MOTHER DESERTS HER YOUNG SON

BOY HAS TO BE SENT TO THE HOSPITAL FOR TREATMENT

Gerald Bilow, son of Mrs. Bilow and the late Sam Bilow, was taken to Cornwall yesterday by Dr. McKendry for treatment. From the story told the Press it would seem like a case of a mother deserting her son. A short time ago Mrs. Bilow rented her home here, and for a few days she and her boy stopped at the home of Clare Helmer. Last week Mrs. Bilow went away and is now living near Beckett's Landing. Yesterday the boy Gerald, who has just passed his 16th birthday, took ill, and Dr. McKendry found him with a temperature of over 103 and pains that would indicate kidney trouble or appendicitis. An effort was made to communicate with the mother, yesterday morning, and word was left at the place she is supposed to be stopping that her son was very ill and required immediate attention. Yesterday afternoon Dr. J. J. McKendry reported the young boy with a temperature of 104 and said that he should be looked after. As Mr. Helmer has his own homestead to look after, and only a small home, he notified the Reeve that something would have to be done to take care of the boy. After consultation with the doctor, who pronounced it a serious case requiring immediate attention, he was asked to have the lad taken to the General Hospital at Cornwall, and this was done. It is one of those cases that there appears to be no law compelling a mother to be responsible for her son after he has reached the age of 16 years, and in this case he becomes the case of the municipality.

Counterfeit Coins Being Circulated

Counterfeit coins of three kinds are in circulation in this district at the present time, and a general warning has been issued to merchants and business men to beware of bad quarters, dimes and fifty-cent pieces The half-dollars and quarters emanate from the same source. They are pure lead, easily distinguishable from the genuine variety in that they are dull in color, and very noticeably lack the true ring of the mint-coined pieces. Of such poor material is their composition that one man who was victimized with two or three of the fifty-cent pieces found that when the spurious coin was placed on a hot stove it melted. The material does not seem much harder than solder. The dimes are somewhat different, and might deceive any but close observers. They are small coppers, dipped in some material to represent silver. The "one-cent" legend has first been filed off, and all that can be seen is the King's head, and the "Georgins Dei Gratia," etc.

Took Revenge For Dismissal in Novel Way

Ottawa, April 5.—A former Ottawa civil servant, to revenge himself on a prominent government official who had recommended his dismissal, took note of lost articles in Ottawa newspapers, would telephone the advertiser, and representing himself as the finder, would ask them to call at a given address (that of his former chief) when he would receive the article that was lost.

This same former civil servant also left dozens of orders by telephone with Ottawa merchants for goods to be delivered and for work to be done at the residence of his former chief.

Is Told in Annual Report.

This is reported by Superintendent J. W. Phillips, officer commanding the Eastern Ontario division of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, in the annual report of the R.C.M.P.

In discussing the nuisance committed by the former civil servant, Superintendent Phillips states that he always used a pay telephone. "Finally he was cornered in a local drug store by the use of a double telephone system installed temporarily in the detective office at Ottawa," stated the superintendent. "On being brought in by the detectives he admitted his guilt. He turned out to be an ex-civil servant who had been recommended for discharge by the official complaining to us, but on whom not actually caught in the act."

TWO LIBERAL GROUPS

TORONTO, April 6.—It has been authoriatively informed, the Mail and Empire says today, that there is a strong possibility of two distinct Liberal groups contesting the next Ontario general election.

One will be headed by Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., Ontario Liberal chieftain, if he chooses to run, the paper says. The other faction, if it materializes, according to the Mail, will have either W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., Liberal leader in the legislature or Dr. George A. McQuibban, his whip, as directing head.

ON TRIP TO BURMUDA

Dr. and Mrs. McKendry left yesterday for New York where they will take steamer on a ten days trip to Burmuda, Havana, and other ports on the Atlantic coast, where soft breezes flow, and tourists are every hour given something new to enjoy. Dr. McKendry says he and Mrs. McKendry have had few holidays in the past ten years and they think the ten days' trip will do them a world of good. That they may heartily enjoy every hour of their vacation is the sincere wish of their many friends.

World Events

THE PAST WEEK HAS BEEN A MOST EVENTFUL ONE IN WORLD AFFAIRS

Telegraph, telephone, radio, wireless, makes the world small, and events that fifty years ago would not be heard of in small communities, or until weeks later in distant cities, are the gossip of the public a few hours after the happening.

One of the more tragic events was one that has happened in the neighboring Republic, when on Monday last the great state airship Akron, the largest ever built, and the size of which can be imagined when we say that it would take more than a 20 acre field to hold it, and it would be higher than any building in Winchester piled up three or four times, more than twice as high as the spire of the Winchester United Church and nearly 800 feet in length became a total wreck with a los of 73. This great bering 76. Within a few hours it was a total wreck in the Atlantic Ocean, and only three survivors. The cause of the disaster is not definitely known, but it burst into flames, and the first conclusion was that it had been struck by lightning. Another is that the fire started inside. Anyway, what was a very happy party, full of life, vigor and hope, was within a few hours, smothered in the great Atlantic. The party included many men of eminence and great learning, and the tragedy has stirred the whole world. Another small airshap with a crew of seven started out to see if it could pick up any possible survivors, and it too was wrecked and five of the seven lost their lives.

Events are transpiring between England and Russia that are revealing to the world what a really "God Forsaken" place Russia has become.

The arrest of a number of English gentlemen connected with a large manufacturing establishment doing business in that country, led to a protest from the British authorities, and demand for particulars as to why the men were arrested, the nature of the charges against them, and a request that they be allowed their liberty on proper bail being furnished. To those reguests the Soviet rulers at Moscow gave a curt "No," and the British Ambassador who was recalled to London tells of "ways that are dark and treacherous" in the inner circles of Moscow, that makes one feel that the land of Russia is passing through a period never dreamed of under the rule of the Czar, and that the masses of the people are more thoroughly under military rule there than in any other part of the world.-

In Germany the Jews are being not only persecuted, but murdered. Hitler is practically king where once the Kaiser ruled supreme, and his hatred for the Jews has led all Jews being boycotted in business, being driven from all the professions, Jewish children are denied the right to attend the public schools. Those Jews who are able and willing to leave Germany are forbidden except with special permission, although many thousands of them have been able to find shelter in more friendly countries. The action of Germany's new ruler, Hitler, has aroused world-wide indignation, and protests have been sent there from the United States, England, France, and other countries. What the outcome will be time alone can tell.

The big stone residence on Sherbrooke Street, Montreal, of the late William Van Horne, who was so prominent with the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was destroyed by fire a few days ago, and it is stated that art treasures to the value of over $500,000 were destroyed. To an ordinary person it seems that paintings for the wall, draperies, china and glassware to the value of half a million dollars could hardly be housed in one home. Of course the value is partly fictious, but no doubt they cost what is estimated, and Sir William was a rich man. The jewels of the Czar of Russia were once valued at millions, and now they are scattered all over the world. If you want a diamond, emereld, ruby, painting or beautiful piece of china very bad, and are willing and able to pay a big price for them, they are worth that much to you. To the person who cares nothing for such, their value is practically nil. So there you are.

In the United States President Roosevelt is keeping things humming, and there is without doubt a more hopeful feeling and business is reported as picking up all through the United States. Thousands of unemployed have been put to work, and measures to relieve the farmers and give them an even break are now being taken at Washington. It looks as though the coming summer would see a return of prosperity in a modified form in the United States.

The earthquakes that brought disasters to certain parts of California a couple of weeks ago seem to have been almost forgotten as other startling world events come to public view. With a hopefulness and optimism so characteristic of the West, the damage caused by the earthquake is being repaired, and it has given employment to hundreds who before the disaster did not know where their next meal was coming from.

There have been an unusual number of deaths of prominent men and women during the past week, and the young as well as the aged have answered the call that has taken their spirits from this to another world. Each death brings its sorrow to the immediate circle of friends, and lives that seem so useful, so important, and to some even indispensible, have been snuffed out, and their places, their work, will be carried on by others.

An important meeting between Premier Ramsey MacDonald of England, and President Roosevelt, is announced to take place at Washington during Easter week, when matters of great importance to the two nations and to the whole world will be discussed. That there is a more friendly feeling and better understanding between the United States and Great Britain is evident from the many expressions of the press and public men in both countries. And this is as it should be, and together Great Britain and the United States could practically dictate to all the other nations.

MATTERS POLITICAL

Rumors And Still Rumors, But Premier Henry Still Holds The Fort, And Evidently The Confidence Of The Legislature.

During the past week the daily newspapers, and particularly those not friendly to Premier Henry and the Ontario Government, have broadcast all sorts of rumors as to what was to take place at Queen's Park, Toronto Premier Henry was to resign this week. His successor was picked as Attorney-General Price. Others had it that there would be an immediate appeal to the electors. In fact the daily papers were virtually keeping the whole province on the jump, and they could not tell what was to happen. It was, and has been, a sort of political earthquake, tumbling down men in high authority, and politically digging the graves of others. But in the midst of it all Premier Henry seems to be holding his head, as well as the reins of power. After his scalp are not only ambitious politicians, but the beer and wine gang, who want him dethroned, and want beer and wine again put where it will be easily got, to debauch, debase and destroy the young men of our province.

Another rumor is, and it is given prominence in the daily press of this morning, that Hon. G. H. Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner at London, is sailing on Saturday for Canada. For what no one is prepared to say, but many are guessing. Premier Bennett at Ottawa says he has not heard of the intended visit to Canada of the High Commissioner. Perhaps it is only another rumor, broadcast for a purpose. If the High Commissioner is wisely advised he will remain in London. Ontario to-day knows who to thank for its great burden of taxation, and is not likely to forget it either.

Another political rumor is that the esteemed member for Dundas County, Hon. George H. Challies, Provincial Secretary, is slated for the chairmanship of the Hydro Commission. Hon. Mr. Challies is well qualified for that

Barter Column To Appear In Next Week's Press

ADVTS. OFFERING EXCHANGE OF ARTICLES OR PRODUCTS WILL BE GIVEN FREE INSERTION

In these days when cash is scarce, many people have surplus articles which they would gladly barter for something they require. All over the country it is going on.

To facilitate barter among our readers the Winchester Press will open a "Swap and Barter Column" in next week's issue. Such columns are already in operation in a number of papers, and are serving a useful purpose.

To signalise the opening of this column, we are going to offer free insertion to all advertisements sent in offering to barter articles, produce or live stock for any other goods the advertiser may desire.

To qualify for this special offer the barter ads must comply with these conditions:

(1) Copy for barter ads must be in The Press office not later than 6 p.m. TUESDAY.

(2) Ads must not exceed 25 words.

(3) Ad. must contain name and address or telephone number, or both, of advertiser; box numbers will not be allotted.

(4) Ads. must make definite proposal for exchange, offering one article and suggesting another in return.

(5) Ads must bear signature of the advertiser.

(6) The free offer is good to subscribers of the Press only.

This offer does not apply to "For Sale," "Wanted" or other small advts., which will be classed at regular rates.

FARMERS TO GET BETTER PRICES

FINANCIAL RELIEF FOR ONTARIO MILK PRODUCERS AHEAD

TORONTO, April 5th.—Provincial government plan for financial relief of Ontario milk producers was announced today by J. N. Fairnbairn, deputy minister of agriculture, at a luncheon of the National Dairy Council of Canada in convention here. Mr Fairbairn's address featured the first day of the two-day annual meeting.

The scheme, said Mr. Fairbairn, will be officially announced soon by Hon. T. L. Kennedy, minister of agriculture. It aims, he said, to give assistance to every producer of milk, large or small, provided he is willing to purchase a high-grade bull with a known pedigree. This, he explained, will aid the dairymen and help increase the present low yield of dairy cows in the province.

The deputy minister did not reveal details but it was understood the provincial government would bonus dairy men up to a stated proportion of the cost of the bull, similar to the system now operating in Quebec.

Milk producers have filed demands for 50-50 representation with manufacturers of milk products on national council, "We are going to have a national voice," decared Frank M. Napier.

Will Agnes Be Left Seatless ?

TORONTO, April 6th.—The Mail and Empire today published a despatch from its Ottawa corespondent which reads in part, as follows:

"Toronto received two new seats and York county gets one, swelling the metropolitan representation in Parliament from 12 members to 15, under the redistribution plan, which was mutually agreed upon today by the majority of a special committee of the House of Commons.

"Broadly the scheme of redistribution, the Mail and Empire understands, calls for the elimination of five existing ridings to give the cities five more than their present allotment. The provincial representation as a whole remains at 82.

"Of the new urban seats, Toronto sets two, York gets one and Nipissing district gets one. Of the five rural seats for disappearance, one is South East Grey, now represented by Miss Agnes Macphail, only woman M.P., and another is South Perth, whose present member is Fred. G. Sanderson, Liberal whip for Ontario.

"Miss Macphail's riding will be merged, largely speaking, with South Bruce, which is represented by Dr. W. A. Hail, Liberal. Mr. Sanderson's constituency will be joined to Soutn Huron, the riding which returned Wm Goulding, Liberal, after a hot by-election last fall."

ON MOTOR TRIP

Mrs. A. Sweet left this morning in company with her daughter, Mrs. B. L. Carr and Mr. Carr, on a motor trip that will take in Toronto, Blenheim, Kingsville, and many other Western towns. Mr. and Mrs. Carr will pick up their son, Langton, who has been a student at St. Andrew's College, Aurora, and he will return home with them. The Press joins in wishing them a very pleasant and safe trip.

Special Services In United Church Here

Special Easter services will be held in the United Church, Winchester, beginning Sunday night, April 9th, and continuing till the evening of Friday, April 14th. There will be a different speaker for each service during the week, and the program for Winchester as follows:

Sunday, April 9th, Rev. E. R. Newman; subject, "The Cross and World Brotherhood."

Monday, April 10th, Rev. G. N. Maxwell; subject, "The Cross and Youth"

Tuesday, April 11th, Rev. C. J. Beckley; subject, "The Cross and Human Suffering."

Wednesday, April 12th, Rev. R. W. Carr; subject, "The Cross and the Home."

Thursday, April 13th, Rev. J. C. Eastcott; subject, "The Cross and Social Order.

Friday, April 14th, Rev. John MacKay; subject, "The Cross and Present World Situation."

To these services the public are cordially invited. The several subjects to be dealt with by the speakers, are ones that should appeal to the general public, for never was there a time when the world needs more of "The Cross," and unless religion can help largely to solve present day problems there is not much hope for the world.

ASK CHANGE IN COURSE

TORONTO — A group of public school teachers from various parts of Ontario waited upon Premier George S. Henry over the week-end asking a change in the act as applying to teachers' course of study.

It was contended teachers, after teaching for four years, are now forced to return to Normal school for an additional year, while many are not in a position to do this. It was suggested graduates of 1928 be granted certificates without having to attend the normal school course, or upon recommendation of the inspectors.

The Premier promised to consider the request.

COMING EVENTS

DR. CHRISTIE WILL SPEAK TO-NIGHT

To-night, in the Town Hall, the 100 Club of Winchester will entertain their farmer friends who have been fortunate enough to secure tickets. The event of the evening will be an address by Dr. Christie, Supt. of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, Ont., and a brother of Mr. Ernest Christie, of Winchester. Dr. Christie, who was born in Winchester, has had a large and varied experience in agricultural work, and before taking the position at Guelph was Supt. of an Agricultural College in the United States. He is practical, sensible and to the point in his remarks, and knows what he is taking about. It will be a real treat to hear him this evening.

WILL BE A SPEAKER

The "Canadian" published in connection with the school for the Deaf at Belleville, in its issue of April 1st, says:—"At a conference of superintendents of Schools for the Deaf, to be held concurrently, the chief matter for consideration will be the school curriculum, including a discussion of vocational work, especially to find out what is being done in regard to the placement of graduates through the influence of the school, and Mr. Fe terly is included in the list of speakers on this very important subject." Mr. Fetterly has also been chosen to a range an exhibit at the World's Fair to open at Chicago on June 1st.

MATTERS POLITICAL

position, but he has not either directly or indirectly given any hint that there is any foundation for the rumor.

Premier Henry yesterday made a great speech in the Legislature, and from reports, he has the ear and the sympathy of the people and the members of the Ontario House. His straightforward reply to opposition accusations, his well-known honesty in his long public life, are his best friends at the present time, and the people trust him.

HAPPINESS

By Lucy Carruth

Lord, teach Thy children how to feel
A shining happiness.
Open our half-blind eyes to see
How rich Thou dost bless.

The fairness of Thy sunshine's rays
The beauty of Thy skies,
The ripple of a child's sweet laugh,
A little home that cries.

It's welcome to the wanderer—
Such joys, which all can know,
Should surely be enough to set
Our very lives aglow.

Yesterday and tomorrow make
As nought to us, we pray.
Help us, unfearingly to grasp
The gladness of today.

OUR ASPIRATIONS

To be strong enough to gain some mastery over ourselves;
To be humble enough to be willing to learn from others;
To be brave enough to choose the right roads;
To be patient enough to keep on in spite of obstacles;
To be wise enough to know our own short-comings;
To be honest enough to admit the excellencies of others;
To be proud enough to hold the respect of strong men;
To be gentle enough to hold the love of little children;
To be careful enough to protect the goods of others;
To be generous enough to share our goods with others—
That is our aspiration for to-day.

George G. Davis.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR ME?

We fancied he'd share in our cause,
Instead,
"There is nothing in it for me," he said.
He passed up pity and play and mirth
And counted his time to the penny's worth.
Ask for his help, and this would be
His answer: "What is there in it for me?"

Nothing it meant if you said: "In this
Perhaps is friendship you'll some day miss.
Here is a task that won't pay in gold,
But will leave you prouder when you grow old.
Though nothing for this will your purse collect,
It will pay you richly in self-respect."

"What is there in it for me?" he said,
We mentioned pride, but he shook his head.
"The joy of giving," he flicked his hand,
That he never could understand.
And he found when life's last far bend was turned
That money was all he had ever earned.

LET'S REMEMBER FATHER

There is one who bears the burden of the day,
In such a quiet, good, unselfish way;
From morn till eve his task he plies,
O'er rough roads oft his pathway lies;
For mother and the bairns his thought,
And yet in all much love is frought,
Let's remember father ever kind, and true,
Father of the great heart who still loves you.

The time will come, for years glide swiftly by,
At set of sun you'll sit, and think, and sigh
For childhood days; his voice you'll hear,
At home with those he loves most dear,
An humble place, but love is there,
And you are young without a care.
Let's remember father, ever kind, and true,
Father of the great heart, that still loves you.

The step grows slow, not like the former day,
His hair once dark is now a silver gray;
The burden he will soon lay down,
Let kindness then his last hours crown;
He has thought of you, still think of him,
And bright eyes now growing dim.
Let's remember father, ever kind, and true,
Father of the great heart, who still loves you.

—Ella H. Hudson.

NOW

Oh, love them while they're here, not when away,
And you will never have a yesterday
That you regret, no moment you recall
When you, who had so much, gave not at all.

Speak kindly when the loved are here to hear,
And you will never look down some long year,
Or years of years, and wish that you had said
The words that might have cheered or comforted.

Do little deeds, and learn to do them now,
And you will never wish you had, somehow,
When yours the chance, for nothing ever brings
As great a grief as life's neglected things.

Encourage them, there battle just begun,
And you will never think they might have won
Had you but spoken, when your gentle touch,
That seemed so little, might have meant so much.

Yes, love them now, and never let love wait,
And you need never sigh, "it is too late."
Do little deeds, say what you have to say—
Oh, love them while they're here, not when away.

—Douglas Malloch.

IT'S FUNNY

It's funny the habits we mortals acquire,
It's funny the things that we do;
For worldly possessions we vainly aspire
In life, as we journey through.
We toil and we save from cradle to grave
Existing in fear and in doubt,
Forgetting the fact that whatever we save
We never take anything out.

It's funny, the heights we attempt to attain,
It's funny, the depths of our greed,
Our gifts are given for profit and gain,
And seeking the things we don't need,
We plan and we scheme and we hope and we dream,
And we oftimes cheat on the route
Yet down at the end of life's turbulent stream
We never take anything out.

And so they appear to be funny and queer,
The habits of mortals below;
Though fortunes are won in the struggle down here
They're left on the day we go.
When the battle is fought we take what we brought,
And we lose what we win in the bout
For God never meant in the lesson He taught,
That man should take anything out.

PRAYERS I DON'T LIKE

I do not like to hear him pray,
Who loans at twenty-five per cent;
For then I think the borrower may
Be pressed to pay for food and drink;
And in that Book we all should heed,
Which says the lender shall be blest;
As sure as I have eyes to read,
It does not say "take interest.'

I do not like to hear him pray,
On bended knees about an hour,
For grace to spend aright the day,
Who knows his neighbour has no flour,
I'd rather see him go to mill,
And buy the luckless brother bread
And see the children eat their fill,
And laugh beneath their humble shed.

I do not like to hear him pray,
"Let blessings on the widow be,"
Who never seek her home to say:
"If wants oertakes you come to me."
I hate the prayer so loud and long,
That's offered for the orphan's weal
By him who sees him crushed by wrong
And only with the lips does feel.

I do not like to hear her pray,
With jewelled ear and silken dress,
Whose washer-woman toils all day,
And then is asked "to work for less"
Such pious shavers I despise;
With folded hands and face demure,
They lift to heaven their "angel eyes,"
Then steal the earnings of the poor.

I do not like such soulless prayers,
If wrong I hope to be forgiven;
No angel's wing then upward bears—
They're lost a million miles from Heaven.

TOWNSHIP COUNCIL MEETING

The regular meeting of Winchester Township Council was held in the town hall, Chesterville, on Monday, April 3rd, 1933, the members all being present. The minutes of the last meeting were adopted as read and sign by the reeve.

The following accounts were passed and paid:—Roads and bridges, $27.24 stationery, $1.25; drainage, $1293.10; miscellaneous, $16.97; relief, $147.95. Total, $1486.51.

Council adjourned to meet at Morewood on Monday, May 1st, 1933, a. 10.30 a.m.

W. M. S. THANK-OFFERING SERVICE

On Sunday morning last the United Church held their Easter Thank-offering when Mrs. (Rev.) A. W. Seaton of Shanly, spoke on the work of the W.M.S. as she saw it in Saskatchewan. Rev. J. MacKay in introducing the speaker referred to her good work as president of the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterial. Mrs. Seaton's description of prairie scenes was very vivid and she said the people were a fine type with a vision. The File Hills Colony which is Indian, appreciate very much the work of the W.M.S. there as they reveal Christ's spirit to these people. Regina Settlement House is a home for the people of all Nations. It is amazing the activities there, where the W. M. S. have wonderful results from their work. At Assiniboia and Battleford there are splendid school homes.

Mrs. Seaton told of her own Auxiliary there made up of women with a missionary spirit, and of how they went above their allocation for two succeeding years and sent it all. They looked after home missionary work too.

In reference to Easter the blessed hope of immortality was touched o and the great privilege we have of spreading the good news. In closing the challenge was: Continue to lift high the missionary torch. Two very fine missionary selections were sung by the ladies choir. The thank-offering was taken by Mesdames Utman, Gilroy, Quart and Scott. A ba of beautiful flowers adorned the front of the church. They were given in loving memory of Mrs. E. Flora by her family.

At the evening service the pastor delivered the last of his series of sermons on the beatitudes, the text being Matt. 5: verses 10, 11 and 12, which shows the kind of reception Christ-like people may expect to receive when they try to exemplify the life of Christ. The Christian he said, must be different from the world and a rebuke to sin. He must insist on the practice of Christian principles in all the things with which he comes in contact.

Persecution sends away from the church those who will not stand the test and the church is therefore stronger. The Christian is on the winning side, God will give him power and guidance for all the difficulties of life.

PUBLIC RELIEF How Administered

A meeting of much interest and importance was held in the Court House, Cornwall, on Thursday last, when B. S. Harkness, representative of the Provincial Relief Board at Toronto, discussed with representatives fro. Municipalities in the three United Counties, also from Leeds and Grenville, the question of how to deal with those requiring public relief as well as with those who were imposing on the Public Relief system.

There were about one hundred representatives present, and the meeting was presided over by Mayor Horovitz, of Cornwall, who introduced Mr. Harkness. It was a sort of round table conference. Each representative was given a list of questions that were to be dealt with, and Mr. Harkness, after introducing the question and explaining it asked for questions or suggestions. The list of questions submitted were 22, the more important to local municipalities were as follows :

What is Direct Relief and how does it differ from so-called work relief ?

May work be required of persons receiving Direct Relief?

Basis of co-operation between municipality, Province and Dominion in the matter of Direct Relief.

Are there standards of Relief-giving which are obligatory upon a municipality ?

What are the administration responsibilities in connection with Direct Relief of : (a) The municipality? (b) The Province? (c) The Dominion?

For whom may shelter be granted under direct relief? How much may be allowed ?

May private contributions be made to a Public Treasury for relief purposes? What about contributions of commodities for relief purposes?

Wood-cutting and Direct Relief.

Clothing and Footwear for persons on relief.

Supervision of persons and families receiving public assistance.

Are persons receiving relief permitted to earn money by doing odd jobs? Does this apply to permanent part-time jobs and to pensions?

Should relief administers recognize organizations of unemployed persons?

What methods should be adopted to reduce relief costs? Is a policy of "lowest possible cost" for relief commodities defensible?

One thing Mr. Harkness made very clear, and that is that it was not obligatory on a municipality to give relief of any kind, either to residents in that municipality or to transients.

Neither is a municipality required to furnish medical care or medicine in the way of relief, and no doctor has any claim on a municipality for service or medicine unless he is acting under instructions from the municipal authorities.

The general depression and unemployment had forced a condition upon the Province and the Dominion as well as on municipalities that had to be faced, Mr. Harkness emphasied very strongly the efforts every community should make to maintain the morale of those requiring relief, those out of work. There was a danger, he said, of the children, of those who are now out of a job but who were being helped, getting the idea that there was no use for them to work as the municipality or the province would tak care of them anyway. It was a mistake for those in authority and who had the administration of relief, to too plainly show that authority and assume a dictitorial attitude. It was better to take the unemployed into your confidence, discuss the question with them, and make them feel that the help given was given as one friend to another, and would continue only so long as absolutely required. These few outstanding facts were brought clearly before the conference.

Present conditions required public relief, and in the administration of that relief the Provincial Govrnment would help the municipalities to the extent of two-thirds of their expenditures in the way of supplying food, fuel, shelter, clothing, and when necessary medical service to a limited extent.

The Dominion Government would help the Province in its relief work in the first four items, but not in medical service.

Mr. Harkness stressed the need of co-operation and fair dealing between municipalities and the Relief Board. He said that there were instances where municipalities were trying to take advantage of the Relief Board, and men who in their own business and private life were beyond suspicion were sometimes found to be offenders in this respect when dealing with public relief and the Government.

In reply to a question as to how to deal with transients, Mr. Harkness said:

"The problem in this connection is one of the most difficult which the governments have to deal with. There are many in both governments who feel that the problem of transiency has not yet been adequately dealt with, but the question arises as to how far it is possible to go in stopping transiency. Our system has made it respectable to be a transient and at the same time there are many of the old time tramps, who never worked, who now number themselves among the unemployed. What the municipality do in meeting the transient problem is up to the municipality itself. Under the order-in-council governing dir relief the provincial government w share in the cost of relief to transients. The problem will likely become more aggravated as spring opens up and anyone who travels the highways of Ontario knows the great amount of transiency which there is today."

Mr. Harkness did not seem to think that the unemployed problem as well as the administration of relief would be solved in the near future, and he earnestly asked the fullest and most sympathetic co-operation of all municipalities in trying to deal with the problem and not destroy the moral of the people.

The representatives from Winchester at the conference were Reeve Ross and Councillor Christie, and the information and suggestions received was well worth the attendance. There were delegates present from Gananoque, Brockville, Prescott, Spencerville and many of the rural municipalities of Leeds and Grenville, and almost every municipality in the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry was represented. It was very evident from some questions asked that in some municipalities the proper administration of relief was not clearly understood. It was also evident from the discussion that in many places there was an idea that a municipality was bound to furnish relief. All doubts on this score were clearly removed, and as already stated the relief administered was a purely humanitarian move on the part of those who were in authority.

At the session it was pointed out that a municipality cannot be forced to give relief nor could a man be forced to work out his relief. If a man refused to work out his relief it could be stopped. Then the wife could be asked to swear out a charge of non-support against him. Several men in Ontario had been sent to jail on this charge, Mr. Harness said.

Gave False Evidence

Vincent T. Taylor, former Provincial police officer, appeared in police court at Cornwall on Monday on a charge of selling liquor.

The charge, laid by Taylor's former comrades at local headquarters of the provincial police was dismissed.

Immediately after Magistrate J. C. Milligan had announced that the evidence was insufficient to merit conviction, Crown Attorney J. G. Harkness, K.C., gave instructions for the prosecution of two Crown witnesses, Alex. O'Brien and Gerard McIntosh, on charges of perjury. Informations were sworn out and the pair were brought before the magistrate. They were remanded to jail until April 10 without being asked to plead or elect.

The charge against Taylor was laid by Provincial Constables Ward H. Kennedy and Alex. Kidd on the strength of the statements sworn to by O'Brien and McIntosh following their arrest on February 16, for breaches of the Liquor Control Act. In these statements it was claimed that liquor found in the possession of McIntosh had been purchased by O'Brien from Taylor. In police court the men failed to support the statements contained in their affidavits and claimed that at the time the statements were given they were intoxicated and did not know what they were saying.

Taylor was a constable attached to local headquarters of the provincial police up to about a year ago when he resigned.

JUST WHY ?

If men can be conscripted into a destructive war that means death to many of them, why can't they be conscripted into constructive peaceful pursuits that will mean life and contentment? asks an exchange. In this vast dominion surely there are many things that might be done just now by our unemployed and at very little cost.

SHOULD BE SEVERELY DEALT WITH

An exchange says: An Ontario man who owns property and securities was fined $100 and costs for having obtained relief from his municipality under false pretences. In addition he must pay $8.50 for the goods so obtained. Every community has had experience with the person who seeks to conceal his assets and improperly secure relief from the public funds. It is an act of incredible selfishness and so utterly "anti-social"—to borrow a professional phrase—as to warrant the most severe condemnation. One wonders if a fine is adequate punishment.

MILK PRODUCERS PLAN CONFERENCE

The complaint that the dairy farmers were being left to struggle on against thier mounting difficulties without their plight attracting any general attention was made early in the session of Parliament. The worries of the grain farmer and the ranchers were often in the limelight, it was claimed, but the milk producers toiled on in silence. This is no longer the case. Public attention is being directed in no uncertain manner into the milk producing industry.

The committee of the House of Commons conducting the milk probe will continue its public hearings. Also this week in Toronto the annual meeting of the National Dairy Council will be held. Next week a Dominion-wide conference of milk producers will be held in Ottawa.

The call for the milk producers' conference, claimed to be the first of its kind ever held in Canada, has the endorsation of the Fraser Valley Milk Producers' Association in British Columbia, the Co-operative Federee de Quebec, the Central Alberta Dairy Pool, Winnipeg District Milk Producers' Co-operative Association, the United Dairymen Co-operative Limited in Ontario and the Glengarry Cheese Patrons' Association.

Such questions as the butter surplus, the chain stores, and the decrease in cheese shipments will be before the Ottawa conference.

CONTEST CONCERT AT MOREWOOD

The fourth contest concert presented by the Women's Association of the Morewood United Church on Friday night was one of the best ever presented and one of the largest audiences attended. Each group put on an hour's programme consisting of orchestra music, guitar quartettes, duets, pantomines, tableaux, dialogues, scenic readings and recitations. Rev. Mr. McKay and Mrs. McKay and Mr. W. J. Cass, B.A., and Mrs. Cass, of Winchester, kindly acted as judges. The points judged were humor, variety, quality, originality and execution. Mrs. J. W. Bogart and Mrs. W. Coulthart were captains on one side and Mrs. Henry Steen and Mrs. Calvin Gordon were on the other side. After much consideration by the judges, Mr. McKay finally reported in favor of group 1. After the concert the judges were delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. E. Loucks. The proceeds amounted to $57.20.

OBITUARY

ROBERT JOHNSTON

One of Mountain township's most highly esteemed citizens, in the person of Robert Johnston, passed away at the Brockville General Hospital early Sunday morning, following a one weeks illness. Deceased was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Johnston and was born at Mountain 64 years ago. He was one of the district's most progressive farmers and was road superintendent for the township of Mountain for several years. Mr. Johnston had also served his time as a municipal servant and was a member of the executive of the Mountain Agricultural Society. Being possessed of more than average intelligence, Mr. Johnston's advice was sought freely by his fellow citizens, who will regret his passing, as will a large circle of friends and relatives. As a husband and father, he was all that could be desired, and as a citizen, was one whose place will be hard to fill.

In religion Mr. Johnston was a staunch Presbyterian, and in addition to serving as an officer in the Presbyterian Church at South Mountain, he was also a prominent member of the choir.

Left to mourn besides his wife, who was formerly Miss Margaret Higgins, are one daughter, Miss Gladys Johnston, at home; two brothers, William Johnston, South Mountain, and Thos. Johnston, Iroquois; three sisters, Miss Jane Johnston, South Mountain; Mrs. McGee, Heckston, and Mrs. W. Cleland, South Mountain; Donald, his only son, having predeceased him by about a year and a half.

The funeral took place from his late residence, Mountain township, to the Presbyterian Church, South Mountain, where service was held on Tuesday at 1.30 p.m. Interment was made in the family plot at South Gower cemetery.

MRS. GILBERT ACRES

VERNON, Ont., April 3.—The death occurred on Friday morning, at her son's residence, of Ethelind Richardson, widow of the late J. Gilbert Acres. Though in failing health for some time, it was only little more than a week ago that her condition became suddenly worse. Deceased, who was in her 72nd year, was a highly respected resident of Vernon, where she lived since her marriage. She took an active interest in the Anglican church of which she was a member. Her husband predeceased her 22 years ago.

Left to mourn her loss are three daughters, Mrs. Henry Stoodley, Vernon; Mrs. James D. Cameron, Metcalfe and Mrs. Clarence Kennedy, Vernon; four sons, Herman, of Qu'Appelle, Sask.; Ernest W., Charles L. and Geo. G., all of Vernon; also three sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Wm. Mahon, Alcove, Que.; Miss A. A. Richardson, Ottawa; Mrs. Wm. Young, Westboro; W. B. Richardson, Detroit, Mich., and Harold Richardson, of Ottawa.

The pall-bearers were Wm. Acres, R. Acres, John Storey, William Cowan, Edward Cowan and Howard Morris.

The funeral was held from the residence of George G. Acres on Sunday afternon at 3 p.m., to Vernon to Anglican church, with interment at Greely.

MRS. LOUISE BROWN

SPENCERVILLE, Ont., April 3.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Louise Brown was held at her late residence, Throoptown, on Friday afternoon, and was largely attended. Rev. W. P. Wornell, pastor of the Spencerville United Church conducted the impressive service and was assisted by Rev. F. Tripp of Montreal, and Rev. Flack, of Algonquin.

The deceased, whose maiden name was Catherine Ludlow, was born in Throoptown 75 years ago, and was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ludlow, who came to this country from Ireland. Mrs. Brown had resided in this district all her life.

Besides her husband, there are surviving five sons, Frederick and Wesley, of Rochester, N.Y.; George of Oriskny, N.Y.; Gordon of Ventnor, and Russell at home; four sisters, Mrs. Northrope, of Oregon; Mrs. J. Wolfe, of North Dakota; Mrs. Ester Johnston, of Roebuck; Mrs. Cochrane, of Oxford Station; and fifteen grandchildren.

Four of the sons acted as pall-bearers.

MRS. GILLESPIE

Minnie Elizabeth Gillespie, beloved wife of Samuel Gillespie passed away following a lengthy illness at her late residense, 151 Gillard Ave., Toronto, on Monday morning, April 3rd.

The late Mrs. Gillespie was born at Newington, and spent her early life in Morewood. During the past 10 years, they have had their residence in Toronto.

The service, which was conducted at her late residence on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, was conducted by her pastor, Rev. Alfred Bright, of Riverdale Presbyterian Church.

The surviving members of the family are besides her husband, her mother and her brother, all of Toronto.

Interment took place in Park Lawn cemetery, Toronto.

Nepto-Lac

QUICK DRYING ENAMEL

The Latest Development in HEAT and MOISTURE Resisting Enamels

Look at the illustration! It shows one of the severe tests to which Nepto-Lac Enamel was subjected. A kettle partly filled with water, finished in Nepto-Lac, was boiled for hours over a strong open flame, without peeling or blistering.

Nepto-Lac is the answer of the Research Laboratory of The Lowe Brothers Company, manufacturers of the famous "High Standard" Paints and Varnishes, to their many thousands of Consumer Friends for an enamel that can be used with as great success on Cooking Utensils—Hot Water Pipes—Radiators—Furnaces—Table Tops and other surfaces subject to heat—as on Furniture—Walls—Woodwork—Floors—Etc.

Nepto-Lac with all its unique and extraordinary features is surprisingly economical. It sells for less than many ordinary Quick Drying Enamels. Come in and ask for a free Nepto-Lac Color Card and other literature on this outstanding household product.

Here's What Nepto-lac Will Do—

¶ It can be used inside or outside.

¶ It leaves no brush marks.

¶ It is heat proof—water-proof-tough—and durable.

¶ It dries free in two to three hours—and hard in from four to six hours.

¶ It requires no undercoating.

¶ It requires no special thinners.

¶ It has no strong or objectionable odor.

¶ It is easy to apply and can be brushed back and forth as frequently as necessary.

¶ It hides unusually well in one coat.

FEEDING CHICKS EARLY HAS ADVANTAGES OVER FORMER MEHTODS OF DELAYED FEEDING—SYSTEM USED AT CENTRAL EXPERIMENTAL FARM IS OUTLINED

BY GEORGE ROBERTSON
(Central Experimental Farms)

Tests at the Central Experimental Farm have shown that better results are attained by feeding chicks early than by the methods of delayed feeding formerly in vogue. The following plan is being successfully used at the Central Farm:

When the hatch is cleaned up the chicks are either placed in well ventilated chick boxes, or if allowed to remain in the incubator, the doors are partly opened to permit an abundance of fresh air so that the chicks will harden off before being placed in the brooder.

The type of brooder most commonly used is the coal burning brooder stove which is placed on a tin mat in the centre of a 10 by 12 foot colony house a guard of 1 by 4 inch lumber stood on edge, leaving about a foot clearance around the stove is used. The space inside this guard is filled with sand to avoid all danger of fire from the stove. On the rest of the floor litter is placed to the depth of one or two inches. Planer shavings is generally used for this purpose but clean chaff for fine gravel may be used. Where shavings or chaff is used care is taken to see that it is kept off the surface of the sand around the stove.

Four pieces of galvanized iron about three feet long by eighteen inches high are used to round the corners of the house to prevent crowding.

For the first few days a guard made of square mesh stiff wire cloth about a foot high is used to circle the stove until the chicks get used to the source of heat. Each day this circle is enlarged until finally the guard is removed entirely. Care is taken to make the enclosed circle sufficiently large so that the chicks are not kept so close to the stove as to be overheated.

Frames constructed of 1 by 4 inch material stood on edge and covered with 1-4 inch square wire mesh are used on which to stand all feed hoppers and water dishes.

Hoppers of chick grit, oyster shell and charcoal are hung at a convenient height on the walls.

The chicks are kept as cool as may be for comfort but always have the source of heat where they go to rest in a temperature as high as they desire. Their actions tell at once whether they are comfortable or not. If comfortable they rest contentedly in a circle just outside the canopy of the stove; their discontented chirping and crowding to the source of heat will tell you if they are not warm enough. If too hot they get as far from the stove as possible or go around with their mouths open panting for breath.

Feeding

The feeding is the acme of simplicity consisting of keeping the water fountains clean and filled with fresh water, and the hoppers filled with grit, oyster shell and charcoal and a good chick starter, either commercial or home mixed. The following is a chick starter, that has given excellent results at the Central Farm.

1 part shorts, 1 part middlings, 1 part ground yellow corn, 1 part ground groats, 1-2 part animal feed mixture, 3 per cent bone meal, 1 per cent. salt, 1 per cent cod liver oil.

The animal feed mixture used is made up of equal parts ground beef scrap, fish meal and milk powder. When liquid milk can be had the milk powder is omitted.

Weather permitting the chicks are allowed on to the ground as they get used to their quarters, say by a week or ten days, and a little scratch grain is then added to the ration to keep them busy.

The brooder house is set in a clover field and is shifted weekly so that fresh green feed may always be available on the ground clean.

BERTHA SETTLES THE ARGUMENT

(By Betty Barclay)

"That's enough bread for this time, Henry," remarked Mrs. Powers, setting her lips in a manner which Henry knew only two well.

"Two slices enough after a hard day's work? That's ridiculous! I never—"

"You may have more potatoes, Henry," granted his wife. "We shall drop the question of bread."

"You've been reading those food diet stories again," explained Henry. "One slice of roast beef, two slices of bread, four diced cabbages served in soup dish, enough lettuce to keep rabbits overfed for a month—and, well, and nothing to eat for a hungry man. I've lost three pound since you became one of faddies."

"Faddists, Henry!"

"All right, fattists!"

"Those potatoes are delicious tonight. Better try another spoonful or two. We hardly want Bertha to overhear this silly argument."

Bertha, fresh from normal school, broke in on the opportune moment.

"I couldn't help hearing it, Momsie," she remarked. "Wasn't listening, but heard the whole conversation while I took off my overcoat and rubbers."

"And you agree with me, don't you?" smied her mother.

"For once in my life, I do not," replied Bertha. "Ninety-nine times out of a hundred you have poor Dad beaten in an argument," she continued diplomatically, "but this time you have been reading something in that favorite magazine of yours that was either written by an old-fashioned fogy, or by someone who had fish to fry on behalf of a few favorite foods of hers."

Mrs. Powers gasped, but an unswerving faith in Bertha's knowledge of foods kept her from again voicing her opinion.

Incidentally, Dad Powers took advantage of conditions to pick up daintily his third slice of bread and not quite so daintily deposit it in a shallow pool of gravy on his plate.

"Many of the statements made about certain foods to-day," continued Bertha, "are far from accurate. Of course, many are true and we are learning a great deal about foods that we did not know a few years ago, but we must analyze claims carefully and use a little common sense before making radical changes in our diet. Let me tell you a few facts which will give you a new idea about bread."

"Only thirty per cent. of the American diet is bread. In England the percentage is fifty, and in France sixty. Do you notice any over-weight among the English or French, or any illness that would intimate that this excess bread was causing trouble?

"Bread and butter contains 1,624 calories to the pound. Boiled rice contains but 510. Boiled eggs contain 765, and oatmeal contains only 285. This should prove that bread supplies one of the most important needs of the body—energy. And it supplies it at a low cost, too."

"In other words," concluded Bertha, "spreading her napkin daintily over her lap, "good white bread is an inexpensive, easily-digestible energy food that may be eaten by Dad as it was eaten by his father and his father's father. No one should eat bread alone—and we never do it. We have plenty of milk, good butter, eggs, fruit from the orchard and vegetables from the garden.

"So pass the bread, Momsie! Your big daughter needs energy after this lecture. And, by the way, Dad, you'll need about one more slice to take care of that gravy."

Mr. Powers beamed affectionately upon his daughter as he followed her suggestion.

Rev. Gore A. Bell Discusses Capitalism and Socialism

(From Brockville Recorder-Times)

Editor Recorder and Times:

Dear Sir,—I have been reading the speeches sent to me of Messrs. Woodsworth, et. al, in our House of Commons re the socalled "Co-operative Commonwealth," and I must confess I cannot see much common sense in the whole argument from start to finish, by way of securing something that is not already provided for in our present system for the real welfare of the country and people who want to get along in life, and have ambition and ability enough to accumulate a sufficiency to provide for sickness or old age, and not be "on the town." To have such a privilege is absolutely necessary for the development of manhood, and from time immemorial such has been the God-given privilege of the human race under whatever circumstances they have been born, at least to a limited degree. Deny man this privilege and you remove all incentive to success and true manhood. This, as I understood it, is "capitalism" in the true sense of the term. Some of the greatest men in all callings of life have risen from the poorest beginnings and surroundings to the highest positions and the truly great man is never ashamed to tell of the days of struggle and hardship. The men at the head of affairs who started life with a "silver spoon in their mouth" are like hen's teeth—few and far between. The poet expresses a great truth when he says:

You say the world looks gloomy,
The skies are grim and grey,
The night has lost its quiet—
You fear the coming day.
The world is what you make it,
The sky is green and blue,
Just as your soul may paint it,
It isn't the world—it's you.

True capitalism and this boasted "Socialism," so called, are as opposite as the poles, as I see it. (I may be wrong, I am only giving my opinion, and am ever open to convictions.) Fault was found with Sir Henry Thornton's great salary. If it were wrong, I ask who gave it to him. The C.N.R. is a government road, and the Parliament is primary responsible. Thus the boasted public ownership, or "Socialism," is responsible. The railway wasn't a paying concern. Why, then, pay wages to all employees beyond ability to make it a paying concern, if a cut in wages be mentioned, then the unions step in and a strike, sabotage, perhaps, men killed perhaps, who would work for lower wages, etc, etc. Is capitalism to blame? No. Capitalism would say, we want a paying concern—at least interest on our investments, but Socialism doesn't give a hoot as long as we, so and so, can vote or take the capitalists last cent and beggar the farmers, business men, retired men, with a meagre income, etc, and fill our own pockets. The parliament cannot be called "capitalist." Consult the real capitalist regarding what he would do with the parliament if he were responsible for it, and he would at once say. "Cut the number at least in half, reduce the salary some thousands annually of those who remain, cut out big reception trips of thousands of dollars of waste, etc., and we would ask you if you thought he was a fool when you'd suggest the giving of $10,000 yearly pension to a retiring judge or president of a railroad, or any other pension unless the would be pensioner had been paying an amount to justify such a pension. I look upon all such expenditure of the peoples money as little less than criminal without such proper conditions being met, whether by government, municipalities or anything else where the public's money is at stake. Not the capitalist, but the boasted "Socialism" so-called. That is what our country is spending thousands of dollars daily to listen to in Parliaments.

Then, when we think of the effect on society if this timulus of private ownership were denied people,, it would be simply disastrous. We all know that in most any gang of men you will find some who are worth more than three of some other fellows. Why pay them a minimum wage, on some such thing, rather than to each man as he is worth. If the employer objects, discharges, etc, there is a strike. Is this just. The result is that houses are not built, rent is high, and the ambitious and capable man suffers in unemployment because the Capitalist cannot either come out even or make at least, a trifling interest in his investments of mind, body, and money, and, therefore the many good men are to blame in their Socialism by putting themselves on a level with dead-beats and led around by shyster paid agitators or union heads on fat salaries. Surely this will kill ambition, and were such a system to come into force as a national government law to the ignoring of private ownership the rest woud be an iron dule of shyster tyrants whose ambition was more to govern and grind, shoot and kill and have a good time, in spending the hard earnings of others, while the common herd of toilers might remain as serfs with all ambition destroyed of ever having a home of their own.

Much fault is found with the Premier of our Federal Parliament because of his insistence on ruling, of having things his way. I am not politician, but I must confess that I feel, as I read the speeches down there and think of the many who do show their wisdom in never opening their mouths in address, that the Premier needs a little more Mussolini than he has ever exhibited, and I haven't the slightest doubt that, if he were governing as a private responsible capitalist, he would quickly cut out many constituencies decapitate scores of tools, and bring some degree of order out of chaos, but —but capitalism is under the thumb of socialism nursed by party politicianism.

The only way, as far as I can see to speedily remedy things at present is for sensible Conservatives and Liberals to unite as in 1854 under a leader of the John A. McDonald type, and agree on a line of action that will bring prosperity in both federal and provincial parliaments of a much diminished number, whose sole aim is the country's welfare, instead of playing politics to either gain or hold power. All such rot as compulsory voting granting pensions without proper payments thereto, a Billingsgate of recriminations for sensible speech, a waste of time in socialistic blatherinskite, etc., etc., should be cut out as beneath the dignity of successful and honest business men in private life sent to rule the nation. Which will we have—capitalism or rabble rule?

Sincerely yours,
GORE A. BELL.

Play At Chesterville Was Well Preseuted

"THE JOGGSVILLE CONVENTION" PLAY WAS DECIDED SUCCESS

"The Joggsville Convention," the presentation put on by members of the Ladies' Aid of Chesterville United Church in the Sunday School Hall of that village on Thursday evening last was a decided success from both attendance and performance standpoints. The hall was filled with an enthuiastic audience, who witnessed a charming performance. The costumes worn by the cast were most picturesque and depicted happy scenes of long ago.

The cast included: Mrs. D. McKercher, Mrs. H. J. Hamilton, Mrs. P. G. Hewitt, Mrs. J. Turner, Mrs. Alfred Jarvis, Mrs. P. S. Boyd, Mrs. Haldane Durant, Mrs. J. Helmer, Mrs. J. Slosser, Mrs. L. Marcellus, Mrs. Orval Colquhoun, Mrs. W. Cameron, Mrs. H. E. Wales, Mrs. W. H. Lloyd, Mrs. D. McElheran, Mrs. Myles Merkley. Miss E. Harrison with little Miss Marjorie Boyd and Master Clarence Marshall taking the part of the children. The program was interspersed with delightful solos by Mrs. George Merkley and Mrs. W. N. Fulton, two numbers by the United Church male quartette, viz. Messrs. O. L. Kine, A. E. Bolster, D. G. Hutt and A. J. Forward and recitations by Mrs. Lyle Marcellus and Miss Ella Harrison.

Music was supplied between the acts by an orchestra composed of Misses Rae Dixon and Marjorie Hanna, Mrs. George Merkley, Messrs. P. G. Hewitt, A. E. Bolster, Hubert Dixon, Bill McDonald and Arthur Hewitt.

Dairy Product Prices Lowest In 30 Years

DUNDAS HOLSTEIN CLUB HEARS SPLENDID ADDRESS BY THE DIRECTOR OF EXTENSION

The annual meeting of the Greater Dundas Holstein Club held in the town hall, Chesterville, on Thursday evening, March 30th, was well attended by a representative gathering of the district members and others interested. With President H. E. Biccum in the chair, the reports of the secretary and treasurer were read by J. A. Simpson and adopted. A nominating committee was then appointed, consisting of Messrs. Davidson, Graham and Coons.

A splendid informal address was given by R. B. Faith, of Brantford, Director of Extension of the Holstein-Freisian Association of Canada. After expressing his appreciation of the invitation extended him and of the splendid gathering Mr. Faith confined his remarks to suggestions for the improvement of the Club's status and value to the district. He showed that in spite of the low price of dairy products, the lowest in 30 years, the Association still continued its commendable work in improvement of herds throughout Canada. "While I fear that our foolish policy of purchasing prosperity on the instalment basis and heavily mortgaging posterity for two or three generations is now being regretted, yet history will repeat itself and the depression is bound to disappear," declared the speaker. "Pessimism is today only an indication of the loss of courage which characterized the visions and ideals of our forefathers, and we must duplicate such visions if the farmer is to come back to his own. This is essential for eliminating the depression," said Mr. Faith. The speaker then went on to show that the responsibility as Holstein breeders might well be summed up under three or four chief pillars, viz: 1. A good live organization, increasing its membership and every member a live wire. 2. The establishment of a better type of herds; the price of good cattle not having materially diminished, although the standard was below what it was ten years ago. Herd pruning was a necessity that would ultimately pay. To do this, good herd sires were the only way to maintain the standard, seeing the demand for same was greater now than for four or five years past. 3. The record of performance of the individual animal as well as of the herd. The speaker urged greater effort proving that careful attention to this feature was bound to pay. 4. The health of the animals; Dundas Co., being particularly fortunate in this respect. The blood testing as a way to a better speaker emphasized the value of standard and a higher market.

In conclusion, Mr. Faith urged each farmer to go up and down his row of cows, scrutinizing and carefully testing the individual, paying attention to history and performance and thus start in on a sound, even though small, way towards a better standard.

Agricultural Representative, J. A. Simpson of Morrisburg, spoke briefly, in the absence of Professor W. J. Bell of the Kemptville Agricultural School, who was unable to be present.

The following officers were then reported by the nominating committees after which the meeting adjourned; president, Earl Nephew; vice-president W. J. Fawcett; treasurer, A. Christie; secretary, J. A. Simpson; fieldmen, G. M. Davidson, Geo. McNaughton; directors, Meredith McVey; Cephus Smyth; Thos. Allen; Parnham Allison; Silas Farrell; Jas. Bancroft; Allan K. McDonald; S. W. Reid; Irvine Payne; H. E. Durant; Durham Wells, H. E. Biccum.

A Prediction

LOOK OUT FOR EARTHQUAKES

Severe earthquakes in the Great Lakes region and the St. Lawrence Valley are almost certain to come, in the opinion of Prof. William Herber Hobbs, University of Michigan geologist. Prof. Hobbs also forecasts shocks for the lower Mississippi and southeastern states.

In an interview Saturday Prof. Hobbs said scientists can name the places but not the times of future earthquakes. The shocks, Prof. Hobbs said, result from jolting mass movements of portions of the earth's outer shell in response to forces constantly acting within.

AN ANDREW BRODER STORY

(W.L. Clark, in Border Cities Star)

In reminiscent vein, Rev. A. E. Runnells, D.D., told us of a good story of politics in the early part of the century. It concerns Andrewr Broder, who was the Conservative M. P. for Dundas from 1896 to 1917, and the Toronto Globe. Mr. Broder was known as "Honest Abe" and was a great character.

Out in one of the corners of his constituency one day, Mr. Broder came to the home of a Mrs. Curran. This good Irish woman was out in the front yard making soap when the M.P. arrived.

Good morning, Mrs. Curran, and how is the soap this morning, greeted Mr. Broder.

"It's a fine morning, Mr. Broder, replied Mrs. Curran, "but I'm afraid I haven't put enough lye in the soap."

"Ah well, Mrs. Curran," flashed the Tory "just you be getting a couple of Toronto Globes and put them in your soap, then you'll have lies enough."

This year the Globe is starting on its ninetieth year. Even since it was founded in 1844 by Hon. George Brown it has been a national newspaper, whose opinions have been watched closely by all parties in politics. For that reason, every so often some person has a little jibe at it, like Mr. Broder did.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

NOSE-BLEED

A very ancient complaint, and, an annoying one, as you well know, who are subject to attacks when least expected. Folks with full vessels are liable to it; those with "catarrh," the old bogey-man of the quack. Those with high blood-pressure? Well, if you have it, the nose-bleed is likely to prove helpful at least for awhile. Let it bleed if you have increased blood-pressure—it will lower tension.

Most people do the very wrong thing for an attack of nose-bleed; they rush to a basin of warm water, and try to get as much of it in the nose as possible. I've seen men try to drive their forefingers into the nostril as far as possible, for what purpose they could not tell. They snort, blow the nose violently, rasp the throat, and do everything to keep up the local uproar. Everything but the right thing,—which is to try to quiet the nerves, cease snorting, poking fingers and washing out with warm water. . . . Just be still, if you can. Let it drain, at least till the doctor comes, if you were so scared that you sent for him post-haste.

Every individual has his own time of blood-coagulation. This is important to him—that is, the number of minutes it takes his blood to form a clot, which arrests the nose-bleed. A clot cannot ever form, under warm water douches, and fore-finger pokings, and snortings. Sit still—be still—apply cold if anything—snort not at all. Gentle pressure at sides of nose may slow down blood flow. Firm pressure up-and-down and maintained—each side of nose. No time wasted, no harm done if it does not help. But be quiet—deliberate; I never saw a death from nose-bleed.

The time to cure nose-bleed is to get next your good doctor WHEN THE NOSE ISN'T BLEEDING. Tell the doctor I said so.

YOUNG CRIMINALS

The investigation, or perhaps revelations, that have been made public through the inquiry into the late riots among prisoners in the Kingston and other penitentiaries, can hardly be credited. The statement made by General Ross, M.P. for Kingston, that a 15 year old boy had been sent to the penitentiary and had since become a hardened criminal because of his associations there, is almost unbelievable; and as the Minister of Justice pointed out, the Magistrate or Judge who sent that boy to the penitentiary was the one who deserved censure. Hon. Mr. Guthrie, the Minister of Justice, stated that there were a number of second and third offenders in the penitentiaries who were under the age of 20 years. They had in fact become hardened criminals. The lad who has become a hardened criminal before he reaches the age of 20 years, should be examined by mental specialists, and put under a special treatment. Society is largely to blame for that boy's condition, and he has no doubt been treated as an outcast and criminal from early boyhood. Perhaps if his environments had been different, if his attendance at the public school had been more closely watched, if the mantle of Christian charity and forbearance had been used, instead of the rod and the scorn of home and public condemnation, the life of the boy would be better. Just recently a store in Saskatchewan was held up by three armed men. One was captured after a long hunt, and was being conveyed by a Mounted Police to Edmonton for trial. They had to travel by airplane, and there were three passengers besides the pilot and constable. In a storm the plane crashed and the prisoner was the only one who was conscious after the crash. The pilot was killed. The constable was pinned under the wreck. What did that criminal do. Although his leg was badly injured, he did all in his power to place the four injured, including the constable, in a place of safety. He them crawled on hands and knees to where he found help. By his act three lives were saved, including the policeman. The "criminal" was for many weeks in a hospital. When brought to court he admitted his guilt, said he had been led into the hold-up by an ex-convict, and he did not try to escape when the plane crashed because he could not leave helpless, unconscious men to perish in the cold, even though one was the constable that had traced him hundreds of miles through the forest to arrest him. He was given six months for his offence. The law demanded it, but the law would have been justified in giving that man a second chance. There are no doubt hundreds of men, young men and boys, serving time, who at heart are not bad, but who have been led astray, or whose home training has been such as to drive them to the association of criminals.

The whole matter of dealing with juvenile crime, and criminals generally, should be thoroughly investigated. As someone has very truly said, "There is some good in the worst of us," and to find that good, to encourage the better spirit and help the hidden ambition of the unfortunate should be the work of society.

HOW TO HELP UNEMPLOYMENT BY SPRING CLEANING

Now is the time to begin spring cleaning, renovating, and improvements. To the lady of the home, spring cleaning, or house cleaning, is not a habit, but an obsession, and must be carried out, no matter what the difficulty or what the objection.

But there are times when it should be the desire and wish of every one who can spare a dollar to take as his code the words of the immortal Burns "A brother to relieve, how exquisite the bliss." And by that we simply mean to say that every man who owns a home can help another less fortunate by making some improvement to house, or premises. A little fixing up, a little mending, a little painting, all go to give employment and put money in circulation. And that is what is required just now to help out an unprecedented situation. And this spirit of "helping a brother" is the most Christian, the most satisfactory, that any man can show. A few dollars spent in improving your home surroundings is money well invested, and will bring you better interest than any savings bank. Try it and see.

THE FARMER AND THE MILK QUESTION

It is very evident from the inquiry being made by the Government into the milk question that the farmer is the man who has been the "goat." The farmer who keeps and looks after the cows, who does the hard work, who rises early and in many cases drives many miles to ship his milk to the city, is the poorest paid of all those by whom the milk is handled. Those who take care of the milk when it arrives in the cities receive good pay. The men, or company, who handle the milk and have it distributed have incomes that are almost princely. The consumers pay a big price, comparatively, and the farmer seems helpless to do anything to remedy the situation. The charge that one farmer, who gave evidence at Ottawa, was suddenly cut off the list of those who could send their milk to a certain Montreal firm, does not sound unfamiliar. Just what the Government can do to remedy the situation we do not know, but they might at least send out men to help the farmers to organize, and come to a better understanding. These are times when men of every class have to organize for their own protection.

PREMIER HENRY'S FIGHT

That Premier George S. Henry of Ontario, is not having an easy time of it in his determination to cut down the cost of Government, and thus relieve the people of a part of the burden they are bearing in the way of taxation, is evident from the many reports that are being sent out by unknown, and unauthorized agents to the effect that Premier Henry is soon to resign; that his health is breaking down, that all is not harmony in his government household. At the root of all the agitation may be placed the so-called Moderation League, who are working every means, and spending barrels of money to have the old time sale of beer and light wines restored. Premier Henry has had a hard row to hoe ever since he took office, but he is on a straight row, and he has not only the support, but the sympathy of the great majority of the people to encourage him in his endeavor to reduce the cost of government in Ontario, and put this province on a solid paying foundation.

COMPULSORY VOTING

The Liberal leader in the Ontario Legislature did not show up very well when he refused to vote on Premier Henry's Bill to reduce the number of members in the Legislature, while he himself was trying to force a Bill through the House compelling all electors to vote at elections under a penalty of a $20 fine. Compulsory voting is out of the question, and could never be enforced any more than you could compel all the people in the community to attend church on Sunday. The franchise is a privilege, and while it is also a duty, to try to force a man or woman to vote would be impossible. Many go to the polls because they have sold their votes, and with compulsory voting whole families could be bought. They have tried to regulate the speed of cars by legislation, and there is a penalty if you exceed the speed law, but we all know that to strictly enforce such a law is among the impossibilities.

MOTOR ACCIDENTS

The very sad accident that happened near Napanee on Saturday, resulted in two young and promising lives being suddenly cut out, simply because the usual precautionary measures were not observed. According to accounts it was a car with a rumble seat. There must have been three persons in the driver's seat, for the young man and young lady in the rumble seat were both killed. They were the son and daughter of prominent and highly respected people. Thousands of dollars had been expended on their education, and within a few months the young man who was killed would have graduated as a medical doctor. When one considers the thousands of people who are yearly killed in motor accidents, one is justified in using strong terms and strong measures against reckless driving. As one writer puts it:—"There are people, otherwise normal and socially valuable, whose reaction time is so high that to allow them to get behind the steering wheel of a car is equivalent to putting a loaded shotgun into the hands of a chimpanzee.

WHERE DOES THE MONEY COME FROM?

It is announced that the breweries of the United States have decided to spend between ten and twenty millions of dollars in advertising beer, during the coming year. The question naturally arises, where do the breweries expect to get all that spare money for advertising. Being shrewd business men they know the value of advertising But that is not the question. The money that will be spent will come out of the pockets of those who drink beer. Not only the twenty millions for advertising, but millions more in profits to pay big salaries and keep up the big institutions of the men who own and control the breweries. What fools we mortals be, after all. Poverty, distress, hunger, misery, sickness, unemployment on every side, and yet millions to expend in beer and other liquors that destroy not only the morals, but the desire for work, as well as body and soul. Intoxicating liquor is the greatest curse of our modern civilization.

We never know how far a word or deed will go.
I spoke a word, and no one heard;
I wrote a word and no one cared or seemed to heed;
But after half a score of years
It blossomed in a fragrant deed.
Preachers and teachers all are we,
Sower of seeds unconsciously,
Our hearers are beyond our ken,
Yet all we give may come again,
With usury of joy or pain.
We never know to what a little word will grow.
See to it, then, that all your seeds
Be such as bring forth noble deeds.

—John Oxenham.

COUNTY COUNCILS STILL DISCUSSED

The following is taken from the Border Cities Star, published at Windsor, Ont., of March 27th. It is another evidence of how widespread has become the agitation against the "waste of time and money" by County Councils, the Border Cities Star says:

It will be difficult for anyone to successfully challenge the statement of Reeve J. G. Hennin, of Sandwich South, that county councils are useless and expensive and should be done away with.

"I am in favor of abolishing the county council because I see no reason for its exsitence," Mr. Hennin says. "It affords an opportunity for two-by-four politicians who like to come down here and have a good time. Its sessions are nothing but long-drawn-out arguments which result in very little. Every time its members meet, they get nowhere. There is so little that it can accomplish. The Essex County Council is really nothing more than a collection agency for the various bodies we deal with. If I had my own way I would build a fence around each municipality and have each take care of its own business. I mean by that I would do away entirely with the joint liability that now exists between county and townships."

The reeve of Sandwich South points, also, to the fact that Eastern counties in Ontario are practically unanimous in their desire to abolish the county council system as unwieldy, cumbersome and unnecessary and that the Provincial Government, having efficiency and economy in mind is thinking along the same lines. We recall, in this connection, a report from Toronto some months ago that the Government contemplated such action, along with abolition of the antiquated Grand Jury system.

There is really little excuse for retention of the county councils. They cost the taxpayers a considerable amount of money which might just as well be saved and they have no function that could not be looked after in some other way.

The difficult times through which we are now passing have called public attention to the desirability of lopping off every unnecessary item of public expenditure. Over a long period of years Canada has built up a system of governmental machinery that is far too large for our needs, far too large, indeed, if our population were several times greater than it is. We shall have extracted no little benefit from the depression, then, if it forces a general reorganization of government bodies.

DO YOU KNOW THEM?

John and Barbara Randol are given in the history of Dundas County as living in 1806, Con. XII, Lot 4, Mountain. Is anything known of the old Canadian family? In the Methodist register for Gainsboro, Ont., a child, Margaret, is born to these parents in 1830. Malcolm McMartin lived or had property in Con. I, Lot 27, E. half Williamstown, 1802. This family intermarried with the Randal's, of Osnabruck, Cornwall, Kitley? Benjamin Alanson, son of Alanson, son of Benjamin, married Lucy McMartin. It is this family I am trying to trace, either from a Benjamin Reynolds, of Cornwall, lot 20, Con. 3, Cornwall Township or from Benjamin Randall or Randolph of Yonge Tp., Frankville of today. The names are often confused on old lists and in conversation with Rundle, Runnals, Reynolds, Randal. Trace has been found of the original Benjamin who obtained a grant in 1795-8, he had a son, Benjamin, and a son James. Benjamin was lost in the woods for three months when out hunting and was found dead. Moses Randolph was a son of Benjamin senior, if this is the same family.

In Mountain Tp, eastern district, an entry of a Solomon and Margaret Render, child Esther, born 1841 may be Randall, handwriting was not very legible and many slips were made, if it is just possible that 'Crandle and Brundle' are of this family also. Will anyone interested please communicate with F. Randal Livesay, 20 Rosemount Ave., Toronto?

Chesterville Road Needs Repairing

The Editor of the Winchester Press.

Dear Sir:—May I write to express my indignation at the state of the Winchester to Chesterville road. For the last three years money has been spent in a futile effort to give the public a road fit to travel on. For a road so widely used it has been and is the worst road in the whole country. You don't have to take my word for it — ask anyone who has travelled over it. Deputations from Winchester and Chesterville have long ago asked that something be done to that road to improve its condition but so far, to no avail. The experiment of the road scraper with its method of pushing the gravel hither and yon seems to me a failure, for its effect lasts about two or three days and then the punishment that the road has to bear leaves its scars or ridges and you have again every sample of unquitous road—washboard — chuck holes—ruts and what else have you.

A small section of the road from the cemetery a mile east was experimented on and that was the only bit that seemed to need very little attention throughout the whole year. Is it not possible to do something similar with the rest of the road. Further comment on the road is needless. The road is fast becoming a joke and a bye-word. Will not some of our public officials give out some public statement as to the future of that road? The long suffering travelling public will be grateful and will vote accordingly.

Yours,
One of the long suffering.

THE WORLD NEEDS LEADERS

To-day we clamor for leaders. Christ was a follower doing the will of Him who sent Him until he Himself became a leader and said "Follow Me," and his loyal followers became leaders in turn. The great need of this generation is for men and women who, have become followers, lost their self-consciousness in service of the noblest kind until they themselves have been converted into leaders. We will have a new type of Christianity, a conversion to Christ when His way will become our way, His will our will, and His thoughts our thoughts."

Here is an interesting point that if 100 people were brought into the kingdom of God in one year and each one brought a friend the following year the whole world would be at the feet of Christ in 25 years.

Who Said,--- "Catch A Cold?"

"I caught a cold" is about the silliest expression heard to-day. No one tries to catch a cold. The trouble with us is that we do not try very hard to keep a cold from catching us. That is why we meet so many to-day who are complaining about what happened when the weather changed. Only about 17 persons out of each 100 manage to get through a year without suffering from at least a mild cold. Some people suffer several times during the year.

One of the most important things you can do, both to prevent and to correct colds, is to keep your body as akaline as possible. Vegetables, fruits and milk in the diet will do this.

If, however, you feel a cold coming on take a hot bath and get into a warm bed immediately. Then drink a full glass of hot lemonade. Sweat out those poisons. In the morning squeeze the juice of a lemon into a half glass of water. Stir in half teaspoon of baking soda and drink it while it bubbles. Repeat this three times a day until your cold has disappeared. Remember, however, that if your cold fails to respond promptly your physician should be interviewed. A little cold is often a dangerous thing.

HEROIC ACT OF A CHILD

In the eyes of everyone in Maxville excepting himself, 5-year-old "Sonny" Guindon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Guindon, is an uncrowned hero, because of the rare presence of mind he displayed when he saved his four-year-old playmate, "Billy" MacEwen, from drowning.

The little lads were playing near an open well situated some little distance from the latter's father's warehouse, when young MacEwen broke through the ice on the well, and would have undoubtedly been drowned had not "Sonny" grasped his coat collar and held his head above water.

Attracted by his cries, several parties rushed to the well and pulled the unfortunate and thoroughly soaked child to the top. "Sonny," observing that he was "going to hang on as long as he could." He also commented that the rescuers were "pretty long in coming."

FORTUNE IN A SHOE

When Alfred Serv's wife died nine years ago, he and his two sons locked up the house and moved away. The years passed and he went back to clean the place up. When he did, he found his wife's will. "I have jewellery in my shoe in the bathroom," it read. The shoe contained $9,000 worth of jewels and the record of a $4,000 bank deposit.

GIVE A MAN A JOB

The spring slogan should be for any and all who can "Give a man a job." There is something about the home that you can employ a man at for a day or two, and besides the satisfaction of knowing you have helped someone, you have the satisfaction of knowing that a long needed improvement has been made.

ONE WAY OF DISTRIBUTING KINDNESS

(The New Yorker)

The Travelers Aid people at the Pennsylvania Station were surprised the other afternoon when a little old lady in black trotted briskly up and requested that they keep a box of cigars for her a while. It wasn't this that surprised them—such a happening would pass as a commonplace—but that the little old lady took two handful of cigars out of the box and crammed them in her handbag before she departed. She had been gone about two hours when she came back, asked for her box, removed the rest of the cigars to her handbag, and threw the box away. The Travelers Aid couldn't stand to let it end that way. They engaged the old lady in conversation and finally managed to ask her what on earth she did with the cigars.

"I throw them down," the old lady explained. "I ride on a bus and when I see some poor man picking up a cigarette stub, I throw a cigar in front of him." She paused a moment, looked around and then said confidentially: "It makes them believe in God."

WILL SERVE SENTENCE

George Scarbeau, 23, Moose Creek, was convicted in police court, Cornwall, on a charge of stealing several articles from an automobile. The charge was laid by provincial police. In view of the fact that it was Scarbeau's second offence, he was sentenced by Magistrate J. C. Milligan to a six month jail term. Archie Beauchamp, 17, Moose Creek, also charged with his second offence of theft, was fined $10 and costs with an alternative of two months in jail.

A HUMAN BRUTE CONFESSES HIS CRIME — HUSBAND AND FATHER AWAY AT TIME

WINNIPEG, April 5th—The "stove poker" slaying of Mrs. Martin Squarok and the murder of her five-year-old son, Eddie, drowned in a well into which he had been thrown alive, was reported solved last night.

Peter Piniak, neighbor-farmer of the Squarok family, in the Winnipeg Beach district, a formal police statement said, had confessed the double slaying and had been charged in provincial court with murder.

Mrs. Squarok was beaten to death in her farm home last Thursday night when she resisted the advances of Piniak, according to the police statement. Her husband, Martin, was in Winnipeg attending a court case, when she and the child met death. The weapons used were a heavy poker and a piece of cordwood, both found at the scene of the crime by police.

The woman dead, the statement said, Piniak returned to the house, lifted the sleeping child from its cot, threw him head first down the well. The youngster was only half awake and didn't even cry, Piniak is alleged to have told police.

Meetings and Events of Church Societies

THE WOMAN'S ASSOCIATION

A good attendance of ladies greeted the president, Mrs. Dukelow, at the April meeting of the United Church W. A. on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. J. E. Hutt reported on behalf of the parsonage committee that some decorating had been done at the parsonage, and it was decided to do more. Mrs. Neil Hutt gave the treasurer's report showing a bank balance of $49.75.

Mrs. Davidson closed the meeting with prayer, after which a half hour was spent in sewing for the good cheer work.

A treat of delicious homemade candy was pased by Mrs. Faith and Mrs. Dukelow.

C. G. I. T. MEETING

The Canadian Girls in Training held their weekly meeting on Tuesday afternoon at 4.30 with Norma Hitsman as leader. This was the first of a series of meetings dealing with vocational guidance and the speaker was Mrs. W. J. Cass, who stressed the importance of education, preparation and the wise use of opportunities in the early teen age and later, as a foundation for life work. This was followed with a survey of the teaching profession in which the qualifications of a successful teacher were summarized and explained.

Following the address, the Junior Group dramatized "Young Lochinvar." An active game and the singing of "Taps" completed the meeting.

MISSION BAND TEA

The S.S. Rooms of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church were very prettily decorated in green and white for the Springtime tea and home cooking sale given by the Sunbeam Mission Band on Saturday April 1st. The guests were received by Mrs. W. D. Turner and Mrs. Margaret Moffatt.

The home-cooking table was in charge of Mrs. Stewart Anderson and Mrs. A. W. Churchill, assisted by Beulah Kinkaid and Eleanor Stewart, while Mrs. Fernal Workman was in charge of the candy table.

The tea-room was in charge of Mrs. Kinkaid, assisted by Mrs. R. Workman Mrs. Empey, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Curtis. The tea tables were adorned with Easter bunnies and presided over by Mrs. Olive McRae while members of the Mission Band served.

Mrs. E. Payne received the money donations.

During the tea hour the guests were entertained with a musical programme consisting of vocal numbers. Lorna Workman, Lillian Bruce, Jean Robertson, solos. Vocal Trio, Sybil Empey, Mona Robertson and Jean Smith. Piano Solos, Eleanor Stewart, Beulah Kinkaid. Guitar selections, Gordon Wilson. Recitation Ruth Robertson. Mrs. A. G. Suffel, President of the Mission Band was general convenor.

W. C. T. U.

The April meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Duncan on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Wm. Johnston presiding. Devotions were conducted by Mrs. D. W. Summers who read 1st Corinthians, 3rd chapter, first fourteen verses, and gave a very helpful talk on character building.

It was decided to have a Mother's and White Ribboner's meeting combined on Friday, May 5th, when special speaker will be heard and a programme given by the White Ribboners. The Clip-Sheet programme which was on the history of Temperance Reform, was conducted by Mrs. K. Helmer. In Canada we have never had the prohibition of the manufacture of liquor. The wet propaganda about the revenue that comes from the sale of intoxicants is very effective in these hard times, but great forces for righteousness are also at war, and these in time may w. the victory.

Mrs. Johnston gave a very impressive reading about the three women at the cross, to show what women can do if banded together. Trust ye in the Lord forever, for in Him is strength.

The Mizpah benediction closed the meeting.

C. S. Sommerville, a well known resident of Cornwall died there on Monday after a brief illness, aged 47 years.

OBITUARY

Alex. Anderson, highly esteemed resident of Prescott for the past three years, died at his home Monday as the result of a fractured skull suffered when he fell from a tree which he was trimming near his home six weeks ago.

DEATH AT NEWINGTON

The funeral of Stewart McLeod, one of the trustees of the village of Newington, who died at his home there Thursday evening, was held to St. Andrew's United Church at 1 p.m. Sunday. The regard in which he was held and the sorrow felt at his passing were reflected in the large attendance of friends from all parts of the district who came to pay a last tribute of respect to a worthy young man.

ROBT. A. CRAIG, JR.

A highly esteemed resident passed away at North Gower on Tuesday last in the person of Robert Allan Craig, Jr., at his home near the village. Mr. Craig had been in ill health for the past two years but his death came as a great shock to his many friends in this locality. He was born on the old homestead near North Gower, the son of Hugh Craig and his wife, Adeline Wallace. About 1923 he sold his farm and moved into North Gower village where he followed the occupation of furniture dealer and undertaker till recently. He was a grandson of the late Robert Craig, one of the old pioneers and founders of this village and the first reeve of North Gower township.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Mabel Craig, of this place, also Mrs. James A. Wallace, a sister, of North Gower township. Mr. Craig had no family. He was most highly regarded in this neighborhood for his sterling worth of character and his genial manner and he will be greatly mourned by a very large circle of relatives and friends. He was always a staunch member and active worker in the United church here and a member of the old North Gower band. The funeral will be held from his late residence on Thursday afternoon to the United church, North Gower, with interment in Rideau Vale cemetery, Kars.

BANQUET AT HALLVILLE

On Friday evening last thirty members of the Kemptville 100 Club entertained guests from Hallvile and vicinity at a banquet in the Community Hall at Hallville. The ladies of St. Andrew's United Church catered for banquet. The Rev. L. H. Morrison was master of ceremonies. The guest speaker of the evening was Mr. Nunnick of the Dominion Experimental Farm, Ottawa. His address was on Horticulture. Two vocal solos were rendered by Mr. George with Miss Weaver as accompanist.

MRS. SAM GILLESPIE

IROQUOIS, Ont., April 3.—Word was received here today of the death of Minnie Gillespie, wife of Sam Gillespie, merchant, of Toronto.

Deceased, who passed away at four o'clock this morning, was the daughter of Mrs. Lucy Gillespie and the late Wm. Gillespie. She was born at Newington 57 years ago and after living in Iroquois for a short time, made her home for over 30 years in Morewood, Dundas county, where her father conducted a grist mill.

She married Sam Gillespie and they have resided in Toronto for a number of years.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, mother and one brother, Clifford, all of Toronto.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Claude Barkley, 20-year-old son of M. O. Barkley, who operates a gas station just north of Morrisburg, is satisfactorily recovering from a fractured skull received Thursday afternoon when a car fell off a jack and on his head. The young man was rushed to Dr. Locke, at Williamsburg, who rendered medical aid, and then taken to his home where he is resting at present. Claude, who is assistant to his father in the garage in connection with the filling station, was at work beneath an automobile about four o'clock Thursday afternoon. For some reason, the heavy machine rolled off the jack supporting it while the repair work was being done, landing squarely on Barkley's head. He was rushed to Dr. Locke who pronounced the injury as a fracture of the skull.

THE VALUE OF A TELEPHONE

(By Edgar A. Guest.)

Last night we had a hurry call to go to daughter May
Her husband said that ma and me
were wanted right away,
An' so, though it was after twelve, an bitter cold outside,
We hustled out of bed an' dressed a took a trolley ride;
An' Jim—that is her husband—met us with a gracious bow
An' said to me as we stepped in:
"Well, you're a grandpa now."

An' ma went flyin' up the stairs, an'
Jim an' I stayed down,
An' talked about the great even, Jim
in his dressin' gown,
As comfortable as you please. An'
then he sorter smiled
An' said: "An hour or two ago I thought that I'd go wild,
The stork was hoverin' above, an' I was all alone.
I'll tell you, dad, I burned the wires
of that old telephone.

An' then I laughed an' said to him:
"Why, when your wife was born
We didn't have a telephone the neighbors round to warn;
They got me out of bed at one a.m.
an' said to me:
'You'd better get the doctor now, an'
get him here at c.'
I had to run four miles that night
to bang upon his door,
An' then to get the nurse I had to hike about two more.

"An' here you're in your dressin'
gown, an' sittin' by the fire,
An' everybody's on the job, all summoned by the wire.
You haven't even left your house or felt the winter's chill—
Just think, my boy, without a 'phone,
why, you'd be running still!
You'd still be hiking somewhere an'
wearing out your shoes,
An' pausin' for your second wind—
that's how I spread the news!"

ECONOMY MADE IT THE LEADER*

HAULING economy means more than ever—if you judge by sales figures, which show that more Chevrolet Trucks are being sold today than any other kind! Big, new Chevrolet-built bodies easily hold capacity loads. Chevrolet's efficient six-cylinder engines set records for low-cost operation. The rugged Chevrolet chassis minimizes upkeep costs. And it's a well-known fact that a Chevrolet is one of the lowest-priced trucks you can buy—whether you choose the nimble Pick-Up Delivery model or a husky, heavy duty 2-ton Maple Leaf.

viets Determine To Kill Religion

Second Five-Year Plan Includes Finishing Job, Says Russian Pastor

"It is not a question of having lib-ty for persons who profess Christ-nity in Russia but one of having e itself, declared the Rev. Professor eprash, a Russian himself, and one ho in pre-revolutionary days has ent some time imprisoned in Siberia r political views, when speaking to group of people at the Montreal Jew-h Mission.

He said he did not give lectures on ussia. "If your dearest friends and elatives are in danger of suffering reat distress and even death itself you o not lecture about it. You can only alk to those who are sympathetic with ou in your troubles. If I happened o go to Russia for a few weeks and on-y had what interpreters cared to tell ne for information about what is real-y going on there, perhaps I would give ublic lectures on Russia." In con-nection with this he showed the dan-er that people in Russia ran in giv-ng information derogatory to the suc-ess of Communism as practiced in Russia.

"Up to 1928 the Soviet Government attacked religion. Then they decided that simply opposing it did not suc-ceed in getting rid of it, so that chang-ed their tactics and decided to exter-minate it. The first five-year-plan led to much suffering for Christians, but it did not destroy religion, and so now the second five-year-plan includes the programme of finishing the job thoroughly during the second per-iod, said Professor Neprash, who sum-med up their intentions in the terse expression, "they have handed a pass-port to God and have ordered Him out of the country by the completion of the next five-year-plan."

Speaking with an apparent affection for the Russian people, he said he did not speak against Bolshevik Russians among whom he seemed still to have close friends. He recalled the sense of freedom which he prized so much after the Kerensky revolution and be-fore the arrival of Bolshevism in its final form and compared it with the pre-revolutionary days when one could not speak publicly one's mind. He criticized the leadership.

Prof. Neprash had certain compli-mentary things to say about the prin-ciple of giving a general education as in Russia, but he explained that there was one fundamental objection to their method which was patently for the purpose of eradicating any religious tendencies among the educated and he illustrated this with cartoons. One of these showed the student with pencil and compass in hand, the latter re-presented as piercing the image of God

The army, which is the largest in the world, ordinarily supposed to pro-tect the country against invasion, is also being made an instrument to de-stroy religion. One cartoon represent-ed this with the slogan over the picture of a soldier, "Long live the world ath-eist movement," and pictured him as grappling with the Pope, representat-ive of Christianity.

Capitalism in Russia does not mean what it does in other countries but ap-plies to the most modest owner of a small bank account who believes in private property. A Kulak who wished to go his neighbour one better and own two cows as compared with his neigh-bour's one cow will be accounted in the capitalist class.

The acceptance gladly of the indus-trial scheme of the five-year-plan by Russians who knew what it was to suf-fer the losses due to war, terrible post-war famine and confiscation of goods is easily understood. To see the pos-sibility of an industrial revival would naturally make them glad, said Prof. Neprash.

"Communism is an attitude toward life is the dangerous thing. There are certain 'don'ts' in the command-ments of the Christian, but the Bol-shevik has no such 'don'ts.' The relig-ious beliefs, he (the Bolshevik) says, do harm by their 'don'ts' in the name of God. We liberate, said Professor Neprash, as he drew attention to the way in which Communism legalizes act-ions reprehensible to the Christian.

The address of Professor Neprash who has recently come from Russia, was given at the regular afternoon meeting held in Emmanuel Hall, at which the superintendent the Rev. Dr. Greenbaum, presided.

ONE OF THE TRAGEDIES OF MOD-ERN LIFE

The Montreal Gazette of last Friday published the story of the finding of a man of 65 years of age dead in the body of an abondoned automobile from starvation. He was too proud to beg, and those who would be friends were thoughtless, and did not realize the need of the old man who had become a familiar figure in the section. The report says:

Henri Giroux, philosopher, human-itarian and communal warker is dead in his 65th year. He died yesterday afternoon from the effects of starva-tion and exposure at the St. Luke Hospital, after having been found helpless and speechless by the police a few hours earlier. Too proud to beg or even accept charity from his many friends he had gone for what doctors estimate to have been a week without food.

He was a very kindly old man and was well liked by those living in the district. He was also a great protect-or of young children, and parents felt safe with him about for he always could be depended upon to chase them away from all dangers, such as railway tracks, excavation, etc. Groups of children would gather about him and he would tell them some very inter-esting stories for their edification and education.

TREATMENT OF BURNS

Dr. Thompson, speaking to the Can-adian Ambulance Club at Montreal, on the treatment of burns said that in most cases it was not the burn that was the cause of death but the result-ing shock, and stressed the necessity of treating the patient for general shock before attending to the skin burn. By the use of tannic acid which tans the skin over the burn a greater percentage of lives have been saved, he said, than was the case with older treatments. Oil, in fact, was the worst treatment for burns, and leaving the wound alone was better than soaking it liberally.

First Installment

"Love doesn't last. . . ."

It was with those words ringing in her ears that Pauline woke on her wed-ding morning to find the sunshine pour-ing in at her window.

"Love doesn't last. . . ." It seemed strange that the one thought in her mind on this day of all days should be of those words in Barbara Stark's let-ter which had arrived late last night.

Barbara was Pauline's best friend, for reasons that both of them would have found difficult to explain. The two girls were as unlike as it is possible to be, for while Pauline was young, unspoiled, and full of the joy of life, with a touching belief in happiness and the theory that love never dies, Bar-bara, at seven-and-twenty, seemed to have run through more experiences and emotions than many a woman double her age. She had been married, had had a baby, which mercifully, so people said, had died soon after birth; she had been divorced, and at the moment was getting herself talked about everywhere by her wild extravagance and because of a new and violent friendship with a married man.

But in spite of all these things Pau-line adored her.

The chief trouble was that Dennis did not approve of Barbara, and many times during her engagement Pauline's heart had been torn because of her love for her friend, and her love for the man she was to marry, and her desire to do as she wished.

Many times she had tried to explain to Dennis her friendship for Barbara, and had always been conscious of fail-ure.

"I know people don't like her," she defended Barbara loyally, "but that's only because they don't know her and understand her as I do."

"Her own fault," Dennis broke in gruffly, but this Pauline would not allow.

Pauline never really knew whether Barbara liked Dennis or disliked him. She was always charming to him when he would allow her to be, and yet last night, in the letter that accompanied a most beautiful gift, she had said things about marriage which had so im-pressed Pauline that she woke on her wedding morning with some of the words ringing in her ears.

. . . don't expect too much from your husband as I did! Any woman of ex-perience will tell you that love doesn't last. Romance will wear thin. It's tradi-tional that men get tired of the same woman. When you've been married a few years you'll be lucky if you're still good friends. Don't think I am saying these things to hurt you. I'm saying them because I want you to be happy, and you can only be happy after you're married by not expecting too much. Let him be quite free, too—don't try to chain him to you all the time—that's a sure way to kill love. . . .

"Love doesn't last . . ."

Those were the words that haunted her as she sat up in bed, her fair hair rumpled childishly, her blue eyes blink-ing in the sunshine. The present Bar-bara had sent her was standing on a small table by itself.

It was a small carved statuette in ivory and silver, of a small Cupid beat-ing his hand in vain against a barred door, and underneath was the one word "Denied."

It seemed a funny sort of wedding present to send anyone, Pauline thought, even while she realized its beauty. When she had shown it to Dennis he had laughed.

"She's a miserable cynic," he said. "We'll put it in the spare room, so that she'll be able to look at it as much as she likes when she comes to stay—I suppose she will come—"

"Of course she will," Pauline an-swered quickly, but she had not told him about Barbara's letter; she had burned it.

"Love doesn't last. . . ."

Of course, that had been Barbara's own experience. Pauline was not clear as to the facts of her friend's marriage —she had never asked about it—and Barbara never spoke of her husband. That he had made good provision for her was common knowledge, that he was somewhere abroad was a vaguely accepted fact, and that the divorce had actually been nobody's fault but one of those "arranged" affairs was agreed by the charitable. Pauline thought it was all very pathetic. Sometimes the far-away lonely look in Barbara's eyes made her heart ache, and yet Barbara always seemed happy enough. She laughed a great deal, she went every-where, she dressed beautifully, and yet the strange quality of mother love in Pauline's affection for her told Pauli-e that in reality she was not a happy woman.

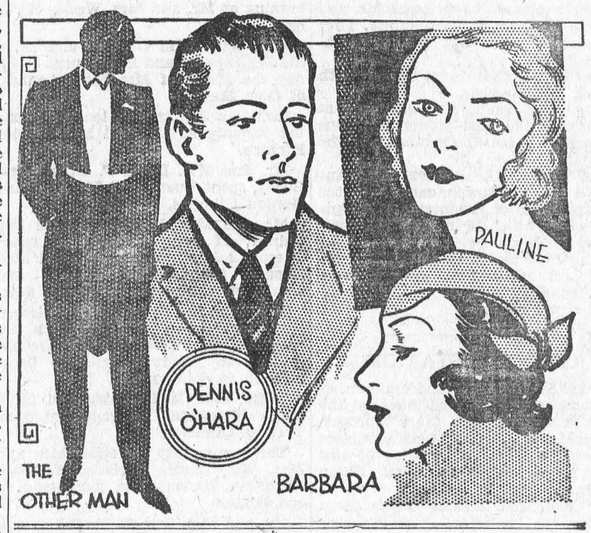
"No heart!" So Dennis summed her up. "Selfish as the devil. I know the type well."

Sometimes Pauline was tempted to think he was right. Dear Dennis, who was so good to everyone. Dennis had fallen in love with Pauline at first sight, so he said, and she—well, there had never been another man in the world for her.

"Much better for you if there had been," so Barbara declared. "First love generally comes a cropper for want of experience."

Pauline had laughed at the time, but now the words returned to her with a little sting. She dismissed them deter-minedly—what did it matter what one embittered outlook prophesied? She knew she would be perfectly happy.

Dennis was quite well off, and he had prospects. He was thirty-two, and he had a motor car in which they were going away for a honeymoon trip; he had bought a house—quite a small one, but a "darling," so Pauline told everyone, and she had been quite sure that they would live happily ever after, until Barbara's letter came last night.



Not that she was really seriously in-fluenced by it — all Barbara's ideas about life were totally different from her own—but it was the first small shadow cast over the sunshine of her happiness.

It was her wedding day! In the next room a white frock and veil lay on the bed, downstairs all the wedding pres-ents were set out on long tables.

She took up Dennis O'Hara's photo-graph and kissed it. In a few hours now she would be his wife—she would be Mrs. O'Hara. Dennis said he was not Irish, in spite of his name. Only yes-terday she had almost covered a sheet of notepaper with his name and her own joined together—Pauline O'Hara.

There was a tap at the door, and her mother came in.

"I've brought your tea myself this morning, darling. It's a lovely day—so warm and sunny. Did you sleep well?"

"Beautifully." But Pauline's heart gave a little throb of pain as she re-membered it was the last time she would sleep here quite as herself.

"I hope the sun will shine for you all your life," her mother said as she kissed her. "There is an old saying: 'Keep your face to the sunshine and the shadows will fall behind you'. Now drink your tea and get dressed."

Then, being a sensible mother, she went quickly away, before Pauline saw the tears in her eyes.

Pauline drank her tea, bathed, and dressed. There were a lot of people staying in the house—cousins, aunts, and a bachelor uncle, and two children who were to be bridesmaids—the morn-ing seemed to fly till suddenly Pauline's mother said: "It's time you dressed, darling."

Pauline was conscious of a little shock, and for a moment a wild sense of panic took possession of her. It was as if someone had said: "This is the beginning of the end. After to-day life will be quite different. You will never really belong to yourself any more or be free to do as you like."

With an effort she pulled herself to-gether. What nonsense! When she was marrying a man she loved with her whole heart and was going to a happiness far greater than any she had ever known.

She hummed a snatch of a song as she ran upstairs to her room. She was at the door when someone came up the stairs behind her two at a time, and Peter Johnson—a very favourite cousin, who would have liked to be something nearer and dearer—called her name.

"Pauline!"

"Hullo, Peterkin."

He joined her rather breathlessly.

"This has just come. I thought you'd like to open it." He gave her a small parcel.

"Thank you." Pauline was turning away when he caught her hand.

"I just want to wish you the best of luck—always—and happiness—heaps of it." She tried gently to release her hand, but he held it fast.

"I'll always be the same, Pauline—always there if you want me. If ever there should be any trouble. . . ."

Again Pauline was conscious of that little shadowy premonition. What trouble could there be? Why did every-one insist that her sunshine was bound to be clouded?

She laughed in nervous exasperation.

"I suppose you are one of those people who believe that love never lasts," she said defiantly.

"My love for you will last," Peter answered, and then before she could stop him he had taken her by the shoulders and kissed her on the lips.

"All the best," he said, not very steadily, and before she could move he had gone, and she heard him clattering away down the stairs again.

Pauline went into her room and shut the door. She felt a little shaken and almost as if she wanted to cry. She and Peterkin had been brought up to-gether, but never before had he kissed her like that or looked at her with such an expression in his eyes. Pauline was fond of Peterkin, but something in her heart resented that sudden display of affection. Her lips belonged to Dennis —no other man had a right to them. She tried to feel angry with him, but it was a short-lived anger. Poor Peterkin! It was not such a happy day for him as it was going to be for her. She pulled off the fastening of the little parcel he had brought her. It was from Barbara Stark—a slender blue garter fastened with a tiny arrow.

"Just for luck"—so a little written message read — "and in case nobody has remembeered to give you the 'something blue' which is supposed to insure happiness."

Pauline let the little gift fall to the floor. She did not want to take her luck from Barbara—for a moment she felt as if the bad fairy of the old nurs-ery story had arrived and cast a spell over her. Then she valiantly pulled herself together. Such nonsense! Bar-bara was her best friend, and it was charming of her to remember the old superstition — of course, she would wear it.

Then the bridesmaids came clamour-ing at the door, and there was the all-important function of fixing the veil, and an excitement because the bouquets had not arrived.

She was getting a little nervous and overdone, and her mother promptly cleared everyone out of the room and, shutting the door, took Pauline in her arms.

"I wish you all the happiness in the world," she said, and now she could not hide the tears in her eyes. "Dennis is a good boy, and he loves you, but if ever you are in trouble, don't forget that you have a mother, Pauline."

Pauline gently disengaged herself from her mother's arms.

"Do you think love lasts?" she asked in a tense little voice.

There was a short silence, then her mother laughed. "It all depends on what you mean by love." Pauline's mother stooped to pick up a fallen flower, per-haps because for a moment she was not quite sure of the expression in her eyes. "Love changes, of course, but nearly always for the better. You can't keep up the excitement of being engaged. When you're living together—its dif-ferent."

"You mean—they get used to you?" Pauline said. "You mean, there isn't the same sort of longing to be with you—is that what you mean?" she asked.

"My dear little girl—"

Pauline broke in ruthlessly. "Did you love Daddy very much when you married him?"

"Very much indeed."

"And were you disappointed after-ward?"

"Things are always different from what one expects."

"And do you love him still?"

Pauline's mother looked away, "Yes —but it's different," she said, and then, as if regretting the admission, she hast-ened to add: "But no two marriages are alike. We must all shape our own des-tinies. You will find out for yourself."

There was a little silence, then Paul-ine drew a hard breath like a sigh, and for a moment her pretty face looked sad.

"I wonder why," she said slowly.

DUNDAS COUNTY WILL BE UNDER NEW HEALTH CONTROL SYSTEM

Health is the greatest asset and the most valuable possession of any hu-man being. When it is lost, the in-dividual is placed at a great disad-vantage and if often forced to spend large sums of money in treatment. Sickness is too often the factor which determines whether a family can live comfortable or must go in debt. Dis-ease costs the people of the province of Ontario the enormous sum of one hundred an eight million dollars per year. While disease prevention as it applies to the individual is an import-ant responsibility of the family phy-sician, in order that the community might be adequately served and in order that community health inter-ests might be properly protected, it has been found necessary to set up health organizations as part of the modern social structure. Ontario has organized along this line both provin-cially and municipally and in both the provincial and municipal departments, doctors, dentists, nurses, engineers and inspectors associated with these organizations are always active in dis-covering and combating the many fac-tors tending to produce ill health.

Marvellous advancement has been made during the past few decades in connection with disease prevention and some maladies which formerly exact-ed an immense toll of human life, have now been eliminated. This progress has been due, in a large measure, to work done in research laboratories, and is the result of a better under-standing of the causative factors in connection with sickness and the means which may effectively be used to bring them under control. This knowledge gained by faithful application and per-sistent endeavor, is, however, of very little use unless brought to those who can use it to protect themselves or to safeguard the health of those under their care.

When one considers the enormous cost involved in treating diseases, he realizes that the State is justified in spending freely in the more helpful field of prevention. All recognize that it is not only better but much cheaper to prevent disease than to take care (as we must) of its unfortunate vict-ims, and yet, in this province, only three million dollars per year is spent on prevention. One hundered and eight million dollars for the treatment of disease and three million dollars for the prevention of disease assuredly cannot truly present a conception of the relative importance of treatment and prevention by intelligent people.

Disease prevention involves, first, education, and second, the application of knowledge so gained to the preven-tion of disease, the promotion of heal-th and the correction of such defects as mitigate against physical well-be-ing. It cannot be denied that much of the ill health prevalent in all parts of the Province is due to lack of know-ledge on the part of the public. Peo-ple need to be informed and frequent-ly reminded that failure to avail them selves of modern methods for disease prevention might result in disaster.

To-day, as never before, society is prone to over-emphasize some one fac-tor in disease prevention and neglect others of equal importance. It is ex-tremely difficult to get people to re-cognize the importance of balance and to accept habits of living that will af-ford all round protection. At the pre-sent time, the Ontario Department of Health is making a study in an effort to evolve a programme of prevention that will meet this need. Such a well balanced programme must of necessity be of such a type that the cost will be within the means of the Province and the various municipalities.

To enable the Ontario Department of Health and various other health ag-encies associated with it, to study at first hand, the beneficial effects from a modern well-rounded disease pre-vention programme, a health camp-aign including education and a limited amount of preventive treatment will shortly be inaugurated in the five Eastern Counties of Ontario. The ef-fort will be started in the County of Dundas and as all the health workers and social agencies of the area are giving enthusiastic support to the un-dertaking, its success is anticipated.

The work will be carried on under the auspices of the Ontario Depart-ment of Health with the endorsation and enthusiastic co-operation of the Ontario Medical Association, the Ont-ario Medical Association, the Ontario Dental Association, the Canadian Den-tal Hygiene Council and leading lay organizations interested in the promo-tion of Health. The hearty co-oper-ation and support of all residents in the area chosen for the work is essen-tial if the undertaking is to be fully successful.

Spectacular Test Ushers in New Household Product

Women Welcome New Development in Decorative Finish of Unusual Character

Crowds of people were attracted during demonstrations of a new household decorative product, when a kettle and saucepan finished with a new development in Quick Dry-ing Porcelain Finish Enamels were allowed to boil for hours on a stove without damage to the finish.

This is but one of the extraordin-ary tests conducted by The Lowe Brothers Company, manufacturers of "High Standard" Paints, in in-troducing Nepto-Lac Quick Drying Enamel—a heat proof and mois-ture proof product for household use.

Another feature of this new pro-duct, Nepto-Lac, is that it can be used outside on Automobiles—Porch Furniture and Porch Floors—as well as inside on Furniture—Radiators —Walls—Cooking Utensils, etc.

Householders who have attended these remarkable tests are enthus-iastic about Nepto-Lac, not alone for its extraordinary performance under heat and its resistance to moisture, but equally for its smoothness of finish — beautiful color range—ease of application and economy—the price being less than that of many ordinary en-amels.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Books for 4-H Club Members

Club members become so en-grossed in their baby beef, pig, can-ning, clothing and other projects they may appear little interested in side lines like cultural subjects and sports, but the rule holds with them as with other youth that "all wosk and no play makes Jack a dull boy". So it is that a place is made in the 4-H program for these "side lines", and their cultivation encouraged. This is strictly in keeping with the 4-H pledge which calls for the devel-opment of the head, heart, hands and health.

The reading of good books, always regarded as one of the best ways to inspire those higher virtues of un-selfishness, loyalty, steadfastness and patriotism, is given encourage-ment in 4-H club circles. What pro-mises to be one of the most cultural movements in this line for the benefit of American rural youth has been undertaken by the National Com-mittee on Boys and Girls Club Work of Chicago. Its purpose is to place standard books for juvenile reading within reach of every club boy and girl. These books are new, well printed and bound in fabrikoid to make them both durable and beau-tiful. The plan is possible only through the cooperation of the National Home Library Foundation, of Washington, D. C.

The first 12 books sponsored by the foundation, and now ready for national distribution, are known as the Jacket Library, a: d include such delightful and time tested works as Treasure Island, Adventures of Tom Sawyer, Alice in Wonderland, as well as more serious books. State club leaders have been provided with sets of the Jacket Library for inspec-tion by county and local club leaders. The set is available by members or clubs under the same terms.

The Poor Will Miss Him

By Arthur B. Rhinow.)

"It's the poor that will miss him."

This compliment was paid to a physician shortly after his death. It is a splendid compliment.

We believe, to be sure, that a doctor is entitled to a compensation commensurate with his knowledge, skill, and the many years of preparation, and the laity would probably be surprised if it were told of all the charity the medical profession has to its credit. But it makes us feel good to hear of any man in any profession, who, in spite of the hardening process of struggle and years, has kept his heart tender toward the needy.

Of that hardening process there is no doubt. There is a time in life when the professional ideal is vital and plastic, but unless we are very careful, it is likely to harden into a mere set of rules as times goes on and competition grows keen.

"We must make a living," we plead in excuse, as we think of the fee more than the work, and part company with them that found their richest reward in alleviating suffering and helping the helpless, the world's truest nobility.

"The poor will miss him" is a fine compliment, but the perfect compliment would be, "He will be missed by rich and poor, for his heart was in his work." If it must be rich or poor, however, we cast our vote for excellency in favor of him who befriends the poor.

There are those in every profession who live and work in the spirit of the Great Physician, of whom it is said that he went about doing good.

FEWER ON CHARGE OF DRUNKENNESS

Six thousand fewer persons were charged with drunkenness before the courts of Ontario in 1932 than in 1926—the year before the Liquor Control Act came into force, Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, told the Legislature. He was replying to a question from W. Newman, Lib., Victoria North. In 1932, said the Attorney General, 8,541 were charged and in 1926, 14,561. In 1926, 809 were dismissed as first offenders and in 1932, 475 were dismissed. In 1926, 13,752 were convicted and in 1932 convictions totalled 8,066. Figures showing the number convicted of driving while drunk also recorded decreases. In 1926, 469 were convicted; in 1929, 722, and last year 431.

SINCERITY

Sincerity is the very foundation stone of true friendliness. It is also a human trait that is hard to counterfeit, as the sincere friendly impulse comes from the soul of a man and not from the calculating mind. Think kindly and friendly thoughts. If you have a heart and a soul, why be ashamed of them? Bring them into the shop, the office and your daily life. The hand may be cunning and the head may contain the brain that can conceive the most brilliant thought, but every good and worthy impulse comes from the heart. Strengthen your faith in men, think kindly of them, believe that they are your friends, and in the long run they will be.—Raymond Congreve.

DANGEROUS DRIVING PRACTICES

From an experience of many months in the study of motor accidents throughout the province of Ontario, the Motor Vehicles branch of the Department of Highways gives the following as ten dangerous driving practices which may well receive the attention of the public:

1. Following other vehicles too closely.
2. Making wide turns.
3. Attention to other things than driving.
4. Failure to get into proper traffic lane before turning.
5. Failure to give signals or use rear-view mirror.
6. Passing parked cars in a hazardous manner.
7. Cutting in too closely.
8. Too much confidence.
9. Discourtesy.
10. Failure to observe traffic signs.

These are not, of course, all of the hazardous practices indulged in by motorists to the annoyance and injury of others on the roads but in the aggregate they furnish explanations for the great mass of accidents that occur.

Two Killed, Three Injured In Accident

A very sad auto accident occurred near Napanee on Saturday morning last, when three young students from Queen's University and three registered nurses from Belleville were on their way to Kingston from Belleville. Those in the car were Paul Putman, medical student, who expected to graduate next month, and son of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Putman, of Ottawa, who was killed as he was thrown to the pavement. Miss Croft, of Belleville, R.N., who sat with him in the rumble seat was thrown over the fence when the car struck a tree in the ditch, and was so badly injured that she died next day at the Belleville Hospital. The three in the front seat were Miss Violet Avery, of Port Hope, and George Graham of Ottawa. The car was being driven by Ward Casselman, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. and Mrs. Casselman, of Sault Ste. Marie, none of them were seriously hurt. Young Casselman was put under arrest for reckless driving, and young Graham was held as a witness. Young Putman was well known in athletic sports, and was very popular. An inquest will be held.

TIRED OF POLITICIANS

The St. Thomas Times-Journal says: The public is tired of politicians and party politics. The time is coming when the country's business is bound to suffer because good men will not leave their own affairs to enter Parliament or the Legislature because of the growing habit of villification—which sometimes doesn't end when they are dead.

Twelve Ways Of Being A Good Citizen

1. A good citizen is he who unselfishly serves the community in which he lives; who keeps its laws and obeys its regulations.
2. A good citizen is he who makes his contributions as best he can to the progress of the community in which he seeks happiness for himself and family.
3. A good citizen is he who seeks to keep abreast of the times, by supporting such reasonable expenditures of money as will benefit the whole community.
4. A good citizen is he who studies with intelligence the towns problems and who recognizes that any real permanent improvement is a forward movement.
5. A good citizen is he whose visior carries him beyond the confines of his own little holdings and gives him an interest in that of his neighbor.
6. A good citizen is he whose moral sense recognizes that example is better than precept and that honor is better than place or power.
7. A good citizen is he who keeps his backyard clean and tidy and who does not make a dump-heap of the town's streets.
8. A good citizen is he who does not seek civic honors through politics social service clubs, or societies, but because of a rightful concept of duty and privilege.
9. A good citizen is he who casts aside pettiness and parochialism and forgets himself in the larger issues which embrace the activities of a progressive community.
10. A good citizen is he or she whose pride it is to make their own little home both inside and out, the evidence of the finer qualities that are worthwhile.
11. A good citizen is he or she who really wishes from the heart, that every other citizien may prosper.
12. A good citizen is he or she who makes an honest contribution of unselfish and loyal sacrifice to the town's advancement and upliff.

AN HONEST MAN

When Diogenes, the Greek philosopher, was seen carrying a lantern he was asked what he was seeking and the reply was: "I'm looking for an honest man." In this perverse day and generation, happily, honest men are to be found in every locality. In last week's issue of the St. Marys paper Editor Eedy, in an obituary sketch of A. H. Lofft, who had been a merchant in South Perth's largest town for 55 years, narrates this incident in the life of Mr. Lofft as a sample of his rugged honesty.

"An incident that occurred twenty-five years ago illustrates the type of man Mr. Lofft was. A fire occurred in his store and a lot of stock was destroyed. An insurance adjustor came up from Toronto and made a settlement with Mr. Lofft which appeared to him to be fair. But nearly a year later when Mr. Lofft had completed his annual stock-taking he concluded that the insurance people had allowed him too much and he sent the company a cheque for fifteen hundred dollars. The fire insurance company had never in its long history, an experience of that kind and scarcely knew where to credit the money in their books. The incident was known only to a few at the time but we can be pardoned for mentioning it now to illustrate a phase of Mr. Lofft's character."

T. P. LOBLAW DEAD

TORONTO, April 2.—Theodore P. Loblaw, founder in Canada of the chain system of groceries that bears his name, died at his residence here today in his 62nd year. Mr. Loblaw had undergone an operation Friday for a nose infection.

Besides being president of the chain of cash and carry stores he founded in 1910, Mr. Loblaw was president of Loblaw Groceterias, Inc., of Buffalo and Chicago, and a director of Canada Bread, Limited.

Dynamic, energetic and practical, Mr. Loblaw was hailed as the acme of success in business circles. His philanthropic work, while extending over a wide range, was conducted in an unobstrusive manner.

A few months ago Mr. Loblaw publicly announced he had joined the Oxford Group religious movement. Sting alone in the pulpit of Victoria Presbyterian Church, he told a congregation of thousands he had found happiness, that for the first time of his life, he had peace all through the medium of this movement.

Born at Alliston, Ont., July 1, 1872, he was educated in Alliston public and high schools and other Simcoe county educational institutions. He started his commercial career in the grocery trade in 1899 and seven years later started in business for himself when he formed the Loblaw Accounts System.

Next he opened up a series of chain stores, known as the Loblaw Stores, which proved the genesis of the present Loblaw Groceterias, Limited.

The chain has grown to 107 stores in Ontario with a turnover of more than $25,000,000 a year. Mr. Loblaw also began a similar chain of stores in New York state, which now includes 50 stores.

Led Charities' Campaign.

Interested in benevolent and philanthropic work, Mr. Loblaw was chairman of the Federation of Associated Charities' financial campaign in 1924. Regarded as an expert in purchasing he was one of a committee of three appointed by the city council the same year to survey its spending departments and advise on the desirability of establishing a central purchasing bureau for the city.

He was a director of the Young Men's Christian Association, a Kiwanian, a Mason and a member of the Western Hospital management board. Mr. Loblaw was a widower and a member of the United Church. He is survived by three sons and one daughter.

Mr. Loblaw was in Ottawa only last week and gave an address on the Oxford movement to a very large congregation. The week before he addressed audiences in churches at Smith's Falls and at Cornwall.

Do You Know The Law? Potatoes Must Be Tagged!

(Arnprior Chronicle.)

In Napanee police court recently two grocery store managers were charged with having in their possession, intended for sale, potatoes which were not tagged in accordance with the requirements of Section 5 (b) of the Root and Vegetables Act. The merchants pleaded guilty and were fined $10 each.

That there is such a law is news to us as it may also be news to our merchants and farmers, so in order that they may be on their guard we publish herewith the act in abbreviated form.

The law clearly states that every person who by himself or through the agency of another person offers for sale, sells or has in his possession intended for sale, any vegetables for which grades are provided by these regulations packed in closed baskets, bags, closed barrels, closed crates, or in bulk, shall mark the initials of his Christian names and his full surname and address, or in the case of a firm or corporation, the firm or corporate name and address, and the grade of the vegetable as prescribed by the Act and the prescribed by the Act and regulations thereunder, also the weight in a plain and indelible manner.

With respect to potatoes, the Act refers to the several grades—No. 1 of which the diameters of the round varieties shall not be less than one and seven-eighths inches, and of the long varieties one and three-quarters inches. No. 2, shall include potatoes which are reasonably mature, and the diameter shall not be less than one and one half inches. Number 3 shall consist of potatoes which do not conform to the foregoing grades but the minimum diameter shall not be less than one and one half inches. Then there is a fourth grade, the diameter of which shall not be less than two and one quarter inches.

PLENTY OF TEACHERS

Just recently there were two vacancies on the staff of the Prescott High School and there were 125 applicants for the positions from different points in Ontario. It would then appear that the supply will more than meet the demand.

One Way To Increase Population

ROME—An appeal by Premier Mussolini for a 17,000,000 increase in Italys population in the next ten years has brought keen rivalry by city governments in offering inducements for matrimony.

Some of the offers are:

The city of Brindisi promises cash wedding presents of $50 to the first 10 couples who marry there.

Bari will give a crib and blankets on the arrival of a baby in the first year of marriage. Ten such prizes will be distributed each month. Twice a month wedding costumes will be given brides who cannot afford a special dress for the occasion.

Genoa offers 100 wedding gifts of $25 cash.

Leghorn will give $15 on the arrival of the sixth and seventh infants, $30 for the eighth and ninth, and $50 for each child over the ninth.

Cuneo promises $10 for each child after the sixth, and also tax exemption and rent reductions.

Il Duce has assigned the income from the tax on bachelors to the national bureau for protection of mothers and infants.

State railways grant 70 per cent. fare reductions to couples on honeymoon trips.

PRAYER BEFORE FOOD

From the Calendar of St. Agnes' Chapel hanging outside the door of the refectory of Chester Cathedral, England, is this supplicatory poem:

A Prayer

Give me a good digestion, Lord,
And also something to digest;
Give me a healthy body, Lord,
With sense to keep it at its best.
Give me a healthy mind, Good Lord,
To keep the good and pure in sight
Which seeing sin it not appalled
But finds a way to set it right.
Give me a mind that is not bored,
That does not whimper whine or sigh;
Don't let me worry over much
About the fussy thing called "I."
Give me a sense of humour, Lord,
Give me the grace to see a joke,
To get some pleasure out of life
And pass it on to other folk.

OLD BULBS

Tulips, hyacinths and daffodils when through blooming should be allowed to dry out gradually in the cellar. In May plant as you would new bulbs in the perrenial border. They will be almost as good as fresh bulbs from Holland by the time next spring rolls around. Bulbs cost too much money to be discarded to the rubbish heap.

Sweet Peas

Everyone loves sweet peas—so easy to grow, such a wealth of color, so fragrant, such a wealth of bloom from June to October, that no garden should be without a hedge of them. Many flower lovers prefer sweet peas to orchids and we cannot wonder when we think of their many good qualities. For every spike you cut, it just grows two new ones to take its place. Sweet peas should be planted early; as early as possible. Now is none too early. Many good amateurs sow late in the fall and cover with leaves. This gives an exceptional root growth, and early, abundant root growth is the thing most desired. We have known expert amateurs to sow when the ground was only thawed out two inches. They just scraped off the top soil and spread the seed on the frozen earth beneath with excellent results.

The Old Family Pew

(Picton Gazette)

Present day conditions cause us to recall to tender memory an institution that is fast disappearing from among the once cherished phases and features of religious life: the family pew. Time was when the last stroke of the church bell found father at the head of a proud and happy parade, mother at the rear and between them their little flock, in their smartest array, on their dutiful way down the aisle to the family pew, there to bow in humble reverence to the Father of all men. Within a generation this once familiar and inspiring sight has all but passed into dim memory. The enervating effect of Saturday social activities too often finds father or mother unequal to the sabbath responsibility and, for failure of parental example, the family fall too easily for the lure of Sunday sports and the auto joy ride.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

Jesus Requires Confession and Loyalty
Lesson for April 9th. Mark 8:27-38.
Golden Text: Mark 8:34

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

This Palm Sunday lesson deals with one of the most significant incidents in the ministry of Jesus, the famous interview with His disciples at Caesarea Philippi, a high, mountainous town in the Jordan valley far to the north. Here was a shrine to the Greek god Pan, and a temple built in honor of the emperor Augustus. To this spot where men worshipped the forces of nature typified by Pan, and the political power incarnated in Augustus, Jesus and the disciples came seeking, in this Gentile territory, a refuge from Jewish opposition.

In the light of this background, note how intensely significant is the confession of Peter. When, in answer to Jesus' momentous query, "Who do men say that I am?" the impulsive apostle, the leader of the twelve, cried, "Thou art the Christ," he paid tribute to a leader more attractive than Pan, and more compelling than Augustus. And the importance of this confession is heightened by the fact that, as far as we can tell from a study of the all too brief gospel records, Jesus spoke here to His disciples about His Messiahship for the first time, and they, on their side, acknowledged it for the first time.

Why did the Master delay so long in speaking of the secret of His Person? This incident comes late in His career, near the end of the Galilean ministry. The answer to this difficult question seems to be, first of all, that our Lord felt the Messianic title to be misleading. His people dreamed of a mighty ruler, who would shatter the Roman world with the sword, and establish a victorious empire in Jerusalem. Obviously this conception did not at all express the meaning of His mission. Secondly, he knew that when He declared Himself openly as the Messiah, He would arouse volcanic hostility. Remember that the open announcement of His Messiahship at Caesarea Philippi meant a resolution on His part to return to the hostile Jews and the death their hate was preparing for Him. Here the Master set His face toward Jerusalem and the Cross.

THE GREAT IDEA

WHEN Gideon called for volunteers to fight the Midianites, thirty-two thousand responded. Gideon looked them over critically. He knew the conflicting motives that had brought them there—some from mere love of adventure; some because they were afraid to be taunted with cowardice; some for plunder; some to get away from their wives. He determined to weed them out at once:

Bruce Barton

"Whosoever is fearful and afraid, let him go home to-night," he proclaimed.

The next morning twenty-two thousand had vanished. Only ten thousand remained.

Still Gideon was unsatisfied. He hit upon a stratagem. Down the hillside and across a little brook he led the whole band. It was a hot morning; the men were thirsty and tired; and Gideon, standing on the bank and watching, had a shrewd idea that character would show itself under the strain. Sure enough, of the ten thousand, a vast majority knelt down and pushed their faces into the cool, clear water, taking long refreshing draughts. But a few were too eager. They caught up the water in their hands, dashed it into their faces, and hurried across to the other bank, restless to be on!

Only a handful; only three hundred. But Gideon kept them and sent the rest home. Better three hundred who could not be held back from the battle than ten thousand who were merely half-heartedly ready to go.

With the three hundred he won.

That higher type of leadership which calls forth men's greatest energies by the promise of obstacles rather than the picture of rewards—that was the leadership of Jesus. By it he tempered the soft metal of his disciples' nature into keen hard steel. The final conference with which he prepared them for their work is thrilling in its majestic appeal to courage. Listen to the calm recital of the deprivations and dangers:

Get you no gold, nor silver, nor brass in your purses.

No wallet for your journey; neither two coats, nor shoes nor staff.

Beware of men: for they will deliver you up to councils and in their synagogues they will scourge you; yea and before governors and kings shall ye be brought for my sake.

He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me: and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me. And he that doth not take his cross and follow after me is not worthy of me.

He that findeth his life shall lose it; and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it.

Watch the faces and the figures. See the shoulders straighten, the muscles of the lips grow hard. There is power in those faces that will not be withstood.

The great Idea prevailed.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES

Electricity!

No tale of wonders and enchantments has ever been written that excelled the actual reality which is today at mankind's fingertips in the wonders and magic of electricity. Step by step the intelligence of man leads him on through the ages of civilization until to-day our most common utility is in fact far beyond the mere comprehension of even the dreams of our forefathers. The Hydro System brings all of this to the citizens of Winchester. There is no new development or equipment in the fields that is not available to the life and business of local citizens. The drudgery can be taken out of housework if you let electric energy be the slave.

Possibly your home needs re-wiring or the present wiring a little overhauling. If so let us know about it. We are here to see that you get the best possible results from Hydro Light and Power.

ADOPT BUDGET

The Ontario legislature on Tuesday night approved the motion for adoption of the budget speech by 75 votes to 20 and at the same time defeated a Liberal amendment which would have condemned the government for its "failure to balance the budget." The amendment was moved by F. W. Elliott, Liberal financial critic, in opening the discussion.

DOCTOR CANCELS $29,500 IN PATIENTS' ACCOUNTS

FAITH, S.D.—For more than a score of years Dr. H. C. Dyrkee has been answering distress calls from the sick and injured, and when he looked over his account books he found the amount due him in fees was approximately $29,500. After cancelling all the bills he said:

"Live as you go and save a dollar for a rainy day. If you have more, divide it with the poor and thank God that you have health."

NEW ISSUER OF LICENSES

Douglas Kelly, of Prescott, has been appointed license issuer for automobiles to fill the place caused by the absence of the former issuer, Charles D. Martin. Mr. Martin, who had held the position for a number of years, left town some weeks ago without leaving word where he was going. Inspectors from the department at Toronto have been auditing the books, but no official statement has yet been made. A number of motorists meanwhile have been obliged to go to Brockville and Kemptville to obtain their licenses.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS!

"Cant-Sag" Gates

Last longer than any other gate you can buy or build. They weigh much less than ordinary all-wood gates and are far stronger than any steel, wire or gas-pipe gate made. They can't get bent and twisted out of shape by stock as steel gates do—the worst thing that can happen to a "CAN'T SAG" is a broken board — a new board and 5 minutes of your time replaces that and the Gate is as good as new.

Give you everything you can ask for in a farm gate—and at surprisingly low cost. They look neat—hang straight—swing freely and are strong and durable. America's finest farms are now almost universaly equipped with "CAN'T-SAGS." You see them everywhere you go. Come in and let us quote you prices.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Ward Casselman, the young man who is being held in the Napanee jail on a serious charge following an automobile accident on Saturday which resulted in the death of Beatrice Croft, R.N., of Belleville is a former resident of Williamsburg. He is well-known in this and the Williamsburg district.

The Municipal Council will meet in the Council Chamber to-morrow (Friday) night at 7.30 o'clock. As there is considerable business of importance to come up, all members are asked to be prompt. The question of tax arrears, especially the amounts due for poll and dog taxes will be dealt with and action taken.

Over a long period of years Canada has built up a system of governmental machinery that is far too large for our needs, far too large, indeed, if our population were several times greater than it is. We shall have extracted no little benefit from the depression, if it forces a general reorganization of government bodies.—Border Cities Star.

THEIR DIAMOND WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ball of Maple Ridge recently celebrated the diamond anniversary of their marriage at their home. Mr. and Mrs. Ball were married in 1873 by the late Rev. Thos. McAmmond, who was at that time the pastor of the Methodist Church of Chesterville. Three of their six children were present at their anniversary, Mrs. H. Durant, Mrs. G. Shay and Abraham Ball. The other three children are dead. The family presented the couple with a reading lamp, while beautiful flowers were received from the Ladies' Aid of the Chesterville United Church. Following refreshments, Rev. R. E. Newman, on behalf of the gathering, expressed hearty congratulations.

PRESENTED WITH PEN

The Y.P.S. of the United Church, of Ventnor, held their social evening on Wednesday, March 29th. Mr. Jerry Perry and members of the F.Y.M.C. were responsible for the programme. Mr. Lloyd Sloan, vice-president, was in the chair. The meeting opened with a hymn and prayer. Bible reading was given by Mr. Cecil Bennett, followed by a chorus by the F.Y.M.C. A story was told by Mr. Perry about the christian being able to consider right from wrong and draw the line in its proper place. The Roll Call was answered with a word of advice. The members of the Joy Givers Class presented Miss Rhea Barton with a fountain pen, as she is leaving for Brockville to train for a nurse in the General Hospital there. Miss Beryl Adams read the address and Miss Elva Munroe made the presentation. Miss Barton replied very fittingly. A sing song was led by Miss Beryl Adams and Mr. Cecil Bennett closed with "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

THEY DIED LIKE MEN

New York, April 5.—Richard E. Deal, one of the three survivors, told a friend in the Brooklyn naval hospital to-day that the crew of the Akron died calling out cheery farewells to each other as, one by one, they gave up their fights against the rough sea and drowned after the crash.

"Well, goodbye!" he said he heard them say. And:

"Good luck to you—wherever you're going."

"At first," Deal said, "the water was full of men, swimming around. When the lightning flashed, I could see their heads.

"But then they began to do down, one by one. And I could hear them calling to each other as they gave up."

Deal told his story early to-day, before he left for Washington, to Geo. Small, a fellow-patient. Small a former marine, and Deal were on the same ship, several years ago.

JAMES A. BENNETT OF SPENCERVILLE PASSES

James A. Bennett, former reeve of the township of Edwardsburg, and a member of the county council for several years, died on Tuesday this week at his home in Spencerville. He was in his 81st year and on December 6th last he and his wife celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding.

The late Mr. Bennett was a lifelong resident of the Spencerville district. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Bennett, pioneer settlers of the district, who originally came from Ireland. Since his marriage, in 1882, Mr. Bennett lived on a farm one mile west of the village of Spencerville, and was well known throughout the whole district. He was a staunch supporter of the Conservative party and also took an active interest in municipal affairs. For 12 years he was a member of the township council and for two years was on the county council.

For the past 25 years both Mr. and Mrs. Bennett have been members of the choir of the Spencerville Methodist Church and Mr. Bennett also was a member of many of the men's organizations of the parish and the societies of the community. The news of his death, after only a short illness, was a great shock to the community and his passing will be deeply mourned.

Our Column

March, the third month of 1933, has gone.

Good Friday is but one week from to-morrow.

The maple syrup is now in the process of making.

Easter holidays for the schools will be here next week.

Now that the end of Lent is near the Dance Bill is again in evidence.

One-half the world doesn't know how the other half lives. But it has its suspicions.

The unemployment question won't trouble Councillor Walter Moffatt for the rest of this year.

Happiest homes are those where the dining room table still is considered more important than the card table.

The ten sweetest words to any newspaper publisher at the present time: "Enclosed you will find money order to cover my subscription."

That senator who proposed Sunday elections in Canada must be a queer stick. That's the day the farm folks are kept busy feeding city visitors.

If the car and truck traffic through Winchester this spring is any indication of what the summer will bring forth, the pavement through here will be kept hot.

In all Canada, one farm in 6.08 has a radio, one in 3.11 has a telephone, and one in every 12 has water piped in the kitchen and one in 20.17 farms has water piped in the bathrooms, according to sidelight figures just released by the Bureau of Statistics. On the farms of Canada there is one automobile to every 2.27 farms

Do we not remember that, a few weeks ago, there were many, many people and organizations clamoring for a chance to barter with the Soviet Republic says an exchange? And did not the Government say, virtually, "Go to it—but stand your own losses if you have any?" And has there not been an awful silence since that time? Where, oh where, have all these would-be barterers hidden themselves? Of only one thing about the whole mess are we certain and that is that those who sought so hard for barter with Sovietism are very, very wise in getting under cover.

Joseph Deibler, of Highland Park, Ill., who claims to have driven no fewer than 117 makes of motor cars since he entered business as a dealer, is outdistanced in this respect by Geo. W. Warwick, of Brockville, who is able to recall having driven no fewer than 121 makes of automobiles since he first took the wheel of one of the early machines in the year 1903. Mr. Warwick's first experience with the ancestor of the present-day motor car was in Ottawa 30 years ago when he did his best to manipulate a machine as the "Orient Buckboard." He has been driving motor cars ever since.

McLAUGHLIN—ROBINSON

On March 31st, 1933, by the Rev. J. A. Shaver, of Dundas, Lepha Mabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Robinson, of Paris, Ont., to Dr. Robert Cairnduff McLaughlin, son of Dr. P. McLaughlin, and the late Mrs. McLaughlin, of Winchester, Ontario.

THE ONLY WAY

On political issues the world cannot agree; in matters of religion there are eternal differences of opinion; all people have ideas; other people lack sound reasoning; but on one point we all agree; everyone wants to see his home town prosper and grow.

The way to a growing prosperous community is through good stores. And the way to stores is through trading at home. Buy away from home and watch your town die.

Some experts contend that good trading facilities build population and real estate values; others say that good stores follow population, but again, all agree that local prosperity can never come until adequate trading facilities are established.

No town was ever built by money sent in the neighboring city. There are the dollars that build the big cities and their large mercantile fortunes.

A large part of the dollar spent in the home community remains there. It travels from home to grocer, to the butcher, to the hardware merchant, and so on around the wheel of home trade. Spent out of town the dollar has gone forever.

Every community likes to take pride in its stores. And yet those stores, which are expected to keep up to the community standard, do not receive all of the shopping dollars. Stores are what the customers, not the proprietors, make them.—Exchange.

Dr. C. Stirtan, of South Mountain, is recuperating at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stirtan, following a recent operation in the Kingston General Hospital.

The sincere sympathy of this community is extended to Miss Susie Dixon in her present serious affliction, and to her relatives who are so carefully and tenderly looking after her welfare.

At the family residence in Chesterville the death occurred Friday at noon of Mrs. James Masterson. The late Mrs. Masterson was well known throughout the district and had numerous friends who regret her passing.

Many friends in this vicinity will regret to learn that Mr. George Barclay, local merchant of Williamsburg, returned to the General Hospital, Brockville, last week, where he will take further treatments. It is hoped he will soon be restored to his usual good health.

Mr. Humphrey Hughes received very painful injuries yesterday afternoon, when he slipped and fell against a wood pile at his home, Piety Hill. In addition to being bruised, Mr. Hughes had his face badly scarred and is at present confined to his home in a more or less crippled condition.

The British North America Act was the subject of an address given before the Morrisburg Women's Institute on Monday afternoon by Howard O. Hessell, a prominent Morrisburg lawyer. Several musical selections and the regular W. I. business were included in the meeting's program.

The first prospectors to stake claims in the Sudbury district, which has become the centre of the world's nickel industry, paid $1 an acre for their 310-acre tract in the township of McKim. More than half a billion dollars in nickel, copper, platinum, gold and silver has been taken from the Sudbury field.

Mr. Phil Strader, a student at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph where he spent the past term, returned to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Bruce Strader, at Williamsburg, last week. On account of suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and being confined to the hospital there for two weeks, he was unable to continue his college term.

The many friends of the Rev. R. H. Thatcher will be happy to know that he is to be ordained to the priesthood in St. Barnabas' Church, Ottawa, by the Archbishop of Ottawa on Wednesday morning in Holy Week. For the last year he has been in charge of the Mission of Combermere. Formerly he was in charge of St. Peter's church, South Mountain.

MARRIED AT DUNDAS

Congratulations are extended to Dr. Robert C. McLaughlin, of Paris, Ont., only son of Dr. P. McLaughlin, of Winchester, who was on Friday, March 3rd, married to Lepha Mable, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bathgate Robinson, of Dundas, Ont.

SUING FOR $15,000

Mrs. Hoy, widow of the late Milton Hoy, has issued a writ against John Millar, of Mountain Township, for $15,000. John Miller was the driver of the car that went into the ditch just this side of Ottawa, and resulted in the death of Mr. Hoy.

NEW RULES FOR BRIDGE

1. Pick up your cards as dealt. You will be able to bid ahead of the others.
2. If your hand is rotten, mention it. It will guide your partner in his bid and play.
3. If your partner bids, don't hesitate to raise. He has to play it.
4. Never hurry. Try several cards on a trick until you are sure which one you prefer.
5. Occasionally ask what is trump. It will show you are interested in the game.
6. Walk around the table when you are dummy and look at the other hands. Then tell them what cards are good and how many tricks they can take if they play right.
7. Don't keep quiet when you are dummy. Help your partner out with suggestions.
8. Talk about other subjects during the game. It makes for good fellowship.
9. Feel free to criticize your partner. He will do much better as a result.
10. Always trump your partner's tricks. Never take a chance.
11. Never try to remember rules. It is too confusing.
12. If it is a money game always stop when you are ahead. It will leave a lasting impression and folks will remember you.
13. Always explain your plays, particularly when set. It shows your card knowledge.
14. Disagree with established rules and conventions. People will know you are of an independent mind.
15. Eat chocolate caramels or other adhesive candy while playing. It keeps the cards from skidding.

WOULD HANDLE MILK AS PUBLIC UTILITY

Toronto, April 5.—Handling of milk as a public utility with prices to producer and consumer fixed by a commission was a principal topic discussed today at the opening session of the National Dairy Council of Canada annual meeting here.

Recent legislation in Michigan, the present system in Winnipeg, and expected legislation controlling milk prices in Alberta were considered by the members, who plan presentation to-morrow of an important resolution definitely setting forth opinions and suggestions of the council on this subject of interest to thousands of farmers throughout Canada.

NO GOLD HOARDING IN THE UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON, April 5.—President Franklin Roosevelt reached out for the persistent gold hoarders today with a formal order providing penalties after May 1.

In the same drastic decree he put the United States gold supply under federal license, providing a controlled relaxation in the present embargo for legitimate domestic and foreign transactions.

Virtually all persons holding more than $100 in gold or gold certificates were directed by the President to turn their supply over to the Federal Reserve system or face a maximum penalty of $10,000 fine or 10 years' imprisonment or both. The President acted after a conference with William Woodin, secretary of the treasury, and Director Douglas of the budget.

He was represented as elated at the expression of confidence by the public in returning $1,200,000,000 in currency to the banks in the last few weeks but as equally determined to get at those who are still hoarding.

More than $600,000,000 of the money returned to the banks was in the form of gold and gold certificates. However, on April 3 there were still outstanding $1,303,989,559 in gold certificates.

Apparently convinced that some of the gold hoarders were waiting for the government to issue a formal order, the President acted. By his order Mr. Roosevelt obtained absolute command or the gold supply.

Worth While Advice

Imagine yourself to be blind, and being asked to buy a motor car, or silverware, or clothing, or a pair of shoes, or a clock, or a refrigerator, or a suite of furniture. Imagine yourself to be set down in a main street with stores on both sides of it, and bing bidden to purchase the thing or things on your shopping list.

Being blind, you would not know what store or stores to enter; and even if you did find yourself in the right class of store, you wouldn't be able to select intelligently what you were bidden to buy. You wouldn't know anything about values.

It would be cruel to send a blind person to do selective buying.

You would be like a blind person, when you start out to buy something, if there were no advertisements in the newspapers and magazines which you read.

Advertisements are like radiovision: They enable you to see in your home what is in stores, what stores have, what you plan to buy; also, they give description, tell you prices, and answer many of your questions.

Pre-informed—in your home—about goods of desire, you can go shopping confidently—to known places of supply, and you know how to examine the wanted article, and what to pay for it.

Advertisements save your time, and safeguard you against the danger of mischoice.

What is advertised regularly is trustworthy, and is good value.

Be guided by advertisements when you plan to spend money for things to wear, to eat, to give your home easements and comforts, to save your time, to increase the output of your own labor, or of your soil or flocks or herds or orchards; or to protect your life, your health, your property or money.

What advertisers do and spend in this and in other newspapers to get your attention and favor should have your warm approval, for what may be expense to them represents economy for you.
