CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

Father, sometimes known as the great white father, left me the chore of writing a few notes for Crumbs this week. I have tried my hand at High School News but the step from there to here is a little exciting. Ordinarily I appear in this popular corner as "SC" or Small Crumb and the other publisher of the family journal comes out as "v.p." I think I had better stick to Mother.

We have had no word yet from our wandering parent. He upped and left at the end of the week loaded for bear. Mother and I waved him off, at four in the morning, after charging his batteries with a shredded wheat and a cuppa coffee. He was also warned about sprained backs, slippery rocks, lurking mudholes and wet feet. I have a sneaking feeling he paid very little attention. The gleam in his eye, the good one, spelled disaster for any careless deer.

One of the interesting things about being in a family concern like the only newspaper published in Chesterville, is the number of rules that crop up when Father needs to write a piece. He gets absentminded, becomes slightly more cranky and finally shoos everyone out of the kitchen. After a few minutes the typewriter starts, and woe betide anyone who interrupts him. Mother and I think he is easily distracted, won't admit it, and closes the door so he can dream in peace. Generally though, when everything is quiet for some time, we can get our feet braced for some of his so-called poetry. Isn't it ghastly? Especially that bit about the elf he calls by its first name alone, as if we would let an elf into the Castle! Unless elves are boy elves, that is.

Writing a column like this is a little different than doing a school composition. Then all we need to do is get a topic, imagine a few things that could happen and away we go. The teacher will read it and that's the end of it. Father insists this column is read by thousands every week. Therefore one must rightly tell the truth, tell as if it was the truth and if there is doubt about the truth, suggest the writer will be waiting in the west keep with the door barred until the matter is cleared up. Like that business about soap on the Red Monster. If some of my friends saw soapers soaping, surely serious citizens would hardly believe I would help do such a thing. Of course we did wash a few windows Hallowe'en but this SC would be foolish to inspire Father's Wrath—I mean the capital "W." He still is in complete charge of the weekly finances; every little while I get the meagre handout clipped due to some innocent oversight, such as forgetting to cut my fingernails or running the risk of pneumonia by indiscriminate use of washing water.

It may be some time before we do this again. To the thousands of readers Father talks about: Hello and so long.

Council calls fire marshal to investigate gas fumes in King Street basements

Complaints about gasoline fumes in King Street cellars were examined last week at council meeting. It was finally decided to call in the fire marshal and have him make an investigation. Fire chief John Hehir was asked to get in touch with the proper authorities and see that a meeting was arranged.

The village water system report found everything in good order. A tender was drawn up to be placed in the "Record" asking for prices on a fence around the water tank property.

A representative of Ontario Hydro waited on council to outline the plan of action on the "Sunshine" electric dryer-blanket deal. The local commission plans to go ahead with the program as enough local merchants are interested. Display materials and forms were to arrive here at the end of the week.

Troubles are still being experieenced with radio reception in the neighbourhood of the new street lights. Clerk Lorne Marcellus was asked to get off a letter right away to the manufacturer and ask for relief from the interference, if possible.

A special meeting of council will be called for Nov. 20, to consider Christmas decorations for the village.

Paperwork has been nearly all cleared on the new power line erection for the new public school. As soon as the proper documents return from solicitor Wm. Gorrell, the construction will start.

North Dundas High School District council representative James Sullivan was on hand with a report of progress on the new Ridge sechool. He stated foundations are 45% complete, excavation work 90% complete, the big parking lot 80% and septic tank work 50%. He felt things were running well and close to schedule.

Council listened sympathetically to a local businessman, Lorne Jordon, in a plea to consider limiting the number of bread dealers in the community. It was general opinion the matter was not easily solved.

A deposit of $100 was received and receipted from Mr Robert of Crysler. He is starting up a jewellery store and watch repair depot in the store on the corner of Victoria and Main.

All accounts, including two held over from last month, were ordered paid.

Holstein Breeders hold dinner at Newington

"A man should work for more than the money that may be in the job. He must create something worthy of the whole effort he can put into it," Rev S. B. Profitt, of Ingleside, told the Stormont Holstein Breeders' Association at its annual dinner in Newington United Church Hall last week.

Mr Profitt expressed concern at the trend toward larger farms and an impersonal approach to farming. He pointed out from the experience of himself and his family in breeding and exhibiting Holsteins, that it is necessary to study each animal as an individual. Selection of high quality cattle, he observed, is a deep and time-consuming study, something that "you have to do for the joy of doing it, something you must give your best care and intelligence."

The group of breeders and their friends was welcomed to the banquet by Stormont Association president John McLennan, of Maxville, who outlined the numerous activities the group had taken part in during the year. The Association carries out a continuous long term program of helping Holstein men improve their herds in order to supply better cattle, he pointed out.

Greetings from the Glengarry Holstein Association were expressed by Clark McCuaig, president of that group, and from the Stormont Ayrshire Club by R. R. Simmons, of Finch. The guest speaker was introduced by Harry Pollock, of Ingleside, and thanked by Donald Casselman, of Finch.

Grant Smith, of Brockville, fieldman for the breed in Eastern Ontario, commended the club on a "wonderful show" at the county Black and White Day at Newington as well as a good exhibit at Ottawa Winter Fair. Stormont "did very well at Ottawa considering the competition totalling 351 head of Holsteins." He noted the premier exhibitor at Ottawa was Charles Naylor, of Lancaster, and the premier breeder, Alex Sneddon, of Almonte, "people you know quite well in this district."

Mr Smith presented certificates as premier breeder at the Stormont Black and White show to Elwood Thompson, of Finch, and as premier exhibitor to Marland Murray, of Martintown. A blue seal certificate hoonuring ownership of a cow producing more than 125,000 pound of milk was awarded to John B. Ferguson and Son, of Avonmore. Red seal certificates honouring production above 100,000 pounds were also presented to John B. Ferguson and Son, to Howard Morrow, James Campbell, Marland Murray and Harold Shaver. High herd average certificates were given to Howard Morrow and John W. Hume.

In his remarks that concluded the evening, Kenneth E. Best, Stormont agricultural representative, commended the local club for an active year. He also referred to the renewed interest in beef cattle which is being supported to a considerable extent by both provincial and federal Departments of Agriculture. However, he pointed out the beef business is not to be entered into lightly, and urged farmers to take every possible advantage of extension and information service made available through the agricultural representative's office.

Mr Best also mentioned that tests at Ottawa suggested that a Holstein steer might well be the most economical beef animal for this area, a factor that Holstein breeders should keep in mind if they are inclined to change the emphasis of their production to some extent.

Mr Best also referred to the achievements of Stormont 4-H Calf Clubs at Ottawa Winter Fair, and thanked the club leaders for their active support. Mr Best mentioned in particular R. R. Simmons, of Finch, leader of Newington Senior Calf Club, and thanked him for his assistance in the Holstein section especially, Mr Simmons being prominent as an Ayrshire breeder although the Newington club won the group of three class in both breeds.

Gordon McRae expressed the thanks of the Association to the ladies of Newington United Church who catered for the dinner.

Persistent wheat

Calvin S. Munro, Nation Valley, brought a handful of persistence into the Record office on Thursday. Spring wheat, 4' 4" in length and well headed, provided an example of Nature's determination.

The wheat was planted in a field a year ago last spring and later combined, then seeded with timothy and clover. Two crops of hay were taken off this year, and then the wheat again took over.

M. N. Hutchinson speaks at Chesterville W. I. meeting

Mr M. N. Hutchinson, Inspector of Public Schools in Dundas County, was guest speaker at the October meeting of Chesterville W.I. Mr Hutchinson, speaking on the basic changes in the field of education, said that the ideals, ideas and methods have changed over the years. When the educational system was set up in Ontario all children followed one prescribed course which was narrow and rigid. Today the swing is away from teaching a class as a unit. More importance is placed on individual pupils.

Character training is now looked upon as a function of the schools instead of the home. This is due to the increase in mothers working outside the homes. It was Mr Hutchinson's belief that a properly trained teacher should know more of the general needs of children than the parents.

There is no easy answer to educational problems but the speaker felt that many could be solved if the training of teachers was twice as long and if there was a province-wide salary scale.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs Lorne Thompson and thanked by Mrs Myles Merkley.

The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs Myles Merkley, assisted by Mrs D. McElheran, secretary.

Items of business included arrangements for a series of euchres to be held in the new year, reports from Mrs D. Docksteader, treasurer, Mrs George Johnston, card secretary, motions outhorizing donations to CNIB, the Chamber of Commerce Santa Claus fund and the Adelaide Hoodless home.

The invitation of Mrs Jean Casselman, M.P. for Grenville-Dundas, for W.I. members to meet with her for lunch and attend a session of Parliament was discussed and a tentative date arranged.

Mrs C. A. Graham accompanied a sextette composed of Miss Lorna Casselman, Miss Lorraine Brownlee, Miss Helen Merkley, Miss Carol Merkley, Miss Melanie Fyke and Miss Mary Graham in two songs, "My Favourite Things," and "While Strolling Through the Park."

At the close of the meeting lunch was served by Mrs Lorne Thompson and her committee.

OPINIONS . . .
OURS AND OTHERS

Farming still biggest business

The size and scope of farm business in Canada has attracted the attention of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, as indeed it well might. In spite of the changing character of farm business, says the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder, it is still the largest in the country.

The bank's letter on the subject contains some highly interesting comments. One of them is that farming provides 35 per cent of the country's jobs and accounts for 40 per cent of the gross national product. This is true even though the number of people actually working on farms is declining.

But there are two people working in industry directly connected with farming for every one that works on the land. This is only the number actually engaged in providing goods and services for farmers or engaged in the marketing of farm products, packing meat, canning fruit, and so on.

The clerk at the corner grocery store is not included. Neither are the rural insurance man nor the garage mechanic in the country town, to mention a few who are indirectly employed in agriculture. So greatly has the industry increased in its scope that it needs technically trained people perhaps more than any other industry.

The bank says it has been estimated that fewer than one-fourth as many agricultural graduates are coming out of colleges as are needed in the industry and the need is continuing to increase. Canadian graduates are in demand around the world, because of their excellent training, but they are needed at home, too.

This problem is not unlike that in other industries and society in general, where there is a lack of skilled people, while those with nothing to offer but the experience of a lifetime find it hard to get jobs, or in the case of farming, make an adequate living. It's a strange world we live in, in that respect, although it is clear the wise young man with an interest in agriculture will do his best to get some college training.

Names suit roads best

The east, including Eastern Canada, may seem slow-moving at times—but eastern ideas, even if they are old, are often good ideas, observes the Chatham Daily News.

Thus, John W. MacDonald, M.L.A. for Pictou in the Nova Scotia Legislature, recently came up with a suggestion that the numbering system for designating highways was perhaps being overdone.

Mr MacDonald did not go so far as to suggest that numbers be discarded. But he urged that they be supplemented by names with some geographical or historical significance.

Here in Ontario, though we presume it has a number, the highway from Toronto to the Niagara Frontier was also named the Queen Elizabeth Way—and, fortunately, the name has stuck. It was named, not for the present Queen, but for the Queen Mother while she was still the consort of George VI.

It has been claimed that the numerical system of designating highways is simpler and more efficient. We feel sure it is not. Planning a motor trip becomes a mathematical problem, confused by the fact that county roads and provincial highways quite often use the same numbers.

Discussing the problem, the Stratford Beacon-Herald points out that Provincial Highway No. 8 pretty well follows the route of the old Huron Road, surveyed by "Tiger" Dunlop when the entire Huron Tract was still a wilderness. And, despite the number, old-timers still refer to it as the Huron Road.

Here in Kent, adoption—officially—of this idiotic system of numbering has led to the abandonment of highway names that were picturesque and had historic significance.

Along the Erie shore we had the Talbot Road, commemorating the great if eccentric colonizer of Castle Malahide. Farther north, the Longwoods Road crossed Kent from east to west. Now it is merely part of No. 2 Highway. Farther west, in Essex, the Tecumseh Trail, running close to Lake St. Clair, had a name historically significant before it became another mere number.

If any benefit whatever came from substituting numbers for names, it would be forgiveable; but the results are merely confusing.

There was charm for local residents in the old, familiar names and in them, with their historic connotations, there would still be attraction for tourists. Even a poetic minded tourist would hardly write a soulful ode to No. 2 Highway.

The moron who substituted numbers for names on our highways did his best—or worst—to destry a priceless asset.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

Bible study in Canada is on the increase, reports Rev F. E. Vipond, director of the Canadian Council of Churches project on the use and understanding of the Bible. Fifty-six workshops have been held across Canada in churches of many denominations, reaching some 4,000 people.

Mr Vipond believes from his experience that relevant and thorough Bible study will feed and strengthen Christian people. "There is need for Bible study," states Mr Vipond, "and should be closely linked with the church's Missions of Evangelism."

Defining effective Bible study as "that study of the Bible in which men meet with God, and answer in responsible decision to the Word addressed to them," the Rev E. H. Robertson, the Study secretary of the United Bible Societies, has recently written a book on "Methods of Bible Study" (SCM Press). "The real search," writes Mr Robertson, "is to find a way to hear God in our study of the Bible."

Encouraging reports are being received of a wider use of the Bible for study in Germany, Britain and North America. Some branches of the Christian church are emphasizing Bible study projects throughout 1962.

Your Federal Report

by Mrs Jean Casselman, M.P.

The calibre of debate has very definitely improved in the House of Commons. There have been more excellent speeches this Session than in any Session within my memory.

It is generally conceded that percentage wise the New Party has the most oratory, even before their leader Tommy Douglas arrives. Those of us who have never heard him are anticipating something interesting.

Douglas Fisher (Port Arthur), one of the old-timers who held the eight members of the CCF together last Session, is back with his good voice, good vocabulary, rather off-beat but honest approach to every subject, and very often considerable humour and whimsy.

The new addition of real value in speaking ability is David Lewis of Toronto (York South). Of course his socialist opinions and distrust of free enterprise are distressing but they are expressed in the greatest good humour. Being versatile in his interests and observations, one may expect him to soon go on to another subject as he did this week in an effective attack on the Socred's bright star Real Caouette—"the group immediately opposite us are of course in a separate category. They have become not only blinded by doctrinaire orthodoxy; they have become the high priest of the worst in our economy and in our present system. I notice, for example, that some time ago the hon. member for Villeneuve, who is not here today, as he was not here yesterday—I wish I could have said it in his presence—was quoted as having said that Hitler is one of his political heroes. He later explained that what he meant was the economic policy pursued by the German government under Hitler during the 1930's, and not his political and dictatorial policies. I was interested to note in the Globe and Mail this morning, in a story about a meeting the hon. member for Villeneuve had at the University of Toronto yesterday, at the bottom of the front page, that someone asked him what were the economic policies of Hitler which he admired, and his answer was 'I do not know what the economic theories were during Hitler's time in Germany'. I can only come to the conclusion that the hon. member for Villeneuve admired Hitler for his economic policies, about which he knew nothing. I say in all seriousness that this is an important key to the hon. member's mind; I regret he is not here. More particularly, it is a key to the hon. member's tongue, which is a great deal faster than the other part; and, perhaps, a key also to Social Credit theory as a whole, that you admire something about which you say you know nothing."

With all due politeness the Member for Villeneuve, Mr Caouette cannot be considered as an orator and had he been in the House when thus attacked would have found himself no match for Mr Lewis. Regrettably for all of us who must listen to him so often, Mr Caouette's oratory is only a storm of words, all sound and fury, somewhat overwhelming but not convincing.

ORLEANS ISLE KNOWN TO HISTORY

The little island of Orleans in the St. Lawrence River has windmills 300 years old, wild grapes Jacques Cartier relished and a cheese nobody else can make.

The windmills belong to the island's enviable role in history, dating back to the days of French control. Jacques Cartier was so enthralled with the grapes when he visited Orleans in 1535 that he named it the island of grapes. It was one of the countless names the island was to receive.

The market for fromage raffine, a distinctive island cheese made by a few families who have kept the process a secret, is unlimited.

Orleans lies just a few miles northeast of Quebec City, connected by bridge. It is only 20 miles long and six miles wide. Most of the 7,000 residents live in the villages of St. Pierre, Ste. Famille, St. Jean, St. Laurent and Ste. Petronille.

Before the arrival of Europeans, the Indians knew the island as Minego. For a time it was known as the Ile des Sorciers until France decreed it should be named in honour of the Duke of Orleans.

Poets have found inspiration in the oxen drawing the plow and women who still dress in the picturesque attire of New France. Old-fashioned ground ovens still are used.

The houses look much the same as they did 300 years ago. Churches date back to 1669.

The church of St. Francois was used by General Wolfe as a hospital during the period he employed Orleans as an observation point to plan his attack on Quebec City. Scars of cannon balls still are visible on many buildings.

In every church, exquisite wooden carvings and creations of gold and silversmith work remain fro mthe days of New France.

Orleans is known too as an agricultural Eden. The island's strawberries and prunes are world-famed. Fertile farms abound.

Said one author: "Orleans is the paradise of the habitant, the symbol of gracious living."

U. S. LUMBER CASE WEAKER?

Despite a bombastic start U.S. lumbermen seem to be losing some of their strength in their battle to restrict Canadian lumber shipments, says the Washington representative of The Financial Post. Chips began flying recently in the latest round of the U.S. — Canada lumber dispute before the U.S. Tariff Commission.

The opening statement at the hearing by Tarriff commission chairman Ben Dorfman emphasized that the decision of the commission will be based on the guidelines set down by the new Kennedy trade law. Chairman Dorfman emphasized the differences between the old trade law and the new one, noting particularly that the new law is less restrictive in its protectionist sections than the old one. Although unstated, his point seemed to be that it will now be harder to get tariff commission recommendations for trade restrictions. Passage of the Kennedy bill also weakens some of the strength of the anti-Canadian lumber voices in the U.S., for it means there is less political pressure on the administration.

GETS LION AS GIFT

When Yvon Bordeleau, Quebec, received a message telling him to pick up a lion at the express office he realized his generosity had caught up with him.

The 200-pound untamed beast was the gift of a circus performer Mr Bordeleau had helped several years before. In gratitude the man promised to repay the favour.

Mr Bordeleau had forgotten all about the promise until he got word that the lion had arrived from Africa by way of Ohio.

His wife refused to have the animal anywhere near the house. He got around this by putting it in a cage in the front window of his sportswear shop.

He originally thought of presenting the lion to a zoo but changed his mind after veteran lion tamer William Schultz, 70, of Quebec, volunteered to tame the animal.

Mr Bordeleau now is convinced it will make a wonderful house pet and his children are awaiting the time when they will be able to take it out on a leash.

In the meantime crowds regularly gather in front of his shop window to hear the lion roar.

Police have assured him they won't bother him unless the lion causes a public disorder, breaks loose or scares people.

The anmial has been named Duke and if Mrs Bordeleau doesn't take kindly to him at least the butcher and grocer are happy. Duke eats 16 pounds of meat and a dozen eggs a day and washes them down with two quarts of milk.

A supply of sponges for kitchen and bathroom clean-ups saves work and energy since sponges are just right for washing dishes, cleaning the refrigerator and range tops, while a long-handled sponge is fine for cleaning the bathtub.

King of the Arctic

The sleek, long-necked king of the Arctic may be on the road that could lead to a decline to extinction of the great white bears.

Dick Harrington, a government zoologist, may be racing against time as he tries to determine the number of polar bears in Canada, their annual increase, living habits, denning areas and sex ratio.

Such information, now based on guesswork, is vital to the establishment of a management program which will assure the survival of the Thalartos Maritimus, the scientific name for polar bear.

Canada restricts the shooting of polar bears to Eskimo and Indian hunters and even they are forbidden from taking cubs or females with cubs, in the eastern Arctic. Despite this, killing has mounted steadily in recent years. It is estimated that in the period from 1956-60 natives killed nearly 3,000. This information, coupled with reports from the Soviet Union, Greenland and Norway, indicate the decline could reach the danger point soon.

His assignment is to find the limit.

He is employed by the Canadian Wildlife Service, the federal agency which studies fish and wildlife for protective purposes.

Once a danger limit is recognized regulations will be enforced to ensure that the animal kill stays below it. If it goes higher, then the polar bear will be on a gradual slide into extinction.

The polar bear has two strikes against him now. The automatic rifle has made it easier for native hunters to kill him and the growing market for his unique pelt has made him a more attractive target.

Not many years ago the Canadian Eskimo hunted bears as a sideline, using the fur for himself and the meat as a welcome change of diet for his family and his dogs. A pelt sold for under $15.

Today, with radar and defence bases strung across the north, a big market has been established fo rthe skins. A prime one will bring about $80 with the sharper native traders o fthe western Arctic getting up to $125.

An Eskimo hunter with an annual income of about $500 from other sources can double his earnings on a half-dozen bears which he ordinarily wouldn't kill. Much of the meat goes to waste.

Worried about the situation, the government is preaching conservation through its northern service officers, RCMP patrols and defence system. But the results are best illustrated by this report from the RCMP detachment on Baffin Island:

"We . . . have been asked to stress conservation to the Eskimo and to enforce the Game Act to its fullest extent in regards to the illegal killing of bears. This has placed us in what may be deemed an undesirable position with the natives, because as soon as we began to advocate conservation of polar bears the Hudson's Bay Company raised its fur price from the usual $35 for a prime skin to as high as $90.

The lanky, sandy-haired zoologist who has tackled the problem divides his time between Arctic trips and lab studies in his space at the University of Ottawa biology building.

Last spring, despite the long standing law that prohibits white men from hunting polar bears, Harrington legally bagged eight on a three month trip to the Arctic. Harington used a .270-calibre British sporting rifle for the kill, all in the interest of the bears.

After his return to Ottawa he compiled diet and bone growth reports from the eight animals he collected. Their pelts were given to his Eskimo guide.

"It's unfortunate we have to shoot some," he told an interviewer. "But a polar bear won't just stand there while you measure his skull."

Last year he tried it the hard way. He went north with an air-rifle and drug-tipped darts hoping to stun animals in their dens, examine them, and leave them to regain consciousness. But the rifle froze and wouldn't fire. He tied darts on poles and stuck them through snow into dens beneath. The tips broke, the bears roared and Dick Harrington became the Arctic's champion miler.

Last summer he was back north testing an aerial count of bears on the coast of Southhampton Island.

ONTARIO POTATOES IN GOOD SUPPLY

Consumers will be pleased to know that this year's crop of Ontario grown potatoes continues to show a distinct improvement in quality, says the Farm Products Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Hundreds of tests over wide areas show average dry matter content often over 20 per cent, and in some cases, exceeding 23 per cent. This indicates excellent keeping and cooking quality, and compares most favourably with potatoes grown in any other area of this continent. Most crops are grading a high percentage of number one grade, with very little loss from lack of maturity, disease and insect injury. Present estimates place the farm value in Ontario around $25,000,000.

While there are substantial quantities going to processors for such products as instant mashed potato flakes, French fries and potato chips, demands for the fresh product in 10, 50 and 75-pound bags have been brisk.

There has been a marked increase in quantities of Ontario potatoes handled by dealers in recent years, and consumers now look for regular supplies direct from Ontario farms. Growers are catering to these local markets through adoption of modern practices in automation of production, grading, storing and packaging facilities.

A British research company is studying use of sugar as an ingredient of plastic dinnerware to lower production costs.

A London street was paved with silver when a Royal Mint truck crashed and spilled three tons of coins. Every cent was recovered.

Eastern Ontario W. I. 4th annual convention at Ottawa

Eastern Ontario Women's Institutes at the 47th area convention in Ottawa recently learned that over $18,884 had been raised this year in the eight districts reporting, an increase of more than $2,000 in 1961 activities.

The trend from short courses to training schools in W.I.'s shows a definite upswing. More women in the community benefit by the latter plan according to Miss Eleanor Kidd, extension branch, Toronto.

Mrs L. G. Lymburner, FIWO president, addressing the 350 delegates pointed out the value of education, not only to W.I.'s but to other countrywomen of the world. Where education is brought to them, problems are more easily solved. She had presented a cheque for $4,000 from Pennies for Friendship Fund to ACWW when the conference was held in Australia in September. She asked for continued donations to this fund and also to the International Scholarship Fund which now has reached $18,000. First to benefit from this fund is Miss Pearl Isaacs, Ceylon, who is now attending MacDonald Institute, Guelph.

Sustained resolutions at the EOWI convention were: a petition to the government to press legislation requiring all traffic in either direction to come to a full stop while a bus is loading or discharging school children. Secondly, a request will be made to provide institutions for patients suffering from chronic alcoholism, and kept under surveillance until a cure is effected and enables the patient to take his place in society again. The resolutions were presented by Mrs Harry Toop, Arnprior.

W.I. members will participate in Farm Radio Forum February 4, 1963, on the topic "Canada's Responsibility to Women of the World." There will be an international panel from ACWW, four ladies taking part from India, Australia, South Africa and the Netherlands.

Mrs George Young, Lanark, presented the Area Scholarship to Miss Wanda Mitchell, Glengarry County, who is now enrolled at Queen's University.

Madame Vanier, who was guest of honour at the noon luncheon, spoke briefly of her association with W.I. work in England. Dr C. B. Storr, Ottawa public school inspector, was the speaker. The EOWI endorsed a resolution re the preservation of the Mill of Kintail, Almonte, for its contribution to both cultural and medical history.

The Adelaide Hoodless Homestead will be supported by 10 cents per member donations. Mrs L. G. Lymburner reiterated that the Women's Institute purpose is to support its own projects rather than those of other organizations.

Officers elected to EOWI are: Past president, Mrs C. L. Griffith, Pembroke; president, Mrs Frank Rodger, Lanark; vice-president, Mrs Douglas Hayes, of L'Orignal; secretary-treas., Mrs Ruskin Blair, Ottawa; public relations officer, Mrs Archie Bennett, Arnprior; auditors, Mrs W. H. Scott, Moose Creek, and Mrs R. N. Jago, North Gower.

Conveners of standing committees: Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs Stanley Kippen, Maxville; Citizenship and Education, Mrs R. McIlquham, of Lanark; Historical Research and Current Events, Mrs J. H. Steele, Cardinal; Home Economics and Health, Mrs Hugh McMillan, of Chesterville; Resolutions, Mrs Harry Toop, Arnprior; CCE, Mrs K. Davidson, RR 5, Ottawa; Winter Fair, Mrs Thelma James, Mrs G. Acres, RR 1, of Britannia Heights. Provincial Board members: Sub-division 1, Mrs H. G. Sheldrick, Vars; 2, Mrs Charles Clarke, Carp; alternate, Mrs J. J. Reid, Carp; 3, Mrs George Young, Lanark.

Dates confirmed for area conventions in the next two years are October 23-24, 1963, and October 21-22, 1964.

The trick of cutting sheet metal with a pair of snips is not to bring the tips of the blades together at the end of the cut. This produces a slight sideways tear in the metal. Open the blades wide and cut into the metal, but stop before the tips of the blades meet.

Large safety pins are handy for keeping nuts, washers and other small parts handy. Thread them on to the safety pin, close the pin and hang on a convenient hook or nail.

WOULD-BE COOK TRIES RECIPES 100 YEARS OLD

Edward Bouser, Vernon River, P.E.I., whose hobby is cooking, found an old cookbook recently while repairing his 100-year-old home, tried some of the recipes and says his family found the dishes delicious.

The old cookbook calls for few accurate measurements, leaning heavily on the teacup as a kitchen utensil. It specifies that you beat egg yolks in teacups, mix yeast in teacups and chop nuts and fruit in teacups.

The author apparently figured housewives of the middle 1800's would usually have big families. For example, a recipe for fricasseed eggs for breakfast stipulates a dozen eggs.

Here are several of the recipes:

Tomato Pie: Peel and slice enough green tomatoes to fill one pie, add four tablespoonsful of vinegar, butter and sugar, flavour with nutmeg and bake slowly with two crusts. You may ste wthe tomatoes first to prevent the pie from being too juicy.

Fried Bananas: Peel and slice bananas, sprinkle with salt, dip in thin batter and fry in butter. Serve as soon as it is done.

Indian Bread: Two cups of Indian meal, one half cup each of rye meal and wheat flour, two-thirds of a cup of molasses, one pint of sour cream, cooking soda and salt.

THE INTRIGUE OF SWEDEN

For Canadians, says Paul S. Deacon in The Financial Post feature report, Sweden is one of the most intriguing countries in the world. The Swedes have somehow managed to achieve one of the highest living standards in the world, with low tariffs (none over 15%, most well below that), population of only 7½ million, fewer natural resources than Canada has, and a location north of most Canadian centres of population. The magic of the Gulf Stream accounts for the moderate climate that allows cultivation and comfortable temperatures in Sweden. But the success Swedes have had in achieving full employment, big industrial development, ownership of their own industry, and high technical excellence is not so readily explained.

Deacon, who travelled through Sweden, writes: "Some of the reasons for Sweden's remarkable economic achievements may be found in the Swedes' logical, orderly approach to business problems. Some are due to poitical and economic advantages not found in other countries. Some are related to the nature and spirit of the people themselves. Whatever the cause may be, Sweden rates a close examination by Canadians, not only as a country with which we are developing a growing trade, but also as a country whose performance may contain some lessons for Canada in working out its future development".

JAPANESE WOMEN ARE INVENTIVE

Japanese women have found that it pays to be inventive.

More and more Japanese housewives, working women and students are applying for household or nursing use invention patents.

Six prize-winning inventions and 90 others chosen from 227 entered were displayed at the 12th annual women inventors exhibition in Tokyo last summer.

They included piano pedals for children who cannot reach ordinary piano pedals; a knockdown chair for tots which can also be used as a bed; and a bag which could be folded into more than 10 different shapes and sizes with the help of zippers.

According to the Japanese Inventors Association, 40 per cent of the exhibitors are filing applications for patent rights, compared with only a few up to last year.

The number of exhibitors this year, too, was 20 per cent higher than last year.

The two top prize-winners at last year's exhibition have already made money from their ideas.

Masako Yoshika, a 20-year-old college student, invented a device to ease the glare from the headlights of oncoming motor cars. It consists of a plastic sheet attached to the inside of a windscreen by suction discs.

Her best-selling idea is a porcelain cigarette case consisting of a cottage and a dog standing on a piece of lumber.

The cottage holds cigarettes and the dog has its mouth open. When the head of the dog is pushed down, the lumber revolves and pulls out the floor of the cottage. The dog picks up a cigarette in its mouth and resumes an upright position.

The Ontario Safety League points out that a common demonstration of bad driving habits is trying to "beat" the traffic, instead of forming a part of it.

Until recently miners held to the old tradition that women in a mine are ill omens.

For a decorator note in your pantry or linen closet get some washable wallpaper and use to line the shelves.

Baste the buttonholes of your cardigan sweater together before laundering and the stitches will keep them from stretching out of shape.

Canada sells an annual average of 78 per cent of its leading export, newsprint, to the United States.

RADIATION PRODUCES MUTATION OF APRICOT

Radiation has been used to produce a mutation of the Blenheim apricot variety that features lighter sets of larger, earlier maturing fruit.

In an experiment at the Canada Department of Agriculture's research station at Summerland, Britsh Columbia the mutant—known simply as 119B—produced fruit 20 per cent larger than that of the original varitey and which matured four to six days earlier.

The mutant is self-sterile and its pollen produces poor sets in other varieties in contrast to the self-fertile Blenheim which produces very heavy sets, researcher K. O. Lapins explains.

Last year when the apricot set was heavy, thinning to commercial standards required the removal of five times as much fruit from Blenhein trees as from those of the mutant.

In 1956 dormant scions of the Blenheim variety were sent to the Brookhaven National Laboratory in New York for treatment with radiation, after which they were returned to Summerland for propagation by grafting.

The resulting trees now have been growing in the orchards for five years and have gone through three crop years However, says the researcher, some of the trees are completely sterile as a result of the treatment and some others have produced misshaped or otherwise undesir able fruit.

Other than the variations in sets, size of fruit and maturity, the characteristics of the mutant are similar to that of the Blenheim variety.

It is often possible to remove indelible pencil marks by soaking them in alcohol for a few minutes before washing with mild soap and water.

HUNTING SAFETY

If you use a boat or canoe while hunting this fall, the Ontario Saftey League reminds you of the seasonal hazards of icy water and heavy clothing—take extra precautions. Do not overload or overpower —it's not worth the risk. Always carry a Government approved life jacket for each person in the boat and wear them crossing open water.

And never carry a loaded gun in a boat unless properly anchored in a blind.

Never let the muzzle of your gun point at anything you do not want to kill. When accompanied by other hunters, carry your gun so they are not in your line of fire. Keep your finger out of the trigger guard and the safety "on" until ready to shoot.

Always remember—a loaded gun can kill—it is your responsibility to control it.

The Ontario Safety League warns that three-quarters of the accidents happen to experienced hunters, so watch your step:

Never run when carrying a loaded gun.

Always keep the safety "on", until ready to shoot.

Unload your gun before crossing a fence or other obstacle or obstruction.

Never carry a loaded gun in a car or boat.

Do your share to reduce hunting accidents this fall.

TRAINING IS URGED FOR APPLE PICKERS

A little time spent training picking crews pays off in fewer bruises and stem punctures of apples.

Most of the worst offenders do not realize they are damaging the apples until the need for careful picking is pointed out to them, suggests A. D. McMechan of the Canada Department of Agriculture's reasearch station at Summerland, B. C.

Studies in the Okanagan Valley have shown that some pickers damage twice as many apples as others in the same crew.

Most frequent causes of damage are: squeezing the apples when picking, dropping the apples into the picking bag, pressing the apples in the bag against the ladder by reaching too far, walking too far with a full bag and not emptying it carefully enough into the bin or box.

Checks on picking speed revealed that slow pickers are not necessarily careful pickers fast pickers are not necessarily careless.

The need for instructing picking crews is especially important for McIntosh apples, which are very susceptible to damage.

Area parks have record year

The Ontario-St. Lawrence Development Commission closed its gates on the most successful season in its young history.

Statistics reveal that 1,757,500 persons visited parks, beaches, campsites and historic sites in the system which extends from Adolphustown Park near Kingston to Glengarry Park east of Lancaster.

This is an increase of 337,198 persons over the final 1961 figure of 1,420,302.

The system's two historic sites at Fort Henry and Upper Canada Village attracted a total of 420,896 visitors, an increase of 55,334 over the 1961 combined total of 365,562.

Discounting attendance at the historic sites, the general attendance at various parks and campsites totalled 1,333,694, a considerable increase from last year's final figure of 1,054,740.

Upper Caanda Village showed a tremendous upsurge in popularity during the 1962 season. From the day it opened last May until closing time the cluster of buildings representing Canadian life of the early 19th century attracted 250,557 visitors. In 1961, attendance at the village was 212,489.

So optimistic is the figure that parks officials are predicting that 300,000 will flock to the pictureque village next year.

The season's attendance at Fort Henry near Kingston totalled 170,321, an increase from 153,073 last year.

Attendance at the parks and beaches within the system showed increases during the year except for Mille Roches Park and Farran Park where decreases were reported.

At Adolphustown the 1962 attendance was 102,488 compared with 66,216 in 1961; Ivy Lea, 38,056 (27,904); Brown's Bay 107968 (81,216); Riverside, 129,056 (89,848); Crysler Beach, 79,108 (56,112); Morrison and Nairn Islands, 58,160 (49,880); Farran, 51,142 (52,604); Woodlands, 146,852 (142,980); Mille Roches, 212,332 (223,084); Charlottenburgh, 75,524 (66,540); Glengarry Park, 118,232 (75,128).

In addition visitors amassed a total of 194,994 camper days as compared with 134,912 in 1961.

Crysler Park to receive cannon

Crysler Memorial Park and Fort Henry at Kingston will be the recipients of matched cannon which have for years been a landmark on the Toronto lake shore.

The cannon are similar to ones used in Canada in the 1800's.

At a ceremony in Toronto the president of the Seaway Hotel chain turned the cannon over to travel and publicity minister Bryan Cathcart and an honour guard from Old Fort Henry.

The guns were moved to make way for the new Seaway Towers hotel on Lake Shore boulevard.

James Ault, M.P.P. and vice-chairman of the Ontario St. Lawrence Development Commission, said one of the cannon would be placed in the miiltary museum at Fort Henry and the other would be located at the Crysler Farm memorial at Upper Canada Village.

The guns are six-pounder muzzle loaders similar to the ones used by Canadian and British forces during the War of 1812.

The Battle of Crysler's Farm on November 1, 1813, was a decisive victory in that war for the 100 soldiers of the King who dedeated a force of 3,500 Americans.

Mrs Orrin Gallinger

A well known area resident, Mrs Orrin Gallinger, died suddenly at Winchester Memorial Hospital where she had been a patient for a week.

The former Mabel Gertrude Barkley was a daughter of the late Mr and Mrs William Barkley, of Dunbar. She was twice married. Her first husband was Frank Shaw of that area. She later married Orrin Gallinger, who predeceased her some years ago.

Surviving are one son, Hubert Shaw, of Dunbar; two brothers, Arthur Barkley and Bernice Barkley, both of Chesterville. She also leaves two sisters, Mrs Ada Russell and Mrs Maude Barkley, both of Morrisburg.

The funeral service was held at Williamsburg United Church, with Rev Wellwood Adam officiating. Burial was in Maple Ridge Cemetery.

Pall bearers were Garnet Prunner, Donald Prunner, Garnet Barkley, Graham Garlough, Clarves Scharf and Lyall Strader.

Ontario's 1963 licences on sale December 10

Ontario's 1963 licence plates, vehicle perimts and licences will go on sale December 10, three weeks before the opening date of past years, Transport Minister Leslie Rowntree said recently.

The purpose of advancing the date from the traditional January 1st date is to make it more convenient for motorists to purchase licences, Mr Rowntree told delegates to a Department of Transport Road Safety Workshop. The closing date will be March 13, about the same as past years.

"The new opening date of December 10 has many advantages for the motoring public and for the economy of our province," he said. "It will serve the convenience and budgets of all motorists and will save money for those who purchase vehicles in December and will encourage the sale of new vehicles during that period. In addition, it will be helpful to those citizens who spend part of the winter in the south."

The rapid increase in the number of vehicles on Ontario roads, with a consequent increase in crowd's and line-ups in issuing offices, was a factor in the Department's decision to lengthen the issuing period. The number of motor vehicles has doubled since 1950 to the present estimated total of 2,200,000.

Mr Rowntree said the longer issuing period would serve as an intermediate step in the public interest while the Department of Transport continues to develop the punch-card system that will make it possible to issue driver's licences on the birth of each motorist.

The 1963 licence plates will have white lettering on a black background.

Wallpaper paste that gets on wood molding should be removed before it has a chance to dry and harden. A good way to take it off is with a sponge dampened in water.

When pouring concrete into a hole made in dry earth, dampen the earth or line it with waterproof building paper to prevent the earth absorbing the moisture out of the concrete before the concrete has had a chance to set hard.

Hallowe'en, 1962

The small fry, carrying small sacks, large bags and boxes, made the usual haul. The not-so-small fry carried the usual array of machinery and odds and ends to that October 31st Mecca, the town square.

The town crew worked diligently and had things back to normal in record time.
