight times between Oct. 21 and April 22. The accused was abusive and insulting to the complainant on each occasion.

The complainant recognized Mr. Wylie's voice. The accused had been drinking at the time of the phone calls.

The man was charged in the past with the same offence. He was given four months to pay the fine.

Looking for stolen van

Alexandria police are searching for a van reported stolen from town the morning of October 3rd.

The 1978 GM van was taken between 12:30 a.m. and 3 a.m. from the corner of St. Paul and Dominion streets, where it had been parked by the owner, Michel Cholette of 54 Victoria St.

The van is beige in color, with license number VJB 947.

Mill may become hall of fame

MARTINTOWN—The Martintown Mill Preservation Society is considering turning the Martintown Mill into an agricultural hall of fame, said society chairman Bruce McCuaig, Thursday.

According to Mr. McCuaig, Murray Howse of the Eastern Ontario Holstein Association proposed the idea and a meeting, held August 19 aroused the interest of the 25 attending representatives of Glengarry and Stormont agricultural societies.

The next meeting will be held on November 25 and 37 agricultural societies from the two counties have been invited.

Because the concept is still in the proposal stages, Mr. McCuaig was unable to shed any light on funding sources for the construction of the hall, but did say he believes the project could be completed for less than $100,000.

The hope fades

It was a frustrating end to what millions had hoped might be the first step toward abolishing a nuclear arms race that has held the world hostage for nearly 40 years.

U.S. President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev met for two days of talks in Reykjavik, Iceland over the Thanksgiving Weekend amid high hopes that they could agree to drastic cuts in European based medium range nuclear missiles, setting the stage for the possible elimination of all nuclear arms within a decade. The dream was shattered Saturday as the world watched the two grim-faced leaders emerge from their final meeting without any kind of an agreement.

The earlier negotiations at Geneva, all the statesman-like words from both men came to nothing. The cause of peace took a frightening step backwards and the spectre of nuclear annihilation loomed as large as ever.

An end to nuclear madness seemed almost within our grasp, but has now been pulled beyond reach again. It was a chance lost.

It may be many years before the world has such a chance again. Observers are already suggesting Mr. Gorbachev was taking great political risks in his determination to reach an arms agreement. The military and more conservative leaders in the Kremlin opposed his moratorium on nuclear tests and his efforts to spur the Soviet economy and liberalize his country's political system.

If he manages to retain his leadership, his ability to take the initiative in world affairs may be sharply curtailed.

All that was required in Iceland was compromise and a willingness on the part of each leader to take a chance with the other. If there is to be any hope for world peace there will first have to be a measure of trust. Trust carries risks, but the risks involved in continuing the arms race are far greater.

The best we can hope for is that the two men may try yet again.

Golden handshake

Premier David Peterson's Liberal government is running into strong criticism over its decision to pay a fortune to get rid of Roderick Lewis, the 75-year-old clerk of the Ontario Legislature.

While in opposition, the Liberals and the NDP regularly attacked Mr. Lewis, calling him a Tory hack and accusing him of blatant partisanship in routinely protecting the Conservative governments of the day in the legislature. They made no secret about the fact that they wanted him gone years ago.

Now, with the Liberals in power and the clerk definitely on the out list, it's ironic to find the Grits agreeing to Mr. Lewis' excessive demands. It's even more ironic to hear the Conservatives joining the chorus of criticism for one of the most generous golden handshakes in history.

Mr. Lewis agreed to resign earlier this year but then refused to step aside for his successor until his retirement demands were met. He is entitled to an annual pension of $34,800 and a one-time severance payment of $136,800. After a messy dispute, the government agreed to much more: a $220,000 lifetime annuity, which would bring his pension up to $60,000; an annual salary of $31,500 in addition to his pension; $45,000 a year for office space, commputer equipment and secretarial services to help him write a book about the legislature; a chauffeur-driven limousine and an expense account for meals.

The NDP are determined to remove all the extras from the package when it is presented to the legislature later this year for approval as part of the government's supplementary estimates. With Conservatives joining the New Democrats, the deal can be scuttled.

The deal must be blocked for any one of a number of good reasons. The government cannot submit to unreasonable demands that border on extortion, nor can it display limitless generosity for one senior civil servant while holding the reins on salary increases for all other employees.

In all likelihood, the Liberals find the retirement package as distasteful as anyone else, but they are afraid Mr. Lewis could get still more if he took the government to court. Mr. Lewis appears to be one old Tory getting his last laugh at the expense of the Grits.

The "Diamond handshake", as the NDP have dubbed the package, should be stopped. If the courts want to make a different decision, let the consequences rest on their shoulders.

In the meantime, if Mr. Lewis refuses to leave, he can still be stripped of his office and ignored.

The province should play fair with municipalities

A FEW THOUGHTS
Joanne Stevenson

It is really not so hard to become bored by provincial politics. Occasionally, the Ontario political scene does prove sleep-inducing.

Nonetheless, it would be a mistake to underestimate the role the province plays in the life of the municipalities in which we live. Even those of us who owe no particular party allegiance should express interest in how our hard earned tax money is being put to use.

When the federal government offered $2 million funding for the Summerstown airport a few years ago, many were quick to recall this was no free ride, but two million of our own tax dollars. Then Charlottenburgh Deputy-Reeve Stuart Buchan rightly pointed out it was preferable to have our federal tax money spent on a local project rather than elsewhere.

Nonetheless, we should keep in mind both federal and provincial subsidies or funding are made up of our own tax money. It is no giveaway.

Thus the recent $80,000 grant made for the St. Raphael's Ruins was paid by Ontario citizens. The provincial government should not be viewed as a magnanimous provider to whom we must submit our petitions on bended knee with hand extended. Even so, there are times the provincial government and its legions of bureaucratic spear-carriers act that way.

For example, the Purcell and Green Valley projects for water and sewers were undertaken because of concerns expressed by the provincial Ministry of the Environment and the Eastern Ontario Health Unit. Nevertheless, the responsibility of carrying through these projects falls on the shoulders of the hapless municipalities.

Once such projects are undertaken, delays occur as the municipalities drown in the resulting red tape. The province insists on consultants, studies, engineering reports and environmental assessment.

The municipalities are thus forced to spend hours and dollars on projects which they did not initiate and in effect, into which they have little input. For example, rates for water are set by the province and the municipality must collect and forward the amount requested.

A bystander can be left wondering why all the bureaucratic pussyfooting from the province if the quality of present water and sewer systems is considered dangerous.

If the situation is so serious, why the delays?

Lately, the recreation hall projects of Glen Robertson and Lancaster Village have been the focus of some attention.

Plans to renovate an old school building in Glen Robertson have been stymied by the province's refusal of grant money. Some folks have therefore pointed to the Lancaster facility as an ex-

Too many Liberals writing books and attacking Turner

SECOND LOOK
Phil Rutherford

It seems everyone wants to write a book. At least a great many Liberals do.

First, there was Straight From the Heart, Jean Chretien's entertaining autobiography detailing his years as a federal Liberal through a number of cabinet posts under Lester Pearson, Pierre Trudeau and, very briefly, John Turner.

Chretien, "the poor boy from Shawinigan", took a few shots at John Turner, the man who defeated him for the Liberal leadership and then led his party to a humiliating defeat at the hands of Brian Mulroney's Conservatives two years ago. Hardly shy and definitely consistent, Chretien repeated his claim that he would have been a better leader and would have won the election.

But Jean didn't tear a strip off poor John like he could have. In relative terms, he was positively restrained.

The Chretien book was soon followed by Don Johnson's tome. Johnson, another former cabinet minister and leadership hopeful, was far from vicious in his assessment of his leader, but he hardly supported the cause, either, as he analysed the mistakes of the previous election.

More recently, Sen. Keith Davey fed a renewed attack on Turner with passages from his book, The Rainmaker: A Passion for Politics, and his insistence that Liberals would not be disloyal if they voted for a leadership review.

The dust had not yet settled when former agriculture minister Eugene Whelan released his literary work, The man in the Green Stetson, last week.

Far from the most literate member of the Trudeau regime, Whelan recorded his recollections, opinions and philosophical musings on tape and handed it all over to a more talented writer to put into readable form.

Short on revelation, the book carries much of the Whelan humor, not to mention the Whelan ego.

Whelan was never a fan of Turner. He opposed him for th leadership, denounced him as a quitter and a "Johnny come lately", and, when his own candidacy attracted only 84 votes, quickly and loudly took his scant suppport to the Chretien cause. Clearly, his opinions have not changed.

One more Trudeau era book hit the stands last week, but few noticed. The former prime minister's press secretary, Patrick Gossage, released his synopsis of the Trudeau years, entitled Close to the Charisma, along with still more criticism for Turner.

He said a lot of Trudeau loyalists were hurt by their treatment at the hands of John Turner and "a lot of people are still sitting on their hands."

"I share with Davey and a lot of other old people a feeling of being left out; that was Turner's decision," he said.

Too many snubbed Liberals are writing too many books about too much sour grapes. They have even begun fighting among themselves.

Gossage admits it's hard to get his book off the ground in the shadow of The Rainmaker. Meanwhile the old rain-

Junk male

LOOK OUT
Dann Rogers

Part of the never ending fun and excitement associated with being editor is reviewing all the press releases that various interest groups submit in hopes of getting publicity for their cause.

We got a wild one last week. It is from some organization in British Columbia seeking to whip up anti-gay hysteria.

As a hopelessly heterosexual male, I have always encouraged other men to come out of their closet and be openly gay so they won't be in competition with me for the few remaining sane women on this planet.

But the tone of this organization, the Institute for the Scientific Investigation of Sexuality (ISIS) is downright hostile and unenlightened.

Its slogan is "What homosexuals do in public is offensive, what they do in private is deadly."

The pamphlet then goes into great detail explaining the regularity and diversity of pleasure-seeking activities engaged in by homosexuals.

The pamphlet then says that homosexuals renounce their social obligation and slavishly devote themselves to self-aggrandizement. They rob society to pleasure themselves.

And if they are robbing society, they deserve to be punished, asserts the ISIS. The organization cites section 155 of the Criminal Code which says buggery is illegal in Canada and is an indictable offence punishable with up to 14 years imprisonment.

But this doesn't apply to any act committed in private between a man and wife or any two consenting persons over 21 years old.

These are technical points to ISIS. The organization will content itself with focusing on underaged practitioners of gay life.

But in time they will persecute all those "who are taking from society without returning anything."

It's almost reminiscent of the anti-semtic hate literature that was being circulated by Ernst Zundel and Jim Keegstra.

ISIS is actively working to discriminate against a sector of society. It is singling out homosexuals as a scapegoat of society and an element that must be removed.

Instead of such drastic final solutions, perhaps gays should be encouraged to be less promiscuous and stop dressing so funny.

THAT'S LIFE
Lesley Cadham

He saunters slowly into the room, staring at me with those gorgeous green eyes of his. He wants love and affection, but I keep telling him, "I've got work to do. Come back later."

He doesn't give up. He nibbles on my ear for a moment, stops, tries to seduce me with those eyes and goes back to nibbling. I insist I've got stories to write and no time to give him the attention he needs. I push him away.

He slowly retreats. I know he's going to sulk, but what can I do? My publisher will have me in a sling if these stories aren't done by deadline.

I hear munching and chewing coming from the kitchen and satisfied he's given up on me for the moment, I turn my concentration back to my typewriter.

Ten minutes pass. I subconsciously wait to see his head pop around the corner. Suddenly he's there. My heart sinks as he sits beside me on the couch and kisses my hand, gently. Here we go again.

Those eyes. They look past my faults and foibles and right into my soul. He doesn't care that I squeeze the toothpaste from the top of the tube or that I watch video classics four times consecutively.

And we have this agreement, if he wants to go out with another female, I must not hold him back.

He want away once. Gone two weeks, he was, the longest two weeks of my life. I must have covered the entire municipality in my tireless search. I imagined seeing him on street corners, in the park and on the dark, lonely highway. Then one night, when I arrived home late after a difficult and tiring day's work, he was on my front doorstep, looking tired and dirty.

I scooped him up in my arms and we went inside. I put out his favorite tuna dinner and watched him eat. Afterward, he stretched out in front of the fire and I scratched behind his ears. He always liked that. I removed his tattered old flea collar and replaced it with a fresh one.

I don't know what I'd do without that old feline so I treat him well, try not to nag too much and never, never forget he needs attention just like anyone else. After all, he's just a little person with fur and fangs.

LETTERS

Clarification needed

Winchester, Ont.

The Editor,
The Glengarry News
Re: Front page article entitled "Province Vetos Seniors Project for Lancaster" Oct. 8, 1986

Sir:

I feel a letter of clarification is required to clear up the inaccurate impression left by the reporter, Joanne Stevenson, in her story.

Mr. Garneau did comment on the lack of communication between his office and the Lancaster group. It was pointed out by the chairman, Mr. Eric Urquhart, that numerous pieces of correspondence had been sent to the ministry offices since April 1986, when Mr. Garneau first started with the Ontario Housing Corporation.

Secondly, as the project development consultant, I have spoken to Mr. Garneau personally and over the phone about the Lancaster project many times. On July 31, 1986, Mr. Garneau told me in person that it appeared the Lancaster project was going ahead and to be patient. His office had been contacted in this regard in August and September.

None of this portion of the meeting was mentioned in Ms. Stevenson's article.

On a broader vein, it is quite disconcerting to notice the larger urban centre bias of the provincial Liberal goernment's "Assured Housing Program". Neighboring counties, such as Prescott to the north, have had senior citizen housing projects provided in such centres as Casselman, Rockland, Embrun, Plantagenet, L'Orignal, St. Albert and Alfred, to name some, while Glengarry County has never had one municipal non-profit senior citizen housing project approved, even though Lancaster qualified.

Family and special needs housing have a place in larger urban centres, but the primary need in smaller centres is decent, affordable housing for senior citizens. It is a very unfortunate situation when the provincial government doesn't consider seniors housing a priority in rural areas.

Eastern Ontario received only 1,100 out of 6,700 housing units allocated for seniors, families, handicapped, etc. across the province in 1986. Only 20 per cent, or 220 units, approximately, were set aside for senior housing projects. Prescott County received funding for projects in Alfred and St. Albert for seniors.

It is time for the province to balance its priorities between the social needs of larger urban centres with those of the smaller rural centres. Oh, at the same time they could start providing a more equitable spread of allocations across the various counties, instead of concentrating them all in a few areas which are already overserviced.

The editor,
The Glengarry News

How sad to read of the death of a blue heron. I wonder if it was the one I've been watching all summer and have not seen for a while.

I commend Gerard Decoste and Dr. Janet Lalonde for trying to save its life. There are so few people who care.

As for the person who shot this rare and lonely bird, would that he might hang by his heels until the maggots finished him off.

OPP issue warning

LONG SAULT — The Ontario Provincial Police have issued a warning to the public to be aware of door-to-door salesmen promoting home improvement schemes.

In a press release from OPP Divisional Headquarters in Long Sault, the police noted a number of fraudulent home improvement schemes have been uncovered recently in the Ottawa area. Provincial police in Morrisburg, Brockville, Huntsville and Bracebridge are also investigating complaints from residents who had hired door-to-door repairmen.

Most of the complaints involved roof repairs, but any type of home improvement could be involved, noted the police.

Often elderly homeowners are considered easy targets. Once the roof is repaired, using inferior materials, the contractor is never seen again.

The OPP suggest homeowners consider the following tips before contracting for roof repairs or any other home improvements:

1) Don't rush into something which involves your money or property;
2) Beware of transient door-to-door repairmen;
3) Don't hesitate to check credentials and ask for references and check them out before the repairs begin;
4) Deal with local, reputable firms and contractors;
5) Report immediately all suspicious offers to the police.

Too many Liberals writing books . . .

maker himself is snubbing his competitors, refusing to appear in the same place at any time for fear his exalted presence might promote someone else's memoirs.

According to published reports from Waterloo, Ontario, Davey has specifically refused to show up at a book promotion event next month for yet another Liberal author, Hamilton MP Sheila Copps, who has just written her political memoirs, entitled Nobody's Baby.

Those who remember her vaulting over a committee room table to shout insults at former trade minister Sinclair Stevens might suggest a more appropriate title, Nobody's Lady.

Apparently Davey wouldn't appear with Copps because he had heard she said insulting things about him in her book. In return, Copps accused Davey of being paranoid.

Meanwhile, Davey's publishing firm insists he won't appear with any other politician-author, because the senator doesn't want literary lesser lights riding on his coattails. The publisher also cancelled a Davey appearance at a Burlington, Ontario bookstore after learning former Tory MP Sean O'Sullivan, now a Catholic priest, and Eugene Whelan had also been invited.

Meanwhile the owner of the Waterloo bookstore says she is going ahead with her book party for Copps.

"I always thought writers were volatile people, but politicians are worse," she added.

In all the mess John Turner may find the secret to his political survival. All he had to do is get Davey, Whelan, Copps, Johnson, Chretien, Gossage and a Conservative author or two at each other's throats on the CBC National twice a week and the Liberals may forget about the leadership issue entirely.

Slim as it is, that's about the best hope he's got.

Should play fair. . .

ample of what can be accomplished without provincial aid.

It is ironic that, once Smith's Fields Hall had been completed, village officials were then told provincial funding might have become available had they waited a year.

As part of a provincial program, the project probably would have taken twice as long, cost twice as much and so, after receiving a 50 per cent provincial subsidy, Lancaster would not have been any further ahead financially.

The latest sad example of the province making too little of a good thing involves its recent refusal to fund the Lancaster Seniors Project.

In October 1985, the province had granted the municipality $3,000 to cover the cost of setting up a non-profit corporation.

At the same time, the project had received tentative approval. Malcolm MacDonald of the Ontario Housing Corporation (OHC) assured the municipality the project was at the top of the list and it would be a matter of days or a week before the ministry would formally contact Lancaster.

All systems were "go" until the province turned the tables. The rules were changed in mid-game this February. Under the new guidelines, a greater need for rent-geared-to-income units had to be proven.

Accordingly, the survey completed in October 1985 was revamped to conform to the new requirements. Some members of the Lancaster and District Non-Profit Housing Corporation now admit their optimism was starting to fade.

Nonetheless, the municipality was still disappointed to find out the project was rejected this September. And... surprise!... the rules had been changed again.

The province has now decided to concentrate on family and not seniors housing in its assistance programs.

Mike Garneau of the OHC admonished the board of directors of the housing corporation for not contacting his office often enough and keeping open the lines of communication.

There may indeed be merit in his contention that "the squeaky wheel gets the grease." Questions may also arise about the level of persistence shown by Larry Cotton, the professional consultant hired to co-ordinate the application process. And the final truth may be that other projects were more deserving of the province's money than the village's seniors apartment complex.

However, in this case, the province changed its mind more often than any woman ever did.

When exactly was the shift in priorities made from seniors to family housing? Why didn't OHC inform Lancaster of this switch before more village tax money was spent?

Hobo go-home

WORD SKETCH
Sybil Carello

Some Canadian television shows effectively demonstrate the premise of the Chinese water torture. Before the mediocrity becomes too painful, you're rendered senseless.

A number of such programs easily ocme to mind, but for brevity's sake, I'll focus on three familiar chronic, long-term examples: The (indomitable) Wayne and Schuster Hour, The Littlest Hobo, and The Beachcomers.

In addition to sharing an enigmatic history of television longevity, one other common denominator pulls them into the safety zone (a place impervious to tornados, Gila monsters and television ratings). All three—like it or not—are steeped deep in Canadian tradition.

They're also insinuous because through you may have no cognizant memory of watching these programs, chances are, your sub-conscious has.

Just when you think you've seen the last of Johnny Wayne and Frank Schuster, up they pop on the screen in an overworked, tired skit. Before your reflexes have a chance to act, they're asking you to watch their upcoming annual special.

My immediate response to this plea is, why should I? If they couldn't make me laugh 20 years ago, there's little chance they'll nudge a chuckle out of me at this late date. I could forgive them if they had been generous with budding talent, but I have no recollection of such introductions on their shows. While they monopolized every skit, song and dance, other comics (no doubt) were banging their humour bones against bar stools in smokey clubs.

I've long ago stopped speculating on their eventual retirement. I'm more concerned about their eventual come-back—de rigeur in the world of show biz. Given the leaps and bounds of medical technology, it could be another 20 years before we see the last of these two comic suspensions.

Next, we have Hobo. Mysteriously, it continues to enjoy a long leash of reel life. What a perfect example of miscasting. Tell me, when was the last time you saw such a well-groomed, robust, albeit stray, German Shepherd? And altruistic to boot. The producers may think Hobo is an accurate representation of canine life-on-the-run, but I know otherwise. Make no mistake. The star of this show travels with a team of dog-groomers, a masseur and a six-pack of beef steaks on tap.

Personally, I'd rather see a Pit Bull Terrier lock into the lead role.

Finally, year after year, like an inexorable wave, The Beachcombers wash up on our television screens. This decade-plus, half-hour tid-bit, is—to borrow from the Chinese once mmore—a puzzle within a puzzle.

Instead of accentuating the positive—in this case, the beautiful west coast—the absorption is with the story-line, dialogue and acting. What folly! All three were dead on arrival, and have shown no visible signs of ressurection since.

I've no fault with Canadian programs in the category of news, performing arts, documentaries, etc. They seem to consistently deliver the high-quality goods. I refer specifically to the abysmal level of comedy and dramatic acting.

One of the controversial recommendations in the recent Caplan-Sauvageau $3 million, 730-page report on Canadian broadcasting is an increase of Canadian TV on prime time, with emphasis on a gradual phase out of commercial U.S. TV programs. The report cites the danger of Canadian culture being obliterated by obiquitous American programming.

In the best interests of tradition, patriotism and Canadian content, I can appreciate this imminent danger. But if it means that I have to watch "Check It Out" into the next millennium, I'm checking out now.

Williamstown hit by boom of female babies this year

WILLIAMSTOWN
Sue Harrington
347-2279

I've forgotten exactly what this is the year of, internationally that is, but in Williamstown it is definitely the year of the female baby. Two more little girls joined the rest of us tabulated by Stats. Can. recently. Even more surprising is the fact that each of these new babies has two big sisters.

Cherly Anne Achilles was born just two days late to Barbara and Gerald Achilles. Big sister Bobbie-Jo, when asked, if she was going to help out mum with the new arrival, pointed to middle sister Toni and said, "I had to help when she was born: now it's her turn."

For those who may be wondering, the Achilles live beside the township hall, in the former Charbonneau place.

An early arrival caught Brian and Yvette MacNaughton off guard last Wednesday. As of Saturday they had yet to choose a name for their new daughter. No doubht sisters Becky and Jennifer were offering suggestions and by now have solved the dilemma for their parents.

Congratuations to all and to Williamstown grandparents Wilfred and Eleanor MacNaughton.

When all these 1986 babies grow a little and are looking for friends to play with, we hope that they will be able to fraternize with their peers at the Charlottenburgh Nursery School the way area children have done for the past eleven years or so. The problem is that the Nursery School enrolment is hovering dangerously near the minimum required to operate level and more children are needed to ensure that this excellent facility remain in operation.

If you would like your child to share such experiences as the following, please call the Nursery School weekday mornings at 347-3354.

Recently, for instance, during Fire Prevention Week, the children visited the Williamstown Fire Hall where Fire Chief Bruce McDonell explained the workings of the department to an enraptured audience.

The Nursery School also visited Guindon's Apple Orchard on the 3rd Concession where they were treated to apple juice and cookies and were given take-home bags of apples which at they had picked themselves.

News from our next step-up school, Williamstown Public, tells us that the school has a new motto, "Work Conquers All." This winning motto was suggested by teacher Bob Nicholls. It's easy to tell which high school he went to!

Mr. Nicholls has been living up to this motto recently, however, as he coached his school's cross-country team to an impressive showing at recent competition held at the Williamstown Fairgrounds. Our school placed 1st in both the Peewee Girls' and Peewee Boys' divisions, and in the Junior Boys'. In the Junior Girls' and Senior Boys', we had third place finishes.

Local children for whom "Labor omnia vincet," included Cathy Pilon 1st; Katherine MacLachlan 3rd; Angella Smith 4th; Heather Smith 5th in the Peewee Girls' division.

For the Peewee Boys' it was Robert MacDonald 1st; Marty McDonell 2nd; Scott Giroux 3rd; and Brent Lauzon 5th.

Laura McDonald had a 3rd place finish in her division, Junior Girls'.

All that dry-land training held for the Char-Lan Peewee Travelling hockey team by Hugh McClements and Oliver Blacker showed up in the results of the Junior Boys' division. Three of the top five finishers are members of the team. First place finisher Robert Curran and third place Martin Algire are both from Martintown. P.S. but spend enough time at the arena to warrant a mention in this column. Jeff Robertson was second, while Shane McDonell clinched fifth spot.

In the Senior Boys' division, Steven Vallance came in 4th.

If you didn't win the motto contest at the school but are still itching to try your luck again, the following may be of interest to you.

In 1987, the Williamstown Fair will be celebrating its 175th anniversary and the Fair Board would like you to design a logo which will be used both for the anniversary, and as a permanent insignia.

The logo, in no more than two colors, should be on paper no smaller than 5"x7", and should be submitted before November 15th to Secretary-Treasurer John R. MacDonell, Lancaster, Ont.

Attach your name, address and telephone number to the back of your entry.

A cash prize will be awarded for the winning logo.

I knew it would happen sooner or later. Last week I erred when I mentioned the bus trip which the seniors were going on. It was actually the Glengarry Community Club of Williamstown which went on its usual fall trip to visit Storyland amidst the autumn splendor of Renfrew county.

Participants lunched in Renfrew; shopped in Calabogie; went wild at the Kitten Factory in Lanark; had supper in Winchester and came home tired, but happy, to Williamstown.

On Oct. 8, the Glengarry Community Club honored Ileen Latreille, Ernie Pain, and Donald McGregor, all of whom celebrated birthdays in October. Viola Lauzon made the cake for the party.

Ethel Clark and Alice Bellis won in the euchre, while Dorothy Sharpe took the Lone Hand.

Ileen Latreille walked off with the door prize and Alice Portant won the special draw which was donated by Dorothy Croll.

The Friendly Neighborhood Club also held its October birthday party this week. Honored here were Albert MacDonald, Roger Pilon, Edith Abrams and Ileen Latreille.

Euchre winners were Viola Pilon, Gilberte Marsh, Ed O'Brien and Euclid Labelle. Germaine White was the skunk.

Alice Portant, Marie Menard and Edith Abrams all won door prizes while Edmour Seguin, Ed O'Brien, Mary Rose Pilon and Alice Portant won the 50/50.

For the Oct. 16 and 23rd meetings of the club there will be no cards, just the exercise class only. An open euchre will be held on the 23rd at 8 p.m.

Now that Expo '86 has run its course, it seems our local vacationers have found a new spot to flock to. Betty and Alex MacDonald and Glenn and Mary Lou Jurchuk have all headed to the Kitchener-Waterloo area to take in Oktoberfest '86.

Someone else who has left our midst this week is Dean Cameron, son of Billy and Cheryle Cameron who flew from Ottawa out to Wainwright, Alberta where he will be a member of the Canadian Armed Forces. Hope they have a hockey team!

Visitors to the home of Charlie and Reta Heath recently, were Gerald and Eleanor Barrett of Detroit; Helen McLennan from Kingston and Helen McIntyre of Cornwall.

This weekend should be a big one in Williamstown, with enough goings on to satisfy the most demanding of our residents.

Friday night the Nor'Westers' Beaver Club of Glengarry is holding its annual dinner at 7 p.m. at St. Mary's Centre.

On Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. you can get a start on your Christmas shopping at the Fall Sales Fair of the Glengarry Arts and Crafts Association. This annual fall event will be held as usual at the Nor'Westers and Loyalist Museum.

Plan to come out and browse amongst the wares that our very talented and versatile craftsmen have to offer.

On Sunday, instead of returning home after the Craft Show, head straight over to St. Mary's Parish Centre and relax over a lovely Roast Beef dinner. The dinner will start at 4 p.m. and continue to 8 p.m. to accommodate all of your usual dining hours.

St. Mary's dinners are famous in these parts and the ladies' of the parish insist that each and everyone of you is most welcome to attend.

By the way, if you are new to these parts and wonder who it is who does such beautiful lettering on all the St. Mary's posters, the lady's name is Eileen Latreille.

Clem Aitkens of Summerstown has nothing to beef about now, having won the Char-Lan Minor Hockey Association draw for a side of beef. Walter Nowicky of the Glen Road was the winner of the side of pork, while the ham and fresh turkey went to B. Reasbeck.

EARLY ICE STORM—This poor little tree barely had time to adjust to the cold weather before its branches were enveloped in ice. There was no storm, just the nearby fountain on Mill Lake and a good, cold southeasterly wind.

Turkey bucks meat trend

OTTAWA — Retail prices for most meats, especially pork, will continue to rise in the coming weeks, Agriculture Canada economists predict. But turkey stocks are up, so consumers can expect lower prices in time for Thanksgiving.

The federal economists say apple prices should also drop in the coming weeks as the 1986 domestic crop reaches the market. These prices, however, may be up from last year.

Prices for most summer fruits and salad vegetables will be at or near seasonal lows during the month, increasing in October as domestic production tapers off.

Prospects for storable vegetable crops are good, and prices are expected to drop from now to November. Supplies of locally grown salad vegetables will remain high until the weather cools off in late September or early October.

Last month, price increases for pork (3.6 per cent), poultry (1.9 per cent) and fresh fruit (3.2 per cent) helped push food prices, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, up by 0.4 per cent. A 22.8-per cent increase in apple prices was mainly responsible for an increase in fresh fruit prices.

Two Cornwall women to be sentenced

Two Cornwall women will be sentenced Oct. 23 for causing a disturbance which resulted in damage to Alexandria's new police cruiser.

Sharon Therese Brisson and Debra D. Brisson both pleaded guilty in Alexandria Provincial Court Thursday.

The two women were involved in a fight with three other people at the Alexandria Hotel. The fight continued outside the building on the sidewalk.

During the altercation Debra D. Brisson stumbled and fell against the police cruiser, causing $131 damage to the right front fender.

Before police could restore order, the woman took off her belt and struck another woman and then a man in the crowd because he was laughing at the combatants.

The two accused were highly intoxicated during the incident and both have previous records.

'Remission of Power' night

NORTH LANCASTER
Bernadette Campeau
347-2572

Oh, woe is me! I have been assigned the task of reporting on the North Lancaster Optimists' "Remission of Powers" night held last Saturday at the Knights of Columbus hall in Alexandria.

Simple you say? Wrong! To mention each club member's awards, promotions, successes and devotion would take up more space than the entire News could provide! I only hope that those worthy members not mentioned understand my predicament.

The evening began with a cocktail hour, courtesy of Past President Normand Vaillancourt. This was followed by a tasty buffet dinner, during which time errant members and their spouses were brought up on various misdemeanors and ordered to pay the customary 25 cents (for grave offences as much as $1).

Under heavy attack were those recalcitrant guests at the head table: Vankleek Hill President (and Lieutenant Goverrnor 1985/86) Claude Demers and his wife, Marie-France; North Lancaster Club founder and President Normand Vaillancourt and his wife, Micheline; North Lancaster Club President Claude Leroux and his date, Linda; Lieutenant Governor Pierre Larocque and his wife, Jeanette. Even the Master of Ceremonies, Yvan Desautels, was not beyond the reach of the law as he was made to pay a fine for having blinded his dinner neighbor by wearing a silver-glitter suit. Perhaps you thought the job was that of a Circus Ringmaster Yvan.

On a more serious note, it was gratifying to see six of the seven new members and their wives (the women having been presented heart pins earlier in the evening) in attendance.

Although the Optimist Club works as a whole, there are certain members who distinguish themselves with their unselfishness and total dedication to whatever duties are assigned them. Those members, of whom there are many, were awarded plaques of merit for jobs well done.

Lastly, the raison d'être for the evening was the pinning and swearing in of the new executive council for the 1986/87 season, as well as the announcement of committee heads.

In closing, I would like to address a question to newly elected Club President Claude Leroux. "Claude, est-tu nerveux?".

Thanks to Bev Poirier for the above report.

Happy birthday to Claude Leroux on October 14, Claudine Campeau, October 19 and Jean C. Major, October 20.

Best wishes for wedding anniversaries to Jean Noel and Helena Campeau, Oct 9, Rosaire and Micheline Samson, Oct. 13, Rejean and Luce Cholette, Oct. 17, Maurice and Jeanette Desautels, Oct. 20 and John Paul and Anne Vachon, Oct. 28.

Diabetes Association to hear two speakers at upcoming meeting

GLEN NORMAN
Mary Lacelle
525-1372

Hope everyone had a good Thanksgiving. Weatherwise it was a lovely weekend. Earlier frosts didn't seem to hurt the pumpkins any. It seemed like everytime I passed the Seguin house on Hwy. 34 in the past week, people were picking up pumpkins from their beautiful display.

The flowers were not so lucky though everything in my garden is dried, dark and droopy except the pansies.

The maple leaves also lost their autumn splendor of blazing glory. Don't let this teasing temperature fool you; for me thinks winter is just around the corner.

St. Mary's Parish in Williamstown will be holding its harvest supper on Sunday. You can enjoy Thanksgiving all over again, but without the turkey, and just think men, you don't have to prepare the feast, just sit down and enjoy.

* * *

Just a reminder that the Alexandria Chapter of the Diabetes Association will be holding a meeting Oct. 21 at 7:30 p.m., in the cafeteria at Glengarry High School. Please use the south rear entrance next to the greenhouse. Guest speakers will be Natalie Lamothe an R.N. and Ash Bharti a physiotherapists, they are both from the General Hospital in Cornwall. Admission is free, everyone is welcome. Refreshments served.

On Thursday, two representatives of the ACDA, Sandra Ruttenberg and Kitty Ewaschuk, will have a table set up at the IGA. Tickets will be sold to raise money for the Alexandria Chapter. Three beautiful prizes will go to some lucky ticket holders.

A double celebration was held at the home of Bruno and Violaine Lauzon on Sunday. Family and friends gathered for Thanksgiving and also to celebrate the 12th anniversary of Michel and Lise Ferland.

Recent visitors of Marie and Laurette Lauzon were Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lacroix from Lochiel, Lorraine and Claude Rochon from Orleans as well as Ronald and Sasha Lacroix from Ottawa.

Paul and Josée Secours were down for the Thanksgiving weekend visiting with family and friends in the area.

It was brought to my attention that I hadn't mentioned Darlene Dumouchel's birthday. I hate to say how late I am, but I'll tell you this much, she's a virgo. Also happy birthday to Joan Jaeck who is very well known, as she has been around for half a century and a bit, and to my sister Margaret Seguin who is 3 years, 4 months less 6 days older than I am. Tighten those reigns Maggie!

* * *

Our thoughts and prayers go out to Mrs. Joseph Bergeron who is in the hospital and will be operated on Friday.

Nursery school to start fourth year

by Sybil Carello

MAXVILLE — Despite lean times, Play-Time Pals Co-operative Nursery in Maxville continues to plod ahead into its fourth year of operation.

The non-profit organization, located at the Maxville Public School on Mechanic Street. operates four mornings a week and is kept afloat solely through fundraising activities and community donations.

They've avoided deficits, but rent, insurance premiums, supplies and wages for a part-time professional teacher keep members of the co-operative busy, running a tight ship.

There are 23 children enrolled in the program. The majority, between the ages three and four, go to class Tuesday and Thursday mornings; the younger children (who must be two by December 31) show up Wednesday and Friday mornings.

Past-president Hillary Boshy-Grossman says re-introduction of the Moms and Tots program is getting a good response and "providing a point of contact" for mothers.

Eventually, the co-operative would like to see the nursery operating as a full time daycare facility.

Co-operative member, Terry Joyce thinks there is a need for a full-time daycare service. She says an earlier attempt at a feasibility study was not comprehensive because it didn't cover a wide enough area.

The co-operative is open to children of working and non-working mothers. It not only puts mothers in touch with their peer group and the sharing of similar experiences, but also professionals who are invited to speak at meetings or express an interest to come and observe the children.

Mrs. Borshy-Grossman, who has a child with a developmental problem, said her doctor suggested the boy be placed in a nursery. In retrospect, she says it was a good move with a positive difference in her son's attitude.

The children, under the guidance of the teacher, interact with each other in a structured environment, while moms (unless they're pulling duty) get a small break.

All mothers in the co-operative take turns contributing time and energy on duty days when they become teacher's aides and supply the daily juice and snacks for the children.

Fund-raising is an integral part of the organization's activities. Their major effort is the upcoming Christmas Basket, with donations coming from local businesses and mothers. This year they are hoping to expand and increase ticket sales by including a wider area.

The co-operative is also hoping to raise money through sale of a family activity calendar. Created by Mrs. Joyce, the 1986-87 Household Chronicler is bound with enough space in each day to mark events and appointments. The last page takes you to January 1988, with the remaining half page devoted to emergency telephone numbers.

The executive this year includes: President, Wende Evans; Treasurer, Sharon Flett; Vice-President, Carol Munro; Secretary, Betty MacDonald; Registrar Crystal Archer; and publicity, Terry Joyce.

NATALIE LAPIERRE

Lapierre chosen finalist in Miss Quality pageant

TORONTO — Natalie Lapierre, 18, of Alexandria was one of 15 finalists in the Canadian Miss Quality TEEN pageant held in Toronto, Oct. 8 to 11.

"I thoroughly enjoyed my weekend of competition and I would like to thank all the people who encouraged me during the preparation for this worthy event," says Miss Lapierre, who competed against 90 other girls.

Miss Lapierre captured the Ontario Quality TEEN title in May.

The coordinator of the Canadian Quality TEEN program, Mary-Beth Roe, says the competition is a leadership and scholarship event.

"The program recognizes teenage girls who have good trades, talent, communication skills, poise and a willingness to voluntarily help in their community," she says.

The 1986 Canada Quality Teen is Sandy Struss of Kamloops, B.C. The young pianist had the opportunity to play for the Prince and Princess of Wales. Miss Struss will represent Canada for the next year in parades and at various special events.

New waste management rules and programs on the way for area dumps

by George Kampouris

CORNWALL — The Ontario Ministry of the Environment is reviewing new waste management regulations to improve operation of disposal sites across the province.

The new rules, now in draft form, are expected to come into effect by the spring of 1987 and are now undergoing a process of internal review that will include input from such agencies as the Association of Municipal Engineers.

Gerald McKenna, District Officer of the abatement branch who will be working with the new legislation, said in an interview in Cornwall Friday, the legislation will provide specific regulations to deal with individual sites.

"The new regulations involve a system of site classification based on such factors as location, volume, size of the site and the population served. The classification of each site will determine such things as the need for buffer zones, the fequency of covering, lifespan of the site and final close out plans," he said.

In addition, hydrogeological studies and operational plans for the lifetime of the sites will be reviewed by the ministry and made available for public scrutiny.

The Cornwall district includes 36 municipal and three industrial waste disposal sites in Glengarry, Stormont, Dundas and Prescott-Russell.

Another new aspect of the district's function is the Generator Registration Program which came into effect in September. The program, which requires all sources of hazardous wastes to be registered, will control transport of all wastes from points of origin to final disposal sites. The movement of wastes will be tracked through a manifest or waybill system.

In addition to disposal of wastes, the abatement branch is responsible for site inspections, monitoring of water quality and operation of water and sewage treatment plants. Until last year, its mandate included enforcement, as well.

Last year the enforcement branch was created to deal with the growing need for investigation and prosecution of violations. The ministry staffed the new branch through a province-wide competition which called for candidates with law enforcement experience. Mr. McKenna says the resulting mix includes about 60 per cent with a police background and 40 per cent with a technical one.

The abatement branch now responds to complaints by citizens with technical assistance in an attempt to encourage polluters to resolve problems. In the case of obvious, repeated violations or one time cases of gross negligence the dossier is turned over to the enforcement branch for further investigation and possible legal action.

The new branch has been involved in several investigations in its first year. Charges were laid against Charlottenburgh Township, Courtaulds in Cornwall and Ault Foods in Winchester. Some investigations are continuing and others have been dropped for lack of evidence.

Mr. McKenna stressed the importance of witnesses to the enforcement function. "A lot of complaints we receive are anonymous. Some people just don't want to get involved publicly," he said.

The recent increase in activity has attracted a lot of public attention, but this does not necessarily mean violations are increasing. Mr. McKenna said the perception that environmental problems are on the rise is due to the recognition that these problems do exist.

"As we develop better investigation techniques we discover consequences of pollution that were beyond measurement before," he said.

This suggests current sources of pollution may be generating a further chain of consequences unknown today. By way of an example, Mr. McKenna related how his ministry doesn't know enough about the effects of emissions from buring garbage.

"Currently we measure the possible damage in terms of a general risk assessment. The risk of death from dump smoke may be in the order of one person per million per year, as compared to, say, 5000 per million for smoking or 20,000 per million for driving a motorcycle."

He went on to say development of better techniques to measure the effects of pollution is an important part of the ministry's responsibility to keep the public advised of the danger.

Despite a growing level of public awareness Mr. McKenna said a lot of people think garbage is something to be hidden in the back forty.

"After years of public meetings, inspections, letters and inquiries, however, a new perception is emerging that there must be a better way to handle garbage," he said.

The ministry does offer an alternative to burning or burying garbage.

"We have a new program whereby funding is offered to municipalities that wish to undertake their own recycling or waste recovery programs." he said. "Years of study and pilot projects have allowed us to develop a comprehensive blueprint for recycling and now we will share the cost of any waste recovery program through a granting formula."

All area municipalities have been advised of the program and some interest is evident but there are no participants yet.

"The ministry and some municipalities have received proposals for recycling from private entrepreneurs, but we feel the key to waste recovery is with the municipality itself," he said.

"Municipalites own the sites, have perpetual collection costs and are directly responsible to local residents," Mr. McKenna pointed out. "They are the only ones who can properly fulfill the administrative requirements for a waste recovery program. The private proposals we have received are good ideas, but the ministry and municipalities need specifics, such as costs, operational plans, environmental assessments, etc."

When asked about the viability of waste recovery, Mr. McKenna said "The economics are favorable, but because we are a resource rich country, we are not forced to extract raw materials from waste."

Mill project to begin this week

by Lesley Cadham

MARTINTOWN—Construction to stabilize the historic Martintown Mill is set to begin this week, Mike Lalonde, general manager of the Raisin Region Conservation Authority, said Monday.

The contractor, Magus Restoration of Ottawa, will be on site with consultant Henry Keller of the Ottawa firm of Suter-Keller and archeologist Bob Mayer. Mr. Mayer will be studying the excavation and keeping an eye out for historic artifacts which may be buried around the mill.

He will also document antique machinery still in the mill's basement, including an old turbine, before it is moved and put into storage. About $20,000 of a $100,000 grant from the Ministry of Citizenship and Culture will go toward Mr. Mayer's study.

Construction will begin on the mill's east wall and a dyke will be built along the west wall, beside the Raisin River, to protect the wall from the winter's ice and to prevent water from entering the mill when further construction begins in the spring.

"Both walls have different problems and solutions. By doing the work on the east side and protecting the west wall from water and ice damage, we can protect it (the mill) from the spring run-off," said Mr. Lalonde.

Work will halt in December and start again in the spring. The cold will only affect the mortar work because mortar cannot be applied at temperatures lower than four degrees celcius, so a heated lean-to made of plastic sheeting will be set up along the east wall.

The first phase of stabilization is expected to be complete next year and the project should be finished by 1988.

The authority has agreed to provide $35,000 toward the $160,000 project and the Martintown Mill Preservation Society has committed itself to raising $37,000.

Bruce McCuaig, chairman of the preservation society, said he is concerned about a statement on fundraising made in error by authority board member Bob Roth.

"It was reported, on Bob Roth's quote, that we had raised $40,000. He should have said, they have made a commitment to raise (about) $40,000! People think the friends of the Martintown Mill have raised the money;, so we don't need any more donations, but we have not finished our fundraising," said Mr. McCuaig.

He added the funds will be paid out over three years and do not necessarily have to be raised in 1986.

A banquet to raise funds will be held Thursday at the Summer Heights Golf Club in Cornwall. About 110 tickets are being sold at $50 each and this function will bring the preservation society's funds to more than $7,000.

The banquet will feature an open bar and dinner and there will be prizes of a limited edition print of a painting of the mill by artist Peter Etril Snyder of Waterloo and Martintown Mill decorative plates.

$100,000 RESTORATION—The first phase of stabilizing the Martintown Mill is expected to be complete by next year and the project should be finished by 1988.

WEST WALL—The west wall of the mill seems to be sagging in the middle. A dyke will be built along the wall to aid in pumping water out of the basement.

GROUND FLOOR—The ground floor of the mill is cracked and several beams have been put up to prevent it from collapsing.

NORTH WALL—The north wall of the mill recently developed this crack. Above is a metal sheet attached to a tie rod that is used to stop the walls from collapsing.

Child Abuse Prevention Week Oct. 11 to 18

The week of Oct. 11 to 18 is Child Abuse Prevention Week in SD&G. A number of activities and public talks planned by the SD&G Child Abuse Prevention Council will take place throughout the week.

The focus of activities is on the preventive aspect of this social problem and the aims of the organizers are to sensitize the public, while calling attention to the various services available in the community.

The Cornwall Public Library and the area bookmobile will be displaying material related to parenting and child abuse. Hospitals in SD&G will also be conducting training sessions on the subject of child abuse. On Saturdy displays and videos will be shown at Cornwall Square and at the Eastcourt Mall.

Cable 11 in Cornwall will be running the NFB film, Feeling Yes, Feeling No on Wednesday at 7 p.m. After the movie there will be an open-line panel discussion. Participating in the panel will be Bernard Warner, superintendent with the SD&G Roman Catholic Separate School Board, Marika Dubos, family violence counsellor at the Family Counselling Centre, Bob Smith, child abuse specialist at the Children's Aid Society (CAS) and Bill Carriere, also from the CAS.

The SD&G Child Abuse Prevention Council is a collective of local professionals working with families and children. Represented on the council are the Family Counselling Center of Cornwall and the United Counties, L'Equipe Psycho-Sociale pour enfants et adolescents francophones de SD&G and the Children's Aid Society.

1986 has seen a marked increase in reports of child sexual abuse to the Children's Aid Society. As an agency responsible for protecting the well-being of children, the society has a mandate to investigate, in conjunction with area police forces, all reports of child sexual abuse. In response to the increase of verified cases of abuse the society has recently added the Family Sexual Abuse Treatment Program to its other treatment responses to abuse.

Two groups are operating, one for the mothers of victims of child sexual abuse and a second for teenage female victims. Plans are currently being made for a pre-adolescent victims group. All of these groups are co-led by male and female therapists.

Mr. Smith indicates it is critical that family members deal with attitudes, emotions and behaviors around a number of issues related to child sexual abuse. He outlined guilt, anger, feelings of inadequacy, vulnerability and protection, as a few of these issues.

Although participation in the Family Sexual Abuse Treatment Program is only available to families where verified abuse has taken place, Mr. Smith points out that one of the key purposes of the program, aside from clearing up difficulties that have emerged as a result of the abuse, is to prevent it from happening again.

The Family Counselling Centre, located at 103 Pitt St. in Cornwall, offers counselling services to individuals, couples and families experiencing difficulties. Elizabeth Sorfleet, supervisor of social work, indicates many clients are single parents or young couples attempting to cope with stress. Ms. Sorfleet states, for single parents the typical challenges are being two parents at the same time, dealing with social isolation and money management difficulties.

The centre is also exploring the possibility of starting a group for single female parents, a group for men and a parenting effectiveness group.

A family violence program was launched in August. Marika Dobos, who has experience in child counselling, particularly with sexually abused children, will be heading up this program.

Suspensions put damper on home opener

SPORTS

Peter Conway

It may not have been an impressive start Friday night for the Alexandria Junior B Glens on home ice, dropping the league opener against rival Char-Lan Rebels.

But coach Roch Lajoie knew it would be tough without veteran Leonard Seguin directing the offence and Michael Daniels on the blueline.

The Rebels, defending Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League champions, held a slim 3-2 advantage after two periods. The floodgates opened up in the final stanza and the Rebels put the game out of reach with five unanswered goals.

I'm sure Glens' supporters leaving the rink weren't too encouraged by the club's performance. But one game, a season does not make, as the saying goes.

The Rebels, although winning convincingly on the scoreboard, had to work hard for the victory on this night. Roch Lajoie's club headed into the contest with the blueline corps a major area of concern.

Veteran Norm Sauvé logged a lot of ice time and it showed in the third period.

The club called up Junior C forward Roch Sabourin and midget rearguard Todd Mcdonell for the contest. Second-year defenceman Stephane Gareau completed the defensive corps. Sabourin, a forward, turned defenceman, didn't look out of place. But he isn't a defenceman. His forte is corner work and forechecking up front.

Clearly, the best player on the ice was the Glens' Glen Campbell. Campbell was a threat most of the night and he created a number of excellent scoring chances.

You need a program to identify the Rebels' roster this season. A number of players have graduated. While the club isn't as big as last year's squad, the work ethic was evident Friday night.

The veteran combination of Mike Lapensee, Shawn Blanchard and Kevin Poapst will provide most of the scoring this season. The trio should form one of the top scoring lines this year.

The Rebels were full value for the win. But, should the Glens strengthen the defensive brigade, future encounters this winter may not be as lopsided as Friday's contest.

Both of Glengarry's Junior B teams are young. There will be nights when they'll play entertaining and winning hockey and other nights when inexperience will show.

The Glens' supporters may not have been too impressed with Friday's performance, but, with a paper-thin lineup it was to be expected.

Manager Claude Roy knows the club is hurting on the blueline. Should Kelly Cooke return and Dalhousie's Paul Lefebvre suit up, the club will have the talent to compete with its divisional foes.

But, if the blueline isn't strengthened, it will be a long and dismal season for the local club.

THE CORRECT NAME?

The Junior B team in Williamstown will no longer be known as the Charlottenburgh Rebels. The club has changed its name this season to the Char-Lan Rebels. A few years ago, Char-Lan changed its name to the Charlottenburgh Rebels, mostly because the township helped the club financially.

But club management changed back after the township refused to provide some bucks this season.

Changing the name back to Char-Lan is a good idea, however, since the minor hockey association has the same name.

It still remains a mystery why the township won't be a sponsor. The Rebels brought the township and its people a lot of dignity and pride last spring when they won the Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League championship.

Isn't the Char-Lan Rebels a major source of revenue for the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre? What would happen if the Rebels ever packed up and left Williamstown in the future?

Never mind the rental fees and other costs. Look at the money spent at the canteen by spectators at home games.

Williamtown isn't the only town where its Junior B franchise has been taken for granted by its municipal council. It won't be the last.

Glens drop opener with paper-thin team

It wasn't the kind of start manager Claude Roy was hoping for, but the result wasn't a surprise.

When the Glens stepped on the ice for their Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League opener last Friday night against the Char-Lan Rebels, Roy knew a paper-thin lineup probably would not stand up to the rival Rebels.

"With our player suspensions, we'd have to get some hot goaltending and a few breaks here and there," Roy said, prior to the contest at the Glengarry Sports Palace.

The suspensions Roy was talking about, were those of veterans Leonard Seguin and Michael Daniels. Both players were sorely missed in the opener, which saw the Rebels post an 8-3 victory over the Glens.

While Roch Lajoie could have used Seguin's scoring prowess and leadership, Daniels certainly would have contributed to an already thin defensive corps.

For two periods, the Glens hung tough with the defending league champion, but it was only a matter of time. The clubs were deadlocked 1-1 after the opening period. THe Rebels carried a 3-2 lead into the third period. The Rebels scored five times in the third period to ice the victory.

While the Glens kept within one goal after 40 minutes, their paper-thin defence was evident in the third period. The Glens had all kinds of problems getting the puck out of their own end. The end result from Char-Lan forechecking was Rebel shooters peppering Glens' goaler Daniel Brunet with a large number of close-in shots.

Brunet was kept busy between the pipes. He faced 39 shots, while his counterpart Kevin Buchan had 37 shots directed his way.

With only veteran Norm Sauvé shouldering the load on defence, the rest of the inexperienced blueliners played well at times, but inexperience showed. Midget-aged Todd McDonell was called up and Roch Sabourin also had a regular shift on defence. Second-year rearguard Stephane Gareau completed the defensive corps.

The defence corps, however, isn't the only reason for the loss. When the game was close in the first 40 minutes, the Glens had ample opportunities to capitalize upon. At times it wasn't so much Kevin Buchan's goaltending, but erratic shooting which kept the Glens off the scoreboard.

Glen Campbell, clearly the Glens' best player of the night, scored once while Norm Sauvé and Pierre Levac also tallied.

Shawn Blanchard and Dave St. John scored two each for the Rebels, while singles went to Kevin Poapst, Mike Lapensee, Eric Thomas and Herbie Seguin. St. John and Lapensee also had two assists each, while Poapst drew one assist.

The road doesn't get easier for the Glens this weekend. South Ottawa Canadians pay a visit to the Glengarry Sports Palace Friday night. The Canadians are undefeated in three games.

Sunday night, the Glens travel to Navan to face the Grads, who along with the Clarence Township Beavers, play in the newly-formed Metro Division this season.

In league games over the weekend, the Winchester Hawks are off to a surprising start. On home ice Friday night, the Hawks dumped the Metcalfe Jets 7-4. The following night, the Hawks invaded the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre and surprised the Char-Lan Rebels 10-7.

In Metro Division action Sunday, the Clarence Township Beavers and the Ottawa West Golden Knights battled to a 5-5 draw.

Officials around the league will have a new look this season. The officials are sporting visors; which is now compulsory.

Local referee Carman MacMillan is back for another season of officiating in the Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League. Don't ask him how many years it's been. He's a fixture around the league and is still one of the top officials in the loop.

Bantams draw

Alexandria Bantam Glens played their season's opener in Cornwall Sunday, October 12th and the game ended in a deadlock 4-4. Scoring for the Glens were Pierre Cuerrier, Dennis MacDonald, Eric MacSweyn and Andrew Sauvé.

Previously the Glens played four exhibition games and have won them all. They first defeated Char-Lan 5-3 in Williamstown on goals by Dennis MacDonald, Andrew Sauvé (2), Jason Palmer and Serge Bellefeuille. On October 3rd, in Alexandria, the Glens edged Char-Lan 6-2 on goals by Eric MacSweyn (2), Pierre Currier (2), Serge Bellefeuille and Jason Palmer.

Last Friday St. Isidore were the visitors and they bowed 6-2 to the Bantam Glens. Stephane Roman, Daniel Levert (2), Alain Rochon, Luc Francoeur and Serge Bellefeuille provided the scoring for the locals.

Then Saturday in St. Isidore, on a good performance of goal tender Christian Bellefeuille, the Glens won 6-1. Six different players scored; they were Serge Bellefeuille, Stephane Nadeau, Alain Rochon, Roch Levac, Andrew Sauvé and Pierre Cuerrier.

Atoms beat Cornwall

CORNWALL—The Alexandria Caisse Populaire Atoms opened their Lower St. lawrence Hockey League season on a winning note Sunday, skating to a 4-2 win over Cornwall.

Playing at Cornwall, Alexandria received goals from four different players: Jamie Nixon, Eric hamelin, Marc Boisvenue and Pierre Lauzon.

Cornwall's goals came off the sticks of Matt McGrath and Chris Proulx.

The local club travelled to St. Isidore Saturday for an exhibition contest. St. Isidore scored four times in the middle stanza and posted a 6-3 win.

Scoring for St. Isidore were Carl Lamarche, Steven McIntosh, Daniel Desforges, Jean-Francois Lalonde, Jean-Marc Burelle and Pascal Leduc.

Jamie Nelson sparked Alexandria's attack with a pair of goals, while Eric Hamelin rounded out the scoring.

A CLOSE AFFAIR—Alexandria Glens' Andrew McCormick and a Char-Lan player became involved in a fight in the third period of Friday's game at the Glengarry Sports Palace. Both players were ejected from the contest. Above, the linesmen have their hands full trying to restore order.

BALL CONTROL—Richard Daniels, of Glengarry District High School, is surrounded by St. Lawrence High School players, during an SD&G High School game last week. The game was played at Glengarry District High School.

Novice squad loses two games

The Alexandria Novice Travelling team dropped a pair of exhibition games over the weekend, on the way to the league opener this weekend.

Sunday on home ice Alexandria dropped a 5-2 decision to Hawkesbury. Martin Boisvenue and Joel Menard each scored once and had one assist each.

The previous day at Hawkesbury, Alexandria lost a 6-3 encounter. Martin Boisvenue paced the Alexandria attack, scoring three times, while Jean-Joel Trottier picked up two assists.

The club will play in a four-team league this winter. Char-Lan plays in Alexandria, Saturday night, at 6:30 p.m. at the Glengarry Sports Palace.

Other teams in the league are Cornwall and South Stormont. Robert Boisvenue will coach the team.

NOT THIS TIME—Alexandria Junior C defenceman Joel D'Amour, right, made sure this St. Isidore player didn't get a scoring opportunity in the exhibition game last Thursday evening. Alexandria goaler Stephane Landriault keeps a close watch on the action in the corner of the rink. Alexandria went on to defeat St. Isidore 9-5.

Registration down, kids busier outside the rink

by Peter Conway

Minor hockey isn't the only game in town for kids during the winter months. Make that other communities as well.

Minor hockey registration is down this year in most associations in the area and representatives are a little worried.

The Alexandria Minor Hockey Association has just over 250 children registered this year, while 276 played a year ago. Two years ago, there were 300 registered.

Why the decline in registration?

"The kids today are involved in other activites," says Michel Boisvenue, president of the Alexandria Minor Hockey Association." The 14 and 15-year-olds have other interests now, such as skiing. Some of the kids work part-time as well."

Hardest hit have been the bantam and midget divisions.

"There will be no Midget house league this year. We had 22 kids sign up and at least 15 will make up the travelling team. The balance will be offerred to Char-Lan.

"I don't think the kids will play at Char-Lan because it boils down to travelling and more expenses for the parents."

There are only enough players registered for a three-team bantam house legue. The bantams will play an interlocking schedule with South Stormont and Char-Lan.

"To acommodate our bantams with Char-Lan and South Stormont, because their associations don't have midgets, we couldn't put our midgets on our bantam teams," says Boisvenue.

Boisvenue doesn't feel the registration fee is scaring the players and parents off.

"I don't think the registration fee is high.It's buying the equipment that gets expensive. It gets really expensive for the parents when they have to buy equipment for the 14 and 15-year-olds."

Boisvenue says the "must win" attitude by coaches has also turned the kids off from minor hockey.

"As a coach, I'm just as much to blame," says Boisvenue. "We concentrate too much on the winning aspect and the older kids, the longer they play, get fed up with the game and quit. There are some kids who are really good players, who get sick of playing hockey if they're on a losing team over the years."

Boisvenue says it's up to everyone involved with minor hockey to try to make it enjoyable for the kids.

"Hockey is for the kids and it's up to us to make it fun for them."

Tapis Richard beats Torque in ladies' sponge puck loop

by Bruce Howells

Ladies sponge puck for 1986-87 saw the first games of the season played Oct. 8. The league has expanded from four to six teams and all games will be played at the Glengarry Sports Palace from 8-11 p.m. every Wednesday night.

The evening's first game saw Tapis Richard romp to a 9-0 victory over Torque. Leading the way for the winners were Louise St. Pierre with three goals and two assists and Cathy Deprato with two goals and three assists. Elaine Oetelaar popped in two goals, while Ann McPherson and Louise Laferriere scored once each and set up one goal each. Cheryl Rigby and Joanne Wylie rounded out the scoring with one assist each. Nicole Desjardins recorded the shutout.

The evening's second game saw Ray's Sealtest squeak by GTL 2-1. Johanne Wood, assisted by Denise Lemieux opened the scoring for Sealtest late in the first period before Lori Trottier, assisted by Henrietta MacSweyn tied the score at 1-1 with 2:09 to play in the second period. Despite continually bottling up GTL in their own end the score was still tied until Sue McIntosh fed a pass back to the point and Denise Lemieux's low slapshot with 1:38 left in the game gave Sealtest the victory.

The evening's final game saw Glen Nevis, paced by Sharon Hope with two goals and one assist, and Colleen Wheeler with two goals down Glengarry Glass 5-1. Karen Warden had the other Glen Nevis goal, while Kim Smith picked up three assists. Corky Robinson, assisted by Debbie Robinson had the lone Glengarry Glass goal.

Roy's defeats Consoltex

Defending champion Roy's Garage opened defence of its title Saturday evening, posting a 6-2 win over Consoltex in an Alexandria Foot Hockey League contest.

Donald Carriere paced the winners with a pair of goals, while singles went to Gilles Gareau, Remi Sauvé, Kevin Massia and Jean-Charles Ranger.

Billy McBean and Mike MacDonald replied for Consoltex.

Greenfield Wings dumped Menard Lumber 4-1. Scoring for Greenfield were Lyndon Lewis, Denis Verville, Finlay McDonell and Robert Wensink.

Menard Lumber's lone goal came off the stick of Rejean Dupuis.

One game was played Sunday afternoon. J. Cholette's pair of markers lifted Nadon's to a 4-3 squeaker over Lalonde's General Store. Bob Shaver and Marc Gibeau completed the scoring for the winners.

Andre Cholette led Lalonde's General Store with two goals, while Gerald Cholette rounded out the scoring.

Hawks beat Rebels

WILLIAMSTOWN—So much for pre-season predictions. the Winchester hawks were supposed to be one of the weaker teams this season in the Alex English Division of the Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League.

Don't tell that to the Char-lan Rebels. The Hawks rode the strength of six powerplay goals and shocked the Rebels 10-7 Saturday night at the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre.

The surprising Hawks, with the victory, completed a weekend sweep. Friday night at Winchester, the hawks surprised the Metcalfe Jets 7-4.

With the loss, Char-Lan's record is 1-1. The Hawks held period leads of 4-3 and 6-4.

"The penalty-killing was the difference," said Rebel's President and Manager John chafee. "Winchester took advantage of the powerplay. Our specialty teams need some work and that's what let us down."

It wasn't just Winchester's powerplay. The visitors opened the scoring with a short-handed tally in the first period.

"They (Winchester) outhustled us and outshot us 52-37. But, if you score six goals in this league, you should win. Winchester outshot us 29-8 in the last period and it's tough to play catch-up against them. Winchester plays a wide-open style and they score a lot of goals, but they give up a lot as well," said Chafee.

While the two clubs were even in the number of penalty infractions called, Rebel's goaler Kevin cameron was assessed a five-minute major for highsticking in the middle stanza. Winchester scored two goals while the Rebels were short-handed for seven minutes.

Veteran Trevor McClatchie and Mike Sergent paced the Winchester attack with hat tricks, while Mark Smith scored twice and set up two goals. Kirk Barkey and Kevin Henry completed the scoring with singles.

Mike Lapensee, Gary Theoret and Kevin Poapst tallied twice each and had one assist each. Bruce Bergeron chipped in with a single.

The Rebels opened the season Friday night on the road, skating to an 8-3 win over the Alexandria Glens at the Glengarry Sports Palace.

The final score wasn't indicative of how the game was played by the teams. The clubs were tied 1-1 after 20 minutes and the visitors clung to a slim 3-2 advantage after 40 minutes of play.

In the third period, however, the Rebels put the contest out of reach with five goals. Rebels' Manager John Chafee, although pleased with the win, knows the Glens' line-up was thin, without veterans Leonard Seguin and Michael Daniels. Both sat out with one-game suspensions.

"They were a little short of players and they'll be stronger with a full line-up," says Chafee. "You can't fault Danny (Brunet), he was left alone for a lot of the goals."

Brunet was kept busy, facing 39 shots, while Char-Lan goaler Kevin Buchan had 37 shots directed at him.

Chafee was particularly pleased with the Rebel defence, an area which is made up mostly of rookies.

"I was impressed with our defence," Chafee said. "The kids played better than our expectations at this point of the season. They're young and it will take them a little while to get used to the league."

Shawn Blanchard and Dave St. John led the Rebels with two goals each, while singles went to Kevin Poapst, Mike Lapensee, Eric Thomas and Herbie Seguin. Blanchard, Lapensee and St. John each had two assists, while Poapst had one helper.

Alexandria's goal came off the sticks of Norm Sauvé, Glen Campbell and Pierre Levac.

The Rebels play host to the Ottawa West Golden Knights Saturday night in the club's only weekend contest. Next Wednesday night, the Rebels travel to Ottawa for a match-up with the South Ottawa Canadians. The two clubs met last spring for the Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League championship.

St. Raphael's wins three games in Border Hockey League

by Sue Sloan

As Border Hockey swings into week three, a familiar pattern is emerging as St. Raphael's record of 3-0 heads the field with six points.

A three-way tie for second leaves the door open for any one of the trio to claim, depending on upcoming game performances.

Laggan falls in closely with a 1-1-1 record for a three-point tally, Glen Nevis boasts a record of 1-2-1 to mark up three and rounding out the pack is Lancaster, which matches Glen Nevis' stats with a similar 1-2-1 record.

Alexandria's entry into the league is currently resting quietly, but not far off, at the bottom of the ladder with a 0-2-1 record to take one point.

The game between Alexandria and Lancaster that took place Oct. 12 will be a deciding factor in the league standings, pending the Border Hockey League's committee's decision as to the validity of the game.

Unofficially, Lancaster claimed the mini-game 5-1.

Alexandria went down in defeat to St. Raphael's 7-1 last Tuesday.

Grant Crack, Leo Séguin and Kennedy MacDonald all shot doubles for St. Raphael's. Their six-point total was reinforced with Frank St. Pierre's single to end at seven.

Alexandria's lone goal came off the stick of Richard Cholette and thereby robbed St. Raphael's Gus Giroux of the game shut out.

A close match ensued between Laggan and Lancaster last Thursday, ending in a 4-4 tie.

Kenton Spink shot for two, while Dwayne Spink and Jim Wightman matched with one each for Laggan.

Donald Wightman set the pace for Lancaster with his pair, with Norm leroux and Richard Picard knocking in singles.

Glen Nevis' effort Sunday put it in the run, downing Laggan 4-1.

Sheldon McDougall, Jim Baker, David McDonell and Findlay McLeod marked one each for Glen Nevis, while Laggan's single came off the stick of Harold McBride.

This week's schedule pits Lancaster against Glen Nevis in Williamstown, Thursday, at 10:30.

Sunday's format gets under way with Glen Nevis meeting St. Raphael's at 1 p.m., followed by Laggan and Alexandria at 2:30 p.m.

Char-Lan Peewees off to quick start in exhibitions

WILLIAMSTOWN — Char-Lan Peewee Rebels are off to a fine start in exhibition play this season.

In a recent game against Cornwall at the Water Street Arena, the Williamstown team edged the Royals 4-3. Char-Lan's goals were scored by Kurtis Latreille, Patrick Campeau, Dan Desjardins and Mike Laframboise.

Char-Lan defeated Alexandria 3-2, Oct. 7, in a game played at the Char-Lan Arena. Shane McDonell, Robert Curran and Dan Desjardins tallied for Williamstown.

Junior C's win exhibition

Alexandria Junior C's tuned up for their league opener Thursday night, with a 9-5 exhibition win over St. Isidore last Thursday night.

Bill Gebbie's squad opens against Casselman on home ice Thursday evening and then travels to Casselman Sunday afternoon.

In their only exhibition game, the Junior C's held period scores of 3-1 and 7-2. Maurice Bellefeuille and Guy Quesnel paced the attack with a pair of goals each, while singles went to Joel D'Amour, Roch Sabourin, Dominic St. Denis, Pierre Levac and Jacques Massie. Mike Campeau had four assists.

The local club recently completed its roster signings for the early stage of the season. Pat Brunet will handle the goal-tending duties for the team.

Other players on the roster are Pierre Levac, Martin Seguin, Joel D'Amour, Marc Lalonde, Maurice Bellefeuille, Jean Lauzon, Jacques Massie, Mike Campeau, Sylvain Levert, Robert Blais, Roch Sabourin, Dominic St. Denis, Guy Quesnel, Richard Willard, Mike Sabourin and Larry De Greco.

Bill Gebbie returns to guide the club behind the bench, while his assistant is Mike Lapensee. Raymond MacDonald is the team's manager.

Safety measures prevent mishaps

LANCASTER—Accidents involving farm equipment are too common and since the use of farm equipment on Lancaster roads has increased during the last few years, the OPP are issuing guidelines for farm vehicle operators.

The Ontario Highway Traffic Act specifies that a person must be aged 16 and over to drive a farm tractor or self-propelled implement of husbandry on a highway. A driver's licence is not required. Farm vehicle operators under 16 years old are not permitted to drive along the road, but may drive directly across it.

In addition, all farm equipment are required to clearly position a "slow moving vehilce" sign in the rear of the vehicle when on a highway. The sign must be centered, no less than two feet or more than six feet from the roadway.

When the sign fades, it must be replaced.

Government's throne speech says very little to Canadians

DON BOUDRIA,MP
Glengarry-Prescott-Russell

In the tradition of our parliamentary system, the new session of Parliament was officially opened on October 1 with the speech from the throne.

The throne speech provides the government with an opportunity to spell out an agenda for the upcoming session and to offer its vision for the future.

The government's throne speech, while outlining several positive suggestions on issues such as pornography and child abuse, unfortunately says very little.

The government says that its mandate is based on four major pillars: national reconciliation, economic renewal, social justice and constructive internationalism. Yet despite these laudable goals, we see little evidence in the speech of concrete proposals to build on these four pillars.

In the area of economic renewal, for example, the government's throne speech fails to offer help for the troubled sectors of our economy such as agriculture, energy, mining, fisheries and forestry. In fact, the throne speech tells Canadians in the poorer regions who depend most heavily on these vital sectors, that they will be receiving no financial assistance from the government and must instead solve their own economic problems.

Personally, I support regionally balanced economic growth, even if it means special financial assistance for our less advantaged regions.

In the area of social justice, the government's speech from the throne expresses its commitment to an enhanced health care system, a stronger system of post secondary education and more help for battered wives. In all of these cases, however, the government has cut funding substantially. In the area of health care, for example, transfer payments to the provinces are being reduced by $5.7 billion over the next six years.

The throne speech acknowledges that youth unemployment remains a problem, yet offers no new initiative to help young Canadian find meaningful jobs.

The government, in its speech, also pledges commitment to the Canadian family yet through the last two federal budgets has placed an unfair burden on our families with increased taxation. The gap between rich and poor families in Canada is growing but the government through its policies, has failed to offer necessary help.

The coming weeks and months will tell us if the present government has good intentions to live up to its good words.

Ombudsman in Cornwall

NOBLE VILLENEUVE
MPP, SD&G

Klaas Bylsma from the Regional Office of the Ombudsman of Ontario will be in Cornwall on October 22 and 23. He will meet with anyone who may have complaints with the provincial government. The Office of the Ombudsman has the power to investigate actions, decisions, procedures and practices of any Ontario government official.

If you have an unresolved problem such as human rights issues, health and social services, workers' compensation or family benefits, this office may be of assistance. There is no fee for this service and all information received is kept strictly private and confidential. Mr. Bylsma will meet anyone on October 22, between 9 to 11 a.m. at the office of the Children's Aid Society located at 27 York Street in Cornwall. If you are interested, please call (613) 234-6421 for an appointment.

This year's fall harvest will also reap disappointment to many Ontario farms a recent report on our province's agricultural economy claims. The 266-page Report, released by the Agricultural Council of Ontario, paints a challenging and detailed portrait of the incomes of farmers and their families.

A study of 93 sample commercial farms shows that the operating income, or profit, generated by these operations, was substantially lower than what their operators could have earned off the farm in wages alone.

There is a wide spread in earnings among those families whose major source of income is farming. The report says 29 per cent of the farmers studied earned less than $10,000 in 1980. Of that number, one-third reported zero income, or a loss.

At the other end of the scale, 35 per cent of the farmers studied earned more than $25,000.

In addition to these findings, the report also discovered that 30 per cent of Ontario's farms generate 84 per cent of the province's food production.

These farms command sales of more than $50,000 a year and accounted for 60 per cent of the value of all farm assets. On the other side of the coin, however, these operations also account for 80 per cent of all farm debt.

In recent years, farm land values have declined by more than 10 per cent, nearly $3 billion. As a result of these findings, the Agricultural Council believes Canada's economy is still hitting the farming community hard.

The council report continues to highlight what is the major issue facing Ontario farmers. The high cost of production has cut so deeply into farm profits that it is increasingly difficult for many operations to cover cash expenses not to mention free family labor and loan payments.

All provinces, and the federal minister of agriculture, as well as farm leaders, agree that the income problems faced by agriculture cannot be tackled by credit support alone.

We need new, imaginative thinking to improve farm incomes and to ultimately protect and preserve the family farm.

The snapshot of farm incomes provided by the Report of the Agricultural Council of Ontario provides graphic evidence of the challenge faced by the province's farmers.

The 13-member Agricultural Council of Ontario was established in 1984 to provide regular and independent appraisals of agricultural issues and the state of the farming community for the minister of agriculture and food.

Government reaffirms commitment in speech

NORM WARNER
Stormont-Dundas MP

The speech from the throne Oct. 1 signalled the beginning of a new session of Parliament. The government reaffirmed its commitment to Canadians in four broad areas of our national life—economic renewal, national reconciliation, constructive internationalism and social justice. Some of the highlights from the speech include the following:

ECONOMIC RENEWAL

Economic renewal will be furthered by continued progress in restoring health to our public finances, through trade initiatives and through tax reform.

The government will spare no effort in seeking to protect the interests of Canada's farmers in the face of unfair pricing and subsidy practices conducted beyond our borders. Aware of the present difficulties, our government will work in close consultation with provincial governments and farm organizations to help alleviate personal hardship in our farm communities.

The government will continue its policy of prudent fiscal and financial management and will seek practical ways to provide individual Canadians with the incentive and opportunity to achieve greater security and well-being for themselves and for their families.

NATIONAL RECONCILIATION

The government will continue consultations with the provinces in order to bring Quebec into the Canadian Constitution.

The official Languages Act will be revised to ensure that it conforms with the Charter of Rights.

The government will continue its concerted efforts through the Commonwealth and the United Nations until apartheid is abolished in South Africa.

Arms control and disarmament will remain essential parts of Canadian foreign policy. We will continue to contribute to multilateral discussions on arms control and actively encourage dialogue between the superpowers towards preserving world peace and security.

SOCIAL JUSTICE

The government is resolved to defend and strengthen the institution of the Canadian family.

The government will initiate discussions with the provinces, business and labor with a view to implementing a concerted approach to childcare.

As a national priority, we will continue to remove the barriers that have prevented women from participating freely and equitably in the mainstream of Canadian society.

The government will take effective action against child sexual abuse, violent forms of pornography involving women and children, child prostitution and the serious and growing threat posed by the traffic in illegal drugs.

A national drug strategy and a comprehensive program dealing with impaired drivers will be brought forward to promote the prevention of drug and alcohol abuse. The government will continue to provide domestic and international leadership in controllinbg drug abuse in amateur sport.

Reforms in the Criminal Code will be continued reflecting the importance Canadians attach to such values as respect for the law and the protection of innocent citizens. Measures will also be brought forward to protect and assist victims of criminal violence.

Woman injured in accident

A Kenyon Township woman suffered minor injuries in a two-car accident Thursday afternoon in Alexandria. Damages were estimated at $1,900.

Alexandria police report Mary Craig, 54, of Con. 5, Kenyon Township, was driving south on Main Street when she attempted a left turn onto Gernish Street. In making the turn her 1982 Toyota was struck on the passenger side by a 1981 GMC pickup truck driven by Michael Willard, 27, of 21 Harrison St. in Alexandria.

Police estimated damages at $1,500 to the car and $400 to the truck. Mrs. Craig was charged under the Highway Traffic Act with making an improper left turn.

Personal

PRAYER to the Holy Spirit: Oh, Holy Spirit, thou who art all knowing, who brightens every path that I may reach my ideal, Thou who giveth me the divine gift of forgiving and forgetting wrongs done unto me and who in every instant of my life art with me. I'd like in this short dialogue to affirm gratitude for all your blessings and re-affirm once again that I never want to part from thee, though the illusion of material things abound. My desire is to be with thee and all my loved ones in perpetual grace. Thank you for your mercy on me and mine. (Persons should pray 3 consecutive days without revealing petition. Within 3 days grace will be attained regardless of how difficult the petition may be.) Publish this prayer once grace is attained. Grateful for grace attained. C.C. 42-1p

Bomb technicians insist on safety first

by Sybil Carello

MOOSE CREEK—"A great deal of initial and on-going training goes into a bomb technician. You don't just walk into a police station and ask for a bomb technician application," said Tim Parras, a consultant with the Canadian Bomb Data Center in Ottawa.

The statement was part of a presentation made to Roxborough Council on the operations of the Canadian Explosives Disposal & Technology branch.

Mr. Parras went on to say that many of the technicians around now are former military personnel with years of experience. Others coming on the line are police personnel with much the same solid work background. All bring with them some degree of specialization, either in physics, chemistry or electronics, etc. so that the field is not completely new to them.

Initial training for a prospective bomb technician begins with a six week introductory course at the Canadian Forces Base Borden, near Toronto. Here, the men learn to deal with improvised explosive devices, safety equipment and establish bomb disposal procedures. Although the improvised devices only contain a squib (fake blasting cap) if it blows, the man in the scenario can correctly conclude, given real circumstances, he would have been killed or seriously maimed.

Said Parras: "The cornerstone of bomb disposal in Canada is discipline and very stringent procedures - followed to a tee. That's why its safe . . . why you don't hear of bomb techs getting hurt."

After successful completion of the course, new techs are recruited to different police divisions - RCMP, municipal or provincial forces.

Bomb techs work in minimum two men teams. They never go out alone. One might carry equipment; the other would take care of the actual explosive disposal or render it safe.

Council was told that the stereotype on T.V. - the guy who goes in after the bomb, pulls out the wires and throws it away in two seconds - is a myth. He just doesn't exist. Safety precautions are of paramount importance. So important says Mr. Parras, that if a man doesn't par up on safety considerations in training, he will not pass. Yet, at the same time, being overly safety conscious can actually work against the bomb technician slowing down the decision making process and possibly endangering his colleague and himself.

According to Mr. Parras, there are sufficient safeguards built into the procedure to make the possibility of injuries to the technicians negligible.

In order to qualify as an explosive disposal unit, there has to be a minimum standard of safety and disposal equipment on hand. The standards set through the branch, are the result of testing, research and development.

Members of an explosive disposal unit are on training one week every three months learning new procedures and getting briefed on new devices encountered by colleagues in Canada or around the world. Every three years technicians submit to a mandatory two week re-validation course at the Police College in Ottawa. Re-validation determines the safety, confidence and decisiveness level of each bomb technician.

"If you're not up to par, you're not a bomb tech," said Mr. Parras.

But training in Canada is more than up to par. Mr. Parras describes it as "some of the best training in the world."

The Canadian Explosives Disposal and Technology Branch was established last year, following the Turkish Embassy hostage-taking incident. It was then that the RCMP Commissioner and government officials realized a special unit to deal with national security incidents of this nature was needed.

Inspector Don Salt, a bomb technician and officer in charge of the branch, became involved shortly after. The branch has since expanded.

The focal point of the presentation rested on the importance of having a safe, designated range for on-going training and testing.

Mr. Parras touched lightly on the area of research and development, saying that Canada has some of the best bomb disposal equipment in the world. But even though Canada's 50 pound bomb suit is considered the best, it needs continual testing to increase its protection.

"In order to do that, the suit has to be exposed to explosions and you need a range for that," said Mr. Parras.

Council also learned that the government's elite anti-terrorist group receives its training from the branch. One of the group's specializations is the safe storming of buildings with the minimum amount of flying shrapnel or debris to ensure maximum safety for all involved. The safe execution of these activities involves constant training.

The video portion of the presentation dealt with the branch's training and testing procedures.

In answer to a question from council, Inspector Salt said there is a "good statistical chance of knocking a bomb over, without anyone getting hurt."

The British in Northern Ireland have the best technology in the world, he told council. But during the first few years of operations, they lost about 13 bomb technicians. The death toll was significantly reduced when they adopted some of Canada's explosive disposal policies like sending in a remote control robot, for instance.

"You don't open bombs," said Inpsector Salt. "You take them out and counter-charge them."

Why would anyone volunteer for such a job? asked council.

Inspector Salt couldn't answer the question, but he did say when a bomb technician wanted out, he was out in a minute.

And not a second later.

Active parenting program coming to Laggan school

LAGGAN—Active Parenting, a video-based parent education program, will be offered to Glengarry residents beginning Oct. 28.

The program consists of six, two-hour sessions using video tapes and a handbook to provide parents with a framework for handling family problems.

The sessions will be offered at Iroquois Public School under the direction of Don Stephen, head of guidance.

Mr. Stephen stresses that Active Parenting is not psychotherapy but rather a way to provide parents with different means of responding to their children.

The program was developed by Dr. Michael Popkin and he says "Disciplining a child or teenager occurs within the context of a relationship. If that relationship is good the discipline works; if the relationship is not good the discipline simply produces additional conflict."

For further information about the upcoming Active Parenting program call Kent MacSweyn at Laggan Public School at 525-3112.

Warns hunters of trespassing fines

LANCASTER—The OPP is issuing a seasonal warning to hunters about respassing on private property. Fines for trespassing can reach $1,000 not including restitution for property damage.

Trespassing occurs when a person enters property that is clearly private, such as a field or other land that is under cultivation, orchards, woodlots or land used primarily for agricultural purposes and enclosed property.

Land owners or tenants are instructed by the OPP to clearly makr trees in entrance areas with a red or yellow circle, to indicate to hunters whether the property is private. They advise against signs nailed to trees or fence posts, as these can be easily removed.

A red circle, painted about four inches in diameter means entry is prohibited. A yellow circle the same size means permission for activities is required from the owner.

When faced with a trespasser, the owner or tenant must identify himself, inform the trespasser of the violation and politely direct him to leave. If the situation appears dangerous, call the police.

Make note of the trespasser's vehicle description, licence plate, name or hunting licence number - any information you can obtain to assist the police in laying charges. A police officer can charge a trespasser even if he is no longer on the private property.

Men sentenced

An Apple Hill area man was sentenced to four months, less five days, in a rehabilitation center, and another was fine $400, Thursday, in Alexandria Provincial Court, after both pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Mark Kelly Sloan, 24, was charged with two counts of impaired driving within 24 hours last April in Charlottenburgh and Kenyon Townships. It was Mr. Sloan's third impaired driving conviction.

During the first incident, April 5, the accused was seen by a police officer driving north on the wrong side of the Glen Roy Road with one headlight.

The accused was taken to Lancaster OPP for a breathalyzer test and his readings were 250 mgs. of alcohol in 100 mls. of blood.

During the second incident, Mr. Sloan was involved in a two-vehicle accident on Hwy. 43, near Kenyon Dam Road.

The accused and a friend had attended the Bonnie Glen. The friend was involved in a fight outside and suffered a cut above one eye. Both men had been drinking. While driving the friend to Glengarry Memorial Hospital, Mr. Sloan collided with a westbound vehicle. Damage to both vehicles was approximately $4,000.

The man was taken to Maxville OPP for a breathalyzer test. He readings were 210 and 220 mgs. of alcohol in 100 mls. of blood.

Since the two incidents, the accused has made attempts to correct his drinking problem, court was told.

Mr. Sloan's licence was suspended for two years.

Robert Theoret, 31, of Montreal was fined $400. He was charged July 28 in Kenyon Township after police stopped him for speeding on Hwy. 417. The officer smelled alcohol on the man when he was being questioned.

Mr. Theoret was taken to Maxville OPP for a breathalyzer test and had readings of 130 mgs. in 100 mls. of blood.

His licence was suspended for one year and he was given three months to pay the fine.

Drivers injured

MAXVILLE—Drivers were injured in two single car accidents investigated by Maxville OPP officers over the Thanksgiving Weekend.

A 34-year-old Kenyon Township man was hospitalized with a broken nose, broken jaw and broken leg late Saturday afternoon after he lost control of his car and struck a bridge on Con. 4, Kenyon. Anthony B. Denobriga of Cons. 3 was taken by ambulance to the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Cornwall.

Police report the accident occurred on the road allowance dividing Cons. 4, about one-half kilometre east of the Greenfield Road, at about 4:45 p.m. Mr. Denobriga's 1976 Chevrolet was considered a write-off with about $3,000 demage to the front end.

OPP Const. Jim Stewart investigated.

Another Kenyon Township man suffered minor injuries early Sunday morning when he lost control of his car, left the roadway and struck a tree on the Dunvegan Road, 3.6 kilometres west of Hwy. 34.

Police report Peter Martin, 18, of Con. 5, Kenyon, was driving west at the time of the accident. He was later taken to Glengarry Memorial Hospital in Alexandria where he was treated for his injuries and released.

Damage to the front end of his 1978 Plymouth was estimated at $3,000.

Const. Peter Fishwick investigated.

Course mandatory

Effective January 1, 1987, hunter education courses will be mandatory for all prospective hunters and any hunter who cannot provide proof of previous hunting experience.

Hunters who can produce an Ontario resident's hunting licence issued after January 1, 1968, hunting licence examination certificate issued after January 1, 1968, or hunting licence verification certificate will not be required to take the training courses.

Currently, only hunters born after December 31, 1954, are required to complete the training courses before taking their Ontario resident hunting licence examination.

Ontario's Hunter Education Program—established in 1957—has been instrumental in improving hunter behavior and reducing the number of hunting accidents. In 1960, there were a total of 154 hunting accidents including 36 fatalities, compared with 39 including four fatalities in 1985.

"Hunting remains one of the safer outdoor activities, considering that each year there are approximately 500,000 individual hunters who participate in a total of five million hunter days," Mr. Kerrio said.

Training courses, conducted by certified hunter education instructors throughout the province, offer instruction in hunting ethics, firearms safety, survival, wildlife identification, wildlife management and first aid.

Hunters with questions about training courses and hunting licence examinations should contact their local Natural Resources district office.

Fiske's Corners gets new sign

by Lesley Cadham

FISKE'S CORNERS—Travellers on the Dunvegan road may notice a new sign erected about three miles west of Hwy. 34. It reads, "Fiske's Corners" and replaces the one that blew down almost 10 years ago.

Alex Mogelon lives in the old blacksmith shop near Fiske's Corners and says he called several government agencies over the years to obtain a new sign but no one would accept the responsibility.

"I finally called the right person," said Mr. Mogelon, who was pleased with the response from SD&G MPP Noble Villeneuve.

Mr. Villeneuve obliged the 18 or so residents and had a new sign erected.

According to Mogelon, Fiske was an Irishman who owned the county's first cheese factory, located appropriately in the vicinity.

But Malcolm Grant, who lives near Fiske's Corners, says the tiny community got its name because of the MacMillan family who inhabited a nearby house. They were affectionately called "The Fiskes," he says.
