CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

Spent the other evening watching the village crew removing snow. With the aid of a snuffling bulldozer, the heaps of dirty grey stuff were spirited away and dumped over the riverbank. Two truck drivers, the 'dozer operator and a clean-up man did the job without much fuss. And if they hadn't, the city fathers would have had to spend the night in the woodshed. Anymore, a bit of snow the size of a dinnerplate on the village streets sets up a chain reaction. In no time flat, the calls come in to get the stuff hauled away. Someone's pet customer just might get some snow in an overshoe. In spite of the fact the customer waded through a dooryard drift two feet deep to get to the street.

What with the public travelling on wheels and being offered self service in every form, it is almost natural that civic services follow suit. But it sometimes seems a mite out of order for the hollers to start before the storm really gets under way, and the snow is only as thick as a coat of paint. The village sends out the crews for snow removal and sends in the bill each June to pay for it. And every year the same screams are heard about the high cost of living; not too much is remembered of the demands for public service.

One of the least worries here at the Castle is that of snow removal. We come equipped with every accessory including a cheerful neighbour with a tractor and blade. He whips out the rig when the drifts get bothersome and quick as a cat, etc., has the stuff stacked back on the east forty. The driveway leading to the West Keep is the special province of S.C. She has the joy and pleasure of being on close terms with a snow shovel ever since the day years ago when it fell from our failing hands. She made the mistake of toddling over and picking the thing up. We made her an immediate Grand Knight of the snow shovel then and there. So as G.K.S.S., she now has a winter chore. We have stepped back into our more rightful role of directing when and where .

The cold weather and all it offers seems to pre-occupy the minds of the vitamin people. They are rushing nostrums right and left and in quantities to anyone who feels a sudden weakness of blood or more likely a hangover. Like the fox and the grapes, seductive appearances as described in print, don't necessarily describe a person after a few doses of Ironall Bust. The average person has a mineral deficiency. But it has to do with a lack of a gold mine in his yard or hard money in his pocket. And before the lack of money becomes acute through the purchase of foolish nostrums, go see a competent physician. He will probably tell you to eat less, drink less, and sleep more. He might also have a few words of wisdom about the utter foolishness of enriching two outfits: the vitamin manufacturers and the sewers.

The recent investigation into some smelly aspects of the dog and fox meat business sent the bard of Crumb Castle to the inspiration chamber. With a slight inclination of the helmet to Mr Service, we offer the following:

A bunch of the boys were hanging it up
In the Fox and Dog cold room;
And the lad who boned was happily stoned
And the meat was higher still.
When out of the night with a siren's wail
A Redcoat hove in view
And into the Ford went the trembling horde
With all their tickets marked: Jail.

High School News

The last afternoon of the 1961 school year was spent at the community hall, where the students held a Christmas party.

The students of Grade Thirteen held a mock trial and the accused was none other than the teaching staff. The audience enjoyed this thoroughly. A second item of the programme was a hill-billy dialogue presented by the cheerleading squad and an assistant from Grade Thirteen. Amid caroling, St. Nick arrived and gave out many lovely gifts. On this note the term closed.

The all too short holiday came to an end and the students of C.H.S. returned to their desks on January 3rd. Due to a change, not all of the grades ended up in their original home rooms. Their home room teachers were altered too. Mrs Lois Smith is teaching typing classes to Grades 10, 11 and 12. Mr Loblaw was introduced to the Grade Nine students to whom he will teach History. Mr De Roo now teaches Grade Nine French and Business Practice also Bookkeeping to Grades 11 and 12. Returning to school also meant the receiving of Christmas Exam results. To some their hard work had been very rewarding. To others — not enough hard work.

Wednesday night a window was accidentally left open in the Science lab. This proved the undoing of the frog who had lived in the aquarium since the beginning of the term. Miss Montcalm rushed up to the lab early in the morning to report that someone was getting a free shower in the room below when the pipes thawed out. The plumbers were called in and soon everything was ship-shape.

Friday afternoon, Miss Montcalm told us that one of our physical education periods would be spent at the skating rink. This announcement was welcomed with enthusiasm.

We were very happy to see Mrs Allison, our Home Economics teacher, had returned after her illness before Christmas.

Village council back to work for 1962 municipal employees rehired at inaugural

Chesterville council members were sworn into office last Wednesday morning and by evening had completed their first round of civic duties. Some expected increases had been dealt with in civic salaries and contracts. Most initial costs were estimated at the same rate as 1961.

Reeve Carl Merkley, councillors Harold Sharkey, Keith Graham, George Laflamme and James Fyke took the oath of office. They had been returned to the positions by acclamation last November.

Clerk-treasurer Lorne Marcellus, filling his role in three positions, town, hydro and water system, is to receive $3900 this year, an increase of $25 a month over last year. Councillors are to receive their usual $10 per meeting.

Money by-law No. 857 was passed authorizing the borrowing of up to $30,000 from the Bank of Nova Scotia if needed. The reeve and clerk were to do the necessary borrowing.

Colin Sizer was rehired as hydro maintenance man, and water system supervisor. His salary is $4160 a year.

The catch-all by-law of hiring next came into effect. Labelled by-law No. 856, it gathered in a fair catch. Police chief Leonard Shane was rehired at his regular rate of $3300 per year and $100 a month for the car; Wm. McPhail was recommended for the good work he has done over the year and offered $1500 a year. It was accepted. Fire chief John Hehir felt the pinch a bit at $20 a month allowance, and council raised it two to $22 a month and the same pay as firemen. Wm. Moore has proven an excellent choice as caretaker of the Community Hall grounds and building. He accepted the usual $50. a month.

Garbage collector Graham Heagle presented council with some interesting figures. He had broken down his costs of operation, and by his calculations was paying council for drawing the garbage. Members discussed that as an interesting municipal attitude, but in the end raised the fee to Mr Heagle $15 per month. He will receive $180 each month for his excellent service.

Sydney Morris was rehired at the retainer fee of $200 per year and a rate of $5 per hour while plowing snow.

Assessor Hosea Droppo was reappointed and the auditors are again to be Fraser and Otten of Toronto.

Erwin Merkley is to act as dog pound keeper and Lee Smith as sheep valuator. Ronald Lynch was reappointed to the public library board and reeve Carl Merkley will represent the town on the South Nation River Authority.

Community Centre Board members are reeve Carl Merkley and councillor Harold Sharkey.

Town affairs will fall to the lot of all council and the following members will form the special committees: police, fire and Community hall, George Laflamme and James Fyke; streets and bridges, Harold Sharkey and Keith Graham; welfare officer, reeve Carl Merkley.

Council is to meet first Thursday of each month.

Regular business of council included the passing of minutes and reading correspondence. The clerk noted he had on hand a number of booklets received from EMO at Cornwall through the local Safety Council. Entitled "11 Steps To Survival", they are available at the village office free of charge.

Considerable discussion centred around the improper use of firearms in the village. Attention of council had been called to persons using rifles within the corporation. This is illegal and must not be allowed to continue. It developed council intends to amend the special permits system of the village so the offence will not occur unknowingly.

Win. Twp. council holds inaugural meeting

The inaugural meeting of the Council of the Township of Winchester was held on the second day of January, 1962, in the Township Building. Reeve Cecil MacNabb, Deputy-Reeve C. H. Smith, and Councillors Garfield Baker, Willis Robinson and John Barrett were sworn into office.

By-law 1-62 was passed appointing the following municipal officers: road superintendant, Lorne Bell; clerk - treasurer, Glenn MacGregor; assesor, E. N. Holmes; tax collector, W. B. Carlyle; township solicitor, G. W. Gorrell; township auditors, Frazer and Otton; welfare officer, W. B. Caryle; township constable, Murray Dillabough; livestock valuer, Glenn MacGregor; school attendance officer, W. B. Caryle; appointment to the Federation of Agriculture, Garfield Baker; representative on the Nation River Authority, Cecil McNabb; poundkeepers, D. A. Dillabough, Alvin Davidson, H. W. Merkley, Pat Chambers, Don Hummell, Edgar Sumand Statistics Branch, ODA, on farm management lessons from DHIA records.

Following the banquet and presentations, the evening sessions brought a brief outline of the Resources for Tomorrow conference held recently in Montreal. Speaker was Grover Smith, of Bloomfield, president of the Ontario Soil and Crop Improvement Association.

Main address of the evening was by A. T. Davidson, newly-appointed director of the federal government Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act.

Mr Davidson explained that ARDA has the potential to be a

Eric Casselman wins McNish award

Four Eastern Ontario farmers were honoured Thursday at the Eastern Ontario Soil and Crop Improvement Association banquet at Kemptville Agricultural School.

Eric Casselman, of Chesterville, Hubert Avery, Brockville, Murray Galbraith, Renfrew, and Roger Pregent, Prescott County, were named as co-winners of the coveted H. H. McNish Memorial Award.

The award recognizes outstanding leadership in agriculture and is based on ability as a good farmer, leadership in assisting other farmers to improve their farming methods, and concern for and contribution to the general welfare of farmers in Eastern Ontario.

In previouus years the award has been given to one farmer out of 14 nominees submitted by the Soil and Crop Assiciations in the 1 counties in Eastern Ontario.

The four men have been nomnees over the past five years since the award was instituted, and the selection committee decided all should be honoured equally for their devotion to farming.

The William Ewing Trophy, presented annually to the farmer in Eastern Ontario with the best pastures in the provincial pasture competition was won by Clifford Stanley, of Glengarry County.

Sessions Thursday morning at the three-day conference dealt exclusively with soils and crops.

Topics covered were: Weed and Seed Committee report, C. C. Tennant, Grenville; Forage and Pasture Committee report, Hubert Avery, Brockville; Land Use Committee report, George Suffel, Mountain; Soil Testing, D. E. Logsdail, K.A.S.; Effective Use of Nitrogen on Pastures, K. E. Bragi, Cyanamid of Canada, Toronto; 1962 Field Crop Recommendations, Prof. W. E. Tossell, head, Field Husbandry Department, OAC.

More emphasis was placed at this year's conference on farm management, with the usual two-session night program replaced with an entire afternoon of talks and discussions.

K. E. Lantz, director of extension, ODA, gave an outline of the Ontario Farm Management program, and the Brant County Farm Management Program was described by Brant County agricultural representative D. M. Graham.

Three farmers, Alfred Beaudette, Cornwall, Ronald Heard, Elginburg, and Ralph Smith, of Lansdowne, with Stormont agricultural representative K. E. Best were members of a panel that discussed the topic: "Are Farm Business Management Programs Paying Off?"

Conclusion was that the programs are not only paying off, but are becoming increasingly necessary as more and more business principles are applied to farming.

Afternoon sessions concluded with an address by Dr H. L. Patterson, director, Farm Economics

Dundas Cty. Federation discusses school taxation

Should property owners pay school taxes or should the provincial government pay the total cost of education The justice of school tax on land has been discussed for years without any corrective action being taken. This matter was discussed at a recent meeting of the executive of Dundas County Federation of Agriculture, as a directive to a meeting being called by the provincial Federation to discuss the matter. The meeting will be held in Smiths Falls during the latter part of January. Basil Dawley is the representative.

The poultry producers' organization seems to have run into trouble in trying to decide just who is a poultry producer. One section insists that only persons with 5,000 or more birds, are producers, the other view being that the ordinary mixed farmer is a producer. The executive's viewpoint is that, unless all producers are included, the Dundas County of Federation will not support the poultry producers' scheme.

The secretary was asked to contact Dr. Wells, veterinary director-general of Canada, to ascertain the county's position in regard to its T.B. status.

A motion was passed congratulating Angus Smith on receiving the county Harris McNish Award for 1961, and Eric Casselman, who was a co-winner of the same award for Eastern Ontario.

OPINIONS . . .
OURS AND OTHERS

A pat on the back

No matter the season of the year, underprivileged and crippled children are in our midst. Day in and day out, the need is there to take some measure of care for those unfortunate ones who are not able to look after themselves.

Chesterville Rotary Club, in operation now for nearly 24 years, has always had the underpriviliged and crippled as its special interest. At the beginning of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, the club entered wholeheartedly into the Society's province-wide scheme of caring for those who could not care for themselves.

The local club works through a Crippled Children's committee, and during the course of a year does an immense amount of good work. Largely unknown, the work is a continuous thing and every case referred to the committee is immediately investigated and if help is warranted, it is freely given. In nearly every case, professional advice from Society nurses dictates the course the club takes in its help. Aided and fully supported by an understanding club membership, and helped immeasurably by a vast amount of free medical service from the medical profession, the local committee is able to make donated dollars go a long way.

Last Easter, at the conclusion of the Easter Seal Campaign, this small club of less than thirty members had raised over $2,000. According to long-time chairman Eric Casselman, it was the largest sum yet collected. Yet at this writing, the local kitty is nearly empty of funds. That is not to say the work will be neglected; the parent society in Toronto supports and pays for every worthwhile case, if local funds are not available. Each service club, sponsoring the seal campaigns, gets this help. In return, they send the head office a portion of the collections of each campaign, knowing it will be returned without question each time need arises.

Letters in the committee secretary's files have a common theme, after help has been given. In every case, the thanks is heartfelt and sincere. In other cases, the thanks is in a more tangible form. At the end of the summer the committee received a bequest of $300 from the late Mrs Sarah Lamadelaine, Crysler. It was her wish the money be used just as the society is using all the other monies it receives; the Chesterville club was most grateful.

The new campaign will not start for a couple of months. But the work never stops. Chesterville Rotary Club is to be congratulated on its efforts.

How are you fixed for meat?

A large smell has risen from the bushes. It would appear somebody has been playing fast and loose with Canada's food laws, and in the process, maybe gotten themselves into a mess.

We read and hear of some men in one of our close hamlets being held for questioning in the matter of improper meat handling. And up and down the street, we also hear the remark, "it's about time."

Farmers of the district have been selling fox, dog and cat meat for quite a while. All that the buyers asked was that the animal have its throat cut, and a reasonable amount of blood let, before it up and died. The business is as legitimate as going to church on Sunday.

When the shady lads took over, then things got a little less legal. From what we now read, there appears to have been a lively business in the area, in the disposal of animals for purposes other than dog and cat food. They seem to have been coming back on the market as meat for the table, regardless of the state of the animal when it was purchased.

We never could stand eating a roast of beef cut from a live steer.

It always seemed right and proper that the beef became beef by the hand of man and not through evil intent of a microbe or virus. From the laws of ancient Jewry down to the present day, the need for constant and vigilant care has been stressed over a nation's food supply. Health standards remain high and a nation's growth is not hindered by rampant disease. But let exploiters in to lower standards, let slip the health guards, and before one knows it, whole districts will feel the pinch of sickness and distress.

The RCMP is investigating the matter. Let's hope the culprits in the dirty meat business will be soon made pay for their tampering with Canada's food laws and a district's health.

A silent, unseen killer

There have been reports in the press recently of deaths from carbon monoxide. It is tragic, says the Smiths Falls Record-News, that lives are lost as a result of this silent, unseen killer. Carbon monoxide is an odorless, colourless gas produced by the incomplete burning of a fuel. Its victims most frequently are unsuspectig motorists, especially those who for one reason or another sit in a parked car with motor running.

The killer works by entering the lungs of its victims, cutting off the supply of oxygen necessary for the maintenance of life. Its work is most successful when it strikes in a stuffy, unventilated place, like a tightly closed car. In some cases carbon monoxide can kill within five minutes without advanced warning.

Even when death does not result, carbon monoxide can cause serious illness and even permanent brain damage. It is suspected that in many traffic accidents where drivers report they fell asleep or were drowsy they were actually suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Motorists are warned against starting cars in closed garages, against faulty exhaust systems, and against sitting in cars with windows tightly closed. This is one killer which can be defeated through adequate ventilation. If it is necessary to park with motor running, leave a window open; and if there is a feeling of drowsiness while driving, stop and get out into the fresh air. It is far better to be cold than dead.

Mrs John Fleming hostess to Crysler W.I.

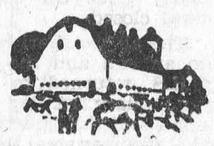
FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



By Lillian Allison

Probably you're not like the rest of us at all. Probably you're the eternal optimist who figures you got a satisfactory deal in life. You see the world through rose coloured glasses and spend most of your time on Cloud Nine as happy as the bird that sings. If so this column today isn't for you.

It's for those of us who, every so often, start feeling sorry for ourselves. We think life dealt us a rather poor hand. We wonder why we have to have all the bad luck, why we seem never to get a break, why we are never free of some annoying little ache or pain, why we can't make more money. Well it is for us who have our little downs along with our many ups that I want to relay a story by Gordon Sinclair that I read in the Toronto Star at Christmas time.

Now maybe the name of the man in the story will ring a familiar bell for you as it did for me. The man is Herb Gott. "Oh, I know him," I said to myself when I saw the name. He used to be on CBC radio every Saturday morning when I was making my Sunday pies. He did a half hour interview show called, oddly enough, "Who's Herb Gott?" So I read on.

Herb Gott is still doing his radio show in Toronto. For it he gets about $3,500. a year. He's a Canadian and 43 years of age. At the time the story was written he was looking for a place to live.

Now that part of the story was very commonplace. It was the next line that shook me. For 22 of his 43 years Herb Gott has had no arms. He lost them when as a young lad he went to sleep riding on a box car and fell off. The bruised arms had to be amputated so close to his shoulders that the artificial limb people have found it impossible to give him any assistance whatever.

So there he is at 43. Otherwise he is strong and healthy. He has a keen mind and a very fine voice which enable him to earn a modest living. But he is absolutely helpless.

Just think how helpless! He cannot dress or undress himself. He can't tie his shoe or comb his hair or brush his teeth. If the covers get down on a cold night he can't pull them up. His greatest fear is that of being left alone in a room because he could never get out by himself if the door is closed.

He walks nearly everywhere he goes. He can't hail a taxi. He can't ride the bus because he can't get out the money to pay his fare. When he pauses to explain there's a moment of hushed sympathy which he cannot endure.

Eating in restaurants is also next to impossible. Along with the problem of picking up the check Herb Gott must be fed. And what grown man could stand that humiliation in a public dining room?

He can't hold a newspaper to read it or turn the pages of a book or the knobs on the radio or TV. Occasionally he falls down. How does a man get up without arms? And he couldn't even brush the dirt off himself if he did.

Herb has been married twice. One wife is divorced and one separated. Both went into marriage knowing that they would have to put him to bed and get him up, dress, shave and feed him but Herb is neither surprised or bitter that it didn't work out.

When his story was written he needed a place to live. Then he was sharing a room with two men in their eighties — hardly company for an alert young man. If he could only get into a private home, he said. Not as charity for he could pay his way.

He agreed to let Gordon Sinclair tell his story but only on condition that it wouldn't be maudlin. He didn't want to be thought of as a whimperer. It's lonesome, he said, and he often wonders what people think but "I'm here, I can walk and talk and hear and see."

I'm so glad to report the happy ending to this tragic story which appeared in the Star the other day. Since his story was released Herb Gott has been guest on several radio and TV shows in addition to his own and has more appearances ahead. But best of all he is now living at the United Church Home in Toronto which is close to his CBC work. "It's posh, new and clean," he says. "just like living at the Westbury Hotel."

There it is — Herb Gott's story. And if at any time during 1962 we start to complain about the new clothes. the good cars, the ideal health and the other things we don't have I hope we shall remember Herb Gott. He hasn't any arms.

Would you kindly cancel next week's ad as we had so many buyers from this week's ad that the cattle are all sold. I guess you can safely say "It pays to advertise in the Record." Thank you.

Riverview Dairy Farm brings owner good income

Note: One of the delights in looking through old newspapers is to come across an item that seems to be of especial interest to the whole district. This story of Riverview Farm is most apt. The descriptions and statistics of dairying in the county in 1907 will be appreciated by many of our rural readers in 1962. The article was taken from another of the old papers found by Graham Durant in his house. It is a copy of the Ottawa Valley Journal, dated July 12, 1907.—Ed.

Close beside the quiet, still waters of the Nation river and lying partly within the limits of the corporation of the village of Chesterville in Dundas county, is Riverview dairy farm, the property of Wm. H. Casselman. There are some good farmers in Dundas county. Mr Casselman is one of the most successful tillers of the soil. Unfortunately or fortunately, Mr Casselman never attended an agricultural college, nevertheless, his well-tilled farm has been in the public eye for several years. Consequently it was with a certain amount of pride that the representative of the Ottawa Valley Journal called to see him the other day. The scribe was on one of his regular routes in quest of information which has made the Journal popular among people in the rural districts and especially agriculturists as a disseminator of farm news.

For agricultural purposes it would be a rather difficult matter to find a county better suited particularly for dairying than Dundas. There are about seventy-five cheese factories in the district, manufacturing annually about 11,000,000 pounds of cheese. The quantity of milk required to make this amount of cheese is contributed by less than 2,500 patrons, whose gross income from this product alone amounts to about $1,500,000. When it is taken into consideration that the estimated amount paid to patrons of factories throughout the province is less than $16,000,000, the amount paid to Dundas farmers is certainly remarkable. No other county in Eastern Ontario can boast of such a revenue from one avenue of agriculture. Carleton county gets less than $800,000; Glengarry about the same amount as Carleton; Prescott and Russell together less than Glengarry and Stormont comes in at about $700,000. All the more remarkable is this revenue from dairying obtained by Dundas, for less milch cows are kept to produce the milk than several of the other counties, which clearly proves beyond a doubt that the statement often published by the Journal that fewer and better cows are needed is only too true. In Dundas county today there are less than 30,000 milch cows whose milk is going to factories, while in Carleton county there are estimated to be over 37,000 milch cows and about 27,000 in Stormont.

Nor is all the milk produced in Dundas county sent to factories. A goodly share of it is sent to Montreal. To this great metropolis Mr Casselman has been sending the output of his dairy during the past thirteen years. With him dairying is a hobby. When the representative of the Ottawa Valley Journal called about two weeks ago, he found the milch cows, eighty in number, all under one roof. It was milking time. Mr Casselman, assisted by about ten farm hands, were at it. This extensive dairyman is not a gentleman farmer, although he could probably well afford to be. With his hired help he is to be found every day toiling faithfully. His hired help are housed on the farm. Where so much milking has to be done the policy is to engage men with their families. Work commences about five o'clock in the morning and ends at six o'clock in the evening, consequently this farmer has never experienced any difficulty in keeping sufficient efficient help to carry on the farm work. The hired men are engaged by the year and each one is provided with a free house, small plot of ground and what milk is required for household purposes.

On this well managed farm improved machinery takes the place as much as possible of manual labour. Everything is done as quickly but with as little labour as possible. The cow stable (for only one is used to house the eighty cows) is kept well ventilated and clean. This is very essential where so many animals have to be cared for and especially where the milk is being used for human consumption Quite near to the cow stable is the milk room, in which are a large separator and gasoline engine. Here the milk is separated shortly after it is drawn from the udders and the cream is hustled away to Montreal, where it is sold at a fancy figure. Thirteen years ago when Mr Casselman started into the dairy business he was the only farmer in Dundas county sending milk to Montreal. Probably at the present time there are more than one hundred farmers along the line of the C.P.R. carrying on the same business. No special breed of cattle is kept by Mr Casselman. The cows are all grade Holsteins, Ayrshires and Jerseys. He has always kept a pure bred bull at the head of the herd. For some years this animal has been a Holstein but Mr Casselman is seriously considering the advisability of purchasing a Jersey next. This would undoubtedly be a move in the right direction, resulting in an improvement in the quality of the milk. Mr Casselman aims to have his heifers drop their first calves when they are two years old.

To use up the milk produced in this large dairy a large number of hogs are necessarily kept. About one hundred and fifty are sold each year. Both Berkshires and Yorkshires are kept, but Mr Casselman prefers the latter breed because they are better mothers, have larger litters and the young pigs are not any harder to feed than the Berkshires. The pigs are marketed during the winter months and as a strictly bacon hog is aimed at, as a rule a little more than the average ruling market price is obtained. In some cases a pretty profitable margin is obtained. For instance, last winter one-half cent per pound more than the ruling price was paid Mr Casselman for his higs, not solely because they were of a strictly bacon type but partly because he had a large number to offer at once. For this year's lot of hogs Mr Casselman has growing twenty-two acres of barley, thirteen acres of corn and four acres of roots. The barley will be cut about the latter part of July, threshed and fed to the pigs until the corn is ready to pull.

Mr Casselman until recently used to purchase his meat from the local butcher, but two years ago decided to furnish his house with meat grown on the farm. Accordingly he killed a Yorkshire pig and smoked the meat as follows: He put a barrel with both ends out of it, over the pipe hold on an old stove, hung the meat in a barrel covered with linen, filled the stove with birch bark and started a fire. The meat was nice and sweet and Mr Casselman informed the Journal representative that this was one of the best ways for a farmer to smoke meat.

He next killed a Berkshire and cured the meat in the same way, but the meat was more gristly than the Yorkshire. Mr Casselman contends that Yirkshire bacon is much sweeter and better than Berkshire. Coming back to the dairy again, Mr Casselman informed the Ottawa Valley Journal man that the farm, consisting of about two hundred acres, produces all the food required to feed the live stock, about 100 head of cattle, 10 or 12 head of horses and 150 hogs. He has never been without plenty of hay during the past thirteen years. The secret of it all is that clover and ensilage corn is grown extensively and fed liberally with the result that one man in Dundas County has made a success of dairy farming.

New Ontario plan endorsed by high school teachers

The new Ontario plan for a three-stream education system consisting of academic, technical and commercial divisions, was given the endorsement of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation at the Federations annual assembly held in Hamilton recently.

Among the 250 delegates, representing 13,200 secondary school teachers across Ontario, was E. E. Forgues, District 27 public relations officer.

The assembly at the same time expressed its displeasure over the fact that the profession had not been consulted by the Department of Education prior to the announcement of the new plan last August.

It asked that no further changes be made by the government without consulting the profession, and that an official representative of OSSTF be permitted to sit on any Department committee contemplating further alteration.

The Federation's sentiments in this matter were underscored by the retiring president of the Federation, R. A. Cozens, of Delhi, in his presidential address. He deplored the apparent lack of co-operation in education matters between teachers on the one hand and government—at all levels on the other.

This tendency for each group "to proceed by itself rather than consult and work with the other for the common good," Mr Cozens said, could only have a regressive effect on education. He expressed concern also over the fact that ::too many teachers and trustees . . . feel they are on opposing sides waging a cold war."

While he could take some encouragement from the recent moves toward greater co-operation, he warned that "there is no room for a system that keeps the right hand in ignorance of the left."

D. Glenn Kilmer, vice-principal of Pauline Johnson Collegiate - Vocational School, Brantford, was elected president of the Federation for the coming year. Born in Saskatoon, and a graduate of Queen's University, Mr Kilmer taught in Norfolk County and Elgin County, was principal of Port Burwell Continuation School and vice-principal of Essex District High School, near Windsor, before assuming his post in Brantford in 1955.

Margaret A. Robinson, Toronto, was elected first vice-president; David Younger, Sudbury, second vice-president, and Thos. W. Latta, London, third vice-president. O. A. Gilmore, Burlington, continues as treasurer.

The Federation recommended substantially increased allowances for exchange teachers to Ontario from the United Kingdom, in order to reduce the financial hardship now felt by U.K. teachers due to the difference in cost of living between the two countries.

Under the plan put forward, allowances for U.K. teachers in Ontario would be increased by $1,500. The U.K. teacher now gets approximately $1,000 additional from the British Ministry of Education and $250 from the salary of the Ontario teacher who is his exchange opposite number. The Federation voted to increase this latter figure to $750 and to recommend to the Ontario Department of Education that it give $1,000 on top of the U.K. grant.

On teachers' salaries the assembly for the fourth successive year recommended that new teachers with minimum qualifications have a starting salary base of $4,800.

The assembly also voted to send a request to the Department of Education that there be no discriminaion against teachers of industrial arts (e.g. manual training) under the new three-stream secondary school plan.

A METAL WITH MANY USES

In a small Canadian laboratory fifty years ago, a scientist leaned speculatively on a shiny new table knife—and bent it. From that incident sprang a world-wide organization that now has representatives in thirty countries and in saving untold thousands of dollars in the making of everything from asphalt to jet planes. The knife was made of stellite, a spectacularly hard blend of cobalt, chromium, and tungsten with tremendous heat and abrasion resistance.

Stellite was discovered when the Deloro company found their silver mines in Northern Ontario were producing vast quantities of surplus cobalt. They hired a top scientist to find a use for the left-over—perhaps an alloy to compete with stainless steel in the manufacture of cutlery.

Scientists came up with a fine-looking table knife having the necessary characteristics of hardness, stainlessness and high polish; but it had one major defect—no resilience. When the blade was bent it stayed bent, and did not straighten again.

However, the metal itself was so hard that it ruined the hammers used to form it. So a hurriedly called conference of plant personnel decided that what the world needed was not a better table knife, but a better cutting tool. And stellite was off on its round-the-world career aided by the First World War with its demand for high-speed cutting tools to turn out shells and equipment.

Nowadays, Canada's famed pulp and paper industry maintains its world leadership with the help of stellite-tipped pulpers, choppers and slitters. And the growing aircraft industry stays aloft with the aid of cast stellite engine vanes, able to withstand high temperatures and the shock of quick temperature changes.

All these, and a myriad of other uses stem from a onetime leftover of the silver mines.

PAINTED ICEBERGS

Three massive Antarctic icebergs are now majestically sailing the Davis Sea bedaubed with great splashes of brightly-coloured dye. And keeping them company, like tugs round a liner, is a motely collection of empty oil barrels, also brightly pointed.

The reason for all this colour is that it will make it easier for the icebergs to be kept under continuous observation. Russian scientists will be keeping a day-to-day watch on their movemovements, hoping to unravel many more secrets of weather-making, and of navigation in Antarctic waters.

Hospital Auxiliary holds January meeting

Sixteen members attended the January meeting of the ladies Hospital Auxiliary on Thursday, January 4, 1962. The president opened the meeting with the Auxiliary prayer.

The treasurer's report was given, showing a balance on hand of $10,581.45. Disbursements for the month $153.79.

The director of nursing, Miss Legris, R.N., gave her monthly statement showing 264 admissions and 273 discharges, 102 outpatients and 37 inpatients. Miss Legris reported that the placques donated are now installed on the doors.

A discussion period followed and Chesterville unit volunteered to be in charge of the tuck cart for February.

The meeting was adjourned and lunch was served to the ladies by the hospital staff.

BOOST FOR GOLD COMING CLOSER

How soon will there be a rise in the price of gold? For Canada, this question has very special, even superheated, importance, says The Financial Post. A substantially higher gold price would have dramatic effects on stock prices, company promotions, prospecting, and on some now - worried Canadian communities. Canada's marginally profitable gold mines would suddenly be bonanzas for the fortunate holders in shares thereof.

It can be argued that if all men and governments were equally sensible, and that if the plans and policies of the International Monetary Fund would always be fully effective, then gold as a factor in monetary affairs could be forgotten. This just isn't going to happen for a very long time if ever. Most men everywhere still "trust" gold as an ultimate, safe, transportable (legally or illegally) repository of purchasing power.

The U. S. and the world stock of money and credit has multiplied many times faster than gold reserves. So the question isn't whether the gold price will be increased. It is, rather, how soon? And that will be the most closely guarded secret the U.S. government will ever be entrusted with. A growing number of informed and sophisticated observers think the day is drawing nigh.

TELEPHONE SIGNAL AWAY FROM PHONE

A new communications development that keeps persons "on call" when they are away from the telephone is on the market. Called Bellboy, it is a radio signalling system that acts as an extension to the telephone bell.

The service is based on the use of a seven-ounce radio receiving set which can easily be carried in a pocket or clipped to clothing. The Bell Telephone Co., which introduced the new system in Ontario and Quebec recently (end of November, 1961), expects it to have wide application in business, industry and the professions.

Bellboy operation is simple. The master unit, about the size of an adding machine, is equipped so that an operator can dial to any selected receiver unit. This sends a signal over ordinary telephone wires to a transmitter located in a high place, for example, a plant's highest building. The signal is then picked up by the Bellboy worn by the called person and he hears a "beep" tone. No other Bellboy in the same system responds to the called person's signal.

The Bellboy user shuts off the signal by pressing a button, goes to the nearest telephone and makes a call back to his office or other pre-determined point. In areas of high noise level, the receiver may be equipped with a side-mounted red light which goes on at the same time the signal is being given out. The signal is repeated every twenty seconds until answered or shut off at the master unit.

Bell Telephone points out that the system offers many advantages. The person equipped with a receiver is never out of touch whether he is in the next room, another building or in the immediate vicinity. It does not create a noise problem since the signal is heard only in the individual receiver, and as many as four persons may be called simultaneously. Another major feature is that Bellboy can be expanded to meet growing needs simply by adding more receivers. No additional master equipment is needed.

NEW CAR MAZE

The 450,000 Canadians who, according to an estimate by a major manufacturer, will buy new passenger cars during the current model year, face a more confused marketing situation than has ever existed in this business, says Ralph P. Young in The Financial Post. New entries in new sizes and with new names have been offset only partially by consolidation by some companies into a smaller model range and withdrawal of a few imports from the Canadian scene. Nearly every car carries a different price tag than it did a year ago. Many British and European automobile manufacturers have brought out new models.

Life-size wooden horses on which harness was displayed were often seen in front of harness shops in earlier days.

Lipstick stains on napkins may be removed by rubbing with a grease solvent then a detergent, followed by laundering.

LARGEST UNIT IN CANADA

The first 300,000-kilowatt steam turbine generator at the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Company's plant at Lakeview, on the outskirts of Toronto, is now in operation, feeding electricity into the provincial grid.

It is the largest unit of its kind ever installed by a Canadian utility, its output being sufficient to meet the combined power requirements of Sarnia and Scarborough.

Construction of the Lakeview project was started in June, 1958, and the first stage of the powerhouse structure to accommodate two units has now been completed. By the mid-sixties, this $240 million plant will have a capacity of 1,800,000 kilowatts from six units and will rank as one of the world's largest thermal-electric stations. It is being built on a 128-acre site at the former Long Branch Rifle Range in Toronto Township.

The height of the powerhouse is 192 feet, and the width is 293 feet, while the length of the first stage is 331 feet. Towering to 490 feet, the reinforced concrete chimney is approximately fourteen feet higher than the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce building in Toronto. When the station reaches the six unit stage there will be three chimneys in all and the length of the powerhouse will be 936 feet.

RUSSELL OATS PROVE A HEAVY PRODUCER

Rarely does a new variety show such superiority over such a wide area as does the new oat variety "Russell", reports the Field Crops Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture. On the basis of averages, Russell has been at the top of the tests in Ontario in each of the last three years. On individual zone tests it has never stood lower than second, and in the main feed grain growing areas of Ontario it has always stood first.

In climate zone tests the average of all tests in 1961 gave Russell a margin of 6.4 bushels per acre, and on a three-year average Russell outyielded all others by 3.6 bushels. In zones 3 and 4, where large acreages of feed grains are grown, Russell outyielded all others by 8.2 bushels. The eastern Canada oat tests, including Kemptville, Ridgetown, Guelph and Macdonald College, showed Russell to have a 10.5-bushel advantage in 1961, and a 6-bushel advantage over the last three years.

Russell oats were developed at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, and were introduced for the first time in 1960. A year ago one bushel at an auction brought $155.00, and several others sold for $28.00 to $40.00 per bushel.

Tests have proven that Russell oats are adapted to a very wide area, including Ontario, Quebec, New York State, Michigan and the three Prairie Provinces.

Russell oats are similar to Garry in maturity. They are, however, shorter in the straw, thinner in the hull, higher yielding, heavier per bushel, equal to Garry in smut and rust resistance, and more resistant to Septoria blight than Garry. The seed supply of both registered and certified Russell oats is good. This variety alone, with its superior ability, if used extensively will contribute greatly to the increased feed grain production program required for 1962.

HOUSEHOLD HINT

To speed up the setting of gelatine mixtures, place the mould in the freezing compartment of the refrigerator, advises the Food Department of Macdonald Institute, Guelph. To prevent the jelly from freezing, remove as soon as set. Jelly set this way tends to melt a little faster when brought into a warm room than does jelly set at room temperature.

Check stored grain regularly this winter, for insect damage, especially if it went into the bins with a high moisture content. Such is the suggestion of Harold Goble, Ontario Agricultural College entomologist. He states that timely fumigation will kill the insects before they have a chance to build up. Contact your feed dealer about proper fumigants.

The Lomond Hills in Fifeshire, part of the central Scottish Lowlands, rise to more than 1,500 feet.

GROWING BULBS IN YOUR HOME

Why wait for Mother Nature to produce flowers next spring? With a little work now, you can have a pot of narcissi or hyacinths in your living room while the snow is still on the ground.

Here are some hints from horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture on how to go about it.

To start with, only buy high grade healthy bulbs as these will give best results.

Partially fill a pot with good loam soil to which some coarse sand and peat have been added. Firm the soil, but avoid packing it or the roots will suffer. Plant the bulbs with the top third exposed. Leave enough room at the top of the pot for watering. With hyacinths, place a little sand right under the bulb. This will help to prevent rotting.

After planting and watering, set the bulbs in a cool, dark place to develop roots before they start top growth. The best temperature is 35 to 45 degrees for hyacinths. Potted bulbs make a nice meal for mice, so watch out for any signs of their activities.

When the pots are filled with roots and the top growth is about two inches high, bring them into subdued light at 50 degrees for two or three weeks. This helps the plants to continue top growth and lets them become accustomed to light. Then move the plants into full light, at a temperature of 60 degrees to flower. Too much heat or too early forcing will ruin flower buds.

Keep the soil moist at all times, and protect the flowers from strong sunlight and from excessive bottom heat as when situated on top of a radiator. To have a continuous supply of bloom ,bring the plants out of cool storage in succession. This works better than planting at different times.

NEW YEAR PROPHECIES

Here are facts and forecasts you can ponder on New Year's Day, 1962, says Neville Nankivell in The Financial Post. They won't make you happy.

Spending by Canada's federal provincial and municipal governments rose by 24% in the five years 1956 - 60. If this continues to advance at its present pace, the increase in total government expenditures between 1960 and 1965 will be at least 26% and more probably 35%. For the tax burden to stay at its present level, government spending on this scale will require annaul increase in GNP of 5% - 7% allowing for deficits like those of the past few years. For budgets to be balanced, the annual leap in GNP would have to be 7% - 9%.

The implications of this mathematical exercise, prepared by the Canadian Tax Foundation, are quite chilling. If GNP doesn't grow at this unlikely pace, there will have to be higher taxes or bigger deficits or a combination of both. The move to higher taxes is, it seems, already under way. Three provinces have scheduled increases in corporate taxes, two will be pushing up income taxes.

Mrs Gordon Arbuthnot

Following a prolonged illness, Mrs Gordon Arbuthnot, of 855 Pleasant Park Road, Ottawa, passed away Tuesday morning, January 9. She was 43 years of age.

Mrs Arbuthnot, the former Audrey Stewart, was born at Morewood, the daughter of Mr and Mrs James Stewart. She attended Morewood schools.

She married Gordon Arbuthnot on November 14, 1935, at Winchester. The couple lived at Morewood, Chesterville, Smiths Falls and Ottawa.

She leaves to mourn, in addition to her husband, three sons, Stuart, Ronald and Dwain Arbuthnot, and two grandsons, Stephen and Keith, all of Ottawa. Also surviving are her parents, Mr and Mrs James Stewart, of Dunbar; four sisters, Mrs L. G. Lavigne (Myrtle), Cornwall; Mrs Earl Thompson (Margaret), Crysler; Mrs Byron Campbell (Bertha), Chesterville, and Miss Lillian Stewart, Toronto; six brothers, Alva Stewart, R.R. 2, Winchester; William Stewart, Winchester; George Stewart, Morewood; Edwin Stewart, Cornwall; Arnold Stewart, Vernon, and Mervin Stewart, Ottawa.

The body is resting at the Radmore Stewart Funeral Home, Ottawa, where service will be held in the chapel at 3.15 p.m., today, Thursday. Albert Hayhoe, Smiths Falls, will officiate.

Burial will be made in Pinecrest Cemetery.

VIKING RUINS

In Newfoundland a Norwegian explorer has found the ruins of old buildings which he believes were built by Vikings. They are believed to have landed in North America in the eleventh century.

According to ancient Icelandic sagas, Leif Ericson, who lived in Greenland, paid a visit to the King of Norway in the year 999. On his way home he was blown off his course, and landed in a strange country which he called Vinland, because, he said, wild grape-vines grew there. Later, some 160 Icelanders started a settlement in Vinland, but were driven out by Indians.

Many historians assume that "Vinland" was Nova Scotia.

Finch Fruit Teens hold meeting

The seventh meeting of the Finch Fruit-teens met at the home of Betty Casselman with seven members and one visitor present.

The president, Sandra Price, presided. The meeting opened by repeating the 4-H pledge, the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary Jean Duff.

Roll call was answered by saying a dessert my family likes.

Mrs E. Montgomery, one of the leaders, talked on the plans for a achievement. Linda Winters was chosen to take exhibits for the club. The name of the exhibit is to be called Fruit Salads, followed by a discussion on the art of garnishing, Fruit Specialtys, Fruit table arrangements, Group work, the members helped arrange a cheese tray with fruit.

Members exchanged gifts by drawing names, following the opening of the presents a social time was enjoyed when Mrs Casselman served tea and all present sampled the food arranged and made by the members, fruit, cheese and biscuits.

The home assignment for the next meeting is making fruit bread.

January meeting Morewood Presbyterian W.M.S. Society

Miss Lil Feeley presided at the January meeting of the Morewood Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society, which was held on Thursday afternon at the home of Miss Laura Hunter.

The New Year's program was prepared by Mrs G. Myers, Mrs T. Duncan, Miss Carrie Hunter and Mrs W. McQuaig. Those taking part were: Mrs J. Steen, Miss Laura Moffat, Mrs G. Myers, Mrs Robt. Stewart and Mrs A. D. Sutherland.

A very appropriate message for the New Year was given by Mrs C. MacGregor after which a Life Membership Certificate was presented to Mrs Douglas Hunter by the President.

The yearly reports were given by the various secretaries, all showing an added interest in growth and increased givings. Mrs Malcolm MacGregor gave a very excellent report for the C. O. C., this being an outstanding year for them with givings exceeding other years.

A social hour followed after which refreshments were served concluding a well attended and most interesting meeting for the new year.

IN MEMORIAM

BRIMNER—In fond and loving memory of a dear mother, Susan Brimner, who passed away two years ago, January 17, 1960.

I had a mother I was proud to own,
How much I miss her will never be known.
The heartaches in the world are many,
But to lose my mother was the greatest of any.
So today my love is mingled with tears,
And fervently wish to turn back the years;
To have you, Mother, and your loving ways,
And love once again those past happy days.
What would I give if I could say "Hello, Mother," in the same old way,
To hear your voice and see your smile,
To sit and chat with you awhile.
So you who have a mother
Should cherish her with care,
For you will never know the heartaches
Until you miss her vacant chair.

Sadly missed by daughter Clara and Percy Merkley.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

Katanga in the Congo is strife-torn and horror-ridden. But amid the noise of exploding bombs and the shrieks of tortured people, the ministry of reconciliation through the distribution of the Scriptures still goes on.

The work begun many years ago by Mr F. S. Arnott of the Brethren Mission, who penetrated into Congo from Angola and established a mission station at Bunkeya, is still strong. The mission at Luonza, established by Dan Crawford, who translated the Bible into Luba Sanga, and the mission of Alexander Clark, the translator of the Luba Katanga Bible, still witnesses to the love of God.

For more than twenty year the Methodist Mission and the Garenganze Evangelical Mission were the only Protestant witness in Katanga.

Through these and other missions such as the Seventh Adventist Mission in Elizabethville, recently bombarded, and the Baptist Mission, tens of thousands of Katanganese people have heard the Gospel.

There are now complete Bibles in seven or eight Congolese languages and complete New Testaments in several others such as Kiluba, Tshiluba, Lunda of Kalunda, Lunda Kambone, and others.

DESSERTS FOR THAT SPECIAL OCCASION

ARE YOU LOOKING FOR a dessert that is just a little different for a special dinner party? Here are rather larger than usual recipes that make excellent party desserts.

Strawberry Meringue Cake
(10 to 12 servings)

Cake:
8 egg whites
½ tsp. cream tartar
⅛ tsp. salt
2 cups sugar
¼ tsp. lemon extract

Add salt to egg whites and whip until foamy. Add cream of tartar, and continue beating until they hold a point. Fold in sugar gradually. Add lemon extract. Pour into shallow loaf pan (approximately 7x11 inches) lined with wax paper. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees F.) for 45 to 50 minutes. Lift from pan onto cake rack and cool. Cut into servings.

Serve with fresh or frozen strawberries topped with whipped cream, garnish with berries. Fresh peaches, or any tart fruit, can be used.

English Trifle
(10 servings)

Sponge cake
1½ cups soft custard
½ cup blanched almonds or English walnuts
½ cup sherry wine (optional)
½ cup currant jelly

Custard:
1 pint milk
1/3 cup sugar
4 eggs
f.g. salt
1 tsp. vanilla

Heat milk and sugar. Add salt to eggs and beat well. Add eggs to hot milk and allow to cook for five minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and cool; then place in a closed dish to chill.

Cut sponge cake to fit casserole. Cover sponge cake with nuts. Spread jelly over top; add wine; then soft custard. Place in refrigerator until ready to serve; then add partly frozen whipped cream and serve.

Butterscotch Parfait
(10 to 12 servings)

2/3 cup brown sugar
2 tbsps. butter
½ cup water
4 egg yolks
1 pint whipping cream
1/16 tsp. salt
2 tsps. vanilla

Combine sugar and butter. Heat until melted. Cook for one minute. Add water; cook until butterscotch is melted. Add syrup mixture slowly to beaten egg yolks. Cook in double boiler until light and fluffy. Chill. Add whipped cream, salt, and vanilla. Pour into freezing tray or individual cups. Freeze without stirring. Chopped nuts may also be added.

Chocolate Cookie Dessert
(6 to 8 servings)

18 thin chocolate cookies
1 pint whipping cream
2 tsps. vanilla

Whip cream and add vanilla. Spread one tablespoon on one cookie and press another on top. After four or five cookies have been added, lay the stack on edge in the centre lengthwise in freezing tray; complete the roll; then completely cover with remained of whipped cream. Place in refrigerator for several hours, allowing cookies to absorb some of the mixture from the cream. Garnish with maraschino cherries or chocolate shot. Place in freezing compartment and allow to thoroughly chill or freeze. Serve in diagonal slices and add a small portion of chocolate sauce to each serving.

Variation: Ginger cookies may be used the same as chocolate cookies, and served without sauce.

great national resources program with wide implications, but is a program still in the making.

He said the rural development concept, on which part of the act is based, is the idea of helping people to help themselves, helping them to see their local needs and development opportunities and helping them to find answers to meet those needs and opportunities.

"I am hopeful," he stated, that if this idea catches fire, a large number of such local development areas will be studied and action programs started as soon as possible."

Mr Davidson concluded: "ARDA is a program in the making and you can have a hand in its making."

The three-day conference concluded with morning and afternoon sessions dealing with livestock production.

VIKING WARRIOR

The tomb of a fifth-century Viking warrior found recently near Soderhamn, on the Gulf of Bothnia, is only the second of the kind to come to light in Sweden.

With the warrior's remains were his sword, shield and spear, together with objects such as food vessels and devices for making fire, which were buried with him in the belief that he would need them during his wanderings after death.

Avonmore man dies after walk in snow

High winds and drifting snow in the area throughout the weekend has been declared a contributing factor in the death of a 65-year-old Avonmore district resident.

Roy Wiseman, of the 3rd concession of Roxborough township, died suddenly last Saturday afternoon after walking twice the length of his laneway.

Mr Wiseman had just completed a walk through the badly drifted snow to his mailbox to pick up the bread which had been left there because the breadman was unable to drive up the lane to the house.

Mr Wiseman made the walk to get the bread, returned to the house and commented to his sister, Miss Ruth Wiseman, about the hard going he had encountered in the lane, and then collapsed.

Dr. J. M. Pollock, of Avonmore, said he believed the exertion of the strenuous walk caused the fatal seixure.

Mr Wiseman had been a resident of the Avonmore area throughout his life and had been a farmer until his retirement two years ago.

He was a son of the late Duncan Wiseman and Catherine MacMillan. He also leaves one brother and two sisters: Angus Wiseman, of Standard, Alberta; Miss Ruth Wiseman, and Mrs David Campbell (Margaret) both of Avonmore.

He was a member of the Loyal Orange Lodge.

The body rested at the W. G. Brownlee Funeral Home in Finch where the funeral was held on Tuesday. The body was placed in the vault at Paul's Hill cemetery to await burial in the spring.

Have you noticed the frost build-up on the inside of your stable? If so, you might have a high-moisture problem — a condition that enhances disease buildup. The frost could show up if you have added extra cattle lately and there is more moisture in the air. Ontario Department of Agriculture engineer Jim Card suggests you contact your local Ontario Department extension engineer if you need help with ventilation problems.
