Henry's Shorthand School
Ottawa, Ont.

On the May Civil Service Examination, this year, we passed more stenographic candidates than the other local business colleges combined.

It is a common occurrence for Henry-trained students to get 100% in Shorthand 100% in Typewriting, and 95% in Composition.

These subjects being the most difficult on this examination, our record of FIRST, SECOND and FOURTH places for the whole of Canada, is at once explained.

During the past two years, more than 235 students have come to us from other local business colleges.

Does it not prove that we have a superior school ?

Our instruction being individual, you may start at any time.

In Many Bracnhes of the Service.

Chesterville boys and former Chesterville residents are surely taking up the fight for King and Country in a noble way. In talking the matter over the other evening we were surprised to find how many different arms of the service have representatives from this place and vicinity. We all know of the large enlistmenl from here for the different infantry battalions but there are others, viz. Fred Lawson in the navy, Ross Alford in the Aviation Corps, Wm. Lambert in the Mounted Rifles Bern Shaver in the artillery, Will and Joshua Johnston in the Army service Corps, Miss Glasgow on the nuring staff and Dr. Smith in the Royal Army Medical Corps. If it were possible The Record would like to have a complete list of all men enlisted, residents of the section. Our correspondents might attempt this, sending in lists from each locality of everyone they know. We can then compile a list without duplication and publish the roll of honor.

O. D. Casselman Honored

Mr. O. D. Casselman, this week was in receipt of a card from Brig.-General Meighen, stating that he had been made an honorary member of the 'Officers' Mess'' of the Canadian Grenadier Guards. The card was accompained by a letter from the general saying that this was done as a token of appreciation of his assistance and kindness in recruiting the Dundas Platoon, now a part of the Canadian Grenadier Guards Overseas Battalion. Mr. Casselman gave his services to the work entirely free of charge bearing himself, all his expenses in connection with the work.

Valentine Tea.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Lawson was thronged with guests, both ladies and gentlemen, between the hours of four and seven Monday afternoon, the occasion being the Valentine tea given by Mrs. Lawson to assist in buying comforts for the boys of our community who are going overseas. The house with its spacious rooms and wide doorways lent itself admirably to the large number present.

The hostess received the guests in the hall which was beautifully decorated with cupids, hearts and darts and artistically draped flags. The drawing room, library and dining room were bright with red carnations and valentine decorations. A continuous programme was delightfully rendered throughout the afternoon by Mrs. McCorkindale, Misses Amy Beattie, Violet Saucier, Kathleen Thompson, Gladys McCorkindale, Ella McCloskey and Edna McGee. Miss Dorothy Ault, a little niece of Mrs. Lawson, charmed the guests with her recitations, especially one entitled "Girls can't play at the game of war" written by her mother, Mrs. Alfred Ault. The tea table, bright with Red carnations and candles was in charge of Mrs. Jas. Hughes and Mrs. G. C. Lacey assisted by a number of young girls. Valentine favors were distributed by Dorothy Ault.

The proceeds of the afternoon amounted to $21.55 and some who were not able to attend have siggified their intention of making a contribution which will in all probability bring the amount to $25.00. This will assist greatly in buying oomforts for our brave boys.

Pages two and seven have interesting local news. Every page of The Record is worth reading.

154th Battalion To Have Best Pipe Band in Canada

(Ottawa Free Press.)

Pipe-Major Sinclair Tait, of the St. Andrew's pipe band, probably the most able and experienced pipe major in Canada, has enlisted with the 154th Battalion of Glengarry Stormont and Dundas. He has had 21 years' experience with the 71st Highlanders and the famous Black Watch Regiment. With him will go two loyal followers to his leadership, Piper Charles Sullivan and Piper Charles Laing, both pipers of many years experience, and popular boys of the city. Several other pipers and drummers are considering following their leader. The 154th are aiming to take overseas the finest pipe band yet organized in Canada, and the enlisting of Pipe-Major Tait and his men practically assures this.

RED CROSS WORK.
Berwick.

The Berwick Women's Institute working for the Red Cross are holding a few tea socials, which are proving very successful. The one held at L. Montgomery's netting them $9.10; at W. A. Henry's $9.45 and the one at D. McMillan's on Monday evening, $13.00. At present the members are busy knitting and sewing night shirts for the boys at the front. The next social will be announced later. A number of the institute members gathered at Mrs. Jas. Pollock's on Tuesday and at Mrs. Lewis Hutt's on Wednesday evening to arrange for knitting and sewing. They expect to pack their box about the first week in March and every assistance should be given the ladies to further the good work.

Two or three recruits have been enticed away from the 154th Battalion to join up at Prescott. The lure is the gay time promised in Ogdensburg, nightly. They forget to mention that Canadian soldiers cannot enter the United States in the King's uniform.

CANADIANS SHOW SURPRISED HUNS HOW TO ATTACK.

Ottawa, Feb. 11.—Major-General Sir Sam Hughes, minister of militia, has received the following communication from the Canadian general representative covering the period, Feb. 2-9.

Canadian General Headquarters in France, February 11, via London.—On the night of February 4, a patrol of our Tenth Western Battalion, under Lieut. S. H. Kent and Sergeant Milne, discovered a gap in the German outer wire. On reaching the wire they cut a lane right up to the German parapet without attracting attention.

Early on the morning of February 5 a strong patrol, under Lieutenants Kent, A. H. Trimmer and L. Younger, with Sergeant Milne acting as guide, again approached the enemy's lines at the same point. When within a few yards of the trench a large German working party was discovered still further to the right. While our patrol was engaged in watching the German working parties, an enemy patrol of between twenty and thirty men was detected advancing in close formation. This patrol, which was probably intended to cover the enemy working parties failed to observe our patrol, until almost upon it It then commenced firing and throwing bombs but men rushed into the attack, using their bombs, bayonets and knobkerries. A sharp hand to hand tussle ensued, during which five Germans were seized as prisoners. Meanwhile the German working parties took alarm and jumped back into their trench. A number of bombs were thrown into the trench by our men at a close range, undoubtely caused a number of casualties. A violent fire of machine-guns, rifles and bombs was then opened from the enemy trenches in the vicinity thus adding to the confusion into which the German patrol had been thrown.

Word was passed to our men to retire. It is thought that few if any, of the German patrol survived the fire from their own trenches. Our casualties were few and of these the majority suffered only slight wounds. Immediately on the returned of our patrol our artillery shelled the enemy front-line trenches so effectively that the rifle and machine-gun fire soon ceased.

Bob Cook Again Makes Getaway.

Guelph, Dec. 11.— The notorious "Bob" Cook, for years the terror of the Orangeville district, who was ago after his capture in Toronto, subsequent to a little siege by the Orangeville police, has again distinguished himself.

He was liberated from the pentitentiary to join the Wellington battalion, in which he was enlisted as a private. This morning Cook, while taking part in a route march, hung behind, and when ordered by his officer to get into line, drew a knife, and when about to be arrested jumped the roadside fence and broke for the open.

A chase was immediately organized, but he had secured a good start, and is still at liberty.

Two Children Burned To Death.

Cornwall, Feb. 11.— Last night about ten o'clock Joseph Ramsay, who lives in the South Branch, Cornwall, happened to look up-stairs before going to bed and saw that the whole place was in a blaze.

Frantic effort were made to rescue two of the children, a boy aged 7, and a girl aged 3, but without success and they perished in flames. The rest of the family escaped uninjured but the house was totally destroyed as was an out building in which a quantity of machinery belonging to Mr. Laplante was stored. The barn was saved. There was little insurance.

Cornwall Fears Flood

Cornwall, February 14.—The water in the St. Lawrence opposite here is very high at present and causes some apprehension for local industries bordering on its shores. There was a big shove this morning and the ice is piled high at the swing bridge and also at the east end of the town. The water is about seventeen feet above summer level. The bridge which crosses the sluice-way near the Canada Mill is almost reached by the ice, while on the Cornwall Island side of the river the ice is shoved high up on the bank.

Down the river, at what is known as the Red School House, Indians from Cornwall Island and St. Regis have staked out a road and the crossing there is said to be good. Indians report the water about normal in that section for this season of the year. Above the Stormont mill the river is at the highest level, caused by the accumulation of ice below, and herein lies the danger. Boat houses near the swing bridge park are partially inundated and the water is up to within a few feet of a row of small cedar trees on the bank below the park.

It is just a little over twenty-nine years since Cornwall's disastrous flood. The water is now said to be higher than at any time since then.

LOUIS McCORMICK WILL STAND TRIAL FOR ALLEGED ARSON

Louis McCormick (Jolicour) generally known as the handiest man in Cornwall, without whose assistance no housewife of any standing considers she can survive the agony of spring and fall housecleaning, left suddenly for Syracuse N, Y. a few weeks ago, to visit his daughter.

Before he went, so it is alleged, he made very thorough arrangements for a house cleaning of his own, and it was to have been done so completely with the aid of fire that there wouldn't be anything left to sweep up, and would give the people something to talk about, which he undoubtedly did.

McCormick and his wife do not live together, but in houses near-by, and Mrs. McCormick one late December afternoon thinking from appearances that something was wrong about her husband's domicile, went over, and on getting into the house she found that some one had bored several holes in the floor, into which were inserted long candles, cleverly constructed of tallow, resin and beeswax, and packed them round the bottom with excelsior, which, and the floor he soaked with coal oil, with the idea, no doubt, that by the time the candles burned down to the combustibles, of which there was a big supply, and set them on fire, he would be "over the border and awa," and the destruction being complete there would be no clue as to how it happened, Mrs. McCormick sent word to the police, who came and found things as has been mentioned and confiscated the whole outfit, including a stick of dynamite, which was no doubt counted on to finish the job up nicely.

The police of Syracuse were notified and McCormick was deported as an undesireable alien, and arrested at the Canadian border and brought to Cornwall. He was before P. M. Danis on Friday for preliminary examination, and sufficient evidence being adduced was committed to gaol. Next day he was before His Honor Judge O'Reilly and elected to be tried by a jury which will give him until April 18, when the Spring assizes will be held. In the meantime his board bill will give him no anxiety, as Mr. Ault will attend to that. Crown Attorney Dingwall watched the case for the Crown, and J. A. Chisholm represented the prisoner.

Returns Home $1,000 Richer.

Mrs. Mary A. Lundy is back at North Augusta, having left Watertown, N. Y.. with her husband, S. J. Lundy, who went after her. Mrs. Lundy returned home $1,000 richer than she was a short time ago, if the will of Mrs. Elizabeth LaBreck is established.

Mrs. Lundy nursed Mrs. LaBreck during her last sickness. Mrs. LaBreck died of pneumonia and left a death-bed will in which she bequeathed Mrs. Lundy $1,000, left another $1,000 to Mrs. Bueas, a friend, and incorporated a provision that the balance of her estate be left to Rev. Duane C. Johnston, D. D., Ashbury Church, for distribution among her friends as he thought best.

Shot Bear and Three Coons.

Who would imagine that within a few miles of Winchester a bear and three coons could be discovered and shot. But that is just what did happen on Wednesday last. It was Candlemas day, and of course bruin had to come out to see his shadow. In doing so however, bruin left his tracks in the snow. Mr. D. D. Porteous. who lives in Mountain Township, about six miles from Winchester went back to his bush last Wednesday to chop wood. He saw the tracks, and procuring his rifle he followed them to an old fallen pine tree. Here the bear had made himself snug and warm all winter, and very foolishly came out on Candlemas Day, saw his shadow and then retired for another six weeks. But fate was against him. Mr. Porteous plugged the end of the hollow log, and then ascertaning about where the bear was located, cut a hole in the top of the log, and with a rifle bullet through him brnin very soon gave up. It proved a fine animal and its skin will be valuable. The next day Mr. Porteous discovered three coons in the same vicinity and dispatched them. He says that in 25 years it is the first time he ever saw a bear in that vicinity—Winchester Press.

$10 and Cost or 30 Days For Leaving Stamp Off

Toronto February 14.—J. F. Newsome is the first man in Toronto to be fined for failing to put a war tax stamp on a cheque. Mr. Newsome sent a cheque to a man in payement for some work, but, according to the man, it was not for the correct amonnt. The cheque came into the hands of the Crown anthorities with the result that Newsome was summoned and fined $10 and costs, or 30 days, although he claimed it was an oversight that he had not affixed the stamp. The Sterling Bank, who accepted the cheque without a war tax stamp, are to be summoned to the court to give their explanation for so doing.

SOLDIERS AT CALGARY WRECK RESTAURANTS.

Calgary, Alta., Feb. 10.—A mob of several hundred soldiers completely wrecked the White Lunch Restaurant on Eighth Avenue East to-night, following up the work of destruction by wrecking the premises of the same concern in Ninth Avenue. A rumor that the manager had dismissed returned soldiers who had been hired as waiters and had replaced them with Germans was responsible for the attack.

The place was owned by the White Lunch Company, and F. H. Naegel is the manager. Mr. Naegel tonight denied that he had dismissed any returned soldiers or that he had hired any Germans, but said that he had occasion to dismiss a man who had at one time been a soldier but was not now with the overseas forces. He declares that the affair was the result of a conspiracy.

Soon after nine o'clock about five hundred soldiers, from four battalions stationed here, marched in a body down Ninth Avenue to the White Lunch. Mr. Naegel had been warned of impending trouble, and had notified both the police and military authorities. Chief of Police Caddy hastily collected half a dozen constables and plain clothes men and hurried to the place. All customers were sent out and the doors locked.

When the soldiers arrived the chief asked them to disperse and not to behave in an unlawful manner. His advice was disregarded and as a preliminary a shower of missiles went crashing through the big plate glass windows. A woman cashier was slightly hurt, and Police Constable Fraser badly cut by flying glass. The latter was sent to the hospital.

The policemen were swept aside like chips in a gale and for an hour the mob did its will. The crowd was increased to 2,000 and the officers were helpless. The furniture, fixtures and cooking apparatus were smashed to fragments. Marble counters and stands looked as though artillery shells had exploded. A cash register was whipped open and looted. Coffee urns and gas stoves were torn from their places. Electric fixtures were pulled down. The street outside was littered with wreckage. The safe was thrown downstairs into the basement, breaking the stairs.

The Fire Department was then called upon. The firemen could only look on while the surging mob of shouting men in khaki, with a number of civilians, wrecked the restaurant in a most thorough manner.

MacKinnon's Dancing Academy, on the second floor, was not spared. Civilians were mostly in evidence here, as it is said it was not the intention of the soldiers to attack the academy. The windows were smashed and the furniture demolished and thrown out of the windows. British flags displayed on the walls were torn down and destroyed. One of the employees put another flag at a window and that was torn down and thrown into the street.

A second division of the mob visited the other restaurant owned by the company on Ninth avenue and treated it in a similar manner. The cashier and waiters bolted for safety and in a twinkling the interior of the place looked like a building "somewhere in Ypres."

Street car traffic was held up. It was two hours before the mob wearied of its work and the police gained control of the situation.

No arrests have been made. General Cruickshank, commanding military district 13, says that an investigation will be held. No military guards were sent to the scene until after the damage had been done, and these were not armed. General Cruickshauk said that it had been verbally reported to him by Mr. Noland that there might be trouble, but that he had told him to put it in writing. He had received no written notification, however. No other establishment was attacked. The soldiers devoted their entire attention to the two restaurants. The damoge is in the vicinity of $8,000.

For Trooper Mulloy.

Ottawa, Feb. 11.— Of interest during the present time of war is an order in-council which has been passed authorizing Trooper Lorne Mulloy, the blind South African war hero, now Professor Mulloy, of Kingston. Ont., to select two adjoining quarter-sections of available Dominion lands in Manitoba, Alberta or Saskatchewan, a sale of the land so selected to be made to him at $1 an acre in satisfaction of his claim under the South African volunteer bounty land certificate. Professor Mulloy has been unable on account of his blindness, which resulted from the South African experiences, to comply with the conditions as to residence and cultivation usually required in connection with the location of such certificates.

BOYCOTT ONTARIO SAYS LAVERGNE.

Montreal, Feb. 12.—Addressing a meeting in St. Charles church hall last night on the subject of the use of the French language in Canada, "Colonel" Armand Lavergne member of the Quebec legislature for Montmagny, declared that before subscribing to the Red Cross and Patriotic fund it was the duty of French Canadians to think of the "wounded in Ontario."

BOYCOTT PRODUCTS.

"There is another method you can take of impressing on the Englishmen of Ontario the necessity of treating the French Canadians of that province with justice, and it is probably the quickest way with the sons of John Bull to get these and Lavergne. "That way is this; Boycott their products. Boycott their products and I guarantee to you that in two years this question will be settled. Let the French Canadians retail merchants, manufacturers, professional men, dentists needing instruments. every profession and every trade, say to every traveller that comes to them from an Ontario firm, 'Go back to where you came from and regulate the question of the French Canadians in Ontario. Then perhaps we will talk to you later.

"If we are to be respected in this country, we must first commence to respect ourselves. Are we an inferior race? Are we at home in this country? Are we men whose rights should be respected?"

"You have another duty which can be fulfilled right here in your own province the colonel continued. "That duty is to speak French where often now you speak English. Speak French in the streets, speak French in the stores, speak French in the cars, speak it in the offices of the public utilities. Speak it even where your buisness might be finished quicker if you spoke English. Speak it in the railroad offices, the telegraph offices' speak it everywhere, so that in all these places they will be obliged to employ men who speak both languages. Now they employ an English Canadian if he speaks only the one language' but a French-Canadian must know two."

THE GERMAN TONGUE.

Col. Lavergne then read instructions which are given to Ontario schools with regard to the teaching of French and German. The instructions are the same for both languages, except that in regard to German the teachers are told "to give a greater apportionment of time to German and to make more rapid progress," he claimed.

"Has anyone ever heard that there is an entente cordiale between France and England?" cried Mr. Lavergne, "Is it true that the French and the English are now fighting side by side in the blood-stained trenches of France and Flanders for liberty and justice? It is true, and yet this loyal province of Ontario tells its teachers to see that the students learn German before French. and that they learn it better."

Social Conditions on the Farm

During the year 1915, the Commission of Conversation conducted an agricultural survey on 400 farms in Ontario. The survey included 100 farms in each of the Counties of Dundas, Waterloo, Northumberland and Carleton. Various phases of farm life were investigated, and some interesting conditions presented.

Social conditions, and other incentives to keep the young people on the farms are to a great extent neglected, as may be seen from the following report of the survey.

Ten per cent of the farmers visited have had boys leave and go to the city. Seven per cent have sons married who are farming. Nineteen per cent stated that they were following some form of book-keeping, but only one man was following a complete method. Sixty-seven per cent take agricultural papers, seventeen per cent take story magazines, and seventy-seven per cent take daily papers and their home weekly.

In 53 per cent of the families visited there were young people over 14 years of age while 31 per cent had a horse and buggy or an automobile for the young people. Sixty-one per cent of the farmers attended some kind of community event or events during the past year, chiefly church social and picnics.

Here it may be stated that the rural churches have a great opportunity to develop the social side of their activities, to reach more of the young people in the country and interest them in clean amusements, sports and recreations. The local fairs also are prominent among the community events attended by the farmer. In Dundas and Carleton counties no organized clubs for games were met with, while in Waterloo, 13 reported a football club, and in Northumberland, six reported baseball clubs. Only one of the 400 farmers visited mentioned attending a literary society. Twenty-five per cent of the homes had no musical instrument of any kind; 39 per cent had pianos.—

Premier Scott of Saskatchewan definetly promised a deputation of women that they would have full citizenship conferred upon them.

G. C. LACEY
Editor and Proprietor.

There were pessemists in the long ago. Somebody poring over the old files in the Patent Office of the United States has lately found a letter from an old employee there offering his resignation on the ground that "as everything inventible has now been invented, and the Patent Office would soon be discontinued, there would be no further need of his services, and he preferred to leave before the blow fell." The letter is dated 1833, when there was not a railway train, a telegraph, a telephone, or a steamship in the world!

The world will never be the same again, and it is good to look forward. A public man with ideas has been pointing out a hopeful tendency that perhaps not many people have thought of. We are destroying the Prussian militarism that has hung like a shadow over Europe; let us break down also the class warfare that has been like a shadow over all our land. One thing is helping in that direction. The rich are parting with a great share of their control over the national weath; the poorer people, by saving and lending to the State, may obtain more independence and count for much more in the State than before. Every working man who has invested his savings in the War Loan, therefore, has builded better than he knew.

People are always defrauding the Government—by making false returns as to Income Tax, by smuggling, and we know not by what other methods. Some of the cheats repent, and seek comfort by sending annoymous gifts of money to the Chancellor of the British Exchequer. Every now and then we see announcements in the papers headed "Conscience Money," in which the Chancellor acknowledges the receipt of money.

The record includes some strange contributions, but one of the strangest gifts has just come to light. Here it is:

"The Chancellor of the Exchequer acknowledges the receipt of two bars of gold as conscience money."

How much the bars of gold are worth the Chancellor omits to say, but there is a decided touch of romance in the workings of a writhing conscience from which masses of pure gold can be wrung.

Queen Alexandra has obtained what must be a record price for a cup of coffee. She dropped in to lend a hand with the work at the soldiers' free buffet at London Bridge Station, when up came a jovial old farmer from Kent. The soldiers did not know the Queen; they called her "Missus," and gave her little money presents for the fund, and went their way unknowing. But the old farmer recognized her, and the Queen poured him out a cup of coffee. The farmer drank it, and then, taking out his cheque-book, wrote a cheque for five pounds and went home. The next thing heard from him was in the form of another cheque, this time for fifty pounds, which sum he had collected from his neighbors. A few days later he puffed into the buffet again to take another twenty-five pounds, and to say that he was not going to rest until he had made his contribution a round hundred pounds in payment for the Queen's cup of coffee.

The price of food has risen so tremendously in Europe that Governments have had to intervene to prevent prices rising still higher thereby causing greater distress still. In Japan, however, exactly the opposite has been the case, and the topsy-turvy condition there almost suggests one of Gilbert and Sullivan's comic operas.

The Japanese Government recently announced that they had made arrangements to increase the price of rice, the staple food of the people, on the ground that its cheapness was causing widespread distress throughout the country. They therefore became big buyers of rice in order to send up the price, and this had the effect of righting matters to the benefit of hundreds of thousands of persons.

The explanation is that rice-growing is one of the large industries of Japan, and when the price falls below a certain minimum there is no profit to make it worth while to harvest and cart the crop. By acting as they did do, the Japanese Government enabled the rice-growers to realize a profit, and thereby remunerative employment was perserved to hundred of thousands of poor persons.

Have Forgotten Their $15.000 Mile Of Road.

The Winchester Press says—"Again, we might ask:—Why is it that Kemptville has a fine Government built post office, and drill hall? Why has Merrickville an expensive armoury used only by the village for social gatherings in the winter, and their show fair in the summer, while Winchester, a place of greater importance than either, and with as large a population, has nothing in the way of a Government building."

When post offices are longed for, the longing of Chesterville people is great and continuous.

Should Help Organizatiou.

At the last meeting of the Counties' Council an application was made by the officers directing the recruiting of the 154th Battalion for a grant to defray the expenses of organization of this battalion which is to be distinctly a product of these united counties—our very own battalion.

We have many representatives in various battalions, all bearing the designation of some other portion of the Dominion. When credit for effective work is given those battalions, the United Counties will not receive any share of it. It is up to these counties to see that the 154th Battalion, now recruiting is organized and placed in training with the officers and men just as representative of our young manhood as it is possible to be, both physically and mentally.

Many battalions of which we hear much find themselves in the happy position of having men of wealth as the commanding officers, who in their zeal and patriotism do not consider the cost of organization as long as they get the desired recruits. We know that Our Own Battalion is officered by exceptionally competent officers but it has no "angel" to supply the funds for a quick and effective recruiting campaign, and the people who should do the financing of it are we, who will call it our own battalion.

The feeling has been expressed that the Counties' Council very much under-estimated our willingness to pay the shot when they made the rather parsimonious grant of $150 a month until June, a total of $750.

The necessary and incidental expenses of recruiting a rural battalion are estimated at approximately $6000, and had the Counties' Council voted $1000 a month until June it would only have done what would have been approved in every quarter.

It sounds great to shout that we will fight to the last man and the last dollar which we possess for victory, but actions count most in war time.

The one hundred and fifty dollars a month voted, does not represent as much as a third of a cent per month per head of our population, or a matter of slightly over seven dollars and sixteen cents per month for each of the twenty-one municipalities in the three counties.

We certainly look like a bunch of pikers.

The United Counties are ranked as the richest dairying section of Canada, and we are as able and we hope as willing to pay our way as other municipalities and the different municipal councils should take this matter up at once and each vote fifty dollars a month until June, or a matter of $5250 and assist in every way to get our own boys into Our Own Battalion in the shortest possible time.

A battalion on paper never does any fighting.

The Diamond Cross

A Case Requiring Delicate Handling

By JOHN Y. LARNED

One morning I went into a restaurant on Fifth avenue, New York, for luncheon, and since there was no one near to show me a seat I took one unbidden. I laid my hat and overcoat on a chair beside me, a waiter presented me with a menu, and I gave my order

While I was waiting a man came in and took a seat at a table near by. He was fashionably dressed, but there was something in his physiognomy that I did not like. His clothes seemed too good for his breeding. I presume I noticed him especially because I had nothing else to look at, he being the only person near me.

After being served and having eaten I arose to depart. Taking up my overcoat I heard something drop on the floor. Supposing some article had fallen from one of the pockets of the coat I stooped to see what it might be. It was a Russian leather box, something like a glove box, though much smaller. Taking it up, I pressed a spring with my thumb, raised the cover and revealed a gold cross set with five diamonds, each as large as a pea.

When I raised my eyes from the box they rested on the man I have mentioned sitting near me. He was regarding me with a curious expression. He had seen me pick up the box, open it and the look of surprise on my face when I saw what it contained.

An explanation of my find occurred to me at once. Some lady had been lunching at the table I had used and while doing so had laid the jewel box on the chair beside her. She had gone away, having forgotten that she had placed it there. She may have laid it down while eating or when she took out her portemonnaie to pay the bill.

While I was wondering and deliberating what to do with my find the man who was watching me arose from his table and approached me.

"I'll trouble you for that, sir," he said, referring to the box.

"Is it yours?" I asked.

"No, but I have been employed by the owner to find it. I am a detective. A lady has been robbed of it. Her maid left her at the same time. I have been shadowing the maid and expected to find her today and hoped to arrest her. She has doubtless been here and left the box by mistake."

This story did not hang together. A lady's maid would not likely be lunching at a swell Fifth avenue restaurant with a valuable property she had stolen and surely would not have forgotten it. A woman who was used to such surroundings and possessions might have done so. My opinion was that the man who claimed to be a detective was bent on getting the find into his possession in order to get away with it. However, this was only a supposition of mine, and since I was found with property that he claimed had been stolen I did not like the prospect of becoming involved in a criminal matter. I concluded to temporize with him.

"I think," I said, "that I had better turn it in to the proprietor of the restaurant."

"You had better turn it in to me," he replied, regarding me sternly.

"Suppose I refuse?"

"In that case I shall consider it my duty to run you in."

"I can then tell how I happened to find the property."

"And prove if you can that you have not stolen it."

I winced. The fellow seemed to be a bad one, and he might make me a lot of trouble. I was wondering what I had better do when a lady, fashionably dressed, came hurrying up to me, looking as if something unusual had occurred. It struck me at once that she was the owner of the property, and I was not mistaken.

"I left a box on that chair," she said pointing. "Have you seen it?"

I looked at the detective as much as to say: "Is this your lady's maid? She looks for all the world like the lady herself." Ignoring me in his reply, he addressed himself to the young lady.

"This gentleman has found what you left. I am a detective and have been employed to trace this property which has been stolen. I don't know who you are or how you came into its possession. The owner desires to get back her jewel, and if it is placed in my hands I will return it and no questions will be asked; if not I shall be obliged to arrest you and you will have to prove your innocence."

The lady seemed very much troubled. She looked from the speaker to me and back from me to the speaker.

"My friend," I said to him, "there is a question to be decided concerning the ownership of this find. This young woman is evidently a lady, and I am a gentleman. We both shrink from appearing in a police court. Let us find some way by which we can settle the matter among ourselves."

"What do you propose?" he asked.

I knew by this reply that my suspicions of him were correct. He was no detective, but one of those well dressed crooks who frequent places where they hope to find well to do victims. At the same time he might make it very unpleasant for both the lady and myself. From this time it became a war of wits between us. I hoping to save the lady's property for her without her being forced into any unpleasant position, he desiring to avoid the arrest he had threatened, which was nothing more than a gigantic bluff. Turning to the young lady, I said:

"Will you submit to an arrest for the purpose of saving your property?"

"I'd rather lose it," she replied in a voice that trembled. The pretended detective looked at me as much as to say, "I told you so."

"Would you be willing," I continued to her, "to leave the property in my keeping till the true ownership can be settled?"

For the first time she regarded me critically. Then she said, "I would trust you implicitly."

I took out my card and handed it to her. "I see no need for you to remain here longer," I said. "When the matter is settled I will return the box and its contents."

"Not so fast, please," said the man. "I will not release the young woman until I am informed what you propose to do with the find."

"I will go with you to a police office, where I will surrender the property. Then the young lady can go there in company with her lawyer, make her claim and prove that it belongs to her."

"I am not to be done out of my fee for the detective work I have accomplished in any such fashion," said the man. "Besides, there is a reward offered for the return of the jewelry."

It would seem that all I had to do was to call a policeman and direct him to take us to the station, where an investigation would take place. My respectability and that of the lady would be proved, and she could also bring evidence that the diamond cross belonged to her; but, irrespective of his dislike to going with a police officer, suppose the man should concoct a story such as he had attempted to palm off on me, adding that which would implicate her? A sensitive person shrinks from accusations, no matter how false. Judging from what I had seen of the man I believed that he would not hesitate to brand the girl as a thief or to make a false statement to show that I was implicated with her.

"This affair," I said to the man, giving him a knowing look, "had better be settled between you and me. I think I can persuade the young lady to recompense you for any loss you may make in your detective fees."

His case was not very strong, and my suggestion that blackmail would be paid had a wholesome effect upon him. He assented to my proposition and permitted the young lady to go her way. So distressed was she at the likelihood of being accused of having stolen her own property that I verily believe she thought little of intrusting her cross to a stranger and would have preferred to be out of the scrape rather than remain in it in possession of her property.

I took her name and address, and as soon as she had gone I said to the man: "Come with me. This is no place to talk." We left the restaurant together, and I asked him if he would suggest a place where we could hold a conference. He hesitated. I inferred that he would be glad to take me where he might get me in his power, but did not believe that I would be fool enough to go with him. At any rate, he said:

"Anywhere you like. All I wish is to be assured of my fees and that the young lady is the real owner of the property."

"How about the reward?" I asked.

"As to that," he stammered, "if the young lady can prove that she owns the property, then it can't be the same that I am employed to trace."

"Would you object to going to my rooms?" I asked.

We were passing a third rate hotel, and he said he would prefer going in there, so we entered and went into the writing room.

"How much do you want to let up on this matter?" I asked.

"How would five hundred suit you?"

"Make it half that and it is a go."

"Agreed."

I took out a pocket check book. He stopped me. "Cash, please," he said.

My doubts as to his being a detective had given place to a belief that he was not, and by this time I felt sure that he had come down from a scheme to get possession of the cross to levying blackmail.

"Very well," I said. "Of course I haven't the amount about me, but I can send to my bank for it."

I drew a check for $250 and, calling a waiter—for he would not permit me to leave him—asked him to send the proprietor to me. When the latter came I asked him to send the check to the bank for the cash on my check. He did so, and on receiving it I counted it carefully, pricking several of the bills with a pin as I did so. Then I handed the man the money. He left the hotel, I following him till I saw a policeman, whom I asked to arrest him.

The moment the cop laid a hand on him and the rascal, turning, saw me his countenance fell. After leaving him at the police station I called on the young lady and handed her her diamond cross. After hearing what had occurred since she had left me with the blackmailer she made no objection to appearing as a witness at the trial. The pin pricks in the bills paid him proved my charge, and he was sent to the penitentiary for a term of years.

I made a charming acquaintance in the young lady, who was very grateful for my handling of her affair. What passed between us afterward is a story which she tells much better than I can tell it.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Backache.

This condition is not often due to disease. Great fatigue causes it; great strain, as from lifting or tugging heavy weights. Exposure to cold and dampness will make the back ache. Tramping about the damp streets without having the feet protected by overshoes will give one backache which is as painful as a throbbing toothache. Backache is often due to excesses.

The common everyday home treatment of the ordinary backache is all that is required. A hot bath and a brisk rubdown with a rough towel, followed by a ten hour rest abed, will banish ache or pain of nearly every backache. This is especially true of the kind caused by exposure. If the muscles in the back have been strained (lifting, etc.), the bath, rest or a belladonna plaster over the most painful portion of the back will bring relief. If backache is persistent in spite of all simple measures taken to relieve it, it is advisable always to seek advice from a physician.

Quite Homelike.

"Of course we try to make you feel at home here," said the manager of the hotel.

"Well," replied Mr. Cumrox, "you succeeded. The waiters stood around and criticised the way I selected my food and handled the tableware pretty much the way the folks at home do.'

Spanish Generosity.

A Spanish adventurer, returning from highly lucrative wanderings in the early day Americas, is said to have given away $600,000 in alms on the occasion of his marriage at Barcelona. Another stood in a Madrid window and threw handfuls of silver coins into the crowd until he had emptied two barrels.

Domestic Bliss.

Mrs. Nocknoodle—Oh, Norris, if you would always be as good and gentle and kind as you are at this moment how happy we might be! Mr. Nocknoodle (losing his temper instantly and bellowing at the top of his voice)—Do you mean to say, madam, that I am not always as good and kind as I am at this moment?

Strong Winds.

Nowhere else does the wind blow so hard and steadily as in the Falkland islands. Tree growth is practically impossible owing to this peculiarity, and with such force does the wind sweep that region at times that potatoes and turnips have been known to be blown out of the ground. Grass, however, grows luxuriantly.

The Way It Goes.

Little children who are permitted to look at a tarantula in a bottle are expected to gain some valuable lesson from the grewsome sight, although nobody knows just what that lesson is. A good many of the models and horrible examples that are held up before the rest of us are of just as vague value.

How to Work It.

"I wish I could get my wife to come home, but she'll stick and stick till the last dance is over."

"I'll tell you how to do it."

"How?"

"Just dance three times in succession with the pretty young girl in the bright red dress, and she'll take you home in a hurry.

Roller Skates.

The earliest roller skate was patented by a Frenchman in 1819. About 1864 the craze for roller skating made its first appearance in England. In 1866 the "rinking" fever broke out in Australia and thence proceeded back to England and then to the United States. There has been an "intermittent fever" ever since, breaking out at intervals into the roller skating fad.

Scratch!

Tommy and Freddie were arguing hotly. "I tell you," vociferated Tommy, "he is my pa, he is!"

Freddie laughed scornfully. "He ain't either your paw."

"He is—he is! My ma says he is too."

"And my ma says he's a catspaw!"

Influence of Dreams.

If we dreamed the same thing every night it would affect us as the objects we see every day. And if an artisan were sure to dream every night for twelve hours' duration that he was a king I blieve he would be almost as happy as a king who should dream every night for twelve hours on end that he was an artisan.

The Earliest Cigars.

The earliest mention of cigars in English occurs in a book dated 1735. A traveler in Spanish America named Cockburn, whose narrative was published in that year, describes how he met three friars at Nicaragua, who, he says, "gave us some seegars to smoke; these are Leaves of Tobacco rolled up in such Manner that they serve both for a Pipe and Tobacco itself; they know no other way here, for there is no such Thing as a Tobacco Pipe throughout New Spain."

VENGEANCE.

Would that all of us might learn to put off till tomorrow the desire to get even with those who have criticised or opposed us. There are some things which can always wait; vengeance is one of them.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building-tonic, free from any harmful drugs. Try it.

Good Recruiting Meeting.

The recruiting meeting last Friday evening in the Music Hall was one of, in fact the very best meeting of the kind held yet in Chesterville. The large crowd was enthusiastic and the speeches were effective, judging by the number of young men who signed up next day to do their bit for King and Country. After Mr. Whittam of Ottawa, had given a couple of much appreciated recitations bearing on the main subject of the evening, Lieut. Col. Macdonald addressed the meeting, pointing out the advantages of joining the 154th Battalion with the Dundas County boys, and the care and attention which he and his staff were prepared to give them, to make it one of the very best battalions leaving Canada. He is a forceful and earnest speaker and whose manner leads one to place entire confidence in the statements he makes. Capt. Leitch of Ottawa also spoke well, complimenting Chesterville on what it had already done in the way of recruiting and making a plea for as great an effort for the 154th as had been made for the Grenadier Guards, and from present appearances he is likely to get what he asked for.

The address of the evening, however, was made by Capt. S. T. Robins, who has been appointed paymaster of the 207th, the new Ottawa battalion. He has resigned his position as assistant private secretary to Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior, in order to go overseas. He is a clean, clear cut Welshman and needless to say an ardent admirer of David Lloyd George, the Imperial Minister of Munitions, whom he knew when the minister was but a lad. By-the-way, Capt. Robins has a son-in-law overseas with the Canadians and a son in training, and the statement of this fact led many in the audience to speculate as to the the Captain's age. What ever it may be his soldierly and almost youthful appearance would place it well under the age limit. His address was a treat, appreciated and applauded by all present. He had first hand knowledge of his subject from association with Germans when lecturing at a university in that country, and conveyed his impressions to his audience in a manner most thorough and enjoyable. He would be welcomed warmly to Chesterville again.

Revs. T. B. McCorkindale and H. E. Warren also made effective speeches, the latter especially placing before the meeting figures showing what was expected of this community before it had done its share in raising a half million Canadian soldiers.

Delightful musical numbers were given by Mrs. Howard, Miss Beattie, Miss McCorkindale and the High School chorus. The Reeve occupied the chair.

HOUSEHOLD LINENS.

Some Interesting Suggestions About the Proper Place to Mark Napkins.

No housekeeper can ever have enough attractive linen for her table and her bedrooms. She may have enough for actual service, but it is wise to keep just a little ahead of the actual need in extra towels for guest room and bathroom. It is also advisable to keep just a little ahead in the supply of linen for the table.

Every set of napkins and each tablecloth should have the housewife's surname initial or her monogram embroidered upon it. There is a question as to the proper place to put the initial or monogram, but the majority prefer the letter on tablecloths to be in the corner, where they will come just off the rounded edge of the table.

Napkins should have the initials in the corner or in the middle on one side, where they will be on top when the napkins are folded. Tea napkins are the only ones on which a wreath can appropriately be placed. It is quite permissible to place an initial within the wreath or other decorative motif. Tea napkins can also be finished with hemstitched or scalloped edges.

Some women may argue that they haven't time to put fancy work on household linen. This is a poor argument, for almost every woman has a few moments during the day when she sits down to chat with a neighbor or when she is waiting for the homecoming of her husband to his evening meal. It is during these odd moments that a great deal can be accomplished, especially in the way of fancy work. Pick up work is good for the nerves.

SHUTTING OUT SUNSHINE.

Various Ways to Brighten Up a Home In Winter.

If the housewife wishes to keep cheerful and happy she must provide for herself surroundings calculated to cheer and uplift. This can never be done by shutting out the sunshine and darkening the rooms with heavy hangings and somber papers. Rather it is her part to furnish her home with sunny papers and bright draperies.

This need not mean that the home must look out of date or cheap. The interior decorators have used chintzes so lavishly in their work of late years that it is considered very smart. They have produced some startling effects with the futurist cretonnes and the elaborate black and white chintzes. Nor can this material by any means be considered cheap when the good cretonnes sell up to $4 and $5 a yard. It is fortunate, however, for women of moderate means that chintz also sells as low as 12 and 15 cents a yard.

With the aid of plain, light colored wall paper and expensive or inexpensive chintz a home can be made to look 10 degrees lighter than it did when filled with dark velvets and subdued wall papers. The effect this change will have on the dispositions of the inmates of the home will quite offset any extra expense incurred in bringing it about. Bright surroundings are essential to bright natures.

The Belgians are looked upon as the greatest potato eaters in the world, and the Irish come second.

Genius.

Genius at first is little more than a great capacity for receiving discipline. —George Eliot.

Saturn.

Saturn's largest moon is 2,092 miles in diameter, slightly smaller than our own.

Manila Hemp.

Compared with common hemp the breaking strain of Manila hemp is in the ratio of four to three.

Siam.

Siam, outside of Bangkok, is mostly jungle, and its teak and timber trade is the most important industry.

The Walrus.

A walrus when six months of age will eat fifty pounds of fresh fish in a day.

Cooking Cuckoo.

How many cuckoos could a good cook cook if a good cook could cook cuckoos?

Ecuador.

Ecuador has a timbered area of 90,000 square miles. The total area of the republic is 116,000 square miles.

Funny, isn't it, that two-thirds of a man's troubles all wear petticoats?—London Telegraph.

Curious Echo.

There is an extraordinary echo in the cathedral at Pisa. If you sing two notes there is no reverberation, but if you sing three they are taken up, swelled and prolonged into a beautiful harmony.

"Yes," said the prince who married Cinderella, "my wife has the smallest foot in the kingdom."

Easily Settled.

"It's burning in the fourth story, chief, but the stream can only reach the second."

"Then we must wait until the fire gets down to the second story."

Conscience.

Conscience is not an indicator of what is right. That is the province of wisdom based on knowledge. Conscience is the divine imperative impelling us to do what we believe to be right.

IRRITABILITY.

An irritable man lies like a hedgehog rolled up the wrong way, tormenting himself with his own prickles.—E. P. Hood.

Deviled Scallops.

THE VEILED FUTURE

THE YEAR upon which we are entering is dark with mystery—we cannot forecast the events of a single day of it.

A new year naturally arouses anxious thought, but the disastrous war now raging adds to the prevalent anxicty as to what 1916 has in store for us.

Exposed to these uncertainties, is it not important that we should protect our homes and business enterprises with "the one thing sure"—life insurance?

Protected by Mutual policies the home is kept intact though the husband dies, the business is held together though the partner passes away.

There are no bonds or treaties in the world more binding than life insurance policies—no policies more immutable than those issued by

The aim of The Mutual Life is to give the largest amount of protection at the lowest possible cost.

Under the able handling of Messrs. R. Munro and G. Hynes, as against W. Hummel and H. Hummel the decision, which was left to a vote of the court was won by the former, securing a victory for the hens.

Did You Ever.

Do yon ever stop to think what town, any town, owes its newspapers? Do you realize how much of your town's past growth and present prosperity is due to the unceasing advocacy and advertising of its local papers? A good way to bring home to yourself what you and your business owe to your local paper or papers, is to figure to yourself what your town would be without them. This is one thing which some men, apparently intelligent and thoughtful in other matters, evidently never do.

Will Apply to Recruits in 154th Battalion.

Arrangements have been made for allowing soldiers who so desire to take part in spring seeding operations in various parts of Canada. There probably will be need of such help, and there surely will be a demand for strong arms when harvest time arrives. Many recruits for the army have come from fields where labor is never too plentiful and often very scarce. Their places will have to be filled if the country is not to suffer.

HOLINESS MOVEMENT CONVENTION.

A convention will be held in the Holiness Movement Church at Chesterville, beginning Friday, Feb. 18th, continuing over Sunday. Hours of service:—10.30 a.m., 2.30 and 7.30 p.m. Sunday night at 7. A number of evangelists and singers are expected. The doctrines preached by our fathers in the days of modern revivals, where thousands were converted, will be clearly set forth. All are cordially invited.

Pte. Arthur Hummel of Calgary, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hummel who has enlisted with the Princess Patricias, is at present spending a few days with his parents here. Monday he gave a very interesting talk to the students of the high school, showing how his duty to his country was made plain to him before enlistment.

This week a letter was received by The Record from Darlingford, Sask., from a former Winchester township boy who wants to enlist with the 154th Battalion, inquiring whether he would be in plenty of time to get in in March, before which time he cannot adjust his affairs satisfactorily to get away. The letter has been handed to Capt. Baker.

Fire destroyed the homes of Messrs. John Berry and A. Utman Mountain Station, Monday afternoon of last week. When first discovered the upstairs of the Berry house was all ablaze and the house and contents were both destroyed. The high wind caused the adjoining residence occupied by Lyman Bellinger, to catch fire, and it also totally destroyed, the contents; however, being saved. The fire is supposed to have originated from a defective stove-pipe.

Morrisburg Leader.—Just a few weeks ago, a man on crutches told the sentry on duty at the Locks that he was a returned soldier invalided home. He was permitted to pass, and we are told, entertained to Sunday dinner at the camp. A few days later report comes from Brockville that the same man was arrested there and a search revealed that he was in possession of incriminating papers and plans of the Morrisburg locks. Many of our life-long citizens, well-known to the sentries are not permitted to pass, and we recall when on one occasion even our Reeve, accompained by the Health Officer who has business of inspection on the canal were arrested and escorted by a military guard before the commanding officer.
