The Picture

He "Played Fair" After All.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Ralph Evans lifted the drapery from the easel and gazed long and earnestly at the picture. There was a bitter smile on his thin lips as he hummed a little tune under his breath.

It was an excellent portrait of Justin Moore—a speaking likeness, one might say, of the artist's closest friend. Justin was handsome, with a beauty of feature that barely escaped effeminacy, but the mouth was strong enough to justify the penetrating gray eyes, the noble forehead with its sweep of dark hair and the resolute chin.

The pity of it was that the beauty and magnetism of the face were hidden forever. Justin Moore had died a year ago, and the portrait, commenced when he was vigorous with health, had just been completed.

Alicia Moore, Justin's beautiful young widow, was coming to view it for the first time. During the period of her deep grief at the sudden loss of her husband Justin's friend had stood at her right hand throughout the dark days. It was Evans who had attended to all the harassing details connected with the sad event. It was he who had been named as executor of the will and who had settled the affairs of his dead friend with infinite tact and sympathy.

And Alicia, who had no near relatives in the world to share her mourning, had turned to her husband's friend with a pitiful yearning for sympathy and understanding in her sorrow. To Ralph Evans she spoke freely of Justin and gave him, at first shyly and then without restraint her full confidence.

In the first sting of sorrow the portrait had been thrust aside, but of late Alicia had yearned for the picture, and for her sake Ralph had painted feverishly to complete it. Now it was finished, and Alice was coming to view it.

As he stood there, his fine eyes meeting those of the portrait with a certain defiance, he was thinking of Alicia Moore. He could see her, tall and slender, in her black draperies, eagerly tracing the well known features of her beloved, choking back tears of grief at the familiar smile in the gray eyes and the winning curves of Justin's genial mouth.

A pang of agony struck in deep as he thought of these things. Alicia was young and beautiful, and he had loved her long and hopelessly. With that speaking likeness of her dead husband ever before her, would she, could she, forget Justin? Could he, Ralph, ever win her?

His heart answered "No."

The door of the studio opened, and Alicia Moore entered, trailing soft black draperies over the rugs. With a quick, graceful gesture she tossed back the crape veil and glanced at the picture.

"You have finished it?" she questioned eagerly.

Without answering Evans lifted his eyes and drank in the exquisite loveliness of her face. The soft, pure texture of her fair skin, the deep blue of her dark lashed eyes and the red gold coloring of her magnificent hair shining beneath the sombre head covering.

"It is ready for inspection—I hope you will like it," he said hoarsely as she withdrew her hand from his and turned to the portrait.

For a few moments she stood in rapt silence before it. Then tears filled her eyes, and her gloved hands were pressed against her bosom.

"How like him, Ralph! You have caught all the strength and nobility of expression. This is wonderful. Poor—poor Justin!" The tears dropped unheeded on her cheeks.

Ralph strangled a desire to comfort her—to tell her that joy and happiness yet remained for her; that she was too young to spend the years in grieving over one who could not be recalled. He was fiercely jealous of Alicia's grief for her husband. Would there never be a chance for him to lay at her feet his life and love and happiness?

"It is the next thing to seeing Justin in the flesh," she murmured softly. "It shall hang in the library. Do you know, Ralph, you have made me very happy?"

She turned to him with outstretched hand and trembling lips.

The hands that caught hers gripped them. Something in his manner—his silence and the bright fierceness of his eyes—startled her, and she withdrew her hands with sudden reserve that Evans was quick to note.

"You can send it to me at once?" she asked.

"This afternoon if you wish. I will send it by Satterly. He will hang it for you."

"Thank you so much. No one but Justin's friend could have caught these

CHESTERVILLE, ONT., JAN. 25th, 1911

"For over twenty years, I have been troubled with Kidney Disease and the doctors told me they could do me no good. They said my case was incurable and I would suffer all my life. I doctored with different medical men and tried many advertised remedies, but there was none that suited my case. Nearly a year ago, I tried 'Fruit-a-lives'. I have been using them nearly all the time since, and am glad to say that I am cured. I have no trouble now with my Kidneys and I give 'Fruit-a-lives' the credit of doing what the doctors said was impossible. I am seventy-six years old and am in first class health."

intimate expressions." She smiled brightly at him through the tears.

After he had placed her in the elevator and had returned to the studio and locked the door Ralph Evans went to the picture and studied it with dark, inscrutable eyes.

Suddenly he caught up palette and brush and added a few deft strokes to the pictured face of Justin Moore. Then he stepped back and gazed defiantly at the portrait.

It was still the portrait of Justin Moore, but deprived of its nobility and strength and sweet gentility. It was the portrait of Justin Moore with every weak point emphasized.

Late that evening Ralph Evans sent the portrait up to the handsome house where Justin Moore's widow dwelt.

A week later he received a note from Alicia. "Come and dine with me," she wrote. "Bring your violin and we will have some music."

He went

Alicia, pale and quiet with unutterable sadness in her beautiful eyes, made him welcome in the library. His quick glance noted that Justin's picture hung over the mantel and Alicia's chair had been wheeled in front of it.

"You are not looking so well," he remarked gravely.

"I have been low spirited," she confessed.

Evans winced. A familiar saying of Justin Moore's recurred to him with startling suddenness, "A man who can't play fair better keep out of the game."

Had he played fair?

Her hand clinched upon the table until the knuckles showed white.

"You like the portrait?" he asked deliberately.

At first she flushed, and then her face went pale. When she spoke it was in a cold, hard tone that was unlike any utterance that he had ever heard from her gentle lips.

"Did you ever consider the difference between a living face and its pictured presentment? The first shows such varying expressions that the real character of the face escapes one. In a faithful likeness," she indicated the one over the mantel, "daily association with the immutable expression of the painted features awakens one to the real character of—the person."

She paused breathlessly and looked at him with wide, anguished eyes.

"What do you mean, Alicia?" he asked, with dry lips, but he knew.

She pointed to the portrait of her husband. "There, there! I thought I knew my husband. I believed Justin was good and noble. I loved his face for its strength and kindness, and now—and now—" She pressed her hands to her overflowing eyes.

"And now?" prompted Ralph with a strange listlessness in his tone.

"Since it has been hung here it looks like the face of a villain! But it is the picture of the husband that I loved and still—it is not the picture of what I believed him to be. Can't you understand? If—Justin was really like that I shall hate his memory." She leaned against the tall back of a chair and looked at him with wet, questioning eyes.

Ralph Evans hesitated. He glanced from the sinister portrait on the wall to the anguished countenance of the young widow whom it was his misfortune to love. He was overcome by a great shame at his own transgression. He would play fair.

"You are morbidly sensitive, Alicia," he said gently. "The picture is badly hung. May I come tomorrow and rectify the matter?"

"You think that is the trouble?" she asked eagerly. "Oh, I hope it is—only that."

"You will find that I am right," he said confidently. "Now come and look over the music I have brought. After dinner we will have some Chopin."

The next day when Ralph called he was relieved to find that Alicia was out. He was glad that he was to have the library to himself for a brief period before her return.

It was the work of a few moments to pull out a small painting kit and behind locked doors to restore Justin Moore's face to its original likeness.

The face of the artist changed as he painted. Harsh lines faded away and softer ones came about his eyes and mouth until he stood before his pictured rival rejuvenated, reincarnated, more manly—what it had always been in him to be and what a struggle with bitter jealousy had brought about—his better self.

When Alicia returned the portrait hung between the windows. A doubting glance leaped from her eyes to the painter, to the portrait and back to Evans.

"You were right, Ralph," she cried gratefully. "It was in the hanging of the picture, and I had such foolish, morbid fears about poor Justin. I wonder if you know what a great thing you have done for me?"

She held out her hand, and this time Ralph's clasp was cool and friendly—nothing more. His face was very pale.

"I am very glad," he said quietly and went away.

Many months afterward, when his patience had its reward in the love of Alicia Moore, they stood before the portrait once more.

"Ralph," said Alicia softly, "I think it was very unselfish of you to paint such a wonderful likeness of Justin when—when you"—She paused and blushed vividly.

"When I loved you?" finished Ralph earnestly. "I was tempted, Alicia—and I fell—but I played fair after all. Justin would have said that I played fair." He ended wistfully.

"Even Justin would have said that—after you changed the picture," she said gently.

He dropped his face against her bright hair "You knew it all the time and could forgive—and tolerate me?"

She did not reply at once. She was thinking. Had she better tell him all and wound him? At last she said:

"I knew it that morning when you rebuked it. The first act—changing it—was yielding to a temptation; the last—restoring it—was an act of nobility dear, and it was then I first began to love you," said Alicia tenderly.

READ ABOUT THE GREAT INVENTION THE ECCENTRIC SPROCKET WHEEL

Long spokes give greater tying-power. (See arrow A.)

Short spokes give swifter bundle discharge. (See arrow B.)

When you take hold of a heavy stone, exert all your strength and it refuses to budge, what do you call for? A long crowbar, of course. Why? Because greater power is obtainable with the long lever.

The great invention—the Eccentric Sprocket Wheel (note arrow C)—is built on the principle of the lever. The long spokes (see arrow A) and note how much longer than at arrow B) act as long levers—give greater leverage power.

It works out this way:

On our No. 3 Binder, when the bundle is about to be tied, the chain is pulled over the long spokes, which exert all their great leverage power—fully 163% per cent. more than is obtainable with the ordinary wheel. The grain is compressed far more tightly. You get a neater, more compact bundle and save considerable TWINE.

Easier to pick up. Easier to carry, easier to shock.

Immediately after our Knotter ties the bundle, the chain is pulled over the short spokes (see arrow B) and note difference in length of spoke as compared with arrow A). The shorter spokes greatly increase the speed of the chain. The bundle is given a swifter discharge than with ordinary wheel, and the needle is speedily brought back, out of the way of the downcoming grain, into position for the next sheaf.

The Eccentric Sprocket does this, too—it prevents that "jar" or "jerk" always noticed on other machines when a bundle is being tied and discharged. You will not feel it on the No. 3; neither will your horses be annoyed by it, nor "the life" of the machine be shortened. Frost & Wood No. 3 runs along and does its work without even a suggestion of that "jerk."

Now, you see why every maker would put the Eccentric Sprocket Wheel on his binder if we did not control the patents for Canada. You see why it's wise to invest a post card and get our Binder Booklet so as to become thoroughly posted on the peer of them all—the Frost & Wood No. 3.

You are on the right track when you start investigating our No. 3—the binder that is built by a purely Canadian Company, who thoroughly understands Canadian conditions. We would like you to read a few of the hundreds of testimonials we have received from Canadian farmers, which back up our claims to the letter.

Demonstration Farm Established in Dundas County, Near Village of Williamsburg.

(Morrisburg Herald)

An important Farmers' meeting was held at North Williamsburg on Friday evening last to discuss the illustration farm movement of the Canadian Conservation Commission. Mr. John Fixter, and Mr. F. C. Nunnick, agricultural to the commission, were present and addressed the meeting.

Mr. Fixter found a chance for improvement in many departments of farm practice, as he drove about the country. He saw opportunity for improvement in the care and use of barnyard manure. It should be kept in a shed, or it should be put on the fields as soon as it was taken from the stable; otherwise there was great loss through leaking. He argued that nothing was to be gained by rotting the manure. In plot experiments conducted over a number of years he had found green manure to give better results than rotted manure after the first season. There were two places where manure should be applied. Either on hoed crops or on newly seeded meadows. This last was an excellent place to apply it. Not more than 15 tons of barnyard manure per acre should be applied to a field at single dressing. There would be a large loss if more were used. There was also opportunity for better management of meadows and pastures. Farmers should sow more seeds from 16 to 20 pounds per acre. This gives a pasture for all summer. The speaker did not think much had been done in this county regarding a systematic rotation of crops. A good substitute, where scarcity of labor made a rotation impossible, was after-harvest cultivation. That meant to get busy with gang plow or disc harrow as soon as the crop was removed. It meant keeping the field cultivated right up till the frost came.

Mr. F. C. Nunnick outlined the growth of the conservation movement on this continent. The time had come when it was necessary for some such movement as the demonstration farm idea. Canadians were wont to boast of Canada's great resources and to picture Canada as a great nation. "All development," said Mr. Nunnick, "depends upon agriculture. If Canada is to become the nation we think she will become, we must change our methods. A policy of conservation is only the part of wisdom." Conservation meant making the wisest and best use of the natural resources. Reference was then made to the conservation meeting at Washington called by Theodore Roosevelt and to the later meeting at Washington in 1909 to which Canada sent representatives. These were great historic meetings. Out of the latter had come Canada's Commission of Conservation. Canada enjoyed the distinction of having the first permanent commission of conservation. Continuing Mr. Nunnick said that the soil was abused in two ways, first by a system of single cropping and secondly by a neglect to fertilize. The keeping of the live stock was to be commended. A correction of the two abuses mentioned would be a long step in advance. The other helps to the bettering of farm life were improved facilities for agricultural education and improved social conditions. The speaker then dealt briefly with the illustration farm and neighborhood improvement Associations, reading from a pamphlet prepared by the commission as follows:—

"In 1910 11 some work of investigation was carried on in each of the provinces by the committee on lands of the Commission of Conservation, in order to obtain information regarding the areas in various farm crops, the management of each farm in respect to crop rotation, seed selection, care, uses and production of manure, the keeping down of weeds and the fuel, power and water supply. The information thus obtained is considered to be fairly representative of the agricultural conditions of the country. It is now proposed to join the farmers in conducting an improvement association and illustration farm in each locality where the investigation is to be continued the illustration farm to be owned and managed by an individual farmer in the locality. That is how they learn. If such contacts could be brought about that more of them will learn, and all of them will learn more, a fine advance will be made towards the solution of many of their difficulties. The farmers will be invited to meet together for the purpose of getting useful information from each other and from the experts of the commission for the improvement of their farm management and practice. There has been among farmers too much separateness, and want of cordial co-operation. These cannot be corrected by bulletins or by speeches. The way is to get the farmers to come together and do something for themselves and others, something definite, something they can see and understand—something that they can use for their own benefit. When each becomes a co-operating partner in the local improvement association for the good of the locality, all will grow strong in the associated effort."

There will be 26 of these farms in the Dominion, nine of them to be in Ontario. The farm of the Whitteker brothers, a short distance from Williamsburg village was the choice of many in Dundas county available for the purpose. The only contract of the Messrs. Whitteker, who retain possession of their farm, is that agree to co-operate with the expert sent out by the Government. They and the expert work together, agreeing what to do with each of the fields, what crops are to be sown, what system of rotation is to be followed, etc. Should the Messrs. Whitteker do any extra work, or sow more than the usual amount of seed per acre, they will be paid for it.

Minute Insects Spoiling Trees

Prescott, Ont., July 16.—The beautiful elm trees for which this town is noted are being attacked by a minute insect or bug which attaches itself to the under side of the leaf.

The infected tree has the appearance of "sweating," as a sticky moisture exudes from the leaves, dropping to the sidewalk, which looks as if it had been sprinkled with some dark coloured fluid. No other trees seems to be subject to the insect's attacks. Just how serious the effect on the trees will be is not known.

Reports from Gouverneur, N. Y., state that the benches in the parks in that city are unusable by the sticky liquid falling on them.

THE drawing was made from a photograph of the root-cellar with which D. A. Purdy, of Lumsden, Sask., won a cash prize in last year's contest. In that last contest there were 36 prizes. There will be three times as many prizes (108) in the

1912 FARMERS' PRIZE CONTEST

THUS you will have three times as many chances of winning a cash prize. You do not have to use any certain amount of Canada Cement to win a prize. There are absolutely no "strings" to this offer.

There are twelve prizes for each Province (three of $50; three of $25; three of $15; and three of $10) and you compete only with other farmers in your own Province and not with those all over Canada.

It makes no difference whether you have ever used cement. Many of last year's winners had not used it until they entered the contest. When you write for full particulars, we will send you, free, a book, "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete," which tells everything you need to know about concrete. It is absolutely free, and you are under no obligation to buy "Canada" Cement or to do anything else for us.

Excursion to Ottawa and Britannia-on-the-Bay.

Wednesday next, July 31st, the Methodist Sunday Schools of Winchester and Chesterville will hold an excursion and basket picnic to the Capital City, Ottawa and Britannia-on-the-Bay. The rates are the best offered yet. Adult ticket $1.10 and children 55c. There will be a special train running over the C. P. R., both ways, for the excursionists leaving Chesterville station at 8.15 a. m. and leaving Ottawa for the return trip at 8 p.m.

The objective for the Sunday Schools will be Britannia-on-the-Bay and arrangements have been made for the Ottawa Railway to carry the party to Britannia immediately after the arrival of the train about 10.30 a. m. As the entire day will be at the disposal of the picnicers, of course many will take advantage of the chance to see the city, the Parliament buildings and such adjoining beauty spots as the Experimental Farm and Rockliffe Park.

This will afford one of the rare opportunities for parents and children as well as others to spend a day in the city of the seat of Government at a nominal rate. For a young person to get to Ottawa and return for 55c. is simply phenomenal. Britannia-on-the-Bay with the great park and water front, is one of the largest and most beautiful spots of this character to be found in Canada. The improvements made by the Government and city commission in the driveways adjoining the City of Ottawa are of the very finest nature.

No doubt from Chesterville, Winchester and stations along the line, there will be many to take advantage of the chance given by this excursion next Wednesday, July 31st.

Liberal Association Annual Meeting at Winchester Springs.

(Morrisburg Herald)

The annual meeting of the Liberal Association of Dundas county was held on Saturday at Winchester Springs. The day being the week's seventh and the season being the one for the garnering of the hay crop, a good attendance could not be expected, but about 25 Liberals were there, coming from various parts of the county. The drive to the Springs was made over dusty roads, beside which highways were many good meadows, plenty of poor pasture fields, and field after field of grain that did not promise well.

It was an afternoon meeting, held in the parlors of the sanitarium, Mr. Wesley Hamilton of Chesterville, federal stander-bearer, and Mr. R. Stewart Muir of Toronto, candidate for the Legislature were both present. Mr. W. F. Summerhayes of Toronto, who has done something at organization work for the party in different parts of the province, was also there.

The meeting partook largely of the nature of the conference. There was a discussion, mainly informal, of the general situation; also a talk over local circumstances. Very little was said by anybody for publication.

"We are glad," said President Hamilton, "to see as many here as there are under the circumstances. You will all agree with me that this has been a very peculiar season. We ought to have held this meeting on the second Tuesday in the month of June, but owing to being such a bad season for farmers it was postponed for a time and we finally fixed it for this day, which I am sorry to say has been a very bad selection. But there is not any use finding fault now; the only thing is to go on and do the best we can under the circumstances. We all know that Dundas is an agricultural county and that the people all over are at this time very busy with their hay, and we could hardly expect that the farmers would leave the fields and come out to a meeting. This meeting is called for the election of officers for the year. No doubt that work can be done, but personally I would like to see a much larger representation than is here today. A few months ago we met and it was decided by delegates that candidates should be placed in the field. That was done and I suppose that after that action the next important thing to do is to get to work and organize as well as we possibly can. Then it is our duty to look after the lists and see that we get as many names on as we are entitled to go on and that those not entitled to be on are struck off.

The sec'y-treas., Mr. M. S. Beckstead read the minutes of the last meeting, also some correspondence and accounts. The year closed with a small credit balance.

All of the following officers were re-elected as follows:—

President—Wesley Hamilton, Chesterville.

1st Vice-President—Samuel Allison, Dunbar.

2nd Vice-President—J. F. Render, Mountain.

Sec'y-treas.—M. S. Beckstead, Froatburn.

Directors—C. E. Cameron, Iroquois; R. F. Lyle, Morrisburg; H. G. Merkle, Chesterville; W. J. Laflamme, Winchester; Robert Thompson, Matilda; Robert Cunningham, Williamsburg; David Mel-drum, Winchester township; John Mc-Tavish, Mountain.

Associate Directors—Edward Gibbons, Matilda; M. S. Beckstead, Williamsburg; J. D. McDonald, Morrisburg.

It was resolved to have no more Saturday meetings called, and that henceforward the annual meeting should be held on or about the second Tuesday in June.

Mr. Summerhayes, who had been in South Renfrew during the Graham-Maloney bye-election related some events which took place in that constituency. He gave it as his opinion, based upon what he himself saw, that the Conservatives had disbursed $100,000 in money bribes there and had also spent a large sum on whiskey. Payments of $300 for a single vote were common and many a man took the money but voted for Graham.

Mr. Muir said he was present only to take organization. He had attended the meetings Mr. Rowell was holding and would go up with him and others to the north country. If Mr. Rowell succeeded in making the impression in the north country that he had lately been making in London, Belleville and elsewhere Mr. Muir could see a storm coming for somebody when the next election came.

Before the meeting closed Mr. Hamilton asked to be relieved of the Association presidency, owing to a pressure of other duties. Mr. John McTavish of Mountain and Mr. John H. Meikle of Morrisburg were named as fit and proper persons for the office, and their names were received with enthusiasm, but it was not deemed advisable to go back on a previous resolution of the meeting; moreover neither McTavish nor Mr. Meikle cared to accept the office at the present time.

The hour was 5.30 when the gathering dissolved.

SUDDEN RAGE CAUSES FATAL SHOOTING

Insane Scotchman From Chicago Kills Bartender in a Montreal Hotel.

Montreal, July 19.—John Sheppard a plasterer, of Chicago, in a sudden fit of insane rage this afternoon shot and killed Fred McKenna, a bartender at the Turkish Bath Hotel, and seriously injured Dr. R. S. Devlin, son of the proprietor. The shooting took place in a small room off the barroom. Sheppard at the time was accompanied by his wife and three children.

After the shooting the man calmed down and went to the hotel clerk, telling him what he had done. He then waited the arrival of the police, and since arrest has shown little concern as to his own fate, but repeatedly asks for news from Royal Victoria Hospital, where Dr. Devlin lies with a bullet through his right shoulder.

Sheppard is a Scotchman by birth, but has passed a number of years in Chicago. Some time ago, according to his wife, he sustained a fall from a scaffold, resulting in concussion of the brain. He received $1,500 damages, and decided to return to Scotland. Since his accident he has been subject to fits of insanity.

Sheppard, with his wife and three children, arrived here only yesterday and have been staying at the St. Lawrence Hall. They were to have sailed to-day. This afternoon they went for a walk, and passing the Turkish Bath Hotel entered to get some drinks. They were shown into a room adjoining the bar, and ginger beer was served by McKenna. On passing out he looked around. Sheppard caught his eye and shouted: "What are you looking at me for?" His wife attempted to pacify him, but he whipped out a .38 calibre revolver and fired twice, the first shot hitting McKenna in the leg and the second passing through his eye. Dr. Devlin came to the door, and Sheppard fired again, wounding him in the right shoulder. Dennis Kane, the second bartender then came to the door of the room and Sheppard fired twice more, both bullets missing.

His revolver being empty, Sheppard suddenly calmed down, and, walking to the clerk's desk, told what he had done and calmly awaited arrest.

McKenna, the dead man, leaves a young wife.

An inquest will be held tomorrow. Should Sheppard be adjudged insane his deportation will probably be ordered, and the question will arise as to whether he should be sent back to the United States or to his original home in Scotland.

Four Men Killed.

Perth, Ont., July 23.—Four men were killed this afternoon in the railroad construction camp of Wheaton & Company, one of the contractors on the new Canadian Pacific line which crosses from Olenco to Belldville. The men were engaged in blasting and had poured about a half a can of powder into the one hole, which they proceeded to pack. Without warning the powder exploded, killing the four men instantly, and throwing another who was standing by about thirty feet. Two of the killed were foreginers, the other two being Patrick Ryan, of Perth, and J. Robertsons, of Kingston. The whole gang of men employed by the Wheaton & Company had a narrow escape in the accident, as there were cans of powder standing close by which were upset by the explosion but not ignited.

Niagra Power Co. Lost Suit

Toronto, July 22.—The Province of Ontario has won an important lawsuit in which hundreds of thousands of dollars were involved, from the Niagara Power Company. Decision in the suit was given by the Privy Council to-day.

The case was one of the Attorney-General against the Canadian Niagara Power Company, and arose over the interpretation of the lease of rights to power development in the Niagara River.

The province contended that the lease required the company to pay a tax on the highest amount of electricity carried on the wires. The company contended it was only required to pay on the metered quantity of power, and their contention was upheld by the Trial Judge and Court of Appeal. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to-day reversed their decision.

Buy Thoroughbreds

Ottawa, July 23.—R. H. Harding, of Thorndale, a well-known authority on sheep breeding and a member of the Sheepbreeder's Association will act for the Dominion Department of Agriculture in purchasing thoroughbred stock for the improvement of the sheep industry throughout Canada. The thoroughbred, numbering three or four hundred, will be selected from the best Ontario flocks. H. S. Arkel, acting live stock commissioner, has returned from a tour of the Maritime Provinces, where he studied conditions of the sheep industry. He found an awakening interest and a keen appreciation of the efforts being put forward by the Dominion Government.

Prizes For Best Orchard

An orchard competition embracing the whole of the province is to be conducted this year by the department of Agriculture and the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association. The province is to be divided into six districts with prizes in each district of from $15 to $75 according to acreage. In two of these districts where apple orcharding is not carried on to as large an extent as in others the sizes of orchards specified run from 30 to 120 trees. In the districts around the lakes prizes are offered for orchards from 40 to 120 trees up. The prize money comes from the Federal grant. The scoring allows eighteen points for pruning and scraping, and the same for syringing, ten points each for cultivating or mulching, fertilizing, quality and quantity, eight points for cover crops, six for marketing and fences. The competition is only for bearing orchards. In district No. 3, comprising Lincoln and Wentworth, all tree fruits will be included. In the others the competition is limited to apples. Application forms are being issued by the district representative and the fruit branch of the Department of Agriculture. No. 1 or Eastern Ontario district, includes Lennox, Addington, Frontenac, Renfrew, Leeds, Lanark, Grenville, Carleton, Dundas, Russell, Stormont, Glengarry, Prescott.

Hawkesbury Burglary

Ottawa, July 23.—News of a daring burglary committed at Buckingham, Que., early this morning, has been received by the Canadian Northern Railroad agency here. The thieves entered the Canadian Northern station at this point, rifled the safe, and made a clear get-away with $2.50 in cash and a number of pay cheques, amounting in all perhaps to $500.

Supintendent Rogers, of the Provincial Police Force, has been wired and will investigate the robbery.

As a special train passed through Hawkesbury shortly after midnight last night, and the station was not closed until after that time, the officials here believe that the thieves must have entered the station early this morning. Prompt measures were taken to render the pay cheques amounting to over $250, useless, and all the banks in the city were notified this morning, as follows:—

"Do not cash Canadian Northern Railway cheques without full identification on account of burglary at our station at Hawkesbury, Ontario, last night or early this morning, when a number of Canadian Northern Ontario and Canadian Northern Quebec pay cheques, together with cash, were taken from the safe.

Farewell Gathering.

The girls of the M. D. S. held a farewell party for Miss Edith Thompson on Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Harriet Whidden. The girls were entertained by two contests "Kit hen Quiz" and "Green." The prizes were awarded to Miss Alice Smith and Miss Iva Hamilton.

After refreshments were served Miss Grace Dousett read the following address:—

Miss Edith Thompson
Dear Edith—

It is with a feeling of sadness we have met this afternoon for we must soon say good-bye to a faithful member of our Sunday School class and M. D. S. It is a long time since our ranks have been broken and we regret that circumstances are such that you are going to make your home in the far west. We will miss you from your accustomed seat in the class but we hope that wherever your home may be you may find a home in the Sunday School.

We ask you to accept this book as a slight token of our regard and esteem. We wish you all prosperity and happiness in your new home.

Miss Iva Hamilton then presented Miss Edith Thompson with the handsomely bound volume of "Barbara of the Snows."

They took their departure after singing "For she's a jolly good fellow."

Dr. Daniel Muirhead Dead.

Carleton Place, Ont., July 23.—Dr. Daniel Muirhead, one of the best known physicians in the Ottawa Valley, was killed tonight, near North Gower, when an automobile in which he was driving with Mr. Norman Cram, also of this town, turned turtle on a side road. The machine went into a ditch crushing Dr. Muirhead beneath it, and injuring so terribly that he died in a half an hour. Mr. Cram was able to jump clear of the machine and escaped with minor injuries. Dr. Muirhead was 50 year of age and unmarried.

Hydro Power in Brockville

Brockville, July 23.—The light and power department is urging the town council to enter into a contract with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission for the supply of power to Brockville. Since the ratepayers strongly approved of the proposition several months ago, the light department has been securing information, and it is claimed that the time is now ripe for action.

At a meeting of the town council, H. A. Stewart, K. C., chairman of the board, made a strong plea for the execution of the contract forthwith and fully outlined the terms exacted by the government. The hydro-electric commission, he stated, would generate sufficient energy for present consumption from Morrisburg. Its contracts were such, however, that at any time they could hook up with the mammoth power proposed by the development of the Long Sault rapids. In this connection, he said the Hon. Adam Beck, the Ontario minister of power, was not opposed to the Long Sault development, providing all interests were safely guarded and it was reported that revised plans of the work met all objections heretofore advanced.

Mr. Stewart further declared that the cost of electricity to the municipalities would be greatly reduced by the lighting of the canal system thru the hydro-electric service, which, he understood, was under contemplation by the Dominion Government.

The hydro-electric commission is actively engaged on the construction of the transmission line east of Prescott, and that municipality hopes to get power this fall. Should Brockville decide to go in, the line will be extended westward.

After a full discussion of the matter the council deferred action for a few days.

Hanson—McBride.

The marriage took place in St. Andrew's church, Kingston, Tuesday morning, of Miss Annie Maud McBride, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McBride, and Mr. George Hanson, formerly of Morrisburg. Rev. S. J. M. Compton officiated at the ceremony. The bride was unattended. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hanson left on a trip through the New England States, the bride travelling in a suit of navy blue whipcord with small tailored hat to match, and wearing the groom's gift a gold watch bracelet.

MAGNIFIED HER WEALTH.

A Five Dollar Bill That Seemed to Be a Small Fortune.

The woman handed her friend a five dollar bill. "See the number of small fives engraved on it?" she asked.
"When I was in Denmark a few years ago such a bill as that caused me a great deal of amusement, and I had to surrender one before I could prove myself clear of a false belief regarding my finances.

"An aunt whom I was visiting saw in my purse one day a number of these bills, and she asked to examine one.
as it was so different from any of the Danish money. She studied it attentively a few minutes and then asked me how much it was. I told her it was $5, and, to my surprise, I saw she did not believe me. 'If it is only that amount,' she said, 'why has it so many little figures on it?'"

"I tried to explain, but I made little impression on her. Later I heard she had told our relatives that I was 'worth thousands and thousands of dollars' and was trying to conceal the fact from the family lest they should expect some things of me that they would not otherwise.

"When I heard that I was visiting in another part of the country and could not very well defend myself, so I hit on the expedient of sending my aunt a present of a five dollar bill.
When she went to have it changed into the money of the country she was at last convinced, though at the price of having her dream of wealth rudely shattered."—New York Press.

A FAMOUS BEACON.

The Navesink Light, Near Sandy Hook,
Is a Wonder.

The most powerful light in America is housed on a promontory near Sandy Hook, 250 feet above the beach, where it acts as a safeguard to all ships entering or leaving the harbor of New York. It is called Navesink light and is of 95,000,000 candle power. At fifteen or twenty miles its flash is as pointed and brilliant as a star. On a perfectly clear night its shaft of light can be seen 100 miles at sea. When it was erected it was operated at twice its present candle power. But ocean pilots objected to its strength, saying that so amazing an electric flash actually blinded them and interfered with their work. Uncle Sam heard the prayer of the pilots and turned down his pet lamp to 95,000,000 candle power.

The amount of oil consumed by the engine that provides the power for the light is only one gallon and seven-eighths an hour. That is the astonishing thing to the unscientific visitor—the comparatively small expense and effort required to maintain so great a light. There are two fair sized dynamos and two oil engines. One set is always kept in reserve. Of course the tremendous candle power is developed by means of a great lens, made in France. The lens weighs seven tons and a half, is seven inches thick and rests in mercury. It is revolved with ease.—Saturday Evening Post.

Purely Mental.

Mrs. Holden had been blessed with remarkable eyesight all her life. It was a great trial to her when at the age of seventy-two she was obliged to put on "reading glasses." "But they are really becoming to you, Aunt Hilda," said a gentle niece by way of consolation.

"No, they aren't," said Mrs. Holden, with her usual scorn for compliment.
"Anybody's eyes look better without a glass in front of 'em, and you know it."

"But you couldn't read without them," ventured the niece, "and you love?"

"I could, too, read without 'em," said
the old lady, refusing to be soothed.
"I could read most as well as ever, but I couldn't sense it all—that's the only trouble."—Youth's Companion.

England's Largest House.

The proud distinction of being the largest house in England is generally accorded to Lord Fitzwilliam's Yorkshire seat, Wentworth Woodhouse. Of this house it is said that the three principal entrances are so far distant from each other that visitors are advised to bring three hats with them, one to be kept at each point of egress. A house which is 600 feet long, has a hall in which two average suburban villas could be comfortably placed and boasts a room for every two days of the year is certainly large enough to satisfy any reasonable ambition.—Exchange.

THE PHONOGRAPH.

Its Invention Was the Result of a Cut
on the Finger.

An accident—a cut on the finger—caused Edison to invent the phonograph or talking machine.

Mr. Edison told the story of this invention to a reporter. At the time, he said, he was singing into a telephone, and in the telephone's mouthpiece he had placed, for safe keeping, a fine steel point. Suddenly this point cut his finger. He found, to his surprise, that it had been moving here and there and roundabout, guided by the vibrations of his voice.

He placed a strip of yellow paper under the steel point, replaced it in the mouthpiece and said the alphabet. The steel while he spoke ran over the paper, and for each letter of the alphabet it made a different mark or scratch.

This was what Mr. Edison had hoped for. He now held the steel point still and drew the paper scratches slowly over it. There was given forth, very faintly, the alphabet as he had repeated it.

Thus the principle of the phonograph
—the registering and the reproduction of the voice's vibrations—was discovered through the cutting of a finger. It was Edison's finger, though, that was cut. Smith's or Brown's might have been quite hacked off and no phonograph would have resulted.

ARTIFICE OF AN ARTIST.

The Secret of the Color in One of Turner's Pictures.

The late Mr. Horsley, R. A., has recorded that at one time he studied almost daily one of Turner's finest water colors, called "The Snowdon Range," admiring especially the tender warmth of the light clouds enfolding the moon.
He tried all sorts of glasses to see if he could discover how the particular glow was gained, but without success.

Chance revealed the secret. The picture began to buckle from its mount and its owner, Sir Seymour Haden put it into the hands of a noted expert to be remounted. When he had successfully removed it from its old mount the expert sent for the owner to show him what he had discovered. A circle of orange vermilion had been plastered on the back with an ivory palette knife where the artist wanted the effect and then worked off sufficiently far through the pores of the previously wetted paper to give the show of color, while retaining the smooth surface, without a trace of workmanship on the right side.

This may have led Mr. Horsley himself to use, as he did, brilliant orange as the foundation for a white muslin dress.

Walking Canes.

From the time when man wandered through the pathless forests bearing on his shoulder a murderous birdgeon with which to strike down his enemies the cane has never entirely gone out of fashion. The modern exquisite would feel as much at sea without it as did the beau of whom Steele's Tatler spoke in 1709, when it said that the cane had "become as indispensable as any other of his limbs" and that with "the knocking of it upon his shoe, leaning one leg upon it or whistling upon with his mouth he does not know how he should be good company without it." It may be flattering to the vanity of such a one to know that the grotesque and arabesque heads that he delights in displaying on his walking stick are lineal descendants of the carved baton that the fools and jesters of the middle ages wielded.

A Cheerful Reason.

A French governor of the south Pacific colony of New Caledonia assumed his authority while the natives of New Caledonia were still cannibals. There had been rumors of an insurrection, and the admiral called before him a native chief, who was faithful to the French cause, and questioned him as to their truth.

"You may be sure," said the native,
"that there will be no war at present, because the yams are yet far from being ripe."

"The yams, you say?"

"Yes. Our people never make war except when the yams are ripe."

"Why is that?"

"Because baked yams go so very well with the captives."

Belgium Marriages.

In Belgium it is the custom to give certificates of marriages in the form of little books, which also contain a summary of the marriage laws and among a mass of other miscellaneous information directions for the feeding and care of infants. There are also places for entering the names and birthdays of the children of the marriage, the authorities considerably afford space for twelve such entries.

Explained.

"I hear that Miss Grumby is a wonderfully correct person."

"That's because of her occupation.
She is a dressmaker's designer."

"What has that to do with it?"

"It makes her naturally lead a pattern life."—Baltimore American.

A TRICKY TONGUE.

It Won Dean Spooner a Reputation For Unconscious Humor.

QUEER BLUNDERS OF SPEECH

Some of the Gems Attributed to the Old Dean's Habit of Interchanging the First Letters or Syllables of Words—American "Spoonerisms."

"Spoonerisms" is a recognized and accepted word used in the best circles of English society, even though it has not yet found its way into the dictionaries. Derived from the last name of the Rev. William A. Spooner, warden of a New college, Oxford, it characterizes a curious sort of blunder that is habitual with that man—the unconscious interchanging of the first letters or syllables of words with what are often directly humorous results.

The most famous of all the stories about him tells how he once thundered out from the pulpit, "Jehovah was not on the side of the tinkering congs, meaning, of course, "conquering kings."

At another time he convulsed his audience by boldly stating that he held concealed a half wormed fish (half formed wish) in his bosom.

At a university dinner given at the time of Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee he proposed, "Three cheers for the queer old dean," and they were given with a will, in honor not only of the dear old dean whom he had wished to remember, but of the queer old dean who had forgotten himself.

Exasperated by a would be humorist among his pupils, he informed him that he had a "weeble fit," not meaning any new disease, but the old, old complaint of a feeble wit.

To another who had been mainly occupied in wasting two terms at college he complained, "You have been incorrigibly lazy and, to top it all, you have tasted two worms."

In quoting the familiar text, "Bow not thy knee to an idol," he made it "Bow not thine eye to a needle."

One day he discovered a stranger sitting in his family pew. "Madam," whispered he, "do you intend to occupy this pie?"

Also he could blunder as blithesomely in action as in speech. One windy day, as he was walking down High street in Oxford, his hat blew off. He stooped to pick it up, but at that very moment a hen hurried by. He set off in full pursuit and never stopped until he had caught hold of the luckless hen on Magdalen bridge. Then and there he solemnly tried to put the bird on his head.

Such are a few of the blunders in word and deed that have been attributed to the "dear old dean." Must we accept them all as genuine? Not if we are to believe a contributor to M. A. P., who informed that paper that at a church congress a well known delegate said to him:

"Have you ever noticed how spoonerisms have died out since Canon Liddon is no more? I will tell you how it is. Liddon and I used to make them up. One of our best, which is always attributed to Spooner, is 'From Iceland's Greasy Mountains.'"

Spoonerisms at all events existed before Spooner himself was born. Some meritorious ones may be found in Moore's Diary. There is the story, for example, of an old actor named Parker who used always to say the "poisoned pup" instead of the "poisoned cup."

One night when he spoke it right the audience said "No, no!" and called for the other reading. Another actor mentioned in Moore made a great hit with the misquotation:

How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is To have a toothless child.

John Kemble was one night performing a favorite part in a country theatre when he was interrupted from time to time by the squalling of a child in the gallery. At length, angered by this rival performance, Kemble walked with solemn step to the front of the stage and, addressing the audience in his most tragic tones, said, "Ladies and gentlemen, unless the play is stopped the child cannot possibly go on."

America itself is not without its Spooners and its consequent spoonerisms. There must have been at least three Spooners in the western court where the following scene is said to have taken place:

"How far is it between these two towns?" asked the lawyer.

"About four miles as the flow cries," replied the witness.

"You mean as the cry flows."

"No," put in the judge; "he means as the fly crows."

And then they all looked at one another, feeling that something was wrong.

A sort of conscious spoonerism was that brilliant jest credited to Dean Briggs of Harvard. During the year when the slogan "To hell with Yale!" first became popular among Cambridge undergraduates the dean, in company with Dr. Edward Everett Hale, was hurrying on his way to a great football game between Yale and Harvard.

"Where are you going?" asked an other member of the faculty "To hell with Yale," answered Dr. Briggs.—Boston Post.

Life.

Life is the finest of the fine arts. It has to be learned with lifelong patience, and the years of our pilgrimage are all too short to master it triumphantly.—Drummond.

Opportunity is like a pitched ball. The time to hit it is before it passes the plate.—Youth's Companion.

SHADOW PICTURES.

Photographs That Can Be Made by the Aid of a Magnet.

It is possible to produce, with the aid of a magnet, shadow photographs resembling those made by action of the X ray. Either an electromagnet or a permanent magnet will answer the purpose.

Place a key or other iron or steel object on the sensitive film of an ordinary photographic plate, then bring the poles of the magnet near the other side of the plate and keep them there for five minutes or more. Upon developing the plate a shadow picture of the key or other object, as sharp and well defined as any of the X ray pictures, will be found.

By this method only iron or steel or other paramagnetic substances may be photographed, but the sensitive side of the plate is turned toward the magnetic poles and a disk of iron nearly as large as the plate is placed on the other side then shadow pictures of any nonmagnetic objects, placed on the sensitive film facing the magnet, may be obtained. The operations are, of course, conducted in a dark room.

With an electromagnet capable of lifting a weight of 100 pounds one scientist has made such pictures through two inches of interposed wood. He has also obtained shadow pictures with a compound steel magnet weighing little more than a pound.—New York Tribune.

ORIGIN OF "BLACKLEG."

The Term Came From Race Track Men Who Wore Black Top Boots.

The term blackleg, which has come to mean one who systematically tries to win money by cheating in connection with races or with cards, billiards or other games of skill or chance and is used as synonymous with a swindler, a welsber, is of uncertain origin. Some authorities connect it with the black legs of a gamecock, so much used by the sporting fraternity for betting purposes.

According to another and more probable view, the expression had no disgraceful sense attached to it at first, but was applied to turf and sporting men because they were often in the habit of wearing black top boots. When blackleg had thus become a current phrase for professional sporting men it probably passed into use as applied more particularly to those who took an unfair advantage of their opportunities to cheat the unwary.

The derivation of this term was once solemnly argued before the full court of queen's bench upon a motion for a new trial for libel, but that learned tribunal was unable to decide its origin.—London Standard.

The Bitter End.

You have probably often heard a person say "I will follow it to the bitter end" or something to that effect, but very few persons know that this is a nautical term and is borrowed from a ship's cable. If you have ever been on a big ship you must have noticed two big pieces of wood sticking up out of the deck forward, alongside each other. They sometimes have a windlass between them, and they are used to secure the cable that goes to the anchor. These pieces of wood are called the bitts. When the ship comes to anchor and the cable is paid out all that part of it which is abaft or behind the bitts is called the bitter end of the cable. In a storm or in poor holding ground for anchors the more cable that is paid out the better the anchor will hold, and when the captain is at all doubtful he pays out his cable to the bitter end sooner than risk any harm to his ship.—New York Press

Animal Ink.

Along the rocky shores of New England is much indelible ink. It is better than any that can be bought—a beautiful crimson in color and when applied to fabrics absolutely unchangeable. This ink is contained in little bottles put up by Nature herself, the receptacles in question being certain whelks, or sea snails, of the species known to science as Purpura lapillus. If the shell of one of these whelks be broken there will be found just under the skin of the back a slender whitish vein containing a yellow liquor. The latter when applied to linen with a small brush and exposed to the sun turns first green, then blue, then purple and finally a brilliant crimson. Nothing will wash it out.

Passing of Old Pioneer.

After an illness of three months, Mr. James S. Jackson, a resident of this town for the past seven years, passed away Friday morning at the ripe age of 83 years. He was born in the County Derry Ireland, and came with his parents to Canada in 1845 when sixteen years of age. They crossed the Atlantic in a sailing vessel, landing at Quebec, the journey occupying eight weeks. The family located near Brinston in Matilda township and after spending a couple of years there the subject of this sketch moved to Nation Valley where he took up a farm. Seven years later he was united in marriage to Miss Clarissa Laing. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson continued to reside in Nation Valley until about seven years ago they came to Winchester to spend the remainder of their days and enjoy the fruits of a prosperous life. Besides the aged widow, the surviving members of the family are five sons and three daughters, namely David of Toronto, Henry of Winchester, J. P. of Dayton, Ohio R. D. of Beattie, Sask., A. C. of Metcalfe, Mrs. Jas. Sutherland of Gilbert Plains, Man., Miss Caroline at home and Mrs. Guy Bowman of Vernon. The deceased was a life-long Presbyterian and Conservative. The funeral service which was largely attended was conducted by Rev. Geo. Yule in St. Paul's church on Sunday afternoon at 1.30, interment following in Maple Ridge cemetery. — Winchester Press.

A Guide to Agriculture.

By direction of the Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, a timely bulletin on bee-keeping has been issued by the Federal Department of Agriculture. According to a statement of the author, Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist, this work has been prepared to meet a very persistent demand for information by persons who wish to learn how to begin and to continue the industry of agriculture. It was the further object of the author to increase the number of bee-keepers in Canada by indicating the advantages of bee-keeping. It is pointed out that bee-keeping returns the direct profit of a honey crop and the indirect one of improvement to yields of clover seed and fruit. It is observed that a bullock after being fed and cared for during an entire winter will not realize much more than the produce of a colony of bees in a single season. Beginners are recommended to start on a small scale with one or two hives increasing the number annually as experience is gained. This treatise of 45 pages, which is helpfully illustrated, covers, in plain language, the whole field of apiculture, including equipment, management, the production of honey and wax, diseases, legislation of the various provinces against bee diseases, etc. It is designated "The Honey Bee," Bulletin No. 2, Division of Entomology and No. 60, Experimental Farms. Copies may be had free by applying to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

A little daughter of Mr. Fred Allard of Allumete Island met with a terrible accident a few days ago. While her father was cutting hay with a horse mower she was set to keep chickens out of the way. She got in the way of the mower and had her ankles almost cut through before her father was able to stop the horses. She was taken to the General Hospital at Pembroke and though it will not be necessary to amputate her feet, she may be unable to walk.

Mr. Geo. Munro, an aged man and a long resident of this district was found on Saturday near the C. P. R. stock yard, in an unconscious condition. It seems that he had been there several hours before being detected. Medical aid was summoned and he was conveyed to his residence where he still is unconscious, with his right side paralyzed. He is being cared for by a professional nurse and a number of his sons are in attendance, but no hope particularly is held out for his recovery.

Eighteen Havelock boys were arrested a few days ago charged with breaking into freight cars and stealing. The boys were rounded up by C. P. R. Detective Pinchin who dealt with the case himself instead of bringing the boys into the police court. He secured a signed statement from each offender telling what he had done and a pledge to the effect that he would not in future trespass upon the company's property or attempt to pilfer from the company's cars, then they were allowed to go. Matches, biscuits and many other articles dear to the heart of a boy had been taken and were found hidden away in the trunk of an old tree in a nearby woods.

Church is One Hundred and Twenty Five Years Established.

The congregation of St. Andrew's Church, Williamstown, intend celebrating the centenary of the building of their church, and the one hundred and twenty fifth anniversary of the organization of the congregation by holding special services on Aug. 25th and Sept. 1st, and meetings during the intervening week, when they expect to have with them as many former members of the congregation as can make it convenient to attend.

Williamstown is the oldest Presbyterian congregation in Ontario, having been established in 1787 by the Rev. John Bethune, who had been Chaplain of the British Regiment, the 84th, in the War of the Revolution. At the close of the war, this regiment was disbanded and many of the members settled in Glengarry, which was then unbroken forest.

Mr. Bethune remained in Montreal and got together the congregation of St. Gabriel Street Church, to whom he preached from March 12th, 1786, to May 6th, 1787, when he removed to Williamstown and started the organization at the Presbyterian Church there.

The site of Williamstown was a grant from the Crown to Sir John Johnston, and the village was so named in memory of Sir John Johnston's father, Sir William Johnston, who died in 1774, just before the breaking out of the War of the Revolution.

It is said that Mr. Bethune's reason for leaving Montreal was for want of support, but it is likely that he preferred to live among the members of his old regiment, and as he was entitled to a grant of $3,000 acres of land, part of which he drew in the Gore of Charlottenburgh, it is possible that he wished to be near his land. Besides ministering to the congregation which he formed at Williamstown, he also officiated stately at Martintown, Lancaster and Cornwall. When we consider the absence of roads at first, and their poor character at the best during his time, may form some idea of the labor and energy necessarily expended in getting around such a parish.
