Scouts, Guides plan seniors' Xmas party

CHESTERVILLE — Chesterville's Scouting and Guiding groups are inviting local seniors to attend the 19th annual Seniors and Friends Christmas Party. The event takes place Sunday, December 10 at the Chesterville Legion Hall from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., and seniors are invited to bring a friend or relative for an afternoon of fun and entertainment.

Take a peek at NLC renovation

CHESTERVILLE — The public is invited for a peek at the newly-renovated Nelson LaPrade Centre at an open house Thursday, December 7 from 1 to 3 p.m. and again from 6:30 to 8 p.m. The size of the Nelson LaPrade Centre was doubled to make room for Chesterville's Seniors Support Centre. The centre's official opening is expected to be held within a few months.

Info sessions for Five Counties trail

BERWICK — The Five Counties Recreation Trail will be up for discussion at a series of upcoming information sessions. The master plan of the project, an inter-linked series of multi-use trails across SD&G and Prescott-Russell, was approved last October and the steering committee is moving toward implementation. The information sessions are an opportunity for clubs, individuals, businesses and municipalities to exchange information and ideas about the trail system. An information session will be held Wednesday, December 13 at the South Nation River Conservation Authority building in Berwick, 7:30 p.m. Sessions are also scheduled for Morrisburg on Tuesday, December 12 at the Morrisburg Civic Centre Auditorium and Thursday, December 14 at the Lions Club Arena in Vankleek Hill, both at 7:30 p.m. For more information or to confirm your presence, contact John Purkis at 1-800-361-7439.

High-tech firm comes to Cornwall

CORNWALL — Cornwall's economy received a much-needed shot in the arm recently with the announcement of a new high-tech business for the city. United Tri-Tech Corporation has moved into the 80,000 square-foot former Canadian Marconi building at 550 Campbell Street and starts with a workforce of 20 that is expected to grow to more than 100 within a year. United Tri-Tech will manufacture high-tech electronics for customers such as IBM.

Alvin Runnalls re-elected to OFA's Executive Committee

TORONTO — The Ontario Federation of Agriculture has chosen a new president. Tony Morris, of Mildmay, Ont., in Bruce County, was acclaimed at the OFA's recent convention in Toronto, and replaces a retiring Roger George. Morris, operator of a sheep flock, has an extensive background in European production and has been farming in Canada since 1975. He has served as an OFA executive member for three years, most recently as first vice-president. Chesterville-area farmer Alvin Runnalls was re-elected as a member of the OFA's Executive Committee, as were Oxford's Sharon Rounds and Waterloo's Mary O'Connor. Serving his first term on the Excutive Committee is Haldimand pork producer Ben Walpot. Bruce County's Ken Kelly and Halton's Ed Segsworth were re-elected as vice- presidents. The OFA is Canada's largest voluntary farm organization and represents about 40,000 farm families.

Digging out

Clearing the remnants of a heavy snowfall was a family effort Monday for Chesterville's John Mitchell, who recruited sons William and Matthew for the task of shoveling their College Street laneway. Mother Nature dumped a load on us for the second time this month Monday and Tuesday, forcing the cancelation of schoool bus service across the counties, as well as countless other seasonal inconveniences.

Local leaders begin talks on reform strategy

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

BERWICK — SD&G Warden Floyd Dingwall says the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing could want a draft proposal for municipal reform in SD&G by May 1996.

And Dingwall said he is expecting further information on municipal restructuring Wednesday, in the provincial government's financial statement and Thursday when the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing makes an announcement on the subject.

It was made public earlier this month that SD&G's 20 municipalities will likely not exist in two years, as the provincial government pushes for some form of amalgamation of municipalities. The plan is part of an overall re-tooling of the Municipal Act and is expected to radically change the relationship between Ontario and its 800-plus municipalities.

The changes will be in place in time for the next round of municipal elections, slated for the fall of 1997.

Dingwall also said he is confident local municipalities will have 100-per-cent input in the design of any new structure, although any proposals would have to be approved by the MMAH. He also added the Ministry is now suggesting a one-tier system, which would have also eliminated the county level and was first discussed, may not necessarily be part of the final design.

Stormont County municipal leaders met Monday night in Berwick to discuss amalgamation, and a committee was struck to explore the county's options. The committee is made up of a council member from each of Stormont's municipalities.

Dingwall, who is reeve of Finch Township, said the committee will put forth recommendations in the near future and eventually will seek public input.

He said most Stormont politicians have resigned themselves to the fact this radical reform is coming, but a few are suggesting they wait to see what exactly is in store. "But if we sit and wait too long, we won't have time to put things together."

"Really, I guess we're waiting for information more than anything right now. We know it's coming down the tubes that we have to reform, but the meeting was to get people thinking."

Dundas County's municipal leaders are meeting tonight (Nov. 29) in Morrisburg to explore their feelings on the subject. All municipal council members in the county have been invited.

United Counties Council's Executive Committee has also been empowered to explore options for municipal reform.

Council revives Building Permit Committee

Village receptive to a number of merchants' requests

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — Chesterville council has revived the village's Building Permit Advisory Committee as a means of expediting permit approval when applications are not settled within 48 hours.

The move is a quick response to the village's merchant community, which has called for a better approval system and more flexibility on permit and zoning matters, and one of a number of concerns a receptive Chesterville council acted on after meeting with Chesterville merchants again last Wednesday.

By a motion of council, all building permit applications not approved within 48 hours will be referred to the village's Building Permits Advisory Committee.

"We hope to re-institute that procedure and hopefully it will work, and if it doesn't, we expect to hear from you," Reeve Jim Cook told merchant leaders Robin Morris, Howard Smith and Alan Sharkey, who came before council to discuss a number of points raised at a merchants meeting two days before.

The Building Permit Advisory Committee, like other municipal committees, is appointed yearly. Its members are deputy-reeve Shirley Coons, councillor Gail Parker and Chesterville Fire Chief Ross Casselman.

The committee does not have the authority to change zoning or other regulations, but can act as an intermediary between an applicant and the village when a building permit application needs a second look.

About 30 members of the Chesterville Merchants' Association came before council November 8 to address their concerns. Merchants had complained the village was not flexible enough in its handling of such matters, and that a more user-friendly process was crucial in both helping existing businesses thrive and attracting new businesses.

Council was receptive to their concerns, and both pledged a new era of co-operation and communication.

Morris told council last Wednesday an informal poll of business people in the village showed the association may be able to contribute about $4,000 toward the hiring of a consultant who would look at ways of promoting the village as a good place to set up a business.

While there is no chance of attracting another 'Nestle' or other large industry to Chesterville, Morris said, but even three or four small, light industries would mean extra paycheques spent in the village.

Morris noted the village can boast low start-up costs as well as cutting-edge telephone lines, thanks to a couple of existing businesses who had them brought to the village. Morris said there are many civil servants in Ottawa with large buyout packages in their pockets who may be looking to start small-to-medium-sized high-tech businesses, "and all you need is a good, clean telephone line for your modem."

Reeve Jim Cook noted it's up to council to decide, after looking at the village's budget, whether to match any hiring funds contributed by the Merchants' Association.

Cook said he has spoken with Terry O'Reilly and Jeff Marshall, former employees of SD&G's Economic Development Office, who both agreed Ottawa is the best place to promote the village as a place to do business.

Music, donations poured out to Kaleigh Trace Trust Fund

Melissa Batchilder
Record Staff

AVONMORE — It was an ecumenical celebration of life...Kaleigh Trace's life.

More than 100 voices gathered for a "Super Special Sing" at St. James United Church in Avonmore Sunday night in honor of nine-year-old Kaleigh, the young Crysler-area girl who was paralyzed after an August 28 highway accident near Casselman.

Sitting at the front of the church was Kaleigh and her family.

Reverend Ross Davis, who organized the celebration said he was "very pleased and moved" by the community's turnout. The event raised $1,090 which is being donated to the Kaleigh Trace Trust Fund.

"The whole concert epitomized what this community is all about," said Doug Trace, Kaleigh's father. "It was really fantastic."

Now, he added, "the valleys we travel will be less shallow and the hills not so high."

Kaleigh enjoyed the concert, he added, "and was even able to sing a few of the songs on the way home."

In the past three months, the Trace family has had to endure great changes. "However, we are adjusting well and Kaleigh will be returning to school part-time in December."

Events such as the one held Sunday night, said Trace, are the reasons the family chose to move to the area. "It's the whole reason we moved here four years ago."

The individuals, especially Reverend Davis, are to be commended for their work, said Trace. "We really thank them."

The concert was "wonderful and it was great to be able to feel that in the room."

Merchants offer help in hiring consultant

He said the pair's current employer, Birket Foster, has indicated their expertise in attracting business is available to the village. But before any pitch is made, merchants and council agreed, an inventory of available business space should be drawn up along with a list of the benefits of relocating in Chesterville.

Cook also said he would ask the village clerk to investigate whether toll-free service to Ottawa could be implemented. The idea was turned down by village residents a few years ago because it would mean increases in local rates, but the idea might fly this time, he said.

Merchants also asked council to take action on the deterioration of the roadway on Industrial Drive. Cook explained the road's base was poorly constructed in the first place, and said that project was among three candidates for government Infrastructure funding, which is still up in the air at this point.

"It's one of the things I would like to get done, but it's going to be a question of dollars," Cook said. He added the rebuilding of Industrial Drive with proper storm sewers may also alleviate a nagging drainage problem on the adjacent fairgrounds.

But council agreed, at the merchants' request to look at installing decorative Christmas lighting to the end of Industrial Drive instead of half-way, and the inclusion of Industrial Drive as a snow removal priority, with snow to be cleared before 7 a.m. like the downtown core when possible.

Also, Cook has called a meeting of the Public Advisory Committee for the village's stalled revitalization project, which was noted by merchants as being worth a second look.

Cook has noted alternative funding sources must be found in light of the unavailability of the crucial provincial grant that was to have carried the project to fruition.

The revitalization project's PAC will be Monday, December 4 at the village council chamber at 7 p.m.

Gifts for angels

The Chesterville and District Lions Club "angel trees" are up with the support of the Toronto Dominion Bank and the Bank of Nova Scotia. The trees, which hold angels detailing the ages and gender of children in need, will be in place from now until Dec. 28. Rae Kuno, a Toronto Dominion Bank client is seen here with Claire Foley, customer service manager, displaying one of the many gifts already brought into the bank.

Music benefits Kaleigh Trace fund

Davis said the concert's contribution is only "a drop in the bucket" for the Trace family. "The entire family has displayed such great courage. Little Kaleigh is so courageous."

The community, said Davis, will continue to do what it can for the family.

He also thanked the musicians for their time and contribution to making the concert a success.

The 90-minute musical program featured Murray MacKenzie of Orangeville, formerly of the Newington area, who has just returned from Nashville where he recorded a music video. MacKenzie sang some of his newest country-gospel recordings.

Also featured were Luane (Wood) Doyle, guitarist Mike Delaney, the SD&G Male Quartet, directed by Gilles Levac, and the St. James Choir, directed by Elgin Bowman, with flutist Cathy Meyers accompanying.

Refreshments were served and the Knights of Columbus hosted a breakfast the same day in the basement of St. Anthony's Church in Apple Hill. All proceeds went to the trust fund.

"The entire community gave in one way or another," said Davis, "and it has been greatly appreciated."

Editorial

Slicing up the pie

It almost sounds too radical to be true, but it is. The municipal level of government in SD&G, like other regions in the province, will be turned upside-down in the very-near future.

It's all but official that SD&G's 20 municipalities will be replaced within two years by some form of regional government.

Premier Mike Harris Monday dropped a very timely hint at the provincial government's rationale for municipal amalgamation: He compared the cities of Ottawa and Calgary. Calgary has just one tier of municipal government, one school board. Ottawa, as an example of an Ontario municipality, is "over-governed" and inefficient.

Realistically, there's no secret as to what's behind amalgamation. Bigger municipalities are cheaper to run, so they say. It's a way to wean municipalities off provincial transfer payments.

Will the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry disband to each become a municipality of their own? That's the most strongly rumored scenario, but nobody knows how SD&G's municipal pie will be sliced up when all is said and done.

When you step back, and think about it, it's a tragedy that the financial realities of the provincial and federal government in the 1990s necessitate such drastic action. The most human form of government is one that is in our own backyards. The closer we are to the people who represent us, and the fewer of us they represent, the better.

Regardless of what format is drawn up for municipal reform in SD&G, it will mean far fewer leaders representing the same number of people and from much further afield. Will that soften the voice of the every-day resident? Will his or her local concerns be lost in the shuffle of a single county-wide government? It's a fair question.

It seems most of our local politicians are resigned to the fact it's going to happen. They may not be in favor, but as Chesterville Reeve Jim Cook says, stopping municipal reform is beginning to be like trying to stop the wind.

Both Dundas and Stormont county's municipal leaders have met to plan a modus operandi for municipal reform, or at least to start thinking about it.

Early indications are that the province is going to give our municipalities a chance to design the new structure themselves, a design that would need provincial approval.

Hopefully, that will be the process used when all is said and done.

And that's why it's good in this case our local leaders, at the municipal and county level, are grabbing the bull by the horns, not wasting any time before addressing the issue. Because if one thing is for certain, it's that the provincial government will be glad to tell us what to do if we don't take the initiative to design it for ourselves.

Off The Record

A wintry Cowslips and Cowflops

By Robin Morris
Dubious Achievements Editor

Well Gentle Reader, here it is November 27 (as of this writing) and we've already set a record for snowfall for the 11th month of the year. According to the Ottawa Weather Office we reached the 60cm mark Monday, bettering the old mark by 6mm (a whopping quarter of an inch) only half way through the present storm. Makes you yearn for that record setting summer we had, doesn't it? It sure sets me to hankerin' for the warm weather, especially after watching the circus antics of the untrainable Monday. So let's kick off the start of a new season with an old favorite, Cowslips and Cowflops.

A Cowflop to all drivers who forget every year that we live in one of the world's most northerly countries and with the geography goes the inevitable consequence of weather. If we lived in Dixie we'd have to contend with hurricanes, humidity and hominy grits. On the equator with plague, pestilence and psychopathic politicians. On the west coast with earthquakes and astronomical real estate values. Here in the northeast we have nothing so climatologically or catastrophically spectacular. But we do get winter. It's as inevitable and as regular as constitutional renewal. So why is it that our highways are clogged with drivers every year who have forgotten everything they ever knew about driving in it? Or is there something chromosomal about living north of the 40th line of latitude that automatically cancels out the painful memories of winters past, just as women who have gone through the agony of childbirth more than once seem fortuitously forgetful? Does it explain how five cars could hit the left shoulder of the 401 within the space of an hour Monday morning, filling the median with perplexed drivers trying to unravel the mystery of why they couldn't negotiate a snow-covered passing lane at 120 klicks ?

A Cowflop to the Bank of Montreal for those inane "It Is Possible" television ads. First of all they have some shill holding up a sign proclaiming that he's not a number. Okay Mr. Rocket Scientist, so what's your PIN for? And how come the bank's reduced its hours and the only way you can get to your cash is by "interfacing" with a machine with your bank card's PIN? And how about the other clown in the ad hoisting aloft the handlettered sign proclaiming that he wants to go further. Talk about ambiguous. Does the sign indicate that he wants to advance along a nonphysical dimension or does it mean that he wants to achieve a more distant point in degree, time or space? Does he want to go further or farther? To find out the difference, buddy, take a number. It's about as equivocal as Bell's new policy on working on the phone lines inside your house. Ma Belle Telephone now gouges you about $90 an hour for something like installing a new phone jack, but the company will tell you that the new charge gives you the freedom of choice. Yeah, right. Some freedom. You can pay the 90 bucks or try to work on your own phone, either electrocuting yourself in the process or shutting off your home from the outside world, in which case you'll have to pay the phone company a hell of a lot more than $90 to put it right. It is possible.

Lest you think the early onset of winter has turned us dyspeptic, a Cowslip to the Ontario Ministry of Education, headed for the first time by a high school drop out, for its decision to eliminate grade 13. This effectively transfers more of the cost of that year of education to the student (and his or her parents) by doing away with the three-year Ontario university degree. Now we'll have a minimum of four years, just like every other province, driving up the cost of univerisity education for everybody. Maybe the ministry could eliminate grades 11 and 12, which would retroactively make Education Minister John Snobelen a high school graduate.

And while we're at it, a Cowslip to the neo-conservative neophytes at Queen's Park for taking their hatchet to daycare and junior kindergarten. The bright lights of the Queen Sparks are actually doing us a favor with these cuts by ending a public funding anomaly. Our society places no financial value on parenting - or, more specifically, mothering - so why should we pay others to look after the children of those whom we won't pay to rear their own? Just ask Transportation Minister Al "Palimony" Palladini about the cost of raising children. Seems like a logical decision to me.

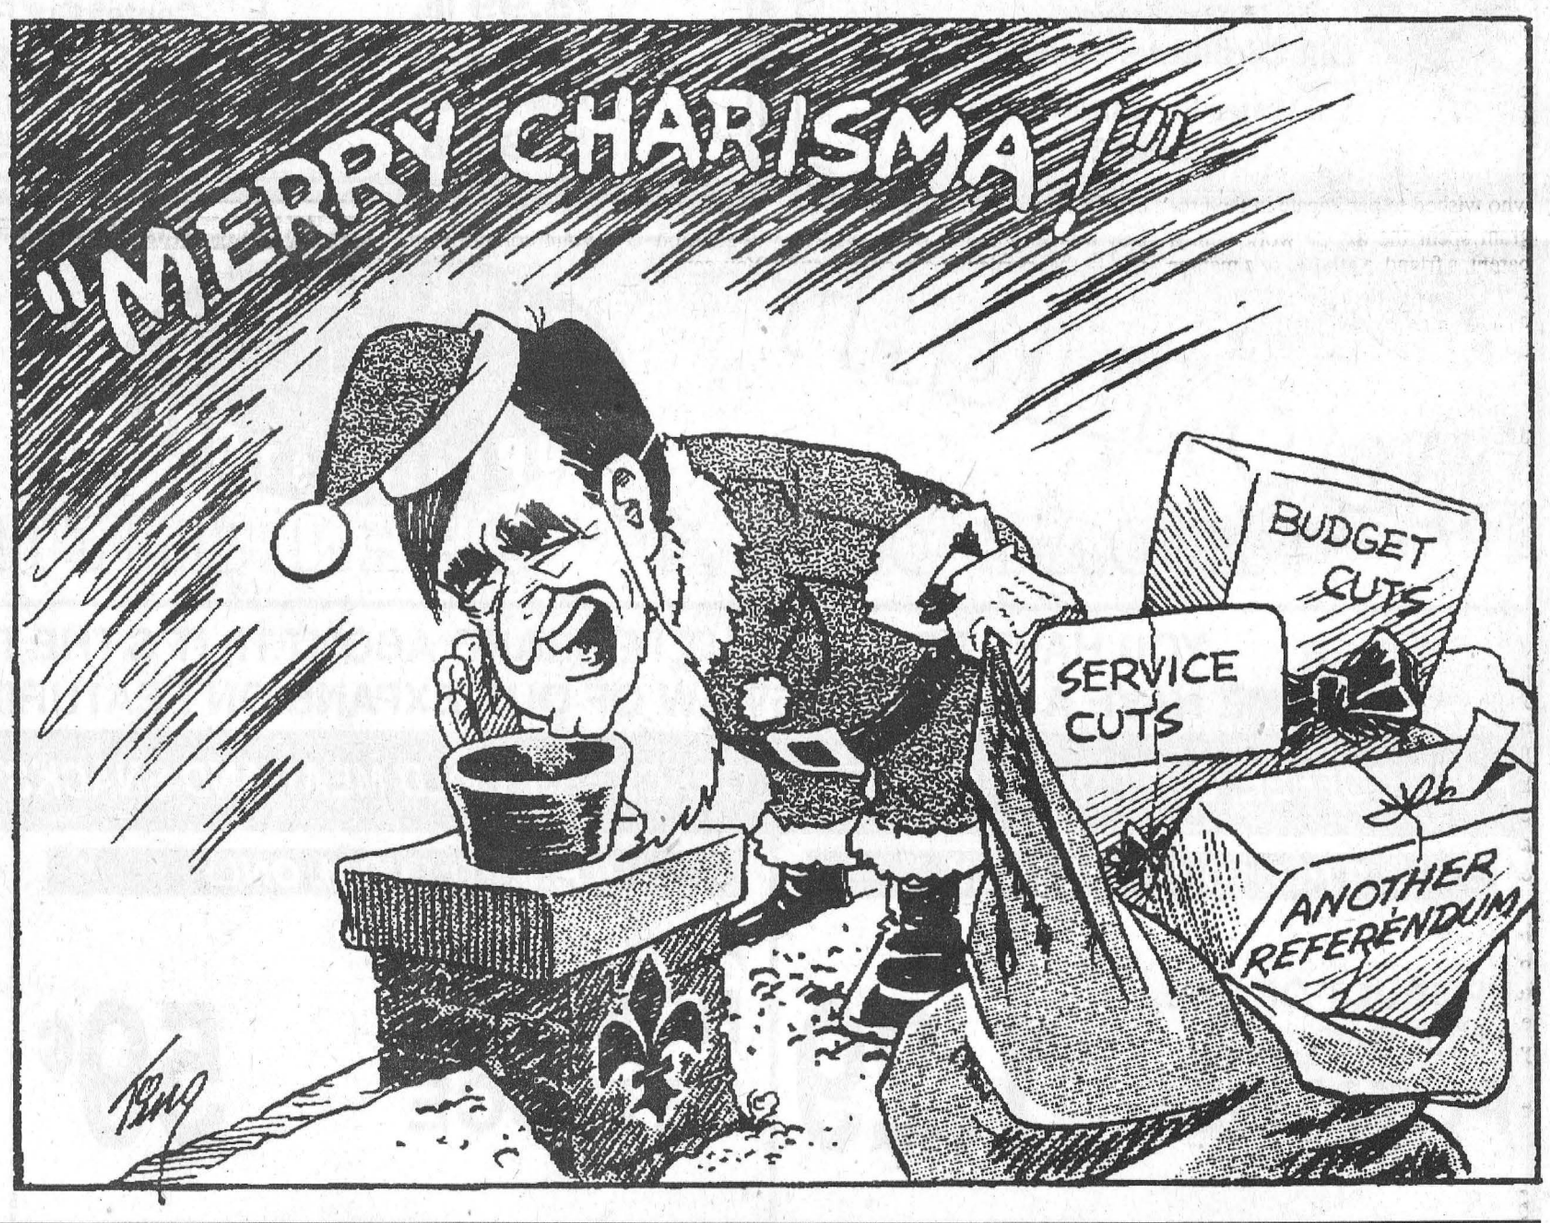
And finally, since we're entering the Yule season (as in Yule live to regret it), a final Cowflop to the folks at Nike for that charming ad showing NBA heavy Dennis Rodman (he of the tattoos and carnival sideshow hair color) shaking down Santa Claus for a new pair of sneakers. Isn't that just the kind of image to portray to our kids: that if they really want something for Christmas all they have to do is swarm a senior citizen. We have a pair of Nike Airs that our 12-year-old went in all summer without socks and we're going to package them up and send them to the head of Nike Canada so he or she can discover that the company's products can become as malodorous as its efforts at promotion.



THE FARMER'S WIFE

By Wyn Thompson

Indian summer came and went and we proceeded with November until now, it is almost over. The screens are off and laid away, the windows are washed, a job which I hate. The rack in the family room wears my storm jacket and rain slicker instead of light sweaters and jackets.

The Farmer ordered a couple of loads of wood, not for this winter but for next. This winter's woodpile is already stacked high.

My tendency is to make lists. Do this. Do that- Christmas season will soon be here, you want time to enjoy it! Take car for servicing. When?

I have been known to get up in the night and add to my list. It seems the main function of the list is to make me feel well organized. I then go back to bed and sleep well.

Practically speaking, they're a bit useless for I invariably lose them. Nothing makes me crosser than to leave my grocery list at home when I go to town.

But, as a friend says it is nice to know that when I get home, I'll know what I forgot and will be able to add those items to the top of the next list I prepare. An optimist she is!

One thing I always have on my list is bird feed and, oh yes, cat food. The winter birds come as the weather turns cold. I term the juncoes my weather forecasters as they appear suddenly when the weather turns bitter. When it turns warm again, they disappear, as if by magic.

They are called our snowbirds, which may be a better name for them. They are a lovely slate- colored with a white abdomen and tail feathers.

They live in the swamps all winter, coming out on snowy days to eat the seeds scattered on the ground by the other birds. I've never seen them eat from the tree feeders.

The chickadees love the feeders and they often come and knock the seeds on the windowsill. Often they stop and peer in at me to see what I'm up to, for they are not only friendly, but very curious.

The bluejays are as colorful as tropical birds but they have come in such abundance this year that they are barely welcome, for they chase the small birds away and gobble all the seeds and tear the suet, screaming incessantly.

Only the woodpeckers choose to ignore them. Of the woodpeckers, the downy is my favorite. This is a small friendly little bird, the male with a scarlet patch on his head. The constant tapping sound they make, while after grubs under the bark of the trees, is pleasant to hear.

Most of the birds pay no attention to Cat, but a neighbor tells me that if I had a cardinal in the yard, it would take exception to Cat. She has cardinals and says that they are very shy birds.

I love birds and so does she, although we both know people who do not like birds. But, birds are necessary, for they lead the battle against pests. Without birds, man would find it hard to get along. However, this is beside the point. Birds fill the air with music and make the darkest day bright. Watching their flight patterns, the heart is indeed lifted.

It is hard to describe one's good friends. But, this bird lover friend is one who spends a good deal of time helping anybody who needs help. She is generous with her time and her enthusiasm for life near bubbles over. Her interests in politics to education to the current best sellers is contagious. Her mind is quick and lively and very, very refreshing.

She is one of those rare people who are selfless and I have an idea that those people do not feel the march of years. If this is true, my friend will be young for years.

I often wish there were more people with such zest for life.

The ground is hard with frost so the Farmer begins to put up wind shields on the windy side of the little trees that did manage to survive last summer's heat and drought.

The first real snow will come soon now, a prelude to winter which comes the twenty-first of next month which is just a breath away. A few feathers drift down, so lazily that I wonder if it is a bit of dandelion fluff.

I look up to the sky and realize they are definitely coming down. It won't amount to anything, says everyone at the supermarket. But I notice we all get an extra loaf of bread or something else, just in case it should amount to something.

There is a certain excitement about the first snow and I finally think I know why. It is because, with the first snow, we finally face up to winter. No more fooling around, so we settle in and rather enjoy the challenge of winter in a northern clime.

This is it, here we go! But, the time we get cross is in mid-March when it ought to be spring and another blizzard swoops down upon us.

Then we say we've had enough, we're certainly going south for six months next year, but we never do. Some people go for a brief time. But, most of we valley people stay put and grumble March out.

The first really big snow comes toward Christmas and that seems just about right for singing Jingle Bells and White Christmas loud and clear in a salute to the festive season.

To the editor:

Bonjour tout le monde! Comment allez-vous?

Wow! It's amazing what two months in France can do for someone's French vocabulary!

The one thing I love about the French school system is all of the vacations! I just finished my first two-week holiday. Not having anything better to do, I hopped on the train to Switzerland to visit my aunt and two cousins. It's great — five hours on the train and you're in another country!

My relatives live in Aarau in the Swiss-German part of the country. As my German is "non-existent," it was a challenge communicating. (We didn't dare leave the house without our German\English dictionary!)

Switzerland is a very beautiful country. My aunt and I toured Aarau, Bern — capital, Luzern — famous for its covered bridges, and went "hill" walking. I spent my second weekend in Vevey, in the western French-speaking part. (Finally, a language I understood!) It is a beautiful city, on Lac Lemont right by the Alps.

I stayed with two families who used to live in Chesterville many years ago: Kurt and Marianne Blattner, and Gerard Jaeger's family. (The Jaegers had actually been in Chesterville the week before I arrived, so it was neat to hear from them how things were "back home."

We visited Vevey, Lausanne, Gruyere (known for its cheese) and Le Chateau de Chillon in Montreaux. The Blattners took me hiking on Les Portes du Soleil in the Alps. We drove up to 1500m and hiked to 2100m. Absolutely magnificent!

Although it was a bit difficult to go back to school after all of that, I only have to wait another month and a half until Christmas vacation!

Remembrance Day (November 11) was interesting. The peace treaty for WWI (L'Armistice) was signed in the forst of Compiegne. This area of France was hit very hard during both world wars, so November 11th is a very important day with many ceremonies. The Prime Minister came to Compiegne for a dedication to "the Unknown Soldier." At the same time, there was a large "anti-nuclear testing" rally going on.

Because of the terrorist bombings happening in Paris, high security measures are being taken. Compiegne was full of police and mob squads, which was a bit intimidating. Not something you'd normally see in downtown Chesterville!

We've had a beautiful, sunny fall, but I've heard Canada's had some snow already! And how about that Quebec?! I was so relieved to hear that I would be coming home to one country, and not two!

I hope all is well in Chesterville. I'll keep you posted on what's new in France!

A bientot

Take a bow for taking kids to work

The Editor:

The African proverb It takes an entire village to educate a child certainly describes the participation of this community in the Take a Kid to Work Day.

Even in times when many parents are unemployed, all Grade 9 students who wished to participate in the program spent the day at work with a parent, a friend, a relative or a mentor from business or industry. This was made possible through the cooperation of parents, friends and relatives; through the hard work and dedication of teachers and administrators, and through the interest and participation of small and large employers who welcomed sons, daughters, friends and strangers into their midst.

The beneficiaries of such a program are the Grade 9 students. Their one-day experience has certainly opened their eyes to some of the realities of the workplace. Some are probably considering a career similar to the one they were exposed to; others want no part in that particular career, and still others are not yet ready to make a career decision. Fourteen years of age is young to commit to a career, but thinking ahead to the future is not. As time passes on, these students will be able to reflect on the Take a Kid to Work Day and appreciate the unique opportunity that was made available to them.

In closing, I want to take this opportunity to thank all those who took time from their busy schedules to ensure that this opportunity was made available to the Grade 9 students of SD&G. Thank you for your suppport, your dedication and your commitment. You can be proud of your participation in the education process.

Birth mother seeking daughter

To the editor:

At the age of 18, I gave my baby girl up for adoption. During the 26 years that have since passed, I have never forgotten my daughter. The love a mother feels for her child knows no boundaries and no amount of time will ever take away the heartache of separation; only a reunion can lessen the pain.

The need to know my daughter becomes more intense as time goes by. I need to hold her in my arms, tell her how much I love her and explain why I walked away so many years ago.

Being united with Joanna will bring me immeasurable joy, peace and serenity. This is why I am searching for her, but unfortunately I know very little about her. Although Joanna is an adult now, legislation restricts the disclosure of information about adoptions; the files still remain closed.

This is my reason for turning to you and your readers. My fervent hope is that my daughter, Joanna, or someone who knows her, will respond to my appeal. I will be forever grateful to anyone who can offer assistance in my search for Joanna. Please reach out to Joanna so she will know how much I love her.

Joanna was born October 15, 1969 in Smiths Falls, Ontario and at birth was called Charlotte Anne Marcia Kindree. Today, she goes by Joanna and I believe she lives in eastern Ontario.

Joanna, my darling daughter, I love you more than words can say. I don't want to interfere with your life but only ask for a chance to know you. If you are my Joanna or anyone who knows her whereabouts, please contact me.

Poetry Search deadline approaches

It seems we at the Record tickled many fancies with our first-ever Poetry Search. The response has been terrific! Poets of all ages from Winchester to Lunenburg have bared their souls and shared their senses of humor by submitting their best poems and limericks.

So far, we've received more than 30 submissions, ranging from the capturing of nature's essence to the serious look at life's problems and the knee-slapping glimpse of everyday life.

The idea for the Record's Poetry Search was conceived after we were approached by someone in the community who asked humbly if we could print a poem she had written. And it made us wonder just how much poetic talent there is out there.

And if you're still thinking about submitting your favorite poem, don't be shy! There's still time. We'll accept your poetry until Friday, December 1. The top entries will be published in an upcoming edition of the Record.

And judging by the fine entries we've received, that will be a tough decison.

Poems must be original, and limericks are welcome.

Noms de plume are acceptable, although the author's true name and location should appear somewhere on the submission.

Your poems can be dropped off at the Record, 7 King Street in Chesterville, mailed to us at Box 368, Chesterville, Ont., K0C 1H0 or faxed to us at (613) 448-3260.

And to get your creative juices flowing, here is another sample of the poetry we've received:

Nature's Romance

As the sun hangs low in the west, a single beam of shimmering light streaks across the surface of the water in a desperate attempt to reach land a final time.

But alas, the great power it held earlier is now reduced to a trickle.
The steady hypnotic sound of waves continuously caressing the shore is broken briefly by a near-silent hiss as the orange-yellow fireball kisses the ocean in a steamy encounter.

Remembering a massacre

Marching in silence to stop violence

Melissa Batchilder

WINCHESTER — Pop quiz.

When is Canada's National Day of Action and Remembrance on Violence Against Women?

Why was this day chosen?

Why is it so important that rural communities be informed and educated on issues of violence?

What is this area doing to mark Canada's National Day of Action and Remembrance on Violence Against Women?

If you failed this test then perhaps it's time to become more aware of issues of violence directly and indirectly affecting almost all of society, rural and urban.

Canada's National Day of Action and Remembrance on Violence Against Women, December 6, will be commemorated in Winchester with a "silent march."

Darlene, community outreach worker for Naomi's Family Resource Centre in Winchester, urges men and women to participate in the event in memory of 14 women murdered by Marc Lepine while attending class at the Ecole Polytechnique in Montreal and all other women who have died as a result of domestic violence.

On December 6, 1989, Marc Lepine entered the engineering school and systematically separated the women from the men. Prior to opening fire on the women students, he yelled..."you are all a bunch of feminists." Fourteen women were killed.

Beginning in 1990, organizations and individuals from across Canada have formally remembered and mourned the murders of these women.

The link has been made between this massacre and other daily acts of male violence against women and children, says Darlene. "Everyday in Canada, women and children are beaten, abused, tortured and sexually assaulted."

Every week in Canada, at least two women are murdered by men they live with, were married to, were dating or were separated or divorced from.

The "silent march" will begin at noon at the Winchester bandshell at the corner of St. Lawrence and Main streets. Several speakers will address the event following the march. Executive director of Naomi's Family Resource Centre Judith Running, family physician Dr. Graham Jacques, an OPP representative, Sexual Assault Support Services representatives and survivors of violence will speak of their experiences and offer hope for the future.

The belief that violence of any nature is an issue unrelated to rural areas is false, says Darlene. "That's just not the way it is."

Sadly, issues of domestic violence affects those in rural areas just as much as it does those in urban centres. "The sad part is the isolation that women and children face in the country. When they are facing domestic violence they also face the geographic isolation found in rural areas."

Darlene adds that at some point every man, woman and child will be affected by domestic violence whether that be directly or indirectly. "It can be a friend or a teacher or a friend of a friend. We will all know of someone who is being harmed by violence."

And, she adds, "it is very important for the entire community to acknowledge and mourn the lives lost to domestic violence. It's a community issue. "We have to raise awareness while at the same time putting methods of prevention in place."

Although December 6 is the token day for remembering these women, she says, "we must face the issue of domestic violence every day and we must educate ourselves and those around us." In order to conquer this, "we must first educate."

In order for community members of the Winchester- Chesterville area to become aware of domestic violence, "someone shouldn't have to die first."

Domestic violence is everyone's problem, adds Darlene, whose own experience with domestic violence led her into this field. "We have to be willing to stand up and fight the battle for those who are at this point unable to do so for themselves.

"It's everyone's problem." Sadly though, when community members decide to take action against domestic violence they are seen as trouble-makers. "Perhaps the world needs more trouble-makers."

According to Woman Killing: Intimate Femicide in Ontario, a report detailing domestic violence and lives lost to it in this province, there is a tendency for victim-blaming in society. The report was compiled by the Women We Honor Task Force.

"We engage in any form of victim blaming," the report states, "we ultimately collude with the offender, taking responsibility away from him. As a society, we must cease this continuous collusion and we must recognize that we have not yet provided a response that truly ensures women's safety. Instead, abused women often face a no-win situation."

In this area, says Darlene, "we have the opportunity to change this. We can take a pro- active approach to domestic violence by joining together as a community to fight against it."

This can be partially achieved by attending the December 6 "silent march" in Winchester.

For more information on this event or other ways to become active in resolving issues of domestic violence in this area, contact Naomi's Family Resource Centre at 774-2838.

SD&G's trio of SNRCA members to be chosen Dec. 18

CORNWALL — SD&G's three representatives on a trimmed-down South Nation River Conservation Authority board of directors will be chosen December 18 in Cornwall after United Counties Council meets to inaugurate Matilda Township Reeve Charles Barkley as warden.

The three will be chosen from amongst the 13 municipalities in SD&G that are a part of the South Nation River's watershed, which stretches across much of eastern Ontario.

The SNRCA's scaled-down board of directors will be put in place in January, and will be comprised of 15 members instead of the current 36. The reducation, which is expected to save about $35,000 a year, was passed by the board in November, 1994.

Under the new format, only three SD&G representatives will sit on the SNRCA board, along with four from Ottawa-Carleton, three from Prescott-Russell, two from Leeds & Grenville, twp provincial appointees and a past-chair.

The DFA and Mountain Township are sponsoring a seminar called "Building into the next century," an informative look at farm building design for those who are considering the construction of a farm building or structure.

The seminar takes place Thursday, December 7 at the Mountain Township Agricultural Hall in South Mountain from 10 a.m. to 3:15 p.m.

The doors will open at 9 a.m. to allow visitors to view the display area, which includes engineers, draftsmen, contractors, farm equipment suppliers, consultants and representatives from financial institutions.

Speakers at the seminar are John Johnston, Building Code, building permit requirements and consulting agencies; Harold House, OMAFRA engineer, free-stall and tie-stall designs and ventilation and Don Hilborn, OMAFRA engineer, manure storage and handling systems and issues.

Changes pave way for business

Melissa Batchilder
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — Jim Miller has "The Kee" to success.

With a newly renovated and upgraded bar and food service, located in the former Chesterville Hotel building, the manager says he is delighted to see the return of old and new customers.

The name has been changed to "The Kee," he explains, as a means of bringing a bit of the new and combining it with the traditional. "It's the same building but with new attractions."

New carpets and walls have been added, he says, along with an upgraded lighting and laser show and a state-of-the-art sound system. "It's really something," he says of the changes.

The Kee, says Miller, is actually divided into two spaces. The sports bar which is called the Pool Pub is located in the former dining room while The Kee Club is in the larger rooms.

Traditional pub food is available along with a pool table and large screen television in the Pool Pub. Meanwhile on the other side, the technical provisions are in place along with a pool table and large dance floor.

"The changes are really making a difference," says Miller. "It's been eight years since any renovations were made so it was really time."

As for entertainment, "there's really something for everyone."

The Pool Pub is open Monday and Tuesday nights "and is a really popular time for people who just want to get together for a quiet time or to shoot some pool or watch a game."

Wednesday night features men's entertainment in the Kee Club while on Thursday and Friday nights a live rock and roll band performs.

Saturday is often a real pick-up for customers, says Miller, as one of Ottawa's most popular dee- jays makes his way to Chesterville. "Chris Jennings is here every Saturday night and is really drawing a crowd."

Although The Kee is not open during the day, says Miller, it is now open six nights a week. It's menu is also available at this time.

Centre free for non-profit groups

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — Non-profit groups that serve the community can continue to use the newly-expanded Nelson LaPrade Centre free of charge after council quashed a proposed $15 rental fee.

The recommendation to charge a $15 rental fee to non-profit groups using the facility was conceived by the village's Recreation Committee, and presented to council by recreation director Robin Langille at last Wednesday's council meeting, as part of an overall rate structure for the village-owned building.

The committee also proposed a full-room rental rate of $100 and a half-room rate of $50. The upstairs room is divisible by a moving wall.

Before the expansion project, the centre was rented for $15 for the hall only, $45 for the hall and kitchen and $60 for the hall and kitchen when a liquor licence was in use.

But when the proposed $15 rate for service groups was mentioned at council Wednesday, Reeve Jim Cook said he felt the proposal was dicey because the village already has agreements with some of the groups that use the centre as a regular meeting place.

Langille told council the $15 fee was the result of an hour-long discussion by the Recreation Committee, whose members, he said, felt some fee should be levied because those groups still use heat and electricity, and the room must be cleaned afterward by village staff the same as after private functions.

"If it doesn't get paid by whoever uses it, then the taxpayers pay for it," Langille said.

Councillor Sharon Casselman, a member of the Recreation Committee, noted it cost the village $4,000 to operate the facility last year and revenues amounted to just over $1,000.

She said the fee was considered as a means of making the facility more cost effective, as council has asked of all village-owned facilities, and the $15 was seen as a reasonable rate.

But Cook said the village has an agreement with the Chesterville and District Lions Club, which meets at the facility, that they can use the building free for their meetings in lieu of their contribution to the recent addition. And a verbal agreement with the Chesterville Fair Board also stands, he said.

In light of that, the fee would really only apply to the Chesterville Rotary Club, Cook said, "And if I was a Rotarian, I think I'd be a little upset. I have difficulty when we have agreements with some non-profit groups using it and are charging others."

Deputy-reeve Shirley Coons added she had a hard time charging a fee to service groups who contribute back to the community through their service.

After the discussion, the original motion was left to a vote and was defeated. A new motion was drafted immediately without the $15 fee for non-profit groups and was passed by council.

Cook asked that the matter of the fee for non- profit groups be referred back to the Recreation Committee to see whether they wanted to explore the issue any further.

He also mentioned that he was extremely impressed with the look of the expanded facility on a recent visit.

Village clerk Howard Smith said Monday, though, he will have to ask council for clarification of their intentions, He said he felt it was unclear whether the motion meant non-profit groups other than those currently using the Nelson LaPrade Centre should pay for the facility or use it rent-free.

The addition to the Nelson LaPrade Centre, now almost complete, was built primarily as a Senior's Support Centre for local seniors. The addition doubled the size of the existing building, which is nestled in the Chesterville Community Park.

An open house for the facility is planned for Thursday, December 7 from 1 to 3 p.m. and again in the evening, from 6:30 to 8.

Council also voted last Wednesday to designate the new addition to the Nelson LaPrade Centre a non- smoking facility.

Library welcomes community

Melissa Batchilder
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — It's one of Chesterville's greatest secrets, says Verla Levere.

The librarian for the Chesterville Public Library says community participation in the facility, located in the municipal building, is vital for its survival.

Although there is no immediate threat to the local library, Levere reminds that ongoing use of it is what keeps it open. Already, she adds, two libraries in the SD&G County library system have closed.

"We have to constantly reacquaint the community with the library and in some cases introduce it to those who don't even know it exists."

However, local children aren't amongst those not making use of the facility.

Since October, between nine and 20 children have been participating in "Story Hour" a program for children between three and 10 held at the library Saturday mornings.

Although this session of Story Hour finishes Dec. 9, says Levere, the program will begin again in the spring.

Between 9:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. children are listen to stories and make crafts. "They enjoy this and it introduces children to the library. It gets them involved."

Reading is important to everyone, says Levere, "and children are the ones who need to be exposed the most."

While attending Story Hour, the children are encouraged to borrow books or toys. The latter library is also located in the same spot.

"A lot of older children feel the library is boring, but now with Story Hour, they look forward to coming here."

For adults, Story Hour is also an opportunity for them to browse through the library or just drop their children off while they run errands.

"Surprisingly Story Hour gets adults reading as well."

In addition to borrowing books and toys at the library, says Levere, videos are also available upon request.

"Everyone is welcome at the library and there is really something for everyone here. If we fail to use it as a community, then the possibility is there that it could be closed."

For now though, she adds, the library is alive and well. Library hours are 5 p.m. until 9 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The library is also open Saturdays from 10 a.m. until noon.

Reflections

40 years of nursing; 90 years of life for Cora Droppo

Melissa Batchilder
Record Staff

Cora Droppo answers her door dressed with impeccable taste. She graciously welcomes a guest into her home and offers a seat.

As she glides into the kitchen of her warm apartment, she wonders aloud. "I knew someone would make a deal out of my birthday."

That's right. It's Cora's birthday and despite her youthful appearances, she insists she will be 90 years old on Saturday. One would never know.

However, Cora who obviously stays young by constantly educating herself, can remember the invention of almost every convenience most take for granted.

Throughout her living room are pieces of furniture she has had a hand in creating. She points to one chair and says, "that's the first piece of needlepoint I ever did."

When Cora went to high school there was no home economics department, "so we learned this sort of thing at home."

Born in "Stormont County, Finch Township on the Grantley Road," Cora went to a little country school "that we had to walk two miles to get to." Now, she adds, "children can't walk to school if it's in town."

Of course though, she adds, part of this is because of increased traffic. "Traffic today isn't like it was then," she says with a chuckle thinking back to the days when only horse and buggies were seen on the roads.

Instead of finishing grades in school, Cora says, "we completed books." After finishing Fifth Book she went to Finch to write her entrance exams to high school.

Then it was on to Chesterville for Cora. "I came here to high school because this is where we did our business." However, going to high school wasn't a matter of a day program. "We stayed in town the entire week and boarded here. That was a big step in those days."

Cora remembers her father's first car that he purchased in 1919. "My brothers had just come back from overseas after World War I and my father bought a Ford."

In June of 1924 Cora finished high school and after six months she made the move to Cornwall to enter nurse's training at the Cornwall General.

Cora Droppo celebrates 90 years this Saturday.

Again, Cora is reminded of her upcoming birthday. "I may be turning 90, but I have a sister who is 100. She lives in Florida." Cora produces a letter she recently received from her sister. The handwriting is unbelievably neat and concise.

"I graduated from training in 1928 and retired from my career in 1965." For almost 40 years Cora practiced her science with great pride in several hospitals throughout the province. "I worked myself up from general nursing to a duty supervisor and then I went on to become the assistant director of nursing."

Although her career began at Cornwall General, Cora's asthma being exposed to a unhealthy climate caused her to move on. "I worked in various hospitals in Galt, Cobourg and I equipped and opened one in Trenton."

In time she found herself doing the latter again at the hospital in Carleton Place. "That's where I eventually retired from and moved back to Chesterville. I lived with my sister four houses east of the liquor store."

Having never married, Cora explains, she was left with plenty of time to work on her career. "There were a lot of hours put in and in many ways in those days a nurse was really tied to her job."

Tremendous changes took place during Cora's years in the nursing field. "I began at a time when there was little but bedside nursing."

Perhaps the greatest change she saw was early ambulation which was developed in the 1930s. "People were getting back on their feet so quickly." Prior to early ambulation someone who had a hernia operation was bedridden for at least 21 days while an appendix operation required 14 days bed rest.

A hysterectomy was also a serious operation requiring at least 21 days complete bed rest following the surgery.

"Patients would be so weak when they got up. There were tremendous changes as a result of early ambulation." Even giving birth required 10 days of bed rest. Today women are back on their feet just hours after having a baby.

The trend towards early ambulation began in Europe, explains Cora. "It started there and just sort of seeped into the medical field here."

The introduction of antibiotics in the 1930s also changed medicine dramatically. "Before this there were very few drugs and then there was a big difference especially with patient pneumonia."

Young doctors today, she says, don't know the crisis of pneumonia. "We had nothing to treat it with except aspirin. There really were very few drugs in my early nursing years."

First came tablet forms of medication and then there were intramuscular drugs. Eventually and in many cases, most effectively, came the introduction of intravenous drugs.

Of course too, Cora has seen her fair share of babies being born. She laughs at the thought.

"I enjoyed my years working bedside nursing, but I also enjoyed the administration and equipping and opening the hospitals."

There were some moments of relief over the years though, she says with a smile. "In 1967 I spent two months in the British Isles after crossing the ocean on a ship." There were many motor trips as well, she says.

"In 1938, before cars had trunks, three of my friends and I traveled around the Gaspe. We had to put a carriage thing on the running boards. When it rained we had to stuff the suitcases in the backseat."

Having encountered two flat tires during the journey, Cora says she was glad for the eventual invention of tubeless tires. "That was a great thing."

In 1935 Cora bought her own car and eventually drove to the Maritimes. "I went with a friend and it took us three weeks."

Of course, she adds, a lot of women didn't drive in those days, so this was quite a thing.

Over the years, Cora says she has "slowed up quite a bit," but she still finds the time and energy to make some small trips and play bridge on Saturday nights.

With her birthday approaching, she adds, she has no plans to make any drastic changes, only to continue with the lifestyle that has served her well.

Happy Birthday Cora Droppo!

Melissa! — by Melissa Batchilder

Oh my dear, there's some lot of snow comin' down eh? Nothin' like a good ol' snowstorm in November to make yer little heart sing.

Nevertheless, this year I am trying to look at the winter with a positive outlook. Y'see I got meself a pair o' cross-country skis this year so the world covered in white isn't going to look quite so gloomy.

For some reason I seem to think that the minute I don my new sportswear I'm gonna look just like Christie Brinkley. It's true. I firmly believe the minute I boot my ski boots on I'm gonna miraculously turn into a mean lean skiing machine. And don't try and tell me otherwise either. That's just what is gonna happen.

I even ordered a set of matching gloves and headgear from Avon just for effect.

Now I can't go skiing though until my hoarse voice passes. There must be something in the water that's giving me this throaty drawl. I'm sure I sound just like one of those chicks you'd hear at the other end of a 1-900 number.

Of course, I had to phone my mudder for advise on how to bring my nasal tone back. Like always, she was off at a Girl Guide thing and I got stuck having an intellectual conversation with fadder. It went something like this...

Me: Oh dear, I'm not feelin' so great. There' somethin' wrong with my voice.

Fadder: There's not a chance that ya lost it is there?

Me: No, thank you very much. It's just that it's hoarse and my throat is sore.

Fadder: Well did ya ever think of shuttin' the old trap for more than 30 seconds at a time.

Me: Oh Dad, you're advise is always so helpful.

Fadder: Well just how much do you think your vocal chords can take anyway? They need a rest sometime and if my calculations are right, they probably haven't had one in about 27 years.

Me: Where is my mother? She's the only one who really cares about me.

Fadder: Whine. Whine. Whine. If you'd quit smokin' then you wouldn't have any problems.

Me: Bye Dad, thanks for yer insight.

It's always so nice to bond with him.

The wildest thing happened this week. My friend Tera had a baby. Now to most of you this may not seem outrageous, but to me, well I just can't believe it. This is my first friend to have a baby. Oh, I feel so old.

You see, first my friends started getting married and I'm still having a time trying to deal with that. Now with this baby thing...well I'm just in a state.

Tera and I were supposed to save the world. What happened, I ask. What happened?

We went to college together and were almost expelled for our vocal abilities. We had a teacher who was often known to use four-letter words in describing us. We were radicals. (Or as much a radical as one can be on d'oisland.)

After graduation we went off to voice our opinions to the world, (or at least to the folks of Newfoundland who would listen.)

Then I moved here and she moved there and then now it's 10 years later and I phone her up and she says, "listen to this." She held out the phone and I heard nothing. I asked her what the nothing sound was and she said, "it's a baby."

Well heart of mother, I started to cry. I couldn't believe it. I still can't believe it. Tera didn't even like kids. Now she has a baby and is just so, so...maternal.

She says she still wants to save the world and all, but afterall, she adds, "I am 31 and I guess it was time." My dear, I'm just floored. Tera has a baby.

I still can't figure out what my role in this is. Like am I supposed to fly to Sydney and help her or something. I'm just in a state.

It was so strange. Like we were having this conversation about the pros and cons of nursing or bottle-feeding. I couldn't believe I was talking about such things. Oh dear, dear, dear. Tera has a baby.

******

And then there was potato salad. Now this is a true story and Michelle Roberts can verify it.

It all began with the discussions of a potluck Christmas party. I didn't get to the list soon enough to sign up for my traditional "pickles and cheese" contribution. The dinner rolls were spoken for as well.

Instead I was slotted for potato salad. I began to heave in despair. Then Donna, sweet maternal and domestic thing that she is, warned me that I was not to go to Mike Dean's, nor was I to have Howard Heritage make it for me. Well, what was I supposed to do?

Michelle comes to the rescue and offers to come and help. On Friday afternoon she sent me to the Superstore with a list. I'm probably the only person who ever needed a shopping list for potato salad. How domestically pathetic I am.

So I get the goods and around 8 p.m. Michelle arrives with her child "lil' Baxter" in tow. By this time I've approached half the town on the best way to approach potato salad.

I peeled the potatos and then chopped 'em and cooked 'em in my new Vision Ware. Now that's apparently good cookware that I got at a garage sale for $5. And that's all I did cause Michelle was so keen and eager that I stepped aside to allow her talents to shine.

Oh, I didn't put the mayo in while she mixed. And I didn't put any peas in because Donna said that would be gross. Well my dear, on d'oisland we always put peas in potato salad. You guys just don't know what yer missin'.

So as I'm adding mayo, my hand slips into Michelle's hair. (Oops!) Wow, you should see what hair looks like when it's mixed with mayo. It must have looked great cause before long there was enough mayo in both of our heads that we should have just added the potatoes to it.

Meanwhile, L'il Baxter is sittin' on a stool thinkin' this was better to watch than Baywatch any day.

However, I must note for those of you wishing to add mayo to your hair at any point in time, it takes Tide to get rid of it.

******

As I was driving out to Avonmore Sunday night I was kinda complaining to myself about the drive. It was icy and I was tired. I was wondering why I was even bothering to take this picture of a concert.

Once I arrived at the United Church my attitude changed.

The concert was in honor of Kaleigh Trace, a wonderful little soul, and the entire community was there to support her.

One glance at this group was all it took for me to realize how important it was to make the drive to Avonmore. The support offered by this community made me feel so good inside. It's a wonderful way to begin the Christmas season.

******

And speaking of Christmas season. You should see the house next door to my place. Oh, it's just so pretty and tastefully done. The man who lives there says the lights will be turned on Dec. 1. I can't wait. Now I believe the address is 71 King Street. Anways, it's just past the corner where Car-O-Line Auto is, heading towards Nestles on the other side of the street. You should be able to find it. It's just so pretty.

T. R. Leger honors graduates Nov. 24

Melissa Batchilder

T.R. Leger School, Winchester Campus graduates are front from left, Colleen Wright, Laura Beaton, Melissa McGarry, Bonita Elliott, Margaret Badior, Verna Mayhew and Sandra Brown. Back from left; Valerie Elliott, Judy Gigeault, Sheri Thompson, Henry Plch, Gary Robinson, Tim Vanden berg, Samantha Fischer, Sonia Billings, Jackie Wicks and Beatrice Legue. Missing are Nancy Billings, Mary Blom, Jason Brown, Pam Helmer, Dean Missins and Bonnie Whitteker.

CHESTERVILLE -- Two Chesterville women have been awarded for their outstanding efforts while attending T. R. Leger Alternative School.

Margaret Badior, who completed the four senior credits required for her diploma with an average of 96.8 per cent, was presented the Award of Excellence for her achievement. The award was sponsored by the Winchester Legion Branch 108.

"I was really excited," she beamed. Having started classes in August, 1994, she worked three courses at home and one at the school, until her completion in February of this year.

Having had to endure Attention Deficit Disorder throughout her life, Badior admits, "I was smarter than I thought. Winning the award makes me feel really good."

Despite her high marks, the difficult part in obtaining her diploma, she says, "was sticking to it." With children at home and ADD to cope with, "it was really quite an accomplishment for me."

Badior credits the T.R. Leger School for providing her with the opportunity to return to high school after a number of years away. "The school is great. If I had the opportunity to attend a school like that when I was younger, than I probably would have stayed in school."

Working at one's own pace and with individual supervision, Badior says she was able to excel.

The Outstanding Achievement Award, sponsored by the Winchester and District Lions Club went to Bonita Elliott, who completed her secondary school education with the Alternative School over a period of four years. Prior to going back to school, Elliott had spent a number of years in the work force.

Now employed at Canada Post in Chesterville, Elliott says she is happy just to be working.

"I completed the year and a half of school I needed over a three year period. I actually went to school in between jobs."

Accepting her award was truly an honor. "I was very happy. I had no idea I was getting it."

However, she credits the T.R. Leger Alternative School entirely for her success. "It's a great way for adults to return to or continue their education. It's a very easy place to go and the instructors are so helpful."

Badior and Elliott received their awards Nov. 24 at Aultsville Hall in Cornwall. Along with the Chesterville women, 141 other students received their Ontario Secondary School Graduation Diplomas.

Of those graduating, 23 completed their courses at the Winchester campus.

School co-ordinator Eunice Johnston says students can study entirely at home, part-time in school or full-time in school.

Most credits are completed using the correspondence course method and all exams are written with supervision at the school. Many students include computer studies in their course load. These classes are taught daily at all Alternative School locations.

As adults, adds Johnston, many students were eligible for maturity credits. One credit is awarded for each year in the work force up to a maximum of 12.

A number of other achievement awards were also presented to worthy students at the ceremony.

Sheri Thompson, who is currently enrolled in the Developmental Service Worker program at Algonquin College, received the Cardinal and District Resource Centre Bursary. It's awarded for someone furthering their education at the post-secondary level.

The T.R. Leger School Staff Award went to Colleen Wright who is enrolled in the Social Service Worker program at St. Lawrence College.

Tim Vandenberg, who is currently completing a Net Vision Inc. Computer Specialist program received the Bill Dickie Award for his furthering education in computer technology.

CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WINCHESTER

NOTICE OF PASSING OF BY-LAWS TO AMEND THE OFFICIAL PLAN AND THE COMPREHENSIVE ZONING BY-LAW 12-93

TAKE NOTICE the Council of the Township of Winchester, pursuant to Sections 17(17) and 34(18) of the Planning Act, RSO 1990, Ch P13, hereby gives notice of the passing of, By-law No. 18-95 adopting an amendment to the Township's Official Plan and By-law No. 19-95 to amend the Comprehensive Zoning By-Law 12-93, at its Meeting on Monday, November 20, 1995.

THE LAND AFFECTED by the amendments to the Official Plan and the Comprehensive Zoning By-law include two parcels. The first is the land owned by Wilson Stewart in Part of Lot 1 Concession X11 used by Campbell-Stewart Equipment Repair Inc. The second is the land owned by Chick Bidgood in Part of Lot 20 Concession 11, fronting Highway 43 east of Chesterville, and used until recently by Graphicraft.

THE PURPOSE of the amendments is to redesignate and rezone both sites to Industrial designations and zones. Both parcels of land are currently designated and zoned agricultural but are developed and have been used for industrial uses.

These amendments have the effect of rectifying the inconsistency between the current use and the zoning of the land.

NOTICE OF THE PROPOSED DECISION of the Minister of Municipal Affairs and Housing on the Amendment to the Official Plan, passed by the Township Council, will be given to any person if a written request to be notified is made to the Minister of c/- Plans Administration Branch North and East, Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing, 777 Bay Street, 14th Floor, Toronto, Ont. M5G 2E5.

APPEAL PROVISIONS - Take notice that any person or agency may appeal to the Ontario Municipal Board in respect of the By-law No. 19-95 to amend the Comprehensive Zoning By-law by filing with the Clerk of the Township of Winchester, not later than the 12th day of December, 1995, a notice of appeal setting out the objection to the By-law and the reasons in support of the objection.

RIGHT TO APPEAL - Only individuals, corporations and Public bodies may appeal a zoning By-law to the Ontario municipal Board. A notice of appeal may not be filed by an unincorporated association or group. However, a notice of appeal may be filed in the name of an individual who is a member of the association or the group.

INFORMATION and copies of the amendments and By-laws may be viewed at the Township Office or enquiries may be directed to the Clerk, of the Township, during office hours, Monday to Friday, public holidays excepted.

MAPLE RIDGE - A powerful offensive explosion ignited by the run-and-gun stylings of Laura James and Tiffany Cowan lifted the North Dundas Devils to an impressive 45-26 victory over the Joe's Panthers here last Tuesday (Nov. 21).

The win capped a championship basketball season for NDDHS.

Coached by Chrissy Linton and Maggie Graham, both members of the North Dundas Senior Devils hoop squad, the Midget Devils ran away with the SD&G regular season title winning seven of eight games.

It was a clean sweep (2-0) in the post-season, as the 15-member team grabbed gold medals and the championship hardware following their decisive win over the Panthers.

North Dundas defeated the GVSS Vikings 32-21 in the semi-final game to qualify for the championship encounter.

FINAL GAME

Becky Klein-Swormink and Laura James each drained four points as the Devils jumped out to a 12-7 lead over St. Joe's in the first quarter.

Tiffany Cowan and Kelly Vandewint twisted twine for a bucket each.

The Panthers Margaret Maylon nailed all seven points for her squad.

Kelly Clark hit for back-to-back field goals but she was the only Panther shooter to beat the Devils 'D' as the home school took a 26-11 lead into the half-time intermission.

Laura James came through with a six pack of points in the second period while Crystal Huizinga (4), Tiffany Cowan (2) and Kelly Vandewint (2) also listened to Dundas string music.

North Dundas out-scored St. Joe's 11-7 in the third quarter and enlarged their lead to 37-18.

Tiffany Cowan ran through the Panthers' coverage and laid in a trio of deuces. Kelly Vandewint supported the attack with three and Becky Klein-Swormink with a pair of points.

James hit a jumper at 7:33 and Cowan swished a deuce at 7:20 of period four as North Dundas applied the stranglehold going 41-18.

Alison Levere threw up a deuce from just outside the paint with 3:22 left as the difference expanded to 43-18.

St. Joe's finally responded with a pair of field goals and four free throws but could only narrow the gap to 43-26.

Becky-Klein Swormink then turned a steal into the final scoring play of the game 44 seconds before the buzzer.

Cowan and James each hooped a dozen points for the new champs.

Klein-Swormink hit for eight, Vandewint laid in seven, Crystal Huizinga four and Alison Levers a deuce.

Margaret Maylon topped the Panthers point parade with nine. Kelly Clark added six and Jackie McRae five while Christy Lalonde, Erin Foley and Marissa Kyte supplied two each.

Aces come back with 10-5 win over Hornets

Rebound after two losses, Kelly's late goal gives Dogs 4-3 win

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

Black Aces netminder Craig Smith was on top of his game and took a laying down approach to fending off the Green Hornets while teammate Will O'Connor clears the puck out of the Aces' zone. The Aces doubled the Hornets 10-5 after losing two straight CTL contests in a row.

CHESTERVILLE - After dropping two games in a row, the Black Aces came back with a vengeance and posted 10-5 victory over the Green Hornets.

Black Aces netminder got off to a rocky start when he let the Green Hornets' Ken Byers put an unanswered goal into the crease for 1-1 game at 18:26 of the half. But that was all Smith was going to let get past him as he was unbeatable until early in the second round.

Kent Young dumped in the go-ahead goal for the Aces at 8:32 of the opening round which was quickly followed up by a pair from teammate Jason Ouellette to give the Aces a 4-1 lead heading into the second stanza.

Another one from Byers early in the second period brought the Green Hornets tally up to two. Darrell Shelp and Barry McShane netted the helpers.

Shelp (unassisted) drilled in his own goal three minutes later (22:07) to bring the Hornets within one of the Aces (4-3).

Shelp knotted the score at four-all when he knocked another one into the back of the net before the Aces were able to get back on track.

Will O'Connor put the Aces back in the lead when he drove the puck past Hornet netminder Ben Henry at 13:05 of the second stanza.

Young, from John Tessier and O'Connor put the Aces' count up to six which was quickly followed up by Mark Cayer who brought the Black Aces tally to seven. Young and O'Connor were also in on the play.

Shelp, with help from Gary Beisheim, finished off his hat trick and dumped in the Hornets fifth and final goal of the contest at 8:24 of the second period.

A pair from Mark Smith bracketed a single from Young for a 10-5 final in favor of the Black Aces.

DOGS 4 - KNIGHTS 3

A goal from Pat Kelly with three seconds left in the game gave the Red Dogs a 4-3 win over the White Knights.

Red Dogs' Scott Barkley and the White Knights' Kevin Henry traded opening round singles for a 1-1 game with 17:43 showing on the clock.

John Mackler, on the powerplay, drilled in his first goal of the season, finishing off a play started by John Luimiss and Sean O'Connor to give the Dogs a 2-1 lead.

Pat Kelly gave the Dogs a 3-1 lead when he knocked in a feed from Kris Young and Brad Cotnam with 6:46 left in the first round.

A short handed goal, at 16:02 of the second stanza, from Kirk Tallman brought the Knights within one of the Dogs.

Henry knotted the score at three apiece when he finished off a play started by Darrin Kelly with 13:44 on the clock.

With three seconds left in the contest, Kelly rifled in his second of two on the night to give the Dogs the 4-3 victory.

What a Guy!

Ryan Guy scores 10 in three games to lead Warriors

SPENCERVILLE - Ryan Guy scored 10 goals in three games here on Sunday as the North Dundas No. Three Warriors rolled to a convincing victory in the 1995 South Grenville Minor Hockey Association Atom 'C' tournament.

Guy scored the first three Warriors' goals as his team built up leads of 4-1 and 7-1. Devin Carruthers scored twice while Chris Thompson, Shawn Blais and Kris Blais supplied the others.

Matthew Gibeault missed the shutout by a goal.

Jay Emmons scored both Ernestown goals in the final 4:28 of the game and ruined Matthew Gibeault's hopes for shutout.

Darren Guy potted a pair of goals for the winners while Jason Crump and Shawn Blais each supplied a goal and an assist.

Chris Thompson scored the other marker. Mike Zubatuk also helped out on a goal.

Bowie had three and Marion one goal while Matthew Gilmer (2), Thomas Douma and Tyler Panchuk picked up assists.

Scott Hamilton guarded the cage.

Shawn Blais scored twice for the Warriors. Chris Thompson and Rory Clement each picked up a goal and one helper point. Jason Crump (2), Ryan Guy and Devin Carruthers set up the goals. Matthew Gibeault patrolled the goal line.

Nancy McDiarmid goes for one on goalie Jackie Boulanger.

Blais and McDiarmid give Beauties another win

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

WINCHESTER - Andy's Food Town picked up their second win of the season when they downed Sports Unlimited 3-2 in last weekend's Winchester and District Ladies' Hockey League action.

Andy's Cathy McCourt and Sports' Marie Shelp traded opening round goals for a 1-1 game with 13:55 on the clock.

With 10 seconds left in the period Karen Ouderkirk with help from Nancy Beavers drilled in the go-ahead goal for Andy's Food Town.

Beavers and Marylin Collins fed Ouderkirk Food Town's insurance goal early in the second stanza for the 3-2 win.

Tina Fawcett dumped in Sports Unlimited's second point of the game with 2:02 left until the final buzzer. Cathy Kerr-Moore was also in on the play.

GIRLS 2 - ANNABLE'S 2

The Country Girls and Annable's Jewellery each picked up a point as they skated to a 2-2 contest.

A pair in the first period held up through a second round of action while Annable's pumped in first and second period singles for the tie.

The Country Girls' Sue Whelan and Annable's Julie Gunhill traded singles for a 1-1 tie with 12:20 left in the period.

With 6:10 left in the period Country Girls' Gale Smith put her squad up by one when she fired in a feed from Wanda McKinstry and Lorna Smith-Gove.

Annable netminder Carrie Nolan stumped the Girls in the second stanza while teammates Jen Bartrand, from Cathy Little, knotted the score at 2-2.

BEAUTIES 7 - CLASSICS 0

Stewart's Classics' goalie Jackie Boulanger had a tough time stopping Double Beauty's Tanya Blais and Nancy McDiarmid as the two of them teamed up on six of the Beauties seven goals. Amy Fraser dumped in the seventh goal for the Beauties.

After one period of action the Beauties' knocked four into the back of the Classics' net.

Blais dumped in a double bracketing two in a row from McDiarmid.

Blais fed McDiarmid the Beauties fifth goal of the game at 17:20 of the second stanza.

It was then McDiarmid's turn to feed Blais for a 6-0 lead with 7:20 left in the game.

Fraser, from Kim Williams fired in the seventh and final goal of the game.

Sherry Stewart posted the perfect performance in between the posts for the Double Beauty squad.

Dumont nets two for Demons

BROCKVILLE - A pair from Andrew Dumont helped put the North Dundas Bantam 'C' Demons in the win column once again.

The Demons downed Brockville I 3-2.

It was a battle of the goalies as North Dundas and Brockville played to a 0-0 score until 28 seconds remained in the second stanza.

North Dundas's Andrew Dumont broke the score wide open when he drilled in a feed from the team of Dean Kerr and Mike Paquette.

Jonathan DeJong put the Demons up by two when he drove to the net alone at 10:03 of the third round.

Dumont banged in the Demons third and final goal of the contest with 5:11 left in the period. Kerr and Todd Levers was also in on the play.

After stumping the Brockville squad for virtually the entire game, North Dundas netminder Kevin McLeod's weak side was found by Brockville which turned into two quick goals for Brockville and a 3-2 final.

Express still winless

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

FINCH - The Casselman Stars' powerplay dazzled the North Stormont Express as the Express let three of 10 goals in with a man in the box.

The Stars also dumped in a pair of short handed goals in the 10-2 embarrassment over the Express.

It looked like the Express had a chance in taking home their first victory of the season when Ian Henderson (unassisted) drilled one into the Stars' net at 10:26 of the opening round for a 1-0 lead.

North Stormont's bubble was quickly popped when Casselman retaliated and fired in five before the end of the period for a 5-1 lead.

In the second stanza, Casselman netminder Doug Long stumped the Express while the Stars dumped four more into the crease for a 9-1 lead going into the third period.

It was Henderson again, this time from Chris Eastman and Mike Rodger, who put the Express on the board to make it a 9-2 game with 6:46 left until the final buzzer.

With less than a minute on the clock, the Stars brought their total up to 10.

Islanders tie Demons

CHESTERVILLE - Matt Driscoll scored with 6:46 and 56 seconds left on the clock as the visiting Gananoque Islanders rallied to tie the North Dundas Bantam 'B' Demons 3-3 last Friday.

It was the third consecutive UCMHL tie the Demons have taken home. They knotted the Morrisburg Lions 3-3, the North Leeds Stars 4-4 and Gananoque 3-3 in that stretch and now hold a record of 4-0-3.

Gananoque took the lead on Ryan Easton's goal 1:53 before the end of period one. North Dundas responded with a pair of second period markers and took a 2-1 lead into session three.

Colin Fossitt finished off a play set up by Matt Cormier and Justin Gravelle at 8:30 to tie the game at 1-1.

Trevor Walker then snapped in a feed from Steve Mattice and Marty Link at 7:25 to make it 2-1.

Mattice tickled the twine with a shot at 12:27 of the final frame to make it 3-1. Walker and Devon Cinnamon set up the play but to no avail as the Islanders clicked for two late goals and salvaged a 3-3 tie.

Link adds more stamps to his passport

WINCHESTER - Since 1994 Murray Link has done some traveling to places like Florida and Chile.

In March of '96 the long distance runner is off to compete in the World Cross Country Championships in Cape Town, South Africa.

Link, an OAC student at North Dunn District High School, earned the trip to South Africa via the Canadian Cross Country team, with a sixth place finish in the National Junior Cross Country Championship meet last Sunday in Montreal.

"The top five qualify (for the Worlds) but the first place finisher was overage (19) and can't go so the next five qualify," said Link.

Link described the 8km course as hilly and covered with snow.

"It was hard running, no traction...(it was) like running in sand."

The defending champion finished 10th and Link was 45 seconds behind this year's winner.

"Time (finishing) was irrelevant because conditions were so bad. The placing was the deciding factor," he noted.

Between now and the trip to Cape Town, Link will train, running three days a week, and make a recruiting tour of American colleges during February.

"I have had offers (scholarships) from quite a few schools in the U.S. but have narrowed it to five or six. I hope to visit them in February before deciding.

Burke drives in winner for Pucks

CHESTERVILLE - Tyler Burke poked home the winning goal as the North Dundas Midget Atom 'C' Pucks held on for a slim 2-1 victory over the Morrisburg No. Two Lions.

The victory posted here last Thursday night extended the Pucks UCMHL winning streak to five games.

After a scoreless first period, Trenton McBain broke open the goose egg scoring on a play engineered by Jean Jacques Caver at 7:03 of period two.

Two minutes later (5:04) Tyler Burke increased the Pucks lead to 2-0 scoring from Mike Tutton and Kyle Stewart.

Although they continued to press for the insurance goal, the Pucks were turned back by Lions' cageman Brad Thompson who slammed the door shut.

Brad Francis was the Morrisburg triggerman finally beating the Pucks Robert Lacelle with 4:30 left to play in the game.

But North Dundas held on for the 2-1 victory.

Pucks coach Bill Brannen noted that Kyle Stewart and Patrick Pomainville worked hard offensively and came up with many scoring opportunities only to be stymied at the Morrisburg goal mouth.

North Dundas kept their game sharp by playing a couple of exhibition matches over the weekend.

On Sunday they battled the Metcalfe (House League 'A') Jets to a 0-0 draw in Metcalfe.

Both the Jets' Curtis Morrison and North Dundas goalie Robert Lacelle turned in steller efforts between the pipes keeping a wide open game scoreless.

In Chesterville on Saturday, goalie Robert Lacelle skated as winger and center Kyle Stewart tended the nets as the Pucks blanked the NGS Braves 4-0.

Trenton McBain scored from Robert Lacelle for a 1- 0 lead at 8:43 of period one.

Lacelle then made it 2-0 with help from Tyler Burke at 4:27 of the second.

Patrick Pomainville connected with Brett Bird and Geoff Paas at 2:29 of the second round to make it 3-0.

Lacelle hit for his second of the match with 1:42 left in the second to complete the scoring. Ben Mead and Mike Tutton set him up.

Vipers pick up third win of season

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

LONG SAULT - The Long Sault Vipers picked up their third win of the season when they downed the Vankleek Hill Cougars 6-4 in last week's Eastern Ontario Junior 'C' Hockey League action.

The Vipers and Cougars opened up the contest early in the first period when they traded singles for a 1-1 game with 19:08 still left in the period.

Chris Proulx fired in the Vipers first goal of the game when he finished off a play started by Tim Graham.

Cory McAllister dumped in the go-ahead goal at 7:40 of the round for the 2-1 lead going into the second stanza. Brad Nelson and Jim Grey were also in on the play.

Vankleek Hill knotted the score at two apiece in the opening minutes of the second round only to have the Vipers once again quickly retaliate and take the lead.

McAllister (unassisted) put the Vipers up by one at 13:05 of the round followed by Proulx, from Shaun Portras who dumped in Long Sault's fourth goal of the contest.

The Cougars and Vipers each put two more into the back of the net for a 6-4 final in favor of the Vipers.

Jason Prieur, from Lee Charlebois and Mike Scott drilled in Long Sault's fifth goal at 17:34 of the third.

With 3:07 left until the final buzzer Long Sault's Prieur fed Scott the Vipers sixth and final goal of the game.

STARS 8 - VIPERS 3

A single in each of the thee periods was all the Vipers could put past Casselman netminder Stephane Adam as the Stars downed the Vipers 8-3.

Nick Lebrun and Chris Proulx fired in first and second round singles to be within one (3-2) of the Stars going into the final round.

Five unanswered goals by Casselman gave the Vipers the 8-3 loss.

Proulx fired in Long Sault's third goal of the game at 15:54 of the third period.

Morrisburg Lions hand Midget 'A' Demons a 5-2 UCMHL loss

CHESTERVILLE - Carl VanBeilen, Morrisburg captain, scored a pair of goals leading the Midget 'A' Lions to a 5-2 UCMHL victory over the North Dundas Demons last Sunday afternoon.

VanBeilen's first goal, set up by Rick Hess and Rob Merpaw at 7:01 of the second period, proved to be the winner.

Morrisburg led 2-0 after a period and 3-1 after two frames.

North Dundas got their first goal at 12:38 of the second period when Andrew Carkner beat Daryl Burns on a play started by Ryan Filion.

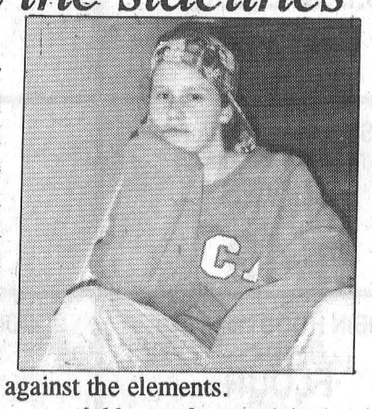
Andrew Taillefer cut the North Dundas deficit to 3-2 when he cashed in on a feed from Ryan Swerdferger at 14:41 of the third period but that was as close as the Demons would get.

Brian Slowey got the start in the North Dundas cage.

The Demons stand at 1-2-0 since moving up to the Midget 'A' Division. Their lone victory was a 6-4 decision over the Lions in Morrisbrug last week.

Sitting on the sidelines

With Sandy With a Y



Well, it is time for my annual winter whine. I hate it, hate it, hate it!! The days of frolicking about in the sunshine, mountain biking the Gatineaus and chugging back a cool one after a hard days work have been replaced with a game of mortal combat. Humans against the elements.

No longer can you run to your neighbours for a quick chat in your scivies, now you have to spend 10-15 minutes suiting up for the 'great outdoors'.

My foot the outdoors are 'great'. You can't tell how anything looks because your vision is so bluured from your teeth chattering 90 miles an hour.

Admittedly I have yet to try downhill skiing - the only thing people seem to like about winter - but with my oh-so-awesome coordinational skills, I'd be slapped with a deforestation fine for taking out the trees along the ski hill.

This will be my second winter dealing with Eastern Ontario's sub-survival temperatures and I'm telling you right now I ain't looking forward to it.

It wasn't until last year that I purchased my first-ever pair of wool socks and long johns. Now they have become the staple of my winter waredrobe. You must remember I come from the banana belt of Ontario where -10C is a deep freeze and a snowfall of one foot causes major havoc and school closures. People only buy winter boots because they are fashionable, not practicle.

I wanna go home, or wintering along the shore of Miami will do nicely too.

So if anybody is looking for me during the next six months you can find me hibernating at home with my non-cable bearing but four channel receiving TV and my Sega system.

The boys playing town league wondered if I had some tips to improve their game. Yes - please don't hit the photographer.
