Over $2,000 Surplus Reported on Hand For Year's Hydro Business -- Council

The year's business for the Chesterville Hydro-electric Commission was one of profit again. There is a surplus of over $2,000 to be added to the account with only $50 in unpaid bills outstanding. This excellent record of operation was reported last Thursday night at the first meeting of 1954 of Chesterville council and hydro. Mr. H. C. Hummel, secretary-treasurer of the commission, was voted an increase of $100 a year in his salary in recognition of his excellent administrative work, on the motion of J. Turner and A. Marcellus.

Chas. Marcell, maintenance man for the commission, was re-hired at his 1953 salary. All commission accounts were passed and paid.

Reeve Chas. McMillan, presiding in spite of ill-health, called on Mr. A. W. McLaggan, who was waiting on council, to state his business. Mr. McLaggan asked that permission be given the Scouts and Cubs to use the old Scout hall as permanent quarters for the troop. This permission was readily granted and council included in the motion the note that any other groups using the hall must see that it was left in a neat and tidy condition.

Garbage collection will be handled again this year by the same operator, Andrew Harper, at an increase in contract of approximately $100 a year. Robert Ouderkirk was re-appointed as caretaker of the Community Hall and Police Office for 1954.

Chesterville Branch of the Hospital Auxiliary was given permission to operate the check-room in Community Hall again this year under the same terms as in the past.

Appointments to municipal bodies included that to the Library Board, of Keith Graham for a term of three years and Reeve Charles McMillan and Councillor A. Marcellus to the Community Centre Board for a term of one year.

By-law 774, a by-law to enable the municipality to borrow money from the local bank was read a first, second and third time and finally passed, signed and sealed.

HOLSTEIN RECEIVES HONOURS

Willola Sir Fond Hope, junior yearling Holstein bull, jointly owned by W. J. Fawcett, Winchester, and the Eastern Ontario Cattle Breeding Association, Kemptville, has received Honorable Mention for All-Canadian. He was first and Reserve Junior Champion at Ottawa Winter Fair and Central Exhibition, first, Junior and Grand Champion at the Dundas County Black and White Day, Chesterville.

Small Blaze Quelled Tuesday Morning

A small fire that had all the dangers of a big one was quickly extinguished Tuesday morning at 4 o'clock before the fire equipment arrived.

Alex Droppo, his wife and son were awakened by the acrid smell of smoke on the ground floor of their new combined dwelling and lunch room at the four corners of the highway, south of town. They discovered flames licking the ceiling of the lunch room from a fire under the serving counter. Fast work sent in the fire alarm and started action that had the blaze under control just as the fire equipment arrived. Mr. Droppo and his son, in their night attire, dragged the burning material out the door and doused water on the flames that were eating away at the wooden counter. Damage by smoke and water and supplies destroyed are estimated at over $200.

New Council Holds First Meeting

Morewood W. I. Meets At Home Of Mrs. M. Smirle

Community activities and public relations was the theme of the January meeting of Morewood Women's Institute, held at the home of Mrs. Millan Smirl, with Mrs. Harold Stewart presiding. The roll call was answered with suggestions for community improvements and a paper on New Year's resolutions was given by Mrs. Gordon Fraser, convener of community activities and public relations. Current events were given by Mrs. Mac Gordon.

Plans were made for the "At Home" held on January 19. The following ladies were named as committees: Programme, Mrs. Harold Allison, Mrs. Walter Carlyle, Mrs. Henry Steen; lunch, Mrs. Steen, Mrs. Jas. Cheney, Mrs. Arthur Steinburg.

Representatives of a nursery company will be in Morewood on February 2nd to put on a programme on "Landscaping Your Home," under the auspices of the Women's Institute, in the Presbyterian Hall. Conveners will be Mrs. Harry Hutchinson, Mrs. H. Popplewell, Mrs. Mack Hutchinson.

A quiz on the handbook proved interesting. The prize winner was Mrs. Ellis Thompson.

Many "thank you" notes were received from recipients of Christmas boxes.

A paper on the motto, "The time to be happy is now and the place to be happy is here," prepared by Mrs. Max Arthur, was given by Mrs. Jake Steen.

The next meeting will be at Mrs. Arthur Steinburg's.

Mrs. Jake Steen acted as cohostess for the meeting. Hostesses: Mrs. Harry Steen, Mrs. Gordon Fraser, Mrs. M. Moffatt, Mrs. Keith Carruthers, Mrs. M. Smirl.

Seguin Cheats Gallows At Cornwall Jail

It has been "pretty well established" that convicted murderer Henri Seguin, 29, cheated the gallows by taking poison in his cell in Cornwall jail about an hour before he was due to hang," Cornwall Crown Attorney R. P. Milligan said Tuesday.

A young priest, Rev. Rudolph Villeneuve, of Nativity Church, Cornwall, and jail guard Donald Nolan were with the condemned man when his fatal seizure occurred.

Father Villeneuve said Seguin died about 11.15 p.m. He had begun talking with him about 11.45 p.m.

Cornwall County Sheriff A. D. McNaughton was at a loss to understand how Seguin could have poisoned himself. "He definitely received no drugs," the sheriff said.

An immediate autopsy was performed by Dr. W. J. Shannon, pathologist at Cornwall General Hospital, Tuesday night.

Seguin wa sdue to be hanged shortly after midnight for the July, 1952, slaying of of Maxville taxi operator Leonard Hurd.

Jail Governor J. S. Dickey called Dr. J. A. McGuire, who was in the building awaiting the hanging. At 11.15 p.m. Dr. McGuire pronounced Seguin dead.

C of C Makes Recommendation for Fire Insurance Survey

Chesterville Chamber of Commerce will recommend to Chesterville Council that an underwriters' survey be made of the village with a view of revising fire insurance rates because of the acquisition of the new fire apparatus. The resolution was passed at their regular January meeting held Wednesday evening in the Community Hall. Vice president George Gillard conducted the meeting in the absence of the president.

Correspondence read included a letter from the CPR advising the Chamber their recommendation regarding more lights at the east end of the station area was being investigated and action could be expected soon.

Mrs. J. Sutherland Named President Of Anglican Guild

Holy Trinity Ladies' Guild held its annual meeting at the home of Mrs. C. Abel on Thursday evening last. The following are to be the officers for the year:

Hon. president, Mrs. G. Carryer; president, Mrs. J. Sutherland; 1st vice president, Mrs J. Cunningham; 2nd vice president, Mrs. H. Droppo; treasurer, Mrs. M. Clarke; secretary, Mrs. H. Marriner; press secretary, Mrs. C. Pedley. Mrs. W. Hummel and Mrs. G. Gilbert are to constitute the visiting committee; Mrs. C. Abel and Mrs. M. Clarke the Rectory committee, and Mrs. A. Ringrow has been elected to be in charge of refreshments.

A successful year, financially, was reported.

At some time between business and refreshments, which were served by the hostess, an informal discussion arose on the relationship of religion and happiness. The idea that it was good to be religious because it made one happy was quoted. The Canon pointed out that this point of view was "sub-Christian"—that it was good to be religious, but that to pursue religion for the purpose of personal happiness was not the Christian ideal. The Christian ideal was to follow Christ no matter what the result. As a by-product of this way of life, true happiness resulted, but it did not come as a result of being sought for itself.

Canon Carryer opened and closed the meeting with prayer.

"Dad, it says here that a certain man was a financial genius. What does that mean?"

"That he could earn money faster than his family could spend it."

CRYSLER W.I. ENTERTAINS HUSBANDS AND FRIENDS

The January members of Crysler Women's nIstitute was held in the Orange Hall, Crysler, when the members entertained their husbands and friends. The evening was spent playing euchre. The winners were: Ladies 1st, Mrs. Thomas McMahon; Gent's 1st, Mr. Jack Armstrong; consolation prizes went to Mrs. Borden Armstrong and Carl McRae.

Lunch was served by the committee: Mrs. W. Paul, Mrs. Alex MceLod, Mrs. M. Godard and Mrs. J. Armstrong.

he next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. S. L. Begg.

ANGLICAN W.A. HOLDS MEETING AT CRYSLER

Ten members were present at the regular meeting of the Woman's Association of St. John's Anglican Church, Crysler, held on Thursday. Mrs. John Fleming was hostess.

Mrs. E. Campbell opened the meeting with litany and prayers. The minutes were read and comments made on a board report.

Two quilts were donated by members for the spring bale. More will be made during the winter months.

Successful IOOF Euchre Held Last Thursday

Chesterville IOOF held the first of their winter series of euchres last Thursday evening in the IOOF Hall here. A fine crowd was on hand to enjoy the cards and refreshments and take part in the dancing afterwards. Music was provided by a local group of musicians.

Winners included: Gent's 1st, Erwin Merkley; consolation, Lyle Marcellus. Ladies 1st, Mrs. Thomas Klingvall; consolation, Mrs. Jas. McCloskey.

W.M.S. Officers Installed By Rev. R. A. Mitchell At Trinity United

The January meeting of the Afternoon Auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church was held in the dining hall of the church on January 14. Mrs. A. J. Forward was in the chair.

The minutes of the December and Executive meetings were read and approved. It was the decision of those present to continue to serve light refreshments at each meeting.

Mrs. Harold Durant, in a reading on Christian Stewardship, impressed on all secretaries and workers to begin their duties at once, that life members should be sought and that God requires our best.

The community friendship secretary, Mrs. Walter Hummel, reported 45 cards and 20 calls.

The resignation of Mrs. P. J. Gilroy as recording and press secretary was read and regretfully accepted. This decision of hers was unwillingly made because of the illness of her husband.

The worship and programme was convened by Mrs. T. D. Ross. The theme of the former was "The Lord of Hosts, the King of Glory." Suitable hymns were sung with Mrs. Stanley Shay as accompanist. Mrs. A. J. Forward led in prayer and Mrs. A. McLaggan gave the scripture reading.

Before the programme began, Rev. R. A. Mitchell installed the officers of the society for 1954. In a clear and thoughtful way he told all to remember their duties and perform them.

As leader, Mrs. Ross presented a very thought inspiring programme on the "Four R's"—namely Relief, Reconstruction, Reconciliation and Re-discovery of the Bible for Europe. She was assisted by Mrs. Chas. McMillan, Mrs. Ed. Forward, Mrs. Stanley Shay and Mrs. Lyle Marcellus.

Mrs. Chas. McMillan reported on literature and told that Bible reading came first among members of the Missionary Society.

For this very good programme Mrs. Forward thanked Mrs. Ross and her helpers and the meeting closed with a benediction, after which refreshments were served by the executive, convened by Mrs. Ross.

C. Allison Graham Heads Fair Board For 1954

C. Allison Graham was elected president of the local fair board at a well attended meeting held in Community Hall on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Graham succeeds Harold Durant, who served two terms as president.

Dates for the 23rd annual Chesterville and District Fair are set for August 31st and September 1st.

Reports given by Hosea Droppo, secretary-treasurer, disclosed that last fall's fair had been well attended, when the Dundas Black and White Day had been held. The Holstein Friesian show had drawn 110 entries.

The 1954 executive includes:

Past president, Harold Durant; president, C. Allison Graham; 1st vice president, Tom McCadden; 2nd vice president, Basil Dawley; secretary-treasurer, Hosea Droppo.

The directors include members of the executive as well as Howard Kittle, Angus Smith, Alex Barrie, Eric Casselman, Leonard Moriarty, Mac MacGregor, Harold Faulkner.

It was decided by the newly elected executive to have the exhibition building, constructed last year, painted in time for this year's fair. To ease the congestion at the Queen Street gate, a second entrance will be made at the east side of the property.

Charles Farmiloe Dies in Hospital

The funeral of Charles Farmiloe, 75, widely known resident of Winchester and district, who died at the Winchester and District Memorial Hospital, was held on Friday afternoon at the Vice and Craig Funeral Home, Winchester.

Rev. William eRid, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, conducted the service.

Born in Gloucestershire, Eng., Mrs. Farmiloe came to Canada when he was nine years old. He lived in Mountain and Winchester townships, where he farmed until moving to Winchester 13 years ago. He was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Forty-nine years ago he married the former Margaret J. Empey, who survives.

Also surviving are, one daughter, Mrs. Geo. Mitchell, Toronto; one brother, William, of Shanley; a sister, Mrs. John Cooke, Inkerman.

Interment was in the family plot in Maple Ridge Cemetery.

STOCK FARM SALE REPORTED

It has been reported, without actual confirmation, that the Stock Farm, owned by J. R. Popham, is in the final process of negotiations, if not already sold, to Eugene Monast, of Grantley. We understand the Dillabough farm is not included in the negotiations. Mr. Popham is not at home at present and we have not been able to confirm the report of the sale.

ST. LUKE'S FORUM MEET AT F. C. ELIGH HOME

St. Luke's Forum met at the home of F. C. Eligh, when the subject was "Stop, Look and Listen." Howard MacMillan was discussion leader.

Members stated there were 25 unprotected and two protected crossings within ten miles of the meeting place, but it was felt motorists should abide by the signs and signals. The right of way should be kept free of brush or anything that hinders vision. It was the opinion that the burden of protective devices should be shifted more to the federal and provincial responsibility and less to the railway and municipality.

The next meeting will be held at St. Luke's School.

Township Fire Protection

With the advent of water carrying equipment to supplement the pumpers of the villages of Chesterville and Winchester, a new era of fire protection has opened for the property owners of the township. At long last there is more than a little chance of saving threatened buildings, and the spectacle of firemen standing idly by without the means to fight fire should be much less frequent. In the farming district the amount of good to be done at a farm fire depended almost entirely on the amount of water that could be pumped from the well. The average farm well was good for about five minutes then the high speed pumpers ran out of the precious stuff, very often at the time when a few more minutes were the difference between a fire under control and one running away.

The new pumper at Chesterville carries its own tank of 500 gallons of water instantly available. That water will last for a fair length of time, with fog nozzles able to operate from 30 to 40 minutes. But the tank can run dry. Here is where the neighbours are going to be useful. Instead of forming the old style bucket brigade, now they can form a milk can brigade. If every farmer who answers the call to a neighbour's fire fills a milk can with water, throws it in the car and delivers it to the pumper when it arrives, the problem of water will be easily solved. The same thing applies to those with trucks. As many cans as can be filled and brought to the fire are asked for.

Winchester Township Council is asking all members of the community to co-operate in this way. They also point out that roadways leading to the threatened properties be kept clear of parked vehicles. Especially in winter months with snow making things difficult, it is most important that the fire equipment is not hindered in its arrival by improperly parked cars.

Lake Superior to the Sea

(Christian Science Monitor)

The logic of history ever since, perhaps, the Louisiana Purchase has argued that the magnificent 2,400-mile waterway to the Atlantic would some day be opened to ocean-going traffic. National security, national self-interest, and national pride have argued that the nUited States would have a hand in that project. Today that accomplishment under joint Canadian-American auspices seems in sight.

Every President beginning with Woodrow Wilson has argued United States participation in construction of the canals, channels and locks necessary to open up the last 120 miles to ships able to carry Dakota wheat to Liverpool and Genoa and Labrador iron to Indiana Harbor and Cleveland. Yet so strong has been a combination of opposing forces that within the last 30 years only once has the issue come to a vote on the floor of Congress.

Little by little the factual bases for this multiple hostility have been altered or dissolved by the march of events: The prime ores of Minnesota's Mesabi Iron Range are nearing exhaustion, turning Pennsylvania and Midwest steel mills toward overseas sources. Canada, deeming the waterway of overriding importance, has decided to build and control it alone if necessary. The submarines' record of World War II and Russia's emphasis on the same weapon have underlined the needs of national security.

The administration has stepped aside in favour of New York on the matter of developing St. Lawrence hydroelectric power—thus removing the issue of federal operations in this field. The cost to the United States has been lowered by Canadian initiative, and tolls should make it self-liquidating. Labour and material shortages have vanished and inflationary pressures retreated, thus removing a valid argument for postponement. In fact, deflationary factors now argue the other way.

All of this has pretty well narrowed down the opposition to certain interest groups: railroads and railway labour, and shipping and other business interests with a stake in Atlantic and Gulf ports.

There is no denying that the seaway will set up new competitions between transportation systems, cities and regions. But so did the advent of the railroad in its day, the highway truck, the river barge lines and the airplane. We like to think of Americans as a people have grown in their understanding that despite the new competitive challenges always introduced by technological progress, anything which significantly improves facilities and lowers the costs of transportation ultimately benefits the whole nation's economy.

If, as now seems unlikely, the remaining opposition should yet t r i u m p h, Canadas 13,000,000 people will build the waterway and control its operation. With so friendly a neighbour, Americans could live with this, to be sure. But we doubt that even a decade from now 160,000,000 Americans, with many times that neighbour's wealth and productivity, would be proud to reflect that they let the short-range self-interest of a few deprive them of a part in so historic a project.

Bare Facts!

"Have you seen Grace's new evening gown?"

"No, what does it look like?"

"Well, in most places it looks a lot like Grace."

How to Hide in Canada

(Christian Science Monitor)

Senators Jenner and McCarran recently returned from their secret rendezvous with Igor Gouzenko, ex-Soviet code clerk, in Canada. Mr. Gouzenko and his family are at present living obscurely and pseudonymously "somewhere in Canada" under the secret protection of the Canadian Mounties.

The Gouzenkos have a new name —let us say Smith, for convenience —to hide their identity. The "Smiths" have neighbours. The neighbours read newspapers. And various newspaper interviews with the Gouzenkos, conducted in an atmosphere of elaborate hush-hush, note their physical appearances and mental characteristics, the ages and sexes of their two children, the sort of lives they lead, their foreign accents, their musical tastes, their house.

Two United States senators drive off from Montreal into the unknown for their highly publicized Monday afternoon meeting with Gouzenko. That day Mr. "Smith" is absent from his job. The next day the two senators reappear, smiling secretively like the two cats that have swallowed half a canary each. The same day Mr. "Smith" presumably returns to work, explaining with his heavy Slavic accent that he had to visit his grandmother yesterday.

We had no idea it was so easy to hide in Canada. Or maybe the neighbours don't read?

If Teachers Quit Extras

(Port Arthur News Chronicle)

Teachers have the same right as anyone else to seek improvement in their financial position and security for their unproductive years.

On the whole. too, they have, during the past few years had almost the unanimous sympathy of the general public in their largely successful efforts to give the profession a better financial standing. There may be some doubt, however, about how far that sympathy will go along with them if they implement an order from the Federation o fthe Secondary School teachers that all extra-curricular activities be ceased after January 22.

That order would prevent the teachers of the upper schools from coaching football teams, basketball teams or other forms of athleticts, orchestras, dramatic clubs or any organization not completely in line with the curricula and the prescribed hours of employment.

As Boards of Education are not likely, especially in these days of growing costs, to engage extra coaches for this work, it means that these activities would cease.

In that event something material to school life would go out, a sort of intangible that since the beginning of organized education has tended to build up personality and esprit de corps, with all it has meant to pupils, to faculty and to parents as well.

It may be a good guess that many of the teachers, if denied this privilege of working among the pupils along these lines, would themselves regret it. Most of them have enjoyed the work because they like young people and because in it they find a satisfaction that comes only from worth while accomplishments. That is the kind of people they are; else they would not have gone into the teaching profession in the first place.

It might be that in a vote of the teaching body as a whole they would not approve of the order. To the public it will seem just too bad that commercialism has come in to drive such a good thing out.

History Has Empty Legacies Of Mystery

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

Elizabeth, Empress of Austria, toasted in her time as the most beautiful princess in Europe, died at the hands of an anarchist-assassin in 1898. Hers was a life filled with sorrw. Her only son, Crown Prince Rudolph, died in tragic and mysterious circumstances; h e r cousin, Leopold of Bavaria, took his own life; and her sister, Sophie, Duchess of Alencon, perished in a fire in Paris.

At her death, Elizabeth left a package, addressed to the President of Switzerland (she was assassinated in Geneve), with instructions that it be opened in 55 years.

All through the decades, this package was believed to contain clues to Rudolph's mysterious end. But now that the package has been opened, it is found to contain nothing more than two small printed volumes of the Empress' poetry.

This is not surprising, since it is but part of the history of packages and boxes and manuscripts left by various notable people all down through the years.

There was, for example, the famous Dundonald Secret.

The Earl of Dundonald, British admiral, was the author of a secret war plan by which he claimed he could destroy any fleet or fortress in the world. This plan, evolved a century before the coming of World War I, was to be opened with Britain in dire peril.

For long generations that "macabre" plan was mentioned with bated breath. Finally during 1914-18, it was revealed. This is what it was, in the handwriting of the old admiral: "All fortifications, especially marine fortifications, can under cover of dense smoke be irresistibly subdued by fumes of sulphur kindled in masses to windward of their ramparts."

And that revelation, in an era of phosgene and chlorine gas, must go into the records as military history's greatest anti-climax!

A contemporary of Admiral Dundonald was the English fanatic, Joanna Southcott, a prophetess in her own claim and the claims of 100,000 followers. She too, left a legacy of mystery, a locked box to be opened by all the bishops of England together assembled at a time of national crisis.

The box was finally opened in the presence of one bishop in 1928: Its contents—a novel, some coins, a dice-box, a horse pistol. (This, by the way, is the same Mrs. Southcott who is mentioned in Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities"—the Mrs. Southcott who had "recently attained her five-and-twentieth blessed birthday, of whom a prophetic private in the Life Guards had heralded the sublime appearance by announcing that arrangements were made for the swallowing up of London and Westminster.")

And so it has gone, and so it goes . . . legacies of mystery that keep people guessing through the decades—and then develop the most fantastic and anti-climatic qualities.

The Prime Minister's Salary

(The Ottawa Journal)

Under the new scale of indemnities for members and salaries for ministers, the salary of the Prime Minister, it is understood, will be increased to $25,000, this, with the new $10,000 indemnity, plus $2,000 for car allowance, making a total of $37,000.

The prime ministership of Canada, with year-round burdens and responsibilities, is by far the biggest job in Canada, and $37,000 a year for it is not excessive; there are scores of executives in private business, men holding posts calling for far less knowledge and responsibility, getting more than that.

Indeed, Mr. St. Laurent, with his new salary will still be receiving less than the Gvernor of the Bank of Canada and the President of the Canadian National Railways.

Finall, well to keep in mind that if Mr. St. Laurent had refused a call to come to Ottawa during war years and declined public service since, he would be earning far, farm more than $37,000 from his legal practice.

Calls for Jail Penalty

(Port Arthur News Chronicle)

"A 19-year-old Port Arthur youth was fined $60 and costs or 30 days for impaired driving on New Year's day."

The quotation is from the news columns wherein is contained report of proceedings in Magistrate's court. It is reprinted not because it is the exceptional that makes news but because it has been frequent.

One thing that become immediately evident is that this youth did not manufacture, nor probably steal, the liquor that caused the impaired driving. Someone must have given or sold it to him. That being so, it is worth while noting further what the law provides in such cases.

In the Revised Statutes of Ontario, amended to 1947, section 98; "No person shall knowingly sell or supply liquor to a person under the age of twenty-one." The penalty clause provides that any person who violates the law . . . "shall for the first offence be imprisoned for not less than one month . . ."

It is also worth noting that this law applies not only in social functions that may be regarded as more or less public but in the homes as well.

It is unfortunate that the court action referred to here is not an isolated instance. There have been quite a number of cases involving under-age people recently. To give them liquor or permit access thereto is a most reprehensible thing. While we have no criticism of the police, not being fully informed on what they do about it, the hope may be expressed that they do not fail in the follow-up to any such cases as the above which come to their attention.

HE GETS AROUND

Alexander B. Clark, 30, was charged in Municipal Court at Nashua, N.H., not lon gago with operating an improperly registered motor vehicle.

Clark was driving a car with Connecticut plates, held a Maryland driver's licence, claimed to be a resident of Maine and was arrested in New Hampshire.

Given a $5 suspended fine, police wrote one word beside the address line on Clark's report—"Floater."

The book value of United States investment in Canada at the beginning of 1952 was $7,235,000,000 and has continued to rise ever since.

NOTICE

Fire -- Fire -- Fire -- Fire

Arrangements having been made with the Fire Departments of Chesterville and Winchester, it is requested by the Council of the Township of Winchester, that all persons in the area with a truck where the FIRE may be, load it with 8-gal. CANS OF WATER and take to the FIRE, as the PUMPER UNIT is useless without WATER.

Persons going to a FIRE are requested to make ABSOLUTELY SURE that cars are not left so as to OBSTRUCT the laneway.

BY ORDER OF THE COUNCIL,
Township of Winchester.

Mrs. O. Bourgon Dies Native of Berwick

Many friends assembled at the Brownlee Funeral Home, Finch, on January 5th to pay tribute to the memory of Mrs. Ovide Bourgon by attending her funreal. Interment was made in the cemetery at St. Isidore de Prescott.

Mrs. Bourgon died of a sudden heart attack, the passing being sincerely regretted by many friends.

She was born at Lemieux, Ont., 55 years ago, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Victor Lalonde, St. Bernadin, her maiden name being Victoria Lalonde.

Her husband operated the Standard Hotel at Berwick for many years prior to his death in 1946.

She leaves seven sons to mourn her passing: Leon Bourgon, Gatineau Point; Fernand Bourgon and Rene Bourgon, Cornwall; Laurier Bourgon and Victor Bourgon, Berwick; Wilfred Bourgon and Robert Bourgon, Creighton Mines. There are 11 grandchildren.

She also leaves two brothers and four sisters: Joseph Lalonde, Mrs. Telesphore Bourbonnais, Mrs. Oscar Charlebois, all of Cornwall; Wilfred Lalonde, St. Bernadin; Mrs. Aubert Lalonde, Wales, Ont.; Mrs. Olivier Martin, Vankleek Hill.

The Solemn Mass of Requiem was sung by Rev. M. J. O'Brien, pastor, assisted Rev. Rene Denis, Ottawa, as Deacon, and Rev. Ernest Denis, of Embrun, as sub Deacon.

Pall bearers were six sons: Leon Bourgon, Fernand Bourgon, Laurier Bourgon, Wilfred Bourgon, Robert Bourgon and Rene Bourgon.

Many mass cards and lovely floral tributes were placed about the casket by relatives and friends, showing the regard in which Mrs. Bourgon was held and the regret felt at her death.

Many called at the funeral home to show their respect for her memory, to offer prayers for the repose of her soul and to extend sympathy to members of the bereaved family.

Safe-Driving Credits To Lower Insurance Rates On Automobiles

A greater number of accident-free motorists will soon be eligible for safe-driving credits off their private passenger automobile insurance rates, it was announced recently. The credits will apply both to renewals of existing policies and to new applicants for insurance who qualify.

The "Preferred Risk Rating Plann"—first introduced in Canada last April to provide reduced bodily injury, property damage and collision rates for a limited group of accident-free car owners—will be broadened effective February 1 to include most of the other groups into which private passenger automobiles are dicided for purposes of rating.

The announcement was made by the Canadian Underwriters Association, and by the Independent Automobile Insurance Conference, on behalf of their respective memberships. The two groups represent most of the 200-odd competing automobile insurance companies of Canada.

Under the extension, owners of for safe-driving credits, if they have established three-year accident-free driving records.
cars used for business purposes, and most pleasure car owners, will be added to those already eligible

The announcements indicated that the automobile insurance rates which went into effect in 1953 would apply for the time being, except that a larger group of owners would be eligible for the safe-driving credits. Size of the credits was not specified because of differences in various insurance classifications, but it was indicated that they would be approximately 15%.

"The Preferred Risk Rating Plan, a rating classificaton basis designed to reward the safe driver, was introduced in Canada last April and was subsequently adopted by most insurance companies operating here," the announcements said. "It was based on the premise that a safe driver operating an automobile in a manner which safeguards lives and property deserves recognition in terms of his automobile insurance cost."

"The Plan was in the nature of an experiment, with the dual purpose of rewarding the safe driver, and of calling forcibly to the attention of the accident-prone driver the financial burden of his carelessness. In its experimental stages it was confined to a person who owned a motor vehicle used for pleasure purposes only, who had driven for at least three years and who had not been involved in an accident for three years immediately prior to the application for insurance, and who had no driver in his household under 25 years of age."

"The Plan has been in operation only nine months and this has not permitted the development of sufficient statistical data to give a complete indication of just how successful the experiment has been in promoting safe driving. There has been some indication, however, of improved driving practices and so the plan is being extended to most other classifications of drivers."

The credits apply to the Public Liability (or Bodily Injury), Property Damage and Collission coverages as these are the main insurance categories affected in accident claims. Fire and Theft coverages are not affected, because claims under these perils are not usually the result of driving accidents.

The announcements added that mots companies stated "the class comprising the under-25 owner-operators continues to show the most unsatisfactory accident record, and so the Plan is not being extended to these drivers for the time being."

A bargain for Mrs. Renaud...

"When you have to do everything for two small children it's not easy to leave the house even for essential shopping," says Mrs. Bernard Renaud of 755 Desaulniers Blvd., St. Lambert, Que.

"I've really appreciated our telephone in the last few years. It means I can still pick up bargains I see in the paper and do my shopping in a matter of minutes . . . by telephone. So, my 'phone saves me money and gives me time to do other things that crowd my busy day. That's why I think one of the best bargains I ever bought was our telephone!"

Geo. W. Locke, 83

In ill health for some time, George William Locke died at his home in Morrisburg on Friday in his 84th year.

A native of South Mountain, he was a son of the late Joseph Locke and his wife, Frances Berry. He attended schools there and learned the carpentry trade from his father. He followed this trade all his life and had worked on many building jobs in Canada and the United States.

In 1898 he married Hilda Sarah Houlahan, of Brinston, who survives. His wife is at present a patient in hospital at Brockville as a result of a fall at her home before Christmas.

Other survivors are three sons and one daughter, Leo Locke, of Snow Lake, Man.; Harry Locke, of Morrisburg; Daniel Locke, of St. Catharines; Mrs. T. Goodison (Lila), of Brockville; one sister, Mrs. Herman Cleland, South Mountain. There are nine grandchildren.

FIND RARE BIRD AT BROCKVILLE

Maybe the frigid weather had something to do with it but for the first time within memory, an American coot has been captured at Brockville.

Employes of a Brockville plant found the rare bird in the backyard and didn't know what it was. It has a long, beak, no tail, is grey and black and has big webbed feet.

Collegiate staff naturalists identified the bird, usually found mainly in Alaska.

Avonmore W.I. Donates To Children's Hospital

It has been announced that the January meeting of the Avonmore W.I. will be held on Tuesday evening, January 19th, at the home of Mrs. D. P. Shaw. This is a departure, it has been pointed out, from the regular meeting date, which falls on the third Thursday of each month.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Wesley Cobaine, Mrs. Wesley MacDiarmid, Mrs. Ross MacRae and Mrs. Hector MacRae. Mrs. James Tinkess will be the social director.

At its recent meeting, the W.I. made donations to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, and the Tuberculosis Association. The members decided that the branch's wheel chair would be used only for them and their families in the immediate vicinity.

Mrs. Elgin Finlayson was a social convener. A contest winner was Mrs. D. P. Shaw.

Farm Forum Meets At Grady Home

In spite of very cold weather, a good number of members of Berwick West Farm Forum met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Grady. After the broadcast, a short discussion of the answers of the previous week followed.

The topic was "The Farm Price Trend." The group decided the price of farm produce has decreased and the price of what is purchased has increased in the past year.

In reply to various questions the following was decided: Curtail on buying on credit (unless absolutely necessary). Purchase the most necessary machinery and elcetric equipment and, as a last resource, drive the old gray mare instead of an automobile.

Members have a marketing co-op and a marketing organization and a purchasing co-op within a reasonable distance.

Instead of a recreation hour, the group discussed local subjects of interest to the people of the community.

Lunch was served by the hostess and a vote of thanks given Mr. and Mrs. Grady for the words of welcome, the use of their home and the lunch.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

The Alaska-Yukon Pioneers recently called off their scheduled meeting.

So did the Ladies of the North, another Sattle, Wash., society.

The reason: It was too cold and snowy.

Newton Salter, 71

Final tribute was paid the memory of Newton Salter, reisident of Winchester, who died in Winchester and District Memorial Hospital, at the funeral which was held on Friday afternoon last from the residence of Raymond Douglas to Winchester United Church. he service was conducted by Rev. T. N. Mitchell.

Mr. Salter was born at Winchester Springs 75 years ago, and was the son of the late James Salter and his wife, Almeda Coons. He spent his entire life in the district. eH was an enthusiastic sports fan, taking a keen interest in local softball and hockey. In 1902 he married the former Libbie Keck, who died some years ago.

Surviving are two sisters, Miss Myrtle Salter, Ottawa, Mrs. K. MacGillivray Crysler; one half-brother, Milton Salter, Berwick.

Interment was in the family plot at Maple Ridge Cemetery.

United W.M.S. Meets At Avonmore

The January meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of St. James United Church, Avonmore, was held on Thursday afternoon in the Sunday School room. Miss Maude MacIntyre had charge of the opening worship service, assisted by Miss Annie MacIntyre.

Mrs. C. R. Sutherland had charge of the study from the new Study Book, "Where'er the Sun." Others taking part were Mrs. A. J. MacIntyre, Miss Maude MacIntyre, Miss Annie MacIntyre and Mrs. W. R. Campbell.

Mrs. W. R. Campbell, president, conducted the business meeting, assisted by Mrs. B. H. Wert, as secretary. It was decided to order 20 copies of the devotional booklet, "The Upper Room," for use by the members and others who are interested.

Mrs. Sutherland reported on the missionary books to be read by the individual members throughout the year.

The roll call was answered with each member paying the annual membership fees.

Officers of the Woman's Missionary Society for the year are: Mrs. W. R. Campbell, president; Mrs. R. Sutherland, vice president; Mrs. W. M. Campbell, secretary; Mrs. J. M. Rielly, treasurer; Mrs. Stanley Graham, Baby Band leader.

The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. C. R. Sutherland.

"ROCKET" FISH

body knows how it got there.

Fossilized remains of a streamlined "rocket" fish—two to four inches long—that propelled itself through prehistoric waters by means of a jet stream have been found in a riverbed at Shrivenham, England.

The bullet-shaped fossils date back 120,000,000 years. The fish are belemnites, belonging to a group of cephaloped molluscs related to the squid.

Influence of Nurse Crops On New Seedlings

In obtaining good stands of legume-grass mixtures for hay, silage or pasture, the inuence of the nurse crop on the new seedlings is worthy of consideration. The forage crops must compete with the nurse crop for light, moisture and nutrients in the year of seeding.

An experiment on nurse crop management recently initiated by the Division of Field Husbandry, Soils and Agricultural Engineering at the Central Experimental Farm, produced a yield of alfalfa without any nurse crop which was 17.3% greater than that obtained by seeding down with oats at the rate of 2.5 bushels per acre. In addition, during the year of seeding, the alfalfa crop produced a yield of 0.97 tons per acre. However, where oats was used as a nurse crop at 2.5 bushels per acre, a yield of 65 bushels per acre were obtained in the year of seeding. Also, in fields where weed control is a problem, the nurse crop would be expected to provide considerable protection against weeds during the establishment of the new seeding.

The results of an experiment, conducted over a 6-year period, designed to study the effect of different rates of seeding oats, on the yields of a succeeding alfalfa crop have shown that oat yields increased progressively with each increase in the rate of seeding from 1.5 bushels to 3.0 bushels per acre. However, the highest yield of the succeeding alfalfa crop was obtained where the lowest rate of seeding for oats was employed. While the differences in hay yields were not large, the results indicated that where a grain crop is used as a nurse crop, the rate of seeding should be slightly lower than when grain is seeded alone. On less productive soil, the inuence of the nurse crop would be expected to produce a more pronounced effect than it did under the conditions of this experiment.

For the last several years Canada's annual increase in population has been about three per cent.

Twenty-three per cent of nearly one-quarter of Canada's present annual production income is being "ploughed back" into creation of capital assets which will go to increasing future production.

FARM FORUM MEETS AT POLLOCK HOME

The meeting of Berwick West Farm Forum was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Pollock. There was a good attendance of members and great interest taken in the discussion. The topic was "What's the Ideal Farm Organization?"

In answer to various questions, members agreed a farm organization should be financed by grants from Township and Counties Councils, the local community group and the Provincial Department of Agriculture paying to the County Federation, the C. T. paying to the Provincial and later to the National. The Producers' Association should be represented on the County Federation.

There should be a national system of education and the expense partly paid by the Federal Government.

A standard assessment should exist in all Ontario municipalities instead of each township or county having their own system.

The recreation hour was spent by enjoying a play on TV.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Pollock.

"Happy Birthday" was sung in honour of one of the members. Lunch was served by the hostess and was enjoyed.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Grady. Visitors to these meetings are always welcome.

MELVY G. DUFF, 59

Final tribute was paid Melvy George Duff at the funeral service conducted in Newington United Church by Rev. H. V. Ellison. Interment was in Paul's Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Duff died in a Kingston hospital following a short illness.

He was born at Duff's Corners 59 years ago, a son of the late Hugh Duff and the late Ida Countryman. He spent his entire life in the community.

Mr. Duff was a member of the Avonmore Lodge, No. 334, I.O.O.F., joining the lodge when he was 18 years of age.

He was also a member of Stormont Encampment, I.O.O.F. No. 76, of Cornwall, a member of the L.O.L. No. 948, Newington, and L.O.B.A. No. 234, Newington.

Twice married. his first wife was Annie Laura Adams, of Northfield. Of this marriage four children survive: Mrs. Don Raymond (Jean), and Jay Duff, both of Belleville; Earl Duff, Lindsay, and Wallace Duff, Maitland. His second wife, Verna Maizie Runions, of North Lunenburg, survives. He also leaves a brother, Roy Duff, Newington, and three grandchildren.

GAY FRILLS ARE GAILY HUED

The bolder shades in a lady's wardrobe are going under cover, and this year's Christmas shoppers revealed a surprising preference for colourful lingerie say spokesmen of the trade.

Traditional pink and blue took a back seat to red, green and cocoa. Even women who never deviated from white have suddenly shown a preference for deep rose, aqua, lilac and yellow.

Deep-dyed shades are being used to complement rather than match costumes. For instance, fiery red nylon tricot slips are sometimes used as underpinnings for black outfits with vibrant green is being paired with navy. The cocoa shade is being blended with the entire family of browns in dresses and suits. For the first time in many seasons, black failed to capture a big vote as a fall lingerie colour.

Styles have never been more lavish in the use if nylon lace, flounces and ruffles. Many daytime slips are cut with narrower skirts to conform with the new slender silhouette. Some dress-up designs are tubular sheathes of nylon lace lined with nylon tricot in a contrasting colour and look like short evening dresses. Others are practical as well as pretty with opaque bodices and shadow-proof skirts.

There are can-can petticoats of ruffled nylon tulle which are sold singly, but often bought in two's, three's and even four's. They are the secret behind the boating skirts that step out after dark.

Nightgowns are appearing in green, cocoa and flaming red and fit is deemed important. They dome with elastic around the neck and waist and even around the wrists. Some have pushup sleeves.

Shades of our sainted grandmothers!

TEETHING TROUBLE

A tippling Johannesburger has presented the South African Bureau of Standards with a problem it can really gets its teeth into: "Does whisky dissolve plastic dentures?"

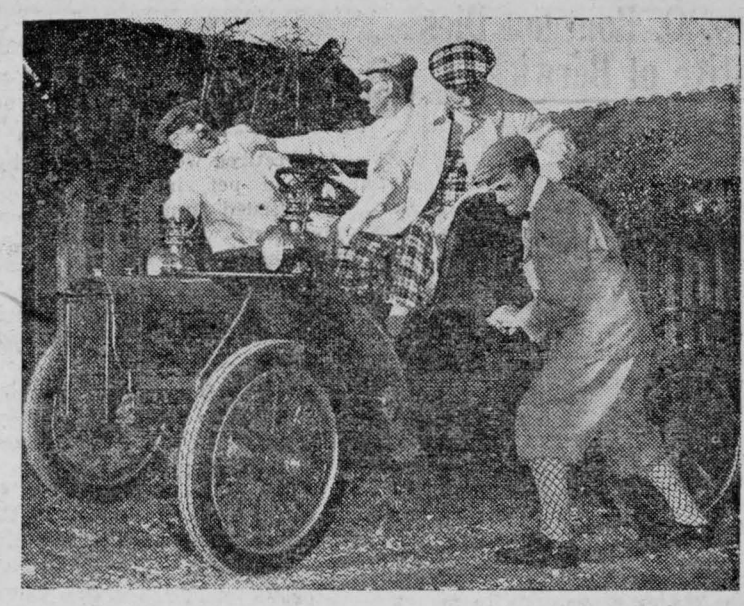

The man claims he awoke one morning and found most of his plastic false teeth in his stomach, dissolved by the whisky.

An article in the current issue of the standards bulletin, reporting the case, warned against use of too strong a solution of germicides, which tends to dissolve plastics. Bureau technologists are investigating whether alcohol in whisky can have the same effect.

Among the tales the late Will Rogers loved to tell is the classic about his pet pig:

It seems that the pig, rooting for something to eat, discovered a stick of dynamite and swallowed it. Later. scratching its back against a building, the pig set the dynamite off. The terrific explosion flattened four city blocks.

"It sure inconvenienced us," he usually finished. "For two or three days we had a mighty sick pig on our hands."

BARBERSHOP QUARTET—If the boys of the barbershop quartet —the singing foursome of CBC's "Leicester Square to Broadway" show from Vancouver—really used this 1904 Cadillac to get them to their Tuesday night broadcasts on time, they'd probably never make it. However, the same spirit of teamwork they show here is true of their harmonizing, and the result is a fine blending of voices to bring listeners hit tunes of the gay nineties. That's Len Hayman hanging on at the extreme left, Hubert Nowell giving him a hand, while Horace Chapman is giving some advice to Thomas Wright in the plus fours.

A man was very indignant at being arrested. He staggered into the police station and before the captain had an opportunity to say anything, he pounded his fist on the desk and said: "What I wanna know is why I've been arrested."

"You were brought in for drinking," said the captain.

"Well, thass different—thass different—let's get started."

Pulp and paper accounts for a quarter of Canada's exports.

In Cistern 3 Weeks Retired Workhorse Object of Search

Maude, a retired work horse and neighbourhood pet, in Talladega, Ala., was rescued from a 20-foot-deep cistern into which she stumbled three weeks prior to her rescue and was given a 50-50 chance to live.

Ill with pneumonia, after losing 400 pounds, Maude lay in a barn of her owners, covered with blankets and fortified by shots of penicillin and whisky.

Maude had been hunted by children in a rural community ever since she disappeared. Billy Ray Hurst, 13, finally spotted her shivering in three feet of water in the deep cistern.

One of the owners, Cecil Hurst, had consulted a fortune teller who told him Maude was still alive in a cistern. When he returned home the horse had been located.

A construction company provided a crane which was used to lift Maude to the surface while the gathering children cheered. Although trembling with weakness, she trotted across the field to the barn and her feed trough.

Dr. R. L. Jones, a veterinarian, first gave Maude a shot of penicillin, a heart stimulant, whisky and warm corn meal.

Jones said Maude, whose weight dropped from 1,200 to 800 pounds, has a 50-50 chance of recovering. She managed to stay alive because she had water to drink.

The cistern was covered by rotten timbers and old Maude crashed through when she walked over them.

Maude is between 20 and 25 years old. She is retired from farm work, but still used as a riding horse by children.

BRITISH INDUSTRIES FAIR NEW PRODUCTS PROMISED

"Preparations for the 1954 British Industries Fair are well advanced. Many manufactures will be showing for the first time. They are combining with regular exhibitors to present a display of new products revealing the latest developments in manufacturing methods and design as well as new materials," announced Sir Archibald Nye, U. K. High Commissioner in Ottawa today.

The thirty third annual British Industries Fair will be held in London (Earls Court and Olympia) and Birmingham (Castle Bromwich), from May 3 to May 14, 1954. Thousands of U. K. exhibitors, representing scores of industries will present their products. Exhibits will cover one million square feet of floor space at this, the world's largest Trade Fair.

British industry duringthe past year has again forged ahead and its inventive genius will be well demonstrated over a wide range of merchandise notable for its practability, quality and design. Canadian visitors are, therefore, assured of an especially interesting and profitable journey.

The B. I. F. is one of the more dramatic means by which the U. K. Government is seeking to expand its export trade—a vital task, for on its success depends Britain's ability to pay for her imports, including her substantial purchases from Canada.

At the fair, the overseas buyer has only to show his official invitation or business card to receive a badge admitting him freely at any time to all three sections, and to the Overseas Buyers' Clubs. Visitors are encouraged to use the clubs as their headquarters, where mail can be addressed, and to make use of secretarial, telephone, cable and radio facilities.

LEAVES DISRICT BUT EXITS WITH DIGNITY

Harry Haigh, the junkman of Victoria, B.C., who climbed Government Hill, has climbed back down.

He made the retreat the other day with all the dignity and humour that marked his rise—in white tie and tails.

Harry became a neighbour of Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace in 1952 when he paid a reported $11,000 for the 12-room mansion, "Piermont," 200 yards from Government House.

He renamed the mansion "Ching Do Foo Oc," Chinese for garbage man's house, squabbled with neighbours and building inspectors and appeared in court for keep junk on the premises.

A charge against Mr .and Mrs. Heigh of operating a multiple dwelling in a single-dwelling area was ordered.

Harry dressed in formal clothes and drove his truck to the Lieutenant-Governor's mansion where he joined the receiving line.

He went to give his neighbours something to celebrate—to tell them he was selling out and moving to the "other side of the tracks" to be near his work.

"The governor is a swell guy," he said later. "He made me feel right at home. I didn't know I had such a nice neighbour. All my other neighbours are miserable because I live among them, but Mr. Wallace treated me just dandy. I hate to leave the district."

WRONG SIDE

Mrs. Deriedean Howard reported recently that three diamond rings she'd pinned to her nightgown were missing when she woke.

Police searched her house. No rings.

Shortly after they left, Mrs. Howard phoned the station again. She had found the rings, valued at $750.

She explained she had pinned them to her nightgown, all right, but had put the garment on backwards.

SEVERE REPLY

A sad tale comes from the recent observation of New Years:

A French North African was hospitalized with a cracked skull —for wishing a man a Happy New Year. The man, another North African, who only recognizes the Moslem calendar, hit him on the head with an iron bar, saying: "You have broken the precepts of the Koran; you shall be punished."

TRAPPED, BUT HAPPY

Rescuers battled driving snowstorms near Macerta, Itay, not long ago and found alive—and also a little cockeyed—nine young skier who had been trapped in an Apenine Mountain hut for four days.

One of the rescuers said that it was feared the nine might have perished.

"But we were reassured that all was well when even before reaching the hut we heard discordant singing," the rescuer added. "Luckily they had plenty of liquor."

Police said the skiers had to be helped all the way back to Macerta.

THE TABLES ARE TURNED

Police Officers E. L. Crenshaw and G. W. Jones were driving down Pearl Street, a one-way artery in Dallas, Tex., when the y saw a motorist coming in the opposite direction.

They flagged him down and began their lecture on the evils of driving the wrong way on a one-way street, etc.

"But," said the motorist, "you are going the wrong way."

Crenshaw and Jones were. Pearl Street, one-way south until recently, was reversed to one-way north during a wholesale downtown traffic revision.

NEHRU TO HELP GRANBY GET AN ELEPHANT

If the Granby Zoo doesn't get its elephant, it won't be for lack of trying.

One enterprising citizen, 5-year-old Peter Mamorek, took matters in his own hands and wrote Prime Minister Nehru of India when he heard of an item in a Granby paper that said the Indian prime minister would probably make the necessary arrangements if he received enough requests from the children of Granby.

Back came a letter from the Indian prime minister saying he would do his best.

Young Peter said in his letter he was frequently taken to the Granby Zoo by his parents and there were all kinds of animals there—but no elephant.

Mr. Nehru said in reply it was not always easy to catch a young, healthy elephant but he would keep the request in mind. The letter ended:

"My best wishes. Jawaharlal Nehru."

"Do you have a regular job during the winter months?" a baseball manager asked one of his players.

"I'm employed by a railroad," the player replied, "and I work as a cowcatcher on the front of the locomotive."

"That sounds incredible," the manager said. "How can you be a cowcatcher?"

"I use an extra large mitt."

SALT-LOVING BACTERIA BECOMES A PROBLEM

Scientists were in more than one "pickle" during 1953 trying to find a food preservative that will resist "salt-loving" bacteria.

According to National Research Council reports for the past year, the salt brine pickle method that has been used for generations to preserve food is now falling down on the job because of "salt-loving" bacteria.

Their appetite for salt is so great that they deplete the brine mixture, allowing pickled foods to spoil.

The action of the bacteria has become such a problem to the food packing industry, they appealed to the eRsearch Council for help.

According to the council report, scientists are now looking for a food preservative that will resist the bacteria without presenting a hazard to consumers.

Ad Agency Tests Its Own Idea Of Good Movie Copy

A wave of experimentation in motion picture advertising and publicity seems to be gathering momentum. There has been talk of a search for new approaches for some time. Two weeks ago. Universal-International signed up Cunningham and Walsh, ad agency, to do research and pass on ad copy. This action brought to light a survey conducted by clubwomen associated with the Motion Picture of America Ass n. which was critical and constructive from the women's viewpoint.

There appeared a full page ad in the New York Times and New York Herald Tribune headlined "The Big Squeeze and the Little Woman" It carried the line: "This advertisement paid for by a friend of the motion picture industry."

For a few hours those not in the know scurried around trying to learn its sponsor. That developed to be Donahue andCoe, ad agency, which has had the MGM account for 22 years and also represents Columbia and a number of Broadway houses. It placed the ad on its own initiative and at its own expense as a service to the industry.

A spokesman for Donahue and Coe, who would not permit his name to be used, said it was a one shot ad intended to demonstrate an industry need for motion picture advertising and publicity stressing "human appeal" rather than "down-the-drain news about darkened theatres being converted to other business places.

The agency representative said its hope was that the ad would encourage the industry to sponsor a similar series on a national as well as local basis. He said the agency has been asked for reprints by theatre circuits for lobby and other use in the hope of stimulating favorable newspaper editorial comment. He hoped the circuits would join hands in creating and placing a similar ad copy for the benefit of the industry.

The ad follows:

"Generally, you can't feel it coming. You know what's happening to you. But you've got to earn a living. So you try to ignore it hoping tomorrow will be easier.

"But tomorrow is tougher than yesterday-as yesterday was tougher than the day before. And when evening comes, you're in the Big Squeeze.

"All you can think about is what happened on the job during the day-and what will happen tomorrow. Things to be done. Not enough time to do them all.

"You rush for the train, the subway or the bus. You shouldn't rush. But you do. You rush going to work. You rush coming home.

"And what happens when you get home? Your wife tells you what happened during the day. The milkman was late. The kids had no milk for breakfast. Beef is higher. So she said to the butcher—and he said to her. And Millie called. And guess what.

"And here are some bills that just came in. The washer's on the blink. Maybe it blew a fuse. The finance company threatened to take your brother's car again, He wanted you to phone him. He thought maybe. . . .

"You suddenly remember the story in this morning's paper. The husband who shot his wife and kids!

"You want to get away. It's too much. You want to get out of the house. You want to love your wife, but the more she talks the more she irritates you. You want to love the kids, but the y get on your nerves, too.

"Brother, your suffering from the Big Squeeze.

"Don't worry. You don't need a physhiatrist. You won't do anything violent-beyond blowing your top if you wait too long.

"Now is the time to keep your big mouth shut, finish your dinner civally, then grab your wife and say-'Honey, let's go to the movies!'

"The movies get you out of yourself, out of your house, away from all the many, the little, the pressing things that apply the Big Squeeze.

"You sit in the dark. In the wide dark. In the wide, cool dark. You look and you relax. You're in a different world. The world as you once saw it, is reborn. All women are beautiful. All men handsome. Things turn out right. Good triumphs. Once again you begin to see the amusing side of life. You laugh.

"And suddenly you realize you've escaped the Big squeeze-just by going around the corner to your neighborhood theatre. You're living again. You're in love with your wife-as you always were, but you forgot. You get home and the kids are asleep. The house is quiet. Something you saw in the movie queen, you realize, is what you once saw in your wife-and now see again. The day hasn't been so bad after all.

"The Big Squeeze is gone!"

A QUEER SNAKE

A case of mistaken identity: Police said Mrs. Milton Walker, Louisville, Ky., telephoned that a "snake" was in her basement, coiled around a post.

When police arrived they found Mrs. Walker and her mother sitting on a divan crying.

In the basement, officers unwound a 4-foot belt from the post. No-

Servants of Men

By Joseph Lister Rutledge

New jobs don't grow like mushrooms. They cost thought, and they cost effort, and they cost money. We double our work force in Canada in the course of a very few years and we accept the fact that the workers can find work without a hint of surprise.

Perhaps if we were a little more surprised we might also be more understanding. In the year 1917. for instance, there were 658,523 Canadians employed in industry. In 1939 there were 658,114, representing a nice steady growth of fifty odd thousand jobs achieved in a matter of twenty years or so. That was really quite an achievment as everyone was ready to admit at the time.

But now we come in 1952, the the last year for which figures are available at this writing. In that year industrial employment reached a total of 1,273,189. In a fifteen-year period employment had almost doubled with 615,075 new jobs. Just as a matter of figures it is really something spectacular. It becomes considerably more so when we stop to think for a minute about how these jobs were produced.

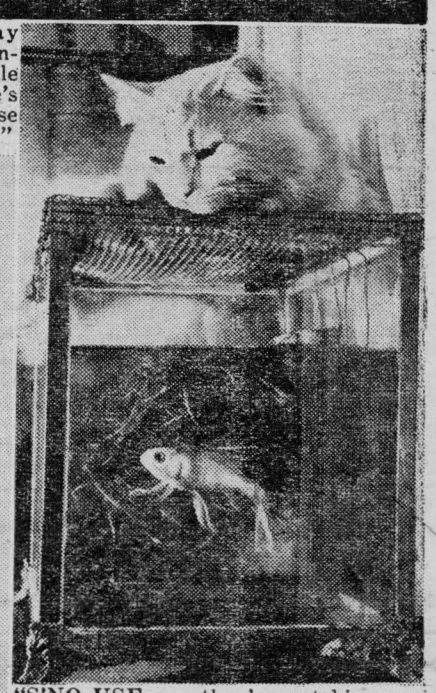

According to the Labor Gazette the cost of producing a new job for each new worker was about $6.26. In special industries like steel, where equipment is hugely costly, it almost doubles that figure. But just this cost for average occupations adds up to a pretty penny. If you want to be dazzled just do the multiplication for yourself of 615,075 new jobs each costing$6,269 to produce. If this cost was equally distributed over the fifteen years the outlay was still a staggering $257 million in each year. No one ever heard of a worker putting up the $6,269 to provide his own job. But someone had to. Those someones were the much misjudged capitalists. They put their money to work, naturally hoping to get a return for it, but knowing that it had to provide jobs before the return was possible. Isn't that worth something? And the other source was money made in the business—the profits that helped to make these jobs possible.

Doesn't it seem reasonable to ask: Shouldn't the dollars that made so many jobs possible be worth some reward, and shouldn't the profits, which help make these jobs, be thought of as something more than a great reserve to be raided when ever a new demand for wage or benefit is raised?

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Many bakeshops sell fine rolls, but if you want the double treat of sniffing the delightful aroma of rolls hot from the oven, it is up to you. hTis is easy with the help of the roll mixes on the grocer's shelves.

These roll mixes contain all the ingredients except water. You will be dilighted with the results if you follow the directions and keep in mind the following tips. By the way, if an extra box is being stored, tuck down in a cool part of the cupboard.

TAKE A TIP

1. Follow carefully the labelled directions according to the kind you are using. Do not sift.
2. To hasten rising, set in the warming oven of electric range on chopping board. Or place on a cake rack placed over a casserole and pour hot water into casserole.
3. To glaze crust before baking, brush with a mixture of ½ tbsp. egg yolk and 2 tbsps. water. (We prefer soft crust by brushing with butter after baking.)
4. Refrigerator method: You can make a fresh batch every day for 3 or 4 days if you mix all the package then store, covered, in the refrigerator. Clip off desired amount to be baked using kitchen scissors.
5. To serve hot breads, line a bread basket or plate with napkin, then place a piece of plastic over it. Arrange hot rolls on plastic and fold napkin to keep them warm.
6. To reheat rolls or bread, place in double boiler and keep water boiling in lower part for 20 minutes. If you have oven turned on or warming oven, place rolls in paper bag, dampen the paper and heat 10 minutes.

Two-from-One

One package roll mix may be divided and prepared ever so differently—a savoury bread for lunch and a sweet for tea.

Onion Loaf

½ pkg. roll mix
2 cups chopped onion
1-8 tsp. pepper
1½ tsps. celery salt
3 tbsps. salad oil
1 tbsp. milk
1 egg, beaten

Prepare mix as label directs, refrigerate half for tarts next day, and let rise. Meanwhile, saute onion with seasonings in oil until tender but not brown. Divide dough in half; roll half to fit 10 by 6 inch baking dish. Spread onion over dough. Roll the other portion; place onion on it. Brush top with milk combined with egg. Let rise until double. Bake at 400 degrees in oven for 20 minutes. Cut in 10 pieces as bread chunk.

Jam Roll Tarts

½ pkg. roll mix
¼ cup bran
½ cup peach jam

Let chilled dough come to room temperature (about 1 hr.) Roll ¼ inch thick. Cut with 3 inch cutter. Line muffin tins to halfway with dough. Mix bran with jam and drop by spoonfuls into centre of each muffin cup. Lightly grease eadge of dough. Cover with clean tea towel and let rise until double. Bake at 400 degress in oven for 20 minutes. Makes 8 sweet rolls.

Quick Method Rolls

Prepare packages of roll mix according to directions. Roll dough into a 10 by 6 inch rectangle and place in rectangular casserole of this size. Dip a long sharp knife into hot water and wipe dry; with this cut dough (up-and-down motion) into 1 inch squares. Let rise until double. Bake at 400 degrees in oven for 15 minutes. Turn out, brush with butter. Break off servings when lukewarm.

Biscuit-Mix Rolls

1 pkg. yeast granules
2 tbsps. warm water
¾ cup warm water
1 tbsp. sugar
2½ cups biscuit mix.

Sprinkle yeast on lukewarm water. Let stand 5 minutes without stirring. Add to milk. Add sugar and biscuit mix. Beat well. Place dough on well-floured board and knead gentiy 4 0times. Shape rolls; place on greased baking sheet; cover; let rise until double. Bake at 400 degrees in oven about 15 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 1 doz.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. H. C. asks: When you roll out biscuit dough made from a package mix, should we use flour or biscuit dough mix on the bake board?

Answer: We use flour.

Mrs. S. W. asks: What is the secret of success for high popovers?

Answer: Some folks make the mistake of not sifting the flour before it is measured. Others do not have success with popovers because the greased pans are not heated in a hot oven for 5 minutes before the batter is spooned into each cup or muffin pan.

Mrs. F. H. asks: How long should we allow for rolls (made the old-fashioned way with potato water) to rise double in the electric warming oven?

Answer: A batch of dough using about 6 or 7 cups flour usually requires 2 hours. Do put the pan of rolls on chopping board placed on bottom of warming compartment.

BABOON SHOOTS MAN

A cornered baboon sprang at an African who was hunting him at Mekushi, Northern Rhodesia, grabbed his gun and in the strugle shot the man in the thigh. The barrel was pointed towards the hunter and the animals tail became entangled with the trigger. The sound of the shot scared the baboon which dropped the gun and fled.

Woman's Influence

Mrs. Hawk, says Reverend Birch,
Has to drag her spouse to church.
In due time he hopes she may
Make of him a "bird of pray."

As Strong As The Weakest Stitch

No garment is stronger than the thread used to stitch the seams that hold it together. This is the least expensive item used in its struction, yet it is surprising how many home sewers give no thought at all to the choice of thread. Often this carelessness results in a repair job nearly every time the garment is worn.

The next time you go to town, it would pay off to spend a few minutes in earnest study of the thread counter in your favourite store. You'll be amazed at the variety, and in the future will be able to shop intelligently, asking for exactly the right type for the material and garment you intend to use it on.

You can choose from silk, nylon and mercerized cotton threads, but in any case, be sure to take along a sample of the material you wish to match. Silk thread should be used for silk, wool or rayon material with a very shiny finish. It is also best for napped material such as velvet which marks easily. For both velvet and satin, silk thread is recommended for basting as well.

When cotton thread is mercerized, that means it has been treated to insure increased strength and lustre, and that it is shrunk. It is very foolish to use thread that has not been treated for shrinkage, as the seams will pucker when first laundered, and that takes away the professional look which was your pride when the garment was new offthe machine. Mercerized cotton is the thread of cotton, linen and rayon with a dull finish.

Nylon thread is used for nylon, and can usually be bought in shades that will disappear easily in the material you wish to match. It has more elasticity than silk, and is ideal for bias seams.

Then there are the special threads sold for darning, for buttonholes, for sewing on buttons and for mending carpets and mats. Look these over, too.

Using good thread means better results, and will save you time in the making. Its even smooth texture is much easier on the machine and not as likely to tangle or break. Most important, of course, the seams are stronger and have a more even appearance.

Now that you know all this, nothing could tempt you to save two or three cents on a spool of thread. Isn't that so?

After Washing A Washer Rests

To prepare your washing machine for its rest between washings, first take the tension off the wringer rolls by striking the wringer release. If pressure is left on while the washer is not in use, the rolls will tend to flatten. With the pressure removed, remove the rolls and wipe them with a damp cloth to rid of soap film and help keep the rolls firm and springy. Never use abrasives or cleaning fluids on the rubber rolls.

About a cupful of water will remain in the drain hose after you have emptied the washer tub. Be sure to empty it out to avoid the possibility of chemical action between the water and the metal. Rinse out the inside of the tub and leave the cover off until all moisture has disappeared.

The agitator of your mahine should be lifted out, rinsed and dried after washing; otherwise a deposit of soap and soil may collect at the base.

Threads Hair with Hair

Howard P. Adam, Milwaukee jeweller, can drill a hole in a humand hair and thread another hair through it.

He does it to impress students in clock and watch repairing at the Milwaukee Vocational School with the necessity for careful work and patience. Adam teaches at the school.

Adam made the drill he used himself, starting with a piece of tool steel about the size of a darning needle. He hardened and tempered it and then put a drill point on one end. The point, with cutting threads, is much finer than a normal needle point. The threads are necessary; he explains, because you can't puncture a hair without splitting it; the hole must be drilled.

His drill complete, Adam jerked a hair from his head and started to work. It took hours, the first time, before he found out how. Now he can do it, usually in less than a minute.

THINGS ODD

A young woman has an inalienable right to be courted. Authority for that statement came recently from the Oregon State Unemployment Compensation Commission, which evidently has a heart.

The Commission held that a girl who quit her job because its irregular hours prevented her from seeing her fiiance was quite justified in doing so. It awarded her unemplcyment compensation.

Barefoot Sanders, a Dallas attorney, pricked up his ears when his partner told of seeing a badly smashed auto on his way to work. "What license number did you say that car had?" Sanders demanded.

"SO-128,' 'replied his partner.

"Why, that's my car" said Sanders. And that is how he learned his wife and baby—who fortunately weren't badly hurt—had been in a wreck.

Clifford E. Burton, 28, of Van Nuys, Calif., made a big mistake when he sent his young wife, Ellen, to baby-sit one evening recently. While there, she got talking with the lady of the house, also named Burton. Soon the two ladies discovered they were both married to the same man. That's the story told by police as they sought Clifford for bigamy.

2,025 KEYS!

An experimental type-setting machine with 2,025 keys—instead of the usual 90—has been built by a Russian engineer for printing in the Chinese language.

"I hear you advertised for a wife, any replies?"

"Hundreds of them."

"What did they say?"

"Most of them said: 'You can have mine'."

Duncan A. McRae Dies at Edmonton

A native of Avonmore, who paid frequent visits throughout the years to his old home, Duncan Arthur McRae passed away very suddenly at his home, Edmonton, Alberta, early Tuesday morning, January 5th. He was in his 82nd year.

Mr. McRae last visited his sister, Mrs. Clarence Shaver, Avonmore, and other relatives last October.

Born in the Third Concession of Roxborough, just west of the village of Avonmcre, Mr. McRae was a son of the late Malcolm McRae and his wife, Mary McAuley. His early years were spent in the district. At the age of 19 years he entered the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Avonmore. In the years that followed he was relieving agent at several stations in the district. Later he was agent in Green Valley.

On moving to Montreal, Mr. McRae became a despatched. It was not long, however, before he decided to move to Edmonton, where he later became chief despatcher for the Canadian National Railways. This position he continued to hold until the time of his retirement some years ago.

Mr. McRae was one of two charonmore Lodge No. 452, A.F. and ter members still surviving of Av- A.M.

His wife, the former Mabel Harrop, of Chesterville, survives.

Other mourners include two sons, Harold McRae, Sacramento, California, and Bruce McRae, Sherbrooke, Que. A daughter, Vera, and a son, Dr. Lyell McRae, predeceased him.

Mr. McRae leaves three sisters, Mrs. J. J. Irvine, Winnipeg; Mrs. Clarence Shaver, Avonmore, and Mrs. E. Reinhard, Edmonton. A sister, Mrs. William Brownell, passed away some years ago.

Funeral services were held in cdmonton on Saturday. The funeral was under Masonic auspices. Interment was made in Edmonton.

MYSTIC ELEMENT IN HUMAN HAND

The lives of migrating salmon in British Columbia- may be safe guarded by a mysterious substance found in the human hand, deer's foot and seal skin.

The salmon have a habit of jumping power dams and swimming through irrigation ditches and polluted waters on their way to and from inland spawning areas.

Dr. J. Hart, director of Pacific biological station at Nanaimo, B.C., said that this substance repels the fish. He said that small doses of the substance put into the waters of Stamp Falls fishway on Vancouver Island, caused alarm among ascending salmon.

Scientists feel that the substance may help fish bypass high dams and stay away from diversion channels, persuading them to follow a safe course on their migrations.

A pair of rabbits being chased by a pack of hounds had stopped to rest in a ravine. The baying of the dogs was getting closer and closer when one rabbit said to the other: "Shall we start running or stay here and outnumber them?"

Glenn E. White Heads Local Red Cross For Coming Year

Reports given at the annual meeting of Chetserville and District Red Cross Society, held in the library in Monday evening, gave an indication of the important part the peacetime activities of the branch have assumed in the community.

Glenn E. White presided and addressed his thanks to all persons who, in any way, helped the branch achieve such a high standard of service. The minutes of the last annual were approved as read by the secretary, Mrs. B. W. Campbell.

The treasurer's report, given by proxy for Mrs. Eric Casselman who was ill, showed the quota of $800 had been oversubscribed and all commitments had been honoured.

The chairman of the Emergency Relief and Loan Cupboard Committee, Mrs. O. L. King, stated help had been given to fire victims, veterans, ill and needy persons. The Society had on hand 2 good wheel chairs and three hospital beds in addition to a well stocked loan cupboard. It was disclosed that in case of disaster unlimited help could be given.

Mrs. Gordon Lannin said 29,000 capsules of cod liver oil had been distributed to pupils of elementary schools. Mrs. King reported that cup towels, pillow cases, quilts and layettes had been made by various organizations and groups.

The budget for the year 1954 was drawn up by Mr. White.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Past president, R. A. Lynch; president. Glenn E. White vice pres., Mrs. O. L. King; secretary, Mrs. B. W. Campbell; treasurer, Mrs. Eric Casselman; Emergency Relief and Loan Cupboard, chairman, Mrs O. L. King; committee, Mrs. Tom Moran, Mrs. Eric Casselman, Mrs. George Merkley, Mrs. Gordon Lannin; auditor, W. A. McLaggan.

Mrs. Jim McCloskey and Graham Durant were selected as key persons for their districts in the event of relief or help being needed. Mrs. King and her committee, together with the president and secretary, were empowered to ask one person in each area serviced by the society to assume charge of making enquiries and reports in the event of disaster or distress arising.

The campaign chairman will be Mrs. B. W. Campbell who will be deeply grateful to hear from anyone who will volunteer to canvass —this year's quota being set as last year's, $800.—S.C.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to acknowledge our sincere thanks to relatives, friends and neighbours for the many acts of kindness shown us during the illness and death of a dear husband and son, James Robert Crump, for the many beautiful flowers and cards of sympathy. Special thanks to Dr. Justus, Mrs. Justus, all other doctors and nurses, Rev. H. N. Burgess, B.A., Rev. D L. Gordon, Mr Frank Casselman and Morewood Church choir.

Mrs. James R. Crump, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. L. Crump.

DIED

RAE—At her home, Nation Valley, on Sunday, January 17th, 1954, Agnes Rae, beloved wife of William Rae, in her eighty-second year. The funeral was held from the family residence on Tuesday, January, 19th, at 2.30 p.m., when the Rev. Wm. Reid, of Winchester, conducted the service. Remains were placed in Maple Ridge vault pending burial in the Spring.

Brockville Presbyterial Elects Mrs. H. Graham President for 1954

Mrs. H. Graham, of South Mountain, was elected president of the Brockville Presbyterial of the Presbyterian Church at the annual meeting held in Knox Presbyterian Church, Morrisburg, January 13. The retiring president, Mrs. Eric Larsen, South Mountain, presided over two well attended and inspiring sessions.

Greetings from Synod were brought by Mrs. J. Logan Vencta. Ottawa, and from the Brockville Presbytery by Rev. J. Hardwick, Morrisburg, who also welcomed the guests to Knox Church.

Mrs. Logan Vencta, in her usual bright and talented manner,urged all the W.M.S. members to grasp every opportunity for missionary advancement and emphasized the power of prayer.

Morning devotions were conducted by the Cardinal Auxiliary and in the afternoon by the Auxiliary of Morewood. Well prepared and excellent Departmental reports were read, followed by a very concise summary of the year's work by the corresponding-secretary, Mrs. T. R. Gates, Brockville.

Mrs. W. N MacDonald, Kemptville, closed the morning sessions with prayer.

Luncheon was served by the Morrisburg ladies after which Mrs. Lorne Kinkaid welcomed the guests. Mrs. Wm. Reid, Winchester, thanked the ladies for the warm welcome and kind hospitality.

Mrs. C. Robinson, corresponding-secretary, gave a very full and carefully prepared resumé of the work. The Presbyterial treasurer, Miss G. McCaughey, Kemptville, was pleased to report the Presbyterial had exceeded its allocation. These very encouraging reports were received and dedicated by Mrs. G. Blow.

Miss R. Walker, regional secretary for Ontario and Quebec, as guest speaker, gave some extremely helpful suggestions for the coming year as she reviewed the various reports.

The president, Mrs. E. Larsen, who is retiring after four years of earnest andfaithful service, in her closing address thanked the members for their co-operation, loyalty and assistance so freely given during her term of office.

Mrs. E. D. Jones and Mrs. E. Merkley rendered a beautiful duet which was greatly enjoyed.

Mrs. J. Logan Vincta took charge of the meeting, addressing the newly appointed executive, urging them to accept their duties cheerfully and prayerfully and to work together to make 1954 a record year for the work of missions in Brockville Presbyterial. She then installed and dedicated the following executive:

Hon. president, Mrs. D. Angus Gow, Apt. 10, 1 Heath St. E., Toronto; president, Mrs. H. T. Graham, South Mountain; 1st vice, Mrs. E. Munroe, Winchester Spgs.; 2nd vice, Mrs. A. D. McLellan, Iroquois; recording sec, Mrs. T. R. Gates, Brockville; corresponding sec., Mrs. C. R. Robinson, Winchester; treasurer, Miss G. McCaughey, Kemptville; Ev'eg. dept., Mrs. R. D. Ledgerwood, Winchester; girls work, Mrs. G. Forrester, Cardinal; children's work, Mrs. G. Blow, South Mountain; Home Helpers, Mrs. E. D. Jones, Morrisburg; library, Mrs. R. Nurse, Crysler; literature, Mrs. J. Riddell, Spencerville.

Welcome and Welfare, Mrs. C. Murphy, Brinston; supply, Mrs. C. Brown, Cardina; life membership, Mrs. L. Kinkaid, Morrisburg; Glad Tidings, Mrs. A. Shaver, of South Mountain; press, Mrs. W. C. McQuaig, Morewood; historian, Mrs. D. McLennan, Brockville.

Members without portfolio: Mrs. F. Dobbie, Ventnor; Mrs. J. R. Miller, Iroquois; Mrs. H. Wells, Cardinal. Finance committee: Miss G. McCaughy, Kemptville; Mrs. D. A. Dillabough, Dunbar; Mrs. R. Milne, Kemptville.

The newly appointed president, Mrs. H. Graham, spoke briefly asking the members for their support and co-operation for the coming year.

Rev. J. Hardwick closed with prayer a very successful and inspiring meeting after which tea was served.

Lloyd C. Davis New Warden Of United Counties

Lloyd C. Davis, reeve of Iroquois Village for the past six years, Monday wa s elected warden of the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry. He succeeds J. Maginnis, reeve of Osnabruck Township, who was warden during 1953.

Mr. Davis' election came after the 1954 inaugural session of counties council was opened at Cornwall by Clerk-treasurer L. C. Kennedy.

Mr. Davis is starting his seventh year in municipal politics, having entered public life when he first won the reeveship. He served for several years as chairman of Iroquois Public School Board of Trustees.

A native of Smiths Falls, where he was born in 1906, Mr. Davis went to Iroquois 24 years ago where he operates a garage business. Also active in sports circles, Mr. Davis is beginning his second year as president of the Ottawa District Amateur Hockey Association. The new warden has three sons and one daughter. He also has two grandchildren.

In his inaugural address, Warden Davis told council: "we are facing a year of possible radical change." He spoke of the impending St. Lawrence seaway and power development and said Eastern Ontario is on the verge of one of the greatest industrial booms in history if this development becomes a reality.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH AT MOREWOOD HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of Morewood Presbyterian Church was held in the church with Rev. John Hardwick, interim moderator, presiding.

Reports from various departments revealed a highly successful year. The report of the session was given by W. C. Hunter; board of managers by Ross Nurse; financial report by Mrs. W. C. Hunter.

Members of session for 1954: chairman, W. C. Hunter; Robert Stewart, Lennox Baker, Colin MacGregor.

Board of managers: Ross Nurse, Donald Runions, Kellogg Moffatt, Charles McLaughlin, Robert Stewart, Douglas Feeley, Mack Moffatt.

MRS. PETER MacDONALD, 79

Impressive tribute was paid the memory of Mrs. Peter A. MacDonald, a member of a pioneer family who settled in the Ormond district, at the funeral service from the family residence in Winchester to the Winchester Baptist Church.

Relatives and friends filled the church for the service which was conducted by Mr. Gordon Brown.

Born at Ormond, 79 years ago, she was the former Permilla Margaret Carkner, daughter of the late Nehemiah Carkenr and his wife, Annie MacDonald. She attended district schools and was married in 1901. She was a member of the Ormond Baptist Church and of the women's organizations.

The family moved to Winchester 10 years ago and her husband died on April 1, 1949. She had been ill for nearly a year and died at the Winchester District Memorial Hospital.

Chief mourners and survivors are two sons, Alex, Port Arthur, and Gordon, at home; one daughter, Mrs. Dalton Timmins, Inkerman; one sister, Miss Jessie Carkner, Vernon.

Interment was in the family plot at the Ormond Cemetery, where the graveside service was conducted by Mr. Brown.
