PRESBYTERY OF BROCKVILLE

The Presbytery of Brockville of the Presbyterian Church in Canada held its September quarterly meeting in First Church, Brockville, on Tuesday, the 8th inst. There was a splendid attendance of members at both the forenoon and afternoon sessions.

The Moderator, the Rev. W. J. Hurlow of Kemptville, presided and the Rev. Wm. Merrilees, of Iroquois acted as Clerk. A large docket of business, largely of a routine nature, was disposed of. The reports from various standing committees were of a very gratifying nature and showed that good progress was being made in the work of the church.

Greetings from the Presbytery of Cape Breton and Newfoundland were conveyed by Dr M M. MacOdrum, of Sydney, N.S., who was in attendance at the meeting, and these were cordially reciprocated.

The reports of the Commissioners to the recent General Assembly were of a most heartening kind and indicated the success which is attending the work of the Church as a whole

The work done during the summer by Mr. Don. B. MacKay, B.A., in the Stones Corners Mission Field was highly commended and it was agreed to certify him as a student of the church.

The Rev. N. A. MacLeod, Ph.D., D.D., of Brockville, was elected as Moderator for the ensuing year and the Rev. Wm Merrilees, of Iroquois, wes re-elected as Clerk-Treasurer The next regular meeting of th Presbytery was appointed to be held in St. Andrew's Church, Cardinal, on the first Tuesday in December next at 10.30 o'clock forenoon.

MERCHANTS VICTIMIZED

Two Brockville merchants were victimized on Saturday by a travelling couple, presumed to be man and wife. In one store the man purchased a quantity of clothing for which he tendered what appeared to be a certified cheque on the Bank of Montreal for $60. In a second store the woman made some purchase tendering a cheque for 540. On reopening of the banks Tuesday both cheques were found to be worthless.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON XII.—September 20.

CHRISTIAN LIVING.—Romans 12.

PRINTED TEXT

Romans 12: 1-3, 9-21.

GOLDEN TEXT

Christ liveth in me. Gal. 2: 20.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time.—The Epistle to the Romans was written in A.D. 57.

Place.—This epistle was written from the city of Corinth, while Paul was on his third missionary journey, and was written to the Christian believers living at Rome.

1. I beseech you therefore, brethren. Never once does Paul command his readers; his favorite word is beseech (Eph. 5: 1; 1 Thess. 4: 1). By the mercies of God. (See 2 Cor. 1: 3). These mercies refer to all the wonderful promises and truths recorded by the apostle in the preceding eleven chapters. To present your bodies. "Christianity does not condemn the body, but demands that the body shall be purified and be united with Christ. A living sacrifice. This is in contrast to the dead sacrifices of slain animals presented in the temple. Our sacrifice has to do with our daily life. Holy acceptable to God, which is your spiritual service. The margin here is probably much better when it substitutes "belonging to the reason" for the word "spiritual." The service we give to God is not an automatic one, but one that results when we begin to comprehend what God has done for us.

2. And be not fashioned according to this world. "The spirit of this present age is absolute selfishness as contrasted with divine love. Its object is the gratification of self, rather than the doing of the will of God, and its authority springs from Satan because it has refused the one true Ruler of the Universe. By the renewing of your mind. Our minds are no longer to be enslaved by our fleshly nature, but are to be renewed and purified by the Holy Spirit. That ye may prove. "The result of this purification is to make the intellect, which is the seat of moral judgment, true and exact in judging on spiritual and moral questions." What is the good and acceptable and perfect will of God? The will of God is good because it comes from God, who, alone, doeth good, and because, in our doing it, only good can possibly result (Deut. 10: 13; 28: 63; 30: 5). By "acceptable" is meant the impression produced on us when we contemplate his will, as realized in our life.

For I say, through the grace that was given me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think. Satan fell because he became proud and was determined to take the very place of God in heaven; our first parents fell when Satan appealed to their pride in telling them they could be as gods. In the renewed life of the Christian, pride is the first thing that must be got rid of. But so think as to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to each man a measure of faith. "The wise and prudent man will remember that his position in the community is dependent, not on any merit of his own, but on the measure of his faith, and that faith is the gift of God. Faith is used here for all those gifts which are given to man, with, or as the result of, his faith."

9. Love without hypocrisy simply means love that is sincere, that is not put on. Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good. Charles Hodge has finely interpreted this sentence in his paraphrase: "A striving to avoid what is injurious to others and earnestly endeavoring to do whatever is kind and useful."

10. In love of the brethren be tenderly affectioned one to another. The word translated "tenderly affectioned" comes from a verb which denotes "the delicate attentions mutually rendered by those who cherish one another with natural affection, as parents and children, brothers and sisters. The apostle, by using this term, wishes to give to the love of the members of the church to one another the tender character of a family affection." In honor preferring one another. The word here translated "prefer" means "to go ahead," "to lead." "It is not only an injunction of politeness, but that in all acts of respect and kindness, we should take the lead.

11. In diligence not slothful. (See Eccles. 9: 10). Fervent in spirit; serving the Lord. The reference here is probably to the human spirit within a man.

12. Rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation. Persecution would be breaking upon the Roman church within ten years after this letter was written. Continuing steadfastly in prayer. "The idea expressed by the word steadfast is that of firm adherence and constant waiting.

13. Communicating to the necessities of the saints; given to hospitality. Hospitality has always been appreciated by those receiving it, but this was especially the case in the first few centuries of the church when Christians were so often ridiculed, driven away, and, later, put to death.

14. Bless them that persecute you; bless, and curse not. See the teaching of our Lord regarding this most difficult virtue in Matt. 5: 10, 11, and our Lord's own practice of such a lofty ideal in Luke 23: 34.

15. Rejoice with them that rejoice; weep with them that weep. Cf. 1 Cor. 12: 26. See also the account of our Lord at Cana (John 2: 1-12), and at Bethany (John 11: 1-44). If we are members of one body, we have the same wishes and the same feelings. The joy of one member is the joy of another; the sorrow of one should be the sorrow of all.

16. Be of the same mind one toward another. The word here translated "mind" really means a mental and moral disposition. Set not your mind on high things, but condescend to things that are lowly. Be not wise in your own conceits. The word here translated "condescend" does not mean, as the reader would at first take it to mean, to have an attitude of patronage, but it means that we are to be carried along with those who are of a lowly place in life, i.e., we are not to assume an attitude of arrogance and superiority over those who may not be so fortunate as we are in the things of this life, and especially in our service in the church.

17. Render to no man evil for evil. Take thought for things honorable in the sight of all men. (See Prov. 3: 4; 2 Cor. 8: 21). Our Lord was one who, when reviled, reviled not again (1 Pet. 2: 23).

18. If it be possible, as much as in you lieth, be at peace with all men. (See Matt. 5: 9). Of course there are occasions when Christians, because of the attitude of other people, are prevented from being at peace. The emphasis here is on the pronoun you. Let it never be said that we are responsible for antagonisms and bitterness.

19. Avenge not yourselves, beloved, but give place unto the wrath of God: fos it is written, Vengeance belongeth unto me: I will recompense, said the Lord. The quotation here is from Deut. 32: 35. We are to stand out of the way and leave the matter of vengeance with God, whose prerogative it is alone to punish.

20. But if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him to drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head. To heap coals to fire upon any one is a punishment which no one can bear. Kindness is no less effectual. The most malignant enemy cannot always withstand it. The true and Christian method to subdue an enemy is to 'overcome evil with good.'"

21. Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good. If our life is filled with good, the evil against which we must struggle will then more easily be overcome. A person earnest in doing good does not have time or inclination to practise evil. A life that is filled with good has no place for the incoming of evil thoughts and evil desires.

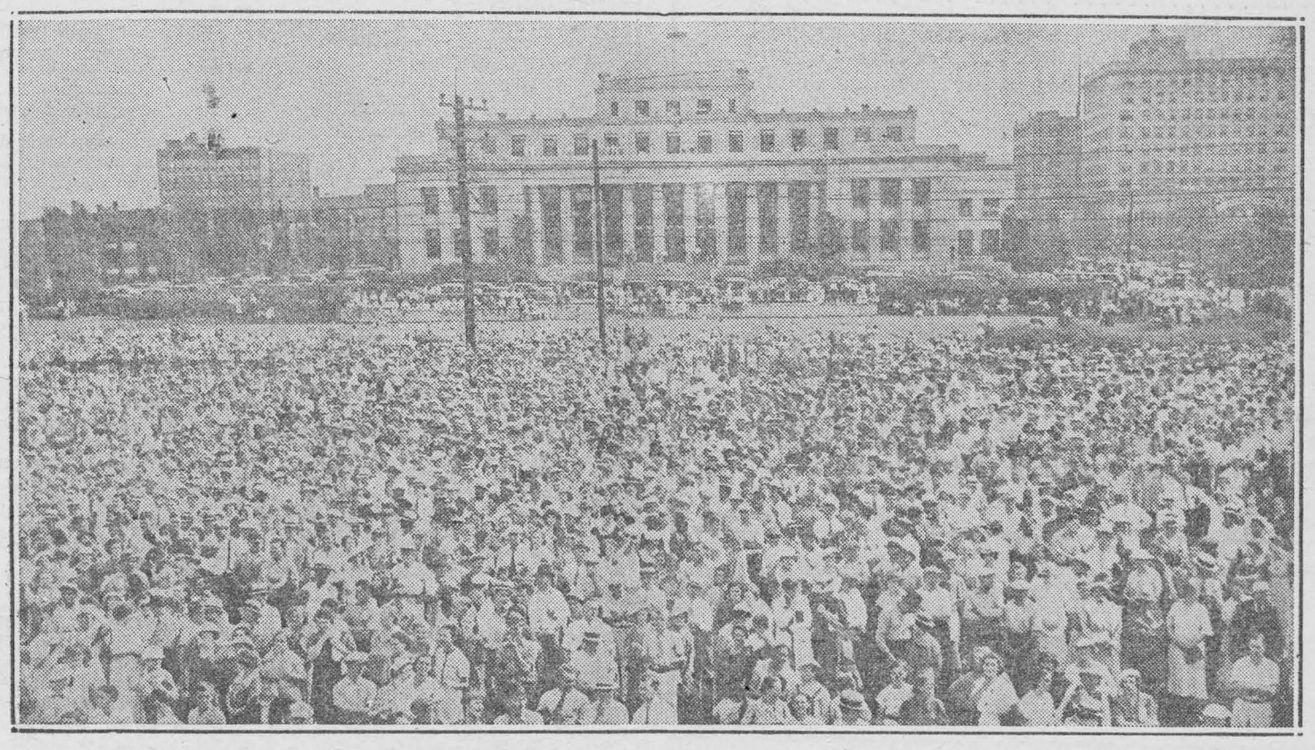

DURING SIEGE OF IRUN

YOUNG BRITISHERS GET RUTHIAN TOUCH

Baseball has taken great strides in England this summer with the importation of several Canadian and United States players and coaches. Here is a picture taken at White City Stadium, London, showing "Doc" Hayden, former minor league player, coaching recruits in the art of "hitting the ball on the nose." More than 100 boys gathered at the stadium for instruction on various points of the pastime.

Wrong filling station was selected by this car which crashed into beer parlor in best gate-crash fashion after driver lost control in Westbury, L.I. Three persons were hurt and entrance suffered severe enlargement.

"I Can't"—Not In His Vocabulary

"It can't be done."

"I can't make a speech." "I can't play bridge." "I can't make tea biscuits." "I can't play golf." "I can't swim." "I can't find a job."

But 27-year-old Russell Darbo does not know how to say, "I cant."

Russell Darbo, a law student enrolled in the University of California, has been blind since he picked at some dynamite caps when he was 15. A few days ago the New York Times discovered that he had hitch-hiked across the continent. His only companion was Mia, a shepherd dog, trained by the Seeing-Eye in Morristown, N.J., as a guide and protector for the blind.

Darbo wanted to be treated as a normal person, so he undertook what ordinarily would be considered an adventure for a normal person. Early in June he and Mia left Berkeley, Cal., despite the disapproval of friends. With only $38, a small radio, a few titbits in his knapsack, Darbo and Mia struck out for New York City. A distance of about 3,400 miles the two travelled, through thick traffic, across desert and waste land, but only once, 25 miles out of Reno, Nevada, was there any desire to turn back. Mia stuck by faithfully, even though her paws were blistered. They often walked 30 miles a day.

Darbo found it difficult at times to get lodgings because of restrictions against dogs. Much of the resting hours were spent at branches of the Y.M.C.A. They were 33 days on the road.

"My advice to all men is to go ahead and get married. I have no doubt it's the only sensible way of life. I remain a bachelor, though."—Colonel Jacob Ruppert.

"There are no more patronizing smiles in Europe and Asia on the subject of American diplomacy."—Hugh S. Johnson.

FINANCIAL FLASHES

New Augarita Porcupine Mines has completed the first diamond drill hole on its property adjoining Dome in the Porcupine area, and the core, [illegible] feet of which was in quartz, has been sent out for assay purposes. The second drill hole is now being put down. The drills have been set up to explore the vein on which old records of the company show that values ranging from $6.25 for a core length of 6 feet to as high as $15.28 for a length of 40 feet were secured. The present diamond drilling programme is designed to seek confirmation of the previously reported values, and to extend the limits of the examination previously made.

Moffat-Hall Mining Co., adjoining Bidgood Kirkland in the Eastern Kirkland Lake field, has carried on approximately 1,300 feet of drifting in the new workings. A. M. Potter, mine manager, reports that in working down the raise from the 425 to the 500 foot level an assay of $31.40 in gold per ton was obtained across the full drift width.

Faulkenham Lake Gold Mines has completed three drill holes in No. 1 vein and results secured give every indication that the rich surface showing is continuing to depth. No. 1 hole passed through 25 feet of well mineralized vein material, while No. 2 encountered six feet of quartz well mineralized with free gold showing in two and a half feet of core. No. 3 cut two veins, one two feet wide and another one foot wide. Drilling is continuing to determine the length and locations of the mineralized bodies at depth and to assist in locating a site for the proposed shaft. Surface work is proceeding on the Pipestone Bay group of 14 claims with drilling to commence as soon as possible.

The drift on the 200 foot level at Golden Gate Mining Co. has advanced for a distance of about 60 feet with high values in gold persisting. The orebody was previously intersected in a crosscut which is being driven to intersect a high grade discovery opened up on surface some 200 feet from the shaft. The crosscut to this vein is continuing. Drilling from the 350-foot level intersected favorable conditions and drilling will now be undertaken from upper levels.

Diamond drilling is continuing on the Mylamaque Gold Mines property adjoining Lamaque Gold Mines in the Bourlamaque section of Quebec. Drilling in the eastern section of the property has intersected a new vein showing good mineralization. Immediately on completion of the present drill campaign an enlarged development programme will be proceeded with.

McManus Red Lake Gold Mines, holding 722 acres in the Red Lake area about half a mile east of Howey, is making a public offering of shares to provide finances for a campaign of exploration. The claims were originally staked by Gus McManus in 1922 and were the first discovery in the district. Surface work has shown four breaks, one of which has been proven across four claims with widths of from 16 to 20 feet. Present plans call for the sending in of a crew immediately to complete surface exploration. The ground will be groomed for diamond drilling, to be carried out in conjunction with the sinking of a series of deep test pits.

An offering of 600,000 shares of Boyd Kirkland Gold Mines, a new incorporation, is being made to provide funds for development of the Company's property in the Kirkland Lake area. The property comprising 12 claims in Lebel t[illegible]ship is located approximately 2 miles east land. The company proposed a thorough surface examination of the property including trenching and blasting preliminary to a programme of diamond drilling. From the results of the drilling, the future development of the property will be planned including shaft sinking and underground worl. Development to date has been mostly on claim L6994, according to T. R. Buchanan, consulting engineer, where stripping and test-pitig has been carrie dout on 3 parallel shearings in a zone probably 150 ft. wide. The veins have been from to 10 ft. A quartz vein 12 ft. 1,000 ft. and show widths ranging from 8 to 10 ft. A quarter vein 12 ft. wide and striking east and west has been discovered on claim L25951. The company is capitalized at 3,000,000 s[illegible] of which 900,000 were issued for properties. Officers and directors include Gordon F. Summers, president; Colin A. Campbell, vice-president; W. R. Salter, secretary-treasurer; Adelard Beauchemin, J. Edwards, D. M. H. Lebel, J. A. Griffith and R. P. Thompson, directors.

CAUSE OF CANCER

Cancer is a result of a wild growth of normal cells of the body, and like every other characteristic of the body, is started by heredity plus environment, both in born conditions and variations in surroundings playing their part said Dr. E. C. MacDowell, of the Department of Genetics. Carnegie Institution of Washington, in a recent address before the American Institute. Dr. MacDowell has been studying the cause of leukemia, a disease produced by the wild growth of the white cells of the blood which has defied all known treatments.

Dr. MacDowell has raised through scores of generations of close interbreeding a black strain of mice which is so susceptible to leukemia that nine out of every ten will develop the disease, while a light strain is so free of it that only about one out of 100 will get it.

"In the black mice," Dr. MacDowell explained, "the heredity predisposing to leukemia is strong, but under the conditions met by one out of ten it is overbalanced and leukemia fails to appear. But the offspring of these mice that escape leukemia have just as much leukemia as the offspring of leukemia parents. In the light-colored mice the heredity tending toward leukemia is weak, and it is expressed only under rare conditions met by one out of 100.

"When heredity is strong the environment is less important; when heredity is weak the environment becomes exceedingly important. This is true for leukemia and for other traits. Think of this the next time you hear some one claiming 'heredity is all that matters' and think of this again when you are told 'environment decides everything.'"

Wheat Champion's Crop Suffers Drought Damage

Stavely, Alta. — Frelan Wilford, winner of the world's wheat king title at Chicago in 1935, won't defend his crown this year. He said he will not be threshing any wheat good enough for show purposes.

What he termed the "most serious drought I have witnessed in the 33 years of my residence in Alberta," has cut his wheat crop on his farm near this southern Alberta town to 11 bushels an acre. His wheat, he said, probably will grade No. 2 northern.

PROBLEMS OF EVERY DAY LIFE

By Dr. M. M. Lappin

A WAYWARD HUSBAND

"I have a husband I cannot understand," begins a letter—in some respects very pathetic—which I have just received from a woman who has been married for nearly thirty years. Apparently, off and on, her husband has been wont to go off and have little flirtations with other women. He has one of his spells now and is "going crazy over an old maid". "The gossip is nearly killing me, what can I do?" she asks.

Well, it is one of those cases in which a personal interview would be helpful, and without such an interview, it is difficult to know what to advise. Of course, I might be able to get to the root of this woman's problem through a protracted period of correspondence in which I could ask her many questions and weigh up her answers. But that takes time and she is desperate.

In the first place, I should like her to be quite sure she is not misjudging the situation and making it worse than it is. The human mind is capable of playing some queer tricks, and sometimes, one little indiscretion by someone very close to us, is enough to set our imagination working, and imagination can go a long way.

In the second place, I would ask her to face up to her own position frankly and ask herself if she has unconsciously said or done anything at any time to create the rift between her husband and herself. If she finds she has, then she should immediately take steps to put that right.

If she is quite sure that she is in no way responsible for her husband's misconduct then she should face him frankly on the matter and ask his reasons, taking care to point out the harm the gossip is doing to both of them and what a nerve-wracking ordeal it is for her. Perhaps she has some trusted relative or friend who could be present when she approaches the subject. Of course, she will have to study to choose a time when her husband is in a reasonably good mood. Sometimes the appeal direct to a man's sense of chivalry works wonders.

I think, however, that in this particular case, much more could be accomplished through common kindness. My correspondent says "I feel I can never forgive him", and that betrays a spirit o fbitterness an dresentment. She will never win back the lost love of her husband so long as she harbors that spirit. If she will get rid of her feeling of resentment, and set herself out deliberately to be kind and attentive to him and lavish her love upon him, that, I believe, will do more good than anything else.

Of course the husband must never be made to feel that a deliberate effort is being made to win back his love. If he is made conscious of undue attention, it ma yspoil the whole thing. In this connection, may I remind my correspondent that soem men need a little mothering, but care must be exercised tha tit is not overdone.

Murdering Our Language

"Vacationing" is one of the most unpleasant words in the English or rather the American language, observes the Toronto Mail and Empire. Yet it was used twice in American newspaper service despatches recently in the Canadian dailies. We have already objected to another barbarous innovation, namely, the use of the newly coined "messaging" to signify "notifying." Still another atrocity which has crept into cable despatches lately has to do with the manhandling of the word "source." "Such and such a source expresses the opinion, etc." If this tendency to economize the telegraphic costs continues to spread the English tongue will be hopelessly degraded and the public taste ruined.

Mrs. Hepburn Confident Of Accomplishing Aim

New York.—Mrs. Katharine Hepburn, birth control advocate and mother of the actress of the same name, returned to New York from Europe expressing confidence "we will win out in our fight for birth control."

Accompanying her on her trip, during which she conferred with Dr. Gerta Kelberg, in charge of the birth control clinic at the City hospital in Stockholm, Sweden, were two of her daughters, Peggy and Marian. They toured both Sweden and Denmark by automobile.

MAN OF FUTURE

Hamilton, N.Y.—Man in his evolution may be headed for an all-fours posture; or for a survival of only the slim-waisted; or for a race that forgets its three square meals and eats frequently and lightly.

The reasons were advanced by Dr. Donald A. Laird, professor of psychology at Colgate University, in the Medical Record.

He reports that after finding that office workers slowed down and made increased errors the first hour after lunch, he experimented with Colgate students to learn whether blood drawn from the head by digestion explained the dullness.

Students did mental arithmetic after eating and while liyng with their heads lower than their feet. In this position they were better than with heads higher than feet. Dr. Laird found the explanation in the "splanchnic reservoir," the area where the blood gathers around the viscera.

Digestion, he stated, draws blood from the brain to the splanchnic reservoir temporarily. Feet above head drain it back to the brain.

"In the assumption of an upright position through evolution," Dr. Laird states, "homo sapiens has gained advantages and suffered losses. If mankind went around on all fours the blood supply of the brain would be better.

"The superior size of the human brain may be an overcompensation to make up for this slowing and in accuracy the upright position has brought in its wake. Sleep may be more important for men than animals because the horizontal position permits an increased flow of blood to the brain.

"It is interesting to conjecture whether the future evolution of human beings will be first into a stooped position and then later into a quadruped walking on all fours or whether through a survival of the fittest we will become a race which eats lightly but frequently, or whether survival will come to the narrow-waisted with a small splanchnic reservoir for shunting blood away from their brain."

CITY MEN ON FARMS

Says the (Owen Sound Sun-Times) It must be remembered that the majority of the men who are sent to farms are not farm hardened. They have been living on too much starchy food. Their hands are soft and blister easily, and they cannot work the long hours without becoming more or less exhausted. These are things every farmer should consider. It takes time for a city man to accustom himself to the handling of farm implements. He cannot be expected to go off the city streets and pitch hay all day. It is physically impossible for him to do so. Such men should be given a fair chance to condition themselves.

Postage Is Saved By Arctic People

Anchorage, Alaska.—Hugh Brewster, aeronautics inspector just returned from Kotzebue, Alaska's northernmost aviation base, explained how the Eskimos save the six cents it costs to send an air mail letter.

"Planes in the Far North are covered with penciled messages. When an Eskimo learns that a ship is going to a town where he has a friend, he writes a note on the tail. When the ship lands, Eskimos crowd around reading all notes, looking for one from a friend."

The Shortest Poem

What is the world's shortest poem? There is one by George MacDonald:

"Come Home."

But another (by Walt Whitman) is still shorter:

"I:
Why?"

Most of us have asked Walt Whitman's question, but few of us so briefly. Surely there cannot be any shorter poems than these, one of eight letters, and one of four!

But if there is, well than, it must be short.

SPIRIT OF THE NORTH

Great Spirit of the North, I love you so,
Your mighty breath that speaks of God,
Your biting winds that make men strong
And fill with iron their noble blood.

Spirit of the North, I see you, girt
In friendship's stronger clasp,
In smiles of gold that grip the heart
With a strength that makes one gasp.

Spirit of the North, your strong sons go
Where mighty rivers run,
To lay the gold that's ages old,
Bare 'neath the wintry sun.

Spirit of the North, your sons go forth
To challenge the ice-locked dawn,
Strong as the rock that binds your streams,
Yet gentle as the fawn.

Spirit of the North, your strong built men,
With courage red that cannot fail,
Wage ceaseless battle on Life's high hills,
Yet brothers are on Life's great trail.

STYLE FLASH

NEW YORK—So far we have not had to abandon those widened shoulders that create the pleasing optical illusion of slim hips. There is still a tendency to build them out with folds and pleats, or with a squarish cut. In most cases a bit of padding encourages them to hold their shape.

There is no rule for skirts; they are straight and narrow or flaring. You have but to choose the silhouette you prefer. But the edict has gone out that they must be short—at least 13 inches off!

Maple Sugar and Syrup

Canada's maple trees are estimated to have yielded maple syrup and maple sugar to the value of $3,713,781 during the 1936 season, an increase of 5.4 per cent. over 1935. The production of maple syrup is placed at 2,022,719 gallons valued at $2,655,719 and the output of maple sugar is estimated at 9,231,803 pounds valued at $1,058,062. In 1935 the production of maple syrup was 2,250,769 gallons valued at $2,782,275, while maple sugar production amounted to 6,538,960 pounds valued at $740,145. The 1936 valued at $740,145. The 1936 season was not quite so favorable as in 1935 in the Maritime Provinces and Ontario because of unusual weather conditions with very little frost in the ground and few night frosts, although in some districts of Ontario there was a good run of sap, with syrup of excellent quality.

Blacklist Dodder

Dodder, a parasitic weed found in some clover fifelds of the warmer sections of Ontario is to be put on the black list by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, seed authorities learn. Seed of Dodder is described as round, about the same size as small mustard and greyish brown or yellow in appearance. The plant is practically leafless and the small thread-like stems wind themselves about the clover plant. It is understood that henceforth no clover seed containing dodder will be allowed Sale in Canada. As most clover seed importing countries have similar regulations against the weed this means that any seed containing it will now be practically unsaleable. Farmers with dodder-infested fields are advised to cut for hay, and patches of the weed should be cut and burned. Warm open falls, with no early frost favor the spread of the weed.

Creamery Butter Grading
In Effect September 1st.

All creamery butter sold in prints in Ontario, beginning September 1, must be marked according to grade and will be subject to rigid inspection by the staff of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The prints must be plainly marked and must adhere to the grade so marked. The grades will be as follows: First, Second and Third Grade, and No Grade

A creamery official stated that the step would be of great benefit both to the consumer and those creameries which have maintained a correct grading of butter voluntarily. Many creameries have been offering a First Grade butter for many years, he said, but some have been slipping in Second Grade butter as First Grade.

With close inspection not only would the grading be deliable and give the consumer a better guarantee of quality but it may also eliminate improper storage of butter, which allows grades to deteroriate

Many creameries have advocated the new regulations for some time and were largely responsible for them being adopted by the government, the local official said.

The system of inspection will be that government inspectors will check butter wrapped and graded at creameries and also in stores where it is being handed over the counter. The latter may eliminate improper storage, he said, as butter not kept in refrigerators, or kept near fish or other odorous merchandise will become tainted and will not pass according to the grade marked.

Current Crop Report

Bruce County reports lamb prices holding up well and returns satisfactory. Hog prices although now closer in line with current feed prices, are still gratifying. The yield of oats in Hurton County is rather disappointing, with averages from 20 to 25 bushels per acre. Dealers there are paying 90 cents for barley and 95 cents for wheat delivered. Wellington has had some rain, described as a godsend to late potatoes, roots, pastures and to those now preparing for fall wheat. Yields in Haldimand are generally quite low, particularly spring crops. Total yields of 200 to 300 bushels on 100-acre farms are reported. Very few catches of small seeds are in evidence and as a result there is a great deal of after-harvest cultivation being carried on. A heavy increase in acreage of fall wheat is contemplated Lincoln County reports pullets coming into production. Roosters weighing from 3 to 7 pounds are in demand at present and quite plentiful. The prevailing prices for peaches there is now 40 cents for sixes, with best quality retailing at 50 cents. Potatoes hold at around $1.75 per bushel, cauliflower at $2.75 per dozen and large cabbage $1.50 per dozen. There will be a lot of after-harvest cultivation done this year in Ontario County The grain crop in Prince Edward is the smallest in years. A large number of brood sows are being marketed each week and the demand for springer and fresh cows keeps keen In Victoria County the high price for malting barley is satisfactory to some farmers, who have a fair yield of good quality. Alsike is being quoted at around $8.00 Pastures there are showing improvement. Turnips and corn, as well as late buckwheat, will also be helped. The bovine T. B. Free Area Campaign in Victoria is progressing very well. York County reports light yields of inferior quality grain, with low feeding value.

Corn Borer Increasing

Various reports have appeared regarding the effect of the corn borer on the 1936 crop. Appearently there has been considerably more activity on the part of the moths than for several years past, and the entomologists emphasize the importance of a thorough clean-up of the corn fields in order to prevent a return of conditions as we had them in the corn--growing district some ten years ago. The following paragraphs were written by George M. Stirrett, the Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Chatham:

An increase in the numbers of corn borers in the present corn crop is indicated by the number of moths in flight and the number of eggs laid per plant in experimental plots of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory at Chatham during the present season.

The moths observed in the plots increased from 27 in 1934 and 29 in 1935 to 132 during the present year, while the number of eggs laid per plant increased from .5 in 1934 and 1.9 in 1935 to 13.8 in the present year.

It is too early yet to secure the mortality of larvae after hatching and before they become established in the corn plant. The infestation in the autumn depends to a large extent upon the success of the borer in entering the plant. However, at the present time, we know that during the flight season this year more moths laid considerably more eggs per plant than during the last two years

The increase in the number of borers forecast above does not mean that the corn crop will be ruined, and that we will have returned to the conditions of 1925-26. It means only that in some fields borers will be conspicious and do more damage than during the past two years, and that in other fields they will be more numerous but still do little damage There is a warning, however, in the predicted increase in that growers should realie thapt, although there will not be much commercial damage this year, the borer under favorable conditions, will increase markedly, and if two or three such seasons occur in succession it may increase enough to ruin the crop if strict clean-up measures are not practised, year after year.

INTERNATIONAL PLOWING MATCH

Further definite indications that the 24th annual International Plowing Match and Farm Machinery Demonstration to be held at Cornwall, from Oct. 6th to 9th was to be "the biggest and best ever" were received this week by J. A. Carrell, Secretary-Manager of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, in the form of an unprecedented number of applications for exhibition space in the concession area.

"This year's 'Tented City', as the area is always known," stated Mr. Carroll, "will house the largest and most complete exhibition of farm implements and equipment that has ever been assembled in Canada."

He said that the committee had found it necessary to revise the ground plan for the 'Tented City' so that it could readily be expanded to accommodate the many exhibitors who were applying for space. More than 30 industrial and agricultural organizations had been granted concessions, Mr Carroll stated, as well as a great many concessionaires whose chief concern would be to see that the vast throng of 100,000 persons who will attend the match are well-fed.

Of the many new features being introduced at this year's match which are expected to attract wide inerest and attention, Mr Carroll remarked, are the demonstrations to be given by ex-champion plowmen and Dr. E. S Hopkins, chief of field husbandry for the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

The plow demonstration by experienced match plowmen and capable demonstrators, will be conducted each day near the match headquarters. Differences between types of plows will be explained and plow settings will be discussed and actually demonstrated. This year will be the first time this feature has been included on the program of the International Match, Mr. Carroll pointed out.

Defintie plans are still to be announced, he said, for the scientific agricultural work which will be carried on at the match by Dr. Hopkins but demonstrations have been arranged for each day on land near the headquarters which will show the results of tillage investigations which have been carried out by the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa and tests will be made to determine the varying amounts of horse-power required for implements of diffferent types set in a variety of ways.

Land will be provided at a convenient location on which manufacturers will demonstrate agricultural implements of every description and the "exercise paddock" for high-spirited but controllable tractors will again be a feature of interest

Multiple-hitch demonstrations, consisting of three to five horses working in one team, properly hitched and driven, will be given each afternoon and the different operations exhibited by competent experts

NEW HALL PLANNED

Mr. H. R Wallace, president of the Matilda Community Association presided at a meeting of the directorate in Gilson's hall on Saturday evening, with C. A Strader as secretary. Mrs. Douglas Hanson, president of the Matilda Women's Institute, addressed the meeting re the erection of a contemplated new hall on the Community Park grounds, and was favorably received. It was moved by Dr T. Hamilton, seconded by Mr. O. Wylie, and unanimously carried, that the Matilda Community Association favors the erection of a hall on the Community Park, and would, in no way, interfere with any activities sponsored by the Women's Institute. A committee was appointed, consisting of the President and Messrs. R. Ennis, P. Locke, Wm. Hanes and Ed. Doddridge to make arrangements for both for the rural school fair to be held this month. The committee on repair of the cenotaph reported their work completed and the Memorial gateway has a much better appearance

MEETING HELD BY WINCHESTER LEGION

At a meeting of the Winchester branch of the Canadian Legion held in the club rooms on Friday evening, and presided over by the president, E. J. Spinks, with Ernest R. Summers in the secretary's chair, plans for co-operating with the Veterans' Assistance Commission were made. A letter, received from the Dominion secretary, J. R. Bowler, outlined the work of the new commission, recently appointed by Major C. G. Power, minister of pensions and national health. A Dominion-wide investigation is to be made in order to ascertain the extent of unemployment among war veterans When this is completde, veterans who require work will be classified and recommendations made according to their ability. Each branch of the legion is to be responsible for carrying out the investigation in its district.

The Winchester branch will be responsible for Vernon, Mountain Station, South Mountain, Chesterville Berwick, Finch, Crysler, Winchester and other smaller centres.

WINCHESTER TOWNSHIP COUNCIL DISSATISFIED

At a regular meeting of Winchester Township Council, held in the council chambers Monday, dissatisfaction was expressed regarding the methods being used to repair the boundary road between Winchester and Osgoode townships. A resolution to this effect was passed. The clerk was authorized to notify the Osgoode council of the resolution and to suggest that they use crushed stone for repairing this road in future

F. M Eagleson, the township engineer, reported that the work on the main drain of the Castore system had been completed, but that some work still remained unfinished on some of the branches.

ALLAN—BELLINGER

One of the season's most fashionable weddings took place at high noon on Saturday, at the home of the bride's parents, Winchester, when Miss Olive Jean Bellinger, anly daughter of Mr. and Mrs Silas Bellinger, was united in marriage to Herbert Anson Allan, son of Mrs. Thomas Allan and the late Mr. Allan, of Noranda, Que.

An arch of green foliage, interspersed with clusters of red berries and banked on each side with gladioli and petunias, with snow-on-the-mountain as a background, made a beautiful setting for the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. W. S. Atchison, pastor of the United church. As the bridal party took its place under the arch, Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Mrs. Frank Hogaboam.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in a gown of white silk net over satin, made with a close-fitting bodice and high neck. The bouffant skirt had a slight train. The puffed sleeves narrowed at the elbows and fell in points over the hands. The folds of her dainty tulle veil were held on her head underneath a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses, zinnias and baby's breath White satin slippers completed her marriage costume.

Mrs. C. K. Newton, of Lindsay, sister of the groom, was matron of honor.

Mr C. P. Newton of Lindsay acted as groomsman

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful silver fox fur.

Following the ceremony a buffet lunchheon was served to over 40 guests. The table was laid on a beautiful linen cloth and was centered with a three-tier wedding cake. Yellow and white paper was used effectively for decorating with yellow marigold predominating. Tall yellow tapers were used for lighting. Those assisting in serving were Miss Annie Strader, Miss Iva Bell, Miss Bessie Holmes of Reaboro, Ont., and Mr. Andy Allan, of Amos, Que.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Allan left by motor on a trip to Lindsay, Toronto and Northern Ontario points. The bride's travelling costume consisted of a monet blue knitted swagger suit, blue georgette blouse, blue hat, shoes and gloves, and a silver fox fur, the gift of the groom. On their return they will reside at Noranda, Que.

TOO SOON A BRIDE

By MARJORIE B. PEREGRINE

She thought she had escaped it forever. She might have known better — might have known the stanty would never let her get away. It had caught Ma and Pa, had dragged them down from self-respecting farm people to a state of sodden wretchedness. Now it was going to drag her down, too. It couldn't. She wouldn't let it.

"I can't go back to the stanty, Pa."

Joel Brewster bent the buggy whip between his hands, eyeing it thoughtfully.

"No? Well, why can't you? Ye're graduated, ain't ye? Done tonight. I let you get away with four years of this schoolin' nonsense. Now it's time you come home and helped your Ma."

"But Pa, I want to get a job. I'll help with money."

Pa snapped the whip.

"You'll do what I tell you," he rumbled, harshly. "You'll come home after your graduation or I'll be here to larrup the life out of ye. I tell you, yer Ma's sick. You've got to come home and take care of her!"

Lola, white-faced and restrained, broke the news to Mrs. Piper.

"You can't go back to that place, Lola. You simply can't!" Mrs. Piper protested.

"I've thought about it all," Lola spoke slowly, painfully. "I can't see any way out. Legally, I suppose, Pa's got a right to my services. I don't know. I don't care. If it wasn't for Ma, I'd fight him. But I can't desert Ma." Lola's eyes filled with tears. "She's poor and worn out, Mrs. Piper, but she's the grandest mother in the world."

Graduation was like a funeral service to Lola—the burial of all her hopes. She sat through the ceremony like a thing of stone, hearing notthing, seeing nothing but the shadow of the shanty.

Only when Jerry Hughes claimed her after the last farewells had been said, did Lola revive. She looked into his strong face and knew that, for her, the world lived in his smile.

They walked down the high-school steps, out to his waiting roadster. In the car, Lola wrapped her hands about his arm and pressed her face close to the sleeve of his coat.

"It was dear of you to come," she whispered.

Jerry put one hand over hers and said tenderly: "I'd endure a dozen graduation orators just for a moment with you, dear."

They drove through the town out into the fragrant countryside. Under a giant birch, Jerry stopped the roadster and, in the sheltering shadows, put his arm around Lola and drew her close.

"Lola, sweettheart," he whispered. "Kiss me."

He had never before asked her to kiss him. At his words, Lola's pulses pounded and her heart sang. She lifted her eyes to his.

No! No! It couldn't be. Lola wrenched herself from his arms.

"You mustn't kiss me!" she cried. "You must not. If you did, I could never bear to let you go!"

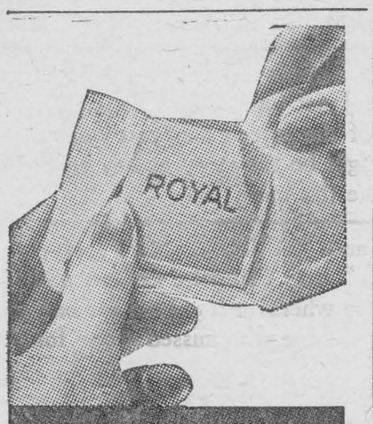

Until she reached the wretched squalor of the Brewster neighborhood, Lola's courage flamed high. Jerry loved her. Nothing, not even the shanty, could come between them. Jerry had said so.

But when she saw the shanty, hope died. The tar-paper exterior was more forlorn and miserable than she had remembered. The door stood open. Lola set her teeth and stepped inside.

No paper graced the walls, no rug relieved the bare, splintered floor boards, dingy with age. A few rickety, straight-back chairs stood helter-skelter in the room, one holding up one end of an ironing board. The other end rested on a ramshackle table. Against the wall glowered the big, coal range, with Ma's irons pushed to tthe front. The stove's hot breath reached across the room and slaapped Lola's face.

She sighed—a long, quivering sigh. The shanty had got her.

More Prosperity As Result of Drought

United States Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace, said in an address, that "drought did not bring scarcity into the average American home in 1934, nor will it in 1936."

"The record shows," he continued, "that the real period of scarcit ywas in 1932. It was the nwhen the surpluses were greatest, that the breadlines were longest. It was then that the farmers were losing their farms, that industry was prostrate and fear and hunger were rampant. It was when farmers were burning corn instead of coal that the city people were most hungry.

"The record shows that every year since 1932 farmers have been able to buy more things. city people have been better, and more people have gone back to work.

Perfect White Does Not Exist

Science Discloses Traces of Color Even in Snow and Chalk

Cambridge, Mass. — The color of perfect white does not exist on earth. Closest to it are new-fallen snow and purest chalk. Third comes the whites made by science and industry.

The results of three years' study to prove this, announced as the first made scientifically, were given to the recent color conference at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. David L. MacAdam of the institute made the report.

Previous to this study, he said, scientists recognized only one color of materials as white, the nearly perfect white of a thick layer of new-fallen snow and purest chalk.

Increasing widespread use of the words white and whiteness in industry, merchandise and advertising, he explained, led industrialists to ask science to define whiteness. They gave the problem to the Technology color laboratory.

Their analysis showed that all colors ordinarily called white were slightly darker than perfect white or were slightly colored. In many cases they were both.

Instruments revealed the shadings of grayness, or darkness, invisible to the eye. The most frequent slight coloration, Mr. MacAdam said, was yellow. A bit of blue is usually added to "whiten" in such cases. Blue is the second most prevalent discoloration in white.

The color laboratory found a method of measuring whitenes swhich had been accepted as a standard, Mr. MacAdam said. By it the whiteness of any sample can be found by simply measuring in an optical instrument the grayness and the amount of color on the surface of the material.

Illegitimate births in 1935 numbered 8,327, a rate of 3.8 percent. of all live births, against 8,070 and a proportion of 3.6 per cent. in 1934. Still births totalled 6,444 or 2.8 per cent. of all births, compared with 6,452 in 1934 with the same percentage.

Exclusive of still births, there were 105,511 deaths during 1935, a rate of 9.6 per 1,000 population, against 101,-582 and a rate of 9.4 the previous year.

Deaths under one year numbered 15,723, a rate of 71 per 1,000 births, against 15,870 and a rate of 72 in 1934.

Maternal deaths totalled 1,093, a reduction from the preceding year, when there were 1,167 deaths. The maternal death rate of 1935 was 4.9 per 1,000 live births, compared with 5.3 in 1934.

The natural increase of the population of Canada in 1935 amounted to 115,715, against 119,721 in the preceding year. The rate of natural increase, 10.6 per 1,000, was the lowest during the period commencing with 1926 for which statistics are available.

The marriages of 1935, numbering 71,883, showed an increase of 3,791 from the preceding year, in which 73,092 marriages took place. The 1935 figure closely approached the total of 77,288 for the year 1929, which was the peak year for marriages in Canada, but the marriage rate of 1935 was only seven per thousand population as against 7.7 in 1929.

Every Bone Broken

Reports of automobile wrecks are so common that we may be accepting them as something which must be, observes the Peterborough Examiner. For the most part we glance at the headings if the wreck is not in our vicinity. There was one near Hamilton, and from the report we take a few excerpts:

"The car was travelling north and went out of control . . . he failed to make a sharp bend in the road . . . travelled 80 feet against a bank on the right side . . . swerved to the wrong side for 75 feet, struck a four-foot hard-clay bank . . . plowed through the hard dry earth, continuing crashed into a maple tre."

Then continuing with the story as it tells the results of such a drive: "The speedometer stood at 60 when it struck the tree and by that time the speed must have been materially checked . . . the engine was driven into the driver's seat; two front wheels off; axle bent double."

So much for the machine. Continue:

"Day and Mock, both young men, suffered fractured skulls. They were still unconscious at a late hour."

Then about the driver:

"The driver's limp body was removed from the mass of debris . . . one shoe was torn off . . . almost every bone in his body was broken, officers said . . . was breathing when lifted from the machine but died on the way to the hospital."

It is not pleasant reading, not a line of it. We have no intention of seeking to drape comment about that story or draw morals from it apart from suggesting you might keep it in mind next time you are inclined to scoff at the idea that there is any sense or virtue in staying within reasonable distance of the speed limits of the province.

"The United States is very fortunate to be 3,000 miles away from Europe."—Sir William Wiseman.

Toronto Exhibition Winners Tell Methods

Mrs. F. W. Fordham of 44 Lambton Avenue, Toronto, a veteran prize winner at the Canadian National Exhibition, has again this year become famous for the red and blue prize tickets on her jars of jellies and jams. Mrs. Fordham has won over a hundred prizes with her cooking in the last twelve years. There must be a thrill in realizing one has such excellent receipes and judgment that a prize can be won every year! Mrs. Fordham gives a lot of credit to bottled fruit pectin which she uses, and so makes sure of success. Her Red Currant Jelly is a joy to behold, as well as being a joy to taste. The color and the flavor have been kept so perfect by the short boil method that better red currant jelly just isn't possible. Mrs. Fordham is so enthusiastic about the short boil method that she has passed on to her daughter the same enthusiasm and the daughter, a very young housekeeper, has the bottled fruit pectin habit too and is turning out rows of gorgeous jams almost as proudly as her mother. This short boil method, which takes less fruit and less time, gets to be a family tradition. A cook who can win every year at the C.N.E. has reason indeed to be proud of her achievements. Congratulations, Mrs. Fordham!

There is time now before many fall fairs for other women to win prizes with their grape, peach and apple jams and jellies made by the short boil method. Peaches are coming in at their best now and here is a prize-winning recipe for ripe peach jelly.

Ripe Peach Jelly

6½ cups (2¾ lbs.) sugar, 3 cups (1½ lbs.) juice, 1 bottle fruit pectin.

To prepare juice, remove pits from about 3½ pounds peaches. Do not peel. Crush peaches thoroughly. Add ½ cut water, bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 5 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin and cover at once. Makes about 9 glasses, 6 fluid ounces each.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

FAULTY BRAKES

The man or woman who takes out a driver's license performs a voluntary act which involves an implied contract with his fellow citizens. Surely one of the terms of that contract is a declaration on the driver's part that he possesses and will exercise that speck of sense which tells him that brakes are life-savers. It is no life-and-death matter if the engine won't turn over, but a car that can't be stopped within a reasonable distance is the equivalent of a mad elephant.—Winnipeg Tribune.

GREATEST SPORT

The most popular sport in North America is neither baseball nor football, golf or tennis. It is, on the contrary, the age-old sport of swimming. This finding is reached by statisticians of the United States National Recreation Association, who report that in 1935 no fewer than 46,500,000 people went to the public beaches, and 18,000,000 to the outdoor swimming pools in the continent. This compares with a seasonal participation in baseball of 10,250,000 and in golf of slightly more than 6,000,000 . . . Swimming is the most informal of all sports, and the cheapest, and is also the most enjoyable.—Vancouver Sun.

DRIVING DANGERS

A Toronto business man announced to his luncheon companions the other day that he had got too "jittery" to drive downtown to work. He referred in particular to the day's local automobile fatalities, which ran high on the heels of drunken driving, hit-and-run speeders, and otherwise incapable chauffeuring. And whether you live in Toronto or Clayville, you can readily sympathize with this fellow who refuses to risk his life driving a car any longer. The moment you hit the open road to-day you're automatically exposed to inebriated, unconscionable fools and morons—all operating under the ineffective control of the license tag.—Guelph Mercury.

AN UNUSUAL CASE

Donald Learmouth, a community garden plot worker in Hamilton, was killed by a bolt of lightning, and the circumstances are so unusual that we doubt if another case similar would be reported in a year.

While he was at work a thunderstorm came up quickly and with several other workers he started to run for shelter. He was going along a cinder path when he was struck. He was struck on the temple and the lightning on its way to the ground ripped off his clothing.

He was carrying nothing which would attract lightning and was not near any object which might serve that purpose. He was merely struck down out in the open, and that happens so seldom that the case can be regarded as extremely unusual. —Peterboro Examiner.

RIGHT OF WAY

Pedestrians generally may find comfort in the ruling of a Chicago judge that in the middle of the street they "must be held" to have the right of way. Many of them, in Montreal at all events, have more than once been painfully reminded that their only right seemed to be to get out of the way.—Montreal Gazette.

TOO FAST

Kaye Don, who once drove an automobile at close to 200 miles an hour, believes that fifty miles an hour is too fast for cars on highways, but his reason is one that will strike the average person as a bit unusual. He contends that when a car is travelling at fifty miles an hour it hasn't the extra speed available that may be needed to cope with an emergency.—Sault Star.

RESTORE THE TREES

Undoubtedly, if people wish to see water supplies restored, they must not only cease the unscientific cutting of trees that is now practised, but must return to something approaching its natural state a very considerable acreage in every county of older Ontario, which was never fit for agriculture and which should never have been divested of its forest growth. In addition, they must consent to the restoration of swamps or else to the establishment of similar storage basins by means of dams.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

MARRIED LIVE LONGER

Statistics have taken the point out of the old joke that "married people do not really live longer than single ones; it only seems longer," says the Los Angeles Times. Findings of life insurance companies assure us that married men and women actually register better in the mortality tables than do bachelors and spinsters and that, from all important causes, their death rates are lower.—Brandon Sun.

SHARING THE WEALTH

J. P. Morgan was quoted as having said that if the U.S. Government continued to spend twice as much as it earned big American fortunes would be dissipated within thirty years. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., asked to comment on the statement, said he thought Mr. Morgan "gave the fortunes a good long time." Many will say it is a good thing that wealth should be distributed more evenly, that every great fortune represents injustice to the masses. But when we put wealth on the stand in its own defense we find there is much to be said. With few exceptions, if any, the great fortunes are used for the public advantage. The wealth of a Morgan or a Rockefeller reaches the point where it is utterly senseless to think of piling millions on scores of millions, and its owner looks about for ways of spending a share for the general good. Thus the people have been given great universities splendidly endowed, hospitals, public libraries, parks. Life has been lengthened by medical research financed by these fortunes. Is it certain that as much would have been done for the people if the United States, in the past half century, had possessed a law saying no individual might have an income of more, say, than $5,000 a year? One-half the incomes of the larger fortunes is taken by government as a tax. Wealth is being shared.—Ottawa Journal.

CANADIAN RECOVERY

This business revival in Canada has been contemporary with a general revival in the Bhitish Commonwealth of Nations, which began some years ago with the remarkable improvement in the economic condition of the Mother Country, and which has been extended to all parts of the Empire. This is a revival which has been a little better with the peoples of the Empire than with any other great nation, and especially it has been better than recovery made by the United States In other words—for the benefit of the croakers—it has been better to be part of the Empire during these latter years than to belong to any other nation of the world.—Vancouver Province.

INSANE?

It is probable that not more than five per cent of the human race desire to engage in war. Yet even today, when the world is supposed to be at peace, there is bitter fighting taking place in China, Central Asia, various parts of Africa and Arabia, in Palestine, and in Spain, while force is being used by more or less tyrannical governments to suppress the suffering and discontented populace in Japan, China, Siam, the U.S.S.R., parts of India, Persia, Syria, Bulgaria, Hungary, Germany, Poland, Italy, Portugal, and a dozen States of Latin America. And nine qualified observers out of ten predict a new world war within five years. Is the world insane?—Ottawa Citizen.

"LET'S SPEND A QUIET HOLIDAY BY THE SEA"

August Bank Holiday in England usually suggests a "sniff of the ozone" to tens of thousands. Londoners flock to the southern resorts in hundreds of special excursion trains. Some idea of the tremendous rush to the seaside can be gleaned from the picture above, taken at Margate.

The Cooking of Fish

This is the season when city folk are indulging their fishing fancy along Canadian streams and on our lakes and tidal waters. To those who take luck with them the question of cooking their catch naturally arises. The Toronto Star has been considering this, and recalls that Stefansson, who lived nearly two years at the time almost wholly on fish, after experimenting with frying them, grilling, baking and boiling, settled down in the end to a daily diet of boiled fish. On his experience the conclusion is drawn that boiling is best.

This may be all very well for the bass or pickerel or 'lunge of Ontario, but it is not good enough for the trout of our British Columbia fresh waters or the grilse or larger salmon caught along our coasts. None of the arts of cooking has improved upon the primitive method of barbecuing them, split open and suspended flat at the side of a beach-wood fire, or along trenches of mark coals—the way it is done in the cooking of salmon by the ton for the thousands at the annual Sooke picnic. In this way all the richness and flavor of the fish is baked, in, retained in its natural proportions and unmarred by the grease of the frying pan or drawn out or diluted by boiling water. Until our fish thus cooked to brown crispness on the outside is tasted, one knows nothing of their gastronomic possibilities, all the love of Stefansson and the fanciest chefs of the contrary.

—Victoria Daily Times.

Not Every Woman Is Married But Where Are The Old Maids?

Like the Aztecs, Amazons and Incas, the "old maids" are a vanished race, observes the Kingston Whig-Standard. A literary searching party sent into the field to look for spinsters by one of the woman's magazines found some evidence that they once existed and traced legends that had been handed down from generation to generation. Some day, perhaps, fossilized remains will be found to enable scientists and historians to complete their data.

The searching party discovered that there are still unmarried ladies of past marrying age, but they are no longer spoken of as spinsters. Nor are they contemplated sadly, made the brunt of derisive wit, or found to conceal their state as something disgraceful and unblessed. The "old maid" of the joke boks has simply vanished from the face of the civilized earth.

Once upon a time unmarried women over 30 kept very quiet about their "single blessedness". Now such women count their state as a virtue, and have no hesitation in parading it before the world. Of old it was hurt pride that made old maids profess preference for their lonely existence. The world did not believe that any woman could be so benighted as to prefer to live alone. Today many women are sincere in protestations of that sort and their statements are accepted at face value without question.

A number of factors have contributed to this social revolution. Emancipation of women played a prominent role. Industrial independence and virtual equality between the sexes in business helped remove the old-maid stigma. The changed economic order which placed millions of women in a better position to support a husband than millions of men are to support a wife added fuel to the feminist's fire.

Sentimentalists who weep for the old and decry the new will concede, at least, that abolition of the bondage of spinsterhood was humanitarian stroke.

Unjust to Our Guests

Toronto Telegram writes the American tourists coming into Canada for an extended stay are forbidden to use their motor cars for profit or for other than personal purposes. The regulation is designed to prevent competition by transients with tax-paying business establishments. The intent is reasonable.

Several incidents have come to light recently, however, which indicate that local authorities are applying a narrow interpretation. From St. Thomas is reported the case of a son on holiday who hauled a small quantity of lumber from a nearby mill to his father's home. He was fined $25 for his kindness. Brockville reports that a summer resident at Delca Lake was fined $25 because he allowed his Canadian guide to use his car for securing a supply of cornmeal to preserve the catch of a day's fishing.

These violations of the law, if they can be classed as such, were purely technical. Either the statutes or the magistrates are at fault in inflicting punishment in cases of this kind.

Canadians do not want visitors to this country to be treated unfairly or unjustly. Treatment of the sort described is not only unjust but it is stupid as well. The tourist business will not long flourish if such conditions are allowed to prevail.
