SERVICE, to Us IMPLIES MUCH

Among the things that characterize our se vice are personal attention to every detail of the funeral arrangement, and little acts of thoughtfulness that serve to lessen the trying strain of the hours before and during the funeral. Quiet efficiency and smoothness are the result. That, we believe, is the kind of service that wins approval.

HENRY'S Shorthand School
Ottawa, Ont.

No School in Canada offers a better training, or ensures a more successful future. Henry's leads all others, and ranks among employers as "THE SCHOOL OF HIGHER EFFICIENCY"—a fact borne out by more than 600 pupils who have, since January, 1913, left other Ottawa schools to come to it.

Therefore, it is not surprising that business men, in advertising for stenographers, should specially say, "Graduates of Henry's School preferred."

MRS. DAWSON BEATTIE PASSES AWAY

One of the oldest and best known residents of this section passed away early this morning at her daughter's home in Winchester, in the person of Mrs. Dawson Beattie, who was in her 83rd year. The funeral service will be held in Winchester United church on Saturday at 1.30 p.m.

ADVERTISING PAYS QUICKLY

Thursday at Six o'clock The Records were off the press and in the mail carrying an advertisement of seed oats for sale by Mr. C. H. Smith of Cannamore. Within twenty-four hours Mr. Smith phoned this office to cancel two other insertions of the ad. which had been ordered, as all the oats had been sold. When you have something to sell you know it yourself, the way to sell it is to let other people know through an ad. in the The Record that you have what they need.

BOY SCOUTS' CONCERT

Last night in the Music Hall a fairly large audience attended the concert sponsored by the First Troop of Chesterville Boy Scouts, when the chief entertainers were "The Two Jacks," Jack Powell and Jack Grace, heard many times over the air from station CNRO at Ottawa. Many have enjoyed their singing and stories over the air but the audience last night laughed until their sides were sore. They were liberal in their offerings responding to repeated encores. The whole program was high class and again demonstrated the versatility of local talent. Mr. Boyd's talk on scouting was most timely and without doubt gave many a new idea of the desirability of the 'teen age boys being brought under the healthful direction of trained leadership.

MRS. ADDIE LOUISE DAULEY

After a long illness the death occurred at the Mount Hamilton Hospital on April 27th, of Mrs. Addie Louise Dauley, wife of Wm. J. Dauley, 52 Lorne Ave., Hamilton. Deceased was born in Ontario 66 years ago and had resided in Hamilton for the past 12 years. She was a member of St. Peters Anglican church. She is survived by her husband, two brothers, Edward Gillard of Chesterville, and David Gillard of Boucks Hill; two sons, Charles, Hamilton; Frank, Jerseyville; and four daughters, Mrs. D. MacKenzie, Mrs. Geo. Dyson, Hamilton; and the Misses Louisa and Lillian at home. Many friends attended the funeral which took place Monday afternoon, April 30th, from Blachford & Wray's chapel to Woodland cemetery. Rev. J. W. TenEyck officiated. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

Cleverly Presented Pageant By Brinston People

In the United church last Friday night, a party of 50 from Brinston United church presented to a good audience L. R. Bayard's beautiful sacred pageant, "When the Star Shone." Running for two hours of dialogue and music, the pageant told the story of the birth of Jesus, and the events connected with this in a delightful way. The cast for the pageant included—

Joseph—Wilfred Cooper.
Mary—Miss Helen Weston.
Rabbi Nathan—Howard Bell.
Joel, his servant—Chas. Strader.
Judith, his wife—Mrs. Chas. Strader
Roman Soldiers—Wilburn Locke and Basil Strader.
Prophecy—Mrs. Ed. Thompson.
History—Mrs. Ed. Collison.
Bethlehem Women—Mesdames H. Bell, Alex. Collison, Wm. Christie, Alex Brinston, Chas. Strader, Ralph Ennis.
Bethlehem Children—Harold Fokes, Keith Locke, John Orr, Lorraine Fokes, Deltry Locke, Pauline Locke, Greta Hamilton.
Shepherds—Messrs. Jos. Louden, Ralph Ennis, Arthur Loucks, Irwin Payne.
Wise Men—Chas. Hanson, Everet Strader, Douglas Hanson, Brome Fokes, Cecil Locke.
Orchestra—Mrs. Hugh Thompson and Aubrey Harkness.
Director—Rev. A. F. Fokes.

During the pageant there were a number of solos given by Mrs. Ed. Collison, Mrs. Chas. Strader, and Miss Helen Weston, also quartettes and choruses by the company. An interesting feature is the showing during the manger scene of slides illustrating the crucifixion of the Lord.

Presentation to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Orok

On Monday evening in the Music Hall, the citizens of this village and surrounding district gathered to bid farewell to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Orok, upon the occasion of their removal to their new mission at Maitland. After a few remarks by the chairman, Mr. Hamilton, an interesting and pleasing short programme was carried out with due solemnity. A song by Mr. O. L. King, Superintendent of the Nestlé's Food Co., duet by the Misses Gertie Weegar and Florence Millea, violin solo by Mr. Halfpenny, cornet solo by Mr. Tim Johnston, and the Oddfellows' Quartet by Messrs. Brooks, Seymour, Peake and Shaver, and the Community singing under the direction of Mr. O. L. King were all received with loud applause. The accoumpanists being the Misses McAvoy, Weegar, McCloskey and Mr. Jack Morris. Short speeches suitable to the occasion were made by the Rev. Father Staley, Rev. Mr. Newman, Reeve Brownlee and Mr. Preston Elliott. At the conclusion the following address was ably read by Dr. S. H. Hutt and a substantial purse was presented by Mr. G. H. Barkley.

To the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Orok,
Chesterville, Ont.

We, the undersigned on behalf of the citizens of Chesterville and surrounding district, have assembled here this evening upon the occasion of your departure for another field of labor, to express to you, our profound sentiments of respect and affectionate farewell. We fell it would be amiss, were we to allow this opportunity to pass without conveying to you our appreciation of your good citizensihp and our personal regards. The many laudable works accomplished by you, Mr. Orok, in this community under your efficient administration, both as a leader of men and a builder of good social fellowship, has ever marked the high ideal of your endeavour. From your advent to this neighborhood, some two years ago, you have endeared yourself to us. The rare and much esteemed personality, congenial character, pleasing disposition and singular good nature, all of which being manifest by the agreeable smile and good humor which radiate from your countenance, make an environment in your sphere of action which only too few can boastfully claim. Nor have your activities been confined solely to your esteemed flock. The community in general has shared, in no small degree, of your enviable accomplishments. A keen interest in civic affairs, in athletics and in works of charity, have been constantly mingled with your capable administration. Your calibre as an entertainer is also worthy of note, and has been the means of doing much good work, on the platform, on the radio, the stage, the summer socials and in the homes wherever favored by your social intercourse. When we say credit is due you, Mr. Orok, in these different branches of talent, we include also Mrs. Orok, who is naturally the essential helpmeet and chief fosterer of all your achievements. We therefore salute you, Mr. and Mrs. Orok, as loyal citizens of our community. We hail you as staunch co-labourers in the noble advancement to the ideals of higher criticism and gentlemanly demeanour. These are but a few of the just claims which you have upon our meagre hospitality, irrespective of class or creed. It is therefore, owing to these sterling qualities that we, the community as a whole, and not as one particular religious denomination, offer this brief enconium of esteem and affectionate regard. It is obvious then, that Maitland, your new harvest of souls, will benefit by our loss. We trust this new field of missionary zeal will be one of encouragement to ultimate success in the spiritual as weil as the temporal, since the latter is but the ephemeral of all earthly glory. Before concluding permit us to present you with this purse, not for its intrinsic value, but as an emblem of those high ideals, which we have appreciated in your earnest endeavour to foster during your comparatively brief administration in this district. With sentiments of our high esteem, we bid you farewell.

Signed on behalf of Chesterville and surrounding district—Clem McCloskey, W. O. Dixon, Wesley Hamilton, H. J. McMahon, Joseph Fisher, Arthur Peake, J. C. Simser, G. H. Barclay.

The committee in charge take this opportunity of thanking all those who so ably assisted in carrying out the evening's entertainment to such a successful issue.

The Gladiolus

Shortly lovers of the gladiolus will plant out the corms in their garden positions, and without doubt many novices will grow the plants for the first time, and it is hoped that this article may be of use to those whose knowledge of the subject and its requirements is limited.

The gladiolus will grow well in almost any fertile soil from the lighter sandy ones to the heavier clay loams, if these are well prepared and manured. Organic matter such as that supplied by stable manure is necessary to lighten the heavier soils, and to render cohesive the light ones, and to increase their moisture holding capacity.

In the heavier soils the corms of a flowering size may be planted three inches deep, and in the lighter ones as much as four inches and six to nine inches apart during early May. Occasionally the grower finds himself in the possession of small corms. These may be planted four inches or so apart, while the still smaller cormels may be sown in shallow drills in much the same manner as large seeds.

There are many ways in which gladioli may be employed, for instance in masses in the perennial border, and in beds in conjunction with other subjects, when for cutting or other commercial purposes they are usually planted in lines as they are also for exhibition. When massed it is best to employ only one variety to the mass, thus assuring a simultaneous and beautiful display.

FARMERS EMBRUN DISTRICT JOIN DAIRY POOL

At a mass meeting of farmers in Embrun hall Saturday night, a unanimous decision was reached to join in the dairy pool which it is proposed to form in Eastern Ontario. The meeting was considered unusually large for that district and there was complete agreement on the subject.

It is possible that a dairy pool may be working in Russell within a month. A meeting is to be held in Leonard on May 10 for the Township of Cumberland and at this meeting all details of the pool will be worked out..

The Embrun meeting decided that, for the time being at least, the pool should deal in dairy products only and not in eggs or cattle. Seventy-seven farmers who attended paid into the fund being raised to give the pool a start and many more expressed their willingness to sign the pool contract.

RURAL MAIL CARRIERS UNDERPAID

Stratford Beacon-Herald — Rural mail carriers are far more entitled to more wages than members of parliament. The carriers are woking now for salaries which are shamefully inadequate. They do not make a living, and are bound by contracts which they must carry out. If parliament has any money to vote for increased salaries, the rural mail carrier should be placed at the top of the list.

Presentation At Dunbar

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Charles F. Marselis, Dunbar, on Friday evening last, when about 125 members of the congregation and community assembled to spend a social evening with Mr. and Mrs. Orok, before their departure for their new field of labor. The large number of friends gathered tend to show the love and esteem with which they are regarded. The following address was read by Charles Marselis, and Mrs. Frank Todd presented them with a set of books on Bible Study and a purse, to which Mr. Orok made a suitable reply in his usual pleasant manner.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Orok,—

We, your friends in the church at Dunbar, cannot let your path divide from ours, without assuring you of our appreciation of the help you have been, not only to us as minister of our church, but to our community as well, and that we will miss the bright social companionship we have enjoyed with you, since you first came among us, over two years ago. Our circle is small, and the gap caused by your departure is not one to be soon closed. Especially is this true when the ones who are leaving have been a "channel of blessing" to us, have shared in all the joys, and comforted us in the sorrows that go to make up our lives

We would not forget that you have been untiring in your efforts to further the cause of Christ in our church and community, you have given us cheerfully of your time and your talents, and as you are leaving us for a new field of labor, we sincerely hope that success may follow you and crown all your efforts. We hope, as you enter into this new field of work for the upbuilding of the Church of Christ, that you will find among your new associates true friends and cheerful companions, that you may live your life as faithfully, as cheerfully and with as much happiness to yourself and your new associates, as has surrounded the years spent amongst us.

We are glad too, that the new home is so near the old, so that we may still hope to often welcome you amongst us, so that our friendships may be merely changed, not finished.

And now, as a tangible expression of our appreciation, we present these gifts, and hope that as you use them your thoughts may turn pleasantly back to the old friends among whom you have lived and worked in Dunbar.

Signed on behalf of the congregation, Adam Carlyle, Edward Ouderkirk, McKenzie Thom.

Mrs. Frank Todd moved a hearty vote of thanks to the host and hostess for opening their home and for the pleasant evening spent, after which a buffet luncheon was served and all dispersed to their homes.

Windows In Chest Show Heart Action

Dogs with glass windows in their chests a new thing in surgery, are being experimentally used by surgeons at the University of Maryland Hospital who are seeking to find a method of diagnosis of certain forms of heart disease. X-rays, it is explained, will not suffice for that form of heart trouble which is occasioned by the presence in the small sac surrounding the heart of a quantity of fluid.

To secure this information, a glass airtight window is inserted in the dog's chest and with the aid of a powerful light the pumping action of the dog's heart is observed.

Two tubes attached respectively in the large artery of the neck at the wind pipe, make possible the recording of the pulsation on a revolving drum of paper. By placing the dog in various positions "graphs" are shown on the drum as the respiration and pulse vary. It is hoped by means of a sufficient number of these "graphs" to establish a method by which similar forms for human heart disease may be determined.

JUST BE GLAD

Oh, heart of mine, we shouldn't
Worry so!
What we've missed of calm we couldn't
Have, you know!
What we've met of stormy pain
And of sorrow's driving rain,
We can better meet again
If it blow.

We have erred in that dark hour,
We have known,
When our tears fell with the shower
All alone.
Were not shine and shower blent
As our gracious Master meant?
Let us temper our content
With His own.

For we know not every morrow
Can be sad;
So, forgetting all the sorrow,
We have had.
Let us fold away our fears
And put by our foolish tears,
And through all the coming years
Just be glad.

George: "If everybody had to do that, there wouldn't be so much reckless driving."

TRY TO LOSE A BABY HERE!

Three separate symtems of identification are used at St. Mark's Hospital, in New York City, to identify infants. As soon as the baby is born, prints of its right foot are taken on a blank. On the same sheet of paper fingerprints of the mother's right hand are recorded. While one nurse takes charge of the finger and footprinting, another places a string of beads around the baby's neck, sealing the string together with a lead seal. These special beads are stamped with the letters of the alphabet, so that the baby's name is spelled out and thereby forms an accurate means of identification. Before the baby leaves the birth room for the nursery, a marker is placed around its right wrist. This marker consists of adhesive tape lined with flannel so that it will not chafe. On the outside of the tape is linked the mother's full name, the history number and the sex of the child. Each child is then placed in a separate crib, the crib is marked with a card giving the essential data for identication.

Plane Crashed Near Prescott

Capt. M. E. Jones, of the Jack V. Elliott Air Service, Hamilton, had a miraculous escape from serious injury at Prescott Saturday afternoon about two o'clock when the airplane in which he was travelling crashed to earth a short distance east of the village.

Captain Jones and Walter Fleming were in charge of two school planes which were enroute to Montreal from Hamilton where they will be used at a school for the instruction of piolts and air engineers.

Engine Stalled.

Captain Jones in a J. N. V. machine had landed in a field adjoining the C. P. R. track east of the village where he refuelled. Having completed this and the examination of his plane he made a safe rise and was about to turn his plane when the engine stalled at an altitude of about 200 feet. Captain Jones with great presence of mind handled his machine well and after quickly deciding to take the land again instead of two large trees which confronted his machine, swerved sharply to the left missing them by a few feet.

The field over which he now sailed was very rocky so he picked out small soft spot and landed in the mud. The wheels of the machine sunk deeply causing it to stand on its nose and finally come to a stop completely overturned.

Captain Jones sensed what was about to happen so as he neared the ground he loosened his strap and when the machine struck let himself out over the side landing without a scratch.

One witness who had watched him take off and heard the engine stop ran toward the downcoming plane with fearful thoughts but was joyfully surprised to see the pilot standing beside the damaged plane smoking a cigarette and calmly making notes of the damaged parts when he arrived.

Chicago Reward for Bravery

Often a Chicago man will assure outsiders that the average person need have no fear of criminals in the "better parts" of the city. They indicate that there is a crime zone and outside of that one is comparatively safe. Apparently they do have fears themselves. Chicago merchants prove that fear of the ever-present thugs. Courage is a drug on the Chicago market. Arthur Thomas, registered pharmacist cannot get a job in Chicago because he shot and killed a bandit who attempted to rob a cash register in the drug store in which Thomas was employed.

The coroner who investigated the case lauded Thomas and the city police commissioner gave him a gold star in recognition of his bravery and good citizenship, but the word has been passed that other bandits will "get" Thomas. Merchants, fearing the possible consequences of impending reprisals in their places of business, refuse to employ Thomas, who lost his job five days after he slew the robber.

PRINCE QUITS CHICKEN FARM AND RETURNS TO DENMARK

Prince Eric of Denmark has abandoned definitely his prosaic role of chicken farmer, and has left with his wife, the former Frances Lois Booth, of Ottawa, and infant daughter, for his ancestral halls in Europe.

The Prince and his family left on Friday night en route to Denmark, having sold his poultry ranch several weeks ago.

Prince Eric and his wife moved to the chicken ranch in 1924 after it had been purchased for the Prince by his parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Booth of Ottawa.

FOUR HUNDRED MILES IN A NON-STOP RUN

Two "Royal Scot" expresses of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway on Monday made world's record non-s on runs—from Euston to Edinburgh, 299¾ miles, and from Euston to Glasgow, 401½ miles. The previous record was also held by the "Royal Scot," which since September has run from Euston to Carlyle, 299 miles without a halt. No disclosure of the intent to eliminate the stop at Carlisle was made when the trains left Euston at 10.00 a.m., but officials at Carlisle were informed that the trains would pass through. Both trains arrived seven minutes early. This week passengers from London to Carlisle have not been allowed to travel the "Royal Scot." During the week engines with specially large tenders left Crewe for London and they hauled the trains on Monday. These tenders hold more coal and allow of a double crew. Two drivers and a fireman were on both trains.

His Nom de Guerre

The man who is taking statistics for the new city directory approaches a mover's home in the suburb. At the doorway stands a stout, determined-looking lady.

"Madam," he says, "my call is official. I am compiling statistics on the inhabitants in this part of our city. Might I ask what your name is?"

"Duffy—Honoria Duffy."

"And your husband's name?'

"Naturally it's the same as me own —Duffy."

"I mean his full name."

"Well, when he's full he thinks it's Gene Tunney, but when I lay me hands on him it's still Duffy.

SIX DEAF ARE CURED BY A FAITH HEALER

The people of Rochelle, Ills., assert that some sort of a miracle was performed by Rev. F. W| Bosworth, a healer, preaching in the tabernacle at Clark Street and Barry Avenue. Six young people, four in one family, deaf since birth, were brought to the church by a resident of Rochelle. The six had been under instruction for many months by Miss Gertrude Virgin. The praying healer, they assert, cured them, but they must learn all about meaning of sounds.

"In my six years of teaching the deaf," said Miss Virgin, "I had often heard of cases where hearing had been restored. But I never believed the stories I heard. Their cases are nothing short of miraculous. The six young people were incurably deaf, as far as medical science is concerned. Now they are able to hear."

H. J. McMAHON

IF NOT FREED HE WILL "HAVE TO SEE KING GEORGE"

Chief John Bigwin, of the Ojibway Nation, writes from Washago to Attorney-General Price about three Indians put in jail for hunting and trapping, and invokes the 18th Century Treaty made by Governor Simcoe which gave the Indians, when their land was taken, fish and game rights "as long as grass grows and water runs." These little constitutional matters are considered to be more in the line of the Indian Department at Ottawa, and Col. Price will probably have to refer this one to the Federal authorities, although Chief Bigwin intimates that if the Indians in jail are not freed he will "have to see King George."

The chief's letter comes as a refreshing variation from the routine of pour parlers with political chiefs and legal bigwigs, and unlike the bulk of departmental communications it was not dictated to a stenographer, but is in the chief's own nana.

Keep Your Head

These days, when stock market profits are the topic of conversation, it is hard for the small investor to hold strictly to the safe path of slow and consisent savings. With front page newspaper stories daily about the millions made in speculative stocks and with almost every neighbor and relative among those envied mortals who have just "cleaned up Wall Street" it is mighty discouraging to the most of us who depend upon our frugality to get ahead financially.

One product of all this stock market talk at present is the unfortunate fact that thousands of inexperienced investors are daily joining the ranks of the margin account speculators. The worst part of it all is that at the moment many of them are making handsome profits. It will be mighty hard to return to the old practice of regular savings and conservative investment after fortune has taken a different turn. And in the meantime, thousands of other small investors are beginning to wonder whether the old precepts of safety and caution for the uninitiated investor are still wise, or whether they should "obey the impulse" and join the rank and file of equally inexperienced men and women who are "playing the market" and winning attractive profits at the moment.

In the morning's mail comes a typical case. A young married man with two children and a new home almost paid for, outlines his record of saving and investment over the past five years. Never did he permit his savings programme to fall behind. Always, did he place his funds in safe and sound investment mediums. Frequently his frugality made it necessary to do without many things that would have added to his pleasure for the moment. Throughout all, he was proud of his achievement.

But recently his faith in the safe and sure way of financial independence has wavered somewhat. He writes that his brother-in-law, who never saved money regularly in his life, recently bought some stock on a ten margin and made a "big killing." The same performance was repeated in a few other stocks and now he has more profits than our correspondent was able to save in more than five years. Other friends are having equal luck in this much advertised stock market boom. And now he, too, has a "good tip" on the market, a chance to double his savings of five years in a few weeks. So, he writes us to ask, what should he do?

Our answer was brief—"Don't be sidetracked from your original savings plan by all this ballyhoo."—Magazine of Wall Street.

Put Up The Bars When Others Butt In

An increase in the United States tariff on maple sugar probably will be recommended to President Coolidge within the next few days by the Tariff Commission.

The President then has discretion under the flexible tariff law to increase the tariff as he sees fit by not more than fifty per cent. of the existing duty.

At hearings held by the Tariff Commission at various points in the Eastern States over a period of several months, strong demands were made by the maple sugar producers of New England for increased protection against competition from Canadian maple sugar producers. Some plaintiffs asked for an increase on maple syrup also, but most concentrated on maple sugar claiming that Canadians could make it more cheaply than Americans. One of the most important items in the cost of production was represented to be fuel for boiling down the syrup. On the American side the fuel has to be purchased by the producer, while in the Canadian woods there is still plenty of available wood.

Form the Think Habit

Fear of making mistakes has made failures of as many men as mistakes have made successes. Failures are awed into retrogression by the same possibilities-of-mistakes challenged by the successes among men.

A popular adage is "The man who never made a mistake never made a dollar," but a truer statement of fact might be "The man who never made a mistake never lived."

Conceding that all men are mistakes it is manifest that only the same mistake repeated is unpardonable and the habit, not the individual mistake, is costly. Somebody pays every time somebody blunders and the only way to correct the habit of blundering is to form the habit of doing things right. Form the habit of being careful and take pains to-day that you may spare yourself incalculable pain to-morrow. Many are blundering on to success by making the most of their blunders.

The haunting regret in every mistake is the thought that it could have been averted by a little thought. The indolent find action easier than thought and much of humanity is indolent.

Thinking can be made a habit just as most bodily movements are from force of habit. Cultivate the habit of thinking before acting and that bugaboo, the mistake-habit, will decamp for more salubrious foraging.

More Indemnity?

Ottawa Journal—If, as is reported, there is a quiet movement among the M.P.'s to have the sessional indemnity increased from $4,000 to $5,000, one would imagine that the Government has good reasons to discourage it.

Only a few years have elapsed since the indemnity was increased from $2,500 to $4,000. Since then the cost of living in Ottawa has, if anything, decreased, and the sessions of Parliament have not grown longer. In the circumstances, therefore, no justifiable reason would seem to exist for a further indemnity increase that would take about $335,000 a year out of the treasury.

Canadian legislators, come to think of it, are not so badly looked after. For a session which averages about five months they receive $4,000, which is $800 a month. In addition, they receive free transportation for themselves and their dependents upon all Canadian railways; are allowed travelling expenses to and from their sessional duties; are given free stenographers; and are provided with a first class restaurant where they and their families can secure meals actually below cost.

This, for a country with the enormous obligations of Canada, is bad.

Love of the Game

Many men work untiringly for something they want. Few exert themselves overmuch for something they don't want. But A. P. Giannini, president of the famed Bank of Italy, of San Francisco, and its more than 300 branches, is one of the latter. He makes money for the love of the game.

Starting as a child-worker in his step-father's fruit and produce establishment, he became a partner in a wholesale commission firm at 19, made it the largest concern of its kind on the west coast and retired at 31 with enough money to satisfy his modest requirements.

Shortly afterward, however, he became interested in banking and founded the Bank of Italy with small capital in 1904. Then he began opening branches and buying other banks, until he now controls more banking capital than any other banking man in the country, although his banks have many stockholders, and their profits last year reached more than $50,000,000.

That he is not ambitious for wealth alone is shown by the fact that he divides 40 per cent. of the profits among the bank employees and recently gave his own last year's share, $1,500,000, in a lump sum to the University of California for research in agriculture and other purposes.

He once told a friend that he was not a millionaire and never wanted to be one. But he takes millions for himself and others through sheer love of the game, and gives his own profits away.

A REAL WISH

A student at State College, Pa., on attaining his twenty-first birthday received the following telegram from his parents: "Congratulations and sincere wishes for many more birthdays. May you have a healthy and useful life, with plenty of joy and just enough sorrow to give the benefit that only sorrow can give. That the manhood you are now entering may have in store for you every good thing that those who love you best could wish for, is the prayerful hope of mother and dad." No birthday cheque could so well have expressed the hopes of parents who sacrifice that their children may have the best that education can bring in its train.

Turns in the Navy.

First Sailor: "How do you like life in the navy? Quite a few turns for a fellow to get used to, aren't there?"

Second Sailor: "I should say so. At night you turn, and just as you are about to turn over somebody turns up and shouts, 'Turn out!' "

Long-Time Credit.

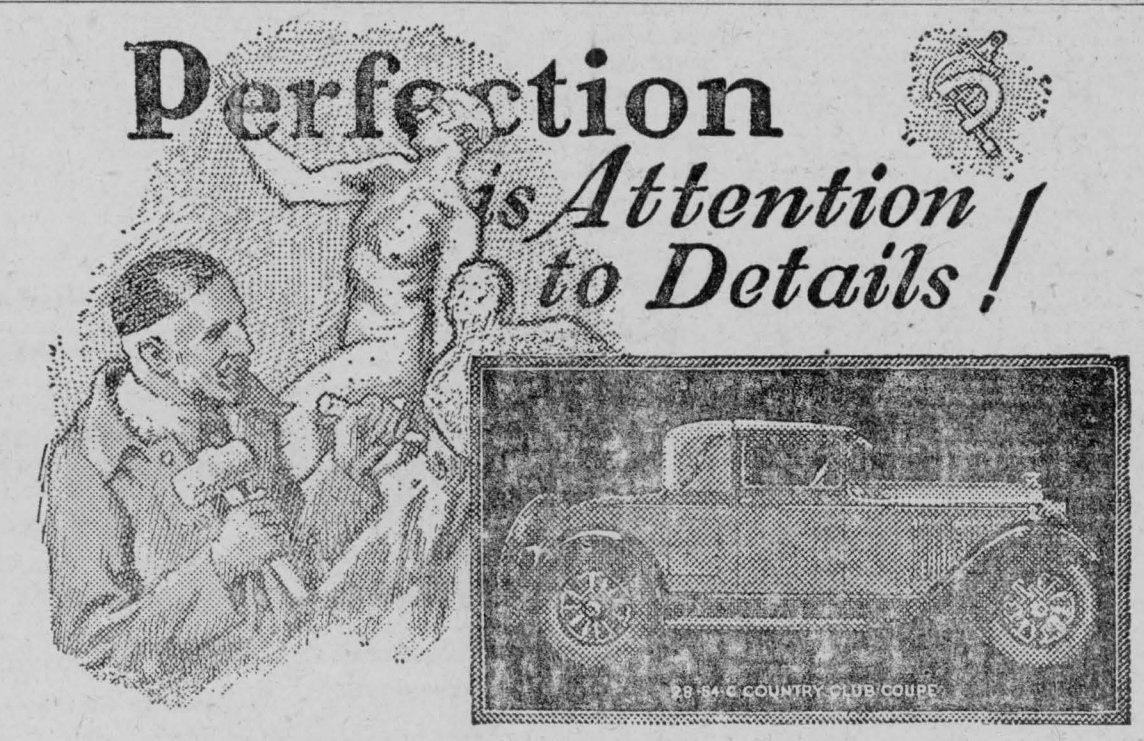

The local church was making a drive for funds, and two colored sisters were bearing down hard on Uncle Rastus.

"I can't give nothin'," exclaimed the old negro. "I owes nearly everybody in this here old town already."

"But," said one of the collectors, "don't you think you owe the Lord something too?"

"I does, sister, indeed," said the old man, "but He ain't pushing me like my other creditors is."

A NORTHERN BIRD SANCTUARY

Porcupine Advance—The wild geese are here again at Timmins on their annual migration to the far north. Last year they were protected and well supplied with food, the idea being to have a sort of bird sanctuary here. This year they are receiving equally good treatment. This year the birds look especially well. The white ones show up particularly, being very fine-appearing birds. Last week a number of ducks arrived here. They were big black mallards and attracted much attention. There is indeed a remarkable collection of birds at Gillies Lake in the vicinity of the Hollinger power house. They disport themselves along the shores and on the water, resting practically all day Wednesday on the ice. They now include snipe, seagulls, plover, wild ducks and geese. This is truly a remarkable gathering of birds, and one seldom seen in this North Land. There are no less than five different species of the ducks. In addition to "Peg-Leg" there is another lame bird among those here, while others of the visitors here last year are recognized in the group now here.

PIE AND PATRONAGE

The piazza hammock sagged as Ross Hayward settled into it. The last patronizing remark of Cousin Muriel's had wiped the merry, boyish look from his face. "Why did you hesitate?" she had aked. "You know you are so dreadfully blunt and outspoken that you are liable to spoil everything. Why not ask someone who has tact and discretion to help you?"

Ross had come to Boxborough that morning, bubbling over with good spirits and buoyant hopes. He had longed to visit Aunt Lucinda; he wanted to tell her the good news he had just heard—the news that there was an opening for a young chemist in the L. & S. Laboratories at Middle River, and that Prof. Blake had told him that it was an opportunity in a thousand.

And now Muriel, the very superior youngest daughter of nice, everyday Aunt Lucinda, who happened to be there on an unexpected visit, had spoiled everything by trying to take matters into her own hands.

"How absurd you are," she declared, "to think of going to Middle River all by yourself with a handful of professors' letters as references when you know that Uncle Miles would go with you in a minute if you should ask him. Few men in this state have the same influence that Uncle Miles has. All he would have to do is to step into Mr. Lockwood's office, put him into a genial mood by a discreet word or two and say, 'By the way, my nephew, Ross Hayward, is interested in that opening for a young chemist'—and the place is yours. That's the way politicians and real business men succeed; they don't rush into things in your direct, country-boy fashion; they oil the way with a little influence rightly applied."

Ross sighed, frowned and thumped an offending cushion.

"I'm ... crazy not to let her telephone to Uncle Miles this minute," he mused, "but I can't bear to have her do it. I want the place very much, but I don't want to be pulled into it. I wish I knew what Aunt Lucinda thinks; she didn't say a word one way or the other. If I am as awkward and as blunt as Muriel says, it seems only fair that a man should have a chance to find it out before he hires me, and not be rooled into thinking I'm suave and experienced because my uncle happens to be a Senator. Muriel sounds so sensible that I can't pick flaws in her argument, but I can't feel that it's quite—quite square."

Now Muriel's carefully modulated voice was again in his ears. She was ushering a morning visitor into the big living room.

"So dear of you to come over the moment I telephoned," she was saying; "and, O Emily, I want you to do me just a little bit of a favor. You remember my cousin Ross, that tall shy boy who was at my wedding? We're trying to get him a position at the L. & S. Laboratories at Middle River. You know what boys are; they don't understand how important it is to be in with the right set from the very first and not get mixed up with the wrong people. If you would just ask Mrs. Maynard to make room for Ross in her house, we'd know he was splendidly taken care of. I know she would do it as a favor to you if she possibly could."

"That's a good idea. I'll call her on the long-distance telephone right now," returned Emily importantly, "so that if she has a room no one else can snap it up."

Ross waited to hear no more. He leaped the piazza rail and wandered round to the back of the house.

Aunt Lucinda was making pies. Hirelings might wash and iron and scrub in a fairly satisfactory way, but no hand except her own was wise enough to handle biscuits and dumplings or were light enough to roll pastry. Ross watched her with that same delighted absorption that he had shown when he was a little boy. He liked the whole process—the dotting of the paste with crumbs of ice-cold butter, the rolling with light strokes, all in the same direction. He admired the shaving of pie crust that came from the edge of the plate as her knife encircled it, the wedges of apple that fitted so neatly together, the sifted sugar, the dash of nutmeg, the sprinkling of cinnamon.

He watched intently until the last fork print had been laid around the edge, the last hole pricked in the top.

"It's an awfully interesting process, Aunt Lucinda," he assured her; "I believe watching you cook made me want to be a chemist."

Aunt Lucinda smiled; she was not much of a talker. She went on rolling pie crusts with swift, light strokes.

"Look here," said Ross after a moment, "I caught you that time Aunt Lucinda; you forgot something; you forgot to grease the plate before you put on that under crust."

Aunt Lucinda smiled at him again, but this time with slightly lifted eyebrows.

"Don't you put something on the plate to keep the pie from sticking?" he demanded. "Butter or lard or something?"

Aunt Lucinda shook her head. "It's a poor pie that can't grease its own plate." She opened the oven door, took out a pan on which reposed some curls of pie crust, generously sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon, and slid them to the wire cooler near Ross.

"Um-m!" he cried appreciatively.

When the last crumb had vanished, Ross straightened his tall body.

"I know you say you hate to give advice, Aunt Lucinda; so I haven't asked for it; but, oddly enough, you've answered just the question I wanted to ask. It may be ungrateful of me to rush over to Middle River this morning before Muriel can set any more diplomacy into motion; but I want to do that very thing, and I am going to do it. Do you care?"

"Muriel means well," said Aunt Lucinda placidly. "Better put some cookies in your pocket. You can eat them as you cross-lots to the trolley. It may be late before you get your dinner."

The road cross-lots to the car line did not lead past the living-room windows; was Aunt Lucinda growing diplomatic?

Ross found the L. & S. laboratories without trouble, but had a long wait before he was ushered into Mr. Lockwood's presence. Mr. Lockwood was a stout middle-aged man with beetling grizzled brows.

"Well?" he said in a gruff tone of inquiry and fixed his gaze sharply on Ross. Nor did his gaze waver until Ross had told his tale, showed his letters and answered a rapid fire of searching questions. Then the atmosphere changed.

"Yes, I am willing to give you the chance and see what you can make of it," declared Mr. Lockwood, settling back in his chair. "Don't thank me, for if you don't suit I may turn you down cold after one month's tryout. I don't mind saying that there are some things in your favor—you don't pretend to know everything, and yet you do stand on your own feet. I speak of this because a fellow came in here for a job this morning and brought his brother along to do his talking. The brother was a smooth talker, but he couldn't convince me that the other fellow had sand enough to amount to much. Have you any relatives in this part of the country?"

"Yes," said Ross, "but none in Middle River."

"Where do they live?" Mr. Lockwood inquired frankly.

"I have an aunt in Boxborough, Mrs. Lucinda Draper," replied Ross, smiling at the thought of Aunt Lucinda.

"I know who she is—and that makes Senator Miles Hayward your uncle, doesn't it? Why didn't you bring a reference from him?"

"He doesn't know anything about chemistry," declared Ross. "I should not want you to hire me on his say-so either," he said, answering an amused flash in the sharp gray eyes.

"Really now, why not?" Mr. Lockwood asked.

"Because," blurted out Ross, "if you hired me as a favor to him, you'd be going against your own judgment, and you would half expect me to be a failure; but if you hired me on your own decision, you wouldn't be so ready to admit that I wasn't competent, even if it were true, because it would be criticism against your own judgment."

Mr. Lockwood's answer to that was a whole-hearted roar of laughter.

"I suppose, stammered Ross, "I should not have said that. I hope you will excuse me if I sounded rude."

"All right," smiled Mr. Lockwood. "How about a boarding place?"

"I should be glad to have you suggest one," said Ross.

"Try Mrs. Maynard on Ruthven Avenue. She may not have a room; she is a very popular boarding mistress; but she doesn't take everybody. Report for work to-morrow morning if you like."

"Thank you," said Ross; "I'm anxious to begin."

He stopped at a little restaurant for dinner, wrote a couple of letters at the postoffice and took a long walk of exploration before he approached Mrs. Maynard's house.

Mrs. Maynard was sewing on the piazza. She was a fair, plump, motherly woman, and every motion that she made showed her quickness and her decision.

"There's a room you may have if it suits you," she said pleasantly. "Where is your home, Mr. Hayward? Sit down and tell me about yourself."

Her smile was so friendly that Ross found himself talking to her as comfortably as if he had known her for years, but he was astonished to have her match her frankness with his own.

"I'm wickedly glad of your coming here to-day," she confessed. "This very morning a girl called me up to ask me to reserve a room for a friend of hers. I am so fond of the girl's mother that I hated to refuse her, but the girl is one of the overcritical, superior kind that I can't abide. I felt a great reluctance in taking a man into my house of her recommendation. You know a boarding house is a poor recommendation for a home anyway, but it's truly awful if people arn't congenial. She wouldn't fit, and I imagine her friend wouldn't fit. Now I can tell her there isn't a chance of a room for a long time."

"It's funny," said Ross to himself, while getting ready for supper in his new home, "but the philosophy Muriel got from business and politics isn't half so true as that which Aunt Lucinda got out of her pie crust."

MOTORISTS NEED AID

How often does the average motorist, driving the average car, have to call for emergency road aid in the course of a year? Mr. Average Motorist probably will be surprised to find out that out of every 1,000 motorists 130 have to call for emergency at least once a month. This means that in the course of a year every motorist is scheduled "to be stuck' one and one-half times, even if he gets the average break from Lady Luck.

Pomeroy, had to be operated on for the same condition. Both patients are understood to be making satisfactory progress.

VERY LARGE EGG

There was brought to the Record Office this week an egg laid by a White Leghorn pullet not yet quite a year old, in Mr. John Hanna's flock at Gallingertown, which weighed three and a half ounces and measured seven and seven eighths inches the long way round by six and a half the other way.

RED AURORA MISTAKEN FOR FIRE REFLECTION

The blood-red phenomenon which was witnessed Monday night in the northern sky by residents of this district resulted in a serious discussion between Douglas Barlow who was on duty at the Dominion Observatory and R. Meldrum Stewart, director of the observatory. The director and Mr. Barlow now are inclined to belive that the spectacle was not a polar sunset but what is known as a Red Aurora, because of its peculiar color. Should the phenomenon re-appear, an investigation and analysis of available data will be made.

CHICKEN THIEF MUST SERVE TERM IN PENITENTIARY

Percy Foster, who, with Allan Parke, of North Gwillimbury, was previously found guilty of stealing chickens and auto accessories, was sent to Kingston Penitentiary for two years by Magistrate Brunton of Toronto, while Parke received from one to two years in the Ontario Reformatory.

The magistrate declared that chicken thieves were worse than bank robbers. Under cover of night, they stole from farmers who had no police protection, he said.

UNITED W. M. S. MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of the United church was held in the Sunday School rooms yesterday afternoon. After the devotional exercises the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

During the business part of the meeting Miss Merkley read a letter from Dr. Helen McMurchy. The programme included a solo by Miss Willa Ellis and a very interesting paper by Mrs. R. P. Stafford of Morewood, entitled "Expect Great Things from God, and Attempt Great Things for God." After the singing of a hymn reports were received from Mrs. W. A. Brown and Mrs. Ingram Cross of the meeting of the Montreal Conference Branch held at Sherbrooke.

Mrs. Newman moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Stafford, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Cross, which was seconded by Mrs. Houlehan, for their reports.

Miss Merkley brought a report from the Presbyterial at Prescott, but for lack of time it was held over until some future date.

The meeting closed with singing followed by the Mizpah benediction.

OLD-TIME TEMPERANCE LODGES

After prohibition came into force the need for these organizations was no longer felt and they gradually fe away. It is now recognized on all sides that the letting up of the temperance education was a great mistake and to-day efforts are being initiated through the province to restore the temperance lodge. It would appear that there is a work for such organizations to do. In the rural sections they can fill a dual purpose as temperance lodge and social centre and self-improvement society.
