Mrs James Hughes Passes Away in 78th Year In Ottawa

A lifelong and highly respected resident of Chesterville, Mrs Jas. Hughes, died September 17 at the home of her daughter, Mrs Cecil Gillissie, Ottawa, following a long illness.

Born in Chesterville 78 years ago, she was Mary Ann Allen, the daughter of the late Patrick and Mary McMahon Allen. She received her education in local schools and became the wife of James Hughes who died many years ago.

Active in church work of St. Mary's Parish Church to which communion she belonged, she was a member of the Catholic Women's League, the League of the Sacred Heart and the Altar League.

The late Mrs Hughes was, prior to the illness which caused her to make her home with her daughter in Ottawa, interested in all facets of community life and laboured diligently in any cause which would contribute to the improvement of the life around her.

For many years she, with the late Miss Helen Moad, was a strength and stay of a very flourishing Horticultural Society and she also was a member over a long period of time of the Chesterville Association Library Board. She was a charter member of Chesterville Women's Institute and for many years was president of the Women's Institutes of Dundas District.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs Cecil Gillissie, (Marcia) Ottawa, one sister, Mrs G. E. Gormley, and one brother, Thomas Allen. both of Chesterville, and six grandchildren, of Ottawa.

Solemn High Mass was chanted on Tuesday morning in St Mary's Church by Rev Simon Lesage, assisted by Rev E . F. Bambrick, as Deacon, and Rev G. Donegan, as Sub-Deacon, both of St. George's Parish, Ottawa. Also present in the Sanctuary were Rev Leo Hickey and Rev Thomas Farrell, Ottawa.

The pall bearers were Richard Casselman, John Coyne, Francis Moriarty, Ronald Lynch, Jack McMillan and Walter Carr.

The many spiritual offerings and beautiful floral tributes testified to the sorrow expressed by citizens in all walks of life on the death of Mrs Hughes.

Burial was made in St Mary's Upper Cemetery.

Finch W.I. Members Enjoy Tour Along Seaway Project

Members and friends of Finch Women's Institute enjoyed a holiday when a bus was chartered to visit the St. Lawrence Seaway project.

About 35 left Friday afternoon and journeyed to the Seaway Office Buildings and Hospital site, where C. MacIntosh, P.R.O. of the Hydro development, met and escorted them through the hospital and explained its operation and equipment. He then conducted the party to the Seaway operations, explaining and demonstrating a retractable Bailey Bridge, which operates over the canal to transport trucks and material to the cofferdam. He also took them to a lookout at Mille Roches, where an excellent view was obtained of the work being done on the dry river bed above the cofferdam, where foundations are being made for a powerhouse.

From there they were taken to the rapids view, right on the Longue Sault Rapids, where another dam could be viewed as well as a new channel, which had been opened through an island opposite the rapids.

Everyone felt much indebted to Mr MacIntosh for the very pleasant manner in which he explained so explicitly just what was taking place in this epic-making project.

PINIONS . . .
Ours and Others

000 Miles — Still at Home

iking thing about travelling in Canada is of being at home no matter how far away me. We don't mean the actual surroundings e same here as there but the feeling of belongo the same community of thought and custom is strong.

Our travelling experience is not large. We have no great store of miles behind us to point to when talk of other countries or lands comes up; we do know what it is like to pass from one country to another and the foreign feeling that immediately encompasses one. In Canada it is very different. The writer's recent approximately 6,000 miles of travel on a trip to the West Coast and back, while long in miles, never seemed at any time to be out of our own community. We will grant the scenery was considerably changed, the economy of the countryside was different in method but no matter where the traveller stopped there was a bit of Chesterville or home wn district to tie tighter the common heritage of anadians.

Newspapermen, especially in the weekly field, ve a vast common interest in the affairs of their n community. The curious thing is that their comnity problems, when talked over with their neigh- 2,000 miles away, have a striking sameness. In e of many local government's opposition to the , nearly all weekly newspapers serve as the pubonscience of their community. The vivid reaction at duty in the communities across Canada is inresting to hear but has a sameness that is another ctor in making one feel at home away from home. early all editors and publishers who use their paper a sounding board for constructive ideas run smack against a wall of opposition and criticism that n the brain to keep ahead of.

Canada is still long in country and short in ulation. She still has a small town attitude in many gs and that is good. In spite of the size of her there is the feeling of newness and freshness nt arrival that will allow for growth and keep up to the changing world. Our growth from our small communities in Canada and ers of a small community we have a basic bility to our neighbours. As we grow, so anada.

Mr Gardiner to Russia

A few years ago a friend went to visit Mr ner on his Saskatchewan farm and found the Honourable the Minister of Agriculture at the of a very high barn door, painting it, says the Otva Journal. This we think is one of the reasons why e Prime Minister should insist that Mr Gardiner cept the invitation to visit Russia and see agricul- ral methods there.

Mr Gardiner is a practical farmer and a prac- al politician. He is leathery and on a Russian farm our we can imagine him praising the good and pull- a long mouth over the inefficient. Farmers have on language and in both Canada and Russia ve no respect for the visitor who pretends to e land and doesn't.

e are not going to say we admire Mr Gardin- as much as a politician as we do honour to his nowledge of farming. But he is a product of a demo- atic system who has won his election campaigns by g tough, watchful of his party's interests and un- g in the cause. In fact when we read cracks about ete democracy we think of James Gardiner and feel better.

Letter from the Editor

The editor of the Record and Mrs Graham attended the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association convention in Vancouver last week. In the issue of last week we carried an account of the trip through the West to Vancouver. The story is continued:

At the risk of being shot, we would like to say here and now that Vancouver would be just the place to retire in, or if you were full of bounce and ambition, to make a new living in. The city is bouncing, bustling and clean. It is surrounded by mild sea air that keeps away the heavy cold and snow of our part of Canada and it appears to offer a great deal to anyone with much or little of this world's goods.

Our train entered the station early Sunday morning. Along with other members of the weekly newspaper business we invaded Hotel Vancouver looking for a room and a bath.

We were somewhat surprised to find a note waiting for us after we had our breakfast. An old friend of the Record, and well-known to many Chesterville folk, had called. Mrs Pearl Johnston was anxious to see us and let her show us around the lovely city. After lunch, Mrs Johnston and her friends met us at the hotel with a car and we spent the afternoon sightseeing.

Vancouver is growing up and out; on all sides there is new construction. New houses are everywhere and nearly all reflect the modern style of building. The moderate climate of the West Coast makes for the use of a great deal of wood and glass. Ranch-style houses seem to be all the rage.

The University of British Columbia out at the end of the city spreads its newness over many acres. It has yet to get that ivy-walled appearance but movement and life is apparent on all sides on the many campus areas. We were most appreciative of Mrs Johnston's efforts on our behalf.

A trip up Grouse Mountain was scheduled for the late afternoon by early arrivals at the convention. We decided to take in the tour, thinking to see the city from another angle. We saw the city alright from another angle, but from a most (to a low-lander) uncomfortable angle. After a bus ride over Lion's Gate Bridge, we arrived at the foot of the ski lift up the mountain. That little device appeared to go straight up the side of the mountain and disappear into the wild blue yonder. Passengers were flipped onto a dangling lawn chair that held two persons and by means of a cable taken up the mountain side. While one was never actually more than twenty feet above the ground at any place, still it seemed a vast distance out over the bay to the city. After almost a mile of this perpendicular travel we unclenched our death grips on the chair and had a cup of coffee at the chalet.

The city lights after dark from the mountain were worth the trip up even though we sighed gently when we were back down to reasonably level earth.

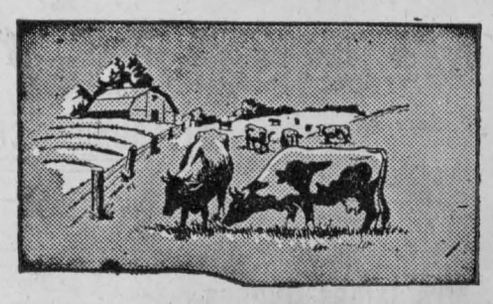

Convention business kept most of the visitors busy from Monday on. The breaks came on Tuesday afternoon and Tuesday evening. In the afternoon, all the association members were entertained at a private home, that of the F. Ronald Graham's, (no relation), in the University of B.C. area. Believe it or not, the home was large enough to handle easily 450 people and see that each one had tea and sandwiches. The charming Mrs Graham met and had a word with everyone.

The Canadian Pacific Railway put the capital H on Hospitality in the evening. All delegates were taken to the water front, loaded aboard the "Princess Patricia," a large CPR coastal liner and taken on a cruise that lasted until 11 p.m. A dance orchestra was provided for those with a light foot, bingo played at length and profitably by some and all the comforts of food and other refreshment were available for the asking.

The writer and Mrs Graham took off alone on Wednesday afternoon and in the time left made a personal tour of some of Stanley Park. We were intrigued by the penguins, amused by the monkeys and pecked at by the tame Canada geese. The tall trees in the park are something to see. Seeing those, we could understand why so much wood is used in West Coast building.

All too soon we had to pack up and head for home. The West Coast is attractive, and it has a newness we have grown out of here. Some day when time is not at quite such a premium we hope to make a longer visit.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

I was talking to a man from Cornwall the other night. After we'd been introduced and said our formal "How-do-you-do's" we launched into that well-worn subject, the weather. We agreed it had been a beautiful day. Then I said something about the heat of the past summer.

"I loved every minute of it," the gentleman assured me. "It's never too hot for me. If I had my life to live over again," he continued, "I'd go to Florida or somewhere where it is hot like that all the time." I took a better look at him for I don't expect to meet many people who can honestly say that they really enjoyed the 90's and 97's of the past season.

Usually I dread seeing the fall come. I like to be outdoors—not cooped up in the house beside the register. But this year I'm so delighted to witness the end of those months of heat and humidity I don't think I'll complain about it being fall. I hope we don't have another summer like 1955 for at least 100 years. 1954 was too cold and wet for most people. This past summer was too hot and dry. Surely next year we're entitled to one that is just right.

I wonder what there was about the past season that made the apples grow so well. We have four apple trees at the back door and for years all they've provided is a bit of shade and a location for the tent caterpillars. This year they really excelled themselves.

We had Transparents early in the summer. Then came the Duchess apples with quite a few Melbas on a small, young tree. The only complaint we had concerned ants. Birds or something made holes in the Duchess apples. Then as soon as they hit the ground they were simply crawling with tiny, brown ants. They crawled up our arms when we picked up the apples. They crawled around the house after we brought the apples inside even though we tried our best to throw the most populated apples into the field and knock the inhabitants out of the others. They were annoying.

We've a tree of McIntoshes too. Already we've had windfalls for dozens of pies. There are two hampers of Macs in the shed and another on the ground. I'm sure there are 2-3 more on the trees that we have to hand pick. They're not Grade 1, of course, but they're apples and free, so what more could we ask?

Apple trees everywhere seem loaded down. Even the hawthorns and the wild trees along the fences. I wonder that they didn't bake on the trees before they matured.

It was too hot all summer to paint our veranda floor so I'm doing it now. It's one of those floors that has had dozens of coats of paint of various colours during its life time. In fact the paint is so thick and checked so badly it is impossible to do a good job no matter how well I paint it.

The other day I tried to scrape off the thick stuff with a knife. But I soon tired of that. So I dug up a recipe for removing old paint.

It says to make five quarts of thick, cooked starch paste and add a can of lye. Then spread it on the old paint with a broom, let it stand 20 minutes, hose it off and do it all over again.

Well, it works—but not like a charm. Paint that was put on to stand wear and weather doesn't come off with the wave of a wand. I gave two coats to about a third of the floor and that used all my paste. But it took off several layers of paint. I'm past the greens and browns and down to the slate now. Maybe two more coats will make it smooth enough to repaint.

Apparently this recipe works on varnish too. Maybe you'd like to try it on furniture some time. I don't recommend it for recreation however. Besides, it ruins the broom you use. Mine is just like a dishmop now.

Speaking of brooms. I wish somebody would put used brooms on the market. I need two or three to sweep off the men's feet, to clean up the basement and scrub off the veranda. Old brooms are much better than new ones for jobs like that but they don't seem to be available.

Light Along The Way

In the year 1780 Robert Raikes went down into the slums of the city of Gloucester, Eng. It was Sunday, but no one would ever know it from the noise. All about him was a quarreling throng of dirty, ragged children yelling, shrieking, running, wrestling and swearing. They made so much noise that Raikes had difficulty in getting answers to the questions he tried to ask of the people he met.

Raikes left the slum district, but he couldn't forget the sight of the unkempt, swarming mob of children, their shrill voices and crude, course language. Robert Raikes liked girls and boys and it bothered him to know that they had to grow upin the dirt and squalor of slum streets.

Raikes began telling his friends about the plight of the children he had seen. They were not sympathetic. "What they need is a sound flogging," said one. "They're dirty, filthy, trouble-makers. We should use a firm hand to deal with their lying, cheating, stealing and profanity," said another. When Robert protested that the children were not responsible for their plight his friends became indignant. "Don't try to tell us anything about them, Raikes," was their reply. "Those people are hopeless. You can't educate them. They're incapable of any improvement whatsoever."

Raikes didn't agree and gradually he realized that not only should something be done for these children, but that he should be the one to do it. He found help in the person of Mrs Mary Critehley—a strong willed, capable woman with a knack for handling restless ragamufiins. They secured a house in Sooty Alley and there they held the first Sunday Church School.

At first only boys were accepted for the school. They were rough, wild and noisy. But Robert Raikes had a way with boys. They liked him. They listened to what he had to say. They even combed their hair and washed their necks in order to please him.

It was not long before the value of Robert Raikes' work was recognized, and only three years later, 1783, a Sunday School was founded in St. Paul's Church, Halifax, Nova Scotia, the first in North America.

The man who dared to believe in children, who was laughed at, ridiculed and scorned for his foolhardy, impractical plan, had honours heaped upon him. King George III and Queen Charlotte both acknowledged the wonder of his work which had turned Sunday into a different kind of day for boys and girls.

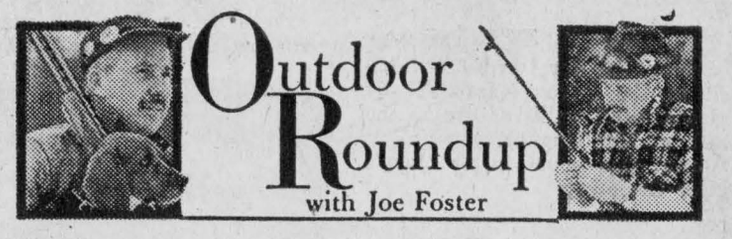

Today Sunday Schools are found throughout the world and there are thirty million children enrolled in them. As we meet in our churches on this coming Sunday, Rally Day, and begin another season of activity, let us recognize the supreme importance of Sunday School and all its related Christian Education programme. Let us stand with Robert Raikes, and not with the scoffers, seeking to interest children in the higher life and to teach them that Word without which there is no life.

WIRED FOR "FOUND"

The Japanese telecommunications ministry recently won a $25,000 suit against a man who dug up its underwater cables five years ago and sold them.

The defendant claimed he "found" the communication cables between the main Japanese islands of Honshu and Hokkaido, and believed they belonged to the then-defunct Japanese army.

The court ordered him to give back the money and pay compensation to the ministry.

At Roman feasts live fish sometimes were taken from the water in the banquet room so that diners could watch the vivid changing colour as the fish died. Last week motoring up to Ottawa and on through to Chaffey's Locks in the Rideau Lake district, the wife and I were reminded of this ancient custom as we observed that the green of summer is fast beginning to wear off. In a matter of a few days now and we'll be witness to summer dying in a burst of colour. Already the countryside is tinged with brown, here and there highlighted by the vivid scarlet of an early-turning maple.

A Visit with Old Friends

We pulled in at Opinicon Lodge in time for supper. Its operation is still supervised under the watchful eye of Mrs Phillips, 92 years young. The lodge caters almost exclusively to anglers of both sexes with the bulk of the clientele drawn from the eastern United States. After supper we called in on Clint and Pat Fleming and spent a happy evening drowsing in front of the fire, brewing numerous cups of tea, munching on cheese curds and listening to Clint's yarns.

The Old Order Changeth

Was a time when the dining room at Opinicon Lodge was a spot where, in addition to taking in nourishment for the body, one could also absorb considerable encouragement from the room's atmosphere for the next fishing expedition. The walls of this hall used to be decorated exclusively with mounted trophies of record fish taken in the surrounding waters. Now the dining salon is papered in a gaily flowered chintz and the only concession to visiting anglers is the record size lake trout which hangs over the fire place. Querying Sylvia, our pretty blonde waitress, we learned that the change in decor was for the benefit of the more fastidious-minded patrons whose appetites were impaired as they lifted up their eyes from their ham and eggs to gaze on the gigantic pike, musky, large mouth bass, wall-eyes, etc. that adorned the walls. Such is progress—or long live civilization.

Clint Fleming, one of the oldest and most experienced guides in the district and in his own right an author of no mean repute, reports that this summer, in spite of the heat, produced some of the best fishing this district has seen in several years. At a time when the thoughts of most of us inevitably turns to guns and gunning, it is good to be reminded that there is still some excellent fishing to be had before the season closes down.

Perch are Running

In to Tony, the barber, for a haircut on Friday and he tells me the perch are running in the Lake of Two Mountains and in the Ottawa River. Past few days Tony has been filletting and freezing as quickly as his boy and a couple of pals can bring them in.

Duck Shooters Happy

Saturday, September 17, duck shooting opened in the central zones in both Ontario and Quebec. Real shirt-sleeve shooting weather prevailed over the weekend with temperatures during the day varying from 75 to 85 degrees. So far I have only been able to gather in reports from shooters in the home town area. The majority of those that I have checked with shot their limit or near limit before 9 a.m. At this time and in this area teal predominate, although just prior to opening day there were a lot of blacks around. Letter to the Editor

Stockton, Calif.,
September 12, 1955.

The Editor,
Chesterville Record,
Chesterville, Ont.

Sir:

The world is a very small place after all. A cousin of mine from Brandon, Manitoba, sent me a copy of your paper dated August 25, 1955, and recorded in it was one of many names. "Linked with the Past" was Wm. Fergusson, Presbyterian Minister. He was grandfather of Bill Fergusson, of Brandon, Manitoba, who also spends some time in Chesterville; grandfather of six granchildren, of Stockton, Calif., six great grandchildren and 11 great great grandchildren of Stockton and vicinity.

Dad, Wm. E. Fergusson, ran away from home at the age of seventeen and fought near the end of the Civil War; he joined a New York Company.

He returned to Chesterville after the war. and with health impaired migrated to Nevada and then to California. California has been very kind to the Fergusson clan.

On our trip around the United States and Canada two years ago we made a complete circle: Texas, New Orleans, the Gulf Coast, important cities on the Atlantic, visiting my wife's old home town in Waterbury, also my brother's wife's home town of Berlin, N.H.

We then went on to Quebec City, a very interesting city, up the St. Lawrence River on the Canadian side. We did not stop in Montreal as it was on a Sunday. We then began to think of Dad and Mother's old home town, so detoured off course to Chesterville which, in our childhood days,was thousands of miles away and one place we never expected to see. We should have spent more time there, so we did not see much of it. We then drove to Winchester and visited briefly with Oliver Keyes.

I noticed in your paper several items about the Merkleys. Mother was one of the Merkleys, a niece of Jake Merkley. Her maiden name was Elsie Nephew.

It was interesting visiting these places as Dad so often spoke of Cornwall, Morrisburg, Winchester and Chesterville in Dundas County. We left Chesterville and drove to New York State and then on to Niagara Falls, which is very, very beautiful, and then on to Henry Ford's Museum and Greenfield Village, visiting Black Hills, Mt. Rushmore, Yellowstone, Salt Lake. We had breakfast in Virginia City and then home.

I hope I have not bored you with this letter. I have enjoyed your Record very much and h[illegible] you have many more prosperous and interesting years ahead.

Very truly yours,
Kenneth T. Fergusson.

Resume Meetings For Fall Term

St. Luke's Presbyterian Ladies' Aid Society, Finch, resumed their meetings for the fall term when the September meeting was held in the Sunday School hall. The president, Mrs W. R. Rutley, presided and Mrs G. MacLean acted as secretary.

The president reported new hymn books had been purchased and placed in the church.

The members who had placed flowers in the church during the summer were thanked.

It was decided to hold an anniversary tea in the Sunday School hall on October 19.

A number of letters of appreciation were read from shut-ins and bereaved members.

The October meeting will be held in the Manse. The meeting was closed with the Mizpah benediction.

A bashful curate found the young ladies in the parish too helpful. At last it became so embarrassing that he left.

Not long afterwards he met the curate who had succeeded him.

"Well," he asked, "how did you get on with the ladies?"

"Oh, very well indeed. There is safety in numbers, you know."

"Ah! was the instant reply. "I only found it in Exodus."

North Valley W.A. Plans Turkey Supper

The September meeting of the North Valley United Church Woman's Association was held at the home of Mrs Sterling Wert, with eight members and seven visitors present. The president, Mrs Mac Otto, presided. The meeting opened with a hymn.

The president was in charge of the devotions, assisted by Mrs W. G. Wert, the theme being "The Truth."

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and roll called by the secretary, Mrs Ellard Zummach.

Mrs John Grandaw gave the treasurer's monthly report.

Mrs Wert read letters of appreciation for cards and fruit sent to members during their illness.

A turkey supper was planned to be held in the near future.

A social hour was followed by lunch, Mrs W. G. Wert assisting. The next meeting will be held at Mrs Mac Otto's.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs Wert and her assistants for their kind hospitality.

[illegible] was [illegible] of Cardi[illegible] bridegroom's youngest b[illegible]ther, Tony, was altar boy.

The Oc[illegible]r meeting will be held at the home of Mrs Ward Casselman.

A remembrance was made to Mrs L. Barkley, a member of long standing, who is now making her home in Ottawa.

The worship period was in charge of Mrs Dunlop, who had the Scripture reading, given by three members, after which she asked questions arising out of what had been read. The worship service was taken by Miss Eva Myers.

Mrs W. C. Donovan played the wedding music and the soloist was Mr Patrick Bingham, Prescott.

A reception was held at Grenville Lodge where Rev T. G. Scanlon proposed the toast to the bride, and Richard Putnam to the bridal couple.

After a wedding trip to Quebec the couple have returned to Prescott where they will make their home.

Money across the miles

A chartered bank makes it a simple matter for you to send money almost anywhere, inside or outside Canada.

You may want to get money to a certain city as a gift on somebody's birthday; or to settle a business account; or to set up a fund which can be drawn upon by a company salesman, branch office or supplier.

It works the other way, too. If you are far from home and short of cash, you can advise your "home" branch to telegraph your money to a point where you can pick it up. Many situations and needs can arise — and a chartered bank has many ways of taking care of them, including the sale of travellers cheques.

This service is one of the many advantages you enjoy as a customer of a chartered bank. Your local branch is an all-round banking service-centre that can be helpful to you in many ways.

Only a chartered bank offers a full range of banking services, including:

SAVINGS ACCOUNTS
Keep your money safe; pay you steady interest; encourage the habit of thrift.

COMMERCIAL LOANS
For business or industrial firms, large and small; producers, processors, retailers—every type of enterprise.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES
Keep your important papers and other valuables safe, yet readily accessible.

TRAVELLERS CHEQUES
Protect you against theft or loss of cash. They are readily negotiable anywhere.

PITY THE POOR POLICEMAN

Patrolman T. A. Catalon, Westfield, N.J., has found that all the world does not love a policeman.

He set up shop on Mountain Avenue with an electronic control speed apparatus. Within minutes he nabbed two motorists for exceeding the speed limit.

Thereafter, for two hours, every car travelled at a sedate 25 miles an hour. Finally a grinning motorist brought a schoolboy-printed sign which had been placed out of Catalon's sight. It read: "Slow, Cop."

Catalon packed up and left for the day.

"Will you marry me?"

"No."

And they lived happily ever afterwards."

EMPTIES "GAS BANK"

A motorist drove into a service station at Kings' Mountain, N.C., the other day and asked that his gasoline tank be taken off.

He said every time he got gas he had been putting the change in the tank. Lately his car had been sputtering and he thought it was time to empty the "bank."

Inside the tank was $25.95 in half-dollars, quarters, dimes, nickels and pennies. He saved only $21.45, however, because it cost him $4.50 to have the tank emptied and put back on.

He: "What would you say if I blew you a kiss?"

She: "I'd say you were a very lazy fellow."

ANY MONEY IN HOGS?

Well, a lot depends on the size and sort of litter you get—and raise, doesn't it? Get a good big litter of good big thrifty pigs and you're well away. Get your sow in condition to give them lots of good milk, and you're away still better. That's why we rec-ommend steady (not heavy) feeding with Purina Sow & Pig Chow, both before and after farrowing.

Ever see a farm with 120 sows or so? That's what they have at the Purina Research Farm. They aim at two litters a year, and keep full figures—birth weight, weaning weight, and so on—on all of them. Some undertaking! Altogether, they have studied over 3,500 farrowings and raised over 35,000 pigs. That gives you some idea of what's behind Purina Sow & Pig Chow.

Condition counts on a sow just the same as on a cow. If she's going to milk well, she has to be in condition to milk. And you know how important a good supply of good milk is for the little fellows. Steady (not heavy) feeding of Purina Sow & Pig Chow both before and after farrowing will help her deliver the goods.

Purina Research Farm figures on relationship between weight at birth, weight at weaning, and weight later on show a very significant correlation. They saved for more of the pigs (2½ lbs. and over and got far more weight on them by weaning time, and got them to market weight considerably sooner. Points up the need for good balanced feeding of the sow before farrowing, doesn't it?

Manicures Are Not New

Supplying women with nail polish and other finger-tip beauty aids is a multi-million dollar business which did not even exist 40 years ago.

But manicuring itself is one of the oldest of the cosmetic arts. Recently an excavation in southern Babylonia turned up a solid gold manicure set which was in use in 3200 B.C. Found with the set was a good quantity of green and black substance used in ancient times to colour the lips, eyes and fingernails. In those days, however, these beauty aids belonged not to women but to men!

Later in history it seems that Cleopatra, the glamour-girl of the Nile, preferred the juice of the henna plant for her colour job. She achieved a smoky rust or robin red with overtones of gold or suntan. But Cleo saw to it that the colour of nails was governed by the strictest social code: The Queen's nails were of the most brilliant hue and the colour faded down the social scale to the slaves whose fingernails had no tint whatsoever.

In ancient China, rank was measured by the length of the fingernails. The longer the nails, the more obvious it was that their owner had never soiled his or her hands with manual labour—ten inches was considered a pretty fair beginning. Sheaths were worn to protect these elegant nails and even today Oriental women of position sometimes wear a little finger sheath, often beautifully designed and carved in gold.

The western world had its own ideas. At the court of Marie Antoinette, hands could not be washed for a week after a manicure lest it be spoiled. The Puritans in England and colonial North America, on the other hand, as late as 1770 enforced a law that any woman who coerced a man into marriage through the use of paint, powder or similar artifices could be tried as a witch. No wonder manicures went out of fashion for centuries!

In 1875 an American lady reintroduced the subject with a treatise called the "Ugly Girl Papers, or Hints for the Toilet" in which she stressed the importance of hand care. To soften their hands, ladies were told to wear overnight large cloth mittens filled with wet oatmeal; to remove callouses, the papers suggested holding the hand on a rapidly turning grindstone for a moment or two. A touch of colour was recommended by this seer, whose nail paste recipe—to be concocted in the kitchen—produced a batch large enough to tint the nails of an army.

The first manicure preparation sold commercially came on the market in 1911—a chemical to dissolve nail cuticle. Five years later women who had been using powder or paste or buffing their nails were able to buy liquid nail polish— colourless, of course. No woman dreamed of using colour until a young beauty salon operator named Peggy Sage made a tinted polish for a friend of hers who was appearing as Carmen at New York's Metropolitan Opera. The feminine half of the audience was enchanted and the result was the U.S. vogue for coloured nails.

The first nail polishes were transparent with various shades of red obtained through the use of dyes. A radical change took place in the early 40s when cream-type polishes were introduced through the use of white and coloured pigments to produce an opaque finish instead of the clear or dye-coloured transparent finishes.

Manufacturing nail polish is no simple process. Today's polish is a lacquer, bearing a close relationship to the finishes widely used on quality furniture and automobiles. Milady demands that it be gloss, flexible, water resistant and smooth. It must be easy to apply and dry quickly. All this, and just the right colour, too!

Outdoor Roundup—

prise me a bit was that most of the shooters I talked to got more bluebills than they did blacks. As was to be expected in Quebec province, where Sunday shooting is permitted, what with the 'bluebird' weather and Saturday's carnage, those who went out to the blinds on the second day scarcely fired a shot, but they tell me the sunbathing was just fine. For me I'll just string along with the fishing till the 'fall' ducks start showing up.

TAPIOCA HAS MANY POSSIBILITIES

HAVE YOU always considered tapioca as a very uninteresting of food, its chief usefulness being to make desserts for c and invalids? If that is your idea of tapioca, I want to chan once by giving you some delicious and appetizing methods of and serving it.

But first let us consider the food value of tapioca. In two tablespoons of uncocked or in half a cup of cooked tapioca, there are 0.5 protein calories, 0 fat and 99.5 carbohydrate calories. From this we see that it is essentially a carbohydrate or starchy food. It is very easily digested when thoroughly cooked and this accounts for its value as a food for invalids and children. It is often used in making desserts for special diets such as for nephritis, typhoid fever and any upbuilding diet.

Tapioca can be purchased in several forms—either in the small size which cooks quickly without previous soaking or in the large size which must be soaked several hours before cooking. The food value of both types is practically the same. In the following recipes the large or pearl tapioca is used. I like the pearl tapioca best as I think it makes more attractive dishes, but, of course, there is the additional bother of soaking it before using.

Peach Tapioca

¾ cup pearl tapioca
2½ cups boiling water
½ tsp. salt
6 or 7 peaches
½ cup sugar

Soak tapioca several hours in enough cold water to cover. Drain, add boiling water and salt, cook in double boiler until almost transparent. Peel peaches and cut in quarters. Place in a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with sugar. Pour tapioca over peaches and bake in a moderate oven until peaches are soft. Serve with sugar and cream.

Variations:

1. Pears, plums, apples or pineapple may be used instead of peaches.

2. Add spices as cinnamon and cloves.

3. Cook tapioca in canned fruit juice instead of water.

. Use sago instead of tapioca.

Tapioca Cream

¼ cup pearl tapioca
2¼ cups milk
2 eggs
1-3 cup sugar
1-8 tsp. salt
½ tsp. vanilla

Wash tapioca; soak several in cold water to cover. Add cook in double boiler until ta is clear. Beat eggs, add sugar, and hot milk mixture slowly to p vent eggs from cooking in lum Return to double boiler; cook u egg thickens. Remove from he and flavour.

Variations:

1. Save egg whites, beat stiff and fold in at the last

2. For chocolate tapioca add two squares of unswe chocolate cut in bits to the when heating.

3. For Tapioca Caramel Pud use brown sugar instead of and add a few nuts.

4. Add 1 cup of cocoanut t mixture when you remove fr stove and you have Cocoanu ioca Cream.

5. Serve in sherbert glasses top with whipped cream a piece of maraschino cherry really festive dessert.

Cherry Tapioca

1½ tbsps. minute tapi
2 tbsps. sugar
1-16 tsp. salt
1 cup boiling wat
½ cup cherry juic
Juice of half le
½ cup canned cher s.

Place tapioca in th pper part of a double boiler; ad sugar, salt and boiling water. Cook fifteen minutes; remove from heat. Add fruit juices and cherries. Turn into serving dish; serve cold with cream and sugar.

In arranging flowers for the table, one should always keep in mind that if the decoration is too high it will appear awkward and will obstruct the view from one side of the table to the other. It is very annoying to try to carry on a conversation with some one hidden behind a large bunch of flowers. So make your table bouquets low so that all who are seated at the table may converse with ease.

It isn't necessary to stick to this rule of low table decorations if there are so many seated at the table, as in large formal dinner parties, that conversation cannot be general.

Fair Grounds Vandalism Too Familiar Story

The old story of public property being defaced and broken has repeated itself at the fair grounds. The new home economics building has been repeatedly been broken into, furnishings broken and fouled. The race track has become a raceway for heavy-footed drivers and the resultant dust has caused considerable nuisance on Sueen St.

It is with regret that the president and directors of the Agricultural Society have to announce that the fair grounds are to be fenced off from now on. Barriers have been erected and signs posted warning off trespassers.

Anyone wishing to use the grounds for a ball game or other legitimate pursuits must get the Droppo, of the president, C. A. keys either from the secretary, Mr Graham. Persons doing so and using the property will be held responsible for any damage done.

McRoberts–Merkley

A pretty wedding was solemnized by the Rev R. A. Mitchell in the parsonage of Chesterville United Church when Verna Mae, the eldest daughter of Mr and Mrs Harold E. Merkley, Chesterville, became the bride of Harry William McRoberts, second eldest son of Mr and Mrs William McRoberts, Winchester.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs Mac Anderson, Winchester, and her niece, Marilyn Merkley, Cornwall, who acted as flower girl.

The best man was the groom's brother, Allan McRoberts, Winchester.

For her wedding, the bride chose a dress in waltz-length, fashioned with tight fitting bodice with three-quarter length over sleeves ending in lily points, and the full skirts of white net over satin with lace inserts were worn over a hoop.

The shoulder-length veil of net was secured by a coronet of rhinestones and seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

For travelling on a wedding trip to Western Ontario, Mrs McRoberts wore a dress of turquoise moire taffeta with black topcoat, black accessories and pink carnations en corsage.

On their return, they will reside in Ottawa.

SMITH—In loving memory of Mrs Maude H. Smith who passed away on September 20, 1954.

As I gaze on your picture that hangs on the wall,
Your smiles and your welcome I often recall;

And dwell on the memories of days that have been.
Dear is the grave where Maude is laid,
Sweet is the memory that never will fade;
Flowers will wither, leaves fade and die,
If some do forget you, never will I.
