New Council Meets Police Problems, Asks Police Protection Provided By Provincial Police

Last Monday night saw the first meeting of the council for 1949 held in the clerk's office. Present were Councillors Brannen, Durant, Doering and Turner with Reeve McMillan in the chair.

The first business of the meeting saw the reappointment of H. C. Hummel as clerk-treasurer of the Chesterville Hydro Electric System and of the Municipality, at the same salary. Commission appointments found Councillors Durant and Doering in charge of the Community Hall and Turner and Brannen on the Streets and Roads Commission Reeve McMillan is, of course, a member of each commission. Also appointed for the year were: Weeds Inspector, H. C. Hummel; Pound Keeper, Broder Bailey; Sheep Valuator, Fred Smith; Fire Chief, Sydney Morris. The appointment of assessor was the same except that the salary was reduced to Mr. E. B. Lynch by $75. to make the yearly amount $300. That was a motion authorized by Brannen-Turner. The Garbage Collector was re-engaged at the same contract and the reeve was to contact Mr. Harper.

The police situation was quickly solved on the motion of Doering-Turner. A request was forwarded to the Attorney-General asking that the Village be policed by the Provincial Police. The present officer, Mr. Wm. Tate is of that department. The cost to the municipality will be $1750. as salary of the officer, $435. approximately, to take care of mileage and other expenses to bring the total cost to the town to about $2205. a year. The cost of the policing last year was to be $1500.

Famous Indian Runner Dies Tom Longboat Passes, Era En

Tom Longboat died at his home on the Oksweken Indian reservation at Brantford last Sunday night. He was 62.

The tall, graceful Onondaga Indian was only a name to the generation under forty, but in 1906 he was as famous in Canada as Barbara Ann Scott is today. He was one of the greatest if not the greatest distance runner Canada ever produced and in his feats of racing lies his fame. After he won the Boston Marathon in 1907 his reception when he came back home made history. It is estimated that 100,000 people watched him win the Montreal Star Marathon. Another time Tom pitted his stamina against a horse in a race that was 12 miles long. The horse started away in the lead, but Longboat passed it at the two mile mark and came in over a mile ahead of the tired animal.

Chesterville played host to the famous runner in 1909.

IT IS ALWAYS TAXPAYERS MONEY

It is an encouraging sign when a responsible member of parliament speaks out about certain political and economic facts of life that the public generally prefers to disregard.

While every politician knows that money for social services can only come through imposts on the people, too many have encouraged or permitted the public to believe that the government itself is the fountainhead of benefits that will cost them nothing. Ontario Welfare Minister William Goodfellow, in a recent CBC broadcast, adopted a wise and courageous course when he definitely challenged this destructive doctrine. Pointing out that those who would change or destroy our way of life liked to encourage the belief that government could create something-for-nothing he argued the sound and condemned the doctrine.

"I emphasize," he said, "that nothing can be provided by a government without the people paying for it through some form of taxation."

That this simple fact has been stated again and again, rarely has any statement come from a minister of the Crown. It has been left for business men to make this unpopular statement and to assume whatever ignominy attached. But it is the case that all benefits made by governments and that every fellow is to be congratulated for applying common sense ahead of political expediency.

Not everyone will or should agree with Mr. Goodfellow when he urges that it is a function of government to assist its needy citizens but that it is equally necessary, if democracy is to be maintained, that citizens should be encouraged through thrift and initiative to look after themselves.

ETERNAL VIGILANCE

Speaking in Dublin on the right of election, John Philpot Curran said in part: "It is the common fate of the indolent to see their rights become a prey to the active. The condition upon which God hath given liberty to man is eternal vigilance; which condition if he break, servitude is at once the consequence of his crime and the punishment of his guilt."

This statement made in 1790, is as true as it was over one hundred and fifty years ago and is reproduced in a January letter to industry by the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations.

A MEDICINE

A surgeon who was often troubled with sea-sickness, is credited with the discovery of a new remedy. Sugar by mouth without any medicine resulted in a distinct improvement with dramatic speed. From this revelation it was only a step to warding off sea-sickness by giving potential patients plenty of food containing large amounts of sugar.

Relay Proposition

"You're not the same baby sitter we left here at seven with our Ruby Mae," gasped the matron, coming in at midnight.

"No, I'm not," replied the girl, calmly. "Marcelline, the sitter you hired, had a special call and her sister took over for her at 8:30. Then her sister got a call and I took over at 10:15. And if you hadn't come soon there would have been a neighbor on the job."

LAW ENFORCEMENT

By N. T. Jones

Few people are fully aware of the complex and arduous duties undertaken by the Conservation Officers of this Province. Long patrols and treks after law-breakers under conditions that at times are almost impossible are a common occurence. The following is an actual story of the apprehension of a poacher as told in his own words by Conservation Officer N. T. Jones. It graphically illustrates the difficulties encountered and the personal risks involved in protecting the wildlife resources of the Province.

On the morning of November 30th, 1947, I was getting ready to leave my cabin when a knock came on the door. Opening it, I found the caller to be the holder of Trap Line Area No. 27, in the east part of Head Township, who informed me that someone unknown to him had cut out the top of a beaver house on his zone and set a trap inside. I left the cabin with the trapper, who took me back along an old road south of Mackey. After driving about eight miles on this road, we left the car and walked the rest of the way to the beaver house.

My companion left me there and I concealed myself in some small spruce to watch. As it was Sunday morning, I thought perhaps the person who had set the trap might return.

After waiting several hours and having seen no one, I decided to move around some as I was getting cold. While doing so, I met the trapper who had been back further looking over his zone.

Eventually we found the tracks of a man and a small dog in the snow. As they appeared to be fresh tracks, we followed them to a point where they entered Algonquin Park, having crossed the blaze line on a rabbit trail. Making certain the tracks continued on into the Park, we returned to the car as it was getting too late in the day to go on.

The trapper, on learning that I was going to return the next morning to follow out the tracks, said he would like to accompany me. I told him I would be glad to have him as he is a good bushman and would be a very good guide. The next morning I arose early and proceeded to a point behind Mackey where we had agreed to meet. Strapping our packsacks on our backs, we started out to see where these tracks led. From the place where we had to leave the car, it was about two and one half miles to the blaze line.

We crossed the blaze line on a rabbit trail, picking up the tracks inside the Park. We had walked about six miles when we came out on the ice at a large beaver lake. As we were crossing this lake we noticed the fresh tracks of a man in the centre of a much used trail. Gazing around we noticed a thatched shelter built on the south bank; we had approached from the north. Carrying on, we circled by a beaver dam on which two traps were set. Blood on the snow by a beaver house with the top nearly cut out told us a beaver had been taken. We found no one at the shelter when we arrived there about 11:30 a.m. It looked quite cosy, containing a sleeping bag, wool blankets and a considerable supply of food and traps.

I lifted up the sleeping bag and under it I found two beaver pelts. They had not been skinned very long. The trapper waited with me until about 1 p.m. when he left, following the tracks leading south from the shelter. These tracks were found to circle a large area with many traps set for beaver and otter.

At approximately 2:05 p.m. as I sat on the sleeping bag waiting, the sound of someone breaking wood put me on the alert. Finally, I saw a man approaching carrying an armful of wood, an axe and a bag of traps, also a gun slung from a shoulder strap. As he came nearer, I saw he was quite large in stature with a heavy growth of whiskers.

I walked out a few feet to meet him and spoke. Until this time, he had not noticed me. Stopping abruptly, and before I had time to speak again, he asked me with a frown, "Are you a game warden?" I replied that I was and showed him my credentials. As I did this I informed him he was under arrest and that he would have to go out with me. I asked to see the gun he was carrying. At this he said, "You stay back 'fore you get hurt, you see no gun". He threw the wood, axe and bag of traps on the ground. I then told him it would be better to talk to me and not try getting rough. He then said, "I am big man, seen bigger men than you couldn't handle me," and added "I go now, but not with you". At this, he started to run towards the beaver lake. Running about 25 or 30 feet on the snow-coverd ice, I caught up to him, grabbing him by the left shoulder. He wheeled and shoved the rifle, which later proved to be a 44-40 Winchester, in my stomach. I pulled the blackjack from my pocket and struck the gun, knocking it to one side. He said, "Be careful, this gun is loaded" and began to run again. After another sprint, I caught up and as I did, he swung the gun as a club, striking me on the right side of the ribs, breaking the 6th and 8th ribs. He ran on and, when in the centre of the lake, as I was again almost upon him, he swung with the gun again striking me on the nose and causing it to bleed. With another swing he caught me across the left shoulder and the back of the left hand, as I attempted to protect my body from the blow. He again ran on and by this time, we had almost crossed the lake.

He started up the bank into the bush with me right behind him and I struck at his arm holding the gun. As I swung, he lowered his head in an attempt to knock me down off the bank. The blackjack struck him a hard blow on the head, inflicting a wound which bled freely. This, however, did not slow him down. He ran towards a large jack pine. I came around the tree and he swung the axe which buried itself in the tree as I jumped back. By this time I was in a state of anger and more determined than ever that he was not going to get away. As he ran around another tree some yards on, I closed in on him before he had a chance to swing again. Seizing him by the arm, I used a Judo hold, throwing him to the ground on his back. He fell heavily and the rifle flew up striking him over the left eye, causing a laceration which allowed blood to drain into his eye. I held him on his back in the snow and the blood interfered with the vision of this eye.

I said I would let him up as soon as he told me who he was and where he was from. He readily acceded to my request.

I got up and stepped back out of his reach. He got to his feet and stooped to pick up his gun. I spoke again and told him I would carry the axe and gun and that he would walk ahead. He said "Alright". He said he was sorry he had battled me the way he had. I told him it was a little late for that and reminded him that I had tried to talk to him telling him it would be worse for him if I had to use force.

He told me that he thought when he first saw me, he could push me over easily and get away and that I didn't look to be a tough man. He knew I didn't know him.

Arriving back at the camp, I built a fire, boiled some water for tea, bathed and bandaged his head and gave him some sandwiches left from lunch. I then had him do up his belongings, all of which I seized. We waited until my friend returned at about 3:20 p.m. The three of us then started the long hike out to my car some eight miles away

The surrounding country was very rough going, but the prisoner carried his pack, which was quite heavy, the whole distance and didn't stop to rest until he reached my car. He filled his pipe and lit it three times as he trudged along.

We arrived at the car at 7:35 p.m., more than half of our trip being made after dark, and started the trip of fifty-one miles to Pembroke where I called for Mr. E. L. Skuce, Fish and Wildlife Specialist. After a late supper we went to the office, as Mr. Skuce wanted some information about the prisoner. The prisoner was then taken to a doctor and from there he was lodged in the county jail to await trial.

Several charges were laid, two of which were laid under the criminal code; one of resisting arrest, pointing a firearm, carrying a firearm in the Park, hunting in the park, killing two beaver in closed season and destroying beaver houses.

On December 4, 1947, the prisoner was convicted and sentenced to serve three months in jail on the obstruction charges and a fine of $500.00 or an additional five months on the other charges.

WHAT IS GOOD?

By John Boyle O'Reilly

WHAT is the real good?"
I ask in musing mood.

"Order," said the law court.
"Knowledge," said the school;
"Truth," said the wise man;
"Pleasure," said the fool;
"Love," said the maiden;
"Beauty," said the page;
"Freedom," said the page;
"Home," said the sage;
"Fame," said the soldier
"Equity," the seer.
Spake my heart full sadly:
"The answer is not here."

Then within my bosom
Softly this I heard:
"Each heart holds the secret:
'Kindness is the word'."

Let us think often of our own sin, and we shall be lenient to the sins of others.—Fenelon.

Stresses Consolidation For Ontario Federation Agriculture

The need for further consolidation within the Ontario Federation of Agriculture was emphasized in Toronto in the annual reports of both the president, R. A. Stewart of Almonte, and the secretary-manager, V. S. Milburn, of Toronto, when the Federation met for its 12th annual convention.

Mr. Stewart said the Federation was composed of 78 organizations pulling together in a common cause and that other producer groups might want to join. In this case the Federation must be ready to accept these and still keep all groups working together in the coming year.

"Let us", he said "make 1949 a period of consolidation and strengthening of ties in our organization so that we will all be doing a better job and be better prepared for the problems which may confront us in the future."

In the same spirit Mr. Milburn said that as secretary-manager he had noted a swing of interest in different fields of activity. "It is apparent", he said, "we all need to have a broader and more comprehensive view and knowledge of the objectives of each part of our organization".

Income Tax

In his address Mr. Stewart also dealt at some length with the work which has been done during the past year between the Canadian Federation and the Dominion Income Tax Division. As a result of this work many problems had been settled but there still remained problems to be solved.

He said that farmers, as a class, believe that those who are properly liable to pay income tax should do so, and the evidence was that to a very large extent they had. However, the mere filing of returns by those not taxable, only to satisfy the prejudiced thinking of some groups, seems to be a denial of freedom and liberty of the individual in our democracy, he said.

Mr. Stewart outlined four points which he felt would help solve the problem. These were that each farmer study his responsibilities and file a return to the best of his ability; that the department have its assessors available to farmers on request to assist with special problems; that Federation county fieldmen be given a basic understanding of all the forms in order to help when possible and that the Department leave farmers alone except in cases where definite evidence shows an attempt at evasion.

Speaking of the activities of Ontario Farm Forums, Mr. Stewart said that this year Farm Forums seemed likely to break all records. He paid tribute to the work of Forum Secretary Clare Burt, and also to the Ontario Department of Agriculture for its close co-operation with the Forums.

Mr. Stewart referred also to the work of affiliated organizations and of the Federation work in connection with such organizations as the Agricultural Institute of Canada, the International Federation of Agricultural Producers, to which the Federation is to play host for the annual meeting at Guelph; the Canadian Research Committee on Practical Education and the National Employment Committee.

Old Age Pension

In this latter connection Mr. Stewart questioned whether a contributory old-age pension was best adapted to country people or whether it will be, as are other contributory schemes, applicable only to wage earners where it can be deducted from salaries and wages.

Mr. Stewart also urged that all Federation members become subscribers to the "Rural Co-operator", saying that county organizations cannot hope to become strong if their farmers are not kept informed of the activities of the organization through their publication.

Deflation

In his report Mr. Milburn said that he believed the major problem in 1949 will centre around an attempt at deflation. "We must prove", he said, "to the satisfaction of all that this would be ruinous, not only to farmers, but to those in all other callings, and that, should this policy be pursued, it will eventually wreck our future economy and deplete our soils and our natural resources."

Thus, he said, the theme of the convention, "Conservation", included conservation in its broadest sense and presented a challenge to all. There is a need to exert effort at the small as well as the large jobs, realizing that without attention to the details the maximum contribution cannot be made.

Mr. Milburn also dealt with the development of the co-operative automobile insurance, which, he said, has now reached the point where insurance can be offered to farmers and others. He referred also to the brief presented to the Provincial Cabinet which received high praise for both its content and presentation and on which some of the recommendations have already received consideration.

Tribute was also paid by Mr. Milburn to the "Rural Co-operator"; the Junior Farmers and Farm Forums. One of the problems still remaining, he said, is the effective and active participation of women's activities within the Federation.

In speaking on future action Mr. Milburn said that there were some problems which should receive attention in the coming year. These included a study of commodity marketing legislation; a close examination of international trade agreements with an attempt to appraise their effect on our economy and concentration on doing a better public relations job with labor, industry, finance and consumers.

Also, he said, closer co-operation must be developed between the Federation, the Department of Agriculture and the whole extension field.

A TRAVELING SEED CLEANER

Friends, this is something new, but if it goes over big another winter, I will be at your service the big way. I am mounting my Government Approved seed cleaner on a float, and taking it right to your grainary and cleaning seed grains and grass seeds, so you can see the difference in an ordinary fanning mill to this approved machine. It is true, a man only reaps what he sows. This test is only for the farmers who live miles from the seed cleaning plants. I intend to visit Cannamore, Morewood, Grantley, Goldfield, Dunbar, Elma, etc., or any district where twelve or more farmers want the cleaner. I will have a preparation with me, to keep rats and mice from your seed grains. Prices are $5 first ton, $4 per ton after 1st. Will also have a grinder to grind the seeds and your local grain at your request only while cleaner is in operation at $4 per ton. Let us hear from you so I won't pass. I will do a 99 percent job, the machine is made for it, and I'll see it does it. For those 160 steady customers who haul their grain in to my seed cleaning room every spring I intend to be back in my cleaning room after April 11. All cement floors this year.

R. C. "Bobbie" Tait and "Peggy" Swetnam Wed in New Brunswick

A pretty winter wedding was solemnized at Christ Church, Tuesday afternoon at 5.30 o'clock, when Margaret Ambrose "Peggy" Swetnam, became the bride of Robert Charles, only son of Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Tait of Sherbrooke, Que. The ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. J. E. Sheehy, who was assisted by the groom's father, Rev. Mr. Tait.

The church had been decorated with greenery for the Christmas season, and the guest pews were marked with sprigs of holly tied with red satin bows. The full choir was in attendance with Mrs. Harold Cruickshanks at the organ, and sang the numbers "The Voice that Breathed O'er Eden," and "O Perfect Love." During the signing of the register Miss Audrey Farnell sang "Through the Years."

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage. She was attired in a floor length dress of white transparent velvet, made on close fitting lines with high neck and long sleeves, the skirt extending into a train. Her long veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. Her only ornaments were a cameo necklace and matching earrings. She carried a cascade bouquet of small white mums.

Miss Dorcas Petchey was bridesmaid and was attired in Victorian green transparent velvet with matching headdress and mitts and carried a nosegay of white mums and red roses. The matrons of honor, Mrs. Ralph Swetnam, and Mrs. Ivan Swetnam, sisters-in-law of the bride, wore Christmas red transparent velvet and carried nosegays of white mums centered with a yellow rose. The attendants' dresses were made on lines similar to those of the bride, but with cap sleeves and long matching mitts. Little Miss Christine Swetnam, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and wore a long dress of white velvet made with velvet frill, and frill on the bottom of the skirt, white satin sash, and velvet bonnet. She carried a basket of baby mums.

The groom was supported by Robert Swetnam, cousin of the bride. The ushers were Ralph Swetnam and Ivan Swetnam, brothers of the bride.

Mrs. Swetnam, mother of the bride, wore black crepe with matching accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother, Mrs. Tait, was gowned in grey crepe with matching hat with ostrich tips, and wore a corsage of red roses.

A reception for some eighty guests was held immediately following the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. Following congratulations and best wishes, Rev. J. E. Sheehy, proposed the toast to the bride, which was fittingly responded to by the groom. The rooms were attractively decorated with holly, pine and spruce in keeping with the festive season. The tea table was covered with a cutwork cloth, and centered with the three tier wedding cake, attractively decorated and topped with a miniature vase and small silver bells. It was cut in traditional style by the bride and groom. White tapers in silver holders lighted the table, while Mrs. C. T. Wetmore presided over the tea service and Mrs. R. S. Smith over the coffee service. Mrs. J. T. Steeves, Miss Bessie Downey and Mrs. P. A. Roome replenished and those serving were Misses Elda Rockwell, Avice Crease, Georgene Taylor, Edith Roach, Frances Strang, Joan Clarke and Mrs. Weymond Sears. Others assisting were Mrs. W. G. Ayer, Mrs. A. S. Etter and Mrs. C. E. Smith.

The bride and groom left shortly after on their wedding trip going by train to Montreal and Sherbrooke. The bride travelled in a grey gabardine suit, Hudson seal coat and black velvet hat with matching accessories, and corsage of red roses. On their return they will reside in Halifax. Both the bride and groom were in the Services during the war. Mrs. Tait is on the staff of the law firm of McInnes, MacQuarrie and Cooper in Halifax, and the groom is a law student at Dalhousie University. They received many lovely gifts.

Out of town guests at the wedding were the groom's parents, Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Tait of Sherbrooke, Que., the bride's brother, Ralph Swetnam and Mrs. Swetnam of Halifax. Mr. and Mrs. James Swetnam, Moncton, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Wetmore, Hampton, N.B., Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bragg, Collingwood, Mr. and Mrs. Alan MacIntosh, Miss Dorcas Petchey and Alan Hicks, Moncton; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Petchey and Miss Catherine Hawkes, Dorchester, N.B., Miss Helen Petchey, Rothesay, and Mr. and Mrs. William McSepheney, Springhill.

MOREWOOD UNITED CHURCH

The services at Morewood United Church on Sunday were conducted by the minister, Rev. W J. Copsey, B.A. At the morning service the text was "Therefore being justified by faith we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom also we have access into this grace wherein we stand and rejoice in hope of the glory of God." Roman 5:1-2.

The text contains the heart of the Protestant Faith of direct approach of the soul to God and the free access of the seeker after Him. There is no institution or person with Scriptural authority to come between the soul and God. Salvation comes not by penance, not by good works, not by sacrament but by grace of God, a free gift to those who seek forgiveness of sins through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. The Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments constitute the final appeal in matters of faith and doctrine and the giving of the scriptures in their own tongue to all converts from paganism to Christianity is a practice followed by all Protestant Christian Missionaries. Every believer is urged to read the Word of God for himself.

At the evening service an illustrated lecture, "With the United Church From Coast to Coast" set forth the work of Home Missions from Newfoundland to the coast of British Columbia. Miss Ellice Smith presided at the organ at both services.

Kate Aitken Brings The World To Your Door

Between cooking, cleaning, looking after the children and seeing her friends occasionally, the average Canadian housewife has little freedom for what people call "keeping up with the times"—reading the newspapers and periodicals, studying fashion plates, and posting herself on what's new in the arts.

To her rescue this Fall came Kate Aitken, a Canadian housewife who isn't average. In addition to her job of running a home and acting as women's editor of the Standard, woman's director of the Canadian National Exhibition, lecturer, home service authority, and food consultant, she broadcasts a program of news about the latest in fashions, cooking, household hints, current events, music, art, and the theater, designed to keep other housewives abreast of the times without disrupting their home duties Recently, she has been heard on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 10.30 a.m. on Dominion.

"How does she do it?" ask thousands of listeners who have followed her program since it began in September. And her reply is: "The fuller my life is, the happier; and the more I do, the more I am able to do."

She looks as though she hasn't a care in the world, and says the secret of her energy is the fact that she finds it restful to swing from one assignment to another and become completely absorbed in each separate job.

She has always been interested in a wide variety of things and assorted jobs are her specialty. Early in her marriage she found that looking after a house and two children didn't keep her busy enough, so she bought twenty-six acres of vacant field, planted an orchard, and went into poultry farming as well.

A few years later she started a canning project that employed thirteen women, and one season they put up 12,000 cans of fruits, vegetables and chickens! By 1927 she was an authority on poultry and that year went to England for poultry conferences.

WOMEN'S COMMENTATOR

Kate Aitken, who is familiar to CBC Dominion network listeners, is taking time off from her regular work in order to tour the world observing how people live in various countries. She flew from Montreal to Vancouver January 13th on the first leg of her east-to-west trip, and will have plenty to tell Canadian women on her return.

You and Your Bank

How much you borrow, how much you save ... how much you put in, how much you take out ... that's your business. Your right to keep your private affairs private is a cherished principle of Canadian banking.

NEXT time you are in your bank, notice how many people keep their cheques face down ... just like you ... while they make out their deposit slips. Notice how they close their passbooks before handing them in—and get them back closed too.

Canadian bank service is recognized by everyone as confidential. Every employee, when he came into the service of your bank, took a solemn declaration of secrecy. Your relationship with your bank is the most vitally confidential business relationship you have.

Contrast this Canadian way with conditions in lands where freedom is denied—where every bank is a political tool, every banker a public official working for the State! State monopoly of banking, proposed by socialists here, would open your banking transactions to political intrusion.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Most of us consider using a spice in a standard cake or bread mixture for variety of flavour. We frequently use cinnamon, cassia, nutmeg, cloves and allspice for their fragrance. Many years ago these spices were considered suitable gifts for kings. They were used as perfumes, bath oils and medicines for the most part. When they were used in food the people knew spice was added to camouflage the tainted flavour.

According to history, merchants set sail round the world to obtain spices. It was said that Christopher Columbus was lured to the west to find a new route for the spice merchants. We also read of the English gradually gaining possession of the Indian Empire as the spice trade increased.

The various spices are derived from different parts of different plants. For instance, cloves are the dried flower bud of the tropical clove tree of Zanzibar, off the east coast of Africa. Cinnamon is a fragrant spice known since Biblical times and is the pulverized inner bark of the under branches of the laurel tree. It grows about 30 feet in height and flourishes from Ceylon to Arabia. Cassia is similar in flavour to cinnamon and is sometimes substituted for it but it comes from the bark of a different laurel plant. The leaves, the fruit and the root of the laurel all yield oil of much value. Years ago the oil was used for making candles. Mace and nutmeg grow on the same tree which grows anywhere in the West Indies and Madagascar. There you find extensive groves of nutmeg trees which grow to the age of nine years before bearing fruit. The nutmeg is the kernel. By the way, this tree attains a height of 60 feet and is an evergreen. It has pointed leaves and pale yellow flowers which hang in drooping clusters resembling lilies-of-the-valley. As the fruit ripens the fleshy part becomes hard; finally splits open at the top disclosing a bright scarlet membrane partly covering the nut. From this membrane comes the mace we like for our fruit cakes. Grandmother used to buy the nutmeg and grate it on a small three inch curved grater. Allspice so named because the mariner who discovered it belived it could be used for other spices, is grown in Jamaica where it grows in wet, humid areas.

Our familiar black pepper which is now so hard to obtain, is the product of a climbing shrub grown in the East Indies and other tropical climates. The plant bears a small green berry about the size of a pea which turns red upon ripening. When the berries begin to change colour, they are gathered, cleaned and dried in the sun. As they become black they are sorted and sold as peppercorns. Ground and sifted they form the real black pepper used in flavouring meats and pickles.

Now that you may have read about spices, you may wish to make an aromatic cake or a different flavoured batch of muffins. Here are some recipes.

SPICE CAKE

1 cup thick sour cream
⅜ teaspoon soda
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon cloves
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup nutmeats, if desired
2 cups flour

Stir the soda into the cream until it foams, then add the sugar and beat well. Beat the eggs till light and add to the first mixture. Mix and sift the remaining dry ingredients and add them to the first mixture gradually, stirring and beating until the batter is smooth. This may be baked in a sheet or as individual cakes. Bake in a moderate electric oven (375 degrees) 20 to 30 minutes.

BRAN COFFEE CAKE

1 cup pastry flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 cups bran or bran flakes
¾ cup seeded raisins
1 egg
¾ cup sweet milk
1|3 cup light molasses
3 tablespoons melted butter

Sift together flour, salt, soda and baking powder. Add to bran and raisins. Beat egg well, add milk and molasses. Combine the two mixtures and add cooled, melted butter. Place in buttered pan (8x8). Sprinkle top with the following ingredients blended together:

2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon cinnamon
3 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons soft butter
½ teaspoon mace

Bake at 400 degrees in electric oven for 35 to 40 minutes.

CURRIED TOMATO RICE

3 cups cooked rice
3 tablespoons butter
¼ cup diced onion
2 teaspoons curry powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
1½ cups tomato juice
½ teaspoon Worchestershire sauce

Prepare rice. Melt butter, add onion and saute until brown. Add curry powder, salt and flour. Blend into a paste. Add tomato juice and sauce, cook until thick. Add the rice. Serve hot. Serves 6.

THE BANNER PRESBYTERIAL REPORT

The thirty-fifth Brockville Presbyterial meeting met in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church South Mountain, January 11th at 10.30 a.m. Nearly ninety members were welcomed by South Mountain and greetings by Rev. Maitland from Presbytery. Mrs. Wm. Fitzsimmons, Cardinal, called the meeting to order. She has carried on the responsibilities of presidency for the past six years and fulfilled almost every appointment asked of her. During her term of office, the summer camps for training leaders in church organizations became a reality at Lancaster and two deaconesses graduated from our Presbyterial. In the last ten years the givings of members have nearly doubled. The corresponding secretary reported new zeal and interest in all auxiliaries.

The devotional period led by Mrs. Graham, Mountain, with the theme, "Occupy till I come," from Luke 19V. 11-25 read in unison and united prayer by members. The afternoon devotional by Miss Helen Jamieson read chapter John 15, from which she gave the message, "Not just to be members, but witness each day for our Saviour."

Any good literature sent to Miss Sinkawitch, secretary of Sunday School, Meath Park, Sask., would be appreciated. Hospitalized veterans in England could use your old Christmas cards. Get address from Miss Roe, Brockville, or Clair Wallace, CBO radio.

Our new President, Mrs. Ross, Iroquois, asked us to work in unison with her in a new and renewed venture of love for one another; faith in ourselves and others; Bible study to receive comfort and courage and in prayer, time for fervent prayer and in the words of little Tim, "May God bless us everyone."

New officers installed by Rev. Larsen of South Mountain, were: Pres., Mrs. Ross, Iroquois; Rec. Sec., Mrs. Gates, Brockville; Corr. Sec., Mrs. Monroe, Winchester Springs.

Farm Forum News

Despite the hockey match, a reception in the Community Hall, and several other meetings, S.S. No. 10 had a good turnout at the Forum last Monday night held at Angus Smith's. Nineteen members were present.

Insurance—life, fire and auto was discussed on the broadcast and, as a result of the discussion, the members decided, when they went home, to examine their fire protection policies more carefully. There appeared to be a wide range in coverage and rates. Such discussions as this and the many others which are the result of the Monday Night Farm Broadcasts, are bound to be beneficial to the farmer members.

Seven members of the forum signed up for the Co-operative Medical Services and several more are expected to have their forms sent in to the Secretary before the time limit is up (Saturday night).

Forum next week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Feeley. Late hospitalization forms may still be obtaned at this meeting.
