Mr. Thomas Moran Hurt

Mr. Thomas Moran, a highly respected citizen of Connaught, meet with a very serious accident on Thursday afternoon last, when thrown from his rig near Pitcher's corner. Mr. Moran was driving a spirited horse on his way to town, when just after turning the corner he met an automobile driven by Rowatt Elliott of Winchester, and although the latter stopped and did all he could to get the horse by safely, in plunging around a wheel of the rig came in contract with a telephone pole and Mr. Moran was pitched out on his head, sustaining very severe injuries. He was taken to Flynn's Hotel, where he has been receiving every attention, but has been unconscious a considerable portion of the time since. Mr. Moran is eighty-two years of age but is making a grand fight for recovery.

Strange Disappearance of a Connaught Man.

The strange disappearance of a well known young man of Connaught is causing a great deal of worry to his friends. On Easter Sunday morning John Martin, about 27 years of age, son of James Martin of Connaught, left his home and up to the present all trace of him has been lost. On Sunday, April 8th, about church time it was decided among the different members of the family that if John did not intend going to church, his father would drive the others to Crysler and attend church. During their absence and with the knowledge of his mother and sister, who did not go to church, he got ready and announced that he was going to visit his brother Patrick Martin, who lives about three miles distant from his father's home. John arrived there alright and spent the day and the night with his brother, remaining until about seven o'clock on Monday morning, when he went away across the fields in a southerly direction towards the C. P. R. track and from that time, although diligent search and inquiry has been made, he has not been seen or heard of again.

There is apparently no reason why the young man should go away, the family relations were pleasant and he seemed very contented with everything at home. Only a short time ago he pursuaded a younger brother, who was thinking of hiring with another farmer, to remain at home and stated that as they intended putting in a big crop this year there would be work for all hands at home.

It is believed that he only had a small sum of money on him when he went away and which, would be only sufficient for his expenses for a day or two.

The family would be greatly relieved for any information as to his wherabouts.

Mrs. W. A. Munro Dies in Calgary.

Make the Boy a Partner.

Six per cent of the 400 farmers, who were visited in connection with an agricu tural survey by the Commission of Conservation in Dundas county in 1916, were paying members of the family who remained at home to work on the farm. No farmer was found who had taken the members of the family into active and actual partnership in the farm enterprise.

It is essential that many of our boys remain on the farm and help in developing rural life into what it could or should be. Some of our farm boys may be better suited for occupations other than farming, but those who are suited for farming and wish to farm should be given every encouragement to do so.

Boys on the farm are too often allowed to drift along with very little attention being paid to them. The boy will be more likely to become a willing worker if his interest is aroused in the business side of his work and he will gain ability to save if he is taught to spend thoughtfully and wisely. These two factors, willingness to work and ability to save, are fundamental for future success. Permit the boy to participate in the practical business transactions of the farm as the conditions allow. Let him do some of the buying and selling. When he has decided that he will be a farmer, the father may be gradually relieved from some of his responsibilities through a partnership management.—F. C. N.

"Remember, my friend, that much money does not necessarily mean great success."

"No, but it's entire absence is a pretty sure sign of failure."

Holstein Breeders' Club Formed.

At a meeting held in Winchester last Thursday, the breeders of Holstein cattle, in Dundas County, formed a club, the executive of which will meet in Chesterville some day this week for the purpose of drafting a constitution and getting the year's business whipped into shape. The organization meeting was fairly well attended about thirty breeders being present. The district representative for the county, Mr. E. P. Bradt, who carried on the promotion work, explained to the meeting that there were sixty-five breeders of Holstein cattle in Dundas county and that in taking the matter up with them individually, forty-five had replied in favor of organizing a club and intimated their willingness of joining such an organization.

Mr. R. S. Stevenson, of Ancaster, outlined the early history of the parent association, the benefits to be derived from co-operative efforts of the breeders in club work and some of the danger pits to be avoided. The combination sale could be made either a good or bad thing for the community. One thing certain it was no place for the breeders to sell cull stock, which if done only discouraged young men just starting in the business and eventually if continued cast a bad reflection on breeders all over the country. On the other hand if stock of good breeding and quality was catalogued the club would have no difficulty in gaining the confidence of the buying public and holding a successful sale annually.

In passing he alluded to the importance of using good bulls and incidentally pointed out that members of the club get together and purchase highly-bred bulls, a step most breeders did not care to take alone on account of the expense involved. He further advised the breeders to spend more money in advertising, which if properly carried out, was always productive of good results.

A discussion followed as to how much territory should be taken in by the club, but it was finally left open and the officers selected from a wide area so as to give the organization plenty of room for development if desired. The membership fee was placed at $2.00 per annum and the officers elected were as follows:—

Hon. President—G. B. Allison, Montreal, Que.

President—W. A. McElroy, Chesterville, Ont.

1st Vice-President—Edward Baker, Winchester, Ont.

2nd Viee-Prestdent—J. H. Cummings, Ormond, Ont.

Secy-Treasurer— Parnham Allison, Chesterville, Ont.

Directors—J. W. Gilroy, South Mountain; K. M. Dagelish, Kenmore, Ont.; Orrin Strader, Brinston, Ont,; A. L. Stackhouse, Kinburn, Ont.; Jno. Wagner, Morewood, Ont.; S. U. Tinkess, Avonmore, and J. D. Deeks, Morrisburg.

Breeders of Holstein cattle in the Dundas County district, interested in the work of this club, and all should be, will find it to their advantage to communicate at once with the secretary, Mr. Parnham Allison, remitting the membership fee of two dollars.

A Crying Need For More Food

It is estimated that forty million men are bearing arms in the present titanic struggle, while twenty million men and women are producing munitions and clothing for soldiers. Many of these sixty millions were formerly producers of food. From that work they are withdrawn leaving vast regions idle. Ten nations are on rations, and six in distressing lack of food.

Canada is one of the countries that are expected to produce a surplus of food to help to make up the deficit in lands that that are more severely affected. It is our duty to feed our soldiers and our allies. Our country is exceptionally well situated, for a vessel can make four trips from Canada to England in the time occupied by one trip from Australia,

Our present production falls far short of what ought to be done. The acreage of wheat, oats, barley, and potatoes was nearly 365,000 less in 1916 than in 1915 and the yield declined by more than 73 million bushels. Between 1914 and 1916 the yield of potatoes fell from 26,717,567 bushels to 7,408,429 bushels.

The Ontario Department of Agrciulture is proud of the many patriotic acts of the Ontario farmers and realizes to the full the difficulties the farmer is workiug under. Through the Ontario Government Public Employment Bureaux a determined effort is being made to secure a large amount of farm-trained labor and it is hoped that the farmer will make full use of same and produce large crops this season, for every pound of which large prices are likely to be paid.

Canadians Fought Five Days Subsisting on "Iron Rations."

British Headquarters in France, April 15.—It is one of the petty perversities of the great world war that some of the most Homeric fighting on Vimy Bridge should have been about a place rejoicing in the name of "The Pimple." The Associated Press correspondent met some worn and muddy Canadians returning from beyond "The Pimple" yesterday afternoon. Among them were many Nova Scotians. They had been fighting from Sunday night until Friday night, and declared they had enjoyed every minute of it.

They were not at "The Pimple" all the time, but well beyond it. Before "The Pimple" could be cut out, however, it was necessary to drive the Germans back through several long converging tunnels, which were fortified in such a manner that they were believed to be absolutely impregnable. The Germans within those tunnels said they felt so safe that they hoped to remain there for the rest of the war.

Some of the Canadians had subsisted on "iron rations" for five days, and had practically no water for three days. But they never thought of turning back for food or drink until their task was completed. They swung along with the dog-tired, but satisfied gait of men returned from a successful day's hunting expedition.

Food and Seed Saved From The Same Tuber

The present exceeding high price of potatoes makes the consideration of any suggestion for economizing in the cultivation of this tuber advisable. The experience of a correspondent, in saving an eye, together with a small adherent portion of potato intended for cooking, so that this set might be used for planting, was published on this page some weeks ago. The method promised a considerable saving, but the results of an experiment made by Arthur Cadoret goes further in this direction, which consists in planting budding stalk instead of tubers;

"The tubers are sorted out and spread in a dry cellar at a temperature above (63 degrees F.) if possible. In a few days before the tubers wrinkle, rooting sprouts are obtained, which must be cut before they reach a length of 8 inches.

After cutting, they must be planted as quickly as possible. The sprouts are planted in twos on the ridge sides at distances of 8 by 20 inches at a depth of $2\frac{3}{4}$ to $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches, according to the soil. In a few days the outside part becomes green and puts out one or two stalks, the roots taking hold at the same time. Each planted shoot gives one or two tubers which are seldom very large, but never small; a crop of nearly eight and a half tons per acre of marketable potatoes may be reckoned on. The method is applicable to all loose, light and relatively dry soils. Its advantage is that it leaves for consumption those potatoes, which on the ordinary method, would have been used for planting. The shoots given off by the potatoes or germinating keep for several days, and can be planted direct, or even forwarded some distance for planting."

Her Answer.

The pretty girl of the party was bantering the genial bachelor on his reasons for remaining single.

"No-o-, I never was exactly disappointed in love," he meditated. "I was more what you might call discouraged. You see, when I was very young I become very much enamored of a young lady of my acquaintance; I was mortally afraid to tell her my feeling, but at last I screwed up my courage to the proposing point, I said, 'Let's get married.'

"And she said, 'Good Lord! Who'd have us!'"

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children

In Use For Over 30 Years

Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

"The plow is our hope," declared Right Hon. David Lloyd George, the Prime Minister of Great Britain. The tremendous significance of these words in the face of a world shortage of food must be a matter of concern to all. It points out the path of duty to men and boys unable to enlist in the army but capable of helping to increase production.

Help the farmer increase production

At this supreme hour when ample food production is one of the indispensable means of victory, the country faces a serious shortage of men and boys on the farms. The Department of Agriculture emphasizes the urgency of every man and boy taking to heart this splendid opportunity for patriotic service.

Boys Decide now to help in the war. If you are between the ages of 14 and 18, and have good term record, you can secure promotion at school by enlisting for farm service any time between April 20th and May 20th.

Parents are urged to encourage their boys to enlist for farm service. The physical and moral welfare of your boy will be advanced by a summer spent close to Nature; an interest will be awakened in an im ortant industry of the country that will be a help to him in his whole future.

Men The Department appeals to retired farmers, to men following no occupation (retired), to business men who can spare at least a portion of their time, to all men who can arrange their affairs so as to help some farmer. Every man is invited to enlist for farm service.

Men's Fine Shoes And Spring Hats

Occasionally a dealer will let his enthusiasm for a decided bargain run away with his judgment, and he will overbuy a certain line.

When unpacking Men's Fine Shoes this week, we find this has happened to us, and it is going to tie up a lot of cash that we could use otherwise.

Here is where you win a dollar or two.

To get the stock to the right proportion and get our cash in hand again we will sell the Surplus at practically the wholesale price.

Nearly every one needs new fine shoes in the spring and here is your chance for the newest lasts at a big saving.

Even if the Ladies have the vote, that is no reason they should have the only new hat in the family.

FARMERS! PREVENT LOSS
Treat Your Seed For Smut

The method usually adopted for Loose Smut of Oats, Covered Smut of Barley, Bunt of Wheat is as follows :

Mix one pint of formalin solution (40% formaldehyde) with 42 gals. water. Place grain to be treated on clean floor. Sprinkle the solution over the grain then shovel. Repeat this until every kernel is wet, then cover the pile with sacking or canvas and leave 3 or 4 hours. Spread grain out thinly to dry. Disinfect bags and seeder with same solution. 1 pint of formalin will treat 40 or 50 bushels of grain.

Immersing the grain in a sack is sometimes practiced and is equally effective. Use same strength solution and immerse for 20 minutes.

What Does Vimy Ridge Mean to You

(Mail and Empire)

What does Vimy Ridge, in old France—all battered, blood-stained, a veritable charnel-house, but over all the Union Jack fl ing—mean to Canadians? It means what Harry Pellatt and Tip Arthurs, and later on Tom Longboat and George Goulding, achieved when on the cinder track across the border they distanced all competitors. What the Paris crew of St. John; the Argonauts of Toronto; Ned Hanlan, the peerless sculler of his day, achieved when they not only overcame their opponents, but astonished the wlord with new records for the oar. Aye, more, what the U. E. Loyalist in the wild Canadian forest; the York Volunteer on the bullet-swept Queenston Heights did for love of home and loyalty to the "Old Flag"—and all it means. But it means even more, though great, indeed, were those feats of physical prowess and patriotic achievement. It means that not merely in winning the highest honors that competition in manly sport can offer, or in proving one's manly courage and patriotic spirit in defending home and country against a civilized, it over-ambitious invader. Canadians have individually or in comparatively small numbers proved their worth, but that when the most untrustworthy, brutal and martial nation in the world suddenly attacked a weak and comparatively defenceless neighbor, and the dear old Motherland, all unprepared as she was, stirred to the depths of her heart by the awful outrage on a friend whom she had pledged her word to succor in time of need, rushed to her aid, and called all her sons and daughters, far and near, to the field of honor, our gallant Canadian freeman, peaceful, law-abiding home-loving, but to the core of the same old breed that bent the long bow at Agincourt and Cressy, that bore the lance under Richard Coeur de Lion against the Saracen, got them ready, crossed the salt sea, and at Ypres, Courcelette and on many another bloody field against a proud, determined, malignant and utterly unscrupulous foe freely shed their blood for freedom and justice. And now at Vimy Ridge, having been given the place of honor in the attack, and fighting against the flower of the barbarian horde, they—three years ago peaceful Canadian citizens—have taken historic rank with the gallant Guardsmen who fought under Wellington at Waterloo, the splendid Jack Tars who won glory with Nelson on the Victory, and all the other unnamed Britons who, whether ashore or afloat, in all lands and climes, have fought or died like heroes—for God, for country and for right—under the old piece of bunting known to men as the "Union Jack."

Now, young Canadian, or Canadian no longer young, of the right age, what about the gaps in the ranks at Vimy Ridge—gaps made by the brave, self-denying, splendid men, aye, and boys, who have died to save your mother, your wife, your daughter, your sisters, as the case may be, from the hands of the foul German soldiers who have rendered many a French and Belgian home desolate? Is life too sweet to you to risk it for love of King.

"Jack, dear, which would you rather lose, me or my money?"

"You, dearest."

"Oh, Jack!"

"But I would. Because, you see, dear, If I lost you I would have the money to offer a large reward and get you back again."

"You darling boy!"

French Capture 10,000 Prisoners in One Day

London, April 16—The French troops in the departments ot the Aisne and the Marne have delivered a violent infantry attack against the Germans over a front of twenty-five miles and made important gains of terrain and captured more than ten thousand prisoners and large quantities of war material.

The battle took place between Soissons and Rheims and over a distance of 18 1-2 miles from Soissons to Craonne, the entire German first line positions fell into the hands of the French, while east of Craonne a second line German position south of Juvincourt and another position on the outskirts of Bermericourt running along the Aisne canal to Loivre and Courcy also were captured.

Violent counter attacks delivered by the Germans on several sectors were repulsed with heavy casualties.

The artillery for several days had been violently shelling the entire region, and Monday while British activity along the front from Lens to St. Quentin had almost ceased owing to a heavy rain fall, the French launched their infantry in an endeavor to break through or press back the Germans from this point of great stragetic value.

The German official communication in briefly referring to the attack describes it as a great attempt "to break through with a far distant object," possibly meaning that a successful breach of the German lines here might necessitate the falling back by the Germans along a greater part of the front from Lens to Soissons.

To the east in Champagne, violent artillery activity continues, probably being the forerunner of an attempt by the French at a drive against the German lines in this no less important region.

From the fact that the French troops in Alsace and Lorraine have renewed their fighting against the Germans, preceding it with heavy artillery preparation and delivering infantry attacks which netted them good gains of terrain and resulted in heavy casualties to the Germans, it would appear that all along the French front the moment is approaching for an intensive battle from Belgium to the Swiss border.

The Glory Belongs to the Sons.

Instead of platform oraters and others saying, "I have given a son to "the cause," it would often be more fitting to say, "My son has given himself to the cause." In fewer cases than might be supposed are fathers entitled to take credit for the fact that their sons have enlisted. The boys have had their way. In many communities there are cases where the father by the bribe of an automobile or a piece of land has dissuaded his son from following his own manlier instincts. There are cases of fathers assisting their sons to secure employment in the United States so that they would be rid of importunities of the recruiting sergeant and the reproaches of their friends. No instance has been made public, so far as we are aware, of a patriotic father urging a laggard son to enlist, and finally succeeding. If there were such cases the fathers in question might be entitled to boast that they had given sons to the cause.

Fathers are entitled to feel pride in the patriotic spirit or their sons, and to rejoice when their sons distinguish themselves upon the field of battle. But the true glory belongs to the sons. A man would make himself ridiculous if he proudly announced that he had given three cousins or half a dozen friends to the cause of the Empire. The father who can say that he put not the slightest obstacle in the path of a son warward-bound says all that he should say. How many if they spoke the truth could tell of conversations between the boy anxious to enlist and the father attempting to dissuade him? If ever literature does justice to this war, the noblest epic of all will tell the story of the young men, who were boys the first week in August, 1914, and men the second week. It is one of the most touching, one of the most solemn of experiences to see how some young natures can mature and crystallize into stern manhood almost over night. The father and mother stare in amazement at the son they have regarded perhaps as little more than a child putting aside the things of boyhood and taking on himself the iron duties of war at a sudden challenge. Fathers and mothers are entitled to their proud, sad memories in the war. The glory belongs to the sons.

OBITUARY

Silas M. Hunter.

An old and highly respected resident of the township of Finch passed peacefully away on April 2nd, 1917, in the person of Silas M. Hunter. Born in the township of Osnabruck on June 27th, 1837, his life was spent wholly in the counties of Dundas and Stormont. On April 12th, 1856 he was married to Laney E. Barkley, who survives him, as do also seven sons and two daughters. Throughout his life he was interested in any movement for the benefit of education or in any work of charity which might come his way. Many were the needy who received help and kindness at his hand, to use the poet's words

"His house was known to all the vagrant train,
"He chid their wanderings but relieved their pain."

In politics he was a liberal and in religion a Presbyterian.

The funeral took place from the family residence, near Finoh, on April 4th, services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Bell after which interment was made in Finch cemetery.

Another hand is beckoning us,
Another call is given,
And glows once more with Angel light
The path that leads to heaven.

Dear father is laid to rest
In his cold and silent grave,
No more we'll hear his gentle voice
No more we'll hear his praise.

His once loved voice is stilled in death
That voice so dear to us,
Which often in our trials
Taught us what was just.

Our home is sad and lonely,
Our father is not there;
We miss him morning, noon and night
We miss him everywhere.

No pain disturbed his latter years
Nor death's dark vale aroused his fears;
He slumbered through the shades of night,
And woke in bliss in endless light.

Death only hides, does not divide,
He is but on Christ's other side,
The call was short, the blow severe,
To part with one we loved so dear.
To those who mourn it must be sweet
That God gives His beloved sleep.

A Sincere Friend.

Girl Slackers.

The following was handed in to The Record for publication by a Chestervilte lady:—

I know there are many young men of today who are quite suitable for the name—such as physically fit—who stand around the street corners of our town, but put on an extra gait when passing an "undesirable" recruiting officer.

But what should we call the young girl who spends all her money on dress and pleasure, but who is ever ready to stick up her nose at civilian attire. They seem to forget there is such a fund as the Belgian Relief or Red Cross, and wouldn't think of knitting socks for our soldier boys as "knitting is only old ladies' work, you know." Don't you think she should be honored with that "very estimable" name "slacker"?

For instance:—A friend of mine (who has recently returned from the front) and I, met a lady acquaintance of mine on the street. I asked her had she met my friend. As he was wearing civilian clothing she gave her head an extra toss and said: "No, nor do I wish to make the acquaintance of any civilian." My friend being deeply amused replied: "I'm so sorry you object to meeting me, as I should like to carry the remembrance of such an ideal patriot back to France with me when I return in the spring." You may be assured the lady turned somewhat pale. So I join with the old saying, "Don't judge by appearances." "Whoever the cap fits put it on."

A Civilian's Friend.

More Blundering.

According to some American papers the British War Office is responsible for the following:

Private Jones, a lonely British prisoner interned in Germany without friends and hungry, wrote the following letter:

"Dear God, I am starving. Please send me ten pounds." The letter was addressed, "God, Heaven."

The Germen officers forwarded the letter to the British War Office, where the clerks, touched by the appeal, collected three pounds among themselves and forwarded it to Jones.

Later the War Office received a letter addressed and forwarded the same way. It was an acknowledgment from Jones. It read:

"Dear God: I am grateful for the three pounds, but the next time you send me something, whatever you do don't send it through that War Office. They pinched seven pounds on me."

The Cost of Growing Potatoes.

Experimental Farm Note.

In potato growing provinces like New Brunswick there is always more or less discussion as to what it should cost to grow a good crop of potatoes and statements vary from as low as $40.00 per acre to as high as $125.00. Naturally there will be much variation in cost according to local conditions and especially to the ability of the land to produce without expensive fertilizing. It should be borne in mind that it will usually cost the potato specialist more to grow his crop than it will the farmer who follows mixed farming and makes his potato crop merely one of his many activities.

With a view to getting actual figures under average conditions in New Brunswick, a careful record has been made at the Dominion Experimental Station, Fredericton, for the past two seasons with an acre of land set apart for this particular purpose.

Neither rent of land nor depreciation of machinery was included in the calculation for these two are items that are largely in the hands of the individual grower. As a general rule, however, it would be fair to charge as rent, 10% of the value of the land, and special potato machinery will depreciate from 25% to 50% per year if used steadily for ten days each season. In 1915, the depreciation of the potato digger alone, used at the Experimental Station, was $6.00 per acre.

In 1915, the acre was planted with Green Mountain, Irish Cobbler and Empire State. Seed, cultural operations and harvesting cost in all $67.93. Eighty barrels of 165 pounds each of marketable potatoes were obtained and sold at $1.75 per barrel making a profit over cost of production of 90c per barrel. Seven barrels of culls were sold for $3.50 so that the total profit for the acre amounted to $75.50.

This land was rather wet naturally and during the very rainy weather of June and July was several times flooded, causing missed hills and inferior plants generally. This land was originally cleared many years ago and after cutting hay for thirty years it was allowed to grow up to spruce, birch and alder. It was again cleared in 1913 and grew buckwheat in 1914.

In 1916, an acre was planted with Green Mountain seed.

The total cost amounted to $82.33, the increase over 1915 being due to high priced seed, higher priced fertilizer ingredients and very dear copper sulphate.

One hundred and twenty barrels of marketable potatoes were harvested and could have been sold at $2.25 per barrel, making a profit per barrel over cost of production of $1.56½, plus six barrels of culls at 50c, $3.00, making a total profit of $190.20.

Market price when potatoes were dug was $2.25 per barrel. Later they could have been sold for $3.25, but are held for seed.

This land grew hay for many years and was broken up and grew potatoes with 750 pounds fertilizer in 1913, corn with 18 tons barnyard manure in 1914, Oats without manure in 1915. This land is on a slope, fairly well drained and except for washing out slightly between the rows felt no bad effects from the June deluge.

Cool Weather With Storms Expected For Balance of April

Washington, D. C. April 14.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent April 14 to 18, warm wave 13 to 17, cool wave 16 to 20. Average temperatures of the week centering on the warm wave of this disturbance was expected to be lower than usual. Some rains in eastern sections were expected to accompany this storm, the rains to decrease westward to crest of Rockies.

The forecasts for April were for less rain than usual; that most rains of the month would be in sections near the Atlantic coasts, decreasing westward to crest of Rockies; that a drouth scare would result—during April—in large parts of the country lying west of meridian 90.

Next warm wave will reach Vancouver about April 18 and temperatures will rise on all the Pacific slope. It will cross crest of Rockies near April 19, plains sections 20, meridian 90, great lakes and Ohio valleys 21, eastern sections 22, reaching vicinity of Newfoundland near April 23. Storm wave will follow about one day behind warm wave and cool wave about one day behind storm wave.

This will be a very important storm in many ways. As it approaches the temperatures will make a great rise and drouth sections will suffer. When the storm breaks some heavy rains are expected on the east coast or front of the storm. Most of these rains are expected near the Atlantic coast, decreasing westward. We can not determine how far west they will extend, but probably not all of the drouth sections will be relieved.

Of course these storms move in an easterly direction, while the winds blow into the right side of the general storm as you face its centre. In case of this storm the moisture, on which the rains will depend, must come from the east side of the Atlantic ocean. This makes a very long road over which the moisture, for any hoped for rains, must move therefore it is difficult to determine how far west those rains will reach.

But the storm will be of great and dangerous force and the moisture will move with great speed to the westward from the east side of the Atlantic. Be on guard for that storm. It will produce tornadoes, or at least dangerous gales and will be a very extensive storm.

We are expecting some heavy rains, at least in eastern sections, possibly farther west, about April 23, and if we had grain on hands, particularly wheat, we would hesitate about holding it longer than Saturday, April 21. If the rains, April 22 to 25, should reach northern parts of our best winter wheat sections they would certainly benefit that crop and might cause a decline in wheat prices.

Following this great storm probabilities favor frosts farther south than usual. The line of average dates of late killing frosts for April 25 runs from a little east of Santa Fe by way of Beatrice, Neb., Moline, and Peoria, Ill. Dayton, Ohio, Parkersburg. W. Va., Bristol, Va., Washington, D. C., New York City and Worcester. Mass. Near and north of that line, wherever rains occur during the five days centering on April 23 look out for frosts during the five days centering on April 25.

It was an Egg Anyway.

Young Farmer Meddlers—What in the name of goodness, Gloriosa, is the matter with the cake? Bride, (a London girl)—Why dear, there can be nothing the matter with it. I followed the recipe exactly. Maybe it was the fault of the eggs. I thought eggs were soft and yellow inside, but these were white and brittle all through, and I had to powder them with the flat iron, and—"Where did you get them?" "In the henhouse, darling. There was only one egg in each nest, and—" "Great Scott, Gloriosa, you have used my china nest egg!"

The Empire must be Fed or we lose this War

As the District Representative of the Department of Agriculture I have orders to do my utmost, amongst other duties, to encourage production of Farm Products and particularly to assist in securing a supply of farm labour.

By a system, I report on both the available supply of labour and the local demand. If the demand exceeds the local supply I have the whole Province to draw on, through the Ontario Government Public Employment Bureaux which I represent in this District, and I will do my utmost to see that my District is supplied.

I am satisfied that if the farmers in my District who are anxious to fill a patriotic duty and take advantage of the strong demand there is and will be for every pound of food stuff that can be produced—want or will use the available labour, they can get good help by filling in, clipping out and mailing the above Coupon. But you should do it today.

The Motherland sorely needs food.

Where is the Labour coming from? Everywhere.

It is streaming in to us from all quarters. Thanks to the deep interest shown by the Department of Agriculture, the Public Employment Bureaux, the Organization of Resources Committee, Boards of Trade, etc., a sweeping campaign has been carried on in the Cities, Towns, etc., to arouse the people to a sense of the duty they owe to the Farmer and to themselves to place hand and mind in readiness for a call to work on the land this season.

High School boys, retired farmers, teamsters, warehousemen and business men in thousands, preferably those who were raised on farms, are being lined up.

We are taking great care to impress on them that this means work—not a holiday—and they will all understand this thoroughly. In most cases the workers will be actuated by fine patriotic motives, ready to work and work hard.

This is a sincere endeavor to co-operate with the farmers to increase food production. We know you Farmers will do your part.

Our boys at the Front must not go hungry.

THE ARMY AND ITS SALT

Among the countless things required by the Army is salt. If we allow three million as the number of men involved, the quantity of salt issued to them has been over 40 tons a day. That is nearly four times the quantity London is supposed to consume. It is too much, and the Army Council has now cut down the quantity by half, so thateach man will receive a quarter of an ounce of salt a day, instead of half an ounce. The Army is more than worth its salt, but it can have too much even of a good thing.

Never before have we had to provide such quantities of this precious mineral for military use, yet we have not had to go short at home. It was different when last we were engaged in a great European war, for to raise money, we had to tax salt up to 15s a bushel. thirty or forty times its original cost; and until 1825 the poor suffered from lack of it. The poorer the household the more is its need of salt. Flesh contains a certain amount of natural salt, but vegetable food, which the poor must largely eat. does not contain salt, and vegetable-feeders crave intensely for it.

The truth is that salt in its relation to life is still something of a mystery. We must have it. though we do not know exactly what part it plays in the work of the body. We know that flesh-eating animals, fed upon food which the natural salts have been extracted, slowly die. It is an extraordinary thing that a dog, fed with food of this sort, will die sooner upon such a diet than if actually starved the reason being that the saltless food taken aids in increasing the loss of salts from the body, and so hastening death more rapidly than would a starvation which did not exhaust the body of salts in this way.

Thus the need of animals for salt is as great as our own. Wild cattle migrate to what are known as "salt-licks"—places where natural salt exists, where they can lick. Horses like a piece of rock salt in their mangers ; it is important for their health. Birds eat large quantities when they can get it. Natives in lands where heavy rains fall. carrying away salt deposits, suffer seriously if they cannot get salt. Salt is part of our life. It exists in our tissues and blood, and without it the blood would not coagulate, so that we should bleed to death on receiving a wound. In serious illnesses salt and water are sometimes injected into a sufferer's veins; and the use of this solution has extended wonderfully in surgical practice of late years.

Luckily we have immense salt deposits in England. They have been worked from time immemorial, and it is a curious fact that the getting of this part of the staff of life condemned the worker to slavery. Down to a late period in the reign of George III, salters and coalminers were slaves; sold with the mines. They could not leave their place of employment, and their sons must follow the same calling. They were born salters and they died salters, and had no more rights in Merrie England than the slaves of Saxon and Norman days in our own land or the slaves over whom Caesar ruled in Rome.

There is a good deal of history, then in the salt cellar. The world could never have been explored without salt to preserve the sailors' food. When we remember that it is the only mineral we eat, and that by treating it in a certain way there is obtained the German gas which tortures and slays men at the front, we may view with still greater wonder this product of old-time seas left dry and solid in the earth from which we mine it or extract it as fluid after pouring in water and converting it into brine.

A SCIENTIFIC WONDER.

Few things evolved during the war in connection with the Red Cross are more remarkable for their completeness than the X-ray ambulance. There is not a great number of these at present, but they have proved of great value.

The coil which supplies the X ray tube with its energy is similar to a wireless apparatus; it requires a dynamo to give the electric current, a petrol engine to drive the dynamo, and so on. The ambulance waggon is, of course, motor-driven, but a separate petrol motor drives the dynamo for the X-rays, so that any breakdown of the car engine need not interfere with the medical work.

There is also a miniature examination room, with a couch on which the patient is laid, with the X-rays coming from underneath, so that the trouble can be examined by the surgeon from above. Although it is possible to see a great deal with the X-rays, a photograph is almost always taken, so that there is a dark room in this waggon. Photographs cannot be taken and developed without water, so that a water cistern and sink is also provided, and, finally, there is a small but well-equipped workshop where all repairs to the apparatus can be attended to. These X-ray waggons can be brought up right within the zone of fighting, and they represent the last word in medical science.

EVERYBODY
Wants Profits

It isn't the amount of the premium but the amount of the dividend that fixes the cost of an insurance policy.

This is particularly true in a Mutual company where all surplus earnings are credited solely to policyholders.

The profits may be drawn in cash, used to reduce the premiums or to increase the amount of the insurance.

Less expensive policies are issued without profits, but in a prosperous company such as the Mutual of Canada the policies with profits soon become the cheaper.

One could not do a wiser thing than take out a life, limited payment life, or endowment policy in the Mutual of Canada, for it is among the most liberal dividend payers in America.

For example: twenty years ago a young man, age 25, took out a policy for $4,000 on the 20-year endowment plan. He paid a single premium of $2,036. Last month the Company paid him $5374.-16. This was a return of $263.96 for each $100 invested in addition to the protection of $4,000 for 20 years.

The Dust Nuisance.

Whether it is that most of the townspeople are willing to allow the affairs of the town to be run by a comparatively small number, or whether the majority wish to make their big effort in criticism of what may be done by those who have the interest of the citizens at heart it is difficult to say, but at last night's meeting, called at the instance of the Women's Institute, a woefully small number of men put in an appearance.

The meeting was called for the purpose of arriving at the best means of preventing the clouds of dust which are constantly raised by the heavy traffic on our streets being carried into our homes and places of business.

Reeve Bogart occupied the chair stating that there were but two plans, practically, to choose from that of using water and a daily sprinkling, or a preparation which would keep the dust down by forming a new surface to the streets. The preparation proposed is known as Tarvia B. and is said to have been used with considerable success on roads and streets which had been macadamized.

The Reeve read a mass of information, from the people interested in the sale of the article, and which of course did not suggest failures for it at any stage. The cost for the material at Chesterville station was given at around three cents per square yard of surface treated, and if a portion fifteen feet in width was treated the cost for the Tarvia B. would be fifteen cents per running yard, for the distance decided on. The streets suggested were the two main streets from the railway tracks as far as the R. C. Church. The distance from the tracks to the church is about seven hundred yards and from the tracks to the bridge somewhere about five hundred, or approximately twelve hundred yards, the Tarvia, for which would cost about $180 and to this would be added the cost of sand for a top dressing, and the labour for applying all the material. However, it is worse than useless to put any preparation on the streets until they are put in proper shape to receive it. On the streets suggested this work should be done whether any preparation is used or not and should not all be charged against the present scheme. It looks to us that it will require at least an expenditure of five or six hundred dollars to carry the scheme through.

The raising of the funds is the big proposition, and it was apparent that the Women's Institute was looked to for suggestions of ways and means, as they are the promoters, and while the burden looks a heavy one for them, they may be equal to it, and we understand are hard at work formulating their plans, on the understanding that if they supply the material the municipality will see that the streets are properly prepared and the application properly made.

It has been suggested by many that a demonstration be made of the use of Tarvia B on one short street for this year and if that proves satisfactory it will be time enough to take up the further use of it next year and continue extending its use until all our streets are included.
