Dun. Coun. Farm Saf. Coun. holds annual meeting

The annual meeting of the Dundas County Farm Safety Council was held Wednesday, March 14th, in Williamsburg I.O.O.F. Hall. Guest speaker at the meeting was Mrs Gordon Smith, Gananoque, vice-president of the Farm Safety Council of Ontario. Mrs Smith outlined the activities of the Farm Safety Council throughout Ontario. She stated that the hazards of farm life are not appreciated because of the out-dated ideas of the peace and quiet of farm life.

A second speaker on the programme was Mr Robert Kelly, Kemptville Agricultural School. Mr Kelly demonstrated several types of fire extinguishers. The type of extinguisher which will give best results depends upon location. In a garage or farm shop where one might expect fires of gasoline or oily materials, one must have an extinguisher which has a smothering effect on a fire and which will prevent air from reaching the blaze. Water used on oil fires often spreads the fire over a wide area.

A feature of the evening programme was the announcement of the winners in the Poster Competition for elementary schools. Ninety - three posters, which were selected by teachers in schools throughout the County, were on display at the meeting. Prize money will be paid to each school participating and the County winners in each division will receive prize money of $5.00, $3.00 and 2.00. County winners were as follows:

Grade 1 - 3 (1) Darly Merkley, S.S. No. 9 Williamsburg, (2) Melba Gruntz, S.S. No. 10, Williamsburg, (3) Neil Fyke, Chesterville Public School.

Grade 4 - 6 (1) David Allison, Morrisburg Public Sch$ool, (2) Lennie Jones, Morrisburg Public School, (3) Gerald Gibeault, S.S. No. 4, Winchester.

Grade 6 and 7 (1) Maureen Beamish, Mountain Public School, (2) Stephen Law, S. S. 12, Matilda, (3) Linda Barkley, S. S. 14, Williamsburg.

Songs by Roger Morell added enjoyment to the programme and the evening concluded with a movie entitled "Safety. Everywhere At all Time".

St. Mary's C. Y. O. St. Patrick's programme

Friday, March 16, was a great night for the Irish, when the Chesterville and district Irish and their many friends turned out to view a St. Patrick's programme in the Community Hall. The entertainment was staged by Chesterville Catholic Youth Organization.

Danny Maxwell, president of the C.Y.O., was the master of ceremonies. The program featured two plays produced and directed entirely by the members.

Barbara Plantz, Pauline Cardinal, Theresa Desormeaux, Claudette Genier and Anne Van-Delst sang "Danny Boy" accompanied on the piano by Madeline Moriarty. "My Father's Old Shillelagh" and "Who Threw the Overalls in Mrs Murphy's Chowder", two popular Irish songs, were sung by Butch Foley. Neil Moore, accompanied at the piano by Miss Patsy Ann O'Donahue sang, "An Irish Lullaby" and "Galway Bay". The medly of Irish songs was completed when Nancy Moore and Fern Monast danced an Irish step dance to the tune of "Irish Washwoman."

Last on the programme was an amusing play entitled "Are We Dressing?" In the cast were Fern Monast, Gary Vloet, Thea VanDelst, Kenny Ferguson, Corrie Van Delst, Ernie MacMillan, Jo-anne Derks and Martin Derks.

Council holds special meet

Chesterville council members met for a special meeting Tuesday night. A number of loose ends of municipal business needed to be cleaned up.

Considerable discussion centred around a possible recommendation by Chesterville Public School board that a new building program should be examined. Nothing official has yet been received, but reeve Carl Merkley was asked to get in touch with the board. Council members expressed considerable interest in the possibilities of a new public school. The present building is sadly crowded.

Area planning board members were appointed to work with the township of Winchester and Winchester village representatives. They are Harold Sharkey, Blake Feeley and reeve Carl Merkley.

Nothing new has come to hand in the matter of high school progress and village representative James Sullivan was not able to report much progress.

The ambitious plans for renovations in Community Hall were carried a step further. It was decided to get Board of Health permission immediately and to call tenders for two sets of washrooms in the former projection room on the ground floor. Prices will also be secured on the cost of raising the floor of the theatre level with the present stage.

Liberal Women's Association meets in Chesterville hall

Mrs Lillian Allison, Chesterville, delegate from Eastern Ontario to the National Liberal Council at Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, reported highlights of the occasion to members of Grenville-Dundas Liberal Women's Association at the March meeting held in the library at Chesterville.

Lester B. Pearson, speaking at a banquet meeting to more than 700 persons said "The New Liberal Government is a team more concerned with getting things done for the country than with boasting. You must take a stand for to-morrow by your work for Liberalism to-day". He concluded, "We can win and we must bend every effort toward that end".

Lionel Chevrier, guest speaker at a luncheon meeting, presented a rousing address. At the opening assembly some 200 delegates were expected. Over 400 registered.

At an afternoon session, delegates grouped into four committees dealing with policy, organization, finance and constitution. Mrs Allison attended the meeting on "organization" which was conducted by Maurice Sauve.

At this regular monthly meeting of the Grenville-Dundas group, Mrs Edna Baker, president conducted the meeting, assisted by Mrs Jean McLean, secretary-treasurer. Plans for the annual turkey banquet to be held at Morrisburg Public School, May 2, were discussed. Miss Judy LaMarsh will be guest speaker.

A committee was appointed to finalize details for the banquet. A meeting will be held Saturday afternoon, April 7, at the home of Mrs Jean Notman, Morrisburg. Members of the committee are: Mrs Edna Baker, Mrs Jean Notman, Mrs Harry Peppers, Mrs Ed Brady, Mrs Lillian Allison and Mrs Norma Rooke.

Mrs Baker reported on a meeting of the executive of E.O.W. L.A. held at Mrs Allison's home at Chesterville, where plans were discussed relative to the annual conference to be held at Elgin on May 5.

The April meeting will be in Prescott at the home of the president, Mrs Baker. The June meeting will be a covered-dish supper at Mrs Allison's home, Chesterville. Enthusiastic plans are afoot for an interesting autumn program in co-operation with the Brockville group.

AT FINCH-

Parent-teacher group hold panel discussion

Last Wednesday evening an interesting panel discussion was held in Finch High School. Sponsored by the Parent-Teacher group of the district, panel members discussed the topic "When Do We Cheer Brains?"

Panel members felt not enough emphasis was being placed on the elemental three R's of learning. It seemed that the frills were getting too much attention. Some panel speakers deplored the seeming inability of many high school students to read intelligently. It was felt that this lack was compounded by the use of present - day entertainment media such as radio and TV.

Moderator was Andrew Egan, principal of Finch High School. Panel members were teachers Shultz, Ingleside; MacRae, Avonmore, and Billard, Finch. Other members were Elizabeth Marjerrison, Grade 13 student, and Keith Graham, editor of the Chesterville Record.

Charge pair in theft of auto near Finch

An early Sunday morning collision at Finch resulted in the recovery of a car, believed stolen at Montreal. Two Montreal men were arrested. Property damage amounted to $700, Ontario Provincial Police officers reported Monday morning.

Police said a car driven south through the village by Lyle McQuaig, 444 York street, Cornwall, was involved along with the 1962 model auto driven easterly on Highway 43.

The two men in the Montreal auto fled the scene after the accident but were apprehended by Provincial Cst. M. E. Schultz, of the Long Sault detachment.

They were held at Long Sault headquarters until Montreal Metropolitan police officers arrived to escort them back to Montreal Sunday afternoon.

Damage was estimated at $300 to the McQuaig car and $400 to the stolen vehicle.

Montreal police officers said the car was stolen about 3 p.m. Saturday from Leonard Kantor, of Montreal.

High School News

The main topics for discussion at the last Students' Council meeting were preparations for three forthcoming High School dances. Suggestions, all very good, were read to the Students' Council for a prom theme.

BY'S LINE TODAY

CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

We shortened our span a little more by contending with traffic in the Taranna district over the weekend. A jaunt to Niagara Falls in the early part of the day was a breeze. Our return was something else again. The weather up there is about three weeks ahead of here and on Sunday afternoon everybody took to the Queen E Way to feel the air. For miles we crept, speeded, crept and finally at St. Kitts, stopped and rested. It was almost like George the cat stalking the family squirrel. Except that we were only trying to get to a supper date in Hogtown. We arrived out of sorts with the traffic, the roadbuilders, and the unsettled feeling of driving too fast with too much speeding metal just ahead and immediately behind. Its simpler to slip down to Finch or up to Winchester.

We sat in several places of public renown during our short weekend. At some we were served strong waters guaranteed to take the blush off the rose and make the pot roast taste like filet mignon. At others we carried out our obligations to our clients with decorum and most unlikely restraint. At nearly every place our attention was rivetted, even held spellbound, by the latest phenomena in female hair styling. Without doubt, the ladies have reached the limit.

It seems the fashion now to become real basic. The young thing starts with a common enough female shape and molds, bleaches, tints and blends until something entirely different appears to her public. She is an uplifted example of the magic of stretchy rubber, she wears a simple black dress that is an ideal setting for lint and dandruff and her hair has become exactly the same as her friend's. It is a pale India ale in colour, bleached into a fine sisal fibre condition and looks like ordinary baling twine combed into an untidy mop. Then to keep the mop from washing out the features, the gal takes to the paint pots and comes up with more eyeshadow and false eyelashes than Cleopatra ever thought of.

There is such a sameness in the gals who teeter into public view at the fleshpots of Metro Toronto. We took a census on bleached heads in view on a trip down Yonge Street. In four blocks above King Street these old eyes spotted 17 blonde heads and they were only blonde by proxy. Of course as we looked for blonde bombs, we also missed two stop lights and nearly ran down a pedestrian at a crosswalk.

Here at the Castle, our niggardly attitude towards ladies' fashions is not exactly popular. We live in a female world and any mention of members of their sex must be tempered with care. Otherwise two women, one mature and the other more mature, and a cat with a careless regard of the values of the life of a virgin, are apt to send this Crumb into the west keep in total disgrace. We still hasten to assure our fathful readers that only in the outer reaches of insanity and Toronto, are to be found the bleached and bedizened gals we are talking about. Here in the wholesome land of milk and honey, complections are peaches and cream as originally issued. And the air is so sweet it will only take part of a week to get the reek of diesel fumes out of our systems.

OURS AND OTHERS

Need more milk for cheese

The fact that cheddar cheese is in substantial demand in Britain has allowed the cheese industry in this province to build up sales there. The immediate result, says the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder, has been to create a shortage in the cheese market, at least from the point of view of some of the people who produce milk for it.

The producers are saying their product—milk for cheese—would sell in a much greater volume if the home market for cheese could be built up to anything like the extent the British market has been. As things stand, the milk producers have a good case. They have a product which commands a premium 3,000 miles away and which is little known at home.

It would make sense, economically, if more milk went into cheese instead of into butter, which is being produced in quantities greatly in excess of demand at present. But there are several Ontario milk-producing counties without cheese factories, which cannot at present produce anything but butter at an economic level of cost.

The rather sad result is that the cheese industry isn't doing much about cultivating a taste for domestic cheddar cheese in Canada, while depending, in effect, on the British preference for cheddar cheese made from raw milk to support the market above the established floor price.

This is essentially an unrealistic approach, because the product is sold basically on the strength of its distinctive quality and flavour.

It won't develop a market here until it is made more generally available and becomes part of the customary pattern of food supply on our tables.

Opening door to abuses

Lip-service is still paid to the old maxim "a man's home is his castle." There is very little truth left in it. The right to privacy is one of the most precious of all liberties, yet bit by bit what is left of it is gnawed away by an increasing army of bureaucrats.

A Toronto lawyer, reports the Hamilton Spectator, told a panel of the Ontario Bar Association the other day that there were between forty and fifty statutes which allowed a variety of inspectors and officials to enter and search a private home.

Ignorance of the law is no defence, but how can the ordinary citizen keep abreast of every clause in every law and bylaw that might affect his right to privacy; His only defence is his instinct which tells him he has "rights" and this instinct can often prove false these days.

A bylaw enforcement officer asked York Township's general purposes committee to apply to the Ontario legislature for legislation to allow such officers to enter private homes to search for bylaw violations.

By a vote of 6-3 the committee refused. That the refusal was not unanimous may be an indication of how some elected representatives regard a citizen's rights to privacy in these times.

Some sympathy can be spared for a would-be official sleuth with difficult duties to perform, but to give him authority to enter a private home at will and carry out a search is to reduce the citizen to the level of an occupant of a barrack room.

York reeve Walter Saunders said such a practice would lead to dangerous Gestapo tactics. The allusion is overworked, but we know what he means, and we agree with him.

Productivity and wages

It is always refreshing and encouraging, states the Kingston Whig-Standard, to hear a spokesman for labour or management advocate a course which, if accepted by both factions, could break the vicious circle of higher wages and higher costs. Such a suggestion was made recently by Mr Donald Secord, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC).

Mr Secord's speech to an education council in London, Ont., was all the more remarkable because it included an admission that unions have approached the prblems of collective bargaining "fighting for all we could get" without regard for the economic position of either the employer or the country as a whole. Eventually, he forecast, unions will base their wage demands on the national growth in Canada's productivity, not on increases in output in individual industries.

Federal Government Report

By Mrs Jean Casselman, M.P.

Groundwork is being laid for Canada's 100th Birthday Celebration, five years hence. I have the honour and the pleasure to represent the Conservative Party on the Centennial Council and last Friday and Saturday this Council held its second Annual Meeting.

The 160 representatives who gathered at the Chateau Laurier Hotel were sometimes interested individuals, but more often represented large companies or groups of companies, or thousands of individuals. A charming vivacious little lady from the Maritimes, Mrs McLean, very ably represented the Women's Institutes of Canada, and reported on the ambitious plans that these ambitious ladies proposed to complete by 1967. Also, we had the well-known Labour Leader, Claude Jodouin, as usual representing Labour Groups in Canada, with much charm and conviviality. Likewise we had presidents of such long established and successful companies as E. B. Eddy, and on the other exereme, studious scholars following a very personal star. such as the recognition of Canadian heraldry and proper use of symbolism in statues and monuments.

Last year, this varied group of people, split themselves up into nine committees and produced the widest variety of opinions as to how to celebrate 1967. Everything from canoe trips from Atlantic to the Pacific and hiking and cycling trails, to new public buildings, and encouragement of Canadian literature and art.

This second meeting of the Council was encouraging in that discussion had crystalized many of these ideas and it was obvious that helpful recommendations would proceed and give direction to the enormous job of making 1967 a landmark in Canadian history.

The E. B. Eddy Company has taken the very practical steps of commissioning Crawley Films to make a general Canadian film which could be used across our country to stimulate interest in the Centennary and start municipalities and groups of people concentrating their efforts towards a 1967 result that would be worthy of pride.

I would highly recommend that municipalities in our two counties of Grenville and Dundas make some effort to see this film as soon as possible. It will be available through the Film Institute of Canada, about 50 copies in English and an adequate number in French, and I believe any Canadian seeing this broad picture of Canada, so well done in beautiful colour, would be stimulated to make considerable personal effort towards community and countryside success of our coming National Celebrations. So important is this Celebration considered to be that his Excellency Governor General Vanier and his lovely wife attended the preview of this Canadian film and graviously met each person attending the Centenary Council.

I am personally most enthusiastic about the improvements that can be made and the recognition that can come to Canada by a well-planned successful Centenary Year, and I hope that many in Grenville-Dundas feel likewise and that we will do our share in contributing.

Ontario Legislature Report

By Hon. F. M. Cass, Q.C.

Departmental estimates and Committee meetings continue to occupy the stage in the Ontario Legislature. Interspersed also are speeches on the Budget and consideration by the House of the ordinary business of enacting laws.

The Fish and Game, and Travel and Publicity Committees met on several days of the week with large, enthusiastic attendance of interested persons. These Committees meet during the period of the National Sportsmen's Show each year in Toronto and this enables many people to be present for pleasure and information at the show and for business at the Committee meetings. It also enables the Members to receive first hand the views of the people most vitally interested on the many such matters each year up for consideration by the House.

The Legal Bills Committee checked over the new legislation to establish Provincial Judges for Division Courts, to increase the jurisdiction of the County Courts and to enlarge the number of County Court Judges. It would seem that this new approach will help to catch up on the rather large backlog of county court actions awaiting a hearing, especially in Toronto, and in Ottawa and Eastern Ontario.

The estimates of the Departments of Mines and of Economics and Development were placed before the House and dealt with during the week. According to the annual report from the Department of Mines our province continues to lead in value of mineral production and, despite difficulties in the uranium mining areas, this industry appears to be developing on a sound and broad basis.

Discussion of the policies and programme of the new Department of Economics and Development was long, vociferous and heated. The Minister in his opening statement indicated several programmes for study and development had been initiated by the government. These included establishment of a central Committee drawn from all areas of industry, science and labour to study and suggest for government consideration new ways to stimulate our economy. Also by appropriate items in the Departmental estimates under the new programme an effort is to be made to provide subsidized low rental housing quickly and without the huge capital outlay now necessary for a low rental housing scheme, by encouraging re-development, repair and improvement to good standard, of existing housing.

It is quite clear from legislation and estimates so far presented to the House, that while the Robarts administration is proceeding slowly on the sound basis laid by the Frost administration, it is not afraid to depart from established theories and practices if a better and newer method s available.

KEEPS 40 CATS

Quentin Lapash, 39, complained to Chicago police that 40 spaghetti-eating cats kept by his wife, Red Feather, are making his life miserable.

A policeman who went to the five-room Lapash apartment said he lost count because the cats jumped around too much, and, besides, they all looked grey.

Lapash said his wife, a 42-year-old Blackfoot Indian whose name is, indeed, Red Feather, has a degree in animal husbandry from Purdue University.

The cats' feed bill was extremely high, Lapash said, although they recently were put on reduced rations of spaghetti.

"I like cats," Lapash, a factory worker, told policemen. "But I am tired of living with 40 of them." Police took no immediate action.

PRIMPING AREA

A private primp-up area in either the bathroom or bedroom is a feature that most women plan for their "dream" home.

A dressing table or vanity can be built from stock lumber and hoardboard and then covered with colourful panelling for an added decorative effect.

Hinged sides with mirrors or small pictures provide ample privacy. Drawers can be included underneath for storage. Line them with pieces of the plastic-surfaced hardboard to eleminate any snagging.

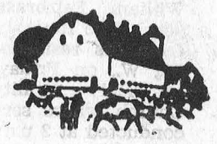
FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



By Lillian Allison

"Ricky is so scared to try anything new," his mother said. "He's not so frightened if there are other children with him but he won't ride the bus alone or try anything by himself."

And I said, "Aren't we all like that? I didn't sleep more than two hours the night before I visited New York alone and I'm a lot older than Ricky."

I remember that night well. If I hadn't had the ticket in my purse I'm afraid I'd have chickened out.

For years I'd wanted to see New York City. Pictures and stories about it simply fascinated me. I studied Ottawa-New York tours each Easter and Thanksgiving. Someday we'd go, I said. Then when I was to fly home from Daytona Beach at Christmas 1959 I had a real brainstorm. Why not stop over a day in New York? I could never do it for less money.

The lady at the travel agency figured out my schedule, got my plane tickets, hotel reservations and a guided tour of the city. My plane would arrive at the newark, N.J. airport about noon on Wednesday and leave Idlewild about noon on Friday. I hadn't a thing to worry about, she said.

That's what she said and I believed her until I went to bed the night before my departure. Then, like eight-year-old Ricky, I began to get scared of something new. How would I get from the Newark airport to a hotel on Manhatten Island? There'd probably be a limousine, I thought. But suppose I had trouble with the checked baggage and missed the limousine?

Then I'd tell myself that everything would work out all right. After all I had a tongue and could speak the language so I could ask my way around. But I had never checked in at a hotel before. Would I have problems there?

And the bus tour of the city? Would the bus pick up passengers at the hotel or would I have to find it somewhere in that great, big place?

The worries got bigger and bigger. They have a strange way of magnifying themselves in the dark in the middle of the night. I checked the luminous-faced clock. It was 2 a.m. Then I began to worry because I wasn't sleeping. With such a big day coming up tomorrow I'd be exhausted.

Suddenly I had an awful thought. My throat was sore. Surely I was imagining it. But I wasn't. It was really and truly sore. Suppose I had a cold in the morning. All those tickets and reservations and me sick with a cold! What would I do? Or suppose I got to New York and got sick? A perfect stranger among all those millions and sick!

Why did I get such ambitious ideas anyway? Why couldn't I fly home like anybody else without having to stop off at New York? 99 percent of the people I knew had never seen New York. Why did I have to see it?

Well somehow along about four o'clock I dropped off to sleep to dream of planes and hotel elevators. The alarm went off at six. My throat was better and while I was still scared I was glad I hadn't torn up the tickets during that awful night.

I thought of a friend who took a tour of Europe a few years ago all by herself. "I'd dreamed about it for years," she said. "I planned it for months but three days before I was to leave I'd have given ten years of my life if I hadn't had to go."

Yet we expect children to start to school alone, change schools in mid-term, travel alone on buses, go to camp, go to shop, go to hospital and be as brave as Richard the Lionheart. Of course some are. Strange situations seem never to ruffle them at all. Others can bluff their way through. Still others hid their fears behind masks of false bravado and bluster along while their hearts are pounding with fright.

But most, I imagine are scared to death. And believe me they have my sympathy. I feel sorry for little Ricky and the thousands of others who can't sleep at night and tremble in their shoes before facing a new situation, I still die a little at the thought of somethng strange and unknown.

CO-OP TAX ISSUE BLAZES HOT

When Harry L. Fowler, president of Federated Co-operatives, recently outlined co-op expansion programs, he poured a large drop of oil on an issue already ablaze in the West, writes J. K. Edmonds in The Financial Post.

On the books for the coming year are plans for 110 new projects involving expenditure of nearly $9.5 million within the three Prairie Provinces. Federated owns lumber mills, coal mines, an oil refinery, oil wells, feed mills, fertilizer plants, plus the warehouses and other facilities used in its distribution operations. The company is now seeking staff in order to add drugs to its wholesale lines.

Interprovincial Co-ops, which brings together the six regional wholesales in a national organization, also owns manufacturing and processing facilities, and this year plans construction of a $4 million agricultural chemic a l complex.

What's bothering businessmen in the West is not the expansion of co-operatives in itself; it's the conviction that the expansion is facilitated by methods of capital accumulation and tax avoidance not available to ordinary business firms. Possession of any tax advantage has always been stoutly denied by co-op officials who argue that: co-ops don't have profits, just "savings to members; co-ops don't compete with anyone, they merely exist to serve members; any firm can pay patronage dividends and thus reduce taxable income to a level equal to 3% of capital employment; any firm can borrow money from its shareholders.

PARTIAL BUDGET SYSTEM A HELP IN PLANNING

The system some farmers use to estimate their potential profits on paper is called partial budgeting. The Ontario Department of Agriculture has been conducting extensive courses with many Ontario farmers and instructing in partial budgeting methods during the last few years.

Agricultural representatives with the Department say the partial budgeting system involves estimating the profitability of any proposed change in the farm business. First, a farmer makes a list of all the extra costs of making a change. Then, he makes a list of all the extra returns that he could expect would result from the change. Finally, he subtracts the extra costs from the extra returns in order to estimate the profitability of this change.

These, in more detail, are the steps he follows:

2. Consider different changes that might increase the profits of your business, and pick the one that you think is most likely to be profitable.
3. Get a clear picture of how this proposed change will affect each of the parts of your business.
4. Make a list of all the additional costs of making this change in the business.
5. Make a list of all the additional returns that will result from it.
6. Subtract the added costs from the added returns in order to see whether or not it would be profitable to make the change —and how profitable.
7. Do the same thing for other promising changes and see what change would make you the most money.

Once a farmer has this guide, all he has to do is apply an idea he has in mind to it, to determine if it will be profitable.

DOOR-TO-DOOR SALES BOOM

Have you ever wondered what happened to the clerks when the corner market became a modern self-service store? Chances are they're selling door-to-door, says Jack Schreiner in The Financial Post.

Canada has more door-to-door salemen than ever. They're banking on personal service and on the convenience of home shopping to win dollars away from discount stores and other retail outlets. Good sales years are reported by all 12 members of the Direct Sellers' Association, a branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association representing manufacturers who distribute their products by direct sales. The 12 members have an estimated 25,000 salesmen.

Elma United C. Women holds March meetings

The March meeting of the Elma U.C.W. was held in the home of Mrs Donald Dillabough.. The president, Mrs Egerton Barkley, opened the meeting with the singing of hymn, "Breathe On Me, Breath of God," followed by prayer.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Sixteen members answered the roll call with a donation for the bazaar. The April meeting will be held in the home of Mrs Brookson, the roll call to be a thought or poem on "Easter."

It was moved by Mrs Melvin Dillabough, seconded by Mrs Ray Hummel that the Thankoffering envelopes be given at this meeting. It was decided that donations for the bazaar wold also be received.

Mrs Maurice Beckstead and Mrs Harold Feeley were in charge of the program. Mrs Beckstead opened the worship service with the hymn "When I Survey The Wonderous Cross" after which Mrs Feeley read the Scripture, Luke 9, verses 51 to 62. Mrs Maurice Beckstead, Mrs Harold Feeley, Mrs Arnold Barkley and Mrs Kenneth Beckstead took part in a skit entitled, "The Bible Speaks." The topic was introduced by the president and had to do with ideas and experiences in Bible Study.

A duet, "In the Shadow of the Cross," was sung by Mrs Bernice Barkley and Mrs Maurice Beckstead followed by prayer.

Mrs Beckstead introduced the guest speaker, Mrs Lyle Marcellus, who gave a very interesting and informative address on The United Church Women's Organization. A vote of thanks to Mrs Marcellus was given by Mrs Harold Feeley.

After thanking the program committee the president closed the meeting with the Bennidiction.

A very dainty lunch was served by the hostess who was assisted by Mrs Maurice Beckstead, Mrs Harold Feeley and Mrs Egerton Barkley and a vote of thanks given for her warm welcome and kind hospitality.

WHAT'S THE HOLLER ABOUT?

The pressure is still on, from some sources, to have Canada adopt a fixed exchange rate. What seems baffling to many Canadians, however, is why there should be such concern, comments The Financial Post. Germany, for example, was admired and applauded back in 1948 for having the courage to reduce sharply the external value of its currency, a key step in achieving its economic miracle.

Last month, the week before Canadian representatives met with International Monetary Fund officials to discuss our exchange rate policy, Israel with IMF approval, reduced the external value of its currency by 40%. Canada's small 10% reduction over the past two years, however, is heralded by some in IMF as a serious breach of international exchange discipline.

The postwar world was seen innumerable changes in exchange rates, many of them dramatic and some involving virtual disappearance of the currency. Yet through this period, Canada's dollar has moved almost sedately, in a relatively narrow range, even though it has floated free for a decade. It seems highly unlikely that the other IMF members can be seriously concerned about Canada's dollar, especially when there are excellent and well understood reasons for leaving it unpegged, and when there are so many much more pressing problems to remedy elsewhere.

SUPPLY OF SEED POTATOES SCARCE IN SOME AREAS

Commercial potato growers who require seed potatoes of high quality will be able to secure more adequate supplies within the Province this year, provided arrangements are made soon. At present, many seed growers are completely sold out, and popular varieties most in demand are becoming scarce in some areas.

More than two hundred acres met with seed potato field standards than in the previous year, but more seed potatoes are now required annually to plant potato acreage for table stock and processing. The use of Foundation and Certified seed is now a standard practice, as it has been proven beyond a doubt that "Good Seed Pays". This is an entirely different situation than a few years ago, when planting of nondescript, unlicensed varieties and infected seed was all too common.

A complete list of seed growers for 1962 is available without charge from offices of Agricultural Representatives in every County and District or from the Field Crops Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto. Information may also be obtained from Seed Potato Certification officials at Barrie, London, Guelph and Ottawa.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture will pay half the transportation costs on carload quantities from Northern Ontario. There is no charge for service of field inspection.

IMMIGRATION ISSUE MAY HEAT UP

Immigration threatens to become an even more controversial subject than usual during the next few years, writes Clive Baxter in The Financial Post. There are two important factors in the situation:

Immigration to Canada is down at a time when the country badly needs more of the kind of people who can help keep the economy growing; In its recent move to make our immigration regulations less racially restrictive, the government has imposed a new strain on the officials of the Immigration Department.

Early last year, many experts predicted the inflow might drop below 100,000 for the first time since 1950. But not even the most cautious estimated the actual 71,689 who came in 1961. This was the lowest total since 1947. Immigration officials now predict the inflow for the next few years will be about the same, perhaps slightly lower, unless — and this is a very big unless — the government's new regulations really do open the doors to a large number of colored and Asian immigrants.

A 95-pound housewife, hanging hooked rugs on a clothesline at her Shawnee, Kan., home was "nudged" the other day by a wandering goat.

Mrs Dale W. Hanchett was so startled she dropped the rugs.

"There we were—all tangled up together," she said. "His horns got caught in the rugs, and we both struggled to get free."

The tangle was unsnarled, then "he booted me one," she said. "I said 'go away' and he booted me again." Both times she was knocked down.

She ran for the back door but the goat blocked the way and Mrs Hanchett hit the deck again.

She fled to a neighbour's house and called for police, who hauled away the beast, whose owner is unknown. Asked why the goat played tag with her, Mrs Hanchett said in good humour:

"He just liked me, I guess."

Surveys of high school driver-education courses repeatedly show that graduates have substantially fewer accidents and convictions than fellow students who did not take the course. The Ontario Safety League quotes this from a recent story "Record":

K-W Collegiate was the first school in Canada to introduce driver-training. That was in 1948. Since then an estimated 2,500 students have graduated from the program.

Of these, Crown Attorney Daufman says he has never encountered one in traffic court. "Of course, I am not involced in all traffic cases and there may have been a few appear, but they are so rare it is truly remarkable".

More than 93 per cent of Canadian babies now are born in hospitals.

WORKED FOR TASS, SAYS SOVIET AIMS OUR AIMS

The Soviet government wants for its people exactly the things we want for our people-washing machines, furniture, cars, clothes, peace and security — Michael Barkway writes in the current MacLean's.

Barkway recently was asked by Tass, the official Soviet news agency, to give Russians a Canadian view of the Communists' Third Program, the official blueprint for Soviet economic policy in the next twenty years. ("For the first time in my life, I accepted Communist gold. Or, to be more precise. I demanded it.")

"The astonishing thing," he writes, "is that the brave new world of the Communists' Third Program is much the same as the kind or ideal world we sometimes dream about — For the first time the Communist government is promising to devote the country's resources to consumer needs."

The Program states that it is essential to lighten the domestic work of women and to provide good shopping facilities. "Shorter hours, better welfare services, more doctors and hospitals, higher old-age pensions and homes for old people: all the election planks of a Canadian political party are there — The chapter on defence takes only two of the 120 pages."

Barkway warns that unless we recognize what is happening in the Soviet Union today and quit judging her by the standards of the Stalinest era, the largely imaginary dangers of the Cold War will become real and "will take on flesh and assail our children."

CANADIAN FOUGHT SECRET WAR AGAINST V-2 ROCKETS

The man chiefly responsible for the destruction of German V-2 rockets before they could destroy England now lives in the Caledon Hills of Southern Ontario and heads a British-owned aerial survey firm in Toronto.

He is Douglas Kendall. His chief antagonist is the secret war of 1943-44 was a man he's never met, Wernher von Braun, now head of the U.S. space program, but then chief engineer for German V-2 development.

"Von Braun planned to terrorize Britain with nonstop bombardment by 3,000-mph missiles against which there could be no defense," Terence Robertson writes in the current MacLean's "Kendall, as head of the Allied Central Photographic Interpretation Unit in England, had to uncover the nature of von Braun's work in time to minimize the threat."

Using lightly armored, high-flying Spitfires, Kendall's pilots made 4,000 flights, many of them over highly secret V-2 experimental base at Peenemunde on the German Baltic coast. Nearly 2,000,000 photographs were taken and analyzed by U.S. interpreters.

By the summer of 1943, von Braun felt he was ready. He got production priority from Hitler," "who worked himself into a state of almost hysterical enthusiasm, demanding bigger rockets." "What I want is annihilation — effect," he shouted. Hitler hoped to be firing ten rockets an hour on London by January, 1944.

But in the summer of '43 with photographs and scale models of the V-2, Kendall convinced the British cabinet is should order the most concentrated and devastating air raid of the war on Peenemunde. The intention was to kill hundreds of sleeping scientists and thereby destroy the enemy's technical know-how.

On August 17, 1943, the bombers hit Peenemunde. The toll: 735 killed, including 190 technicians and two key V-2 designers. When the V-2 attack finally came, it was ineffectual.

A new winter barley will soon be available to growers in Ontario. It has been tested during the past three years and has been found to be over half-again as strong in the straw as Hudson and has outyielded it by almost 10 bushels per acre. This variety will be called Dover and is the result of a cross between Wong and Kenate varieties, both of which have been grown to a limited extent in Haldimand. It is two to three inches shorter in the straw than Hudson, two days earlier in maturity and carried 1.3 per cent mildew as compared with Hudson's 7.2. It also has slightly more winter hardiness than Hudson. Its one drawback is that it has rough awn. No seed will be available this coming fall but there should be limited supplies for seeding in the fall of 1963.

Pregnant cows need lots of exercise, says Ted Needham, Ontario Agricultural College livestock researcher. Start now by putting feed bunks and hay racks at the far end of the paddock; they'll get exercise by walking back and forth. Another way, if the snow isn't too deep, is to allow them access to the fields for an hour or so.

QUALITY OF SILAGE GUIDE FOR PLANTING

"When you're feeding corn silage this winter look closely at the kernels moldiness, color, and odor," suggests Dr. Stan Young, Ontario Department of Agriculture field crops worker. "What you see should influence this spring's corn plans."

"Good corn silage has a lot of kernel in it," says Dr. Young. "A few kernels of this kind will pass through your cattle but this is nothing to worry about — it just indicates that your silage was made right."

"It means your corn was fairly mature when harvested. It means you got at least 90% of the dry matter you cold have got from the field."

His reasoning: a cow eating 30 pounds of well-eared silage, eats 3 pounds of kernels (about 6,000 kernels). If you count the number that passed through with the manure you can see it's only a very small part of that 3 pounds. Another thing to look for is the amount of dent in the kernels. Good silage contains kernels that are fully dented and not soft or mushy. Moldy corn silage indicates that the silage wasn't compacted enough after ensiling, says Dr. Young.

"Often this means that the corn was left to freeze before ensiling; or maybe the corn wasn't chopped finely enough. If your corn frosted before you filled your silo this year, use an earlier hybrid next year."

The best corn silage is bright corn silage means it was too wet when it was ensiled. A disagreeable odor is another indication that corn was ensiled when too wet. His suggestion: either start planting earlier, or use an earlier hybrid next year.

CHECK YOUR DRAINAGE SYSTEM IN EARLY SPRING

Broken tiles, clogged drains, and plugged drains could cause a lot of back-flooding in the next few weeks. That's why it is drainage system be in top-notch working order. "Getting rid of spring thaw quickly and efficiently could save you 1 to 2 weeks delay in planting spring crops," says Ross Irwin of the Engineering Science Department of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Take a look at the main outlet. It's the important link in your drainage system; all excess water leaves your farm this way. Replace any broken outlet tiles, making sure the way is clear for that spring thaw.

If you have a catch basin, check it for silt, dead branches and tree roots. Water boils-up at catch basins can cause flooding. Watch for pieces of broken tile washed into the basin; they usually mean trouble farther up the line.

While you're going over the fields, keep an eye out for sunken spots in the ground. These wash-ins over tile lines mean broken tile. The result is a useless line filled with mud and silt. The best way to prevent a line plugging from wash-ins, is to dig down and replace the broken tile with a new one.

Jot down the position of all long-lasting wet spots. These could be trouble signs that might need checking next fall.

FEEDING HENS

The average hen consumes about four pounds of limestone per year to get the necessary calcium she needs, say poultry specialists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

If limestone is supplied in the mash, at least 2% of the total ration should be mineral. If not enough calcium is fed, soft egg shells will occur.

RECREATION ASSOCIATION FORMED AT INGLESIDE

Supervised children's playgrounds for this community were among plans considered at the initial meeting of the Ingleside and District Recreation Association.

A slate of officers were elected to lead the proposed year-round recereation program.

Clifford Lazenby was elected chairman, Jack Grant, first vice-chairman; Wayne Gallinger, second vice-chairman; and Eric Rice, secretary-treasurer.

Chairman of various activities are as follows: Ted Brownlee, hockey; Clifford Castle, tennis; Wayne Froats, softball; senior citizens, David Ransom; Bert Charles, arts and crafts; Mrs Claude Hawley, swimming; Donald Adams, hunting and fishing; Ted Brownlee, athletics and playgrounds; and Francis Froats, winter sports.

The aims of the association are to promote forms of recreation which are now non-existant, and if requested, to assist organizations which are already formed.

Supervised children's playgrounds are expected to be in operation this summer and tentative plans have been suggested for three natural ice rinks for next winter.

The association is already planning the formation of a horticultural society with the assistance of Bert Charles; a photographic club under the guidance of Eric Rice; and a fish and game club with the advice of Donald Adams.

POWDER POST BEETLES

The first evidence of powder post beetle injury may be the appearance of small exit holes (pin size) where the beetles have emerged from the surface of the wood. Also, you may see sawdust, like droppings from the tunnels made by the larvae as they burrow in the wood.

R. H. Ozburn suggests you firmly rub timber in barns which show such indications; underneath the surface may be a spongy network of rotted wood. If beetle signs show up, write your Agricultural Representative for publication 140, "Powder Post Beetles." It tells how to control the pests.

SOLVE MYSTERY

More x-rays were ordered—this time without clothing—and the mystery was solved.

The clip was in Trafford's new pyjamas.

"SICK" DRIVING

Over-confidence is one of the most common driving failings, says the Ontario Safety League. Many drivers have an inflated belief in their ability to handle a car correctly. But far more show over-confidence by trusting blindly in the reliability of other drivers.

When driving, it is natural to assume that other cars are operated by competent people, behaving rationally. But this is not always so. The car in the next lane may have a drunk, or a drug-demented man at the wheel. Or a man made reckless by anger or anxiety. Or an inexperienced driver whose nerve has just been shattered by a near-miss, or an aggressive horn blast.

Again, the other driver, whose safety is linked to yours, may be sick. He may be physically unwell; lots of people who do not feel fit enough to work consider they are quite capable of driving a car. Or he may be mentally ill.

It is estimated that one person in 20 has some serious mental or nervous disorder. This is a frightening index — particularly when translated into the number of dangerously disturbed people there must be driving cars along the streets you use. Is it any wonder that some of the seem incomprehensible?

The Ontario Safety League urges motorists to "drive defensively" at all times. Try to keep an extra margin of safety to allow for the effects of unpredictable driving by others. Keep plenty of stopping distance from the car ahead, and keep a swerving space to one side whenever possible.

And try to keep calm if you are threatened, or inconvenienced by an act of wild or discourteous driving. The other driver may be sick. Losing your temper can do nothing but worsen the situation.

Ernest M. Arbuthnot

Ernest M. Arbuthnot died at his home at Morewood on March 15. He was in his 83rd year.

Mr Arbuthnot was the son of the late Mr and Mrs William Arbuthnot. In 1906 he married the former Berthan Ann Mclean. To the union were born four children who survive: Cecil and Don, Russell; Russell, of Inkerman, and Mrs Graham Durant (Grace), Chesterville. There are 10 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held in Morewood Presbyterian Church on March 18, where service was conducted by the Rev A. D. Sutherland. Interment followed in the adjoining Presbyterian Cemetery.

holds meeting at Winters home

On March 17th the Grantley Hi-C meeting was held at the home of Mr and Mrs Albert Winters, with fifteen mebers and one visitor present.

The president, Robert Tripp, opened the meeting with prayer, the secretary read the minutes of the last meeting. It was decided that the next meeting be postponed until April 6th.

The topic "Belief In God Makes A Difference" was discussed, followed by a quiz on "What Do I Believe?" which was answered by everyone. References to these questions were found in the Bible. Rev. Rajotte summarized the theme.

The worship service was opened by Mrs Wilburn Robinson, our counsellor, with the reading of the 23rd psalm, "Faith Of Our Fathers" was sung, accompanied by Lois Robinson. The offering was taken by Norman Tripp and psalm 27 was read by Doris Tripp followed by the hymn "Tell Me the Stories Of Jesus," accompanied by Margaret McMillan. Psalm 42 was read by Donna Tripp.

The meeting was closed with a prayer by Rev. Rajotte. In the recreational period a few games were enjoyed by all.

The male indigo bird, a type of finch, has a plumage of rich, metallic blue in summer, while the female is brown.

The death occurred this past Sunday of a well-known farmer of the district. William Bennett Hamilton passed away after an illness of a number of years. He was 69.

Mr Hamilton was the son of the late Wm. Hamilton and the late Debra Barrington. In 1930, at Russell, he married the former Muriel York, who survives her husband. Mr Hamilton was a member of Triinty United Church, and a 50-year member of Chesterville I.O.O.F. Lodge, No. 288. His lodge brothers offered their service on Monday night at the residence.

Funeral services were held at the residence on Tuesday, March 20, with the Rev E. B. Bugden officiating. Interment followed in Maple Ridge Cemetery.

MUST BE GOOD

H. C. Radke and his wife, Helen, couldn't agree on whether his abstract oil paintings should be hung in rooms in their Estes Park, Colo., motel.

Mrs Radke bowed to his suggestion. She hung one painting in one room to see if there was any reaction from the guests.

MORTGAGE LOANS 'PACKAGED

Operation "Plug the Gap" has swung into a new stage in the Canadian mortgage market, reports The Financial Post. Two companies announced plans to offer one mortgage (in effect a first and second combined) for up to 80% of appraised value and repayable over 20 years. Both plans would have minimum penalties for repayment in full before maturity. Both companies want to provide mortgage money not now being provided by major lending institutions and the federal government due to legal restrictions.

Russia is the world's biggest horsemeat producer, processing 430 million pounds in 1959; the high point was 463 million in 1956. France ranks second with an output of 229 million pounds.

Soviet leaders urge people to eat horsemeat, thus providing a market for the excess draft animals and speeding mechanization of the country at the same time. Present horse population stands at eleven million.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

New translations by the British and Foreign Bible Society recently completed and issued are two new Bibles in Teso and Sukanna; the Gospel of Mark in Bawm and the Gospel of Luke in Kobie.

Teso, a language of the Nilo-Hamitic group, is spoken by half a million people living on the north-eastern shores of Lake Kyoga, East Uganda. Sukanna is spoken by almost a million people living around the Southern shores of Lake Victoria in Tanganyika. The Wasakunna tribe is the largest in Tanganyika and the second largest in Africa.

Bawm is spoken by about 7,000 people in the Chittogong Hill Tracts District of east Pakistan and a further 1,000 South of Lungleh in South Lushai Hills of Assam.

Kubie is spoken by 300,000 people in Togoland and on the borders of Dahomcy and Ghana.

The Christian communities in these places total about 80,000 souls. All these areas are in the first stages of political and economic development.

Literacy is increasing rapidly. Having the Bible in the language of the people is of exceptional importance at this stage of their development.

Department of Transport statistics show that, in rural areas, 8.8% of the drivers involved in accidents in 1961 were classified as "Had Been Drinking", although not chargeable as being impaired. In urban areas, however, the HBD group was 4.4%. There may be many factors to explain why the rate is twice as high in rural areas, says the Ontario Safety League. One of the obvious inferences is that the risk from a moderate consumption of alcohol increases sharply in the higher-speed conditions outside urban areas.

TEACHING ROBOTS MAY REVOLUTIONIZE EDUCATION

Teaching machines or electronic tutors are already being used successfully in elemenary schools and universities in Canada and the U.S., and will cause the next big revolution in North American education, Sidney Katz says in the current Maclean's.

Katz predicts the machines will bring about drastic changes in teacher training, the grade system, even in the design of our schools.

"For the past four or five years, almost unknown to the public, experimental work with teaching machines has been forging ahead," he writes. "About 6,000 Canadian children have already been exposed to the method. Arithmetic, English grammer, spelling and reading skill are being machine-taught to elemntary school children in Toronto and Montreal. High school students are receiving automatic instruction in algebra."

The machines dole out bits of information and questions in a logical sequence and ensure that the student has mastered one step before he advances to the next. They demand, and get, attention. They adapt themselves to each student's pace, "reward" him by immediately confirming his correct answers, and foil cheaters.

They are "infinitely patient" and, everywhere they've been tried, children seem to like them, sometimes more than their human teachers.

Despite the machines' startling early successes, some teachers and educators are skeptical, if not frankly opposed to the machines. They feel the robots will either replace teachers or reduce them to machines, that the machines don't teach values and in the long run, do destroy intellectual curiosity. One historian has predicted that automatic instruction if adopted universally, will wreck Western civilization.

But other educators claim the machines will liberate the best teachers from "white-collar ditch-digging" — drilling children in basic information. "A person shouldn't be caught dead doing what a machine can do better," says A. L. Cartier, a Langley, B.C., teacher. "With the time saved by machines, the teachers will be able to do the creative, inspirational jobs that only a human teacher can do."

C. C. N. R. TO BEGIN NEW SET-UP APRIL 1st

Over 300 Canadian newspaper publishers (daily and weekly) have joined together to provide advertisers and agencies with a more econimical and convenient method of placing advertising in their medium.

With the formation of Canadian Community Newspapers Representatives, advertisers or agencies may place from one to several hundred ads across Canada with one order, and make payment for all the ads with one cheque.

The result of many months of study and careful planning by a special committee of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association and by member publishers of Class 'A' Newspapers, who have provided national sales representation for a group of weekly newspapers since 1928, and from 1955 for daily newspapers, passed a resolution in February to support and assist in the formation of the new organization. The 64 member papers of Class 'A', in addition to the C. W. N. A. member papers that have signed contracts, brought the initial number to be represented to C.C.N.R. to over 320.

Negotiations are presently underway with the B.C. Ad Bureau, ad reps for over 30 weekly papers in British Columbia, and French language newspapers, which include members of C.W.-N.A., Les Hebdos and the Key French Weeklies.

George M. Tatham, publisher of the Listowel (Ont.) Banner, and chairman of the provisional board of C.C.N.R., has announced the appointment of A. J. (Pete) Esling as general manager of the new organization. Mr Esling is well known in public relations circles as former P. R. director of Goodyear, and for the past two years as independent P. R. counsel.

The present sales and office staff of Class A" will move over to C. C. N. R. and arrangements will be made with employees of other groups contemplating membership.

Advertising agencies wishing to use the new system will issue one insertion order covering a specific ad or series of ads to C.C.N.R. will in turn make up the individual insertion orders and pass them on to the newspapers selected. Member papers will sign a non-cancellable commitment to cover their national advertising rate for a one year period and will provide three copies of each issue to their newspaper. This will enable C.C.N.R. to check insertions and bill the agencies expeditiously. On receipt of proof of insertion and a single invoice, the agencies will issue one cheque to C.C.N.R. who will make payment to individual newspapers involved.

WHITE SCOURS IN SWINE CAN BE A MAJOR PROBLEM

Veterinarians in Ontario report that infectious white scours presents one of the major problems in the nursing litter.

Anything that lowers the resistance of very young pigs may increase their susceptibility to white scours. Anemia, vitamin A deficiency, cold, draughty quarters may contribute to the development of the disease. Once the infection occurs in one litter it may be spread to neighboring litters on the feet of the owner or by direct contact if the pigs are allowed to come to a communal creep.

The main sign of the disease is a whitish or creamy diarrhea. The pigs rapidly lose condition and become very rough in appearance.

Dr. Howard Neely of the Ontario Veterinary College reports that prevention of the disease consists of keeping the pigs' resistance at the highest possible level. Do this by preventing anemia, feeding balanced rations to the sows and providing good warm, dry farrowing and nursing quarters.

If the disease occurs a special effort should be made to isolate the infected litter. The infection may cause serious losses, consequently a veterinarian should be consulted and treatment started at the earliest possible time. Cleaning and disinfecting the farrowing pens between farrowing is important. If this procedure is not carried out the infection may become seeded down in the pen and affect subsequent litters.

NEW DRUG TO AID EYES

A virus that erodes the window glass of the eye has been beaten by a new drug treatment that holds promise against other virus infections.

The virus is herpes simplex, the same villain that causes cold sores. It is responsible for most operations on the cornea of the eye, Dr Herbert E. Kaufman, University of Florida ophthamologist, told a New York press conference.

The drug is 5-iodo-2-deo-xyuridine, or IDU for short. Dr Kaufman and his co-workers applied it in drops to infected eyes and in most cases got remarkable results in a day or so, healing in three days.

In a first group of 46 cases since treatment was begun two months ago, there have been dramatic results, Dr Kaufman said.

HOW TO BUY MEAT AND POULTRY

MANY OF US HAVE had a certain uneasiness about meat recently. We want to be absolutely certain the meat we purchase comes from healthy animals. The March Bulletin of the Consumers Association has good rules to follow when you buy meat and poultry. I will give you this information in two parts.

Buying Meat

Today consumers rarely have the guidance and advice of experienced butchers. When choosing meat, you have to rely on your own knowledge and judgment. Therefore be sure you know exactly what inspection and grading of meat and poultry mean. Also, be sure you understand the stamps and grading marks.

This buying guide may help to dispel some of the confusion concerning the inspection of meat and poultry and the grading of meat and poultry. They do not necessarily go together.

To buy wisely—

1. Buy only Federal Government inspected meat and poultry. These are wholesome, free from disease and guaranteed fit for human consumption.
2. For quality, buy by grade. Know the characteristics and prices of the meat and poultry in each grade. Buy the grade and cut which suit your taste and your purse. Take into consideration how you are intending to cook your purchase.

MEAT

Inspection: The inspection of meat concerns the health of animals before and after slaughtering. When a veterinary inspector of the Health of Animals Division of the Federal Department of Agriculture is assured that the meat is free from disease and wholesome, he stamps it with the inspection mark: CANADA APPROVED. This is a circular brown stamp (edible dyes are used for grade marks and stamps). On a carcass, the stamp includes a number indicating the packing house where the meat was inspected.

All meat for interprovincial, foreign or import trade must be health-inspected in this way. However, packing plants operating within a province may also apply for and have Federal Government inspection of their meat, if they meet all requirements.

Grading: Meat is graded for conformation which is the proportion of meat to bone; amount, quality and colour of fat; firmness, texture and colour of meat; condition and maturity of bones; proportion and distribution of fat in the meat, known as marbling, although too much fat is undesirable, proper marbling adds to tenderness and flavour.

Only meat which has passed Federal health inspection may be government-graded.

Beef is the only meat which as yet may be generally purchased by grade. Most beef of Choice (Red) and Good (Blue) grades, and a small per cent of Standard (Brown) and Commercial grades is graded and ribbon-branded.

Grading is done by Federal Department of Agriculture Livestock graders. The grade name is included in the ribbon brand which runs the full length of the carcass, so that a setcion should appear on each retail cut. Grading is not compulsory, except in British Columbia in the greater Vancouver area. A bill for compulsory grading has had a first reading in the Province of Saskatchewan.

Note: Some beef which has not been federally inspected is graded and labelled Red Brand by some packing houses operating only within provincial boundaries. The red ribbon-like marking used by these firms cannot include the words Canada Choice. Do not confuse this with the federally inspected Red Brand.

In some communities "Canada Approved" meat may not be available. Find out if the meat sold in your retail store has received any inspection. If it has, were the animals inspected before and after slaughter by qualified veterinarians? Were the internal organs and glands inspected after slaughter? Is the slaughter house regularly inspected for sanitary conditions? If the meat is not inspected in this way, report to your Municipal Health Officer. Write to your Provincial and Federal Members of Parliament and report the need for government inspection under the Federal Meat Inspection Act and Rgulations.

For fuller information on meat (inspection, grading, how to buy and how to cook), buy the excellent book "MEAT", prepared by the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture. Write to the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, for publication No. 971. Price: 50c.

IN MEMORIAM

MOLES—In loving memory of my dear son, Laurence Moles, who passed away March 22, 1962.

One year has passed since
One I loved was called away.
God took you, oh, so quickly,
And we were all in gloom thrust.
Wonderful memories woven in gold,
This is the picture I tenderly hold.

Lovingly remembered by Mother.

Benjamin H. Baker

Funeral services for Benjamin Henry Baker, a Newington native, were held in Kindersley, Sask., United Church with burial in Kindersley Cemetery.

Benjamin H. Baker was the eldest son of the late John H. Baker and his wife, Lois Morgan, both of pioneer United Empire Loyalist families of Osnabruck. After graduation from S.S. 20, Osnabruck, and Cornwall High and Model Schools, he taught for several years in Osnabruck schools.

In 1905 he went to the Eyebrow District of Saskatchewan to homestead and teach until 1909. He then moved to Kindersley where there was then no station. The train crew dumped a bed comforter containing his effects into a snowbank near Kindersley. He retrieved them next day and proceeded to the Craiglands District, then called Sunshine Valley, for homestead duties.

In 1911 he returned East to marry Margaret Boal, daughter of the late Mr and Mrs James Boal, Cornwall, before he returned to Craiglands. He helped organize the first school in that district and remained secretary-treasurer for 22 years.

In 1956 he retired from farming and moved to Kindersley.

He is survived by his wife; four sons, Ralph and Allan of Flaxcombe, Sask., Ross, of Winnipeg, and James, an exchange science teacher in Singapore; three daughters, Mrs George Henry (Lois), of Buffalo, Mrs Milton Robertson (Evelyn), of Calgary, and Mrs Bill Wildman (Mary), of Flaxcombe.

There are also 18 grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs Lewis Duff and Eva A. Baker, and a brother, George B. Baker, of Newington, Ont.

Keenly interested in sports, Mr Baker played on the football and lacrosse teams of Cornwall High School and in Stormont County League before moving to Saskatchewan.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs Mary Seymour, Cornwall Island, and the groom is the son of Mr and Mrs Wendell Henry, of Berwick, Ont.

Given in marriage by her uncle, John Seymour, the bride chose a gown of peau de soie. The fitted bodice was fashioned with long sleeves that ended at her wrists and featured a scoop neckline. The full skirt was styled with a chapel train. Her veil of tulle illusion was gathered to a crown of seed pearls and matching peau de soie and she carried a bouquet of white roses.
