PROTECT THE PHEASANTS

Through the efforts of the local Game and Fish Association, which was organized last Fall, a limited number of Pheasants' eggs were procured from the Department this Spring, and a number of our citizens availed themselves of this opportunity of having the eggs hatched, and in due time, liberating the birds, thereby restocking the woods in the surrounding country.

Those who have undertaken this work have met with a certain degree of success. Today, the birds, being a fair size, are taking the liberty of visiting the neighbors' gardens, but in a month or so, they will be set free in the woods, where they can care for themselves.

In the meantime, citizens should bear in mind that these birds are absolutely harmless in the gardens; also that killing restrictions are provided by the game laws of the Province to protect them. Sportsmen have more faith in the co-operation of their fellow citizens, than they have in law. Those who are public spirited enough to undertake the restocking of the woods with game birds, at considerable expense and trouble, feel that it is not necessary to ask the citizens to refrain from killing these birds, but they do ask for the co-operation of the citizens in their protection. Dogs, cats, and sometimes young boys are the chief offenders, and they should be dealt with in a way that will ensure protection to these young game birds.

McMILLAN—MAURER

St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, Williamsburg, was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday, Sept. 17th, when Emma Belle McMillan, daughter of Mrs. Anson Becker, was united in marriage to Paul Frederick Maurer.

The bride wore a cocoa-brown dress with hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink roses. She was attended by Miss Ethel Salmon of Ottawa and was given in marriage by her mother, Mr. Earle Alden of Ottawa attended the groom.

During the signing of the register Miss Margaret Kaine sang "True Till Death."

After the ceremony buffet luncheon was served at the bride's home. The newly weds left on their honeymoon trip motoring to Ottawa and then taking train to Toronto, Kitchener, Detroit and Chicago, where they will reside.

Many beautiful and costly presents were received by the bride including a cheque for one hundred dollars from Mr. F. L. Marcellus of Camrose, Alta., uncle of the bride.

CASSELMAN—COLEMAN

A quiet and very interesting wedding was solemnized at the Methodist parsonage, Brinston, Sept. 1st, when Rev. T. P. Shaver united in holy wedlock, Mr. Arnold J. Casselman, only son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Casselman, Winchester Springs, and Miss Aleitha M. Coleman, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Coleman of Toy's Hill.

The bride looked charming in a sand suit with hat and pumps to match.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left by motor for Winchester where they took the westbound train for Toronto, Niagara and other places of interest. A few of their immediate relatives accompanied them to the station and saw them off with their hearty good wishes.

On their return a reception was held at the home of the groom on Monday evening, Sept. 8th, at which eighty-five relatives and neighbors were present to welcome the newly married couple. The usual congratulations and good wishes were very generously extended. The many and costly presents which were received showed the esteem in which they were held.

The dining hall was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and evergreens. The tables were decorated with sweet peas, asters and dahlias. Bountiful refreshments were served by the lady friends of the bride, after which the bride's cake was cut and distributed. Then Rev. W. E. Lang proposed a toast to the health of the bride and groom. All joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows" as they were leaving the dining hall.

ONE CROSS ON BALLOT

CABINET'S DECISION

Official announcement of a change in the form of the plebiscite ballot from that originally enacted was announced last night.

The alterations effect simplification inasmuch as the voter will be required to put one cross on his ballot, that to be after the question to which he desires to give an affirmative. Two crosses on the ballot will render it void.

The questions asked are: First—"Are you in favor of the O.T.A.?"

Second—"Are you in favor of sale of beer and spirituous liquors in sealed packages under government control?"

GERALD VICTOR McMILLAN

On September 8th, the angel of death called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy McMillan at Waddington, N.Y., and claimed for its toll one of the tender flowers in the person of Gerald Victor McMillan aged five years, seven months and nineteen days.

Victor was a bright intelligent child and was born at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McMillan, Winchester Springs, while his father was serving in the army and made his home with his grandparents the greater part of the time, until four weeks previous to his death, when he returned home with his parents to start to school. The little fellow was apparently in his usual health until noon when he complained, ate no dinner, and went to bed. His mother visited his room at different intervals through the afternoon and the child appeared to be sleeping. At five o'clock she noticed the child restless and before medical aid could be procured the little soul took its flight.

The remains were brought to Maple Ridge cemetery for interment. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved.

MASTER G. M. DAFOE

The death of Master George M. Dafeo, in his fifteenth year, occurred at his home, Church Road, Township of Williamsburg, at 5 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 9th. He was stricken with Infantile Paralysis when about one year old, which finally resulted in death, despite the tender care and best medical aid obtainable.

There remains to mourn his loss his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. R. Dafeo and one brother Clare, at home. The funeral was held on Wednesday at 2 p.m. from his home to the Lutheran Church at Riverside. His Pastor, the Rev. Maeder, conducted the service. Interment took place at the cemetery adjoining the church.

Relatives from a distance at the funeral were his Great Aunt, Mrs. Flora McCarey, Brockville, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shaver, Mr. Stanley and Arthur Dafeo of Aultsville.

MRS. JOHN LAGUE

There passed away on Friday last September 12th, at the home of her son, Benjamin, Aultsville, Mrs. Emeline Lague, at the age of 90 years. Mrs. Lague, who was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fowler and widow of John Lague, was born in Kempville. In her younger days, she was a tireless church worker. She leaves to mourn her loss, seven sons and three daughters—John of Dickinson Landing, James of Aultsville, William of Croil's Island, Joseph of Milwaukee, Lewis of Lunenburg, Michael of Calgary, Alta., Benjamin of Aultsville. Mrs. Alexander Cross of Louisville Landing, N.Y., Mrs. Nellie DeMoss, Nero of Glen Falls, N.Y., and Mrs. Henry Lapoint of Waddington, N.Y. Funeral took place on Sunday last from her late residence to St. Paul's Church and cemetery. Rev. Mr. Bender of Aultsville officiating. Friends present from a distance were: John Lague of Dickinson Landing; Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Cross and son Arnold, of Louisville Landing; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lapoint and son, Murray of Waddington; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Pennington of Norwood, N.Y.; D. Vallance of Louisville Landing; Mrs. Lewis Lague and Freda Dishaw, Lunenburg; Alexander McPhee, Mr. and Mrs. J. McPhee, Mr. and Mrs. H. McPhee, Misses Sarah and Emma McPhee of Dickinson Landing; Mr. and Mrs. William Lague and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Logue, Miss Bessie May Baker of Croil's Island; Mrs. Ledger of Hamilton.

MCLAUGHLIN-BUICK SPECIAL SIX 25-26

THE new Special Six is a car you will enthuse over.

The Business Coupe, for instance—the smart lines, the beautiful, quiet-toned Duco finish and handsome equipment, give it an air of smartness and style that is equalled by few cars, regardless of price.

Moreover, what you would expect from a car outwardly so beautiful, will be more than fulfilled by this Coupe's performance. The 50 H.P. valve-in-head engine provides more than enough power for the hardest going in mud and sand. The sturdy chassis and cantilever springs, together with Low Pressure Tires, afford unusual driving ease and comfort—even on the roughest roads.

The increased safety of Four-Wheel Brakes adds much to the driver's peace of mind and enjoyment.

A SURPRISE PICNIC.

The Surprise Picnic was the very pleasantest thing we ever had happen to us. You see, the teacher of the domestic-science class at high school in our township lives on a farm, and she got our girls together and planned to surprise the parents with a picnic which they did not have to prepare. That means a good bit in the summer-time when everyone is busy indoors and out. We thought the girls were just getting together for some extra cooking lessons, so we supplied eggs and cream and other ingredients.

But when a car drew up to the door about four o'clock in the afternoon and one of the high-school boys told us to get ready—he'd wait—I just couldn't think. What could I get together for a lunch? I had been so busy with the blackberries all day that I had not baked as usual.

"Oh, the eats are all there," he announced indifferently, seeing my embarrassment. "Better hurry and get your best bib and tucker on; everybody'll be there in an hour."

Das was as excited as I was. At last we were in the car, sitting like royalty with our driver on the front seat.

When we reached the old grove it seemed just everybody was there. There were long tables set with hot chicken, cold biscuits, little, whole tomatoes, coffee and baked potatoes, and we sat down to the merriest meal a farm woman can enjoy—the one someone else prepares. Ice cream and cake as dessert proved to us that the salary we pay our domestic-science teacher is well spent.

After supper, in the firelight, the boys and girls entertained us. First, three girls in hay skirts shocked and delighted us with their hula-hula dance, and just after it came a stiff-doll dance, so perfectly like little jointed dolls that I wanted to help them.

Then, after we had laughed until we ached, they announced that there would be a debate, "Resolved, that Jane ought to marry Bill."

Well, we all know both of these youngsters and we thought this a rather novel way to announce an engagement, but we never believed that such funny arguments could be brought forth, both why and why not, they should marry.

I don't think anyone thought about farm work, hot kitchens or the problem of making a living that whole evening, and after the clever Apache dance given by Herb and Nan we still hated to go, and stood around talking it over until quite late.

Surely our children enjoyed the good time, but we, who usually do the heavy end of cooking and planning, indeed found their unique surprise picnic a wonderful entertainment.—E. M. P.

SILENT SALESMEN.

Besides selling eggs at all times, we often have other products of our place that we would like to retail instead of sending to market. We have found the following method of introducing our wares very simple and efficient:

I write, or typewrite, on slips of paper a list of whatever we happen to have to sell at the time—fruits, vegetables or jellies—and their prices. Sometimes it is only one thing, sometimes several.

I place one of these little silent salesmen in each box of eggs that goes out. Orders invariably result and we do not have to push our goods in any other way.—A. K.

CHURCH FOR CHILDREN.

To go or not to go to church is a question that confronts many mothers of small children. Often it is impossible to leave the little ones at home and, because they are too young to be interested in the services, they disturb others by becoming restless and fidgety.

One mother solved this problem in an interesting and satisfactory way. When starting out for church with her three-year-old son, she slipped into her pocket a small pad of plain paper. On each of several pages she had previously drawn an outline, pictures of flowers, birds and animals. Fastened to one corner of the pad were several colored crayons.

When sonny began to grow restless he was given the pad, and the work of filling in the outlines with colors never failed to keep him busy and quiet until the services were over.

Another mother, whose little girl was beginning to read, resewed one or two of the child's best books to be read in church when the services became difficult. And the baby of that family, a tiny miss of two years, always carried a tiny bag containing five or six animal crackers. These she ate, crumb by crumb as her surrounding grew uninteresting.

AN OUTDOOR CRADLE.

Nowadays babies have their noses outdoors most of the time. A new piece of verandah furniture is the Holland cradle, made from a barrel. And this is how it's done. Buy a barrel at the grocery store for forty cents, split the barrel lengthwise two-thirds of the way, then saw across at right angles to the split.

Place the barrel on its side and it will form a wooden cradle; the end of the barrel makes a round wooden canopy. Two small wooden pieces should be nailed securely to the ends low down so that the barrel may rock a little, but not turn over. After carpentry work is done and the whole new cradle has received a coat of Madonna blue paint, then the outdoor cradle is all ready for its baby passenger.

IRONING CURTAINS.

When ironing sash curtains, instead of ironing lengthwise, iron from side to side. This prevents sagging at the sides, making the curtains hang squarely.

A NICE SUPPER DISH.

Jellied chicken makes a nice supper or picnic dish. An old fowl can be used and should be cut in pieces and simmered slowly in a little more than a quart of water. If the fowl is very old add a tablespoonful of vinegar.

NURSES

The Toronto Hospital for Incurables, in affiliation with Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, New York City, offers a three years' Course of Training to young women, having the required education, and desirous of becoming nurses. This Hospital has adopted the eight-hour system. The pupils receive uniforms of the School, a monthly allowance and travelling expenses to and from New York. For further information apply to the Superintendent.

By Process of Exclusion

BY REGINALD WRIGHT KAUFFMAN.

PART II.

The butler-coachman admitted me—a short, stocky Irishman, out of livery, with a square jaw and a sullen face.

"I want to see Mr. George Pardoe," I said.

"Well, ye can't!" he snapped, and started to shut the door.

But I was an old enough man at this sort of thing to have my foot in the way.

"Think again," said I persuasively—and slipped him a bill.

His fist closed on the greenback, and he spoke more respectfully than before, but his voice was firm.

"It's no use, sor," he replied. "Mr. Pardoe's been bothered to death by ye newspaper fellows all the day."

But just then I caught sight of a pretty little girl in a cap and apron hovering in the hallway—the maid, of course.

I raised my hat with a flourish.

"Miss Anderson?" I asked, all the while making mental notes of the pair for my descriptive story.

She came smilingly forward, her pretty, pink, round, Swedish face broken up with dimples.

"Yes," she nodded.

"Well," said I, as the astonished man fell back a pace, "will you kindly tell your master that Mr. Burton, of the Philadelphia Globe-Express, has given up his vacation, and come all the way from Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, just to see him?"

She courtesied and was off in a flash.

A moment later, I heard a broken, weary voice saying:

"Show him in."

George Pardoe rose to meet me.

I could see that ordinarily he was a typical successful business man, stout, settled, phlegmatic. He had a large, clean-shaven face, with a firm mouth, keen grey eyes and black hair, just now going thin at the temples. Altogether he was a man whom you would expect to see comfortable only in an office, and one who, as you pass his like by the score every time you venture into the business districts of a large city, you would never glance at a second time.

Just now, however, he was interesting because of his position in my story, and I noticed that his eyes were red with weeping, that he was dressed in fitting black instead of the light shades that he probably more usually affected, and that his full, well-fed face was gray with the emotions through which he had been passing.

Season with salt and bits of red pepper pod. When tender, take out the meat, remove the bones and skin, return meat to the liquor and boil twenty minutes longer. Then cut the chicken in small pieces and pack in a mold, along with slices of hard-boiled eggs. Sprinkle with the juice and grated rind of lemon. When the liquor is cool enough, skim off the fat, pour the liquor over the chicken, set in a cold place to harden. To serve, cut into slices and garnish with parsley or watercress.

WHEN SOMEONE FAINTS.

Anyone who would meet an emergency must keep cool and know what to do. Haste is seldom necessary and causes flurry.

At a recent drama the heroine fainted. The distracted lover tore his hair and shouted: "What shall I do? What shall I do?"

A voice from the upper gallery replied loudly: "Lower her head!"

This was sensible first aid advice. The patient may be on the floor, on the ground, or even on the hard sidewalk. If the patient is to be moved, keep the head lowered. There will be a tendency, unless someone is the chief director, for all to follow the general advice of the bystanders. The result which follows such advice does not secure the best results and is often dangerous. You may have witnessed such a scene.

A woman faints in a crowd. At once the people press near, the greater share of them because of curiosity, thus shutting out the fresh air, which is most needed. If the crowd can be kept away and the woman can be allowed to remain in a reclining position, her clothes loosened, nature will do much more than any artificial means to restore her to consciousness. When propriety and the place of accident require the removal of the fainting person, two attendants should assist in lifting the patient so that the head can be kept lowered.

If the faint happens indoors, leave the patient on the floor, loosen any tight clothing and open windows and doors to allow plenty of fresh air to play on the patient.

Fainting can often be prevented if the person who feels an attack impending will lower the head until it is between the knees. This causes the blood to rush to the head and will often prevent an attack.

Cold water is the best stimulant for one who is recovering from a faint. Cold water may be given as a drink and the face flicked with a towel wrung out of very cold water.

"Good evening, Mr. Burton," he nevertheless, said with business-like brevity. "What can I do for you?"

"If you will be so kind," I said, "as to give me five minutes, I will occupy your time only by asking you a few questions which, I have no doubt, you have answered a hundred times today."

He bowed his head in acquiescence, and I proceeded:

"At what time were you awakened on the morning of the sixth?"

"As nearly as I can make out, at just 6 o'clock—that is the time at which the maid generally opens the house, and Miss Packer was performing the maid's duties in the Anderson girl's absence."

"You came downstairs at once?"

"Almost immediately."

"Is it true, as stated, that your brother's body was cold when you touched it?"

"Yes. I remember the shock of touching it."

"Has the coachman a key to this house?"

"Not to my knowledge."

"Were the doors and windows all locked that morning?"

"I made sure of that myself."

"Did you hear any noise during the night?"

"Not a sound."

"Are you a heavy sleeper?"

"Very—and the walls and floors are thick."

"Mr. Pardoe, did your brother have any enemies?"

"Not a one," he replied, "that I can think of. I have done my best to recall any, but it is useless. Emerson was the mildest and quietest of men. He went out but little and had few friends—not to mention enemies."

"I am a thousand times obliged to you for your trouble," I said, retiring. "I am sorry that I had to disturb you, but that, you know, is a part of my business which I can't avoid. Don't bother to ring; I can find my way out."

With that I slipped into the hall, closing the parlor door behind me. One glance showed me that I was alone. The next almost convinced me that the coast was clear upstairs. In three bounds I had mounted to the first landing and, before a minute had passed, I had located the room which, from the published descriptions, I was sure must be the housekeeper's.

I did not knock; I just pushed open the door and entered.

A woman was kneeling beside the bed, crying, her face buried in the bed clothes.

She leaped to her feet with a little cry.

It was then my turn to be surprised.

"Jane Houghton!" I whispered. I had known her ten years before, and ten years had only softened without disguising her face.

In two words her tragedy had been this: She had been a poor girl sent to a rich boarding school. Her schoolmates had been able to enjoy many things which she had been forced to do without. Then, in a moment of weakness, she had stolen a paltry sum from one of them, had been detected and dismissed. Her family had disowned her, and I—then a boy at a nearby school—had heard only that she had been truly repentant, had gone to the school chaplain and had been found by him a place in the employment of some well-to-do family in New Jersey, where she was living under an assumed name, but leading an honest life.

And now here she was, still beautiful and about to be arrested for the murder of Emerson Pardoe!

She recognized me at once. And at once her first thought was self-preservation.

"You—you won't tell!" she cried. For a reply I gripped her firmly by the wrists and dragged her to the light.

"Jane," said I, fixing my eyes steadily upon her splendid brown ones, "as you hope for salvation, tell me the truth: Did you do this thing?"

"No, no, no!" she cried. "Why, I didn't mean that. I—I didn't even know anybody suspected—Oh, how can you? Do you mean to say that anybody—that they could—"

"Yes," I said hoarsely, "I am afraid some of them do."

"Then I'm ruined! Utterly ruined! Who will believe me when they know my story?"

But again I fixed my eyes on hers.

"Jane," said I, "answer my question. Tell me the truth as you hope for pardon for your former sin. Did you kill Emerson Pardoe?"

She raised her one hand—jerked free from my grasp—high above her head.

"I swear to you before God," she said, "that I even would have given my life to save him."

"Then," I answered, convinced, "no body need ever know you are Jane Houghton."

(To be concluded.)

For Sore Feet—Minard's Liniment.

Why Glued Joints Fail.

Every housekeeper has had the experience, to her deep regret, of her furniture loosening up at the joints, due to changes of temperature and atmospheric conditions. In many cases valuable furniture has lost its usefulness and been discarded for this reason.

This condition, however, is not always due to the above causes, it would appear. There are numerous qualities of glue, or adhesives, as they are technically called, and the causes of failure of glued joints may, in many cases be due to the use of an unsuitable grade. The glue may have been the most expensive procurable, but not adaptable for the purpose for which it was used.

This situation has influenced the Forest Products Laboratories of the Department of the Interior to conduct a series of investigations into the merits of various adhesives for different purposes. Some twenty-six commercial adhesives of the hide and casein classes have been investigated, the work including both mechanical and physical determinations. Ageing tests to secure information on the permanency of the adhesives were also undertaken.

If the Forest Products Laboratories are able to secure results that will relieve the worries of the home makers of Canada regarding the coming apart of their furniture at the glued joints they will have earned a full measure of appreciation and at the same time will be in a position to supply invaluable information to furniture manufacturers.

Minard's Liniment Heals Cuts.

Just Spikes!

"Well, now we're settled down, the tent's set up. The dunnage off, the kettle on the boil, let's paint a sign and nail it on this tree. So everything shall be as ruled by Hoyle."

On which they took a box lid and some spikes And daubed upon the lid 'CAMP SANS SOUL!' (They split the lid for kindling ere they left; The spikes were left embedded in the tree.)

Time winged its flight. One day two tongue-tied men Stood hesitant before a garden gate. And coughed, and cleared their throats, and then one said, "We bring bad news, I guess, an' I sure hate To tell yuh, Missus, but—an hour ago, While we was cuttin' spruce down at the Mill— The saw got busted on some rusty spikes Sunk in the log. A splinter hit your Bill Who happened to be passin' at the time He's injured pretty bad. 'N fact it's said—"

(He gulped and mopped his brow and looked away) "Dear God! Don't say he's DEAD." "Yes, mum, he's dead."

Out in the Fields.

The little cares that fretted me, I lost them yesterday. Among the fields above the sea, Among the winds at play; Among the lowing herds, The rustling of the trees, Among the singing birds, The humming of the bees.

The fears of what may come to pass, I cast them all away. Among the clover-scented grass, Among the new-mown hay, Among the husking of the corn, Where drowsy poppies nod, Where ill thoughts die and good are born Out in the fields with God.

The Grail.

Not the white hands and smooth, but the hands with broken nails; Not the unfurrowed brow with its lines of grief unwritten; But the cheek that endeavor pales, And the lip that in fear is bitten; Not the calm of the cloister, cool And aloof from the populace, But the tears of the broken fool In the dung of the market place, And the light of the laborers' fire On the weary workman's face Shall touch the grail of beauty, there God drinks from human earthwardness. —Amory Hare.

Nothing But the Truth.

James has just been engaged to assist the milkman. "Now," said his master to him on the first morning, "do you see what I'm doing?" "Yes, sir," replied James. "You're pouring water into the milk!" "No, I'm not, James," was the answer. "You're wrong. I'm pouring milk into the water. So if anyone asks you if I put water into the milk, you be sure and tell 'em 'No.' Allus stick to the truth, James, and you'll get on in life. Cheatin' is bad enough, but lyin's awful!"

For every wash-day method

RINSO is ideal for any wash-day method you use. You do not have to change any of your usual steps—just use Rinso where you used to use ordinary soap.

If you like to boil your white cottons, Rinso will give you just the safe cleansing suds you need in the boiler. If you use a washing machine, follow the advice of the big washing machine manufacturers—use Rinso.

Just soaking with this new kind of soap loosens all the dirt until a single rinsing leaves the clothes clean and spotless.

COMPULSORY ARBITRATION ACCEPTED BY BRITAIN, WITH ONE PROVISIO

When British Navy is Once Engaged in the Task of Restoring Peace, League Control Must be Set Aside—
Special Naval Conference Dropped.

A despatch from Geneva says:—Great Britain dramatically dropped a naval bomb into the Geneva Conference on Thursday and the new Anglo-French entente was appraised by many as approaching the character of an out-and-out alliance, when Sir Cecil Hurst, eminent jurist, and British delegate, declared Great Britain's readiness to accept compulsory arbitration, provided she would not be brought into court because of some act of her navy performed in attempting to maintain or restore peace.

This declaration has set Geneva agog more than anything since Premier MacDonald and Herriot committed themselves in principle to the settlement of any and all disputes by obligatory arbitration by some world tribunal or tribunals.

The British reservation was interpreted as meaning that once the British Navy begins to operate, her right of search and capture, which formed the subject of controversy between the United States and Britain before the United States entered the Great War, cannot be questioned juridically.

The text of the announcement is that if the British reservation is accepted by the other powers, Continental countries will not only get economic help from Britain as part of the proposed pact of security or sanctions, but also the full and immense support of the British Navy in case any country, in defiance of an arbitral decision, opens hostilities and attacks another State.

Sir Cecil Hurst declared the British reservation was not a Machiavellian subterfuge. In times past there has existed an idea that Great Britain was the tyrant of the seas. Yet, he said, the British delegation was only seeking to discover some method whereby the great cause of organized peace and security could be advanced on terms assuring progress.

All idea of holding a special Conference to extend the principles of the Washington Naval Treaty to non-signatory States has been dropped. The Disarmament Sub-Commission decided that, in view of the likelihood of a general Disarmament Conference, such a Naval Conference would be unnecessary.

TWO QUESTIONS BEFORE ONTARIO ELECTORS

Plebiscite on the Temperance Question Arranged for October 23.

A despatch from Toronto says:—The liquor plebiscite to be held on October 23rd next will ask two questions of the Ontario electors. It will ask in the first place if the voter is in favor of the continuance of the Ontario Temperance Act, and it will further ask if the voter is in favor of the sale of beer and spirituous liquor in sealed packages under Government control.

These queries were framed yesterday by the Ontario Government, following an entire day spent upon consideration of the Temperance Act issue. The exact text of the two questions is:

"(1) Are you in favor of the continuance of the Ontario Temperance Act?"

"(2) Are you in favor of the sale as a beverage of beer and spirituous liquor in sealed packages under Government control?"

In explanation of the spirit in which these queries were framed by the Government, the Prime Minister made the following statement in announcing them:

"The first consideration of a Government in its legislation and in the administration thereof must always be the moral and the material progress and welfare of the people it serves. The greatest force in the securing of law observance and the suppression of crime and the elimination of distress is public opinion. The purpose of the plebiscite is to secure from the people such an expression of opinion as will enable the Government to adopt such measures as will have behind them the fullest possible public approval and support.

"The Ontario Temperance Act as amended and strengthened from time to time during the past eight years is now the governing principle in the handling of our liquor problem. It is obvious, therefore, that the first inquiry must be directed to ascertaining if the people desire to continue the principle of this law. One of the questions, therefore, will be: 'Are you in favor of the continuance of the Ontario Temperance Act?' If the majority answer in the affirmative there can be no doubt as to the course to be followed.

"If, on the other hand, the majority answer in the negative, it means that some new method of controlling the sale as a beverage of beer and spirituous liquor must be adopted. The Government, therefore, seeks a further expression of opinion by asking a second question: 'Are you in favor of the sale as a beverage of beer and spirituous liquor in sealed packages under Government control?'

"Government control, in the view of the Government, does not mean a system of sale such as is in operation in Quebec and British Columbia. It means that the Government will make all sales, and that the people will be given opportunity of, as expressed by their votes at the polls, of purchasing beer and liquors under strict regulations."

Canada's 1924 Crop Estimated by Bureau of Statistics

A despatch from Ottawa says:—The oat crop for all Canada this year is expected to total 463,860,000 bushels, compared with 563,937,000 bushels last year; barley, 90,769,000 bushels, compared with 76,997,800 last year; rye, 12,799,000 bushels, compared with 23,231,800 bushels last year; flaxseed, 10,346,000 bushels compared with 7,139,500 last year. These are the estimates of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Poor of All Countries Provided With Free Legal Aid

A despatch from Geneva says:—The first League Commission devoted to the examination of legal questions adopted the report of a sub-commission providing free legal aid to the poor of all countries, regardless of nationality. This was on motion of the chairman, Sir Littleton Groom, Attorney-General of Australia.

Capt. the Hon. Alexander Ramsay, Husband of Princess Patricia, has been appointed commander of H.M.S. Calcutta, now at Quebec.

WORLD CONDITIONS ENRICH OUR FARMERS

Prices Soar While Grain is Being Harvested Throughout the Land.

A despatch from Chicago says:—The remarkable rise in the prices of grain within the past 90 days, of 30 cents a bushel in the price of wheat, 35 cents in corn, 20 cents in rye and 15 cents in oats, is estimated in some quarters to have added as much as a billion dollars to the purchasing power of the grain farmers of Canada and the United States.

Never before in history has a spectacular upward swing in prices of farm products come at a more opportune time, nor has a rise of this character been ascribed to so many different and misleading causes. The truth is that economic laws and nature have carried the farmer from utter depression to prosperity. Grain men, market experts and economists are a unit in declaring that it is the world conditions of supply and demand which have boosted the price of wheat. They scoff at rumors that United States politicians are influencing the market.

Grain marketing specialists believe that a glance at the figures of production and prices in different countries will prove the fallacy of such rumors.

Prince of Wales Will Send Ponies Back Home

A despatch from Syosset, Long Island, says:—The prince will not take his polo ponies to Canada. Thomas Russell, the head groom, will return with them to England at the end of the American visit when his particular job on his return to the Old Country will be to condition the prince's twenty hunters for the opening of the season in October.

The prince brought eight of his ten polo ponies across the Atlantic, leaving only two at home. They are a valuable string, being worth $2,000 to $3,000 apiece. Six of the ponies are English-bred, one is Australian-bred from English stock and the eighth, Jacinto, is American-bred.

Russell, who is a typical Old Country horseman, confessed to the enquiring reporter that he had never touched liquor in his life, in spite of American ideas about English drinking; and that he neither smoked nor chewed, except possibly a straw when in a ruminative mood. He declared that he liked nothing better than to take a couple of apples along and have a holiday. A gay dog, indeed!

Winter wheat on dry land at the experimental farm threshed this week yielded 35 bushels per acre. One favored field at Lethbridge, Alta., went 45 bushels.

Alberta Wheat Pool officials claim that farmers who joined the co-operative marketing organization received $2,000,000 more for their 1923 crop than they would have netted through independent marketing methods. The pool actually handled 34,192,805 bushels of wheat during the first pool year.

Dominion News in Brief

Charlottetown, P.E.I.—A live fox and fur show, open to the world, is to be held in Charlottetown in 1925, according to a decision reached here by the Silver Black Fox Breeders' Association at their annual meeting. The meeting expressed the opinion that inasmuch as the island was the cradle of the fox industry its capital city was the proper place for the holding of such an exhibition at which it is expected there will be several thousand animals on show.

Halifax, N.S.—The Nova Scotia Evaporators will have evaporating plants in operation this season at Kingston, Aylesford, Annapolis, Berwick, Waterville, Lakeville, Cambridge, Port Williams and Wolfville. The first two named will have two plants each in operation. There is a possibility that the plants at Windsor, Middleton and Lawrencetown will also be in operation, depending on the available supply of lower grade apples.

Fredericton, N.B.—Nearly twice as many tourists have registered at the camping grounds here this year as last, a total of 660 having made use of the grounds before the end of August. The camp has been considerably extended and additions made to facilities this year. Campers have come from many states of the Union as well as all over the Maritimes.

Montreal, Que.—Canada as a suitable field for Scandinavian emigrants is strongly advocated by Otto Elander, publisher, of Gothenburg, Sweden, who recently visited the Swedish settlements in the Dominion for the purpose of studying conditions. Mr. Elander states that climatic and other conditions to which the men of Northern Europe are accustomed and in which Scandinavian settlers have made a success, are to be found in Canada.

Fort William, Ont.—Governor J. A. O. Preus, of Minnesota, in Fort William recently, predicted an immense tourist traffic into Northern Ontario as soon as the highway from Port Arthur to Nipigon is completed. The road is a few miles from the world famous trout stream, connecting here with the highways into the United States.

Winnipeg, Man.—An order for 5,000 boxes, containing 56 pounds each, of creamy butter has been received by Manitoba from England. The value of the shipment is approximately $100,000 and will be the second consignment of unsalted butter to be exported overseas from this province.

Saskatoon, Sask.—World famous chemists and botanists, leaders in the attack upon the scientific problem vital to western agriculture, witnessed the formal opening of the chemical building of the University of Saskatchewan by the premier of the province.

Edmonton, Alta.—More than one hundred and fifty traders from the far north arrived here recently bringing with them fur bales to the value of approximately $500,000.

Victoria, B.C.—The Prince of Wales was a heavy winner at the Victoria Fall Fair through entries from the E. P. Ranch. Twelve first prizes were secured in the shorthorn classes of cattle in addition to twelve firsts for Hampshire sheep and three firsts in Shropshires.

Here is the type of Chinese soldiers now marching on Shanghai, China, in an effort to control that commercial city. British, American, Japanese and French warships are there to protect foreign interests.

DAMAGING FLOODS IN QUEBEC VICINITY

Four Days' Rain Sweeps Town of St. Raymond and St. Francis River Valley.

A despatch from Quebec says:—Fed by four days of almost continuous rain, rivers in this district and the Eastern Townships are raging floods, and are doing huge damage.

The Town of St. Raymond was reported to be very badly affected, the lower portion of the town being under water. The power plant at Portneuf is badly damaged. There is a series of washouts reported on the main line of the Canadian National Railways to Murray Bay, and trains going to Chicoutimi had to go round by St. Pierre. Many cattle and sheep are said to have been swept away by the flood, and a number of valuable log booms have broken from their moorings and have gone adrift.

At St. Albans the house of a farmer named George Neaud was carried away by the flood, and only for the fact that the majority of the residents of the district had spent a sleepless night watching developments, loss of life might have been recorded. Work completed on some of the highways has been rendered useless by the sweep of water, and the damage in this respect is particularly severe.

Early Thursday morning the climax of the flood seemed to have been reached, and at noon there were distinct signs of improvement.

A despatch from Sherbrooke says:—The St. Francis River Valley through many miles of its length in this section is under water, in some districts to a depth of six or seven feet, as a result of the deluge of rain which poured down without a single break from Tuesday until midnight Thursday night. Bridges have been carried away, lumber yards are floating, fields of unharvested crops flooded, and innumerable buildings, factories and dwelling houses and store sheds flooded with water up to the first floor. Older residents of the city state that the level of the water now is higher than it has been for thirty years. During the rainstorm a total of 3.25 cubic inches fell.

A later despatch from Quebec says:—Floods from heavy rains have caused widespread damage in the Province of Quebec on both sides of the St. Lawrence. Baie St. Paul, located on the Canadian National Railways' Murray Bay line, has suffered frightful damage. The vicinity has an appearance of devastation such as comes only after an earthquake or other great disaster. Damage to the little village and the immediate neighborhood is heavy in material wealth, hundreds of the inhabitants being ruined, while the Provincial Government and municipalities throughout the neighborhood are suffering by the sweeping away of bridges. In some cases the currents of water have been so heavy and so strong that bridges have been completely crumpled up and destroyed.

The trail of disaster followed similar catastrophes below Quebec and in the Eastern Townships because of the flooding of the rivers from the heavy rains. It is estimated that in the Village of Baie St. Paul alone the damage caused will reach $300,000.

There was one fatality, that of a middle-aged man named Arthur Drolet, a farmer with 14 children, who died from shock following the destruction of his house by the flood.

Horse Travels 110 Miles Through Mountains in 14 Hrs.

A despatch from Bella Coola, B.C., says:—One hundred and ten miles, most of the way over mountain crags, in 14 hours' riding on horseback, was the amazing achievement of Chief Squinash, an Indian, who travelled from the Anahm Lake settlement to this city to catch a boat for Prince Rupert to give evidence in a court case. Chief Squinash declared that his horse and he were somewhat fatigued.

During the four months of April, May, June and July a total of 18,870 Canadians returned to Canada from the United States. Of this total 16,166 were Canadian-born citizens, 1,646 were British subjects who had acquired a Canadian domicile, and 1,058 were classed generally as Canadian citizens. In July alone the total number of admissions of returning Canadians recorded at the International boundary line was 5,127.

WHEAT EXPORTS SHOW INCREASE OVER 1923

60,000,000 Bushels in Excess of Preceding Twelve Months, Says Bureau of Statistics.

A despatch from Ottawa says:—Wheat exported from Canada for the 12 months ending Aug. 31, 1924, exceeded in volume by almost 60,000,000 bushels that exported for the corresponding 12 months previous, according to reports issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The figures for the current year period were 289,190,061 bushels, and in the previous 12 months, 229,681,814 bushels. The estimated value respectively were $293,995,127 and $263,819,430. Of the total exported in the last 12 months over 200,000,000 went to the United Kingdom, an increase of 26,000,000 bushels. The amount exported to the United States in the 1924 period was 1,320,242 bushels, as compared with 12,930,048 bushels for the corresponding 12 months of the 1923 period.

STORMONT DEANERY

BISHOPS' CONFERENCE AT AULTSVILLE

The annual Bishop's Conference of the Stormont Deanery was held on Wednesday and Thursday of last week in Aultsville, and was the most successful conference that has been held for some time.

Divine service in St. Paul's church on Wednesday evening marked the opening of the conference. The clergy present were: the Bishop of the Diocese, Right Rev. J. C. Roper, D. D.; Ven. Archdeacon Carson, Morrisburg; Rev. Rural Dean Wright, Wales; Revs. A. D. F. Floyd, Cornwall; C. A. Bender, Aultsville; and H. B. Metcalf, Newington. His Lordship, the Bishop delivered an impressive address from the text "Reckon ye also yourself to be alive unto God through Jesus Christ, our Lord." (Rom. 8:11). He drew attention to the bond of union in the Church, each congregation being, as it were, one individual in a larger family. The first loyalty for the individual church member is to the congregation, but it must not stop there; it extends to the whole church in Canada (including the infant diocese of Brandon, just organized, and the vast missionary diocese of MacKenzie River on the Arctic Coast) and the individual church members and the congregations must be "alive unto God." The signs of life are activity, speaking and growth. The Church exists to continue the faith of Christ and to extend the rule of the Kingdom of God. It does not centre in self but in the giving of ourselves for others.

On Thursday morning the conference re-assembled at a largely attended celebration of the Holy Communion (the special collect, Epistle and Gospel for Missions being used) after which the Woman's Auxiliary Deanery Conference met separately with Mrs. Hugh Warner Deanery Secretary, presiding. There was an attendance of about one hundred W. A. members and their friends. Mrs. Alex. Gaffinger, of the Gallingertown Branch, gave an address of welcome to the conference, which was replied to by Mrs. Carson of Morrisburg. The report of the year's work presented by each branch in the Deanery were very encouraging and showed steady progress in the work and increased interest on the part of Church members generally. Mrs. Hugh Warner was re-elected Deanery Secretary. Adjournment was made at 12 o'clock noon for united intercession for missions taken by Ven. Archdeacon Carson, after which a most sumptuous dinner was served in the basement.

Miss Annie Low, Diocesan President of the Woman's Auxiliary, addressed the ladies in the afternoon, speaking of the work in the 19 Indian boarding schools. She told of one incident in the work amongst the Indians, how, at one place where the visits of the missionaries were irregular, word came that he would pass down the river about a certain day. The Indians journeyed to the river that the Missionary might give them the Holy Communion. He had passed when they reached the river so they encamped and waited a week until he returned, so much do they value the highest service of the Christian Church. Miss Low is an able speaker and was listened to with great interest and appreciation. At the chapter meeting of the clergy, arrangements were made for the Deanery Sunday School Association Conference to be held in St. David's Church, Wales, on October 23.

At four o'clock the conference united in a public meeting when Ven. Archdeacon Carson gave an able and most interesting account of his recent visit to England and Ireland. The Archdeacon said he could understand why Ireland was called the Emerald Isle from the wonderful greenness on the east coast, around Dublin, where he landed, and on the west coast around Mayo, where he visited his father's birthplace. The centre of Ireland, he said, was disappearing being a vast peat bog. The south of England he spoke of as having the most beautiful scenery one could wish to see. He was deeply impressed by the sense of solidity and perfect order which permeates England. All buildings and fences are of masonry work stone. There they build and think for the future, not the present. There are very few traces of the devastation of war on the battlefields of France and Flanders. It has all been cleared away and rebuilt. After the Archdeacon's address supper was served in the basement.

In the evening, Rev. R. B. Waterman, rector of Huntley, gave a most instructive address on "The Principles of the English Reformation." He pointed out that the initial step was taken by the church in her convocations in 1531 in a protest against sending the first year's salary of Bishops and clergy to Rome. The great principle of the English Reformers was the teaching of the Holy Scriptures as interpreted by the ancient fathers in the earliest and purest ages of the church. The speaker gave three illustrations of the application of this principle, with respect to Lord's Day, Infant Baptism and the Three-fold Ministry of the Church. The Church of England has given to the people the open bible, the Christian creeds, the Gospel, Sacraments and the Apostolic Ministry. The Church is a Divine Society founded by Christ not a voluntary organization by men. Rev. H. B. Metcalf, Newington, gave the closing address of the conference with a plea for greater recognition of the laity in the Deanery and Diocesan organization of the Church. The conference closed by singing God Save the King, and the Bishop pronounced the Benediction.

A hearty vote of thanks for the generous hospitality shown to the conference was given to the three congregations in the parish—Osnaburk Centre, Gallingertown and Aultsville. To the Rev. C. A. Bender and his parishioners is due the success of the conference.

CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL ADJUSTMENT Removes the cause of disease

1. Slight subluxations at this point will cause so-called headaches, eye diseases, deafness, epilepsy, vertigo, insomnia, wry neck, facial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, etc.

2. A slight subluxation of a vertebra in this part of the spine is the cause of so-called throat trouble, neuralgia, pain in the shoulders and arms, goitre, nervous prostration, la grippe, dizziness, bleeding from nose, disorder of gums, catarrh, etc.

3. The arrow head marked No. 3 locates the part of the spine wherein subluxations will cause so-called bronchitis, felons, pain between the shoulder blades, rheumatism of the arms and shoulders, hay fever, writers' cramp, etc.

4. A vertebral subluxation at this point causes so-called nervousness, heart disease, asthma, pneumonia, tuberculosis, difficult breathing, other lung troubles, etc.

5. Stomach and liver troubles, enlargement of the spleen, pleurisy and a score of other troubles, so-called, are caused by subluxations in this part of the spine, sometimes so light as to remain unnoticed by others except the trained chiropractor.

6. Here we find the cause of so-called gall stones, dyspepsia of upper bowels, fevers, shingles, hiccoughs, worms, etc.

7. Bright's disease, diabetes, floating kidney, skin disease, boils, eruptions and other diseases, so-called, are caused by nerves being pinched in the spinal openings at this point.

8. Regulations of such troubles as so-called appendicitis, peritonitis, lumbago, etc., follow Chiropractic adjustments at this point.

9. Why have so-called constipation, rectal troubles, sciatica, etc., when Chiropractic adjustments at this part of the spine will remove the cause?

10. A slight slippage of one or both innominate bones will likewise produce so-called sciatica, together with many "diseases" of pelvis and lower extremities.

How to fix that dingy floor

Old floors that are stained and marred can be made bright and attractive again by using Carmote Floor Varnish.

Just apply with a brush—it stains and varnishes at the same time. Or if your floor is only dull and scratched you can get Carmote Floor Varnish clear—without coloring.

Carmote Floor Varnish is also recommended for furniture and interior finish—it hardens quickly and never becomes soft or sticky.

"Liver Trouble so Severe I Had to Quit Work"

Mr. Thomas Honey, Brantford, Ont., writes:

"I was a great sufferer from enlargement of the liver for ten months, and finally I had to quit work. I would wake up in the mornings with a bitter taste in my mouth, had frequent headaches, yellow complexion, and pain in my right side, and between the shoulder blades. It was almost unbearable, and terribly weakening. I could not sleep at night and my heart also bothered me. But the whole trouble has now left me, thanks to that wonderful medicine, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

SOME SILO AIDS.

To save time and annoyance, and to lessen the risk of the undertaking, one farmer has provided the outside wall of his silo with steps made from iron rod and mounted ladder fashion from the ground to the top.

Directly underneath the dormer through which the blow spout of the filling machine is inserted at filling time, there is a broad step or seat upon which the operator stands when assembling the outfit.

This idea naturally lends itself to any type of silo and is worth bearing in mind.

The writer once saw another kink that should be noted here. The silo was of wooden staves and required frequent painting. Since no ladder of the ordinary length would serve the painter's purpose, the owner laid the track from three old barn doors about the top just under the roof and on this mounted the car wheels from one of the doors.

These were attached to a wide plank and on the lower end another wheel at right angles was also mounted so that it would ride against the surface of the silo. This plank was also provided with a hook with block and tackle. When the silo was to be painted a seat of a wide board of sufficient length was attached to the tackle with two ropes, the painter seated himself and drew himself upward with the tackle. This had a lock and he could remain at any desired height. Movement about the silo was accomplished by his feet which were encased in rubber-soled shoes. It will pay the silo owner to keep these tips in mind. —D. R. H.

BARRELING APPLES ON TREES.

If you want to have good apples, begin barreling them while they are still on the trees. No amount of good care in barreling will make up for lack of care in picking, or picking at the wrong time.

Apples are not ready to be picked when they cling so tightly that spurs are broken from the trees. Neither is the color of apples which eventually turn red a reliable index, since the intensity of the color depends on the cloudiness or brightness of the weather. A good indication of maturity is a ground color which, when the fruit is ready for picking, should be turning from clear green to a whitish green or greenish yellow.

Yellow, green, and russet varieties of apples are generally ready to pick when they have reached their proper size and the stems separate readily from the spurs. In picking apples, the stems should be separated from the spurs either by giving the fruit a slight rotating motion combined with a sharp upward twist, or by pressing with the thumb or forefinger at the joint of the stem and spur.

In picking use both sacks and baskets. The baskets are handy for gathering fruit near the ground, while the sacks can be used for ladder work. Some folks thing there is more danger of bruising the fruit when sacks are used. In emptying either basket or sack, avoid dropping the fruit. If a basket is used, it should be lowered to the bottom of the lug box or other receptacle and emptied gently. There is a certain type of sack with a drop bottom, so that the fruit can be emptied without bruising it.

Step-ladders are especially good for work in small trees and for picking from the lower branches of larger trees. The good type are wide and flaring at the bottom, narrow at the top, and supported with but one prop.

In small orchards apples are usually packed right out in the open, but in large orchards and the sections where the weather is bad, fruit is often packed in central houses, tents or sheds. The use of packing houses is increasing. The houses afford shelter for a supply of unpacked fruit which can be handled during bad weather. If there is a packing house there is also a better opportunity to put in sizing machinery and other labor-saving devices.

Two types of grading or sorting tables are used—the apron table and the canvas or burlap table. The bed of the apron table is slatted, so that the trash can fall through, and is inclined, so that the fruit as it is graded rolls to the lower end, where it is lowered into the barrel by means of an apron. While work can be done rather rapidly with this table, the fruit often crowds past the sorters faster than they can handle it.

The canvas or burlap table is made by stretching the cloth over a rectangular frame. This type of table is fitted for running the fruit from the apron into the barrel. The apples must be sorted by hand into baskets. The most common practice in barreling is to separate the fruit into two standard sizes. The first size includes apples from two and one-quarter to two and one-half inches, and the second two and one-half inches or larger.

The apple grower must get a grading machine which has a big enough capacity to handle his crop, and one that can be operated most economically. Look for one of simple design, not requiring too much adjustment and not apt to bruise the fruit. The life of a machine, and the various methods of feeding fruit to the machine, should be studied carefully. Upon all these things depend the total daily output and, consequently, the cost of operation. Only small machines can be operated by hand power. Some of the simplest types have a capacity of perhaps 100 barrels a day. In most cases, however, the gasoline engine or electric motor is preferable.

The first step in packing the barrel is to face the first and perhaps the second layer of apples. That is, arrange the layers in circles with stems down. For facing, only apples of the best size and quality should be used, because the trade expects and customarily demands an attractive pack. But remember that the general quality and size should conform to the grade in the rest of the barrel. There are other standard practices in filling barrels, such as "racking," or settling of the fruit by rocking the partially-filled barrel, and "tailing," which means arranging the last layer of apples in concentric rings.

POULTRY.

Ordinary culling practices simply involve looking the birds over at night when they are on the perches and eliminating those which are obviously out of producing condition. It becomes, however, a much more serious problem to attempt to handle every bird in the flock, make a careful examination and make a final determination as to the fitness of the individual for future breeding.

Here is a simple practice which will eliminate the shock to the birds: Confine the birds to the laying house the night before they are to be culled. This culling must be done in the daytime when the birds can be carefully examined. Secure a large catching crate. A good thing for this purpose is a live-poultry-shipping coop, double deck height, commonly known as a turkey coop. Make a hole in one end of this at half the height of the coop, about eight inches wide and ten or twelve inches high. Provide it with a slide door.

Set this coop so that this opening on the end is directly open to the hen exit opening in the poultry house. Scatter a little grain in the coop. Open the exit door and with a little encouragement the birds will pass out the exit door and enter into the coop.

When a convenient number is thus confined, the exit door can be closed and the hens can be culled and taken out of the coop through the door at the top, one at a time, handled carefully, examined in minute detail and a determination made as to what is to be done with them.

The culls can be cooped up in separate coops, ready to go to market, whereas the good birds can be dropped into the yard or, if their future quarters are ready for them, they can be transported and put in their new houses.

If this operation is carried on in a quiet, gentle way, the handling of the birds at this season will be followed by no loss in production.

Call on the Surveyor.

The payment of two dollars for a half day's work of a civil engineer meant the changing of plans in drainage for my neighbor when he wanted to put in a main tile outlet for his farm. His eye told him that the water should go to the east, which was in the direction of a river outlet, but for some reason he consulted an engineer and found that the water could as well go west and save digging the trench and buying the tile for a good many extra rods. The engineer surveyed the whole ditch and left the depth of cuttings every 100 feet so there was no trouble to get the tile in properly.

In my own case I had a drainage problem and had two outlets that could be used. One was a fifteen-inch tile along the border of the farm and the other an open ditch at the end of the place.

My plan, as my eye told me, was to run a main tile the length of the farm along one side and drain into it with cross ditches. But the surveyor soon showed me that I could cross-ditch right into the fifteen-inch tile and save 160 rods of six or eight-inch outlet. I had plenty of fall. Besides, large tile is a better outlet than an open ditch.

The saving is hard to estimate but the cost in my case was $150.

A good many drainage jobs are jumped into without much previous thought or planning and surveyors can earn their charges and much more on many farms. The eye is not a sure gauge of levels, and natural slopes of the land do not seem always to tell the story. —Earl Rogers.

The number of eggs consumed per year on farms averaged 28.8 dozen per person. The per capita farm consumption of fowls averaged nearly one fowl per month. The consumption of eggs and poultry was found to be the greatest in seasons of lowest prices.

Miss Annette E. Buck, of Brooklyn, N.Y., is the first woman to ascend to the summit of Mount Robson, the highest peak of the Canadian Rockies. She was accompanied by Mrs. Monday, a Canadian.

How to Hang Your Pictures

BY LUCY B. TAYLOR.

Pictures give a room "thought" and add the touches that suggest interest and life. It is quite possible to decorate a room, have it perfectly "correct," and yet have it stupid and uninteresting. It is the humanness of a room that gets our interest and makes us feel at home.

The little picture over the mantel or on the table, the colored print on the bedroom wall, may go a great deal further than we ever expect in giving to that particular room the air of being really "lived in." Whether in color or black and white, it represents thoughts that greet us pleasantly and arouse similar and stimulating ideas within us.

But it doesn't do to pick out pictures carelessly any more than it does to pick out friends carelessly. If they are not genuinely good in some respect, it is better to have something else that gives a spot of color and life; for a poor picture is like a poor companion—it grows constantly worse to us.

The duplication of ways and means in reproducing pictures has done marvelous things in placing at our disposal the loveliest of reproductions, both in color and black and white. There are now several museums that carry a full line of prints of their paintings. These include landscapes, sea pieces, and subject pictures of leading artists, as well as some of the best of the historical pieces. Every good and really great piece of modern art owned by a museum is pretty sure to have its color or photographic reproduction. And it is pictures such as these, framed, and hung carefully in the right places on the wall, that make a room look right and furnished. There are also many good color prints from the magazines that may be cut out, mounted, and framed to give utmost satisfaction.

Hanging the pictures is in itself an art. Scattered around in hit or miss fashion, or hung stiffly in rows, they are not especially pleasing. The true secret of successful picture-hanging lies rather in studying your spaces for size and shape and then adjusting your picture accordingly. For example, there may be a sofa, a chair, and a table up against the wall. The natural thing to do is to hang a fairly large picture over the sofa—one that will take the same feeling of length—and then possibly over each of the other two objects a smaller picture. This repeats the feeling of size and shape that has already been established by the sizes and shapes of the furniture, and keeps the essential harmony. That's the whole story. Follow the lines and spaces of your furniture groups as well as you can, and if they are well spaced the pictures will be too.

Sometimes an odd problem comes in. There is a table in the corner, a chair at the window, and perhaps a bed along the wall. Then group one, two, or three of the smaller pictures in a longish-looking group over the bed and balance the wall with one well chosen with regard to size over the table. Then your walls will be pleasing.

The possibilities are innumerable. Choose good pictures, study your wall spaces, and try to maintain a feeling of balance. One could write volumes and say no more!

Ask the Agricultural Representative.

In most every section wheat varieties show an adaptation to a soil fertility range. The kinds that do best on poor land fail to make so good a showing on rich land. This is another matter about which agricultural representative advice would be desirable. As a rule the earlier wheats make their best showing on the poor lands. The richer lands with a greater moisture-holding capacity can more safely carry the later-growing varieties.

We need more men who do not fear to break new ground, to blaze new trails, to lead the people on to a larger and more satisfactory progress. —Arthur Capper.

FRUIT NOW SHIPPED IN NEW TYPE OF CAR

The development of the Niagara Peninsula as a source of fruit for the markets of the Dominion is becoming more pronounced, through the co-operation of the fruit growers, the dealers and the Express Department of the Canadian National Railways.

For this traffic, the Canadian National Express has designed an entirely new style of fruit car which has already given satisfaction. No ice is used in these cars, a natural air-cooling method being used. While this does not develop as low a temperature as ice refrigeration, the process is more natural, and as a result, the fruit does not deteriorate as quickly when removed to the warmer outside atmosphere.

There are thirty of these cars in operation between the Niagara Peninsula and points in Ontario, Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and the North West, and they received several tests under the most unfavorable conditions possible, before they were finally adopted for service.

"The Child's First School is the Family"—FROBEL.

Co-operate With Nature — By Ora A. Clement.

"Goodness, taking care of children means spending all your time making somebody do something he doesn't want to do," exclaimed young Mrs. Lane as she took Daddy's letter-opener from the baby and motioned Billy and Sister to continue their task of picking up blocks and toys.

"Oh, I hope it is not as bad as that," her mother laughed comfortably. "In fact, I do not remember it in that way at all."

"But how did you manage, Mother, when there were six of us to get into mischief and tease and hurt one another? It must have been Bedlam all the time."

"I suppose it was noisy, and I don't doubt that I was sometimes worried—and cross. But I have forgotten that part of it. That is one of the nice things about growing old—you forget so much that is unpleasant."

"But about the children—I learned one thing while I was taking care of mine that helped me a lot, and it was that Mother Nature keeps a firm hand on all her babies and is quite determined they shall grow up to be normal, healthy human beings. So that working against Nature is very much like swimming up-stream, while co-operating with her makes the care of children comparatively easy."

"I don't know what you mean," the daughter confessed.

"Well," explained her mother, "after watching six of my own and many of my friends' and neighbors' children go through their childhood, I have decided that all children pass through certain stages of development, and during each stage it is especially easy to teach them certain things."

"Of course, at first, the baby's attention is chiefly occupied with learning to manage his hands and feet. We do not usually interfere with this process, though sometimes people urge a baby to walk too soon, and sometimes sickness prevents him from walking when he should."

"Usually the four-year-old has learned to use his hands and feet, and his chief delight is in their use. Movement of the arms and legs is what he wants, and he imitates the motions his mother makes as she works about the house. During this period children can be taught habits of order and cleanliness which will stay with them all their lives. Though too small to do actual work, they are pleased to do little, step-saving tasks for mother, if the task is a matter of imitation. This imitative age is a period of golden opportunity."

"Right on top of this lovable age comes the individualistic age, when, almost overnight the child becomes distressingly selfish. He wants the best of everything for himself and will fight to get it. He wants the attention and adulation of adults and will try to gain them by 'show-off' antics. He humiliates the younger children and teases the older. He becomes a family nuisance, and his discouraged mother wonders what she has neglected to do for Johnny that he should get so far beyond control. It is not her fault, though. Johnny's Mother Nature is preparing him for the battles of life; she is teaching him to think and to act for himself."

"That the process is painful to his parents and friends does not influence the old Dame for one instant. She knows what she is doing. Soon his selfishness will be controlled by conscious self-denial, and Johnny will begin to show real character. His boastful contrariness, which challenges every spoken statement, will soon be tempered by reason."

"There are many things you can teach him at this age. He appreciates praise for his individual effort and will spend tremendous energy to gain it. He can be taught to take responsibility. The irresponsible and untruthful young people, who are altogether too numerous to-day, were not handled rightly at this age. The child asks innumerable questions, and your greatest possible mistake is to ignore, ridicule or evade these questions. Give truthful, serious answers, drawing him out when you suspect that some troubled thought lies at the bottom of the questions, and in later years you will not have to suffer that worst of all hurts, the knowledge that your child's confidence is being purposely withheld."

"Besides these there are other—but, mercy, child, see what time it is! If I sit here lecturing, James will find no dinner when he comes home."

Stringent Measures to Prevent Spread of Corn Pest.

On account of the danger of further distributing the European corn borer, a pest which is seriously menacing the corn-growing industry in Ontario, stringent regulations regarding the transport of corn from infested to uninfested areas are being enforced by the Dominion Minister of Agriculture.

Last year, during the sweet corn season, the Department inspectors discovered corn on the cob, infested with the caterpillars of the pest, being carried from the infested areas by motor cars. The regulations make it illegal for tourists and campers to carry corn from the quarantined areas, because of the danger of the spread of the pest in this way.

The regulations provide that corn may not be moved or shipped by growers, produce dealers, or others, from the following area under quarantine:

"Brant County; Bruce County; Dufferin County; the townships of Clarke, Darlington and Hope in Durham County; Essex County (including Peel Island); Grey County; Haldimand County; Halton County; Huron County; Kent County; Lambton County; Lincoln County; Middlesex County; Norfolk County; the townships of Pickering, Whitby East and Whitby West in Ontario County; Oxford County; Peel County; Perth County; Waterloo County; Welland County; Wellington County; Wentworth County; the townships of Etobicoke, Markham, Scarborough, Vaughan, and York in York County, and the township of Brighton in Northumberland County."

From the counties of Elgin and Middlesex, which are the most heavily infested districts in the province, corn may not be carried even to other counties in the infested district.

Except from Elgin and Middlesex counties, corn on the cob may be shipped from the quarantined area to the Toronto and Hamilton markets, but may not be shipped north or eastwards. Violations of the regulation are punishable by a fine.

Exports of Live Stock and Meats.

Our exports of domestic live stock and meats, according to Dominion Live Stock Branch reports, to Great Britain during the first seven months of the year compared with the same period in 1923 were: 40,026 cattle compared with 34,152; 2,357,200 lbs. of beef compared with 5,198,500 lbs.; 62,411,600 lbs. of bacon compared with 57,408,300 lbs., and 3,201,300 lbs. of pork compared with 1,738,700 lbs.

To the United States during the same periods were sent: 45,082 cattle compared with 34,152; 20,708 calves compared with 13,745; 390 sheep compared with 3,817; 7,411,200 lbs. of beef compared with 3,923,700 lbs.; 253,300 lbs. of bacon compared with 91,900 lbs.; 818,900 lbs. of pork compared with 412,900 lbs., and 25,600 lbs. of mutton compared with 60,600 lbs.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

AT THE CROSSROADS.

"Bee, five, bee four, I wish I had some more," sang Willie Woodcock as he finished the last sugar cookies that Old Mother Coon had given him.

"Me, too," said Johnnie Muskrat. "I'm still a little hungry, but I'm tickled that we are on our way home. I don't think I want to go sailing on a log again."

"Mrs. Coon said we would be home by afternoon," said Jackie Rabbit, "but we must walk faster."

"I can't walk much faster," puffed Willie Woodchuck as he waddled along the road that Mrs. Coon said would take them back to Woodland and home. Soon they came near the crossroads where she had said a sign post would tell them which road to take to Woodland. As they came to this post they were very puzzled. No, it was not because these three little Woodland boys could not read, for they were the best pupils in the Woodland school, mischief excepted. But a big puff of wind had blown that way, or someone had hurried around the corner too fast. The sign post which was to tell them the way home was topsy-turvy.

On one board was printed "Stoneyville" and on the other "Woodland," but they both pointed "hitch-a-cue" angles toward the blue sky.

"Well, well, well, this is a real mix-up," said Jackie Rabbit scratching his head. "We can't follow the sign post to Woodland, because it points up to that big fleecy cloud. What had we best do?"

"I think this road goes to Woodland," said Johnnie Muskrat, pointing to the right.

"I'm sure it is this one," said Jackie Rabbit, pointing to the one to the left. Willie Woodchuck said nothing, for he was getting too tired to bother to think.

"That's more of a puzzle still," said Jackie Rabbit. "Perhaps we had better draw cuts. We will go with the one who gets the longest cuts."

"Fine," agreed Johnnie and Willie. When Willie had carefully prepared the draws, Johnnie Muskrat pulled the longest one, so off they started down the road to the right, hoping to reach Woodland before the sun went down.

From Weeds to Honey.

Sweet clover through its dense smothering effect the second year of its growth sickens and discourages weeds. Such rampant fellows as thistle and bindweed become greatly weakened.

And while the land is becoming enriched and weeds smothered, an enormous honey crop of highest quality is produced. Moreover, having bees on hand to harvest the honey crop helps greatly the yield of seed. Bees carry the pollen from flower to flower.

ORANGE PEKOE QUALITY

Surnames and Their Origin

HUTTON

Racial Origin—English.
Source—A locality, also a characteristic.

This is a family name, which, if one judged it by one of its meanings alone should be classified as a variation of the names Houghton and Haughton, for in a large number of cases it is derived from a place name which means "high-town." Both the place and the name, however (which is Hutton), have an identity distinct from those concerned in the origin of the names Houghton and Haughton.

But there is another derivation of the family name, from the old Norman-French word "hutaun," meaning "proud." The mention of such characteristics as this in connection with a man's name with the same given name, was quite common in the middle ages. At that period, just prior to the development of family names and coincident with it, populations were increasing so rapidly, and shifting as well, and the same given names were applied to so many persons, that some further method of differentiation, such as mention of the place whence a man had come, or of some personal characteristic of his, was the rule rather than the exception.

Those who can trace their ancestry back to a form of the name prefixed either by "de" or "le" will have no difficulty in determining whether their family names developed from the place name or the nickname. The "de" indicates the former and the "le" the latter.

MUNSON.

Variations—Monson, Manson.
Racial Origin—English, also Scottish.
Source—Given names.

Munson is a family name of quite simple and regular origin, but you'd hardly guess the given name from which it comes unless you were familiar with the manner in which the English of the Middle Ages abbreviated their given names.

Many of the shortened forms of given names were the same as those we use to-day, such as Dick for Richard, Harry for Henry, Ed. for Edward, Edgar or Edmond, and so on. But there was also a method of using other syllables of a name than the first for purposes of abbreviation and variation. This has virtually disappeared among English-speaking peoples, though it remains among the Germans, among whom Hans for John (from Johannes) is widespread.

In medieval England "Munn," "Mun" and "Mon" were regular variations of Edmond and Edmund, and the simple addition of the ending "son" to one or the other of these forms has given us the patronymics Munson, Monson and in some cases, through further variation, Manson.

Manson, however, is more likely to be of Scottish origin, a development of "Magnus-son." This is the name of one of the septs or branches of the Clan Gunn, that clan which rose to prominence in the fifteenth century as the followers of George Gunn, the "Crown" or "Coroner," a historic figure in Scottish history.

German Factories Workers Paid in Shoes.

When pay day came around in Permasens, Germany, recently, the factory owners were up against it for cash. The scarcity of liquid capital is quite as acute in the shoe industry as it is in any branch of German trade.

A novel way was sought out of the dilemma. Instead of paying the men off in marks, they gave them each a pair of shoes as part payment of their wages.

An hour later virtually the whole shoe working population had been transformed into a sales aggregation. From store to store wandered heads of families, trying to dispose of their pair of shoes in return for things to eat.

EFFICIENCY IMPAIRED

Why Many Men and Women Are Badly Handicapped.

When you are so run down in health that it impairs the efficiency of your work as well as your power to enjoy your leisure hours, or obtain rest, it is time you looked to the cause. If you do not, a serious breakdown is almost sure to result sooner or later. In nearly all cases this condition, which doctors usually describe as general debility, is due to poor blood—blood that is deficient in red corpuscles. When the blood is thin and weak your whole system suffers. You lose appetite, have no energy, your nerves trouble you and you feel restless.

What you need is help to build up your blood and you should begin at once to make your blood rich and red by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You will soon notice the difference in your health by a better appetite and increased vigor. The reason is that the new blood created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills stimulates all the organs of the body to healthy activity, and so the system gains nourishment and strength. If you are weak or out of sorts begin gaining new strength to-day by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these pills from your druggist or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Boy With a Big Conscience.

A curious thing happened to me when I was a lad," remarked old Mr. Markham. "When I was ten years old my father died, leaving my mother in straitened circumstances with a large family to support. My older sisters at once began to teach, and as soon as I was old enough I found a job in a clothing store. The work was not hard, but one thing troubled me. My father was a teetotaler and had taught me to think it wrong to drink. Well, there was an old gentleman who stopped daily at the store on his way home and took a drink of whiskey. We did not sell whiskey, but he kept his bottle and glass there because it was convenient. As I was the youngest clerk, it was my duty to bring the bottle and glass when he came in.

"Well, I worried about it a good deal and finally went to the head of the firm and told him my conscience would not allow me to encourage any man to drink. He looked at me in amazement; then his face turned red, and he cried, 'See here, boy, are you trying to be impudent?'

"No, sir," I replied, 'but I just don't think it's right.'

"Well," he said, 'no one stays in my store who can't take orders from me! You may get your pay and leave at the end of the week.'

"That was a blow! When I went home I told my mother the news. She sighed and said: 'You were quite right, my son. I would not have you disobey your conscience for all the money in the world!'

"When the week ended and I was paid in full I was told by my great astonishment that the firm would present me with any suit of clothes in the store that I wished to have. I was much pleased and walked out with my new suit under my arm, feeling almost cheerful.

"I had not gone two steps before one of the owners of the drug store next door accosted me. 'Want a job?' he asked.

"I was too much astonished to answer.

"I hear you're leaving Brown's on account of an abnormally developed conscience!" he went on. 'Well, that's the kind of a young fellow we are needing in our business. Can't have too much conscience in a drug store. Somebody's life might depend on it.'

"I had recovered my wits by that time. 'I'll be glad to get the work, sir, and I'll do my best,' I said.

"When I went home and told my mother and showed her my suit she exclaimed: 'I knew you were right, but we no longer have such quick returns for a little investment in doing right!'

Gone Forever.

Passenger (after the first night on board ship)—"I say, where have my clothes gone?"

Steward—"Where did you put them?"

Passenger—"In that little cupboard there, with the glass door on it."

Steward—"Bless me, sir, that ain't no cupboard. That's a porthole."

A Musical Creed for Canadian Music Lovers.

Here is a musical creed worthy of the attention of all Canadians. We believe that:

1. Music is a necessity, not a luxury.

2. Every child has an inherent right to a musical education.

3. Utility through music is a means to civic improvement.

4. Patriotism is developed by music.

5. The spirit of comradeship—regardless of race or creed, is induced by music.

6. Music is the most useful medium in constructive work in any community. Inferior places of entertainment are being rapidly abolished, there must be established in their stead places of clean amusement.

7. Music tends to encourage a higher form of citizenship.

8. Music is a powerful curative for mental, moral and physical ailments.

9. Every city of 10,000 or more should build a memorial community club house, as the fountain head for branches of music, and social activity for the entertainment of the peoples of that locality.

And in these serious days of unrest, it is well to remember that by giving greater encouragement to music, much of the present discontent, now existing among the masses, will be done away with. More music and kindlier co-operation between the various sections of our communities will make Canada the envy of the world.

A Forbidden Plant.

In California, if you grow a marihuana bush you risk imprisonment for three months. Marihuana is the Spanish-American name for hashish, or Indian hemp. It grows freely, and its smaller leaves and seeds are dried, crushed, and made up into cigarettes.

Although the cost of production is much less than that of ordinary tobacco cigarettes, the retail price in the underworld is as much as ten or fifteen cents each.

The drug first exhilarates the smoker, and then completely upsets his self-control. The Californian police officers have a difficult problem in the control of this drug plant, which Mexicans and Negroes struggle to cultivate in spite of the penalties imposed.

A SPLENDID LAXATIVE FOR THE BABY

Mothers should constantly be on guard to keep baby's bowels working freely and his stomach sweet, for nine-tenths of the ailments from which little ones suffer are caused by derangements of the stomach and bowels. Baby's Own Tablets are a splendid laxative for the baby. They are mild but thorough; contain neither opiates nor narcotics, and are absolutely guaranteed to be safe and efficient for either the newborn babe or the growing child. By their action on the bowels and stomach they drive out constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and make the dreaded teething period easy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Double-Edged.

Mr. Billerton, whose daughter had just been united to the husband of her choice, looked a little sad.

"I tell you, William," he said to one of the wedding guests, a man of his own age, and himself the father of a number of unmarried girls, "I tell you it is a solemn thing for us when our daughters marry and go away."

William assented, but not altogether heartily.

"I suppose it is," he conceded, "but I tell you it is more solemn when they don't."

A Beautiful Friendship.

Two bartered old wrecks were sitting on a bench in the park the other afternoon. Suddenly one of them leaned over and remarked, "I'm a man who never took advice from his friends."

"Shake, brother," replied the other. "I'm a man who followed everybody's advice."

BROCKVILLE FARMER SUFFERED 20 YEARS

"Les" Booth Finally Got Relief Through Taking Tanlac.

"Since taking Tanlac, I feel so fit it sometimes seems like a dream for there was hardly a day in 20 years that I did not suffer," is the striking statement of Geo. L. ("Les") Booth, 271 Perth St., Brockville, Ont., one of the best known farmers in Ontario.

"For 20 years, up to three years ago when I took Tanlac, I suffered from rheumatism in my arms, shoulders, back and hips, so bad at times I could not lift my arms to put my coat on. I couldn't even write my name and I just limped about like a cripple. Many a night it looked like I would not live to see daybreak, and once I was laid up six months unable to hit a lick of work.

"Money could not buy the good Tanlac has done me. It ended every sign of rheumatism and built up my weight 16 pounds, and since then I have not had a rheumatic ache or pain. If anybody wants to know about Tanlac, just let them see Les Booth."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Japanese Capital to Aid Newly Married Couples.

Fearing race suicide among the poorer classes due to the high cost of getting married, the Social Works Bureau of Tokio municipality proposes to establish a matrimonial intelligence bureau.

The bureau will register the names of those who express the desire to be married, and will act as go-between to arrange satisfactory matches. A stock of handsome kimonos will be purchased by the bureau and lent to the prospective brides and the services of an officer to perform the ceremony and a hall to hold the ceremony will be donated without charge.

At the conclusion of the wedding ceremony the responsibility of the bureau for the financing of the newly married couple ceases.

Smart Boy.

The teacher was explaining the nouns of multitude.

"You say," he said, "a flock of sheep, a flight of birds, a shoal of fishes, a school of whales, a covey of partidges, a herd of cows, a forest of trees, a brood of serpents, and so on. Now can any boy give me some other examples?"

"Please, sir," said a smart boy, "please, sir, yes; an ancient order of buffaloes."

Irresponsibility.

Two gentlemen were uncertainly flitting their way home from a party.

"Bill," said Henry, "I wancha to be very careful. First thing ya know you'll have us in the ditch."

"Me?" said Bill in astonishment, "Why, I thought you were drivin'."

MISERABLE AND ALWAYS IN PAIN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Dependable Help for Mothers

Port Greville, Nova Scotia.—"I took your medicine for a terrible pain in my side and for weakness and headaches. I seemed to float all over, too, and my feet and hands were the worst. I am the mother of four children and I am nursing my baby—the first one of four I could nurse. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before the baby's birth, so you can see how much it helped me. I cannot praise it too highly for what it has done for me. I took all kinds of medicine, but the Vegetable Compound is the only one that has helped me for any length of time. I recommend it to any one with troubles like mine and you may use my letter for a testimonial."—Mrs. ROBERT McCULLY, Port Greville, Nova Scotia.

Before and after child-birth the mother will find Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a blessing.

Many, many letters are received giving the same sort of experience as is given in this letter. Not only is the mother benefited, but these good results pass on to the child.

No harmful drugs are used in the preparation of this medicine—just roots and herbs—and it can be taken in safety by the nursing mother.

98 out of every 100 women reported benefit from its use in a recent canvass among women users of this medicine. C

Cuticura Heals Itching Eczema On Arms and Face

"My trouble began with red blotches and itching and burning on my arms and face, and then eczema broke out with a rash. My face was disfigured and my clothing aggravated the breaking out on my arms. I could not put my hands in water, neither could I do my regular work. At night I lost my rest on account of the irritation."

"The trouble lasted about a month. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Leon Hallock, 104 Atkins St., Bellows Falls, Vt.

Dear Fathers and Mothers,—

Have you fully equipped that boy or girl, in whose future your hopes are centred, to prepare for the keen competitions of later life? No doubt your answer is "YES." For, if you thought anything was lacking, you would, of course, supply it at once? Yet, what have you done to make sure that your child's vision is adequate?

Don't expect children to tell you if their eyesight is faulty; they don't know. For they only see through their own eyes. They have no basis of comparison with other eyes.

Make sure of this vital question by having their eyes examined.

Eyesight is vital, nothing can take its place. Care for your eyes as you would for your life, for what is life without sight.

Yours for better eyesight.
