W. M. S. DISTRICT MEETING

The last annual convention of Matilda District W. M. S. met in Inkerman United Church on Thursday last. Morning session opened with an inspiring song service led by Mrs. Harry Armstrong of Morrisburg, after which devotional exercises were most impressively conducted by Mrs. J. S. Render of Mountain. The Supt. Mrs. W. S. L. Merrill, in her opening remarks, expressed her pleasure at the large representation present. Mrs. Thos. Houlahan of Chesterville, in her excellent paper "Hear and Do" said that we hear so many helpful ideas at these conventions, but forget to put them into practice. "If ye know these things, blessed are ye if ye do them." The test of all our knowledge is in our actions. "Methods in Band Work," was ably dealt with by Mrs. J. G. Challies of Morrisburg, who said she believed in beginning with the children, as they are the future W. M. S. Two purposes should be kept in view: 1. To develop a missionary spirit; 2. To raise money for missions. The Band President must be willing to spend time and thought on her work and win the confidence, love and respect of the members and thus she will have ready and willing workers. Discussion on this was led by Mrs. Earle of Winchester. An appropriate solo was rendered by Mrs. Harold Faulkner of Morewood. The story of the year's work of Circles and Bands was given by Mrs. Murdock of Shanley, showing 14 Circles and 24 Bands, some new ones having been lately organized. The year's work as written by Auxiliaries was told in an interesting manner by Mrs. Merrill, who spoke of the fine spirit of co-operation manifested.

At the afternoon session a very fine Circle Conference was conducted by Mrs. Murdock, in which Miss Willa Ellis of Chesterville told, in a very pleasing way, why a circle was organized there. Miss Leta Murdock told how their young people learned to pray in public; Miss VanAllen of Mountain told how they secured and held interest in their meetings. Miss Dorothy Wallace of Winchester pointed out the best way of securing leaders; Miss Retta McMillan of Elma, how to acquire missionary knowledge and Miss Sargent, Cornwall, told how they raised their money by systematic giving. "Lead Kindly Light" was most effectively sung by Mrs. E. Coons of Iroquois. Miss Jessie Everett of Kecks gave a very fine paper on "Weighed in the Balance," in which she touched on the great importance of home training, and also of interesting the boys and girls of the Church in Missions. She said we are weighed in the balance as to our willingness and our prayer life. The subject of Christian Stewardship was dealt with by two ladies, Mrs. T. P. Shaver of Brinston, who said that the church's treasury would easily be filled if every one gave as God had prospered them. 2. Mrs. Galley of Mille Roches, who said we should give our love first, also our talents and service, then it is an easy thing to give our money. Train the child in the home to fill the gaps and to be just and fair. Those taking part in the discussion on these papers were: Mrs. Wm. Wright, Mrs. George Armstrong, Mrs. Harry Armstrong and Mrs. Earle. An interesting questionnaire was conducted by Mrs. A. B. Allison of Morewood in which a number of problems were solved. It was moved, seconded and unanimously carried that the same officers be re-elected until the organization of the United Church be more complete.

At the opening of the evening session greetings were brought by: Mrs. Edgar Brown, from Inkerman W.M.S.; Mrs. Wm. Taylor, from VanCamp W.M.S.; Mrs. Clark Hyndman, from Brookville Presbytery; Mrs. Russell Crowden, from Inkerman W.C.T.U.; Rev. Wm. Wright from Dundas Presbytery.

The reply to these was given by Mrs. Peterson of Brinston. After the Courtesy Committee gave their report, the Resolution Committee presented the following resolutions:

Inkerman, Oct. 15, 1925.

Madam President, Members of the W. M. S.—

As this is the closing year of the Matilda District Convention as a W. M. S., there are a few gracious amenities we feel like bestowing on some who have given to our work of their best, and in so doing have signally promoted its great and far-reaching influence. Owing to the new and desirable situation in which we find ourselves in connection with the United Church, many old ties must be severed and those once associated with us are now, or will be, identified with our work, but in other Presbyteries. This is inevitable due to the exigencies following in the wake of Church Union.

Therefore be it resolved that the following resolutions of appreciation be passed:

1st. We heartily appreciate the splendid work of our Branch President, Mrs. Henderson. Also the faithful work of the Board President, Mrs. Lavell.

2nd. To our pioneer Superintendents, Mrs. Biglow, Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Palmer, and Mrs. Hilliard, and that a copy of this resolution be mailed to each of them.

3rd. To Mrs. Tillman, Walkerville, Ont., for her useful and splendid efforts.

4th. To the following auxiliaries, Circles and Bands, which are going into the Glangary Presbytery, namely: Auditsville, Mille Roche, Cornwall, Lunenburg, Avonmore, Berwick, Finch.

Further, we wish to express our

A very happy event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Coulthart of Morewood, on Monday October 12th, when their eldest daughter Jennie Maude, became the bride of Mr. Alexander Elgin Finlayson, only son of the late Mr. Ninian and Mrs. Margaret Finlayson of Moose Creek.

Saturday last Mr. Allan Ball, a well-known farmer living on Maple Ridge, met with an accident that might have proved fatal. When driving home from Chesterville in the neighborhood of Mr. James Ball's place one of the driving lines broke and losing control of the horse it ran away. Mr. Ball attempted to jump out of the buggy at the rear.

and in doing so his overcoat caught on the back of the rig throwing him off his feet. The horse ran west to Mr. John Allison's with Mr. Ball dragging over the rough road behind and the only thing that saved him from very serious injury was the fact that his head was kept from striking the road by the coat caught in such a manner that it held his head clear. He received many painful bruises and cuts and his clothing was almost cut to pieces.—Chesterville Record.

CHAPTER XLV.

THE BROKEN HINGE.

The Lecturer and Kit walked rapidly through the white deserted streets till they reached a tall house in a fashionable quarter. Mr. Bisset stopped before it. The windows were dark, but a little faint light came from the hall, filtering through the ground-glass of the fanlight and revealing the number. It was 52, and the figures will recall things high as heaven, warm as the Forging Love to many hearts. There are hundreds of us who will never forget Number Fifty-two till the sods rattle down above our breasts.

From this point Mr. Bisset's proceedings were not only singular but even suspicious. He went off into the middle of the road and groped about in the thin snow till he had collected a handful of pebbles the size of peas. These he began to throw up at the range of unlighted windows with but indifferent success.

"Which window do you want to hit?" said Kit, feeling that here at last was something that he could do better than his companion.

"The second on the left above the porch," said the Lecturer.

"Whose house is this?" said Kit, making the pebbles rap regularly on the glass of the window which Mr. Bisset had designated.

After a little a light sprang into being behind the blind. The window was thrown up, and a face appeared dimly white against the dark behind.

"Well, who is it?" said a voice, as if quite accustomed to such midnight summonses. "Oh, Bisset, bless you, man—come up directly! Here is the key. I keep it tied to a string on my person."

"I can't come up, Mr. Strong," said the Lecturer. "I have to go on elsewhere. There's a woman and her children who need the better for seeing you. So I came along to tell you, this man is dying or dead. He was one of my people. But the wife is a Christian and needs you. Last house on the right in the Tinkler's Close off the Grassmarket—you know the place."

"All right! I know it!" said the voice, cheerily. "I'll be down in a minute. Any use taking wine and 'None,' returned Mr. Bisset, "but something from the poor's-box would not come wrong."

Kit and his friend stamped about for a minute or two in the roadway to keep the blood moving in their veins. Kit saw Mr. Strong for the first time under the fanlight. Then the minister came out, a tall squarely-built figure with a leonine head and a countenance grave and kindly, capable, too, of kindling into an Isaiah fire upon occasion—a man affectionate in private, tender of heart above most, but dangerous to cross when charged with his message and when the decks were cleared for action.

"Come along, Bisset—talk to me as we go," said Alexander Strong, swinging a rough-checked shepherd's plaid about his shoulders and thumping the pavement with his unshod staff. "But who is this with you?"

"Another of your people," said the Lecturer, "a lad from the country, recently come to the city with a bur-sary, a clever head, and an ignorant heart. Let him come and see you. You'll do him no harm. He has a father, too, he was telling me. But I think I can best look after him."

"Come and see me on Sunday about lunch time, and we will have a talk. That is my hour!" said Alexander Strong to Kit.

Then to the Lecturer he said, "And now for your friend's wife. What had we best do for her?"

And there in the black depths of the night, under the canopy of the drifting snow, the Agnostic Lecturer and the Christian Teacher conjointly laid their plans for the helping of poor human creatures.

In this fashion they came again to the cobbler's house. Once more they went up the darksome twists of the stair, Alexander Strong tramping between them with his vigorous hill-man's stride.

As they opened the door they heard the sound of a woman's sobbing. The cobbler's wife was straightening the limbs of the man who had been her husband.

"He's gone—my Bartholomew's gone without a word!" said the woman. "Oh, if my man is lost because of unbelief, I want to be lost too!"

"And you are the man that did it too," she cried with sudden fury, turning sharply on the Lecturer. Then she saw Alexander Strong.

He came forward and took her hand gently. Without a word he went across the floor to the bed, and stood a long while gazing down at the serene face of the dead.

The Infidel Lecturer drew Kit away, and as they closed the door they heard the voice of the Preacher of the Gospel saying gently, "Fear not! It is written, 'To his own Lord he standeth or falleth. Yea, he shall be made to stand, for the Lord hath power to make him stand.'"

And his hand was upraised over the dead face as if in benediction.

"Come away and leave them. That is his work, not yours or mine!" said Mr. Bisset as they went homeward.

When Kit arrived at the door of his lodgings he found Mrs. Christieson still out of bed. He expected, and perhaps deserved, a word of censure for his late hours. But his landlady had something else on her mind.

"Oh, Maister Kennedy," she said, as soon as she saw him, "sic a turn up as there has been here since ye gned out."

She paused for breath, though she had not been climbing the stairs. Then she went on. "Maister Grier didna come home till eleven. He had met in wi' somebody frae his ain countryside, and stayed crackin'. And then there cam' a tramp-like man and wad be in to see you. I said him nay, but he wadna be said nay to. And faith, but there was something commanding about the crafter too. Sae I took him ben, thinkin' that every minute Maister Grier wad be back, for he was never late before. I gae'd doon to the baker's to get the loaf-bread for the breakfast. The stupid body hadna sent it. And wad ye believe me, when I cam' back the door was open to the wa', and there wasna a soul in the house. Oh, gang and see that a' is richt! For I'll no sleep this night gin ocht has been ta'en through my fault."

Kit went into the room where Rob Grier was already in bed sleeping the sleep of the physically tired and constitutionally healthy. He went directly to his little desk. His heart stood still when he saw that it has been burst apart at the hinges. He unlocked it and the lid fell off. The remaining eighteen pounds of his Bursary money was gone!

The universe ran round and round as he stood staring, and had he not grasped the back of a chair he might have fallen. Nevertheless, Kit was no weakling.

In a minute he had gripped himself, and walked steadily to the door, at which appeared the agitated face of Mrs. Christieson.

"Was the man who asked for me out and thin, with grey hair and a cut across the forehead?" he asked.

"That's the man," cried Mrs. Christieson, much relieved; "and bless me, sir, when I look at ye, he rather favored yersel'. Maybe he was a relative? Then he hae fand a' richt in your room!"

"All is right—perfectly right, Mistress Christieson, thank you!" said Kit Kennedy.

"The Lord be thankit for that, for I was a feared woman this night!" said his landlady, as she closed the door.

And then the First Galloway Bursar sat down amid the ruins of his prospects to think what he should do.

He could not stop attending his classes and go back to service, because he had taken the money of the Societies, and was under contract to finish his session and forward his certificates to the secretary.

He could not go on living upon Mrs. Christieson with no prospect of paying his bills.

Still less could he accuse his teacher, his benefactor—his father, of the theft. If he had taken the money, he was clearly not accountable for his actions any more than he had been that night of the declaration of the prize-winner, when Kit had found him in the parlor of the Blue Boar in Cairn Edward.

So, throwing his plaid about his shoulders, and putting down the gas he had no longer the right to waste, Kit Kennedy went and stood in the window. And all through the watches of the sombre night the white furies veered and swirled, and the lamp shadows wavered furiously across the sidewalks of the snow-shrouded city.

CHAPTER XLVI.

THE PRETTY GIRL GROWS PRACTICAL.

Kit had ten days before him during which to make good the loss of his bursary. Then he must settle with Mrs. Christieson for his fortnight's board and lodging. His college fees were paid, so that, save for the buying of class books, he was safe in that direction. But in ten days he would be more than a pound in the debt of the honest woman, while all that remained to him was sixpence, which he discovered in the corner of his waistcoat pocket.

It was the afternoon of the following day before Kit saw his father. The student had struggled through the day somehow. His classes had hummed themselves away. Rob Grier had propounded startling posers on the rules of Greek composition, which Kit had answered at random.

But it was Professor Aitchison who stung him into a sort of temporary interest, and that more on account of his province than from any personal feeling.

Professor Aitchison embodied patriotism to the university. Picturesquely Bohemian himself, he encouraged all manner of vagabondage among his students. If these fortunate youths did not learn much Greek, at least they never forgot their acquaintance with that fine, impulsive, clean-thoughted, noble gentleman, Professor Angus Aitchison of the University of Edinburgh.

But without doubt the man of genius could be excessively trying at times.

Entering the class-room like a whirlwind, he was halfway through the Lord's Prayer in Greek before the men could rise from their seats. Then still in a blind hurry he would dash into the subject nearest, (for the time being) to his big bairn's heart.

"Gentlemen, I have unfortunately come without my lecture this morning. But that is the less to be regretted that I find in this morning's 'Thistle' the most truly diabolical article, sufficient to bring a Sodom-curse, a very Gomorrah-brimstone-cloud upon this city. I will now make a few remarks upon the 'Thistle'-man!"

Then Angus Aitchison waved his oaken staff round his head and de-claimed for forty eloquent minutes.

When he had calmed, pulverized, and finally dispersed the "Thistle" miscreant he would return to his class.

"Dear me, we have only a few minutes left. Mr. Fred Stewart, what do you mean by sitting there idle all the day long? You are an unprofitable servant, sir! That's a bad translation, but a good fact. Read the first ten lines of our lesson for the day, and be quick about it!"

This morning it was Kit who, at ten minutes to the hour, was called upon to read a page of the Iliad.

Kit translated with his mind upon the burst hinges of his little desk. But sheer instinct led him through.

The Professor stopped him.

"You are translating like a saw-mill, Mr. Kennedy. Yes, with about as much heart and genius as a saw-mill."

Then like a flash came the question, "Have you read my translation of the Iliad into ballad measure?"

"No, sir," said Kit, who had not so much as heard of that great work.

"No!" cried Angus Aitchison, throwing back his head, "no porridge-fed Gallovidian ever read anything half so good as my translation of Homer. Sit down, sir. Mr. Fred Stewart, do you go on."

EARN MONEY AT HOME

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS Are Earned Each Month

I Know Because I Pay It!

No matter where you live you can work for me. If it is money you want, read this.

These Workers Are Happy With Their Earnings

I have over one thousand letters in my office written by men and women who are only too glad to tell others of their success. I only wish that I could print them all for you to read! Think how pleased Mrs. George Peole of Ontario must be that she sent me her name four years ago. Here is part of her last letter: "I have had my machine over four years, since taking up the work I have never been without money. As we live three miles from town I have always wanted a car, and now I have one which my Auto Knitter is paying for. Last winter I cleared $525.00." And part of a very interesting letter from Mrs. James Shaw, also of Ontario, reads as follows: "We have had our machine three years. Last fall from October until two days before Christmas, it brought me in $400.00." While most of my workers are women, hundreds of men find it profitable to turn their spare time into dollars. Listen to Mr. Arlington Fraser, who lives in a small Ontario town: "I was a little afraid of starting as I had never seen a knitting machine, but with the help of the instructions it was easy. I have only had the machine five months and I have made $325.00 in my spare time." When you read these simply written records of what others are doing, is there any reason why you cannot do the same?

Each worker learns from a set of simple, clear instructions. They work as much or as little as they please, filling in the hours that best suit their convenience. Of course the more socks they knit the larger their pay-check.

Experience Unnecessary

My beautiful booklet giving full information about Auto Knitting is free. It is illustrated with photographs and letters of those who are making a great success of this Home-Earning plan. WOMEN'S HANDICAPS

Headaches and Backaches Often Make Life Miserable.

A woman's health handicaps her almost always. She has pains and disabilities which do not afflict men. Nature does not give her a fair chance. Her blood is more often thin and poor than a man's, and she often neglects the first beginnings of ill-health. Many women who seemed destined to a life of frequent suffering have been freed entirely from their suffering through the wonderful blood-making qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Many a woman tells all day with a pain in her back and side, a burning headache, and a sense of having no spine left.

What a pity women will not listen to their friends whom Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved from their misery. Whenever a woman suffers they will help her—in youth, middle-age and afterlife. Mrs. John Mitchell, of Middleville, Ont., gives her experience for the benefit of other women sufferers. She says: "Some years ago I was so badly run down I could hardly walk around the house. I tried to do a few chores but was able to do very little. My boys and husband had to do the rest. If I started up stairs I had to go very slow or I would fall, and I was just played out when I got at the top of the stairs. My head ached terribly, and my heart would beat violently. In this deplorable condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I had finished six boxes I felt much better. Then I got a further supply, and by the time I had taken these I could walk anywhere without being exhausted, the headaches had disappeared and I am now perfectly well. Any woman who is run down should not hesitate to begin Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once, as I am sure from my own experience they will build her up."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cts. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Was Suspicious.

After reading about starved lives and the soul hunger of wives for a kind word, Mr. Tenspot became contrite and resolved to do better. So on reaching home he hailed his better half after this fashion:

"Well, here she is, the best little wife in the world."

"John," interposed his wife, sharply, "have you been drinking?"

"Of course not."

"Then what have you been up to?"

The Passing of Autumn.

The wizard has woven his ancient scheme

A day and a starlit night,
And the world is a shadowy, pencilled dream
Of color, haze and light.

Like something an angel wrought,
Maybe,
To answer a fairy's whim,
A fold of an ancient tapestry,
A phantom, rare and dim.

Silent and smooth as the crystal stone
The river lies serene,
And the fading hills are a jewelled throne
For the Fall and the Mist, his Queen.

Slim as out of aerial seas
The elms and poplars fair
Float like the dainty spirits of trees
In the mellow, dreamlike air.

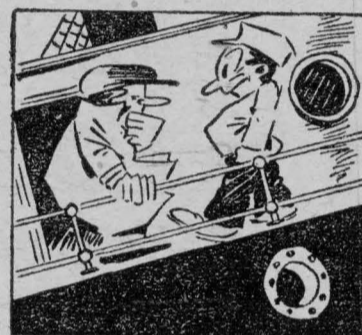

Silvery-soft by the forest side—
Wine-red, yellow, rose—
The wizard of Autumn, faint, blue-eyed—
Swinging his censor, goes.

A Sidelight on History.

An interesting piece of secret history, which explains how the German naval signal codes came into the hands of the British Admiralty, has just been revealed.

When the German cruiser Magdeburg struck a mine near the island of Odenholm, off the Estonian coast, the crew abandoned the ship and surrendered. But it was noticed by some Russians that one of the German officers jumped overboard.

This aroused the Russians' curiosity, the spot was noted, and a diver was sent down. He recovered the body of the officer, and it was then found that the latter had secured to his person a number of secret German naval codes. A copy of these codes was supplied to the British Admiralty, but the Germans, unaware that they had fallen into hostile hands, continued to use them. It is stated that the possession of these German codes was of considerable value to the British fleet during the battle of Jutland.

Surnames and Their Origin

FILMORE

Variations—Filmur, Fulmer, Fulmer. Racial Origin—English. Source—A locality.

More anciently this family name had the variations "Fylmere" and "Filmour," but these spellings apparently have disappeared completely in recent generations.

A quite plausible argument that this name is of Celtic origin and that it was developed from the words "flea," meaning a bard, and "mor," meaning great, has been advanced from time to time, the argument that some ancient ancestor of the Filmores was a "famous bard."

But the theory does not stand up in the light of research, which shows first, no evidence of Celtic origin, and, second, that there were so many "famous" bards among the Celts of England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland that it would have meant little for a man to refer to his ancestry in such vague terms.

But in the speech of the Saxons, "file" meant fertility as applied to the land and "mere" meant either a lake or a moist section of ground. It is easy to see, therefore, that the combination of these two words might easily have been applied by the Saxons to many spots in England as local names, and indeed there are records to be found of several places so named. Quite naturally the surname arose as indicating residence at or near such a spot.

MacNIDER.

Variations—MacNiter, Weaver. Racial Origin—Scottish. Source—An occupation.

Here is a family name which comes from Scotland, and though purely Gaelic, traces back to an occupational origin. Family names of this description were extremely unusual among the Gaels of Ireland. But in Scotland, though they are by no means general, they are occasionally met with.

Spelled in the Gaelic fashion, this family name is "Mac-an-fhigheadair." At least, that's the nearest you can come to the Gaelic spelling with the English alphabet, and the Gaelic-speaking Scot would pronounce it so that to your English-trained ears it would sound something like "Macanider" with the accent on the "na." Take a pronunciation something like this and put it on careless English tongues, and it does not take long to make it MacNider or MacNiter.

The meaning of the name is "Son-of-the-weaver," and it appears to be found only among those who claim descent from the famous old Clan MacFarlane, one of those clans descended from the first Irish settlers of Scotland, a century or two before Christianity spread among the Gaels. It is a name that came into being as a substitute, evidently, at the time the MacFarlanes were "outlawed" and became, like the MacGregors, a "broken clan." It has in a great many cases been changed to its virtual equivalent in English, Weaver.

A LITTLE BOOKLET

MOTHERS SHOULD HAVE

It Tells What a Mother Ought to Know for Baby's Sake.

Above all things every mother wishes that her child, or children, whatever their age, may be bright, healthy, good-natured, rosy boys and girls; clear eyed, clear skinned babies; good sleepers, bright wakers. Every mother's wish for her little folks is that they may be well.

It is natural for little folks to be well. No wise mother thinks that her child at any age is in a natural state unless it is well and happy. No mother can expect, though, that her child will escape all the ills to which babyhood and childhood are subject, but she can do much to make baby's battles for health easily won.

A valuable little booklet entitled "Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness" has been prepared and as it is something every mother should have, a copy will be sent free to any mother on request who will mention this paper by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Commercial Mind.

A country minister was talking to one of his flock, who ventured the opinion that ministers should be better paid.

"I am glad to hear you say that," the minister said. "I am pleased that you think so much of the clergy. And so you think that we should have better stipends?"

"Yes," said the man. "Ye see, we'd get a better class of men."

Not Really Afraid.

"Bang!" went the rifles at the manoeuvres.

"Oo—o!" screamed the pretty girl—a nice, decorous surprised little scream, as she stepped backward into the arms of a young man.

"Oh!" she said, blushing, "I was frightened by the rifles; I beg your pardon."

"Not at all," said the young man. "Let's go over and watch the artillery."

"But you can tell him you'll do better next time."

PAINS ACROSS THE BACK

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mitchell, Ontario.—"I have taken your medicine for a number of years. I do not take it steady all the time, but I am never without it. I always keep it in the house. I took it first for pains in the abdomen and bearing-down pains, headaches and pains across the back. I have my home to look after and many a day I could not get up at all. I saw the advertisement in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and Mrs. John Miller told me about it, too. Every time I take it, it makes me feel better and I always recommend it to my friends. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about this medicine and you may use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. F. J. WASSMANN, Mitchell, Ontario.

The merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is told by women to each other. Many women know by experience what this medicine will do and they are anxious for others to know. Such testimony should cause any woman suffering from the troubles so common to her sex to give this well-known medicine a fair trial.

Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes."

This means that 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial.

Two very fine anthems: "Bells of Peace" and "Be a Beacon of Lightness" were given by Inkerman choir Rev. C. H. Brown in his witty remarks as chairman, put the audience in good spirits for the evening program. Mrs. Merrill in "Retrospect and Prospect" gave a history of the W. M. S. of this District since 1885, and spoke of the great task of the future in which God expects each one to have a share.

Rev. G. A. MacDonald of Calvin United Church, Ottawa, in a stirring address, said that no minister can continue in his work successfully without the help of the W. M. S. He said the three greatest movements of the present are: Women's Suffrage, the League of Nations and the United Church Work. He pleaded hard for unity of spirit. Bless be the tie that binds, and the benediction closed one of the most successful conventions ever held in the Matilda District. Too much praise cannot be given the ladies of Inkerman and VanCamp who served such wonderful meals in such an appetizing way.

The Unfair Deal Canadian Farmers are Getting

Back in 1921 we sold the United States agricultural products to the value of $146,539,883. After the Fordney U.S. Tariff of 1922 went into effect in the United States we sold them only $51,337,733 worth.

By raising their tariffs the United States farmers have put about $100,000,000 per annum more into their pockets and the Canadian farmers have lost it.

What is the lesson to the Canadian farmer?

On what terms is the Canadian farmer competing with the farmer of the United States? They are terms that not only forbid the sale of his products in the United States but compel him at the same time to witness United States farm products replacing his own in the home markets of Canada. Let us examine some of these terms.

PRODUCTS	For Entrance into Canada the Americans pay:	For Entrance into the United States the Canadians pay:
Potatoes.....	35 cts. per 100 lbs.	50 cts. per 100 lbs.
Eggs.....	3 cts. per doz.	8 cts. per doz.
Butter.....	4 cts. per lb.	8 cts. per lb.
Cheese.....	3 cts. per lb.	5 cts. per lb.
Cattle.....	25%	40%
Hay.....	$2.00 per ton	$4.00 per ton
Wheat Flour.....	50 cts. per barrel	$2.04 per barrel
Wheat.....	12 cts. per bushel	42 cts. per bushel
Corn.....	Free	15 cts. per bushel
Certain Fruits.....	25%	35%

The United States raised their tariff, in order to protect the American Farmers, and the purchasing of foreign farm products was reduced. It was, therefore, to the American Farmer's benefit.

And we prove it. In the next column we list a few Canadian products imported by the United States under the 1921 tariff and under the raised tariff of September 21st, 1922. These figures are quoted from the "Commercial Intelligence Journal" published by Ottawa Government (26th September, 1925, page 324).

has been established nearly forty years and is the oldest Canadian Company transacting all lines of Fire and Casualty Insurance. During this time claims of over One Million Dollars have been paid to Canadian Policy-Holders. Each policy carries the guarantee of Two Hundred and Twenty-five Million Dollars in Assets. We welcome an opportunity to serve you in any of our Departments.

Canada will be flooded with farm products from other countries at these low rates, but Canadian farm products are shut out of other countries by high tariffs.

Meanwhile half a million Canadians have moved to the United States because of the tariff reductions that have closed up or slowed down hundreds of factories.

That is, half a million buyers of Canadian farm products have been lost. The farmers are hit twice.

ALFALFA FOR THE FRUIT GROWER

Alfalfa Works in Well With the Fruit Grower's Program.

BY HERBERT NAFZIGER.

To be the possessor of a good alfalfa field gives any farmer a pleasant and soul-satisfying feeling, but for a fruit grower who has work horses and a few cows to feed, it is satisfying to the seventh degree.

Perhaps I feel that way because I am a fruit grower and have in the past experienced the woes and irritations of the man who has to buy all or nearly all of his hay and other feed.

A man who lives in the midst of a highly intensive fruit country naturally wants to have as much of his farm as possible in fruit. Furthermore, the fruit grower has his farm equipped and geared up to grow fruit. That is the thing which he can do most efficiently and with a minimum of lost motion and expense.

The fruit specialist is not, as a rule, equipped to raise grain, and if he tries to raise some corn or other grain on the side, he will sooner or later find himself between the horns of a dilemma. He finds that he has to hurry over or neglect some part of his fruit growing in order to take care of the grain, or he has to tend strictly to his fruit and let the grain go.

Neither alternative is desirable in these days of high efficiency and small profit margins. The alternative of neglecting his orchard operations is especially undesirable, as sometimes a few days' neglect proves disastrous.

To cite an instance, a neighbor of mine had a nice field of corn started which was at the time badly in need of cultivation. The weather was warm, weeds were growing lustily, and a little more neglect would mean a weedy corn field. On the other hand, it was time to spray his apples. What to do? He finally decided that the apples could wait a few days longer, so he went into the corn.

FALSE ECONOMY.

After the corn was cultivated and he was just getting a good start on the spraying, it began to rain, not an ordinary shower, but a week's rainy spell. As a result, scab obtained a foothold in his orchard, to the detriment of his pack at harvest time.

He told me that his loss from that false move was much more than the entire corn field was worth.

This is an age of specialists. A man must put his hand and brain to some special line if he expects to make good. The Jack of all trades is a back number. Whatever he tackles he finds himself competing with experts who can run rings around him.

There are few lines of business which require such a high degree of vigilance, judgment, knowledge and strict application as does the growing of high-grade fruit. A good motto for a fruit grower is "Hew to the line and let some other fellow pick up the chips."

Considering farm efficiency we found that the only fed crop that we could safely raise on our fruit farm was hay. So we seeded some spare land to clover and timothy. For several reasons this plan did not prove to be ideal. First, the clover and timothy would run out and need renewing. Second, our feed bill remained rather high, because we had to buy grain in considerable amounts to supplement the hay, and also because the hay crop from the land available was not enough to carry us through the season.

ADVANTAGES OF ALFALFA.

Alfalfa, however, comes as near the ideal as possible. It stands many years without renewal. It has high feeding value, thus cutting the grain bill down to a minimum, and finally, it yields a large amount per acre, thus enabling the fruit man to raise enough feed on a small acreage to carry him through.

We cut our alfalfa twice in a season because, if we cut three times, the last cutting interferes with the fall fruit harvest. Incidentally, we found that cutting only twice preserves the vigor and life of the stand, and makes practically as much hay as three cuttings.

In these days of certified and adapted seed, the problem of getting a stand is not nearly as acute as it formerly was. However, on much of our fruit belt land a new seeding still needs considerable coddling for successful results. Several plans have been tried out on our farm, and I will briefly describe the one plan that has for us proved practically infallible.

Most of our seedlings have been made directly following old sod as we wished to obviate the necessity of raising a cultivated crop for a year before seeding alfalfa. The ground is plowed late in the summer after the hay crop is off and is occasionally worked with a spring-tooth harrow until winter sets in. During the winter, or early in the spring, it is given a good coating of marl. Then, as early in spring as possible, it is thoroughly disked and again kept worked to kill weeds and sod until about the fifteenth of June; at that time the ground is given an application of about 250 to 300 pounds of acid phosphate per acre. This is harrowed in and then the ground is seeded, without a nurse crop, and with the best certified northern-grown seed available. The seed is lightly covered with a spike-tooth harrow and then rolled down with a land roller. Some time in midsummer, the field is mowed to keep the weeds down. The clippings are left on the field unless heavy enough to cause danger of smothering the young alfalfa. After the first year, a light application of acid phosphate is given annually. When seeding is made in the above manner the use of the ground is, of course, lost for one year, but a certain and long-lived stand of alfalfa is surely ample compensation.

Yellow Transparent market was demoralized to such a point that even the good fruit sold slowly and at poor prices. Before the end of the season we realized that we had made a mistake and also that we were not alone in our error.

In a desperate effort to correct the trouble we had a large display card printed with the heading "Jelly Apples." On this card we called attention to the fact that the small apples were well adapted to the making of jelly, and told briefly how it could be done. We followed up a lot of our shipments and by the use of these cards stimulated the sale of fruit that might otherwise never have been sold. One of our customers was "stuck" with seventy-five bushels of these small apples, but after using the cards he cleaned up the entire lot in a few days at a price that cleared expenses.

I am satisfied that our experience with the small apples cost us much more than we would have lost by dumping the whole lot.

Amendments to Dairy Product Act and Regulations.

The text of The Dairy Product Act as amended this year and regulations under the Act have been published by the Dept. of Agriculture at Ottawa in uniform style with other Acts relating to agriculture. There is one new amendment to the Act authorizing the Governor-in-Council to make regulations that will enable the Dairy Produce Grader to refuse to grade any dairy produce and to withhold grade certificates. Sections 24 to 28 inclusive have been added to the previous 23 of the regulations. These provide: that any butter cut or moulded into prints or blocks shall be deemed to be not graded and that no person shall brand, mark, describe or advertise for sale as graded, butter which shall have been so cut or moulded; that a grader's certificate covering any such lots shall be deemed cancelled; that no person shall pack butter in a package bearing marks of previous grading; that no person shall sell, offer for sale or have in his possession butter branded, marked, described or advertised contrary to these regulations and that any butter on which mould has appeared, whether on the butter itself or on the parchment lining, even though all trace has been removed, shall be classified as "no grade."

Hog Types.

Here is how one hog man describes his type of hogs: Perhaps the first thing we should look for in a hog that fits modern requirements is a strong back, uniform in width from front to rear, and uniformly arched. This is where the high-priced cuts are found, and we want it as near perfect as possible. We want to avoid a flatness over the shoulders, or any narrowness across the loin.

Look well to the side; we think more of it now than we used to. It is these deep, straight, smooth sides that cut up into nicely striped bacon. We do not want the value of these savory slices marred by creases or wrinkles. They also cause much extra work in scraping when butchering time comes round, and the deeper you can get this side, the more bacon there is.

The hams and shoulders should also be deep, well let down on the body, and well filled, but not necessarily bulging. They should fit neatly into the body, and so even with the side that a straightedge held along the side would touch the body all the way. Too much bulging inclines to coarseness, and takes the growth that might better be some place else.

As the animal walks off naturally, the underline should be straight all the way. If the sides are deep, the flanks both front and rear are full, the hams and shoulders well let down, and not too much nor too little jowl, the underline will be all right, and likewise the heart girth that we used to talk so much about.

And then the feet and legs: There is not much meat on them, to be sure; but they support and carry the whole works. They are the foundation and you know the importance of the foundation if it is a superstructure you wish to build. So we want the legs and feet of good size, and straight, toes close together, not sprawly; pasterns short and straight and stalky, not slender, long and sloping. Knees that knock toward each other, and hocks set at too great an angle are common faults and should be avoided.

Meat and Bone By-products.

The Dominion Chemist, Dr. F. T. Shutt, and his assistant, Miss S. N. Hamilton, have prepared and the Dominion Dept. of Agriculture has published a fourteen-page bulletin describing what is meant by "Meat and Bone By-products," and designed to furnish that knowledge of their composition and nature that is essential to their economic purchase and use. The feeding stuffs on the market that come under the foregoing heading include meat and blood meals, tankage, bone meal, fish meals and other related materials, mainly the by-products of the packing house, slaughter house and fish canneries, and consist of varying proportions of meat, fatty tissue, blood and bone, according to their source and method of preparation. As a class, states the bulletin, they are highly nitrogenous and phosphatic concentrates that constitute a valuable source of protein and bone-making material and are especially useful in the feeding of swine and poultry. It is essential that they should be prepared from fresh materials and as purchased should be sweet and sound, free from rancidity and mould. As a consequence, continues the bulletin, which can be had on application to the Publications Branch, Ottawa, it is obvious that these feeding stuffs should be purchased always on guaranteed analysis. One object of the investigation, the results of which are recorded in this bulletin, was the establishment of standards, in percentages of protein, fat, and phosphate of lime, for the various classes of products under consideration.

Producing Clean Milk.

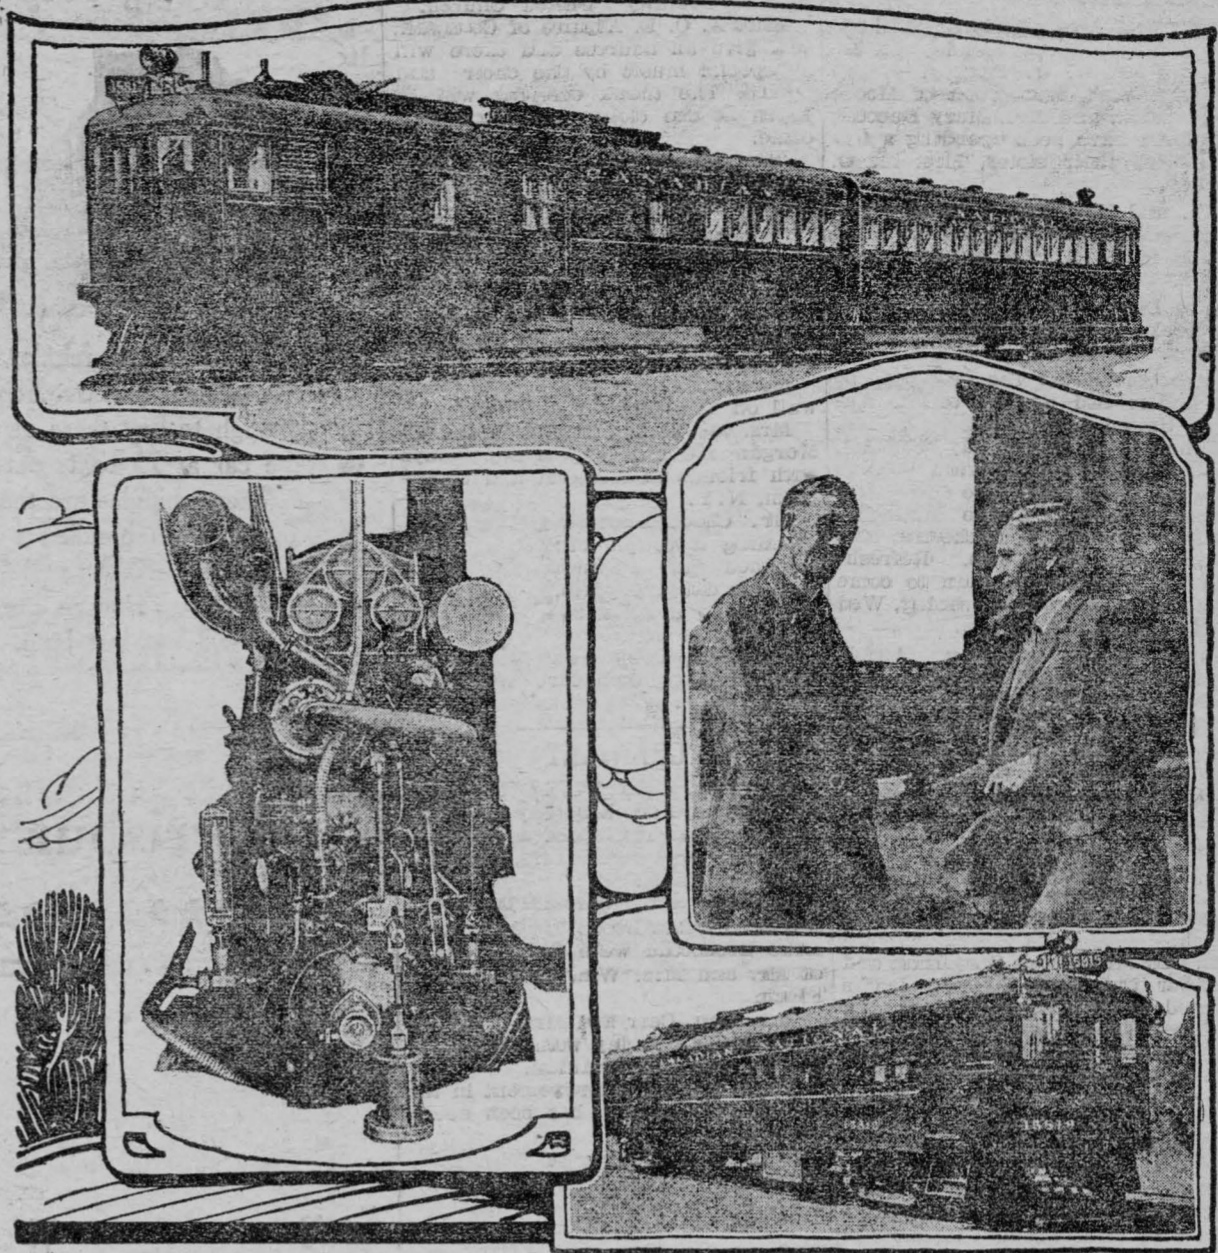

A clean pail, a covered pail and a clean animal are the big things in producing clean milk. All other sources of contamination are of lesser importance, states the Dominion Agricultural Bacteriologist in his report for 1924. To insure clean milk the pails should be washed and scoured, and, if possible, treated with steam, and care taken to have no dirt fall from the cow into the milk. The report, which is distributed free by the Publications Branch, Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa, describes in detail the methods of insuring complete cleanliness. Manure should be moved out of the reach of the animals, the cows should be regularly brushed, the milker's hands must be carefully washed, and the foremilk should be discarded.

A Hallowe'en Game.

Games are always in high favor for a Hallowe'en frolic and here is one in which all the folks, young and old, may join. The group is instructed to write a word beginning with "Jack" after each statement as it is read by the leader. A given time is allowed to accomplish this and the one having the greatest number correct may receive a Jack-o'-lantern for a prize while the consolation may be a lolly-pop or a popcorn ball.

A Jack with a long bushy tail—Jackal.
A Jack who couldn't eat fat—Jack Sprat.
A Jack who is very cold—Jack Frost.
A Jack who is a flower—Jack in the Pulpit.
A Jack a boy carries in his pocket—Jack-knife.
A Jack used on last day of October—Jack-o'-lantern.
A Jack who is a garment—Jacket.

Canadian National Oil Electric Cars.

THE Canadian National Railways have put into service an entirely new type of motive power which may go far towards solving two of the most serious problems steam roads are facing, namely, high fuel costs and the competition of motor bus and lorry on the public highways. The oil electric car is the name given to this new method of locomotion and its creation is due to the mechanical officers of the National Railways who conceived the idea and carried it through. Relatively speaking, the principle behind the power which drives the car, is simple. In one end of the car is located a light fuel oil engine operating on the Diesel principle and this engine drives an electric generator which provides the energy to move the car. The engine is started by a small electric motor operated from storage batteries and these batteries are, in turn, recharged by the generator when it begins to function, so that the cycle of performance is a close approach to perpetual motion.

Two sizes of cars have been built, the large or articulated type and a small type. The top photograph shows the large type, consisting of two bodies resting on three four-wheel trucks, the ends of the two bodies being attached to the centre truck in such a way, by a safety locking pin, that the rear car is able to swivel sufficiently to take the curves. This car has a total length of 102 feet and can accommodate 126 passengers. In the lower left hand corner is a photograph of one end of the fuel oil engines, used on these cars. On the right Mayor J. H. Balharrie of Ottawa is seen shaking hands with Mr. C. E. Brooks, Chief of Motive Power of the Canadian National Railways, on the completion of the first trial run of the large car from Montreal to Ottawa. Below is a photograph of the small car which has a passenger carrying capacity of 56. Both cars have roomy baggage ends as well.

An idea of the possibilities of these cars is to be had from the performance of the small car during a test trip from Toronto to Montreal. The mileage between those points is 334 miles. The fuel consumption of the small car on the trip cost $3.50 and lubricating oil 48 cents, or a total fuel cost of $3.98. To have operated a steam train of similar passenger carrying capacity, even with the most economical type of locomotive, would have entailed a fuel cost of at least $66.00. The ability of these cars to produce speed when required was demonstrated during the test run of the large car from Montreal to Ottawa. The trip was made in two hours and fifteen minutes actual running time or at an average rate of 52 miles per hour.

Both cars shown in the photograph are now in service. The large car is in local service on Canadian National lines out of the Tunnel Terminal between Montreal and Ottawa. The small car is in local service between Hamilton and Guelph, Ontario.

WHEN THE GUESTS UNMASK AT MIDNIGHT

The first autumn festival is at hand, and the housewife may entertain with an informal frolic and costume dance. The decorations may be carried out in pumpkin yellow and black, and if you can add a few bundles of corn stalks from the field this will give you greater leeway in the decorations and arrangements.

In one corner of the room, or in the hall, a tent may be arranged in a few minutes with the aid of a sheet and some of the pins used to hold pictures on the wall. Place a layer of corn stalks against the sheet, hiding it completely. Everything is now ready for the fortune-telling witch. A cider well can be arranged in the kitchen and will be a spot of real merriment if a fairy is presiding, and dispensing the drink. It is best to get the affair under way by 8 o'clock, for promptly at midnight the guests must unmask and sit down to the supper. Old-fashioned games and dancing will fill the intervening space of time. Well-seasoned substantial menu will form an ideal menu for the midnight Hallowe'en supper, and this meal may be served in platter form if you should desire, or if because of limited table space you find it inconvenient to seat the guests at the table.

Macadoine Salad
Toasted Cheese Sandwiches
Sausage Sandwiches
Nut and Celery Sandwiches
Witches' Punch
Pumpkin Tarts
Mince Tarts
Crullers
Coffee
Apples, Nuts and Raisins

Serve the punch, as you will find that many of the guests will prefer this beverage to the coffee.

WITCHES' PUNCH

Place in a mixing bowl: Three pints of crushed ice, two quarts of water, three bananas (sliced thin), two oranges, (peeled and sliced thin), one cup of cranberries (sliced thin), four apples (cut in paper-thin slices), one quart of grape juice.

Place in large punchbowl or clean wooden bucket and cover the outside with pumpkin-colored crepe paper, tie to keep in place with black two-inch bands of crepe paper, and fasten a whisk broom to the side of the bowl.

MACADOINE SALAD

Place in large mixing bowl: One can of well-drained peas, three cups of finely shredded cabbage, two cups of finely diced cooked beets, three large carrots (diced and cooked until tender), two green peppers (minced fine), three red peppers (minced fine), two stalks of celery (cut in dice), six large potatoes (cooked until tender, pared and cut in dice), one cup of finely chopped onion, three tablespoons of mustard seed, one tablespoon of celery seed, three-quarters cup of finely chopped parsley, one quart of cooked salad dressing (well seasoned).

Toss to blend, and serve in crisp nests of lettuce. Garnish with slice of hard-boiled egg.

SAUSAGE SANDWICHES

Use the pocketbook or Parker House roll for this sandwich, and have cooked and steaming hot fresh country sausage. I have found it made a decided hit to arrange this sausage sandwich on a tray covered with napkin, and have a young lad act as the sausage man, going among the guests crying hot sausages, take 'em while they're hot, 'ot, 'ot.

TOASTED CHEESE SANDWICHES

Place in bowl: One pound of store cheese, one grated onion, one teaspoon of paprika, one-quarter cup of cream. Work well to paste, and spread on nicely buttered bread. Place in the broiler of the gas range for two minutes to toast slightly and then place the top slice of the bread in place, cut into triangles and place on paper doilies, and serve from tray like the sausage sandwiches.

NUT AND CELERY SANDWICHES

Place four large stalks of celery and one pound of shelled nuts through the food chopper, adding one red and one green pepper, four branches of parsley, two medium-size onions.

Place in bowl and add seasoning to taste and three-fourths cup of either mayonnaise or cooked dressing. Mix well and make into sandwiches.

CRULLERS

Place in a mixing bowl: Nine cups of sifted flour, five level tablespoons of baking powder, two teaspoons of salt, one teaspoon of ginger, one teaspoon of nutmeg, two cups of granulated sugar.

Sift twice to blend and then rub into this prepared flour: Five tablespoons of butter. Place in mixing bowl: Three large eggs, one and three-quarters cups of milk.

Beat with the eggbeater to blend and use to form a dough; roll out about one-half inch thick on well-floured pastry board; cut and fry in smoking hot fat; roll in granulated sugar and cinnamon, just as they come from the fat.

The crullers should be sent in to the supper just as they come from the stove and served smoking hot. If piled on tray and a lad with a white cap to pass and serve, it will add to the occasion.

Light Up Your Faces.

All have Jack-o'-Lantern seen From earliest youth, I ween. His face lit up from a light within Showing his teeth in a friendly grin. Very bright his eyes are, too, From the same source shining thru Radiating fun and cheer Thru the darkness far and near.

Light up your face with a smile, Make it worth ev'ry one's while, Only to travel your way Just to pass the time of day. Let them see your soul shine thru Smiling lips and eyes so true. Such a spirit, by God's grace, Transforms e'en the plainest face.

Light up your face, be very glad, Drive out all the sorry and sad. Be a good sport and play Life's game Every day and just the same. It will cost you no more to smile It will add to your years the while, If you will let love have its way And be happy the livelong day.

Masquerade Sandwiches.

Sandwiches that are just the thing for a Hallowe'en party can be made from brown bread that has been steamed in one pound baking powder cans. Two slices are allowed for each sandwich. Spread the under slice with a liberal covering of peanut butter. Make masques of the top slices. With a sharp thimble cut two small circles for the eyes. Underneath them make with the thimble another circle for the nose and below that cut a slit with a small sharp knife for the mouth.

Press each masque firmly upon the buttered surface of the under slice and then add the final touches that give the sandwiches their humorous appearance. Various expressions can be given by dropping a dried currant in each eye. Ripe olives make amusing noses, of every imaginable shape. Strips of brilliant red, cut from sweet peppers, make lips that curl in "gayety, jest and amusement"—and you may be sure that the sandwiches will arouse plenty of mirth!

Course of Whale Currents.

Deep submarine currents containing whale food flow from the north Atlantic to 2,000 south of the equator.

LITTLE APPLES

Suppose that every manufacturer of automobiles should set aside every car that shows some slight defect, label it "Cull," and send it out into the open market to be sold for whatever it would bring.

The price of perfect automobiles would fall to a point where the maker would no longer realize a profit.

Many of the fruit growers of the country run their marketing on just such an unsound basis as the above hypothetical automobile business.

It may be argued that the manufacturers have few culls and that these few may be revamped and sold as "firsts," whereas the orchardist has many culls that he cannot afford to throw away. To a certain extent this is true, but at the same time it is a fact that every reputable manufacturer of motor cars or any other product has a certain percentage of defective parts that must be disposed of.

None of these defective parts ever reach the open market. But too often the grower attempts to sell his unsound merchandise, and as a result injures both himself and his brother fruit growers.

When there is an abundance of small or slightly defective apples the temptation to get rid of them in some way is always a strong one. One season our Yellow Transparents set an unusually heavy crop of fruit. It was a season made unusually busy by the fact that weather conditions kept us from doing our work as promptly as we wished, and we did not have time to thin all the trees.

A SAVING THAT MEANT LOSS.

Consequently at picking time we had a large number of apples that measured one and a half inches and less in diameter. The market that year was flooded with Yellow Transparent apples, and what we should have done was to take the entire lot and plow them under in the orchard for such fertilizing value as they might have. The temptation to "get something out of them" was too strong, however, and we shipped them along with our larger, well-graded fruit.

Many other growers apparently did the same thing, and as a result the

SOLEMN PACT TO INSURE PEACE SIGNED BY GREAT POWERS AT LOCARNO

France and Germany Make Covenant of Boundary Line Forever Inviolable to Invaders—Britain and Italy Promise to Go to Military Assistance of Either Nation Which is Victim of Violation of This Pledge.

A despatch from Locarno, Switzerland, says:—Just as the armistice ended the Great War, so on Thursday, making history, treaties were adopted at Locarno designed to render impossible any reopening of that Great War. Germany and the Allied powers approved the text of a security pact outlawing war.

When word of the agreement spread from mouth to mouth, like some wireless flash, this peaceful spot, nestling at the lakeside beneath towering mountains, seemed to pulsate with the thrill of countless multitudes dwelling throughout the world.

The Rhine pact of security adopted on Thursday and initialed on Friday, pledges its signatories, France, Germany and Belgium, not to attack or invade one another's territory and to abstain from war. Great Britain and Italy stand as guarantors of this engagement and promise to throw their forces away from the parties which violate its terms.

France is allowed to keep certain rights embodied in the Treaty of Versailles, and, notably, take immediate action should Germany commit a hostile act by constructing fortifications either on the left bank of the Rhine or within 50 kilometres (about thirty miles) of its east bank, or keep armed forces within that area.

The pact ceases to hold when combined penalties against any aggressor nation are ordered by the League of Nations, or when by virtue of Article XV. of the League covenant, and by reason of failure of the council to reach unanimity on any dispute, the League members may take such action as they deem necessary for the maintenance of right and justice.

The Permanent Court of International Justice, Boards of Conciliation, and the League Council are all possibilities for arbitration of all disputes under the pact, and arbitration is obligatory.

Besides the Rhine pact, an agreement was reached on collateral arbitration treaties between Germany and France and Germany and Belgium; these interlock with the pact itself. There will be, in addition, arbitration treaties between Germany and her eastern neighbors, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

These are expected to be concluded at once, and will follow the same scope as the western treaties. There will also be separate conventions between France and her eastern allies, guaranteeing France the right to come to the assistance of Poland or Czechoslovakia in case they are subjected to an unprovoked, flagrant attack.

Lastly comes the gentlemen's agreement, whereby Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium inform Germany that they interpret the covenant in the sense that no penalty contributions can be expected from members beyond the members' means. By this statement, which will take the form of a letter, Germany is relieved of the fear that the operation of League sanctions might embroil her with Russia.

The various treaties will probably be signed at Locarno within a fortnight and League of Nations officials here for the closing conference, see no reason why, with the treaties ratified by December, Germany cannot enter the League by the end of the year.

A later despatch from Locarno says:—The Locarno Conference has reached a successful conclusion. What it will mean only time will tell. The most experienced statesman of the lot, Briand, said it meant laying the foundations of the United States of Europe. In a common communiqué the statesmen said the Locarno Conference "must result in restoring the peace and security of Europe."

The following treaties will come out of Locarno: 1, The Rhine and security compact among Germany, Belgium, France, Great Britain and Italy; 2, an arbitration convention between Germany and France; 3, an arbitration convention between Germany and Belgium; 4, an arbitration treaty between Germany and Poland; 5, an arbitration treaty between Germany and Czechoslovakia.

In addition there are two understandings, one between France and Poland, and the other between France and Czechoslovakia, by the terms of which France undertakes to guarantee the arbitration arrangements between Germany and France's two allies.

The Rhine and compact, of itself the most important of the treaties, binds France and Germany never to fight again, but to arbitrate or mediate their differences. Between them is established a demilitarized Rhine-land. Britain and Italy agree to aid either party which is the victim of aggression by the other.

The arbitration treaties between Germany and France and between Germany and Belgium serve to carry out the Rhine-land compact. The conventions between Berlin on the one hand and Prague and Warsaw on the other are intended to complete the assurance against wars between Germany and France and her allies.

But, important as are the treaties in themselves, all the statesmen emphasize that the all-important point is the restoration of equality among the nations of Europe, for henceforth Germany is to be received as an equal in European councils. A special session of the Assembly of the League of Nations probably will be held in December to admit her.

NEW ERA OF PEACE DAWNS IN EUROPE

All Nations Now Are on an Equal Basis, is Official View.

London, Oct. 18.—"European peace again" is the headline under which J. L. Garvin in today's issue of the Observer hymns the Locarno agreement. However, there is as yet no certain knowledge in London as to what has been initiated at Locarno.

Despite this ignorance, the general feeling in diplomatic circles is that the steps taken are of paramount importance despite the fact, which is admitted privately, that certain clauses in the western security pact relating to Article XVI of the covenant and the French obligation to eastern allies can be, and are for the present intended to be, interpreted in two ways, one by the Germans and the other by the remaining signatories.

All the Foreign Ministers of the powers concerned are expected here December 1 to sign the concordat of Locarno. But so far as can be learned here, this will be merely an impulsive formality. There will be no changes in the documents initiated yesterday at Locarno unless Parliamentary opposition here or elsewhere develops in the meantime.

Premier Baldwin, on behalf of the Cabinet, has sent a telegram of congratulation to Chamberlain, and the entire British press, from the extreme Tory Morning Post to the Labor Daily Herald expresses its congratulations to Chamberlain over his success.

Only Lord Beaverbrook's and Lord Rothermere's newspapers, which are in open revolt against the Government, are expressing a tone which indicates they will open an attack on the pact when the full text is published as admitting Great Britain too far.

King George Reads Chapter of Bible Every Day

A despatch from London says:—"King George has let it be known that he reads a chapter of the Bible every day of his life." Rear-Admiral A. R. Emdin said to-day in a speech at a "Bible and Empire" demonstration held at Wembley, under the auspices of the World Evangelical Alliance.

Admiral Emdin's speech was a condemnation of Bolshevism on account of its rejection of the Bible.

SERIOUS DAMAGE TO QUALITY OF CROP

A despatch from Winnipeg says:—Serious damage to the grade of the Western wheat crop because of delay in threshing operations occasioned by continued bad weather, is indicated in a special report of threshing conditions published by The Manitoba Free Press on Friday.

The Province of Alberta has been hardest hit by the bad weather, the report says. Twenty points lying south from Lacombe to Milk River and east practically to the provincial border reported that from 60 to 90 per cent. of the threshing remains to be done. In the Coronation district, the report states, threshing has been resumed and the best grade so far is No. 2 northern tough. At Hanna wheat is reported to have lost two grades. Threshing has been delayed seven weeks at some points, with a delay of three weeks reported from practically every point queried. Conditions in the northern sections of the province were reported better.

In Saskatchewan the report indicated that along the line of the C.P.R. southwest and southeast of that line, 20 to 60 per cent. of the threshing remained to be done. North of the C.P.R. main line and along the North Prince Albert branch of the C.N.R. unthreshed grain was reported to total 45 to 75 per cent. of the crop. The wheat is reported to have lost from one to two grades in the average delay of three weeks.

Four Border Municipalities Approach 100,000 Population

A despatch from Windsor says:—Four border municipalities—Windsor, Ford, Sandwich, and Walkerville—are rapidly nearing the 100,000 mark in population, according to estimates of municipal officials. Mayor Frank J. Mitchell estimates Windsor's population as now approximately 60,000. Ford's increase of more than 2,000 this year brings the town to nearly 11,000, while Sandwich and Walkerville also have had decided increases during the year, Walkerville being estimated at 10,000.

One Bicycle for Every Seventh Person in France

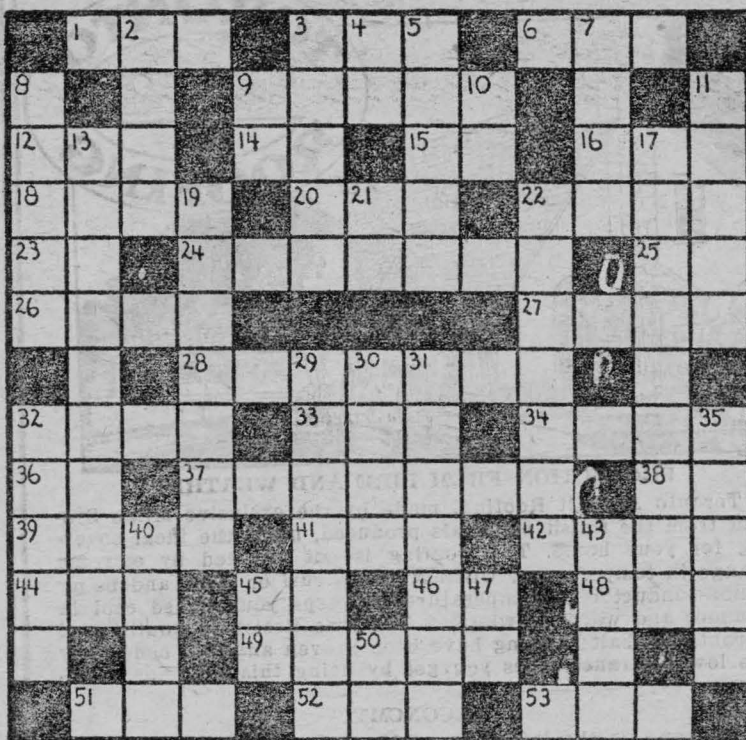

A despatch from Paris says:—France can boast of one bicycle for every seventh man, woman and child of its entire population. Official figures for the year 1924 show that 6,370,644 licenses for bicycles were issued, an increase of 532,721 over 1923. Virtually every workman in France owns a "Little Queen," as they call their wheels.

Five-Year-Old Boy Crushed Under Steam Roller

A despatch from Mitchell says:—Crushed by a steam roller while at play, 5-year-old Lorne Ratz of Water street met a tragic death Friday afternoon on St. George Street. The boy was playing with two other children when, it is supposed, he fell under the eight-ton roller, the rear wheel passing over his head and crushing it to a pulp. The boy's mother, who was about to call him to get him ready to go to a supper which was to be held in the Lutheran Church, on hearing the news, collapsed, and is in a critical condition. An inquest will be held.

The steam roller, operated by Ezra Robinson, was doing repair work on St. George Street at the time of the fatality.

WEMBLEY EXHIBITION GOES TO LIQUIDATORS

Total Deficit May Reach Two Million Pounds—Question of Fate of Buildings.

London, Oct. 18.—The British Empire Exhibition at Wembley is to be finally wound up and trustees are to be appointed forthwith to liquidate the exhibition, in accordance with the regular custom in bringing to an end temporary associations.

The total deficit may reach £2,000,000, but this figure has not yet been definitely ascertained. This means an end to an enterprise which, in spite of its financial loss, has had very considerable effect on recent events in England.

Question of what is to become of the Exhibition buildings is giving the authorities a good deal of trouble.

No course has actually been decided on, and some persons, it is understood, are not yet satisfied that it would be impossible to continue the Empire Exhibition in a smaller, but permanent form, and it is not unlikely some suggestion of this kind may be brought forward. But, in any case, the present Exhibition is to close Oct. 31, the final ceremony being conducted by the Duke and Duchess of York.

A despatch from Mitchell says:—Crushed by a steam roller while at play, 5-year-old Lorne Ratz of Water street met a tragic death Friday afternoon on St. George Street. The boy was playing with two other children when, it is supposed, he fell under the eight-ton roller, the rear wheel passing over his head and crushing it to a pulp. Motorist Pinioned Under Car Burned to Death

Montreal, Oct. 18.—Pinned beneath the burning wreck of an automobile, Rosaire Thibodeau, aged 20, of Shawinigan Falls, Que., was burned to death to-day on the highway near the bridge at Bout de l'Isle while his three friends looked on, helpless to save him because of the fierceness of the flames.

The accident occurred when the car was ditched in rounding a curve. Thibodeau's three companions, two girls and a man, were thrown from the machine, but he was caught beneath it. Almost instantly a leak in the gasoline tank caused the automobile to catch fire.

His companions vainly attempted to free him, but were driven back by the flames.

Modern Smelting Plant to be Erected at Rouyn Mine

Quebec, Oct. 18.—Marking a tremendous development in the gold-copper mining fields of this province, arrangements have been completed for the immediate erection of a large, modern smelting plant on Lot 156, Rouyn Township. The work will be started without delay.

The announcement followed conferences held Friday and Saturday between Government officials and the Noranda Mines, Ltd. The new smelter will handle the entire output of the mines, and will be ready for operation late next fall in time to supply the National Railways with ample business along the new Rouyn Mines branch line.

Girl Falls from Auto and Drowns in River

Truro, N.S., Oct. 18.—Marion Macrae, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Macrae, was drowned in North River, five miles from here, late Saturday night, when her father's automobile left the road, rolled down an embankment and landed on its wheels on the river bottom. Marion and her sister Beth fell out when the car door sprang open. They floated down stream, but Beth was able to save herself. Marion floated away in the darkness and all attempts to find her proved fruitless until this morning. None of the other six occupants left their seats or were injured.

Fine Harvesters Who Quit.

A despatch from Winnipeg says:—The first fines to be recorded in Manitoba for refusal to obey employers' instructions were assessed against three harvest hands who abandoned their work during the height of the harvest season. They were fined $5 and costs.

Canada from Coast to Coast

Saint John, N.B.—Potato exports from this port to Cuba since the beginning of the season up to and including 26th of September have amounted to 75,027 bags and 12,950 barrels, as against 10,300 bags in the same period of 1924.

Quebec, Que.—After purchasing $85,000 worth of land from farmers in the parish of Cap Rouge, a short distance from the Dominion Experimental Farm, the St. Regis Paper Co. has decided to start the erection of its pulp and paper mills at that point early in May, 1926. Timber will be obtained from the large limits of the company on the North Shore along the lower St. Lawrence, and also from the Abitibi district.

Toronto, Ont.—Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, has announced that government assistance will be made in the marketing of the apple crop of the province. The government will carry out an extensive publicity campaign urging the citizens to use home-grown fruit, and will aid in securing export markets by purchasing 25,000 barrels of representative apples to be shipped overseas with a view of favorably impressing the buyers there with the quality of the Ontario fruit.

Winnipeg, Man.—Though rain and snow continued to retard threshing operations in the Prairie Provinces last week, threshing generally is now two weeks ahead of last year. Soil is in excellent condition everywhere for fall plowing and a substantial increase of acreage is assured for 1926 over 1925. Recent rains have maintained pastures in good shape and the condition of cattle is reported as excellent.

Regina, Sask.—Corn is steadily gaining in popularity throughout the West as an aid to diversified farming and it is estimated that 100,000 acres were grown in Saskatchewan last year. Although seed was scarce in 1924 and the price rather high, the acreage will probably be slightly higher this year than last.

Edmonton, Alta.—Tar sand deposits at Fort McMurray are being investigated just now by a party of municipal and Dominion engineers. The investigators intend to look over the whole situation with a view to making a full report on development work and prospects for next year.

Victoria, B.C.—Plants for cleaning timothy will be established at Burns Lake and Smithers, Central British Columbia, by the agricultural department of the provincial government. Quite a number of farmers in that part of the country are now engaged in the production of timothy seed for the market. The seed grown there is of an exceptionally fine quality and there is a big demand for it.

AUSTRALIA EXCLUDES UNDESIRABLE BY TEST

Scot Unable to Speak German is Deported from the Commonwealth.

Adelaide, Australia, Oct. 18.—An interesting example of the Commonwealth's wide powers in the exclusion of undesirable immigrants, even British subjects, is shown in the case of Donald Stewart, a young Scotsman, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment as a prohibited immigrant, and ordered deported. A dictation test was applied in German, which Mr. Stewart failed to pass. He protested that he was a Scotsman, and not a German, and that he did not understand. The officers have the power to apply a test in any European language.

This provides a convenient method of excluding undesirables without making a charge or raising international or color distinctions. It frequently is applied to Asiatics.

Some time ago an international crook who was an accomplished linguist and spoke French, German, Spanish, Italian and Dutch was excluded by administering a test dictation of fifty words of Gaelic.

The test may be applied within a triennium after a person's arrival. The police reported that Mr. Stewart arrived in Australia in 1924 and was since convicted in three States.

Jury Finds Mrs. Janisse Guilty of Manslaughter

A despatch from Windsor says:—Mrs. Ruth Janisse, tried for the slaying of Clayton McMullin, young battery service proprietor, was found guilty of manslaughter, after the jury had deliberated for four hours.

Crying so that she could be heard all over the Court House, Mrs. Janisse was carried into the chamber where the jury announced that they were ready to render their verdict. She heard the pronouncement, became hysterical, collapsed, and was then carried away again. She will probably be sentenced at the conclusion of the other criminal cases.

Mrs. McMullin, widow of the dead man, after hearing the verdict, also collapsed and was borne away by court attendants and friends, through a side door.

James Clark, who for three days has carried the burden of the defence, expressed his satisfaction that the verdict had saved Mrs. Janisse from death, and thanked the jurors as they filed out one by one.

Synod Selecting Names for Bulgarian Children

A despatch from Sofia, Bulgaria, says:—The office of the Holy Synod, the head of the Bulgarian Church, is preparing a list of names for use in baptizing children. The largest number of names thus far selected come from the Holy Scriptures. Next on the list are the names of flowers, and following these the names of persons famed in Bulgarian history.

It is intended to give the new generation, as far as possible, purely Bulgarian names if they are not christened for persons of Scriptural origin.
