40 Unit Senior Citizens Residence for Iroquois

Iroquois is to get a 40-unit senior citizens residence, according to a report filed with the Village last week by Ontario Housing Corporation. The report on the rent-geared-geared-to-income project showed that 74 people had responded to the questionnaires distributed and of these 32 were considered very interested and needy. 32 thought they might be interested at some future date, four were found to be ineligible and six were considered not interested.

Of those considered very interested and needy, nine were from the area surrounding the Village and were included in the survey.

Since there were 32 immediately wishing this type of accommodation, Ontario Housing Corporation felt that those who also had expressed a keen interest at a later date suggested that more will have then decided to join in the rental of units.

The units will be one-bedroom, livingroom, kitchen and bathroom and possibly will be a two-storey structure. Final details have not been worked out and until the land is acquired and plans drawn, the final architecture of the building will not be known.

The average rent to be paid in Ontario Housing for singles is $37 and $73 for couples. (These are average figures only and could vary in different municipalities).

Of the first 32 people who have applied 20 were single people and the remaining 12 were married couples.

The rent that is being paid by these people now ranges from $60 to over $100 month.

If plans materialize as now being considered the new building would be built immediately west of the shopping plaza and east of the Legion Hall on Dundas Street. It is also intended to build a medical-dental complex adjacent to the senior citizens housing as soon as plans are completed in cooperation with local organizations and others.

Ethel Burleigh Wins Florida Trip

Miss Ethel Burleigh, Iroquois, was the grand prize winner of a trip for two to Disney World, in a contest sponsored by Saver's Ltd., Iroquois.

Miss Burleigh wins the week-long trip including air fare for two, motel accommodation and $100.00 in expense money.

The contest which ran from July 1st until last weekend gave away $25.00 in merchandise each week to the lucky weekly winners as well as a chance at the grand prize.

The Post expresses best wishes to Miss Burleigh on her win.

Foot Guards At Parks This Sunday

The Governor General's Foot Guards will be performing at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, August 26th at Crysler Park.

The Regimental Band, Governor General's Foot Guards, made its first appearance on June 15th, 72 barely eight days after the formation of the Regiment. The occasion was the departure from Canada of Lord Lisgar, who was relinquishing his post as Governor General of Canada. In the one hundred years since that first ceremonial occasion, the Band's appearance at the many military and state functions that take place in the Nation's capital have made it fmailiar to many Canadian and foreign guests alike.

The band has performed on several occasions before Her Majesty, the Queen. Due to the Regiment's close association with the Governor General, the band has performed for many distinguished Canadian and foreign personages.

The band is comprised of approximately fifty musicians. The present Director of Mus-Musicians. The present Director of Music, Captain G.E. Aubrey, Cd, has served for twenty-one years with the band rising through the ranks to attain his present postion. He is ably assisted by the Bandmaster, Master Warrant Officer J. Fleming, who saw service with military bands in England prior to coming to Canada in 1957, and the Drum Major, Master Warrant Officer J. R. Milne, CD, who has served with the band for seventeen years.

The band appears by kind permission of Lieutenant Colonel Commanding, Governor General's Foot Guards, and with the co-operation of the Cornwall Musicians Guild, Local 800, American Federation of Musicians.

The public is cordially invited to enjoy this performance. Admission is free.

ANOTHER MOVE FORWARD

The announcement this week that Iroquois is to get a 40-unit senior citizens residence is extremely good news for the village. And good news for those people who will be able to find reasonable accommodation within the community.

It may be some time before the building is started and completed, with land to be purchased, plans drawn for the building and so on, but the wait will be worthwhile for both the community at large and the individuals who will occupy the structure when it is completed.

The new building will release a number of houses for family units and these are sorely needed in Iroquois.

A good number of those people who applied for the new residence and who qualified do not live within the village boundaries but now live close to Iroquois. Some are former residents, we understand, who had to move out previously because they couldn't find accommodation to fit their pocketbook.

It is a good move indeed and we are pleased enough people were able to qualify for the residences to be able to get Ontario Housing Corporation to proceed.

Our hat is off to the village council for its initiative in going after this type of housing for the community's elder residents.

SCHOOL'S NOT FAR OFF

Again we would remind students that school opening is not far off and those who have been wondering whether to go back to school should be taking a long hard look at their decision.

As each year passes it seems that Canada - and the whole western world - finds more and more people unemployed. A great many of these are people who are uneducated or ill prepared to meet the competition for jobs in the industrial world.

A few find good jobs not needing much education, but what is their future. Where will they be ten years from now as trends change and jobs change? Will they still be working? At what salary? And with what future ahead?

It's not easy to take the advice of older family members or friends but just maybe - they might be right.

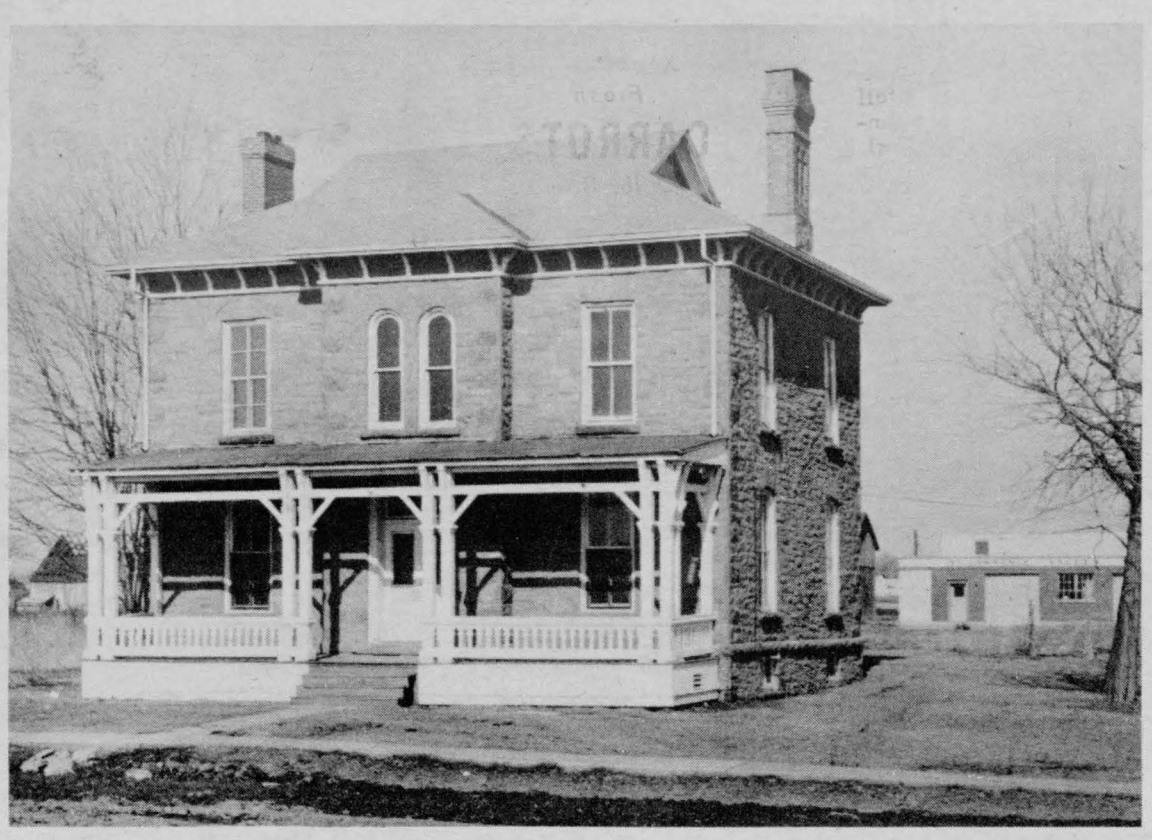

Give yourself every opportunity you can - while you can.

Living on welfare or unemployment insurance cheques isn't all its cracked up to be, no matter what you've heard or been told. That's the alternative you face if you make the wrong decision.

My wife cannot understand why anyone wants to travel, when he can sit in his own backyard and commune with the gods. I'm beginning to agree with her.

Getting ready is kind of a pain in the arm, especially if you must have a vaccination.

Obtaining a passport sounds easy. Heck, it's more trouble than getting married or dying.

All you have to do is fill in a form. The form is slightly more complicated than your income tax form.

Then, you must find someone who will swear that you are who you say you are. This person is called a guarantor and can be practically anyone except your neighbour.

Then you must obtain a birth certificate. This is fairly simple if you know where you were born. If you don't, or you happened to be born in Zilch, Yugoslavia, it can be complex.

You must have passport photos taken. You can't just use an old snapshot in which you look your best. Passport photos are an old joke. They usually make you look like a zombie. Strangely, ours turned out well. We didn't pose for them, because we knew they'd be gruesome, so they came out relaxed.

Besides passports and birth certificates, there is a myriad of other pother to look after, and you could use a full-time clerk for a week or two. Air tickets, money arrangements, hotel reservations, and who's going to feed the cat.

A travel agent is almost a must in these days, when half the world seems to be on the move. He or she can smooth a lot of wrinkles and give valuable tips on how to win at least the occasional round in the game.

Many people go to big agencies in the city. My travel agent, a personable young local chap, couldn't have been more helpful and efficient. (Aside to Bill Mandly: everything, by golly, had better be right, after that.)

He told me something about air fares that is almost unbelievable. A return ticket to the U.K. can run all the way from a Christmas charter at $187 to a regular flight at $626 (under two weeks). I shudder to think what a first-class ticket would cost in the latter category.

Of course, a business man can write off the $626 as expenses, and to the little old lady going back for a visit after fifty years, that $187 special might represent months of scrimping. Even so, something smells, in the discrepancy.

Travelling is not cheap, unless you want to swim across, which I've contemplated a couple of times as the bills mount. Only reason I haven't developed the idea is that my wife is a good swimmer, but only for about thirty yards. I'd hate to see her go down thirty yards off the Halifax docks, and have to do all the rest on my own, with nobody to tell me I was steering the wrong course.

Not cheap! Good gravy. Just looked over the items before we even left the house. Air ticket — $332; passport photo — $3; passport — $10; birth certificate — $3; limousine to airport — $8; Britrail pass — $70. Those are just the basics. Multiply by two if you're a couple.

Then there are the ever-present extras: new clothes, expenses to get to city to get passports, and the inevitable sundries, too numerous to mention, as the auction sale ads put it.

That's before you get on the plane. You still have to eat and sleep for three weeks after you get there. However, I've cut the whole thing down quite a bit by cancelling our two daily paper deliveries for three weeks. Saved about $6.50 right there.

Our Britrail pass allows us to go anywhere in the U.K. It may come in handy. We may be riding trains all night, every night, to save hotel bills. And we're taking along an eight-pound salami and six loaves of bread, so we might come through.

I have a vague idea that this column will not go down as one of the greatest pieces of exotic travel literature ever written.

But it is a little hectic around here. Six hours to takeoff, my wife is just starting to pack. I have to go down and sell my soul to the bank manager, get up to the school and look after some items for September, see young Wilson next door about feeding the cat, call the boy about mowing the lawn, pick up the dry-cleaning, get the books back to the library, and, somehow in there, try to have a shower and shave.

Compensation On The Farm

Most farmers are aware of the fact that their workers are covered under the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Act. As a matter of interest, they have been obliged to cover their workers since 1966. However, some of the details of coverage bear repeating for those farm operators who don't fully understand the whole picture. The assessment rate for farm workers is divided into two categories; one covers the operation of chicken and turkey farms, mushroom, tobacco, nursery, market gardens and florist farms. The assessment rate is $1.50 per $100 payroll. The second is $3.35 per $100 and covers Christmas tree, dairy, stock, hog and general farms, and those operators performing custom cash crop operations. Those farmers who engage in both types of operations and can show a separation of duties and maintain a separate payroll, may be eligible for assessment under both rates. For further information about this, an operator should contact the Toronto Head Office of the Workmen's Compensation Board at 90 Harbour Street.

Any person who is paid a stated wage and works under control and supervision is automatically covered and is eligible for benefits under the Act.

The employer must record the employee's name and wages in his payroll records. Members of the farmer's family, except his wife are considered as workmen when paid a stated wage. This information must be recorded on the wages-paid form in the section for "Relatives of Employer and Partner." Room and board is included at a rate of $2.00 per day or $14.00 per week, except in the instance where the employer has a son or daughter still attending school.

Farmers and their wives may apply for personal coverage in any amount between $4,000 and $10,000 per year. This coverage may be requested for part of the year only, and this must be indicated when applied for. When such application is made, the amount of the employer's earnings or drawings is not taken into consideration. Costs are calculated at the same rate as for employees in the industry.

For operators who do not have any hired help, the farmer may request independent operator coverage which is assessed at the rate determined for the type of bisiness that he has.

Exchange of labor is a common practice today. Employees who are sent to a neighbouring farm and still included on the payroll of their employer are covered in the event of an accident.

At this busy time of year, farmers are more susceptible to accidents than at other times. Working with the Farm Safety Association the Workmen's Compensation Board protects the farm employee, and in a very direct way the employer, also. An unsafe operation can cost the operator untold sums in lost productivity and thereby, in profits.

Work safely. Accident prevention pays!

DOLLARS & GOOD $ENSE

by WILLIAM J. MARTIN
Special Consultant to Avco Financial Services

A pool of some 800 California drivers is involved in a test of the new automotive catalytic converter, but they are spending most of their time looking for service stations which sell unleaded fuel. For if these test cars are filled with even a low lead gasoline, the $300 muffler-like unit will not stop pollutants.

California was chosen by both Ford and General Motors for test purposes because of the more stringent emission control regulations there. The new converters will cut hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions by about 90% from the pre-1968 models. The automakers say it is the only way they will be able to meet the new U.S. standards.

All 1975 model cars in California and 1976 models elsewhere in the U.S. will probably be equipped with the catalytic converter, but without lead free fuel, the converter is useless.

U.S. standards currently call for all stations pumping at least 200,000 gallons of gasoline each year to have a lead free pump by July 1, 1974, but what about smaller stations and those in Canada and Mexico?

If such tourism is going to be encouraged, a lot of lead free gasoline is going to be needed soon.

Readers' questions are welcome and should be sent to Box 5875 London, Ontario.

Take inequity from tax act

"A recent amendment to the Income Tax Act will take much of the inequity out of taxing capital gain on marketing quotas," says GordonHill, President. Ontario Federation of Agriculture. Hill is a white bean and hog farmer from Varna, in Huron County. This amendment, which passed third reading late last week, recognized the Valuation-Day value of farm marketing quotas. This means that taxable capital gain will be calculated on the difference between the sale price, and either the purchase price or the market value at December 31, 1971. The greater of these two values will be exempt of tax."

Previously, any value gain since the date the quota was bought, would be used to calculate taxable gains.

"Without farmers and farm groups working closely together --there is not a snowball's chance in hell that we would have got the amendment near the House," says Hill.

Originally, the officials in the tax department did not understand the problem. However, united action, spearheaded by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, got the change before parliament. The CFA was strongly supported by the Ontario Federation of Agriculture; the marketing boards for milk, broiler chickens, and tobacco; the Ontario Commodity Council; and some hard-fighting MPs in the three major parties.

"Taxes on quotas needed to be reviewed. Recognizing their V-Day value now treats quotas the same as other capital assets. That's how it should be," adds Hill.

Recreation Tips

The beaches are crowded in Ontario's vacationland. Clean sand and water which we are fortunate to still possess has an irresistable allure for the holidayer on warm summer days.

The Ontario Safety League has prime concern for two groups of swimmers; young children who are not good swimmers and adult swimmers who do not realize their limitations.

It is a sad fact that children are the chief victims of drowning on our beaches and the majority of these incidents occur in less than two feet of water. Parental responsibility is the answer to this needless loss of young lives. It only takes one drop of water going down the wrong way to create panic and a state of drowning. Constant surveillance of young children is the only sensible way to prevent these tragedies.

A strong young man sets out for an early morning swim, confident in his ability to reach the far shore of the lake. He has done it every morning since the beginning of his vacation. But this morning proves the law of exceptions. Half way across the lake a cramp immobilizes the swimmer, and without immediate aid, fatal panic ensues. This a typical "good swimmer" drowning. An attending boat would have prevented it.

RISING PRICES HIT

The Federal Government has undertaken to deal with rising food prices and to lessen their effects on people with fixed incomes.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced a three-point program, assuring Canadians "there is no shortage of food in Canada, nor will any be allowed to develop":

- temporary controls on beef and pork exports
- old age pensions and income supplement payments will increase quarterly rather than annually -- a pensioner now receiving $100 monthly will receive $105.30 on October 1
- strengthening of the Food Prices Review Board and giving it power to investigate individual food price increases.

Comments on the government's measures vary:

- Thomas G. Bolton, president of Dominion Stores -- export controls should provide relief for Canadian consumers "if administered effectively"
- Robert Olley, Saskatchewan economist and spokesman for the Consumers Association of Canada -- Board "can now make a contribution to containing prices in that it will prevent profiteering"
- Progressive Conservative Party Leader Robert Stanfield -- government is "trying to fix broken legs with a Band-Aid without first setting the legs"
- NDP Leader David Lewis -- most of the program is "sheer, meaningless fluff".

Within two days of the announcement, wholesale meat prices across Canada had already dropped $2.00-$5.00 a hundredweight. And four major meat packers are forecasting lower meat prices for consumers.

JOBLESS DOWN

Canada's unemployment figures steadily decline. Statistics Canada reported that the unemployment rate for July is down to 5.2% from 5.3% in June. The total of unemployed Canadians decreased by 42,000 in July.

WITHDRAWAL APPROVED

The decision to withdraw Canada's observer force from Vietnam received the support of 84% of Canadians, according to a Gallup Poll taken the first week of July. Partisan approval of the withdrawal was -- Liberals, 83%, Conservatives, 92% and NDP, 84%.

HOUSING STARTS UP

Housing starts in Canada during the second quarter of this year reached 78,533 -- double the starts recorded for the first quarter, 38,798 and almost 7,000 more than the number of starts in the second quarter of 1972.

100th anniversary Birth of Nellie McClung

Nellie McClung 1873-1951

Postmaster General André Ouellet today announced that an 8-cent stamp commemorating the 100th anniversary of the birth of Nellie McClung, a vigorous advocate of social reform and women's suffrage, will be issued 29 August 1973.

"Nellie McClung can rightly be considered one of the pioneers of the feminist movement", said Mr. Ouellet. "Her successful leadership in the cause of political equality for women and her own, precedent-setting achievements in public life helped to open the way for Canadian women to participate fully in the political affairs of their country."

The suffrage movement begun in 1880's had made little progress in Canada by the turn of the century. Nellie McClung helped to change all that by her vigorous campaign in Manitoba which led to that province becoming the first to grant full political equality to tis women in 1916. This provided the impetus for subsequent suffrage legislation passed by Saskatchewan and Alberta within the same year and followed by British Columbia and Ontario in 1917, Nova Scotia in 1918, New Brunswick in 1919, Prince Edward Island in 1922 and Newfoundland in 1925.

In 1929 Mrs. McClung was one of five women, led by Judge Emily Murphy, who won the Privy Council decision which established that women were persons in the laws of the British Empire and could therefore be appointed to the Senate, a privilege previously denied them despite their right to vote and hold public office as high as the House of Commons.

As well as her achievements in the cause for women's suffrage, Mrs. McClung attained position and honours in public life never previously matched by any Canadian women. Her support of the war effort was rewarded by an appointment to the Canadian War Conference in 1918. In 1921 she was the first Canadian woman to attend as a delegate an international ecumenical conference of the Methodist Church. That same year she was elected to the Alberta Legislature where she sat as a member until 1926. From 1936 to 1942 she served as the first women member of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's board of governors. During this time she also served as a Canadian delegate to the League of Nations in 1938.

Nellie Letitia Mooney was born October 20 1873 at Chatsworth, Ontario. When she was seven sh moved with her family to Manitoba where, in 1896, she married Robert Wesley McClung. She died in Victoria, British Columbia on September 1951.

HOMING — One of the most mysterious aspects of bird behaviour is the phenomenon of migration; particularly the ability of hens to return year after year, not only to the same marsh, but even to the same nest site. Numerous theories have been proposed to explain this homing behaviour: learning and "memory", innate direction-orientation, relation to sun and stars, weather patterns, etc. No single theory adequately explains the phenomenon. Perhaps this is a mystery that shall remain unsolved.

Death is the Hitchhiker DRIVE SAFELY

What to do when Smokey The Bear has previous engagement

Things were serious. The middleville "Pioneer Days" were a couple of weeks away when workers in the Lanark district office found out Smokey the Bear, or rather the summer student who dresses up as Smokey the Bear and represents the Ontario Fire Prevention Assoiciation at Ontario fairs, was all booked up.

That meant the Lanark workers were left without a plan of how to do something different for the Middleville parade.

If you've never been to the "Pioneer Days" in Middleville, Lanark County, or viewed the parade, then you have no idea how serious things really were. The gigantic, jazzy Toronto CNE and the Ottawa "Ex" with their midways and big grandstand shows are a yawn around that part of Lanark County. Middleville is the "real" fair. The community of 200 plan for it all winter, thinking up new ways to make it even more old-fashioned next time. It's a community thing, something you get swept up in, in the end a delightful frenzy of rural activity.

But Smokey couldn't make it. Now what? The sloution came after long debates during morning coffee breaks and over euchre at lunch hour downstairs in the office.

Forest supervisor Ed Borczon was suddenly on his way to Ottawa and downtown Toronto to a costume company where he used to pick up robes and swords for Shakespearian productions at his old high school, Bloor Collegiate. Seasonal biologist, Evan Thomas began designing and building a float on the back of a truck. There was hammering, pounding, tree-cutting and four junior Rangers from the camp back in Dalhousie township suddenly got the word their supervisor, Tommy Ferguson, has volunteered their services as animals.

The day of the parade, they were all there, Evan dressed as Smokey on the float which was all green trees at one end and scorched conifors at the other, bearing the sign "Please - Be Careful This Year". An old stump with a pot carrying live charcoals belched smoke every time green grass was dropped onto it; and the four Junior Rangers who expected to spend the entire summer working on forestry - wildlife management projects were now dancing along Middleville's main street dressed as racoons, skunks, squirrels and rabbits, handing out kits with fire prevention comics, folders, badges and stickers to the children in the crowd.

And were the "Pioneer Days" a success? There were 119 entries in the parade, everything from antique cars, high stacked steam engines and horseback riders to pipe bands and horses and buggies, all of which took 45 minutes to pass by. There was barbecued chicken, Balderson cheese, homemade bread and jelly, fiddle music and step dancing behind the red brick church, old time threshing displays back in the field, stump pullers and an egg-catching contest that saw throws of more than 20 feet without a suggestion of a crack in the shells. The Lanark County Fire Department and Lanark Agricultural Society made a total of $10,000 in clear profits to be used to restore the ancient buildings in the village - founded in 1820 by Scots from Stirling and Glasgow.

But probably the real mark of success came Saturday night during the packed square dance under the beams in the village's old weathered barn. The stepping got so lively somebody went through the floor boards. There was talk about replacing the boards with concrete, but many have already opposed the idea on the grounds the bounce from the wooden planks in the Middleville barn floor is traditional, irreplaceable, soul-satisfying and not calculable in ordinary dollars and cents.

Ministry of Natural Resources Eastern Region Districts have had manned exhibits at the Kingston and Belleville Fairs and plan to exhibit in Perth. In Ottawa the Natural Resources exhibit featuring among other things eight species of wild animals and ten species of fish is in the MacElroy Building on the Central Canada Exhibition's Lansdowne Park grounds until August 27.

For information and advice drop by the exhibits and talk to the Natural Resources men and women.

new product

United Co-operatives of Ont., a major manufacturer of dry livestock feeds for 33 years, will start marketing a liquid protein supplement (LPS) in September.

We've been evaluating liquid feeds for many years, says UCO's feed marketing manager, Dave Pelletterio, "but it's only recently they've become an economic factor in cattle nutrition."

The cost of the liquid feed is significantly less than the cost of the equivalent feed in dry form under present market conditions.
