Joint force operation nets $1 million bust

Area police seize record cache of drugs at home in Moose Creek

Greg Kielec
Record Staff

MOOSE CREEK - Police have seized more than $1 million in drugs in a raid on a Moose Creek residence.

The raid, carried out Saturday night by Cornwall police, Ontario Provincial Police and RCMP, culminated a three-month investigation by the three forces.

Seized in the raid were 77.8 kilos of hashish, 181 grams of hash oil and 530 grams of marijuana.

The bust is the biggest ever in the area and also the biggest ever carried out by the Cornwall police drug enforcement unit, said staff Sgt. D'Arcy Dupuis of Cornwall City police.

"You're talking a lot of hash," he said in a telephone interview Tuesday. "We're not fortunate enough to get too many that size."

"It really is good way for us to kick off a new year."

He added, the raid should make a "sizeable dent" in the area drug market.

The two-storey Moose Creek home was being used as a processing and packaging location for hashish, for distribution in Cornwall, Ottawa and possibly even Montreal.

Charged in the raid with possession of narcotics for the purpose of trafficking is Fred Sadori, 35, of Moose Creek. Sadori is being held in custody by police.

Police seized a variety of equipment in the raid, including three scales, one large press, and a microwave oven, used in the processing and packaging of the drugs.

Dupuis said the seizure is proof that people involved in drug trafficking are moving out of the city and into rural areas.

Rural areas are being looked at by traffickers as a safe haven, away from the publicand away from city police, Dupuis said.

"It's a little better environment for them. A little safer," he said.

Samples from the raid are being sent to a laboratory for tests. The complete cache of drugs will be destroyed after the tests are completed.

Tragic fire takes life of 13-year-old in Avonmore

Greg Kielec
Record Staff

AVONMORE - Hopes of a happy new year turned to tragedy when a house fire here claimed the life of a 13-year-old girl Jan. 1.

Christine Baker died when fire gutted her family's rented home around 2:30 a.m. New Year's Day. Her 14-year-old brother, Corey, and her parents escaped from the fire.

Baker's father, Daniel, was sent to Ottawa General Hospital with serious burns and her mother, Susan, was sent to Hotel Dieu Hospital in Cornwall for treatment, after the fire.

Corey Baker escaped the fire with minor injuries.

Dean McIntyre, Avonmore deputy fire chief, said it was Corey Baker who discovered the fire and alerted a neighbor, who then called the fire department.

He was told Baker's parents had to jump from a second-storey window to escape from the house.

A total of about 30 firefighters, from the Avonmore, Newington, Finch and Moose Creek fire departments, had little chance to stop the fire.

"When we got there, the house was pretty well engulfed in flames."

The blaze was so far gone, it lit up the night sky as firefighters headed out to the scene.

"When we left the town here, the sky was just red, just like a sunrise coming up in the east," McIntyre said.

The fire was the first fatal one in the area in a number of years, he said. It is uncertain how the fire, under investigation by the Ontario Fire Marshall's office, started.

Newsbriefs

House break-in

FINCH - Police are investigating a break-in at the eighth concession of Finch Township which took place between 7:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Monday. Entry to the home was gained through a side door and a Panasonic color television valued at $550 was stolen in the incident.

Suspect nabbed

MONKLAND - Police have arrested and charged a man in custody in connection with a Monday morning break-in at a McEwen Fuels gas bar in Monkland. Charged with break and enter, and theft, is Andre Major of Cornwall. Major was arrested after being stopped at a police road block on Highway 138 near St. Andrews. Police set up the road blocks after receiving a call from a witness of the break and enter. Stolen were $770 worth of cigarettes which were later recovered by police. Entry was gained to the gas bar through the smashing of a plate glass window, police said. The break-in was the third at the gas bar in less than a month.

Two arrested

MOOSE CREEK - Two Ottawa men have been charged in connection with a break-in at a grocery store in Moose Creek at 4:30 a.m. Jan. 3. Charged with break and enter, theft, and possession of stolen goods in the joint OPP, Ottawa police effort, are Desmond Johnston, 30, and Richard Robert Levesque, 22, both of Ottawa. Stolen in the break-in were cigarettes, lottery tickets and cash totalling almost $2,000. Both men are in custody in Cornwall.

Ice danger

CHESTERVILLE - The South Nation River Conservation Authority is warning people to stay off the South Nation River due to dangerous ice conditions. A leak in the SNRCA dam in Chesterville has caused water levels to drop and may weaken areas of ice in the river up to Cass Bridge and possibly further. The authority is to work on the dam over the next week to stop the leak. It advises anyone who does go on the river to check the ice thickness and gap between the ice and water before carrying out any activity.

Business meeting

CHESTERVILLE - Chesterville merchants are urged to attend a village business meeting Jan. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Anglican Church Parish Hall on Queen Street in Chesterville. It is the second meeting held by the group. The first meeting was held in November.

Towing the line
Darryl Burns and Robert Desormeaux take advantage of about 10 cm of new snow, Sunday, as they hitch a ride with a ski-doo at a park in Chesterville near the South Nation River. About a half dozen children were taking advantage of the sunny winter weather in the park to slide about in the snow.

Taxing proposal

Implementation of GST a headache for businesses

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE - It has been just over a week since area businesses began having their cash registers ring in an extra seven percent tax on most of the goods and services they provide.

The much maligned and controversial new federal sales tax, the goods and services tax (GST) is now a fact of life.

But adjusting to that new fact of life has not been easy on small business which have to charge the new tax on many of the goods and services they provide.

Much of the controversy which surrounded the new tax, which went in to effect midnight Jan. 1, had to do with the effect the new tax on consumers.

But for many small businesses, just preparing for the implementation of the tax has been a big headache and has proven time-consuming.

Mike Dean, the owner of Chesterville's Dean Mike's Super Food Store, said he has been preparing his grocery store for the GST for the past four months.

"It's just a hell of a pile of work," he said.

Dean and his employees are spending today doing inventory in preparation for the GST. Only 28 per cent of Dean's inventory will be affected by the GST, because most items in his store are exempt from the tax. But the store will still have to make 3,500 prices changes, he said.

Dean's main complaint was with the federal government's poor timing in starting the GST. The federal government should have started imposing the tax only in February when the Christmas shopping rush is over.

"(Christmas) is one of our busiest seasons," he said.

Dale McNaughton, the owner of the Chesterville's Seaway Valley Pharmacy, spent this past weekend taking inventory. Like Dean, McNaughton found adjusting prices for goods sold at the pharmacy to incorporate the new tax to be complicated and a lot of work.

"It will be quite difficult... to set it up properly (and) to be fair to our customers," he said Friday.

To be fair to his customers, McNaughton said he would absorb the new tax until his old inventory was used up. He expected his old inventory to last until February.

Betty Thompson, the owner of B and E Toys said she was dreading the paperwork she faced with the imposition of the GST.

"I'm not ready for it, but I guess I'll have to be," she said Friday.

The imposition of the GST means all the goods sold at her store and her video rental service will be affected by the new tax. Thompson was unsure of what kind of impact the new tax would have on her customers.

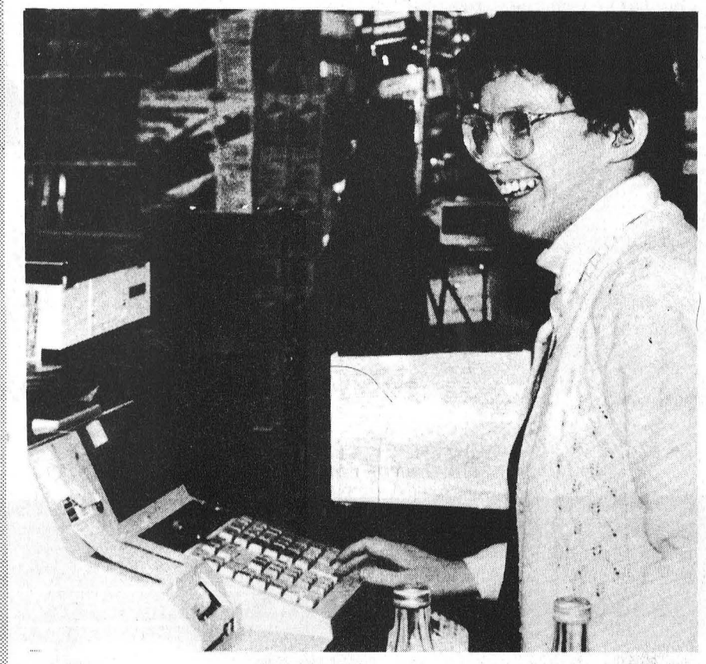
"I think it will (keep customers away) for a little while until people get used to it," she said.

At least one area business is not ready for charging the GST. Mary Jane Bertrand, a part-owner of Sweet Sisters Bakery in Winchester, said her business will have to absorb the tax until she finds out what goods she has to tax.

Although Sweet Sisters was registered for the GST last summer, Bertrand said she still hasn't received any information on what goods she has to charge the GST.

"Until I get information from the government, I'm not going to pass it to my customers," she said.

However some business people have found the transition to GST easier. Bert Blom, the owner of Eagle Farm Equipment, in Winchester Township, said most of work for the transition to GST was carried out by his supplier which sent a list of new prices.



Marian Page now has to charge GST on many goods

Compromise reached in road naming dispute

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

MAPLE RIDGE - A compromise has been reached in a dispute over the naming of a Winchester Township road.

A group of Maple Ridge Road residents backed down from their demand to rename a disputed portion of Belanger Road at a township council meeting Monday night.

A portion of a road which has been traditionally been part of Maple Ridge Road was named Belanger Road in a bylaw passed by council last year.

The three road residents, accepted a proposal to ask the Ministry of Transportation to place a sign at the junction of Highway 43 and Belanger Road which would indicate the way to Maple Ridge Road.

Allan Hutchinson, the spokesperson for the Maple Ridge Road residents, said council's proposal was acceptable to residents.

"The by-law stays the same. It's just that we requested a sign," he said.

During the meeting, Deputy Reeve Wyman Barton asked the residents if they would accept putting an additional sign at the Highway 43 junction instead of renaming the disputed portion of the road.

The three residents agreed and Hutchinson later asked if council would ask the Ministry of Transportation to install an additional sign.

Barton and other members of council quickly lent their support to the request.

"I think this is a reasonable request," said Barton.

Maple Ridge Road residents demanded in October that council change the bylaw to rename the disputed portion of Belanger Road as Maple Ridge Road.

About 50 residents petitioned council to restore the original name of the road to the sign on Highway 43. They claimed Maple Ridge Road had run its horseshoe-shaped course unchanged for 111 years before a portion of it was renamed Belanger Road last year.

Council initially bowed to the pressure from the Maple Ridge road residents and passed a motion renaming the disputed a portion of the road.

But when council approached the Ministry of Transportation to replace the sign indicating Belanger Road, it was told it would cost $500.

Council decided at a meeting in December the $500 fee was too much and informed Maple Ridge Road residents the disputed portion would remain named Belanger Road.

At the meeting Monday night council decided to ask if the Minstry of Transportation would consider installing a sign at a lesser cost on Highway 43 indicating Maple Ridge Road.

Winchester Township Reeve Claude Cousineau suggested the township could place its own sign on municipal property if MTO refused to put up an additional sign.

Council officially assigned about 50 names to municipal roads in a bylaw passed last year. The road naming was done to conform to a new county- wide emergency-response system.

Cousineau defended the procedure undertaken to rename the roads. He said the township published advertisements announcing for four successive weeks a public meeting on the road naming.

Village clerk, police deny access to information law is more restrictive

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE - Ontario's new Municipal Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act has prompted a flurry of debate over whether the new law makes municipal government less accessible.

Howard Smith, Chesterville's village clerk, predicted Tuesday there would be little change in the village's policy of openess towards the public and the media as a result of the new freedom of information law which went into effect Jan. 1.

"I don't see any big changes from the way we've been doing things," he said.

The Municipal Freedom of Information Act and Protection of Privacy Act gives municipalities the right to screen requests for information. Critics say the law gives municipalities too much power to restrict the public's access to information.

Smith would not say whether he believes municipalities have been given too much power to control the public's access to information.

"Some people are saying that the act is stacked in favor of the persons with the information, that they can now use the exemptions to deny access," he said.

But he doubted the new law would be used much by Chesterville's municipal office.

"We've had a pretty good rapport, working relationship with the press, the public and there is nothing for us to hide," he said.

But Smith admitted the new law could spell trouble for the media if a municipal government chose to enforce the access information act to the letter.

Under the act, to get access to information an applicant has to fill out form and the municipality has 30 days to process the request.

Smith said a municipality has the power to make life difficult for newspapers and broadcast media to obtain information because most media have publication deadlines.

"If they want to apply the act and put you through the hoops and strings...there isn't a whole lot you can do about it...they have the legitimate right to delay you and in your eyes that may seem unreasonable and in reality it may be unreasonable, but the act allows them to do it," he said.

Smith predicted most residents and media would still be able to obtain information immediately without going through application process.

But Smith would not rule out instances where the municipal office might have to resort to using the act to screen the release of information.

"But at the same time we're going to try to be as accommodating as before," he said.

The public's right to access information from the police should also be unaffected the new access to information law.

Sgt. Al Crocker, public information co-ordinator for the OPP in Long Sault, said the new law will have no affect on the OPP's policy of releasing information.

"We will continue as we have in the past. At this point of time we're not going to change our present policy," he said.

Crocker said the new act isn't applicable to the provincial police and that the OPP has its own access to information law which has been in place since 1988.

Since the new municipal access to information act has come into force Jan. 1, there have been complaints aired in the media that various municipal police forces have started withholding victim's names.

Crocker said the OPP would continue releasing the names of crime victims except in sensitive cases such as sexual assualt and suicide, he said.

Boon or bust?

It was good news. It was fabulous news. Police netted a $1 million drug bust this weekend in Moose Creek.

To put it simply, $1 million worth of drugs are off the street, there is $1 million less of drugs for users to buy.

It was an admirable feat, an almost unimaginable feat. After all who would imagine that a tiny hamlet like Moose Creek would be used in a drug operation of such magnitude.

Area police thought it plausible, and indeed it was plausible, as the results of their raid Saturday showed it as such. Marijuanna, 530 grams worth, hashish, a hefty 77.8 kilos worth, hash oil, 181 grams worth, it was all recovered in a three-force raid.

Police have reason to be proud of the seizure, the largest ever single-seizure in the area. But the question looms, what has the raid accomplished, what effect, if any, will the bust have on drug use in Eastern Ontario and possibly Western Quebec? Police are realistic enough to realize the raid is only a drop in the bucket and that raids such as Saturday's are only a band-aid solution for a much-larger problem.

The use of drugs is a social problem. The drug trade will never be eliminated as long as there is a demand for illegal drugs. And society cannot even come close to solving the drug problem until it determines just why drugs are a necessary part of many peoples' lives.

It is unfortunate that so much time and money is used to catch drug dealers, send them to court, and put them in jail, when so little time and money is spent trying to solve the dilemma of the drug user —why does such a person need the high that comes with the use of drugs?

Like any business operating in a supply-demand market, the drug trade, if there is no demand, will have no reason to supply drugs, and hence, go out of business. The question is, how does one eliminate demand?

Busting drug dealers will not eliminate demand. It may keep some of the world's unsavory characters off the street, but like any business, if there is a demand, profit-driven, freedom- loving capitalists will do their best to meet that demand, at a large expense to the user.

One cannot expect a social problem such as drug use to be solved by police action alone. It is up to the provincial government to look at alternatives to address the province's drug problem, alternatives which will effectively eliminate drug abuse by addressing the needs of users.

GST another hidden tax

To the Editor:

I realize that by now everyone thinks he has heard enough about the GST but, in fact, this is not so. How many have taken the time to consider the loopholes the Tories have left in the legislation to permit fraud and trickery against the taxpaying public?

Mike Wilson made a lot of noise about the GST getting rid of the HIDDEN Manufacturers Tax, so that when we pay the GST, an added tax as opposed to a hidden tax, we would all see what the tax is that we are paying!

Not so Mike! You and your Tory friends designed the legislation to allow retailers to advertise that the GST is included in the price. Is this not permitting a HIDDEN Tax all over again?

And, when a retailer advertises that the GST is included in the price of an article, how is the consumer to know if 7% has been added? Could it not have been 8% or 9% or...? How can the consumer check?

I do not believe this was just an oversight that will be quickly corrected. I firmly believe that if the public meekly accepts this hideous tactic of deception, the government will use it as a means of annually increasing the percentage of the GST without having to inform the public of the actual amount of the increase. It would be INCLUDED IN THE PRICE!!!

No my friends, we have not heard enough about the GST!

I would suggest that consumers boycott all retailers who claim to have included the GST in the price of the article they are selling. This is one more case of Buyer Beware! Brian, Mike and Company have just left too much room here for trickery!

Sincerely,
Carl Ward

GATT failure not all bad

To the Editor:

As most of us have heard, the trade talks concerning agricultural subsidies have all but collapsed. As the end drew near, almost all the headlines across the country were forecasting doom and gloom about the future of trade in agriculture and all trade in general.

Many questions arise from that scenario. Are governments trying to manipulate the press and citizens to think this is so? Must we have this deal at all costs? Are the free traders among us trying to eliminate all subsidies for their own benefit?

Why demand a 75% cut in everything for every type of subsidy in every country when every country subsidizes at different levels?

Are Canadian farmers expected to cut their income by 75% of $8.8 billion, or 75% of approximately $2 billion that is actually spent?

Can they isolate trade concern from rural development, food security, poverty or the environment, which they are trying to do?

Two companies in the U.S. control the chicken industry from the egg to the store shelves. Will this be the norm world wide?

Does our government really want to protect supply management, or change it from farmer control to corporate control?

The unanswered questions could go on and on. Our country and our world definitely needs more fairness in trade. What we don't need is the will of several large trading countries or blocs forced on us.

With these questions in mind, is it really so bad that the GATT talks in their present form appear to have failed?

War: grave consequences await

For the Record

Yves Cossette

War is on the verge of breaking out in the Middle East. Yet there is far more concern over the consequences of avoiding war than concern over the consequences of fighting a war.

Since Iraq's invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2, 1990 there has been a non-stop mobilization of military forces in the Persian Gulf area.

There are roughly half-a-million men and women under the United Nations flag facing an equal number of Iraq's armed forces.

The deadline set by the United Nations for Iraq's withdrawal out of Kuwait is just days away now and unless Iraq and the United States–the principal military contributor to the United Nations' forces—can reach a compromise to resolve the conflict, then a war involving more than a million men and women is very likely.

But here in Canada there is apathy towards a potentially devastating conflict. Polls do show people are aware of the crisis and that they have opinions on Canada's military presence in the gulf. The latest polls show support of Canada's role is declining somewhat.

Yet parliament is on holidays and people in general are displaying a fatalistic attitude toward the prospect of war, as if the war's impact would have minimal effect on life in Canada.

How a mid-east war will affect us is difficult to ascertain. It would depend on a number of factors, such as the length of the conflict, the enormity of the conflict, its outcome, and the number of casualties.

But a war would have an impact. The array of sophisticated conventional weaponry the multi- national forces and Iraqis have aimed at each other is awesome. Military analysts generally agree once the shooting starts between a relatively inexperienced multi-national force and the battle-hardened Iraqis the casualties will be high.

The Iraqis have threatened the use of chemical weapons. The use of such weapons raises the possibility of retaliation. If Iraq uses its chemical weapons on Israel as it has threatened to do, Israel has nuclear weapons it may be willing to use in retaliation. There have been reports that even the United States may be considering the use of nuclear weapons.

A high number of military casualties would certainly weaken the resolve of people to support a war that many argue would be done to protect their access to cheap oil.

But as in any war, there will be civilian suffering. There will be refugees–a large number of them–which could add to the instability in the region.

If Hussein is able to carry out his threats, he could seriously disrupt the flow of oil from the Middle East by attacking Saudi Arabian oil fields which have increased production over the past few months to make up for the loss off Kuwaiti oil.

Oil companies which took adavantage of the Kuwaiti invasion to jack up prices could have a field day if war broke out. The result–escalating energy costs–is not something our economy needs during a recession.

Finally there is the possibility that the war could escalate beyond the potential United Nations versus Iraq scenario. What if Iran decides to help its old foe Iraq? What if Iraq succeeds in drawing Israel into the war?

Middle East analysts are divided on how Israel's foes such as Syria, Saudi Arabia, which are now allied against Iraq, would react.

An attack on Israel by Hussein would be aimed at breaking up the Arab coalition which has joined the United States to oppose Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. If that happened, the United States and its European and Canadian allies could be bogged down on hostile turf and be drawn into a prolonged conflict.

It's a war we can neither afford economically nor otherwise.

If the Arab coalition broke up, the world could be on the brink of a major war. It is a worst case scenario, but a plausible one.

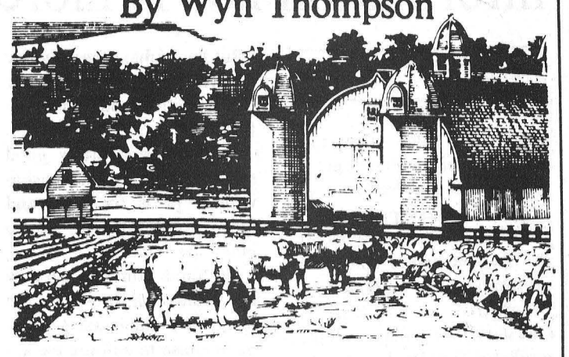
Yet neither Prime Minister Brian Mulroney nor the Canadian public are overly concerned over the possible enormity of the war should it break out.

It is not good enough to merely consider that Saddam Hussein is a threat to our economic interests and that any form of aggression, such as the invasion of Kuwait, in the post cold-war era must be stopped.

We should also seriously consider the consequences of going to war as opposed to the consequences of not going to war.

The Farmer's Wife

By Wyn Thompson



Outside, it's one of those rare January days, a real jewel of a day. Granted, it is cold and crisp but oh, so sunny.

I had been invited to have tea with Amanda, neighbour Sam's wife, and as it was such a nice day I walked over the hill to her place.

On the tea table sat a grandly blooming violet flanked by two lovely, old hourglasses. "Do you know anything of the history of the hourglass?" I asked knowing that Amanda is a veritable walking encyclopedia.

"Well, when I look at an hourglass I always recall Longfellow's reminder that upon departing this earth, we "leave behind us footprints on the sands of time," she laughed.

"Actually, all I know about the hourglass is that it is one of history's most intriguing timekeeping devices," I replied, "and never to this moment have I seen fit to be more curious about it!"

"A good time to be curious at the beginning of the year. I know I have a book in which there is an article on the hourglass and if I can put my hand on it, what better time to learn about the sands of time..."emphasized Amanda.

She found the book in short order as I knew she would for her filing system is much better than mine.

"A Carthusian monk of the 8th century, AD, is sometimes identified as the inventor," she read aloud, "but it goes on to say that this is untrue, since the timekeeping device appeared in Greek sculpture in 250 BC."

"To this day, the hourglass is associated with religion and the church. By the pulpit of many English churches still stands a pedestal on which sits the hourglass within easy reach of the minister," she continued.

"Can't you just hear the sigh emanating from the congregation when the minister reached to turn the vial and then continued preaching," I laughed.

"Just listen to this," remarked Amanda, "in early times in Europe, the glasses were often placed in coffins to show that time had run out for the one who had died."

"How grim!" It was time to go as the sun was setting and winter's cold would soon descend on Eastern Ontario.

We promised to get together again soon. We had had a delightful visit —a learning experience as always, I thought, as I pulled my parka around my face and bent into the east wind that spoke of an approaching storm.

As I came down the hill, a big flock of evening grosbeaks swept by me. I do like to see this flash of yellow at my feeders, but they are a greedy bunch and don't stay still long. I know so little about them; I must check my bird book when I get out of these heavy clothes.

It seems that before the beginning of the century, they lived and nested only in the conifers of Northern Canada and the high mountains of the West.

Then in the early 1900s, a few birds began to winter south and east. By 1916 small flocks began to appear on occasion throughout the Northeast, and some of them eventually stayed behind to nest in Eastern Canada and the Northeastern United States.

Now some of them even winter in Florida and the Gulf states. Smart birds, I decide, as I go out to carry wood in for the evening fires.

No one knows exactly what precipitated the wanderlust in these once stay-at-home birds. Perhaps population pressure, a food shortage, or some other crisis.

At any rate, it is good to see them even if I am secretly happy they don't stay long at any one time, for if they did, they would surely eat me out of house and home.

This morning as I answered the ringing of my telephone, I could not believe what I saw roosting on the wrought iron railing of the gallery. A marsh hawk!

At first, I was sorely annoyed for I knew he was laying in wait for one of my little birds but, as we eyeballed each other through the window, I grudgingly had to admit that he was a magnificent speicmen-regal, majestic as any sovereign viewing his kingdom. And, of course, I respect the laws of nature.

When I told the Farmer of the incident he said that he was seeing more and more hawks around, and that it was a good thing for they kept the rodent population under control. "For a few years, I never saw one hawk and it was a great pity," he concluded.

"So long as they leave my little birds alone I won't molest them," I muttered, filling our plates with stew and dumplings.

"It has been my week for strange sightings," I continued, "as I drove to number two son's home this morning a red fox dashed out of the bush, crossed in front of the car, and disappeared into another bush. He was a wonderfully red colour."

I met a fan of this column on the street today and he asked me what I was reading. I told him "The Great Depression 1929-1939" by Pierre Berton, and that it was a revelation, truly, it had scarred an entire generation, as Berton suggested.

Standing on the street corner we recalled that Canadians have always been a cautious people and that the Depression made us more cautious than ever.

"No wonder we products of the Depression were baffled when thirty some years later our kids quit jobs to travel and have a good time, and then begin again with a new employer," he laughed.

"What impressed me most," I said, "was the fact that for a good many Canadians there were no hard times. Being raised in a very small village, it seemed to me that we were practically all in the same boat, but of course, I learned differently as the years went by. However, Berton brought this fact home to me very emphatically."

"Now, we have a whole new set of challenges before us," we agreed, as we wished each other a good year, and parted company.

Bunny to return as carnival mascot

Yves Cossette
Record staff

CHESTERVILLE - The Nestle Quik Bunny's cousin will return as Chesterville's Winter Carnival mascot this year.

But carnival organizers have not yet decided whether the furry mascot will be put through the ordeal of a kidnapping again.

A kidnapping was staged to introduce the bunny as the Chesterville Winter Carnival's mascot last year, and as a way to get children involved in carnival activities.

About 500 children from in and around Chesterville participated in the manhunt to rescue the mascot which made its debut last year.

Robin Langille, Chesterville's recreation director, said Friday the carnival committee still has to decide what the bunny's role will be this year.

"The bunny will be part of the carnival...it will be making appearances, he said.

Langille, who took over from former recreation director Tom Lee, is organizing his first winter carnival. He predicted a carnival similar to last year's.

"There are a few changes, but the basic schedule is the same as last year," he said.

The carnival will take place Feb. 1 to 3. One of the changes from last year will likely be the demise of the Saturday night dance which last year was organized by the Lions Club.

But the Lions' have something else in mind this year. Lions' member Terry Ducolon said the service group is considering letting residents smash up a car with a sledgehammer.

Ducolon stressed the idea of smashing a car has not yet been confirmed by the club, but he painted a scenario in which smashing a car could be the right therapy for people fed up with the Goods and Services Tax which went into effect Jan. 1.

"We're going to beat the hell out of this car. It costs you a buck to take your frustration out on the car," he said.

Langille is also trying to organize an evening of family-oriented activities to replace the Saturday night dance.

"We found maybe a dance is just geared to one certain type of group," he said.

Langille is trying the rope the Knights of Columbus into running a casino, like the one they ran last year, the Monte Carlo Night.

"That was very successful I was told," he said.

For Saturday and Sunday morning, Langille is hoping the Rotary Club will organize another pancake breakfast.

A bingo is being planned by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Legion to be held Saturday afternoon. And Langille is hoping the fairboard will once again organize some of the outdoor activites, such as the log sawing competition, as it has in previous years.

Planning is still in its early stages, Langille said. Most of the organizing has been done over the phone so far.

"I've got a lot of 'yes we'll do it,' but we'll get back to you. Nothing has been totally set yet," he said.

Langille said he would set up a meeting sometime this week to get all the parties involved in organizing the carnival together under one roof.

So far only one event has been confirmed. The teen dance which is being organized by the recration committee will take place Friday night, Feb. 1, he said.

Fundraising by W.D.M.H. Auxiliary nets over $10,000

WINCHESTER - Gail VanNoy welcomed a full house to the December W.D.M.H. Auxiliary meeting. The dinner looked more like a banquet than a pot luck affair.

Santa Claus came via the auxiliary units, bringing in over $10,000 from their various fundraisers. A total of $2,000 from Chesterville, $1,300 and piles of knitted articles from Morrisburg, $3,500 from Winchester Unit and Betty Barton brought $4,000 from the Hospital Gift Shoppe, a beautifully-quilted crib quilt, quilted by Bea Moss of Metcalfe, and a junior size quilt from Golden Valley Unit.

James Egan, chief administrative officer of the hospital, received a cheque for $7,860, the final payment on the monitors purchased by the auxiliary from the "In Memoriam Fund."

Edna Levere, senior volunteer co-ordinator, announced that all volunteers would receive copies of the "Do's" and "Don'ts" for volunteers as soon as they are available.

Louise Shaw, teen volunteer co-ordinator, gave a very enthusiastic report of the O.H.A.A. Convention. She also noted there have been 12 new teen volunteers since September.

In response to the auxiliary's appeal for knitted shoulder shawls for patients in 1-East, 12 have been received so far.

She suffered much in silence,
Her spirit did not bend,
She faced her pain with courage,
Until the very end.
She tried so hard to stay with us,
Her fight was all in vain,
God took her to his loving home,
And freed her from all pain.

ATTENTION PROPERTY OWNERS AND TENANTS IN MORRISBURG VILLAGE

The annual Assessment Roll listing the assessed value of each property in your municipality will be delivered to your municipal clerk on February 5th, 1991. The amount of property tax (municipal and school) you will pay on your home or business in 1991 is determined by multiplying your assessed value by the mill rate, which is calculated by your municipality. The mill rate is based on the financial needs of your municipality, county or region, and school board.

Notices of Property Valuation are mailed to property owners and tenants, prior to the delivery of the Assessment Roll, only if any of the information relating to their property assessment has changed during the past year, such as the assessed value, school support or address; or if they appealed their 1989 property assessment.

Information Open Houses

Whether or not you received a Notice of Property Valuation, you may have questions about your property assessment. If you do, please come to an information Open House. An assessor from the Ministry of Revenue's Regional Assessment Office will be available to explain your assessment, answer your questions, and change any inaccurate information relating to your property.

If you have questions but can't make it to an Open House, please call or visit the Regional Assessment Office.

The date and location of the Open House in your municipality and the address of the Regional Assessment Office are listed below.

Appealing Your Assessment

If you are still dissatisfied with your assessment after going to an Open House or contacting the Regional Assessment Office, you may appeal to the Assessment Review Board. The appeal must be filed within twenty-one days after the delivery of the Assessment Roll.

To file an appeal, please use the form on the back of your Notice of Property Valuation, write a letter, or use a Notice of Appeal form. This form and the address of the Assessment Review Board are available at Open Houses, the Regional Assessment Office, and your municipal office.

Nationside Pentecostal Church burning to celebrate pay-off of its parsonnage

Greg Kielec
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE - The congregation of Nationside Pentecostal Church has had a burning desire to pay off the mortage on its five-year-old parsonnage. Now that it has accomplished its goal, it has one more burning desire.

Church members are fired up for a special ceremony marking the accomplishment, the torching of the parsonnage's mortage document to officially signify the pay off of the $58,000.

Rev. Larry Armstrong, minister at the church, will preside over the ceremonial burning of the mortage paper Sunday, in a special service marking the five-year accomplishment.

Church members have good reason to be fired up over their almost miraculous accomplishment. For a church its size to pay off a mortage that quickly, is an accomplishment to be proud of, he said.

"That's a really good accomplishment for a small church in five years," he said.

The mortage is no longer existent. "It's gone, finished," he said.

When he took over as minister at the church four and a half years ago, it had a congregation of about 30 members. It now has 50 members, and it is the generosity of the members the past five years which made the pay off possible, he said Friday.

"This is really commendable of the number of people to take care of this debt," he said.

The parsonnage was built in late 1985 for a total cost of $68,000, including land. Donations totalled almost $14,000 and a $7,000 loan was received from the Eastern Ontario church district, significantly reducing the cost of the project.

Armstrong said, when he took over as minister at the church, there was $38,000 of the mortage unpaid. But it did not take long to whittle it down to zero.

The quick pay off of the mortage could be attributed to the growing membership of the church, which now boasts about 50 members, up about 20 members from 1985.

"It's been growing. That's always encouraging as well," he said.

The ceremony marking the completion of the mortage may seem unusual, but Armstrong said the practice in churches is actually quite common.

And the ceremony will contain a little unintentional symbolism. The mortage paper will be burned in a money collection plate used by the church.

The ceremony will feature Rev. S. Hunter, district superintendent of Eastern Ontario and Quebec distrit of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, as guest speaker.

Pessimistic outlook
Farmers do not have much more optimism than they had last year in solving their perennial woes. Concerns including the negotiations under the General Agreement on Tarriffs and Trade and government support for farmers, should the negotiations collapse.

Farmers look to new year with pessimism

Greg Kielec and Yves Cossette
Record staff

CHESTERVILLE - The new year for most people usually brings new hope, but for area farmers, the usual new year optimism is mixed with a healthy dose of pessimism.

Major concerns are the collapse of negotiations under the General Agreement of Tarriffs and Trades and what protection farmers will have should attempts through GATT to reduce export subsidies fail.

The GATT negotiations aimed at reducing farm export subsidies collapsed late last year after the European Economic Community rejected a United States subsidy reduction proposal.

Canadian grain farmers are caught in the middle of the U.S. - EEC subsidy war which has artificially lowered the world price of grain. Without subsidies equal to those received by U.S. and EEC farmers, Canadian farmers cannot offer lower grain prices to compete.

And there is fear that without a new GATT deal, the battle could worsen. Trade pundits are concerned that if the subsidy reduction negotiations fail, increased trade protectionism may result and trade battles between the EEC and the U.S. could become even more fierce.

Alvin Runnalls, a Chesterville area farmer, thinks the lack of a GATT agreement will not hurt farmers significantly, provided there is increased support from the government.

Two support programs being worked on at the provincial and federal government level may be what farmers need to protect them if the subsidy reduction negotiations fail completely.

"A lot will depend on how these programs will be managed and how they will be accepted," Runnalls said Monday.

Even with the proposed programs, the year does not look like it will be an easy one for farmers to peg.

"I just don't know what kind of year we're going to face," he said. "It's very iffy."

One other concern for farmers is cross-border shopping and the five per cent increase of milk imports from the United States.

Cross-border shopping by people taking advantage of cheaper U.S. dairy products could partially undermine Canada's own dairy industry. The import increase will also hurt.

But the year should not all be doom and gloom for the farm industry, which will likely fare better this recession than other sectors, such as heavy industry, which has taken a battering in Eastern Ontario, Runnalls said.

And if the area farm industry remains healthy, the area economy should also remain healthy, benefitting from the economic spin-off of the local farm industry.

Joe Jackson, a Chesterville area dairy farmer as well, said future GATT negotiations will continue to be of paramount interest to dairy farmers because of the possible implications of their outcome.

"If the negotiators aren't careful the industry could be hurt by that (the outcome). I think a lot of farmers are going to depend on it," he said.

Jackson fears GATT talks could spell slow doom for dairy farmers if GATT allows American and European dairy imports into Canada. The products will likely still be subsidized, enabling the U.S. and the EEC to sell dairy products cheaply.

"I'm afraid if they'll open the door a crack...it's going to kill (our) internal market, domestic market with cheap imports (and) some of those are going to be subsidized and dumped," he said.

And he is worried GATT will allow the Americans to be exempt from many of GATT's rules which would give them an unfair trade advantage.

"My biggest fear is they won't allow a level playing field," he said. "It boils down to that they won't be able to level the playing field."

"You look at the way the hog industry is and the U.S. does what it wants anyway."

He said the Americans have a history of dictating trade deals to their own advantage.

"They carry a stick, (telling everyone) 'we'll do as we say and not as GATT or anybody else tells us'...They'll play by their own rules. That's the only advantage they have.

"They make the rules and they'll play by them. If they don't like the rules, it doesn't matter, they'll play by their own rules," he said.

He doesn't believe Americans will ever permit Canadian dairy imports.

"As far as I know we can't send milk into the U.S. yet...Nobody has told me that they are going to give that up," he said.

Jackson also hopes interest rates will come down this year to ease the financial pressure on farmers who are in debt.

But the lower interest rates are meaningless if GATT negotiations aren't resolved in a way favorable to Canadian farmers.

"If you can't sell your product on the world market and make a dollar out of it, it doesn't matter what (the) interest rate is.

Jackson also predicted 1991 will see technology becoming more and more a part of agriculture as the turn of the century approaches. And the increase of technology could spell doom for the family run farm.

"I think the individual family (run farm) is going to die. It's not going to happen overnight. It's going to happen over the next ten years," he said.

For Jackson who operates a dairy farm near Chesterville the next five years will be crucial to his own farming operation.

"We're going to either get bigger or get out," he said.

Study cites shortage of rural doctors

CORNWALL - Shortages of physicians, obstetrical care, and health promotion are some of the problems facing people in non-urban Ontario, according to a study underway at the District Health Council of Eastern Ontario.

The Ministry of Health-financed study focuses on inequities in regional primary health care in five eastern Ontario counties –Stormont, Dundas & Glengarry and Prescott-Russell.

It also aims at improving distribution of services through extending the already existing network of community health centres as well as developing other locally-based delivery options.

According to the study's consultant Daniel Steinwald, the objective is to identify the needs of the population in the five-county region and develop an overview of what's currently available in primary care services.

"We know there are services lacking out there and that's related to uneven distribution of resources," Steinwald said in a telephone interview. He also said the study will focus on areas of need and how to "rationalize distribution" to achieve better services throughout the region.

One solution currently being discussed by Ministry of Health officials is to enlarge the network of community health centres [CHC], mostly located in cities. The CHC's are clinics that specialize in wide-ranging preventative health care services.

According to Ghisline Bourque, District Health Council official, CHC care is not emergency room treatment but locally administered medical and social service clinics. "The idea is to promote good health through prevention," she said.

The concept dovetails with the Ministry of Health's promotion of more home-care to senior citizens and anti-smoking programs aimed at curbing the rise of smoking and related disease especially among young women.

The $60,000 study is an initiative of the District Health Council, a consultative body appointed by the Ministry of Health.

A community health advisory committee has also been set up to advise the Ministry and the Council on the outcome of the study. Ten people representating the five counties involved in the study will be chosen to sit on the committee.

Steinwald said the initial part of the study has now been completed. The next phase will consist of setting up public meetings throughout the region. He stressed, "We want to meet with health care professionals and ordinary citizens starting in February."

SD&G to receive $374,400 under Community Futures

OTTAWA - Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry area will receive $374,400 to continue the Self-Employment Incentive option of Community Futures, a part of the Canadian Jobs Strategy, the federal government has announced.

Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry area was selected for Community Futures Assistance in July, 1987.

The Self-Employment Incentive option will allow the unemployed workers to test new business ideas. Grants in the form of allowances in lieu of unemployment insurance or social assistance benefits can be provided for up to one year so that they can establish new businesses, Dick said.

The Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Community Futures Committee chose the Self-Employment Incentive option as one of the best suited to this Community's needs, Dick added.

Since Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry was selected for Community Futures support in July 1987, a committee chaired by Neil Burke assessed the Community needs and examined the options available under the program.

The Community Futures Committee may recommend one or more program options under Community Futures to support small business development and to help workers start businesses, learn new skills or relocate to seek jobs.

Express tough on Flyers

FINCH - North Stormont Express' goaltender Richard Paquette made it tough on the Chesterville Flyers here last Thursday, but its offence made it even harder.

Express hammered the Eastern Ontario Junior "C" Hockey League's basement squad to a 10-1 decision, awarding the Flyers its sixteenth loss of the season.

Bob Van Delst started off the Express' first four-goal period early in the opening frame. He capitalized on a pass from Dale Murray with just 1:22 played.

At 17:07, Jeff MacLean and Mike Stewart set up a play that enabled Dave Lavergne to notch a 2-0 lead.

Tim Ouderkirk and Murray teamed up for the Express' third marker. Ouderkirk slapped in the goal with 7:05 showing on the clock.

Kevin Villeneuve netted the goal which saw Bill Zrymiak replace Daniel Trottier between the Flyers pipes. Villeneuve finished off a play started for him by Roch Benoit and John Mackler at 4:06 of a first period powerplay.

Another four-goal period lifted the Express to a 8-0 lead after 40:00 of play. Period two scoring began at the 15:57 mark. Danny NcMillan and Villeneuve made it possible for Dave Leroux to hit the Flyers' webbing.

Sloppy defence made it easy for McMillan to score on a powerplay. He connected on a pass from Ouderkirk which gave North Stormont a six goal cushion with 13:59 left in the frame.

Mike Stewart flicked in the rebound from Todd Blaine to start his hat-trick performance. He put the puck into the top right hand corner with 5:25 remaining in the second.

Stewart scored again at the 1:00 mark. MacLean and John Grady set up the powerplay goal to give the Express an eight-goal advantage.

Another offense committed by a Flyers skater made it easy for North Stormont to pounce in a 9-0 lead at 10:12. Stewart made his third marker with assistance from Lavergne and MacLead.

Ray Sherrer saved the Flyers from an Express shutout game. His unassisted marker hit the webbing with just 6:34 remaining in the lop-sided game.

Ouderkirk pounced in an Express double digit win at 5:16. He completed a play which was set up by Chris Leroux and Murray.

Flyers start new year with three defeats

Stopped short

The Chesterville Flyers lost its 19th game in the Eastern Ontario Junior "C" Hockey League, Monday night against the Embrun 72's. The Flyers are the league's cellar team with eight league points, however it is still possible for the squad to claim the last playoff spot.

Record Photo - Boersma

CHESTERVILLE - The Chesterville Flyers had another rough week in the Eastern Ontario Junior "C" Hockey League.

All three games played by the Flyers ended in a loss. North Stormont Express, St. Isidore Eagles and Embrun 72's were the clubs that put down the league's cellar squad.

Chesterville hosted Embrun on Monday, Jan. 7. A slow start put the Flyers in a 5-1 deficit after the opening period.

However, Kent Young was the first to hit the scoreboard. Chris Holmes and Don Marcellus fed Young the pass which put the Flyers ahead with just 1:09 played in the game.

Stephane Larocque (2), Derek Hardy (1), Alain Gignac (1) and Joel Bouchard (1) were the 72's players that scored during the first.

Chesterville made a game out of the match in the second and third period, but Embrun still had a winning second frame.

Chesterville was scoreless and allowed two markers against their goaltender Brad Dillabough, granting the 72's a 7-1 advantage after period two.

Flyers' captain Shawn Taggart played for a winning final period. He scored twice to give the home team a 2-1 score after 20:00 of play.

Denis Ouellette set up the play which enabled Taggart to score his first marker of the game at 14:36.

Embrun marked an 8-2 lead before Taggart connected for his second goal. With just 26 seconds remaining, he skated for an exciting end to a gloomy encounter for the Flyers.

St. Isidore 11 - Flyers 1

The Chesterville Flyers kept the score tight during the first two periods, but the St. Isidore Eagles clobbered their guests in the third, last Sunday.

A seven-goal period, lifted the Eagles from a 4-1 lead to an embarrassing 11-1 victory.

Flyers' goaltender Brad Dillabough only allowed the Junior "C" Hockey League's top scoring club to play for a 2-0 lead after the first 20:00 of play.

St. Isidore equalled its offensive performance in the second, but its defense could not keep the Flyers from scoring.

Shawn McKenzie and Shawn Taggart set up the only goal Chesterville made in the game. Tony Holmes scored with 2:29 left in the second, to save the club from a shutout.

The Eagles picked Chesterville apart in the closing frame by scoring seven goals in the lopsided win.

Flyers Facts

Steve Ball is back on the Flyers bench after an absence during the first half of the 1990-91 season.

Ball will be assisting coach Jerrold Boulanger for the rest of the season.

Scott Gibson will be allowed to play for the Flyers in the game against the Embrun 72's this Saturday in Chesterville.

On Sunday, Jan. 6 Gibson was the first Junior "C" player to have a hearing this season. The hearing came about as a result of an incident in the game against Rockland on Monday, Dec. 19.

Gibson rammed his head into Rick Perrault, whom was one of the game's officials.

The board decided that the incident was not as serious as first indicated, the Jr. "C" league's President Norm Duhamel said. Therefore, Gibson was only given a three game suspension.

Late goal lifts Express to 6-6 tie

Embrun - Kevin Villeneuve saved the North Stormont Express from an Eastern Ontario Junior "C" Hockey League defeat to the Embrun 72's last Friday night.

With just 1:11 remaining in the contest Villeneuve nailed in his third marker of the game to put the club into a six-goal deadlock with their hosts.

Embrun scored on goaltender Russ Perry to take an early advantage, just to have Villeneuve take it away. Dale Murray and Roch Benoit set up the play that enabled Villeneuve to notch the even one-goal score. However, the 72's had a 2-1 lead after first period play.

North Stormont trailed their opponents 5-1 before making a comeback bid. With 5:27 remaining in the second, Villeneuve connected on a pass from Benoit and John Mackler.

At 1:58 of the same period, Jason Flanagan tightened the losing score by capitalizing on a pass from Mike Stewart. The frame closed with Embrun controlling a 5-3 goal differential.

Murray set up the Express' next two goals, to equal the 72's score. Chris Leroux hit the webbing at 18:10 of the closing period, while Tim Ouderkirk scored at the 15:58 mark.

Embrun broke the tie with just 1:32 remaining in the encounter, but Villeneuve's superb stick work marked the tying goal as time ran out. Leroux and Ouderkirk assisted.

Casselman 7 - Express 5

The Casselman Cambridge Stars dropped the North Stormont Express hockey club with a 7-5 score, last Sunday in Casselman.

The Express rallied to a 4-1 advantage after the first period of play, but the Stars scored three goals during each of the final two frames while only giving up a single marker in period two, claiming the Junior "C" victory.

Dale Murray was the first skater to score. He picked up a pass from John Mackler at 15:29.

John Grady and Mike Stewart teamed up for the 2-0 lead. Grady slapped in the goal at 13:04.

Casselman hit between Russ Perry's pipes to cut North Stormont's lead. But, Kevin Villeneuve equalled his opponents performance with assistance from Todd Blaine and Jason Flanagan. 6:56 was left in the first.

With just 35 seconds left before the first intermission, Tim Ouderkirk picked up a pass from Villeneuve to net the 4-1 lead.

Casselman quickened the pace of the game in period two. The club pulled to within a single goal of the Express, by scoring at 17:33 and again at 14:22.

Jeff MacLean netted North Stormont's fifth and final goal of the game at 11:36 of the second. Stewart and Grady set up the play.

The Stars connected for one more marker in the frame, to trail the Express 5-4 after two.

The Stars scored three goals, and shutout the Express in the third frame to lift the club to a 7-5 victory.

White score easily againt Maroon

CHESTERVILLE - White had no problem scoring on Maroons' goaltender Pat Brugmans during the team's match-up in the Chesterville Men's Town Hockey League, last Wednesday night.

The league's number one team outscored Maroon by a 10-4 goal differential for the club's seventh win of the season.

Kevin Moore was the only Maroon skater to score during the first half of play. He capitalized on a pass from Ken Byers and Darren Kirkwood with just 5:10 played in the game, to mark an early lead.

At 19:39, Darrell Shelp notched the score at one apiece. Dwayne Bazinet and Gary KleinSwormink assisted White's first goal.

Dale Williams produced a White advantage with assistance from Keith McGrisken and John Luimes. He scored the leading goal 2:11 after the tie.

At 3:16 and 2:01 Luimes scored to give White a 4-1 lead. Bazinet assisted on both while Williams helped out on his first.

With just 1:36 played in period two, White tallied its fifth goal. McGrisken capitalized on a play set up by KleinSwormink and Shelp.

Shelp slapped in another marker for the victorious squad at 25:08. McGrisken and Brad Holmes made the play possible.

At 22:04, Dale Williams connected on a pass from Shelp and Dean Williams. He went on to assist a goal made by Bazinet with 15:35 remaining.

Dave Cross managed to cut Maroon's 8-1 deficit to five goals by scoring at 13:42 and again at 9:20. Darren Kelly helped out on both goals while Rick Grisel and Chris Guy each assisted a single.

Bazinet put an end to Cross' scoring momentum when he scored on a pass from Dale Williams and Gary Geertsma with 8:31 remaining in the game.

Guy and Cross put the puck on Kelly's stick to tally Maroon's final marker. Kelly outplayed Whites' netminder Rob Carker for the club's fourth marker.

Williams capped a White victory by playing for the double digit. He lifted the squad to a 10-4 win, by connecting on a pass from Luimes and Bazinet with just 3:46 left in the contest.

Blue 4 - Green 3

Blue had a comfortable 4-1 lead with just under 10:00 to play before Green made a game out of it. Two late game goals pulled the club within a marker of the victorious Blue.

Mark Smith was the first skater to hit the scoreboard. Jamie Utman and Kevin Henry set up the play that put Green ahead at 13:49 of the first.

The score was made even when Sandy Johnston picked up a pass from Doug Fry, at the 19:46 mark.

Barry McShane put Blue into the lead at 6:54. He capitalized on a play set up by Dolton Henry and Paul Allen.

With 2:20 left in period one, Brad Hanes netted a 3-1 lead with help from Curtis McMillan and Johnston.

Hanes scored his second goal to grant Blue a three-goal cushion. The fourth marker was assisted by Henry and Dale Hutt with 9:49 still to play.

Goals at 4:53 and 1:44 lifted Green within a single marker of Blue, but the team was unable to score another marker to tie Blue.

Utman and Todd Findlay assisted Smith's goal, while Lonnie McIntosh helped Findlay for the third goal, to end the games scoring list.

West nets winning goal for Atom B Demons

OGDENSBURG - Jeffery West broke up a 3-3 tie here on Jan. 3 when he scored an unassisted goal with just 5:27 left in an Upper Canada Minor Hockey League Atom B contest.

North Dundas Demons then played perfect defensive hockey for the remainder of the game and locked up a valuable two points and a 4-3 victory.

Ogdensburg took a 1-0 lead at 9:51 of the first period but the Demons were able to pull even [1-1] before the period was over. Trevor Walker pulled the trigger on the goal using Naven MacDonnell's pass for ammunition.

Walker then connected again at 5:09 of the second period to give North Dundas a 2-1 edge. Wes Ross assisted him on that play.

The New Yorkers tied it up 2-2 with 9:35 left in the game but Sam Ault snapped home a Jeff West rebound at 7:36 and renewed the Demons' one-goal lead [3-2].

The host squad battled back and knotted the count at 3-3 with 7:04 left on the clock but once again the Demons responded. West snapped the 3-3 deadlock and gave the Demons an exciting 4-3 win with an unassisted goal.

Senior Novice win and tie

METCALFE - Both North Dundas and Metcalfe had defence on their minds here Saturday.

A LITTLE STRESS RESISTANCE

Psychologists studying telephone company executives during the divestiture of AT&T confirmed that rapid change can lead to disease. They also predicted with great accuracy which executives would best resist the ill effects of stress. The most powerful predictions were made by measuring what can be called the three C's of the stress-resistant personality.

The hundred executives who scored high on feelings of Commitment, Control and Challenge when faced with change suffered only half as much illness as the hundred who scored low on those factors. Those executives who succumbed to stress felt alienated rather than committed, powerless rather than in control and threatened rather than challenged by new situations.

Based on this study you might want to spend some time pinpointing the relationships and goals that are most meaningful in our lives. For example if you have a job, write down what we feel we contribute to our community. As jobs become more automated and work more subdivided, we really need to remember the basic human needs each of our jobs fulfill.

Anniversaries and family reunions can help us to reaffirm other commitments.

Sometimes we find ourselves wanting to do things that we can't do because of other commitments. We may feel burdened rather than committed. Of course, in reality we don't HAVE to do anything, we choose to do almost everything we do. There are consequences for failing to do the things you have to do, but thinking about those consequences will either clarify our commitments or help us make new more meaningful ones.

If we know where we are going, brief thoughts about our commitments will help us rise above day- to-day setbacks.

One way of increasing our sense of control is to remember the saying: "You can't always smooth out the surf, but you can learn to ride the waves". In other words, we may not be able to control the world.

Identifying areas in our lives where we do have control can also prevent feelings of powerlessness. If your job or home life seems temporarily out of control, you may want to find or devote more time to a hobby or to a part-time job.

When we feel powerless, we can put a stop to the thoughts behind the feeling and think about these other activities. Doing this can instantly bring us a greater sense of control. This kind of thinking is similar to reverting back to younger, perhaps "freer" times when it was powerful to have our "own little secrets"!

If you are a worrier, [who isn't. these days?] keep in mind that studies show that worrying for ten to twenty minutes tend to increase fears, while one long worry session decreases the time wasted each day by an average of 35%. So perhaps we could use thought-stopping and then do something worthwhile, or put aside a particular half-hour each day or so, and postpone our worrying until then.

Business and professional goals need to be challenging, but not out of reach. Once we succeed we must beware of inflating our self-expectations and setting ourselves up for stress and disappointment.

My Silent Achiever this week is a gorgeous R.R. #2, Chesterville farmer. She is an extremely busy lady with four small children [who never seem to sleep]. Last August she decided to take charge of her personal nutrition as well as her fitness level, and since then has lost well over twenty pounds through sensible eating and regular aerobic workouts. She is looking and feeling terrific, and Freddy and her whole family are justly proud of her. Congratulations.

We are so very lucky to be able to do it for ourselves.

Vikings bury silent Knights

WINCHESTER - The Newington Knights did not even have a chance against the Morewood Vikings in Winchester Men's Broomball League action on Sunday night.

The Vikings buried the league's pointless sqaud in an 18-1 thrashing.

During the first half of play, the Vikings scored six times. The league's number one team controlled the game with a 6-0 score.

Things were harder for the defenceless team in the second half. The Vikings hit the webbing for 12 goals, while Newington only managed to get a single goal.

Brian Como and Gerald Eby were the top scorers of the game. Both Vikings tallied five goals for the winning cause. Como made another three assists, while Eby helped out on another two goals.

Lou Proulx, Brian Thatcher and Jeff VanDerVeen each scored twice during the game. VanDerVeen also helped out on three more goals, while Proulx and Thatcher each had two assists.

Both Larry St.Pierre and Guy Marion scored once and assisted on two others. Chris McKibben picked up three helpers and Laurier Menard made two assists.

James Beckstead made the single marker for Newington. David Bilmer assisted.

Road 1 - Raiders 0

Chad Benoit scored the only goal of the game to give the Prescott Road Knights a win over the Winchester Raiders.

Stef Rawlings and Glen Petersen set up the game-winning goal for Benoit with 9:49 still left in the contest.

Knights' goaltender Bruce Morris kept the cage empty.

Ormond 4 - Manotick 3

Doug Sloan and Dave Hess split Ormond's scoring game to lead the team to a 4-3 victory over the Manotick Merchants.

Sloan saved Ormond from a loss in the Winchester Broomball League by tying the game with 50 seconds remaining. His winning goal came with just 2 seconds on the clock.

After the first half, Ormond had a 2-1 lead over Manotick. Hess scored both first period goals for the victorious squad, while Jamie Nolan scored for Manotick.

Markers by Brent Payne and Paul Downey gave Manotick a 3-2 advantage with just 2:04 left to play, but Sloan captured the victory for Ormond with assistance on both goals coming from Dan McDiarmid.

Intermediate novice tourney produces exciting finals

WINCHESTER - Both the championship and consolation final games here last Thursday produced some exciting action for both players and fans.

The Orleans Maple Leafs needed overtime to edge the Clarence Creek-Hammond squad 4-3 in the "A" Division showdown.

In the consolation finale Prescott nipped Maitland 2-1.

Kevin Smail, coach of the Winchester Lasers and one of the NDMHA's Intermediate Novice Tournament, commented following the event, "We knew we were out-classed, age-wise, by some of the teams but wanted some exciting hockey for the kids and it was exciting with that overtime and 2-1 final."

North Dundas' Demons and Winchester Lasers teams lost both of their games and were eliminated early in the day.

Morrisburg Lions nipped the North Dundas Devils 2- 1 in an opening round, overtime, game.

Josh McRoberts scored the Devils on a pass from Richard Pope at 9:30 of the second period. Shawn Hitsman tied it up 1-1 at 4:19 of the same frame. Parker Locke snapped home a low shot at 1:31 of OT to win it for the Lions.

The Devils then were ousted following a 5-0 loss to Prescott.

Winchester Lasers were blanked 11-0 by a powerful Orleans Canadien's squad in their first outing and then eliminated 6-1 by Maitland. Scott Drummond notched the lone Laser goal on a feed from Shawn Smail with a minute left in period one. That goal tied the game 1-1.

Clarence Creek-Hammond made the championship final by doubling Prescott 4-2 and eliminating Morrisburg 7-1. They then tangled with the Orleans Maple Leafs who had thumped Maitland 9-1 and nipped the Orleans Candiens 4-3 to earn the other berth.

Clarence led the Leafs 1-0 after a period and were up 3-1 after two periods.

The Leafs tied it up on goals by Mike Ranger who scored with 4:32 left and Ian McKinnon who connected 2:27 before the end of the game.

Sabastian Rochefort broke the tie scoring in OT to give Orleans a 4-3 win and the NDMHA championship trophy.

Prescott eliminated the North Dundas Devils 5-0 and moved on to the "B" final against Maitland who had put the Winchester Lasers out of action with a 6-1 decision.

Maitland took a 1-0 lead in the consolation match when Pam Wykes scored with 4:20 left in the first period.

Prescott tied it up 1-1 1:25 before the end of the same frame. Tyler Lawrence hit for the goal on a play started by Ryan Biccum and Aaron MacDonald.

Biccum then netted the winner when he scored 4:44 before the end of the second period.

Period three remained scoreless as Prescott held off their opposition through a wild third period.

Kevin Smail thanked the parents and volunteers who organized and ran the soup kitchen. He also praised Atom Demon players Sam Ault, Brock McBain and Tylor Copeland who worked the clock and kept score all day.
