TWO MEN DIE IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Two young men, both the only sons of widely known farming families in the Winchester district, met death when the light, two-seater airplane in which they were flying suddenly plunged like an arrow from an altitude of 60 feet into a sodden field only three miles from their home at Van Camp.

The victims were:

Lorne R. VanAllen, 22 son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis VanAllen of Van Camp, a commercial pilot with well over 200 hours flying, who was at the controls of the ship.

Robert Walter, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Walter, also of Van Camp, a passenger in the plane.

Being the passenger, Walter was in the front cockpit and died instantly as the terrific impact crushed the front of the machine. VanAllen, in the rear cockpit, suffered terrible injuries as his head was forced through the instrument panel and died of a fractured skull at 10 o'clock Saturday night in the Civic Hospital.

The plane cacrried the two young men to their deaths only fifty feet from the home of William Armstrong whose daughter, Ena, had made several flights with VanAllen and had been a very close friend of the flier for nearly thirteen years. Frequently as VanAllen made his flights over the district he would glide over the home of his friend, giving a joyous, aerial salute to the girl below.

It was apparent that he was attempting the same maneuver Saturday when he glided low over a neighboring field and had almost reached the house when he crashed. Instead of winging gallantly over the home, he was carried into it, bruised, bleeding and broken to await transportation to the Civic Hos Pital, Ottawa, where he breathed his last.

The ship dropped near the boundary line of a field owned by Lannin about half-way between Inkerman and South Mountain and only three miles from Van Camp the home of the victims, which is situated on the C.P.R. line between Winchester and Mountain.

After striking the plane remained in a perfectly perpendicular position like a yellow arrow which had been shot from the clear skies. So far was the nose embedded in the soft earth that it took five men to pull it into normal, horizontal position to release the victims.

Dr. H. S. Gross and Dr. Peter McLaughlin, both of Winchester were called and Dr. Gross after attending Van Allen ordered his removal to the Ottawa Civic Hospital in Dixon's ambulance, Winchester. The body of the passenger was removed to Dixon's parlors.

The instrument panel and the forward cockpit were crushed and the fuselage of the ship was torn and twisted, while the wings were considerably damaged. About two hours after the crash a mechanic arrived to salvage what parts of the ship he could.

News of the crash spread rapidly and hundreds of residents of the district drove to the scene to view the wreck, remaining until the mechanic had completed his work.

Robert Walter was born at Van Camp and received his education in Winchester. He was popular among the residents of this district to whom news of his sudden death was a shock. In addition to his parents he is survived by four sisters, May Ellen and Edna Walter, and Mrs. Avery Francis, all of Van Camp.

Lorne Van Allen was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Van Allen and like his companion, was educated in Winchester, and was well liked.

A double funeral was held at the Van Camp United church at 1.30 p.m. Tuesday. Interment was at Van Camp cemetery. Rev. R. C. McConnell officiated at the funeral service.

ST. AMOUR CHARGED WITH CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE

Joseph St. Amour of Clarkstown, truck driver for the Shell Oil Company of Canada, was charged with criminal negligence at Winchester Tuesday after a coroner's jury inquired into the death on April 1 last of Glen Summers, 18, of Winchester village, killed outright when a truck driven by St. Amour was in collision with the funeral procession of the late Alvin Deeks, also of Winchester.

St. Amour appeared before Magistrate John McCormick two hours after the jury's verdict and was released on bail of $1,000. He is scheduled to appear for preliminary hearing at Morrisburg on May 11th before Magistrate P. C. Beergeron of Cornwall.

Verdict of Jury

The verdict of the jury, returned after one hour's deliberation, was as follows:

"We the jury find that Glenn Summers came to his death on April 1, 1937, as the result of the car he was driving being struck by an oil truck driven by Joseph St. Amour. We find that the said truck was being driven at an excessive rate of speed for the area in question and that the usual courtesy of the road was not being observed by the driver of the truck. We find that the car driven by Glenn Summers was on the correct side of the road travelling at a slow rate of speed at the moment of impact."

While some of the 35 witnesses heard at the inquest, which was presided over by Dr. Peter McLaughlin, Winchester, swore that the truck was travelling at a fast rate of speed and was "weaving" from one side of the center line of the road to the other, St. Amour testified that the car driven by Glenn Summers moved out of the procession and struck the left running board of the truck which was travelling in the opposite direction.

Constable Rose Testifies

Provincial Constable Eugene Rose of Morrisburg, who investigated the crash, said he was of the opinion, after closely examining the truck and the Summers car, that the left front tire of the latter vehicle had struck the truck's left side running board. Pieces of rubber, which the constable believed had come from the tire of the Summers car, were found on the running board of the truck

Would Determine Man's Ability

Toronto Professor Believes Psychological Tests Would Find Right Vocation.

WINDSOR, — Not far distant is the time when every child, youth, man and woman will be psychologically tested to determine their abilities, Professor J. H. Levy, of Toronto, industrial psychologist, told members of the Windsor branch, Engineering Institute of Canada.

When that time comes he said, there will be fewer round pegs in the square holes because individuals will know for what vocations they are the best suited, the things they can do best, and the type of occupation they will be happiest at.

"Purpose of the psychological test is not to find out how much you do know," he said, "but to find out how much you are capable of knowing and doing. The thing is to find out what vocation an individual is fitted for. These days too many people are doing what they should not be doing."

For example, he said, a great number of children who take college courses should never go to university. They should be taught instead to work with their hands. As it is now, parents are puzzled to determine just what vocations they should encourage their children to follow, when the whole question can be cleared up by certain proved tests.

Professor Levy explained that there are three methods of determining the capabilities of an individual, the first is to size up the individual by sight, judging him by facial and bodily characteristics. The second is the anthropolical method. Use of measurements of the head and body. The third is the only scientific method, he said, and that is the psychological method. A man's walk is revealing of his make-up, he continued.

"If you see a man who walks with a strut, probably with his thumb that is hooked in the corner of his vest, that means he has a peculiar amount of conceit and pride. The criminal classes have a peculiar walk. They have a slouching walk with a knocking of the knees." Professor Levy said.

Statistics show that 50 per cent of the male students of American colleges and 25 per cent of the female students are working their way right through school.

GARDENING

By GORDON L. SMITH

In the smaller types of easily grown flowers are the alyssums. They are white and dainty and useful for edging. These will grow in partial shade and make excellent edging plants. Portulaca is also recommended. It is a spreading plant with bright yellow, red and pink wax-like flowers. It thrives in dry soil and bright sunshine, and requires little care. In the latter category also come nasturtiums, marigolds, calendulas and petunias.

Zinnias

Zinnias, giant, medium or dwarf size, offer a range of bloom that the busy person can plant with certain satisfaction of a big display of bloom These, except for the tiny affair with close buttonlike flowers, are large plants. The bigger ones will make a height of 18 inches to two feet or more. Colors cover a wide range from dull red, bronze and yellow to bright red and pinks. The blooms somewhat resemble the rose. They grow well in almost any part of Canada.

Unusual Vegetables

Experienced gardeners often make it a rule to try at least one new variety of vegetables every year.

For the "greens" enthusiast, a few plants of Swiss chard will provide an abundance of meals. It is worth investigating as is also broad beans, which come along about midsummer and later. Brocolli, a sort of refined cauliflower, Koli Rabi, a refined turnip, and red cabbage and yellow tomatoes will lend interest to the regular types and provide a slightly different flavor. In many places egg plants and peppers can be grown and will be appreciated. They must be started early indoors. The red type of the latter can be produced in a surprisingly wide area of Canada; there is also the little individual Acorn or Table Queen Squash which is a big improvement over its rather watery ancestors. Leeks add variety to the onion family. Tender white radish lengthens the season for this vegetable, and some of the extra early bantam type will do the same for corns.

Glass Houses

They's Coming Soon With All Accessories to Match

DETROIT. — If you would be different, buttons now can be sewed with glass thread, eggs can be boiled in glass pots and fancy sweaters can be knit of glass. For the home there are beautiful glass curtains.

Guaranteed to catch the eye are a new spring "cravat" for the gentleman, a new glass tablecloth and a set of glass dishes that won't break when they slip from your hands.

These latest developments in the glass manufacturing industry were revealed by Dr. William W. Shaver, research expert of Corning, N.Y., in a speech before the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

"Years of laboratory research is proving today that there is no end to the multitude of industries in which glass can be adapted," he said.

"Two new processes already have been discovered for the home. They are now on the market. The first is the construction block made of glass which not only may outlast the old type of brick block but allows for more light," he said.

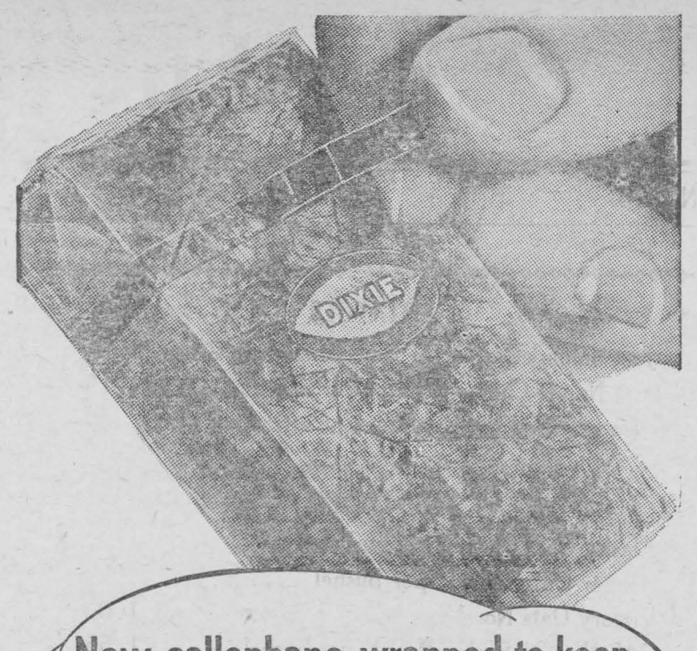

"Then there is glass 'wool'—similar in appearance to cotton — which is used for insulation purposes. It resists all types of weather."

He explained a fibrous glass process which has produced thread, yarn, rope and cloth.

"The glass is melted in huge tanks then drawn out through chutes and finally made into fine fibres one ten-thousandth of an inch in diameter, approximately four inches in length and possesing exceptional strength.

Although the housewife today may be averse to the use of glass pots and pans, glass curtains and draperies already are in some homes and theatres as a fire precaution, Shaver said.

Of special interest, he added, is the development of glassware which does not break when dropped. He demonstrated this by dropping several exhibits from a height of five feet.

Now cellophane-wrapped to keep it factory fresh. With the easy-opening ribbon for your convenience.

THUMBTACK YOUR DRAPERIES TO A BOARD

By Ruth Wyeth Spears

Almost every home-maker has read at some time or other that if one wishes overdrapes to have a tailored appearance a valance board must be used. Then there follows a description of a complicated valance board that must be especially made to fit each window and one immediately becomes discouraged at the thought of the expense and trouble. Yet, the idea of a valance board is a good one and you can obtain a very smart and finished effect for your drapes by using a straight one by two inch board as long as the width of your window frame.

A small finishing nail in the top of the window casing near each end, and screw eyes placed near the top of the back of the valance board, will hold the board in place as shown here at A. It is very easy to lift the board off the nails when you wish to dust or shake the curtains.

In making draperies, you will find it a joy to be able to fasten them to the valance board before the board is hung up. Plaits and fullness may be arranged just as you wish with the curtains stretched out on the table which is certainly easier than climbing up and down a ladder to do it.

You will need several boxes of tacks to fasten the drapes to the board. First arrange the side drapes in flat plaits and tack them to the ends and across the front of the board as shown here at B. Now, fold the end of the valance clear around to the back of the board so it cannot possibly show from the front and tack the valance to the top of the board as shown here at C. In tacking, the valance should be stretched just tight enough so that it is perfectly smooth. The valance shown here is made of glazed chintz and matches the glazed chintz border that faces the edges of the side drapes. The glass curtains may be hung just inside the window frame or to the bottom of the valance board.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' new book "SEWING, for the Interior Decorator" contains 47 other fascinating things to make for the home. Now ready for mailing upon receipt of 14c (10c plus 4c postage). Address: Mrs. Spears, Room 421, 73 Adelaide St. West, Toronto.

Nursery Stocks Proper Handling

By observing a few simple rules in the handling of trees and shrubs as they are received from the nursery, many losses from newly planted nursery stocks would be avoided.

Nursery stocks are packed so as to reach the customer in good condition, and as soon as the box or bundle is delivered it should be opened. Packed snugly together as they are, the plants often overheat. Delay of a day or two during a farm Spring spell may cause severe injury from this cause. This is particularly true of roses and strawberries. If because of delay in transit or for other reasons the stock is shriveled, the stock may be restored to freshness by soaking in water for several hours or overnight by planting, or by burying both roots and tops for a short time.

If the stock can be planted at once, so much the better, but if it cannot, it can be held in good condition by "heeling in," that is, by digging a shallow trench in some sheltered spot and setting the plants at an angle, and covering the roots with soil. A common method is to throw the dirt on the far side when digging the trench. The stock is placed, slantwise in the trench, with the tops against the shoulder of fresh dirt. Then the roots are covered by digging a second trench parallel to the first, this time throwing the dirt ahead on to the roots. The plants may be left in this condition for weeks until the ground is ready to receive them.

During the planting operations, undue exposure of the stock should be avoided. A piece of burlap or a shovelful of earth thrown over the roots will help materially in reducing the losses from drying out of the roots.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

When ENGLAND CROWNS the SIXTH GEORGE

God Save The King!
Long Live The King!

FROM THE moment he enters Westminster Abbey, wearing robes of red and Cap of Estate, to the time he leaves, clad in royal purple and wearing the Imperial State Crown, the King is the centre of a great religious service, which were developed at the Court of the Byzantine Emperors, who ruled from Constantinople, after the division of the Roman Empire.

His first act is to kneel in private prayer. His second to face his peoples so that they may express their willingness to accept him as their King. Not until, "with one accord of heart and voice," they have cried "God Save King George," signal that they wish him as their ruler, can he be crowned.

He must face them all. Four times he is "presented" to his peoples as he stands erect, bareheaded, close to the Coronation Chair. At each presentation he faces a different direction, showing himself "to the people at every of the four sides."

He must promise, too, to abide by the laws and the customs of those he is to rule.

For the first time, Canada will be referred to in the Coronation Oath. Since George V ascended the Throne, the dominions have attained full nationhood, and the oath has been amended so that George VI will:

"Solemnly promise and swear to govern the people of Great Britain, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa according to their respective laws and customs."

At a given signal the guns from the Tower of London broadcasts the news that the King has been crowned.

Prayer follows, the Archbishop of Canterbury saying, "God crown you with a Crown of Glory,'" and the choir follows up with that memorable hymn, "Thou has set a Crown of Pure Gold upon His Head."

The King is addressed by the primate: "Our gracious and noble King, we present you with this Book. Here is wisdom . ." and present him with the Bible.

The Bible returned, the Benediction is sung.

The King then leaves the Coronation Chair, and ascends to his Throne, surrounded by his Lords and Officers of State.

The words then spoken: "Stand firm, and hold fast from henceforth the Seat of State of Royal and Imperial Dignity."

And a great silence reigns in the Abbey.

Then comes the Royal Procession —the King, carrying his Sceptre, passes through the door on the South of the Altar into Sir Edward's Chapel.

At the same moment Queen Elizabeth descends from her Throne and enters by the door on the opposite side.

Before St. Edward's Altar King removes his mantle and Sacred Vestments, and is clothed in his Robe of Purple Velvet.

The Coronation Crown then changed for the Imperial State Crown, since St. Edward's Crown is used for the Coronation only.

Queen Elizabeth, carrying the Septre with Cross and an Ivory Rod with Dove, passes to the West Door of the Abbey.

Together in stately, awe-inspiring procession along the route arranged for Coronation Day, the King and his Queen passes towards Buckingham Palace.

The Muse of Monarchy

The English sovereigns fare none too badly as versifiers. Henry VIII was a fluent lyric-writer, and the poems by Elizabeth and James I do credit to the royal ears. Inspiration seems to have deserted our monarchs after the seventeenth century.

Princess Elizabeth, heir-presumptive to the British Throne, who recently celebrated her 11th birthday, will wear her own special coronet on May 12th.

"Vivat Regina Elizabeth"
"God Save The Queen"

AND AS SHE passeth by the King on his throne she shall bow herself reverently to His Majesty.

Not until the King is on his throne does the coronation of his Queen commence. When it is ended she ascends to her own throne at the King's left hand, two steps lower than that of His Majesty's.

She does not pay homage to her liege lord, as all others have done by the time she ascends her throne. Princes and dukes and the representatives of each and every degree of nobility have kissed her husband on the left cheek as token of their fealty.

She, his wife and queen, is called upon only to "bow reverently."

With him she heads the procession into the abbey, robed in purple and wearing a circlet of gold. With him her first act is to kneel in prayer at a faldstool before her chair or state on the south side of the altar. From this chair of state, which she does not leave until she kneels at the altar for prayers before her own coronation, she sees the anointing and crowning of her husband as he sits in King Edward's chair.

Her anointing and crowning take place on a faldstool set between the coronation chair and the altar. Four peeresses hold a rich pall of gold over her while she is anointed on the head, the Queen's ring placed on the fourth finger of her right hand, and the crown placed on her head. Her crowning is the signal for all the peeresses to put on their coronets.

She kneels beside the King at the altar for communion, and like him offers up an oblation of a pall or altar-cloth, and an ingot of gold. The gold is a "mark-weight," approximately eight ounces.

One more the King and Queen are separated before, side by side, they leave the abbey to meet the loyal cheers of their subjects. As they enter St. Edward's Chapel to prepare for the state drive to the palace, the Queen crosses before the altar to use the door on the north side while the King enters the door on the south side. They meet inside the chapel. The separation is of seconds only.

The Abbey

The present Abbey, was consecrated in 1065 but there was a church on its site long before that. According to tradition in the reign of the Saxon King Sebert some fishermen on the Thames saw a bright light appearing on the Lambeth side. Going over to investigate they saw a venerable old man who asked to be conveyed over the river. When he landed where the Abbey now stands, the locality became illuminated with a celestial glow of great splendour, while a host of angels descended.

The stranger marked out the site of the future church with twelve crosses, then said to the fishermen: "I am Peter, Keeper of the Keys of Heaven. Tell your King and your Bishops what you have seen".

The church built by Sebert was destroyed by the Danes, but was rebuilt by Dunstan. In 958 it became a Benedictine Abbey, but it was Edward the Confessor who really founded the splendid structure we know today. Unfortunately the saintly, if weak-willed King was too ill to attend its consecration in 1065 and died that year after building for himself a magnificent Royal palace on the site of the present Houses of Parliament.

Edward the Confessor, the last of the Anglo-Saxon kings was the first monarch to be buried in the Abbey His tomb is still a great attraction. His tragic successor, Harold, was the first monarch to be crowned at Westminster.

Coronation Sonnet

By John Masefield

You stand upon the highway of the sea,
Wherein the ships, your children, come and go
In splendor at the full of every flow,
Bound to and from whatever ports may be.
Through this beginning reign, for years to come,
May fortune set your lot in happy times;
Your seamen saint still marking, with his chimes
Daily, some ship of yours returning home.
Though you are changed from what I once beheld;
Though your remembered hulls are with the coral;
I can not think upon your might unstirred.
O sacred city of the lost sea-bird
May wealth, out-ransoming the ports of old,
Be yours, with spiritual gold and holy laurels.

Princess Elizabeth Will Participate

The Princess Elizabeth, her 11th birthday only a few weeks behind her, has her part to play on Coronation Day.

A special coronet, small as befits her years, has been made for her.

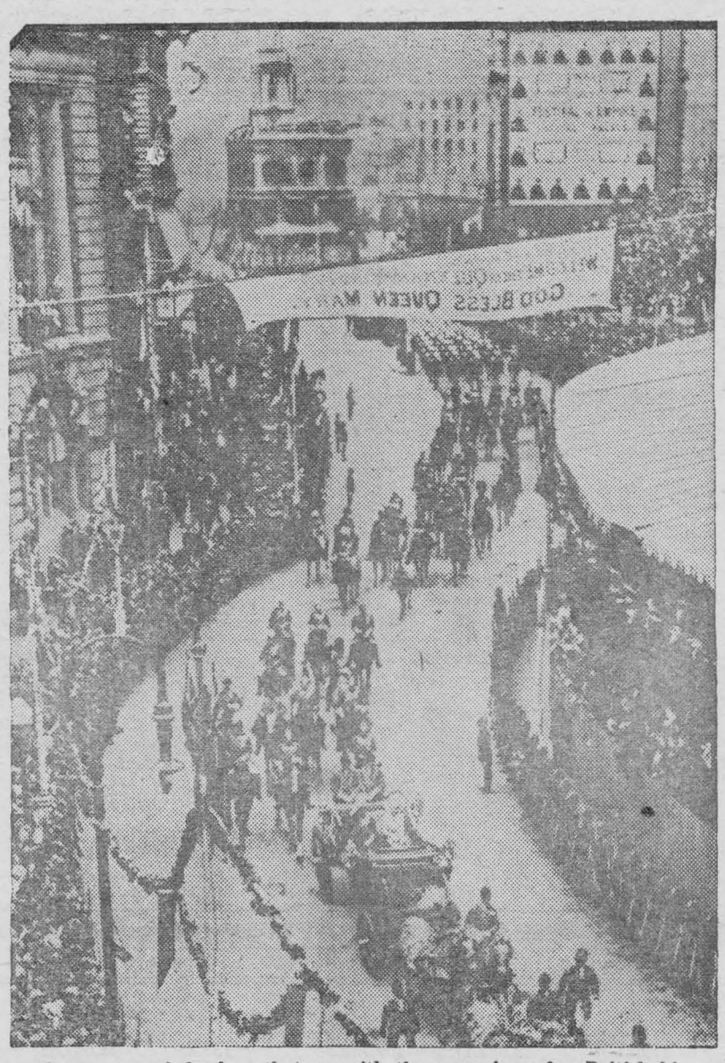

A lesson this, from the last Coronation, when the princess royal, then 14-year-old Princess Mary, to her consternation felt her coronet tumble from her head as she entered Westminster Abbey.

Princess Elizabeth will have enough to do to negotiate the train she will wear without having the added worry of balancing a full-sized coronet. In addition to train, she will wear a velvet robe of scarlet, edged with ermine, the whole over a frilled white dress. White gloves will cover her arms as she raises them to don her coronet, with the remainder of the peeresses, when her mother, Queen Elizabeth, is crowned.

She has no oath to take nor homage to pay. Her uncle, Duke of Gloucester, has that duty. As the remainder of the princes of the blood royal put off their coronets and kneel in their places, he advances to the throne and, kneeling before his brother, the King, swears:

"I, Henry, Duke of Gloucester, do become your liege man of life and limb, and of earthly worship; and faith and truth I will bear unto you, to live and die, against all manner of folk. So help me God."

Then, led by him, each of the princes of the blood touches the crown on His Majesty's head, as sign they will uphold it, and kisses the King on the left cheek in token of fealty. On no other occasion within the Empire does ritual call for man to kiss man.

The pomp and fanfare that go with the crowning of a British king. . . . A view of the procession down the Strand at the coronation of King George V, in 1911.

Six-Hour Wait To See Spectacle

Thousands of people who witness the Coronation procession will spend six hours or more in their allotted seats and take breakfast and lunch on the route.

Similarly, because of the long wait and the length of the ceremonies, members of the 8,000 congregation in the Abbey will be permitted to carry with them—as unobtrusively as possible—sandwiches or other light fare to sustain them till they can return home.

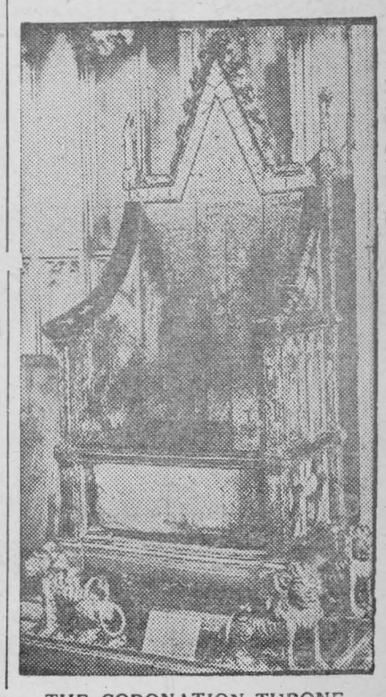

Peeresses will carry lunches in embroidered satchels, matching their Court gowns and concealed beneath their robes. Nor will flasks be forbidden.

Every effort is to be made to save spectators from the endurance tests that were imposed by the long hours of waiting before and after the Coronation of King George V. and Queen Mary, and it is believed that a speeding up will be found practicable.

Experience in handling crowds in recent years shows that great numbers of people can be moved more quickly than in 1911, and that there is no advantage in attempting to close all sections of the route at or about the same early hour.

Sightseers whose positions are on the return route will not be required to assemble so early as on last Coronation Day, when the much shorter route accentuated the traffic problem.

On the route, too, the scheme of arrivals will be flexible, and will allow different sets of ticket-holders different times of arrival, so that the filling of the stands may proceed smoothly and the final clearance of the route be deferred till the last possible moment.

ST. AMOUR CHARGER WITH CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE

St. Amour, contradicted the testimony that he was driving at a fast rate of speed, said he was travelling at from 30 to 35 miles an hour at the time of the impact. He could not remember whether he put his foot on the brake pedal or the accelerator, but said he "fought" the steering wheel in an attempt to keep his truck on the road. The truck, according to Constable Rose, travelled 205 feet after the crash, breaking through a culvert railing and cutting a Hydro post in two before coming to rest on its side in a field and facing in the direction from which it had come. The constable said the speed of the truck must have been "terrific."

Silas Baker of Cass Bridge, who was driving a horse and rig, said he was obliged to drive off the highway in order to let the oil truck pass.

Albert Kemp, who operates a service station at Chesterville, said Joseph St. Amour and Bernard Shaver stopped at his place of business on April first. Both men were sober, witness said.

Edward Flynn, bartender at a Chesterville hotel, said he served two men wearing Shell Oil Company uniforms with a large bottle of beer each on the afternoon of April 1st.

"What effect do you think a bottle of beer would have on a man?" the Crown asked.

"It would make him drive better."

Minister Testifies

Rev. D. W. Summers said he met the truck just north of the C.P.R. crossing. He got only a glimpse of the horse and rig diven by Silas Baker. "I first saw the truck when I was attracted by a roarig sound like that of an airplane. I thought I would have to let the truck driver know that this was a funeral procession. The overhanging part of the truck was across the center line of the road. The truck was weaving from side to side. It was coming very fast. In my opinion it was going fifty miles an hour. I waved at him to slow down. His weaving was so noticeable that he was going from one side of the center line to the other.

"As I went by I shouted at the truck driver, "Halt! Funeral procession.' The truck went by me with such speed that the breeze from it swayed my car.".

Glen Wylie of Winchester, who was in the procession, estimated the speed of the truck at 35 miles an hour.

Lorne Deeks, of Brockville, who was in the funeral procession, would not swear that the truck was over the center line of the road. He estimated the truck's speed at forty miles an hour.

Barton Derby of Mountain, said he was two cars ahead of the Glenn Summers car, but did not remember if he had to turn out to pass the buggy, all of which was off the concrete except the left rear wheel.

"The truck was travelling very fast," witness said.

"It was on its own side of the road," Anson Deeks of Williamsburg said, adding from his point of view the horse and buggy were not endangering the progress of the procession. The truck was going too fast, the witness said.

Cephas Deeks, Williamsburg, who was a passenger in the car of the previous witness, said it was necessary for the car to alter its course of the procession, the witness said.

Luther Deeks, Williamsburg, said he was in an automobile ahead of the Summers car and noticed a horse and buggy on the shoulder of the road. The left hind wheel was on the concrete.

On meeting the truck, witness said, the car he was in "swerved a little." The truckk was coming very fast," he said. The truck was not swerving, he added.

Herbert Loucks, Williamsburg, who was driving the car in which Luther Deeks was a passenger, said the truck was travelling at about 40 miles an hour, and th ewheels were "very close" to the center line of the road.

"On account of the speed of the truck I swerved my car," Loucks said. "The buggy was far enough off the road so that there was no need for anyone to swerve to pass it."

Raymond Summers of Winchester who was in the fifth car behind the hearse thought the truck was travelling too fast for safety but was on its right side of the road. He suggested the truck's speed was 40 miles an hour.

Myles Harper of Winchester, who was driving immediately behind the Summers car and in front of the Thomas car, first saw the truck when it was almost hitting the Summers car." After the Summers car was hit, the car of the witness was struck. Witness said he did not see the Thomas car being hit. " The Summers car was on the right side of the center line when it was hit," the witness said.

Howard Summers, Winchester, who was driving behind the Thomas car, said all he saw of the truck was a "streak of yellow" as it hit the Thomas car.

Arthur Summers of Winchester, cousin of Glenn Summers and a front-seat passenger in the death car, said the horse and buggy were entirely off the road at the time of the impact. "I did not see the truck until the instant of the impact," he said. "Glenn did not turn out to pass the buggy. The truck hit us, it appeared, at the left side of the windshield."

Lyle Summers, Winchester, who sat in the rear seat of the death car, said he saw the horse and buggy off the pavement. He did not see the truck until the instant of the impact. The car, he said, was about a foot and a half to the right-hand side of the center-line.

St. Amour Testifies

Joseph St. Amour said he had driven trucks for thirteen years and had been with the Shell Co. for eight years. During his April 1st trip he stopped at Russell and Morewood. He said he had nothing to drink in eithe place. His next stop was at Chesterville where he had one bottle of beer. It was the first that day. Leaving Chesterville he was bound for Winchester and South Mountain. He said his speed was 30 to 35 miles an hour. The truck was capable of a speed of 40 to 45 miles an hour.

It was his custom to slow down when meeting a funeral but on April 1st he did not think it necessary because the road ahead was clear. He was on his right side of the road, he said.

Says Truck was Hit

At the point of impact, St. Amour said he was probably going 30 miles an hour. "The Summers car came out of line in front of me," the truck driver said in answer to a question as to the cause of the accident. "The Summers car crossed the center-line of the road and my running board was hit."

"The Summers car hit me. I did not hit it," St. Amour said. "At the time the Summers car hit my left running board it also hit the back of the left front wheel, turning the truck in the direction of my left-side of the road. I fought the steering wheel to keep the truck straight on the road and all of a sudden took a right turn into the ditch"

St. Amour said he could not remember hitting the car of Myles Harper or the Thomas car.

The brakes were in perfect working order, the witness said. "At the time of the accident I don't know whether I put on the brakes or stepped on the gas," he added.

Bernard "Bud" Shaver of Ottawa, who was in the truck with St. Amour said it was not the custom for Shell Oil Co. drivers to pay any attention to anyone waving from another car as a warning to slow down when those giving the warning had no authority to do so.

Stopped "Too Fast"

The man in the car behind wrote the department of highways asking for the cancellation of the permit of the driver of the car ahead. " His brakes were out of order because he stopped too fast."

Another man had a clear road to go ahead. He passed four or five cars easily, then found another approaching and had to get back into line. It was a case of get out of the way or a collision, but one of the drivers in line refused to make room and an accident was narrowly averted. Then he sent in a complaint to the department.

The famed beggar on horseback now rides in a motor car. Officials of the department of highways receive hundreds of complaints. Those that have merit, even if suspension does not result, are filed against the driver's record. But character and bad temper are revealed in many a letter, and truth often is hard to find.

Yet, when a man's brakes are out of order because he stopped too fast, somebody is entitled to laugh. — Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Beautiful Boat

People interested in the Great Lakes and its ships will be glad to learn that the steamer Manitoba is again to be seen in Port Arthur this season. It is a good many years since the Manitoba, built at Owen Sound, to replace the wrecked Algoma, one of the three brought across the ocean from the Clyde for the Lake service of the C. P. R., first appeared in these waters. Never since has there been a boat constructed with as beautiful lines or deemed more seaworthy than the Manitoba and there are many Port Arthur people who have fond recollections of happy trips, in some cases honeymoons on this fine vessel. Her new route will include the beautiful north channel and island section of Georgian Bay and should prove popular wth travellers.—Port Arthur News- Chronicle.

Settlement Centres

The idea of forming little centres surrounded by the farms of the inhabitants, is, of course, nothing new. It was the system throughout Europe and especially in France all through the Middle Ages, a system enforced by perilous times and affording the maximum of protection to the farmer. Traces of the same agreement still survive in this province, although the comparatively quick and easy settlement of the country did not make it so necessary. We should be surprised if the settlement centres idea, if it is given a fair tral over a period of time, did not help a lot in keeping people on the land. If it does it will have accomplished a very great deal. In far too many of our colonization schemes "back to the land" has been merely a preliminary to "abck to the city again." — Montreal Star.

Capital Punishment

In discussion before committee at Ottawa of capital punishment and methods it was pointed out that in Britain, where capital punishment was rigidly enforced, only one person out of every 634,000 committed murder, whereas in United States, where seven states had no capital punishment and throughout the Republic there was not the same certainty of conviction, one person out of every 12,000 committed murder. Comparisons are not, however, to be accepted of face value. United States' population is made up of a different mixture of nationalities brought together under conditions which are not as conducive to law observance as in England. — Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

Exploded

While the civil war in Spain may be ruining a country and a nation, it certainly is proving one thing — and that is that all the stories we have heard about the "annihilating" effects of the modern apparatus of war are without very much foundation. In other words, the machinery of war to-day would appear to be very much what it was during the Great War — deadly enough and destructive enough, but certainly not "completely annihilating" by any means. —Halifax Herald.

Scottish Revival

The broad wave of business revival that started in England has extended to Scotland. Ship-building, engineering and other capital industries are sharing in better times, and a shortage of skilled labor is reported in a number of these and other industries. Coal mining enjoyed an increasing market last year, and the textile industries were active. There leading Liberal, but of late owned and published by Fred B. Davies, son of Rupert Davies of the Kingston Whig, has been bought by Arthur Rogers, Jr., owner of the News, and has also been a notable decrease in the number of persons drawing public relief. — Calgary Herald.

Courtesy Defied

Courtesy is the thing which will reduce the number of accidents. It is a mark of good breeding. It commands respect. It is polish that welcomes the customer, cheers the fellow-worker and makes the day easier for everyone. Courtesy is a recognition of the rights of others. It is that we all want for ourselves. To be courteous, therefore, is to practice the Golden Rule. — Chatham News.

Another Newspaper Amalgamation

Kincardine, the last two in Bruce county to have two newspapers, has become a one weekly newspaper town by the amalgamation of the Kincardine Review-Reporter and the Kincardine News. The former, once published by the late J. J. Hunter, the two papers have been merged. Political antagonism is dying in all parts of Ontario, and merchants, when counting costs, cannot longer see the advisability of advertising in two newspapers in their territory, particularly when one gives them complete coverage and service, any more than they would want to support two post offices, or two telephone systems in the same trading area. There are very few places left in Ontario where business men support a dual system and dip down into their pockets for sentimental persons.—Amherstburg Echo.

Home Improvement

As the Home Improvement Plan gets under way in Canada, it is interesting to note what a similar movement has done in the U.S.A. Properties improved under the proceeds of insured notes since the plan was started in the summer of 1934 include nearly 1,000,000 homes, 250,000 two-family houses and apartments and 150,000 other properties, including business and industrial buildings, hotels, orphanages, colleges, churches and farms. In addition, Federal Housing Administration officials estimate that their better housing campaign has generated over $2,000,000,000 worth of modernization and repair work which does not show in its own records.

In the Spring

Smiths Falls Record-News — The spring training season is here. Police Chief John Lees told the Record-News this week that local bluecoats have been very busy dashing about town at the request of various householders to halt street baseball games in all part of the town. The combined lure of warm weather and dry streets proved too powerful for local lads to resist and as a result hard-fought baseball and softball games were being run off on the pavements in the various parts of the town. Police advise the youngsters to play their ball on the fields provided, pointing out that serious accidents may result out of the street games.

THE EMPIRE

Stronger Than Ever

Belfast Telegraph, — This will be the first Coronation of a British King to take place since the Great War. When we look back to the time before that world tragedy we are impressed with the fact that the British Monarchy has, if anything greatly strengthened its hold on the people. Great empires have fallen into ruins, Germany, Russia, Austria-Hungary and Turkey. Once-despotic rulers have been hurled from their thrones and driven into exile, happy to escape with their lives, but Britain retains her old institutions. In fact, the recent changes have made her citizens realize more than ever the value of a Constitutional King in a world where dictators strut across the stage and issue dictates which none dare to disobey in matters affecting the inner lives of their subjects. When the Coronation of King George V took place at Westminster Abbey in June, 1911, it could not have been foreseen that such a tempest of war would have swept all over the world as that which befell between 1914 and 1918. Yet it did not shake the solid structure of the Throne.

Store Stylist Voices Opinion

Merger Confirmed

OTTAWA. — Senator Raoul Dandurand, Acting Prime Minister, confirmed that negotiations between the Dominion and British Columbia Governments over the Yukon Territory, have reached an advanced stage.

At the conclusion of a Cabinet meeting Senator Dandurand said the statement made in Victoria by Premier T. D. Pattulla, was substantially correct. At that time Premier Pattullo said British Columbia would acquire the Yukon, agreement with the Dominion having been reached. Negotiations were conducted by Premier Pattullo and Mines Minister Crerar, now on his way to London for the Coronation.

Senator Dandurand said the agreement would be approved formally by the two governments before ratification by Parliament. This would mean a year's delay before administration of the territory would be transferred.

Under the agreement, the Dominion will retain Federal services like Postoffices, Indian Affairs and Customs.

Dairy Fined 16 Times

MONTREAL. — Sixteenth conviction in a year was registered this week against Laiterie Perfection for selling milk below the price set by the Dairy Commission Act. The dairy was fined $200 for selling three uarts and two pints of milk for forty cents, two cents below the set price.

Married Half Century

BRAMPTON. — This week marked the golden wedding anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. James Stephens, who, since their marriage at Newcastle, England, have been residents of Brampton. Both were born near Liskeard in Cornwall, and both are 79.

As a young man working near Newcastle, Mr. Stephens became dissatisfied with the wages he was receiving, and decided to leave the Old Country for Canada. Mary Ann Husband joined him. They were married and left within several days for Brampton, where the groom's elder brother had already found himself a home.

Plant 25,000 Trees

ALTON. — A large gang of workmen started work planting 25,000 trees on the farm of G. R. E. Grange, 31, Chicora Ave., Toronto.

The property, which was puchased by Mr. Grange last summer, is used by the owner for a summer home. It is divided by the River Credit and is situated just east of the C.P.R. station.

The work of planting this young forest is under the direction of W. H. Martin, who for some years had charge of the Government nurseries at Midhurst. The trees being planted are of a large variety and each species is picked to suit the soil on which it will grow. Scores are plowed six feet apart and the young trees are planted in holes made by a shovel. The large number of trees, which were brought here by truck, are heeled in so that the roots are covered with damp soil to keep them from dying out until the time for planting arrives. An area of from 19 to 20 acres will be planted. The species used will consist of black locust, black cherry, Norway spruce, Japanese larch, elm, red oak, soft maple, red pine, hard maple, butternut, white ash, walnut, red cedar, Scotch pine, white cedar.

160-Foot Trestle Built in 18 Hours

TORONTO. — The C.N.R. main line between London and Toronto is open again after having been blocked by a washout and train wreck at Beachville which took the lives of the train's engineer and fireman.

Working at top speed to clear the line, railway construction crews accomplished the surprising feat of building a trestle 100 feet long in 18 hours. It replaces the washed out section at Beachville.

After the trestle was erected 50 carloads of cinders were dumped in to make a 12-foot fill.

Over this trestle the Chicago-Montreal train, due in Toronto at 3.45 a.m., passed in safety and the main line traffic resumed.

Market Plans Ready

REGINA. — Almost immediately Canada will set up a marketing organization in England, with headuarters in London, it is announced here by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture.

The organization, Mr. Gardiner said, will be under supervision of A. M. Shaw, formerly of the University of Saskatchewan and new head of the marketing division of the Federal Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Shaw will not be stationed in England, though he probably will have to make periodical trips across. The Government is now negotiating with a man who will be in direct charge of the organization.

The person selected to take charge of the London office, will have the title of "Agricultural Products Commissioner." He will gather all possible information as to requirements of British buyers of Canadian products, relaying that information back to Canada.

Complete Last Link World Air Service

HONGKONG.—A 30-year dream of round-the-world air service became reality with the arrival of the Hongkong Clipper from Manila on the first regular flight between the two cities.

The Clipper, bridging the last 700-mile gap in the North America-Asia service, placed the final link in an airplane chain whereby it is possible to encircle the world in less than a month, using scheduled commercial planes.

The craft brought 2,500 pounds of cargo, including 100,000 letters and newspapers.

Duke Completes Plans to Move To France

ST. WOLFGANG, Austria.—The Duke of Windsor has completed plans to leave for Paris and Monts, France, to join Mrs. Wallis Simpson as soon as her final decree of divorce is awarded.

Scotland Yard men who have guarded the Duke here have been instructed to accompany him and remain at the Chateau de Cande, where Mrs. Simpson is staying.

The Duke has promised to advise newspaper correspondents when he decides to leave. Villagers of St. Wolfgang are arranging a farewell "fest" in his honor.

Symptoms in Pupils Reveal Mental Cases

SMITHS FALLS.—Addressing an audience of more than 200 here, Dr. F. A. Jones, principal of the Ottawa Normal school, declared that much of the mental illness existing today might be averted, through the recognition by teachers of symptoms in the pupils in their classes.

Dr. Jones mentioned the seclusive pupil as an example. In these cases steps should be taken by parents and teachers to investigate conditions. Otherwise, he said, the child might eventually become a suicide.

The speaker said boys and girls of today were fully as wholesome and as intelligent as their parents. He spoke of education as "big business", pointing out that 140 million dollars was spent annually in Canada in teaching the young.

Walks Miles to Learn How to Cook

HALIFAX.—The old saying, "If she could only cook," won't be popular here if Nova Scotia women retain their apparent eagerness for training in domestic science and home economics. In four of the short courses sponsored by the Provincial Department of Agriculture, attendance reached the 500 mark. In one district, women walked seven miles to attend.

Quits As McGill Head

MONTREAL.—Arthur E. Morgan has resigned as Principal of McGill University, it was announced this week because he considered it "in the best interests of the university." He assumed the post a year ago last Sept. 1.

The announcement, made after a meeting of the Board of Governors and the Senate of McGill, said the reasons for the resignation were best explained in letters exchanged between him and Sir Edward Beatty, Chancellor of the university.

"For some time," said one letter to Sir Edward, "it has been apparent that you and other members of the Board of Governors did not see eye to eye with me in regard to the relation of the Principalship to the Governors.

"We have nad several talks on the subject during the past year, and it now seems clear to me that it would be in the best interests of the university for me to ask you to convey to the board my request to be relieved of my office from May 31 next. I gather from you that this course would be acceptable to the board."

Plan to Move Farmers

REGINA— No wholesale movement of farm population is contemplated under the Federal Prairie rehabilitation plan, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, announced here this week.

Plans are not far enough advanced to determine definitely whether there will be any movement at all, and in any case it would only possibly apply to a small fraction of the entire population in the entire area involved, he said.

If any migration was undertaken, the Government would not undertake to move the people and provide them with the new land, the Minister said. It would be a question rather of the people moving themselves, possibly through a co-operative plan.

With surveys for the rehabilitation plan practically completed in four areas, a meeting will be held early next month at which will be represented the Governments of the three Prairie Provinces, mortgage and loan companies, banks, railways, municipal organizations and the Hudson's Bay Company.

Information to be supplied to the conference will include soil condition, rainfall, crop returns and ownership of the land, Mr. Gardiner said.

60 p.c. of Those On Relief From Building Trades

Home Improvement Plan Is Expected to Put Many of Them to Work

It is estimated that between 50 and 80 per cent of the men on relief in Canada are attached directly or indirectly to the building trades, and one purpose of the Home Iprovement Plan, in conection with which a local committee has been formed, is given a stimulus to building which will help to put these men to work.

H. M. Purser, district representative of the Plan, says that it is hoped that as a result of the work now being undertaken some 60,000 of those men will be off the relief rolls and in jobs by June 1st.

That in itself will be quite an achievement but in accomplishing it the further result will be that many homes will be made more attractive and more comfortable, more really deserving of that peculiarly Anglo-Saxon title "home."

The plan enables the home owner to secure a loan which will permit him to rearrange the rooms of his house, make repairs and additions, install new electrical, plumbing or heating equipment, do painting or paperhanging, or fix up the yard.

The plan is only getting started so far as the Sault is concerned but in other places a large number of loans have already been made. 389 in Toronto, for example, and 271 in Montreal.

There is an opportunity in it for Sault contractors and Sault home owners.

Will Be Shooting In The Dark

There are still a large number of men who seem to believe that the mere fact of a bull's being pure-bred will insure high producing daughters from him, but thousands have found out to their sorrow that there are a great many "black sheep" among the pure breds. Until every dairy farmer selects his bull on the basis of performance of his near ancestors or of his daughters he will be "shooting in the dark," so far as the improvement of his herd is concerned.

Quirks of the Flood

Anticipating the collapse of the Thames Street bridge in Ingersoll, a South Side baker made extra deliveries to the North Side Tuesday on night. In the middle of the night the bridge was swept away and his competitors were cut off from their customers in the morning.

In flood-ravaged Tillsonburg, where damage was estimated at $100,000 and waters surged through the business streets, Robert Hambleton, a theatre manager, took out a $25,000 building permit. He planned to erect new stores and apartment houses.

Forty-eight thousand eggs in a chick hatchery were spoiled at Dunnville when high water interrupted the Hydro power. The eggs were in electric incubators.

GRANT'S PASS, Ore.—O. B. Cox bought a cow and locked her in his barn. She was missing the next day and the barn was still locked. The mystery remained unsolved until Cox went to his hay loft. Hamilton Firm Given $150,000 Kingston Job

KINGSTON — Contract for the erection of the new Craine biochemistry building at Queen's University, to cost about $150,000, has been awarded to the Frid Construction Company of Hamilton. The new building is made possible by the bequest of the late Dr. Craine of Smiths Falls, one of the first women medical graduates of Queen's, who willed more than $300,000 to the university.

Pact Is Signed

TORONTO— After two extended sessions Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer of the Ontario Department of Labor, announced that an agreement had been reached between McKinnon Industries, St. Catharines, and the company's employees. This agreement is substantially along the general lines of the Oshawa and Windsor General Motors' agreements, with special provisions as to wages and hours for the St. Catharines plant.

Mr. Fine sat in at two sessions during which the terms of the agreement were reached. It now awaits approval of a general meeting. The company was represented at the hearing by Harry Carmichael and W. A. Wecker, general manager of the plant. The employees were represented by J. L. Cohen and a negotiating committee.

Love Huntress

By H. GLYNN-WARD

Claudia Townsend meets Dick Whalen at a hockey game in Seattle one night. Her interest in Dick infuriates Wallace Bornell, rich young lumberman, who wants her to marry him. To get Dick out of the way, Wallace offers him a job in one of his lumber camps in British Columbia. Meanwhile, Claudia has found a job for Dick in Seattle. Bornell, however, manages to keep this news from Dick. Dick goes to the lumber camp, and there discovers that Bornell company is stealing timber. He asks for an explanation, but Braddock, the boss, puts him off and next day leaves for Seattle. The following day, Claudia stops in at Bornell's office and, by chance, overhears Bornell and Braddock plotting to do away with Dick. She decides to go to Burns Lake herself to warn Dick, but Braddock sees her on the boat, and manages to arrive at the camp before she does.

CHAPTER VII

When Braddock arrived at the camp, he immediately sent for Jenkins, the overseer. Jenkins reported that everything had gone on quietly during his absence.

"I want to see Moriarty," Braddock said. "Tell him to come to my office now, at once."

Moriarty was the man who had been scaler before Whalen had ousted him from the job.

Braddock sat down at his desk to wait. He took up a cigar, lit it, then felt in the drawer at his hand for the revolver that he always kept there, loaded. The man who was coming in had a black past.

Moriarty opened the door and peered into the room.

"Come right in, man!" said Braddock.

Moriarty came in, leaving the door ajar behind him.

"Shut the door," Braddock ordered. "Lock it—I want to speak to you!"

"What's all this about, boss? I ain't done nothin'——"

Braddock laughed.

"Sit down. Seems to me you're afraid o' something, Mister Moriarty?"

"You're wrong!" said the man quickly, dropping into a chair. "I'm afraid o' nothin! What's the game?"

"Maybe I'd act that way, too, if I expected to see a cop round every corner, reminding me o' my past history!" said Braddock.

"What d'you mean?" Moriarty sat forward belligerently. "If you're jokin'—well, you're jokin' wi' the wrong party, see!"

Braddock smiles.

"Moriarty—or I might say Murphy!"—he watched the other man start—"was you ever in Boise, Idaho?"

"How come you know anything about Murphy? And Boise?"

"Hm! Let me tell you that there ain't much Braddock don't know about the men he has working for him!"

Moriarty was cornered, and he knew it.

"Well, what are you going to do about it?"

"Nothing!"

Moriarty stared at him, astonished.

"I'm a great man to mind my own business, Moriarty! If another man feels it best to take a change of air—and a change o' name along with it—why, I'm not interefering. But—I expect him to be grateful enough to do me a favor once in a while!"

"Favor?" said Moriarty gruffly. "What's your price?"

"I'm thinking,' Braddock said slowly, "of sending you along with that fellow Whalen to look over some timber we got at the east end o' Tchesinkut Lake—"

"Whalen! But I hate the sight o' him——"

"You hate him? Well, that'll make it easy—" Braddock leaned forward over the desk. "That's the favor I'm asking—you come back alone!"

The other man's face changed. A sinister smile twisted his mouth.

"So that's the game, eh? Well, if I put him where he rightly belongs, what do I get out of it? I take all the risk!"

Braddock frowned. "Well," he said. "I'll give you a thousand dollars and your time when you come back and report to me here."

"One thousand——"

"That's all you'll get! Now then—let's get down to brass tacks . . . This thing has got to look like an accident, see? We'll have to report his death at once. Mustn't be no gun-play, mind! Keep him out all night and get him in his sleep—or something! Report frozen to death, or smothered, or—well, I leave it to you. You come home and report it to me in great excitement. I'll give you a thousand in notes and your time. You quit. Clear out for Japan or the South Sea Islands, where it's a bit cooler than here!"

"When do we go?"

"I'm coming to that. You'll go bright and early tomorrow morning. Now then, Moriarty, go back to the bunkhouse, without saying a word to anybody about seeing me. In a few minutes I'll send the night-watchman to fetch both you and Whalen here. I'll tell you both I want you to go out on business for me, scaling timber, see? You haven't heard nothing o' this before I tell you in front of him, get me?"

"I get you all right."

"Now off with you!"

Ten minutes later Whalen was aroused from sleep by the night-watchman with a message. He was wanted in the office. Hastily throwing on some clothes, Dick ran across to Braddock's office.

The manager greeted him pleasantly.

"Where's that other fellow, Moriarty? I need the two of you to do a bit of timber-cruising for us . . . . While we're waiting for him, Whalen—Mr. Wallace Bornell told me he'd write to you himself about that other little matter."

Moriarty came in, hair rumpled.

"I went South," Braddock began, "on the question of opening up a camp in the Spring on some timber limits we got down near the east end o' Tchesinkut Lake. They want figures down in Seattle right away. I want you to start at dawn or before—round four o'clock, so that you can be back here at night. The earlier you start the better. Better get back to bed now and get some sleep, all you can."

If Dick felt surprised he didn't show it, nor did he let either man see how distasteful to him was the company chosen for him. It was all in the day's work, he supposed.

"You best take charge o' the maps, Moriarty seeing at you know the lie o' this part o' the country better than Whalen."

Dick went back to bed without feeling much curiosity or even interest. The trip would relieve the monotony. The fact that they had picked him for the job showed, he thought sleepily, that he might have been wrong in his former suspicions. Otherwise they would never have trusted him to find new timber limits and size up their value for them.

When Claudia Townsend reached the inn at Burns Lake, she immediately asked the way to the Bornell lumber camp. She was told that it was quite impossible for her to get there before the next morning.

She chafed at the delay. If Braddock had gone straight out there, Dick was in immediate danger. But there was nothing to be done about it. She was tired from her long journey so she decided to get a good night's sleep and ordered a sleigh to call for her at dawn.

"You expected at the camp?" the inn-keeper asked her.

"Ye-es," said Claudia.

"There ain't, as you might say, any sort o' preparation for women down there! No women in that camp at all."

U. S. Newspapers Gain In Ads

Survey Reveals Increase of 12.5 Per Cent In 1936 Reported

NEW YORK, — Reporting that 44 cents of each advertising dollar spent in 1936 went to newspapers, the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Ashociation asserted that greater promotion will return greater benefits to the newspaper business.

"Newspapers have the greatest medium and the largest present-day volume of advertising," said the report, signed by Chairman Edwin S. Friendly. "This volume will grow if we are willing to promote it on a scale equal to the efforts of competing mediums."

Newspapers generally, he said, are more nearly conscious of this opportunity than ever before.

Newspapers received approximately $188,000,000 in revenue from national advertisers in 1936, Friendly said, as compared to $167,000,000 in 1935, a gain of 12.5 per cent.

Dividing the average advertising dollar, he said newspapers received 44 cents, magazines 33.6 cents, car cards 5-10 of a cent, chain broadcasts 14 cents and outdoor advertising mediums 7.9 cents.

The bureau reported to the A. N. P. A. the admission of 15 new newspapers to membership in 1936 and the resignation of 10.

Belgium Seeking More Trade With Canada

OTTAWA.—Canadian trade with Belgium, which totalled $30,000,000 last year, will be more than doubled it is believed, as a result of the forthcoming visit to Canada of some twenty or twenty-five representative businessmen from Belgium. Under the guiding hand of Baron Silvercruys, the enterprising young Belgian Minister, who came to Ottawa at the New Year, the party will visit Toronto, Montreal and other industrial centres of the Dominion. The purpose of the mission is to lay the foundation for enduring relations between the two countries and Baron Silvercruys sees no reason why an annual two-way trade of $70,000,000 should not be established.

Jelly Comes to the Rescue

Perhaps you have always thought that quick-setting jelly could be used only to make glowing dessert dishes or, in a pinch, a molded salad. We are out to dispel that idea and here are some recipes which prove that quick-setting jelly has an infinite variety of uses which will endear it to the hearts of busy homemakers. These packages of jelly in bright colors and various flavors can come to your rescue on numerous occasions when you feel you just can't make a meal out of what is left over and yet you can't throw the scraps away.

Here are two delicious recipes that can form the main course of any meal, company or otherwise, and yet they are so cheaply and easily prepared that it will astonish you. But once you have tasted them, it won't astonish you to find that the family will want them again and again.

Piquant Tongue Mold

1 Package quick-setting lemon jelly, 1 pint warm water, 2½ tablespoons vinegar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon scraped onion, 3½ cups boiled tongue—finely chopped, ½ cup dill pickles—finely chopped, ½ cup mayonnaise.

Dissolve jelly in warm water. Add vinegar and salt. Chill until cold and syrupy. Place in bowl of cracked ice or ice water and whip with rotary egg beater until fluffy and thick like whipped cream. Fold in onion, tongue, pickles and mayonnaise. Turn into loaf pan. Chill until firm. Unmold. Garnish with crisp lettuce and radishes. Serves 10.

If you have had chicken on Sunday, then here is the perfect dish for Monday:

Molded Chicken Loaf

1 Package quick-setting lemon jelly, 2 cups warm chicken stock, free from fat, 1 cup chicken—cut in small pieces, ½ cup celery—finely chopped, ¼ cup green pepper—finely chopped, 1 teaspoon scraped onion, 2 tablespoons pimento—finely chopped, 2 tablespoons vinegar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup stuffed olives—chopped, dash of cayenne, dash of Worcestershire sauce.

Dissolve jelly in warm stock. Chill. Combine remaining ingredients. When jelly is slightly thickened, fold in chicken mixture. Turn into loaf pan. Chill until firm. Unmold. Serve in slices. Or mold in ring mold and serve as salad garnished with mayonnaise. Serves 8.

The Tempting Omelet

There is nothing terrifying about attempting an omelet.

Omelet-making is not an overcrowded profession, and any one showing marked gifts in that direction is credited with a skill amounting almost to wizardry.

Catch hold of this frying pan. It is a thick iron one and is kept exclusively for the making of omelets. It is not washed after use, but is simply wiped clean with a cloth or tissue paper.

Its bottom is perfectly flat so that it cannot reel about on the gas-ring or over whatever hot flame the omelet is going to be cooked. The flame must be hot and the pan must be hot, because speed is the essence of good omelet-making.

Slow cooking means toughness. For this reason, do not put more eggs into the pan that will form a thinnish layer on the bottom.

A Plain One

Since the plain omelet is the basis of a thousand others, we will make one.

Let the pan get hot, and place in it a piece of butter, which, when melted, will do no more than just cover the bottom of the pan. Three eggs is a handy number to start practice on. Break them into a basin, and beat them just enough to mix the yolks and the whites, adding a seasoning of pepper and salt.

A teaspoon chopped parsely may also go into the bowl. Pour the eggs into the pan and let them spread evenly over it.

Shake the pan very gently to prevent sticking, and when the under part of the omelet starts to set, lift up its edges with a thin knife and let more liquid, upper part run down below.

Serve at Once

Before the middle has quite set, fold the omelet over with the knife, and carefully slide it out of the pan onto a hot dish.

Serve it instantly. Commit any other faux pas you like, but never keep an omelet waiting.

After all, it has not kept you waiting, for an omelet is quick magic. Two or three minutes does the whole trick.

"There is still one place in the world where we can find peace—the heart of a child."

—George Jessel.
