Winchester Ladies Provide Furnishings

LOCAL BRANCH OF THE CANADIAN LEGION HAVE NOW A VERY COMFORTABLE AND COSY ROOM

The old trueism, that when one is seized with a good idea, proceed at once to have it executed, otherwise you may either forget or neglect your good intentions, was promptl acted on by a few of the ladies of the town during the past week. When one well known warveteran, and always an active figure in looking after the welfare of returned soldiers and their families, Mr. Nelson Dixon, made known to a few that the local Legion had secured the room over Mr. Duncan's Meat, Fruit and Vegetable Shop, and intended to have them put in some kind of order so that the Legion would have a suitable place to meet, a few of our town ladies determined that the "boys" would not be neglected, and they met at the home of Mrs. J. H. Ross, where an executive committee was organized consisting of Mesdames J. H. Ross, A. Sweet, R. M. Scott, R. D. Preston, W. J. Cass and Miss Ida Gardner, and they then and there decided that the present was an opportune time for the ladies of the town to show in some slight way their gratitude to the boys who went overseas, and to voice their appreciation in a tangible way. After considerable discussion, it was decided that a canvass of the town be made and every lady, (except veterans' wives or widows) be asked to contribute 25c each toward furnishing the rooms for the Legion. The town was divided into districts, and each of the above executive under the convenorship of Mrs. Ross, was assigned their position to canvass. They at once got to work, and within a week the canvass was made, and the result so satisfactory that this afternoon the ladies who contributed are invited to inspect the rooms and the work done. The interior of the large room has been re-painted and re-papered. Two new and bright congoleum rugs cover a thoroughly scrubbed floor. Four or five tables and a dozen or more chairs are a part of the furnishings. But the ladies of Winchester never do anything by halves, so they decided to purchase hangings for the windows, and a half dozen of good old "Union Jacks" to decorate the walls. They have also added some electric fixtures which were donated, and when the Legion formally opens their room to-morrow (Friday) night they will have all the comforts of a club room, and furnished and decorated with that dainty touch that only a woman can give to a room. The boys are deserving of all this attention, and far more, and while the work falls on the shoulders of a few, those who had the work in hand were most graciously and cheerfully received in their canvass for funds to purchase the furnishings that have made the room of the Winchester branch of the Canadian Legion a very inviting and charming resort for those returned soldiers who desire to spend an evening there. The paper for the room was donated by Mr. Hy. Bessin, and other donations in the way of pictures of the King or Prince of Wales would be gladly received, also of any citizen having an easy chair that will seat a good stout veteran, to spare, there is no reason why he should not send it to the room. The committee of ladies desire to express their sincere thanks for the splendid response to this appeal, there being over 140 contributions in money. The members of the Legion will no doubt express their appreciation in their own way. A list of all those who contributed is now posted in the room.

LOCAL SQUAD LOSES

The local softball team met its second straight defeat in the County Softball League when Morrisburg took a close decision, 8-5, at the School Grounds last evening. Conservatives Nominate Hon. George H. Challies

Large Convention Held At Hallville Yesterday

Mr. J. A. Sanderson Withdraws In Favour of Present Dundas Member. Stirring Address Delivered By Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General For Province Of Ontario.

All roads led to Hallville Consolidated School yesterday afternoon when the big Conservative Convention was held to select a candidate to represent that Party in the Ontario Legislature. The crowd began to gather long before one o'clock, although the Convention was not to open until 2.30. The spacious grounds were parked with hundreds of cars from every direction of the two counties, and so far as outward appearances went, the best of feelings prevailed, but there was a subtle feeling about as to which candidate each delegate was inclined. So far as Dundas was concerned, there was no doubt, as "Challies" was the label pinned on every delegate.

Big, jovial Jim Sanderson was there rallying his stalwarts, and passing the day's greetings with all he met. Mr. Challies did not arrive until about 2.00 o'clock, accompanied by Mrs. Challies and a few friends. He was warmly greeted by his supporters. Hon. Mr. Price did not arrive until shortly after 2.30 thus delaying the meeting some, but the good-natured, and enthusiastic crowd was patient, and gave the Attorney-General a warm welcome as he came into the hall.

Mr. Sanderson Withdraws

No time was lost in calling the gathering to order, when it was announced by the chairman, Mr. James Everetts, of Iroquois, that a special meeting of the Grenville & Dundas executives was to be held immediately to discuss certain important matters.

Following the short meeting, Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General of Ontario, announced that Mr. James Sanderson had withdrawn his name from before the convention in favour of Hon. George H. Challies, in the interest of the Conservative party. The speaker added that, by his action, Mr. Sanderson had made a considerable sacrifice, and one which would be long remembered by the Conservatives of Ontario.

Official nomination followed, when it was moved by Mr. Aaron Sweet, of Winchester, and seconded by Mr. Eli Merkley, of Matilda, that Hon. Geo. H. Challies, Provincial Secretary and Minister of Game & Fisheries, be the Liberal-Conservative candidate for the riding of Grenville-Dundas in the oncoming election.

Mr. Claude Ferguson, of North Augusta, was also nominated, but withdrew in favour of Mr. Challies, after expressing his appreciation to his mover and seconder for their consideration.

Mr. Challies Speaks

Hon. George H. Challies was then called upon to address the gathering, and was given a tremendous ovation. He for his kindly gesture in withdrawing voiced his appreciation to Mr. Sanderson from the field and stated that it was but a further evidence of the outstanding character of the man.

Turning to provincial matters, Mr. Challies remarked that prior to the last provincial election he had pledged himself to his constituents to undertake two avenues of endeavour: one being the furtherance of the work on Highway No. 31 and the other, the promotion of the St. Lawrence Development plan. Progress had been made in both and still further works in this respect were to be achieved.

Mr. Hepburn opposed the scheme, of the St. Lawrence River Development, stated the speaker, as he thought the question needed to be studied more thoroughly. On this score alone the Liberal leader should be condemned by the people of Eastern Ontario, he continued, for the project was undoubtedly the greatest Hydro electrical undertaking on the North American continent, with subsequent increase in manufacturing. Industrial development would gradually float eastward in Ontario until the St. Lawrence river became the business street of the Dominion.

Mr. James Sanderson, who was next called upon, was given a hearty ovation by the gathering. He stated that he felt his position keenly on this occasion and added that he had withdrawn because the Conservative party was bigger than any man and that he did not wish to do anything which would reflect upon the party. He pointed out that his withdrawal had not been actuated by offers of a position from the Government nor by any favour whatsoever. His thoughts were on the party as a whole and the welfare of its cause. He concluded by putting forward a stirring appeal to the Conservatives of Grenville-Dundas to support Hon. Mr. Challies in the coming election.

Mr. A. C. Casselman, K.C., M.P., spoke briefly, remarking that the Liberal cause in the province had received a decided blow by Mr. Sanderson's fine action. The Opposition ,he said, had looked to this Convention as a possible starting point in their campaign against the Henry Government, but by Mr. Sanderson's withdrawal, were doomed to disappointment. He added an appeal for united action on the part of the Conservatives of Grenville-Dundas in electing Hon. Mr. Challies by a large majority.

Attorney-General's Address

Hon. Col. W. H. Price, the principle speaker at the Convention, drew great applause as he rose to address the gathering. He pointed out the fact that from Grenville-Dundas had come two of the great Provincial Premiers, Sir James Whitney and Hon. G. H. Ferguson, and added that, in the present case, the Conservatives in the riding had lived up to their traditional reputation in uniting their forces against Mitchell Hepburn and Liberalism.

Turning his attention to the coming election, the Attorney-General stated that the Premier was looking to the farming communities for wholehearted support at the polls on June 19th.

The Conservative party had taken office, he continued, at a time when the province was in the throws of a financial and economic depression, a situation that was world-wide and not confined to any single country. As a consequence, the Conservative party in Ontario was not prepared to accept the responsibility for unemployment and distress among the people of the province, and anyone who endeavoured to lay the blame for present conditions at the door of the Henry Government proved themselves to be absurd.

Dealing with the charges of increasing the provincial debt and of being extravagant, Hon. Mr. Price pointed out that relief projects and loans to farmers had resulted in increased expenditures by the Government. Substantial loans had been made to Hydro with the object of obtaining better rates for the users of electric power. He demanded to know if any in the audience would desire such expenditures curtailed at such a time.

Mr. Hepburn, he pointed out, was in favour of private ownership and development rather than ownership by the people and for this reason, opposed the St. Lawrence Development project—a golden opportunity to increase the importance of Eastern Ontario as an industrial centre.

Land development, said Mr. Price, had also been promoted by the Government with the view to having Canadian people settle our own country.

He demanded to know what steps would have been taken by the Liberals throughout the depression, had they been in power, and how far they would have been willing to co-operate with the Federal Government. He challenged Mr. Hepburn to point out what beneficial legislation he had introduced into the Federal House in the eight years he had been a member, even when the Liberal party had been in power.

Neither Mr. Hepburn nor any of his followers had a record that could compare in any detail with that of Premier George S. Henry. The speaker traced briefly the Premier's climb in the field of provincial politics from the County Council through to twenty years as a member of the Legislature, without a blemish of any kind. Honesty and just dealing had been the key-notes of Hon. Mr. Henry's career and on June 19th the speaker added, faithful service would be rewarded by the Government's return to power.

In conclusion, Col. Price asked that the electors read carefully the speeches of the Governmental leaders in the papers and above all to use their votes and influence in electing Hon. Geo. H. Challies in Dundas-Grenville by a sweeping majority.

SEGUIN CONTESTS RUSSELL RIDING

Easily defeating the only other candidate in the field, Charles A. Seguin, K. C., Ottawa barrister and for the past five years representative of Russell County in the Ontario legislature, was Tuesday night given the nomination as Conservative standard bearer at the convention of the Liberal-Conservative Association of Russell County, held in the Armouries, Metcalfe. The vote recorded was Mr. Seguin, 192; John E. Woods, former deputy reeve of Osgoode township, 44. Following the ballot results, Mr. Woods moved the convention's choice be made unanimous.

MORRISBURG GIRL HURT

Becoming terrified and jumping from the car in which she was riding, Miss Maidie Allison, of Morrisburg, was seriously injured in the east end of Morrisburg Tuesday morning of last week. Miss Allison was with her sister when she attempted to make too short a turn from Riverside Drive to Main Street. In backing up, Miss Maidie believed the car to be going over a nearby embankment and leaped from the machine. She was carried to a house nearby and Dr. John S. Goodfellow, of Morrisburg, was called, giving medical treatment and finding Miss Allison severely injured.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

On Sunday evening a memorial service for the late T. Allan Hicks was held in the United Church, Metcalfe, which was filled to capacity with friends and acquaintances from the community. The service was in charge of Rev. Dr. G. C. Gaukrodger, who delivered an impressive address in which he paid fitting tribute to the deceased. The music for the service was in charge of the choir of the United Church of which Mr. Hicks had been the leader. There were also several beautiful floral tributes placed in the church.

Weed Inspectors Hold Meeting

Mr. A. H. Martin, Director of the Crops and Market Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and Mr. John D. McLeod, District Weed Inspector for Eastern Ontario, were the principal speakers at the Annual meeting of the Weed Inspectors of Dundas and West Stormont at Chesterville on Saturday, May 26th. Both speakers informed the meeting that a more strict enforcement of the Weed Control Act would be asked for this year.

"We can never hope," said Mr. McLeod "to eradicate such weeds as Mustard, for example, but we do hope to keep out of uninfested areas newer weeds, such as Wild Carrot, which is giving considerable trouble in Western Ontario."

The idea of the Act is to control weeds, and the importance of the Weed Control programme was borne out by the statement that the annual loss from weeds in the province of Ontario is $18,000,000.00, or 12 times our loss from animal disease, 13 times our loss from plant disease, and 3 times our loss from insect pests of plants. Mr. Martin made reference to a Bill that had been prepared for presentation to the next session of the Legislature, reducing the Weed Seed Content of feed grains brought in from the west. At present up to 3 per cent. Weed Seed Content was allowable in feed grains, and the meeting concurred with Mr. Martin in the opinion that more stringency should be exercised with regard to feed grains coming into the province to be fed on the farms. The danger from outside sources of this kind was clearly demonstrated by the experiment where a horse was fed 2 lbs. of screenings for 7 days and then manure collected for one night and mixed in with clean greenhouse soil. Twenty-seven days later 1280 weeds has grown including Lamb's Quarters, Fox Tail, Pig Weed Bind Weeds and Mustard.

The general opinion of the meeting was that farmers, as well as people living in villages would be found willing to co-operate with the Weed Inspectors this year in a stronger effort to curtail the huge annual loss from weeds.

Weed inspectors appointed by the various municipalities for 1934 are as follows: Matilda Tp., J. J. Payne, Brinston; Mountain Tp., Robt. Mulholland, South Mountain; Williamsburg Tp., G. F. Barkley, Elma; Winchester Tp., H. H. Empey, Morewood; Finch Tp., Isaih Ouderkirk; Osnabruck Tp., Stanley Bush. For the villages, they are as follows: Chesterville, Peter LeClair; Iroquois, J. E. Gregory; Morrisburg, Wm. Heagle; Winchester, Geo. Barkley; Finch, A. Beckstead.

IN MY GARDEN

There's work to do in gardens.
There's sowing of the seeds;
There's digging and there's planning,
And there's pulling up the weeds.
It's work that has no ending,
There are things that may be done
From coolness of the morning
Till setting of the sun.

And working in the garden,
There's time to think a lot;
And somehow life seems simpler,
When working on the plot;
It seems to me like gardening,
You reap what flowers you sow,
And find a deal of pleasure
In helping things to grow.

—Lily Dean.

A WISH

O, to be always cheerful,
Whenever the skies are gray,
Trusting, instead of fearful,
When clouds obscure the way.

Able to scatter sunshine
Into the darkest room,
When e'en death may be lurking,
Scatt'ring some of the gloom.

To radiate God's presence
In many little ways,
A smile, or a word of courage,
Bright'ning the darkest days.

Thus, would I spend my moments,
Easing somebody's pain;
Then when my day is over,
I had not lived in vain.

—Maude Fox.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

Old Ragson Tatters from Brushville says: "There are two kins of people good and bad. The classifying is usually done by the good."

The nations of Europe to-day are not a League. Each is guarding his own backyard lest his bone be stolen.—David Lloyd George.

"Hereafter, let us not forget that great depressions follow great wars."—Carrie Chapman Catt.

"I think in another ten years we'll see some remarkable development in flying."—Henry Ford.

"I have solved all the world's problems time and time again, and still they go on being insoluble."—George Bernard Shaw.

THE ROAD TO HAPPINESS

The road to daily happiness
Is not so hard to find;
You walk ahead serenely
And leave your cares behind.

A word of cheer upon your lips,
A ready hand to give,
A smiling face, a snatch of song,
Will help you well to live.

The love you give to others,
The good that you may do,
The helping hand you proffer,
Will bring happiness to you.

The road to daily happiness
Is not so hard to find;
It's what you do for others
That brings true peace of mind.

—Grenville Kleiser.

UNASSUMING

When you see a wise young woman
Self-possessed and plainly clad
There is something in her spirit
Treasure-like, that makes us glad,
For she lives above the fashions,
Far above the giddy whirl,
Just a sort of earth-born treasure
In this unassuming girl.

Spirits fraught with high endeavour
And a purpose firm and bold
Though with waves around her rolling
Firmly does her anchor hold.
Over and above surroundings
Is the life that she can live,
Just indeed the richest treasure
That the world to-day can give.

OLD FRIENDS

We just shake hands at meeting
With many that come nigh.
We nod the head in greeting
To many that go by.
But we welcome through the gateway
Our few old friends and true;
Then hearts leap up and straightway
There's open house for you,
Old Friends,
Wide-open house for you.

The surface will be sparkling,
Let but a sunbeam shine;
But in the deep lies darkling
The true life of the wine.
The froth is for the many,
The wine is for the few;
We keep the best for you,
Unseen, untouched of any,
Old friends,
The very best for you.

The many cannot know us,
They only pace the strand,
Where at our worst we show us,
The waters thick with sand;
But out beyond the leaping
Dim surge, 'tis clear and blue,
And there, old friends, we're keeping
A waiting calm for you,
Old friends,
A sacred calm for you.

—G. Massey.

MISTAKES OF LIFE

To expect to set up our own standard of right and wrong and expect everybody to conform to it.

To try to measure the enjoyment of others by our own.

To expect uniformity of opinion in this world.

To look for judgment and experience in youth.

To endeavour to mould all dispositions alike. Not to yield to unimportant trifles.

To look for perfections in our own actions.

To worry ourselves and others about what cannot be remedied.

Not to alleviate if we can all that needs alleviation.

Not to make allowances for the weaknesses of others.

To consider everything impossible that we cannot ourselves perform.

To believe only what our finite minds can grasp.

To live as if the moment, the time, the day were so important that it would live forever.

A real man never talks about what the world owes him, the happiness he deserves, the chance he ought by right to have, and all that. All he claims is the right to live and play the man.

SENTENCED FOR BIGAMY

Elmer Jackson, 28, bigamist, was sentenced by County Judge Henry J. Kimball at Watertown, N. Y., on Saturday to a term of not less than a year and three months nor more than two years at hard labor in the state prison at Attica. While having a wife and five-year-old child in Morrisburg, Jackson early in April sent himself a telegram to Watertown from Ogdensburg, signing his brother-in-law's name to it telling 'himself' that his wife was dead. Then he hitch hiked to Watertown to get the telegram and married 18-year-old Edith Louise Carson.

THE UNITED CHURCH

The messages of Rev. A. W. Seaton on Sunday were very much enjoyed by those who had the privilege of hearing him. He gave a very interesting talk to the children on saying: "I think I can," when meeting difficult tasks. Speaking from Deut. 2:3 he said the wanderings of the children of Israel have been made a symbol of our own wanderings. If they had refused to go north we never would have had the story of the Holy Land. Are we not also pilgrims—always advancing? Our great concern should be to make the end bravely. We ought not to be satisfied to stand still in our spiritual experience. We should face the hardships. The Promised Land is still ahead. The Christian Church is called to fight to-day. The Church is judged by the lives of its members. He urged its members to more Christ-like living.

John 14:8 and 9 was the evening text. This request of Philip's revealed the failure of the disciples to understand Jesus. When Jesus spoke to them of spiritual things it was a new language, and to-day people are in precisely the same condition. Without an intimate knowledge of Jesus we can never attain to the highest. In closing Mr. Seaton said: "May we know Him as the Lord of our life, and as One who can give joy and peace and then through us others will come to know Jesus, and we will have the great joy of winning souls for Him.

The choir sang an anthem at the morning service. A male choir gave wonderful leadership in song at the evening service, contributing three special numbers, one being a solo by Mr. Reid, of Ormond.

Next Sunday evening it is expected there will be a ladies' choir.

THE LATE JAMES KEARNS

Final tribute was paid the memory of James Kearns, a well-known citizen of Chesterville, at the funeral service held last week, where solemn requiem high mass was sung by Rev. Father P. J. Kearney.

Born in Winchester township 65 years ago, Mr. Kearns married Miss Minnie Gibbons about 30 years ago. He had spent all his life farming in the Chesterville district where his passing is mourned by a large circle of friends as well as three daughters, four sisters and one brother, all of Chesterville.

No Drafts in the New Ford V-8

Clear-vision ventilation with no exterior parts to obstruct view

A new, better system of ventilation to prevent drafts, with many advantages over old-fashioned types.

No exterior parts to obstruct vision. No fogging of windshield and windows. No "roar" of air. No splash from rain. Effective at all speeds and temperatures—winter and summer.

Here's another big point—You can open the windshield and cowl ventilator in the New Ford V-8 to get fresh air as needed. That means cooler driving than with ventilation systems that won't let you open the windshield.

BORDEAUX DUST

In combating flea beetles, or in treating potatoes for insect enemies, a Bordeaux dust may be used in place of the regular poisoned Bordeaux spray. Such dusts can be purchased from all commercial spray companies ready mixed, or they may be prepared on the premises provided a good mixing machine is available. The following is the standard formula for Bordeaux dust: Copper sulphate (dehydrated, and ground very fine) 12 pounds; hydrated lime, 80 lbs.; arsenate of lime, 8 pounds.

DRYING-OFF COWS

The most economical period for a cow to be dry is six weeks. Some cows, however, are very persistent milkers and feeds is a great help in drying them off. too quickly for fear of causing udder trouble. There are three methods commonly used in drying-off cows namely, (1) incomplete milking, (2) milking less frequently—usually once a day, and (3) ceasing to milk altogether. Experiments have shown that the last method is the best. Cows can be dried off the rapidly, and without any ill effects to the udder, by ceasing to milk altogether even when these are giving up to 20 lbs. of milk per day. Putting cows on dry is the best. Cows can be dried off

O. A. C. FARM AND HOME WEEK
JUNE 20, 21, 22.

It has been found advisable this year to limit the usual Farm and Home Week program at the O. A. C. to the three days, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The College is prepared, however, to entertain as many farm guests as usual and all farm folks who can make it possible to get away for a day or more will receive the same hearty welcome as usual and they will be given as fine an opportunity to look over the buildings and grounds, to inspect special exhibits in the various departments and to vious years.
get up-to-date information as in pre-

The whole program will be carried through on Standard Time with the usually cafeteria lunch at noon and good accommodation for those who wish to remain for two or three days. There will also be an excellent evening entertainment in Memorial Hall on Wednesday and Thursday evenings for those who remain over.

LATE HATCHES NOT PROFITABLE

There is generally a tendency at this season of the year to continue hatching operations, especially if the early hatches have been disappointing. Although it is not always the case, generally speaking, it is not advisable to continue hatching heavy breeds after April and the lighter breeds about the middle of May, if they are to be brought into production by October—the most desirable month to insure a good yield during the season of peak prices.

If the stock cockerels are now to be removed from the mating pens—and this practice is most desirable when the eggs are to be marketed—then they should be fed sparingly a normal ration not too rich in animal feed. They will be kept in better condition if they can be given the liberty of a grass range some distance away from the hens, and fed a limited quantity of grain and a light dry mash in which the meat meals should not exceed ten per cent.

Cannibalism is rampant at this season of the year in some flocks of chickens. Although this trouble is usually the result of injudicious feeding, it is frequently caused by over-crowding the brooder, lack of feeding hopper space, or poor ventilation in the brooder. The remedy is the correction of one or all of these faults.

"DODDER" A MENACE

A valuable circular on "Dodder" described as a new parasitic menace to clover and alfalfa, has just been issued by the Department and is available to farmers. It is an annual weed of European origin and is usually found in Red Clover and occasionally in Alfalfa fields. It is parasitic in nature, possesses no leaves and derives its nourishment through suckers attached to the host plant.

The circular gives a complete description of the weed and declares that Ontario's clover seed export business, valued at half a million dollars, will be seriously threatened if Dodder is allowed to continue in this province. It suggests that as soon as Dodder is noticed, the infested patches should be mowed and burned. Badly infested fields should be cut early for hay and the land plowed. Great care should be taken to secure clover and alfalfa seed free from Dodder.

"Dodder can be eliminated by a strenuous five-year program of co-operative effort," it is stated. "No clover field known to contain Dodder should be saved for seed. Every purchaser of clover seed should insure himself of securing Dodder-free seed by first having a sample analysed. This can be done by forwarding a two-ounce representative sample to the Dominion Seed Branch, 86 Collier St. Toronto.

BEECHER'S READINESS

Henry Ward Beecher, the famous American minister, would constantly open letters addressed to him at his church during the service. The contents, he would read out to his congregation, often basing his discourse upon them. One day, he opened a letter in front of the worshippers, and found that it only contained the word "Fool." He read it out, as was his custom; remarking afterwards, "I've often known a man write a letter and forget to sign his name; but this is the only instance I have ever known of a man signing his name and forgetting to write the letter."

SUCCESS

Success is speaking words of praise,
In cheering other people's ways,
In doing just the best you can
With every task and every plan.
It's silence when your speech would hurt
Politeness when your neighbour's curt;
It's deafness when the scandal flows
And sympathy with other's woes;
It's loyalty when duty calls,
It's courage when disaster falls,
It's patience when the hours are long.
It's found in laughter and in song
It's in the silent time of prayer,
In happiness and in despair,
In all of life and nothing less
We find the thing we call success.

I read all the signs in subways when I take an unfrequented route. No transportation system has ever succeeded in so thoroughly mixing my sense of directions . . . Must have come from the end of the line an hour away in Brooklyn . . . Central Park was crowded with happy kids at play on Saturday. Too bad it's so far from many of the tenements. . . . That fountain in Rockefeller Center plaza—I don't like it. Why they did it in shiny gold is beyond me. But the green of the garden is a relief in that section of nothing but gaunt granite and concrete . . . First warm weather filled the highways to the beaches Sunday, and some optimists went swimming in the Atlantic. June third was my earliest last year and even then I came out numb . . . A woman caught between lines of traffic in the middle of Broadway. She's so frightened that she shakes her arms and stomps her feet like an angry little girl. I've felt that way, too. . . . The ex-Vice Consul wore a cutaway Sunday. I wonder if he rode the subway up to 68th Street. It's much faster than a cab. But you do—oh dear yes—so lose caste!

A New York attorney, Lloyd N. Scott, recently proposed an International Grand Jury composed of average citizens of every civilized nation. In his address at Hunter College in New York, Mr. Scott explained that such a body would express the majority will of citizens everywhere and would be empowered to subpoena officials of aggressor nations endangering world peace, and to make indictments to the World Court which would render judgments and designate the nations to enforce these . . . All one needs to be certain about the majority will is to look over a car full of New York subway riders. They may be brilliant or stupid, but put them into an organized body and ask them what they want. Without propaganda to run emotions to high pitch, you know the answer will be, peace!

The Family DOCTOR
by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

ARGUMENTS

I HAVE learned to shun contention so far as possible; arguments never get us anywhere. The doctor may give orders, but not argue.

Can you pardon a story? Well, three very pious old Monks lived in a cave away in the far East. They craved blameless lives. They tried to avoid even speaking to each other, in the fear of uttering sin. One day a brother took a stroll outdoors. At the silent evening meal he reported that he had seen a woman, riding a white horse.

Glances were exchanged, but nobody said anything. One year later at an evening meal, one of the old brothers said "You were wrong,—the woman rode on a BLACK horse." More glances—more silence.

Another year rolled around. The third Monk decided to move to different quarters; he packed his few belongings and set out down the mountain-trail. "Hey," cried one of his mates. "Where you going? Come back, brother."

"Can't stand it in there," came the reply—"too damn much argument!"

I'm not arguing that active men, women and children need good breakfasts; I'm stating absolute fact.

I'm not contending that you should eat a good round noon-meal; I'm demanding that you do.

I'm not debating with you the evil of the six o'clock dinner. I'm telling you that it will shorten your life if you persist in this abuse of your digestive organs—because I know.

I don't want to drive any saint out of the cave of his Monkhood; I just want my readers to act sensible and obey good advice.

Because it is my business to talk for health—and consequent happiness.

DEPARTMENT OF HIGHWAYS
MOTOR VEHICLES BRANCH

AN OPEN LETTER TO PEDESTRIANS:

Are motorists right when they say you are more than half to blame?

While figures cannot be depended upon to tell the whole truth, last year's accident records leave no room for doubt that there are reckless walkers as well as reckless drivers.

Last year 2,821 pedestrians were killed or injured in Ontario in automotive accidents. Many of these persons came to grief while violating a simple rule of safety . . . crossing a street between intersections . . . crossing diagonally at intersections . . . crossing against traffic signals . . . "hitching" . . . or coming from behind parked vehicles. Of the total number, 1,107 were children playing in the street.

Records show that in many of these cases the driver never had a chance. Accidents happened while he was doing his best to drive safely!

This department is more deeply interested in making the streets and highways of Ontario safe, especially for children, than in any other public duty. The conscientious motorist has been appealed to in many ways; several of his privileges have been restricted in an effort to make life safe in traffic for all. I know that this appeal to the pedestrian will find ready response among those who walk more often than they drive, and especially in the hearts of fathers and mothers of little children.

Will you co-operate? Will you help to stem the tide of needless bereavement and suffering by observing the simple rules of safe walking that make all the difference between safety and the jeopardy of life and limb? And you parents — will you not give your children a chance by teaching them the need of care for their own safety?

WINCHESTER'S OLD HOME WEEK

There is evidence on every side and from every quarter that Winchester's Old Home Week during the first week in August will be the greatest event in the history of this community, and already hundreds, who will claim this section as their place, or had lived some years of their early life here, are planning to be present, renew acquaintances, take part in the festivities and enjoy a re-union and happy week that will send them home feeling, not only that the time had been well spent, but most profitable and pleasant. It is surprising the number of people who, having heard of Winchester's Old Home Week, desire to be present on that occasion, and meet with many whom they had long since forgotten. Speaking with a medical doctor in a distant city recently, he expressed his keenest desire to be present on the occasion, and said that it made him feel young again to just think of what a happy time it would be.

Our citizens, too, are imbued with the "Old Home Week" spirit, and extra touches are being put on homes, and surroundings, the paint brush is busy, and in every way the town is being made as attractive as possible.

The work of entertaining the visitors is no light one, and is causing the various committees to put forth their best efforts. The old time parade will be one that will be of unquestionable interest, and even a team of oxen, and the old ox cart, are being looked up for the occasion.

It is the old Winchester spirit coming back. The several years of depression seemed to have crushed that spirit to a certain extent, but like the perennial plant and shrub, even though it has come through a trying season, there is life there yet, and it is struggling through, and will soon be in all its glorious bloom again.

Every friend of this community, for miles around, is as interested in the "Winchester Old Home Week," and its success as can be, and that is the way we want them all to feel. It is more a Winchester community home week than anything, and that is the way the Committee want it. Let everyone join hands to celebrate Winchester Community Old Home Week, August 4 to 8, 1934.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS HENCE

One often wonders what the world and civilization will be like one hundred years hence. Not that it matters to any now living, but there is that natural curiosity about the future, and so many are working overtime to bring about changes according to their thinking, that to the staid philosopher it is an interesting and even a fascinating subject. A noted physician and scientist speaking at a medical convention a few days ago made such startling predictions that it made one wish they had not yet been born, because in one hundred years from now humans will be immune from all contagious diseases; the term of life will be extended by one third; there will be no such things as railroads, and smoke will not trouble us. In fact, there will not be the necessity of preparing meals, or washing dishes or clothes. We will travel at a tremendous rate, not on the ground, but through the air, and a trip to Europe or China will be calculated only in hours. Life is also to be prolonged by one third. It is a long look to one who has reached the three score years to-day, but the past thirty years have so revolutionized things that future progress will be either more astounding or there will be a breaking up of civilization that will perhaps set this world back a few hundred years. From the present stata of the world, and the war preparations, and rumors of war; its social and financial discrepancies; its seeming lack of religion influence, and the craze for excitement and pleasure, it does not look as though the future promised stability and endurance. Science may produce much, invention may revolutionize our ways of travel and work, but there is, nevertheless, that something in the mind and conscience of the thinking man which convinces him that after all, and notwithstanding all modern discoveries, there are more lessons to be learned, more wisdom to be gained, and a better existence for all, if the records and cardinal teachings of that old book, the Bible, are more closely followed.

THE PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS

There is not much excitement over the provincial elections. In fact the only occupation of most of those actively engaged in electioneering is to engage in the old-time pastime of throwing oratorical mud at each other, in the hope that it may have some effect on the election. It does. It has the effect of making the electorate more and more disgusted with a party system that can only condemn its opponent, and never unite in upholding a good cause that might come from the opposition. And that is the way you hear men talk on the street to-day, that is the way they are being gradually convinced in their thinking. We know that when election day comes the vast majority of them will go to the poll and vote the usual party ticket. But each time they do it, they say within themselves, "Never again will I be such a dumb fool."

The present election is an unusually quiet one. We know that there has been a great deal of platform shouting, and the dear old Toronto Globe seems to have gone entirely off its head, but otherwise, the people seem calm enough. There are two old sayings that might well be emphasized just now. One is "Leave well-enough alone," and "Never trade horses when crossing a stream." Think it over.

RESURRECTION DAYS

There are resurrection days. The man who is seeking public honors will have his past resurrected in a way that he could not believe possible. Premier George Henry, who in ordinary life is a progressive farmer, successful farmer, works on his farm in his overalls, is a kindly, friendly man to meet as a neighbour, would do anything in the world to help another out of a difficulty, has lived a good Christian life, been a Sunday School teacher for years, a church official, a community booster; a man who did not seek the position of Prime Minister, but had it hauled, or landed on his shoulders, is to-day being pictured by his political adversaries as a perfect fiend, grasping, scheming, plotting for political honours, and to cheat the people out of their just rights. It is so all over the province, and Liberals, as well as Conservatives, are having their past resurrected, re-decorated, placed on a pinnacle of oratorical effort, and then knocked over into the slum of political meanness. As Bobbie Burns wrote:

"O wad some power the giftie gie us,
To see oursels as others see us;
It wad frae monie a blunder free us, and foolish notion."

Hallville Celebrates

A WEEK OF ACTIVITIES IN CHURCH AND SOCIAL INTERCOURSE—REV. MR. MORRISON, PASTOR OF HALLVILLE UNITED CHURCH, IS A VERY BUSY MAN.

RECORD CROWDS WERE PRESENT ON SUNDAY LAST TO HEAR THE MODERATOR OF THE UNITED CHURCH

Last Sunday and all this week the good people of Hallville district are kept in great activity entertaining their friends and administering to them spiritual and physical wants. The chief attraction on Sunday was the presence at the morning and evening service of Right Rev. T. Albert Moore, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, and his messages of spiritual uplift, of hope in the everlasting, of inspiration to strive to live as real followers of Christ should live, were such that the people came from miles around, and long before the hours of service the old stone edifice, that has stood there at, or near, Hallville a signal of the early devotion and sacrifice of those who built it, and still stands a signal for all that Christ taught, and the duty of the people, was not only overcrowded, but hundreds were unable to gain admittance. As the Reeve of Mountain, Mr. Robt. Bryan, expressed it to the Press, they were the grandest, most inspiring, instructive and uplifting sermons ever preached in that church.

St. Andrew's Church at Hallville goes back to the year 1826, when the Presbyterians of the Townships of South Gower, Mountain and Oxford, the majority of whom were from the north of fair Erin's isle, and who had been members of the Irish Presbyterian Church there, were erected in a congregation by the Presbytery of Brockville. The records tell us that for several years the scattered pioneers were supplied with occasional religious services by one Dr. Robert Boyd, of Prescott. Worship services were held in the homes and barns of the settlers. How delighted they were, when, in response to a rap at the shanty door, they opened and found their spiritual leader seeking to come in under their roof, to break bread with them. These were days when a visit from the minister was truly appreciated. At these home and barn meetings, the parents presented their children for the holy rite of baptism, and often the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was dispensed with the dignity and solemnity which always characterized its observance in the highlands of Scotland and North of Ireland. The first public exercise of this nature, held in the Hallville district, was conducted in the month of June, 1834, in Robert Hyndman's barn, which stands a few hundred yards to the south of the stone church. In 1834, Rev. Joseph Anderson, a member of the General Synod of Ulster in Ireland, came to this new country in response to a call to become the minister of this widely scattered and totally un-organized congregation. He was inducted to the pastorate extending over three townships, on the 8th day of December, 1834. To the great moral and spiritual task in a sparsely settled country, Mr. Anderson, a pioneer adventurer and missionary of the Cross, brought strong character and a well-disciplined mind. Travelling on foot or horseback through the unbroken forest, at the dead of night, in the depth of the snows of Canadian winters, and through the slush of spring and fall weather, Mr. Anderson visited his flock in this very extensive territory, making himself known to his people, and sharing with them the difficulties and hardships which were their lot, as well as that of other pioneers.

In 1843, the Scottish Free Church question invaded the religious tranquility of Mr. Anderson's people. Much feeling was engendered. In consequence, on November 27th, 1843, the split came, and the doors of the church recently erected at South Gower were closed against Mr. Anderson. Six elders and about seventy families withdrawing from the Church of Scotland, leaving behind them with their former pastor, two elders and about sixty families in South Gower and Hallville, and forty families in Oxford. These were serious days for the scattered congregation, but as one looks back over the history of religion, some of the best and highest ideals and abiding virtues were born at the centre of church disputes and disruptions. Mr. Anderson and his ejected flock decided that the time was ripe for the building of a church at North Mountain. At a duly called meeting it was moved by William Hyndman, Elder, (father of the late Clarke Hyndman), and unanimously agreed, that a stone church be built in North Mountain. Immediately Robert Robert Hyndman came forward and offered the deed of a tract of land for the site of a church. The generous offer was accepted, and a committee appointed to superintend the construction of the building. A small stone church, the one that still stands immediately to the south of the new stone church, was erected, with all speed, and solemnly dedicated to the glory and worship of God. It is interesting to note that though the stones and building material was hauled to the ground from Winchester by the men of the church, the stone work cost only 20 pounds sterling—$100—which was payable in two installments, one in January 1847, the other in January 1848, and in farm products. Of course, GAS The minister's salary was $250 in cash was cheap and free of tax. The above extracts from the early records, give one an idea of the beginnings of St. Andrew's Church. The early folk had a mind to the thing of the Spirit. They built up their lives, homes and meagre fortunes under the shadow of the Church of God. During these years the congregation grew in strength and in numbers. Soon the little church was filled to its utmost capacity. Families came a long distance to the services. Family pews were an outstanding feature of this young congregation. They came in two-seated buggies, some in lumber waggons and other types of vehicles. Could these old pioneers, re-appear at the church on a Sunday morning and see the cars and the style, and the children sitting apart from their parents in church, and the number of people who accept the benefits of the church and religion, and yet refuse to attend services, and neglect the welfare of their immortal souls—how shocked they would be. They would ask God to send a man from the dead to speak to these neglectful ones, the word of the living God.

In the year 1880, under the leadership of Rev. Archibald Henderson, the new stone church was built. It was dedicated to the worship of God on the second Sunday of July in that year. At the dedication service, after an inspired sermon by a Dr. Smith, then of Kingston, Mr. Henderson appealed to the people for generous contributions to meet the financial obligations incurred in building the church. In less than fifteen minutes more money was subscribed than was necessary to liquidate the whole of the debt. How true is the phrase: "Give and it shall be given unto you." In other words, "With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again." Yes, very true, the quality or quantity of returns from investments is determined by the nature of the investment. In looking back over the community history, one observes that these people who made sacrifices, gave generously to God's cause, have not in consequence been poorer, but richer by far, both materially and morally and spiritually. Truly, St. Andrew's people can say: "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." St. Andrew's Church stands at the parting of the ways, at the centre of the Township of Mountain, as a monument to a sturdy people, and to the "Good Will of Him, whom Moses saw in the bush." Many a time the bush was burned, but it was not consumed.

During this coming month, St. Andrew's will celebrate one hundred years of unbroken history of christian service to this prosperous community. It is felt by some, who are wrongly informed, that St. Andrew's Church in 1925, when it entered union, violated the right to be the sole, organized congregation to represent Presbyterianism in the Hallville district. While we sympathize with these friends, we must not allow this misrepresentation to go unchallenged. In 1925 St. Andrew's congregation entered, with the Mother Church into the United Church of Canada. Therefore, it stands today in the direct line of Presbyterian succession and tradition and customs, and takes pride in its new opportunity to practice these, in hearty co-operation with congregations of other denominations which constitute our Great United Church of Canada. Therefore, St. Andrew's is within legal, moral and spiritual right to celebrate one hundred years of Presbyterianism, if you will.

DEATH OF FRANKIE WILSON

Once again the angel of death descended into Heckston community and called little Frankie Wilson, to the Great Beyond, though he was only a child of twelve years. He spent most of the time for the first few years of his life in the hospital, and from that time he has been able to be around part of the time but not to frolic and play and enjoy outdoor life as most children of his age, but with that everlasting smile and good nature he accepted life as it came and bore his suffering with the greatest of patience till on Friday night at 12.30 death came as a sweet relief. He was the son of Mr. Herb Wilson, of Heckston. The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon at the United Church, Heckston, at 2.30, and a large crowd gathered to pay their last respects. There are left to mourn his loss his father and step-mother, one brother, Herman; one sister, Helen, and also one half-brother, Duncan, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Wilson. The Rev. Mr. Tuttle had charge of the service and took for his text: Phil. Chapter 4, verse 11: "Not that I speak in want, for I have learned in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content found." The pall-bearers were six girls from the Sunday School, Doris Conley, Kathy Cowie, Helen Burnie, Ileen Workman, Lola and Rowena Beggs. The Sunday School marched into the church in a body. Frankie took a great interest in the Sunday School and was always there in his place when his health permitted him, and sometimes he recited long pieces at special services. A number of floral offerings bore testimony of the high esteem in which he was held and the sincere sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved friends in their hour of sorrow.

SORRELL—GRANT

A wedding of interest to many in the Winchester district took place on Tuesday of last week when Levi Sorrell and Miss Katherine Grant, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Grant, of Cardinal, were united in holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. Father James, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Grant left on a trip through New York State and on their return will take up residence in Cardinal.

dence in Cardinal. Mr. Sorrell is a well known hockey player and has made many appearances in the local arena with the Chesterville teams.

THE STORY SO FAR

Nancy Gordon trades herself in marriage for fifteen thousand dollars—the price of her family honor—and the freedom of her brother, Roddy, who stole, for a woman, that amount from the bank in which he works. Nancy, desperately in love with young Page Roemer, nevertheless agrees to a secret elopement with Dr. Richard Morgan, and with the money he loans her prevents Roddy's arrest. Dr. Morgan is loved by Helena Haddon, a sophisticated young married woman, but he adores Nancy and hopes to win her after marriage. In Washington they are married. Nancy is Richard's bride—and afraid of him.

Now go on with the story.

"Something terrible must have happened!" cried Angie, with a flash. "I—I know it!"

The major nodded, looking past her out of the window.

"There's King Haddon coming in here," he exclaimed. "Go let him in, Angie; I'm going to finish my breakfast Haddon or no Haddon! You can tell him so—if you've a mind to."

Angie, flushed and angry, hurried out of the room, glad to escape those shrewd old eyes.

Haddon would not wait in the library.

"Where's the major? At breakfast? I'll go right in—if you don't mind?" and he went, in spite of Angie's protests.

"Hello! Still at breakfast?" he said, as his eye fell on the old man's engrossed attitude.

The major started up, half rising from the table, but Haddon stopped him.

"Sit down, Lomax, I don't want to starve you," he laughed. "I can wait—Angie didn't want to let me in here anyway."

"I said I wouldn't see you until I'd finished. What's the matter at this hour anyway? I haven't robbed the bank."

Kingdon Haddon laughed. "Come in, Angie," he said as the girl tried to pass quickly through the room to the kitchen, "I haven't come to talk secrets and your uncle's crusty—I need protection!"

Angie stopped, smiling and flushed, and leaned on a chair, looking at him. She liked Kingdon Haddon but she was afraid of his wife; she could not have explained her fear of her, but it existed. Haddon was sitting on the edge of an empty serving-table.

"I came in to ask you a question, Lomax," he said irrelevently. "You know about such things. How much is Gordon's place worth now? I mean the house and grounds, including the river lot next yours."

Major Lomax pushed his chair back, felt in his pocket for his old pipe and began to fill it carefully.

"Near as I can figure—about six or seven thousand. The house needs repairs. Why?" he added, "What's hit him?"

Haddon looked absently out of the window. "How should I know? Family troubles, I reckon. The bank holds the mortgage. Helena doesn't want me to touch it. I don't know what to say about it yet."

Major Lomax rose and began to tramp up and down.

"Where's Gordon going to take his wife?" he asked sharply, "she's rooted there—and so is he, for that matter."

"Perhaps the young people think it's old-fashioned," suggested Haddon, "or Mrs. Gordon's tired of the housekeeping and wants an apartment—my wife does."

"Shucks!" the major sank down into his chair again, strumming on the table with his fingers. "You know better, Haddon! There's some trouble. I'm sorry for Will Gordon. He's a good man, and she's a good woman. She'll take it hard."

The banker nodded, glancing thoughtfully across at Angie's pale face and pleading brown eyes.

"I saw Miss Gordon on Monday—in Washington," he remarked thoughtfully.

"In Washington?" Angie started, "why, I didn't know she'd been away!"

Haddon nodded grimly, considering her pretty flush and her round, soft eyes critically.

"She was there all right. A decided beauty, too. I hadn't noticed it so much before. How's the boy turning out, Lomax?"

"Roddy?" The major twisted his old mouth into a queer expression. "Sowing wild oats, Haddon, I reckon. He's in New York, Greenough Trust Company, gets twenty-five dollars a week—or did six months ago, I haven't heard that he's increased in value," he added sarcastically.

Haddon, who was observing Angie, saw the girl's wince of pain and the red going up to her forehead. "In love with the boy—too bad!" he thought.

"Family troubles drain a man's pocket sometimes," he remarked sententiously.

Angie fired up, her brown eyes glowing with almost the wine tint of Roddy's. She was one of those gentle obstinate creatures who fight to the last ditch for love

"They haven't got any family troubles, Mr. Haddon," she said hotly. "They're very fond of Nancy and very proud of her; she's lovely, I've known her all my life—and—Roddy is doing well. Mrs. Gordon told me so herself."

"There's some trouble. I'm sorry for Will Gordon. He's a good man, and she's a good woman."

Haddon listened with his lazy, good-humored smile. "I wish I had a friend like you," he said.

Angie blushed crimson. "I'd feel very mean not to stand up for my friends. Anyone would—I should think!"

Major Lomax looked around at her with a grim smile. "My dear, there are a mighty lot of Judases in the world," he remarked dryly.

Haddon assented, buttoning up his loose spring overcoat, coughing a little as he did it.

Major Lomax glanced up at Haddon without rising. "Going right over to see Gordon?" he asked shortly.

Haddon, half way to the door, turned. "Oh, I shall send for him to come to my office—when he gets to the bank to-day."

"You needn't—I've bought it myself."

"By Jove! You're quick at a bargain," Haddon exclaimed after a moment, "it was only just put in the market."

Lomax nodded. "Took it over the telephone before you came in," he said grimly.

Haddon reddened and then laughed. "I concede the honors of war!" he said ironically, making for the door.

Mrs. Gordon opened the old worn gate timidly, and approached the house with a hesitating, reluctant step. She was trying to realize that the place, which she had called home ever since Roddy was a baby, was no longer hers. She had just been down to the bank to sign the papers, making over the house to Major Lomax, and her hand had trembled so that she had to apologize for her signature. She went into the house, feeling a little faint and giddy. She did not know there was anyone in the library; she went straight in and sank weakly into a chair, staring blankly at the sunshine in the old south window.

"'In my Father's house are many mansions—'" she whispered tremulously, unaware that she spoke aloud.

Nancy rose suddenly from the corner opposite. Her mother had not even seen her and the girl had been silenced by her first glimpse of Mrs. Gordon's face.

"Mama, what is it?" she cried, "tell me—even if I have done something—something dreadful. I'm not an outsider. I—you and papa don't tell me anything! What is it? Mama, you're wretched! Is it about Roddy?"

Mrs. Gordon looked at her blankly, absorbed in her own troubles. "Your father's just sold the house," she said weakly.

"Oh!" Nancy gave a sharp little cry of pain, rising to her feet. "I tried so hard to save you both from this, Mama. I did it all to prevent this,—and it's been useless—useless!" she groaned.

Mrs. Cordon nodded her head sadly. "It wasn't any use, Nancy. You know how your father feels. He's paid back seven thousand already."

"To Richard?"

Mrs. Gordon raised her eyes reluctantly to her daughter's haggard face. "Yes, dear. He—your father would have it so. That leaves eight more to pay, and he—"

Nancy rose and stood quite still and straight, her white face set.

"Who bought the house?"

"Major Lomax."

Nancy's blue eyes widened. "He gave four thousand cash." her mother went on mechanically, "and there's three still on the mortgage. He——"

she hesitated and then added more cheerfully: "He's been kind, dear, he urged Papa not to sell the furniture. He said it wouldn't bring enough to make it worth while, and—he wants us to keep the house—to rent it from him."

"On father's salary? Why Mama, there'll be one pinch after another! He—he hasn't sold anything else, has he?" she added fearfully.

Her mother sighed. "He's selling all his securities except his life insurance. He hopes to net about two thousand more. That will be nine paid. But, oh, Nancy, I don't know where in the world he's going to get the other six thousand from!"

Nancy sank down on the lounge. "Mama, I never thought of it in that way," she faltered, "I had only the one thought to save Roddy from prison."

"Oh, Nancy, I don't see how you could do it! When I was your age——"

Mrs. Gordon stopped with her mouth open, for they both heard Amanda admitting a visitor.

Nancy listened, straining her ears. "It's Mrs. Haddon!" Nancy cried, springing up. "You see her, Mother, I—I will not!"

Mrs. Gordon looked aghast. She had never known Mrs. Kingdon Haddon well and she did not like her.

"She's come to see you, Nancy, I——"

Nancy pushed her shaking hands. "Go out there and talk to her—in the other room. Don't let her come in here!"

Mrs. Gordon, reluctant and embarrassed, allowed herself to be pushed. Nancy thrust her through the portieres, drew them behind her, and went back to her lounge. She meant to go upstairs but she actually felt faint and ill.

Bit by bit she became aware of voices. Now the words took shape and became sentences. It was Helena's voice, her full, soft, drawling voice.

"He's taking care of King; you know my husband clings to a doctor!" she laughed softly. "He and Richard Morgan are great friends now; I'm glad of it for I was afraid he wouldn't like Richard. Men are such queer creatures. As a boy, Richard was so much in love with me he offered to fight King for trying to marry me!"

She paused and Mrs. Gordon mumbled something, an indistinct sentence or two, evidently bewildered. Nancy sat up straight now and listened, although she knew that Helena wanted her to listen.

"I cared for him, too, of course—who wouldn't? But my father—you remember him, Mrs. Gordon?"

"I—I think so, yes, I do." Mrs. Gordon's tone showed confusion.

"He really insisted that I should marry Kingdon. I—well, I broke my engagement and—" she laughed softly again, regretfully, "dear Mrs. Gordon, Richard felt it so much that I'm afraid sometimes—he'll never marry now. I really wish he would, it's so lonely over there for him since his mother's death!"

Mrs. Gordon evidently did not rise to the occasion for Nancy only heard a murmur. There were a few words more and then Helena's voice rose again, keyed to carry far, as her listener knew.

"I was so sorry that Kingdon didn't buy your house when Mr. Gordon offered it. It's quite a lovely old place. You must hate to give it up so suddenly, Mrs. Gordon?"

"Major Lomax wants us to stay on—to rent it from him," explained Mrs. Gordon, her voice breaking. "I do hate to leave it!"

"I should think you would! And your son, Mrs. Gordon. What do you hear from him?" she let her voice rest a moment and then, slowly drawling, "is he doing well?"

Nancy knew, without seeing it, the crimson flush that went up over her mother's face.

"Roddy's always done well. He's doing splendidly now."

"I'm so glad to heard it! Kingdon was asking about him yesterday. He knows someone in the trust company, I think, a Mr. Beaver, a cousin of Major Lomax."

Nancy started, trembling with apprehension. She remembered Roddy's description of old Beaver with his nose to the ground. Did this woman know?

HINTS FOR THE HOME

Too hot an iron will yellow and stiffen white silks.

Two-thirds of a pound of sugar for each pound of fruit is enough for most preserves.

Water in which onions have been boiled makes an excellent cleaner for white paint.

When tired of the ordinary ways of preparing fresh asparagus try serving it hot, with a spicy Mexican tomato sauce.

Stockings purchased half a size longer than is actually needed for the foot require less mending and are more comfortable.

Plant gladioli when the trees that are native to your part of the country unfold their leaves. This will be about the middle of May in this district.

Rub the surface thoroughly with a piece of rough pumice stone, or coarse sandpaper. Then apply a thin coat of shellac before painting the surface.

When making a frill, measure the length of material needed and then add half as much again. This will give a nice frill that is neither too full nor too skimpy.

Bias tape turned under and hemmed to the dress makes a simple and effective trimming for children's summer frocks. It is easy to launder and iron, and does not annoy the child.

Add one cup of raisins to your rhubarb pie and you will enjoy it 100 per cent. Another time, sprinkle just a little nutmeg over the rhubarb in the pie before putting on the upper crust. It gives a delicious flavor to the pie.

Do not use a metal tea or coffee pot that has ben out of use for a long time until it has been given a good scrubbing with a metal cleanser. A certain amount of corrosion forms, often not visible.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Rev. Charles E. Dunn

Jesus in the Shadow of the Cross.
Lesson for June 3rd. Matthew 26
Golden Text: Matt. 26:39.

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

Our Golden Text pierces to the heart of the lesson in its vivid picture of the prostrate Master, in agony of spirit, praying fervently that He might be spared from the ordeal of the Cross, and yet willing to yield to God's Will.

That natural desire of Jesus to be saved from an untimely end was not destined to be realized. The forces arrayed against Him pushed Him swiftly toward the dreadful woe of the crucifixion. As we watch the impending drama we are reminded that the Cross is the most convincing revelation in history of the reality and solidarity of sin. Here we have indeed, as Pres. Coffin points out, "the exposure of a murderous world."

Now who were the crucifiers of Christ? As we think of the scene in the Garden we at once see Judas, the unfaithful cynic, whose kiss of betrayal led to the Master's arrest. Then we picture those soldiers.

We remember, too, the Sadducees, wealthy, priestly, aristocratic, favorable to Rome. Conservative in temper, they make us think of the Victorians in nineteenth century England, who upheld the Bible and the throne. Jesus to them was a dangerous agitator.

And we recall the Pharisees, those pillars of orthodoxy who disliked Jesus because He broke the Sabbath, associated with undesirable folk, upset people.

Then we turn to Pilate, that skilful politician who was so eager to keep on good terms with Caesar. And we encounter Herod, that sophisticated product of the smart set.

And now we see the frenzied, irresponsible crowd, passionate with the lust of blood, shouting, "Crucify Him!" Finally we note the apathetic, indifferent public.

All these hurled the Master to His doom. And remember they were not unusually corrupt. They cherished the conventional ideals, and so were like you and me.

GREAT BRITAIN'S PENALTY FOR RECKLESS DRIVERS

"The reckless driver in Great Britain especially if he is what is known as a "repeater," gets little sympathy from the courts," observes the Owen Sound Sun-Times. "The authorities in that country are making a determined effort to keep irresponsible drivers off the roads and it is said their campaign is succeeding admirably.

An instance of how seriously the courts regard this matter is given in the case of a motorist who had been convicted of reckless driving some months previously and as a result had his license cancelled for a year. He was foolish enough to think he could ignore this warning, so, armed with a license issued to his brother, he once more sallied out on the road and had a collision with a motorcycle.

In court he was charged with driving dangerously, with driving when disqualified, with using a driver's license issued to his brother with intent to deceive and with using a car without an insurance policy. Here is the punishment that followed his conviction on these charges: A sentence of six months' imprisonment; a fine of 30 pounds sterling and guineas costs, disqualified from driving for 10 years.

The third penalty was, of course, the most severe as well as the most effective; he is banished from the roads for ten years and in view of what happened when he ignored the first cancellation it is safe to say that for the next decade he will keep his hands off the wheel of a car.

WHERE DO THE OLD TIRES GO?

Have you ever wondered where the old automobile tire casings and inner tubes go? Argentina is seeking rubber scrap from Canada for the manufacture of soles from the rubber for cheap grades of canvass shoes and the remaining portion of the fabric of tires for the manufacture of sleeves for blowout patches, states the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Japan is also a large importer of old tires.

REWARD FOR KINDNESS

A soldier one day called at the shop of a hairdresser and asked for relief, saying that he had outstayed his leave of absence, and that unless he could get on the coach, fatigue and severe punishment awaited him. The hairdresser gave him a guinea. "Sir," exclaimed the soldier, astonished at the amount, "how can I repay you? I have nothing in the world but this," pulling out a dirty piece of paper from his pocket. "It is a recipe for making blacking. It is the best that ever was seen. Many a half guinea have I had for it from the officers. May you be able to get something for it to repay you for your kindness to a poor soldier." That dirty piece of paper proved worth half-a-million pounds to the hairdresser. It was no less than the recipe for Day and Martin's blacking. It generally pays to lend a charitable ear to need.

QUEER BUT TRUE

While it is quite easy to criticize and find fault, the practise of saying "Thank you," is not as freely indulged. The man in charge of the Dominion Relief Department told a newspaperman that among thousands of letters received during three years he remembers getting only one letter of thanks and appreciation. The private secretary of a cabinet minister said: "A letter of thanks or gratitude is such an event that we remember it for a long time. The others outnumber them by one hundred to one." In Acton the Welfare Board, during the three years of operation, has one file one letter of appreciation for the help accorded, although we believe all the help was appreciated. It seems rather strange that such should be the case and yet it appears to be a general experience.

A tuned bell must not only be in tune with other bells in the set but also in tune with itself. In a well tuned bell there are at least five distinct tones, all of which sound when the bell is struck. If the bell is properly tuned these several notes will harmonize. The note of a bell, then, is really a chord.

The notes of a bell are called the hum note, fundamental, and nominal, and the third and fifth to the fundamental. In the case of a C bell the hum note, fundamental and nominal are all C notes, each an octave apart.

A bell is tuned by cutting away metal from the inside after it is cast. Tuning of bells is a highly specialized art.

THE BOOK

. . . . . the first line of which reads, "The Holy Bible," and which contains Four Great Treasures . . . . . .

by BRUCE BARTON

JONAH AND THE WHALE

IN Isaiah and Jeremiah we find the new thought of God's kindness gaining added force, but the book of Jonah gives the most interesting and probably the least appreciated glimpse of the development of the idea. Because of Jonah's mishap, which resulted in a three days' sojourn in the belly of a big fish, that book of four little chapters has been too often passed over lightly. It deserves recognition, for it contains the most compassionate note in the Old Testament.

Bruce Barton

Jonah was a preacher, and was ordered by God to go to Nineveh and denounce the city for its sins. Instead Jonah ran away, was caught in a storm at sea, thrown overboard by the sailors, and held in the belly of a great fish until he was thoroughly repentant and ready to obey. After this severe lesson he went to Nineveh and announced that the city would be destroyed for its sins within forty days. So convincing were his words that the rulers of the city ordered a general period of fasting and repentance.

> Who can tell [they cried] if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce anger, and we perish not? And God saw their works, that they turned from their evil way; and God repented of the evil, that he had said he would do unto them; and he did it not.

This was good luck for the people of Nineveh but it was hard on Jonah and "he was very angry." He reproached God, saying, "I knew you wouldn't go through with your threat and that's why I tried to run away from this assignment." He went outside the city and sat down in a chair to watch and sulk and to see what would happen. The sun was hot and God caused a great gourd to grow up over Jonah and shelter him. But the next morning when Jonah thought he should be sitting pretty, God sent a worm to cut the stem of the gourd and it withered away. Then come the final verses which picture a more compassionate Jehovah than any of the Old Testament writers:

> Then said the Lord, Thou hast had pity on the gourd, for which thou hast not laboured, neither madest it grow; which came up in a night, and perished in a night:
> And should not I spare Nineveh, that great city, wherein are more than sixscore thousand persons that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand; and also much cattle?

What a noble utterance. What a long upward climb has been made since the days when the Israelites plundered cities and wiped out men, women and children under the conviction that they were working the will of God. The record of this upward progress is the Old Testament. It begins with savage people, merciless prophets, and a terrible God. And it ends with a people who have learned humility through suffering.

CANADA FORGING AHEAD

Production schedules in Canada's automobile plants have gone skyrocketing, and more is being heard about the automotive industry leading the country back to prosperity. It is no difficult matter to see how the industry wields a mighty influence, for when it makes progress it does so hand in hand with other producers and suppliers. For every worker in an automobile factory, it is estimated, there are eighteen people employed selling cars, mining coal, iron, copper or some other mineral for use in a motor car, or working in garages, gas and oil stations, battery shops, tire and accessory shops. And thousands of freight cars on Canada's railways come out of hibernation when the motor car factories speed up. The pulsation of activity is felt even beyond the borders of the country, and Canada's eastern ports are even now busy loading export cars on ocean-going ships.

DIM YOUR LIGHTS

Criticism is being made in the daily press of the discourtesy shown by many motorists, in refusing to dim their lights, when meeting cars at night. That the criticism is well deserved we know from personal experience. In a recent night journey, we faithfully put on the dimmers on meeting every car. In only two instances was the courtesy returned. There is a moment when a driver cannot possibly see when facing glaring headlights, and in this day of heavy traffic, that moment is a dangerous one, as witness many accidents which have occurred at such a time. For many years the Highway Department, the Motor League and kindred organizations have urged courtesy on the road, but there still may be found people who are careless and selfish enough to disregard traffic laws whenever they can get way with it. And the strange part of it is that when not behind a wheel, most of these offenders are kindly and considerate to their fellow men. What is the explanation.—Aylmer Express.

BOBBY BURNS' RETORT

This poem of Robert Burns appeared in the September issue of the Montreal Witness in 1882 and the story that accompanies the poem is that a Scottish Laird invited Robert Burns to his home on a festive occasion. Burns thought he was to be a guest but was sent to the kitchen to dine. Needless to say, he did not dine, but composed a most scathing poem and, when called up to entertain the guests he simply recited this piece and retired:

My Lord, I would not fill your chair
Tho' ye be proudest noble's heir
I came this night to join your feast
An equal of the best at least.
'Tis true that cash with me is scant
And titles trifles that I want.
The King has never made me kneel
To stamp my manhood with his seal.
But what of that, the King on high
Who took less pains with you than I
Has filled my bosom and my mind
With something better in its kind—
Than your broad acres, something which
I cannot well translate in speech
But by its impulses I can know
'Tis deeds not birth that makes men low.
Your rank, my Lord, is but a loan
But mine, thank Heaven, is all my own!
A peasant 'tis my pride to be
Look round and round your hall and see
Who boasts a higher pedigree.
'Twas not fit, it seems, to dine
With these fox-hunting heroes fine
But only came to vandy jests
Among your lordship's houseful guests.
There must be here some bad mistake
I would not play for such a stake,
Be a buffoon for drink and meat
And a poor Earl's tax-paid seat!
No, die my heart 'ere such a shame
Descends on Robert Burns' name.

CHILDREN'S MINDS

Children's minds are fixed on a life goal at the age of three, says a famous psychologist. And it's a good thing most of them change their minds; otherwise we would have an over-production of policemen and railway engineers and baseball pitchers.

2. A special resolution to prohibit the sale of arms in the United States to the Gran Chaco belligerents.
3. A resolution authorizing $50,000 to fund the special Senate investigation looking toward new legislation to curb "abuses" in the munitions traffic.

4-H CLUB NEWS

ALL IN 7 YEARS

There used to be a lot of old "boarder" cows in Union County, Pa., but no more. Dairying isn't what it used to be in this community, and no one wants to go back. People can hardly believe the changes which have been made since some leading farmers, bankers, 4-H club leaders and members, started 7 years ago to bring dairying up to date. Today the county is outstanding in the state.

They started first a 4-H Holstein calf club with 86 members. There were 200 members enrolled by the end of 3 years. The best animals of the old herds were saved after a county tuberculin test had been made and production tests had been run on the animals remaining. To replace culled stock 15 carloads of purebred animals were brought in for some 150 herds.

The county had to have the best sires available and to settle that they organized into two groups, or "blocks" as they call them, and each pooled their money for the purchase of the right kind of animal. None was to be considered unless its mother had produced officially at least 1,000 pounds of butter-fat in a year.

Then cow testing was organized so every herd was eligible to test both the old cows and new ones as they came into the picture. One of the groups has made the highest average production on its animals of any test group in the state. This is 10,880 pounds of milk and 390 pounds of butter-fat.

Along with testing and other methods of improvement the 4-H club members have shown stock at the county fair and state farm show, and have made notable winnings. All this in 7 years.

Electricity!

No tale of wonders and enchantments has ever been written that excelled the actual reality which is today at mankind's fingertips in the wonders and magic of electricity. Step by step the intelligence of man leads him on through the ages of civilization until to-day our most common utility is in fact far beyond the mere comprehension of even the dreams of our forefathers. The Hydro System brings all of this to the citizens of Winchester. There is no new development or equipment in the fields that is not available to the life and business of local citizens. The drudgery can be taken out of housework if you let electric energy be the slave.

Possibly your home needs re-wiring or the present wiring a little overhauling. If so let us know about it. We are here to see that you get the best possible results from Hydro Light and Power.
