Another New Industry To Locate in This District

An Ontario Development Corporation forgivable loan of $19,566 will help a small, newly-incorporated company establish a plant in Mountain Township, near Morrisburg, in Eastern Ontario.

Trade and Development Minister Stanley J. Randall said Eastern Drain Tile Ltd. will build and equip a 5,088 square foot plant at a total project of $74,500. The firm will manufacture plain and corrugated cement drainage tiles.

Seven new jobs will be created initially and a further 11 jobs within five years.

Availability of provincial financial assistance was a major factor in the company's decision to establish a plant, said Mr. Randall.

The interest-free loan, granted under the province's Equalization of Industrial Opportunity Program, will not have to be repaid provided the company meets certain conditions over a six-year period.

50th Anniversary for Morrisburg Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Broder Millward of Glen Becker, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last week. Fifty years ago, September 24, th former Ada Robertsn and Broder Millward of Williamsburg Township were married. Mr. Millward was an employee of the Canada Starch Company, at Cardinal. In 1924 the couple moved to Massena, N.Y. where Mr. Millward was associated with the Aluminum Company there.

Ten years later they returned to Canada and took over operation of the pioneer farm where Mrs. Millward was born and which had belonged to her grandparents and her parents. Except for the ten years spent at Massena, Mrs. Millward has always lived on that farm.

The interior of the original log house on the property has been modernized while retaining the original exterior. It is snug, cosy and attractive. Mrs. Millward's mother, Mary Weaver, late Mrs. Sandy Robertson came to the little log house as an infant two months old.

An old deed of the proptry shows that Luke Loden purchased the property, a crown grant, from John P. Crysler in 1835. Mr. Loden later sold it to Mrs. Millwards grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Weaver.

When the home came into the Weaver possession, the now spacious living room was a blacksmith shop. The ofrmer owner had been a blacksmith and a wheelright.

Mr. and Mrs. Millward are the parents of two children, John at Prescott and Mary who is married and living at Binghampton, N.Y. They have five grandchildren.

Mrs. Millward is interested in collecting salt and pepper shakers. Over the years she has collected more than 350 pair of every size and description. She has tall 12-inch ones, long ones, medium sized ones and miniatures, of every type imaginable making an interesting, unique and valuable collection. For her recent anniversary she received a squat hand painted pair of antiques and a set of small salt cellars

The couple were honored Saturday at a wedding reception held at the IOOF Hall, Williamsburg, by friends, neighbours and relatives. Their son was host to the immediate family at a supper held at Grenville Lodge, Prescott. Because of the death, that afternoon, of Mrs. Millward's 9$-year old sister, Mrs. Nelson Prunner of Colquhoun festivities were cut to a minimum.

Mr. and Mrs. Millward were presented with a congratulatory scroll and a lounge chair. Many gifts and letters of congratulation were received by the popular couple including messages from P.M. Trudeau, Governor General Michener and Hon. Lucien Lamoureux.

NEWS FROM SEAWAY DISTRICT H.S.

Seaway's first dance on September 26th, sparked many new comers as well as the regulars to an evening of rock entertainment with the "Lemon Creek Bridge".

The Students' Council will have regrets neither about their choice of bands nor about the enjoyment of the crowd. They will also be pleased with the overall financial picture.

The girls in the cafeteria moved about busily serving cokes to the dancers, and at intermission time, conversation never lagged.

"Lemon Creek Bridge", a well known group in this area, kept the crowd busy during every set with an assortment of tunes. The "Light Show" sent a variety of colour through the auditorium complementing the decorations.

This is only the beginning of a hopefully successful series of dances planned for Seaway students.

FOOTBALL—

SOCCER—

Last week's soccer game was played on Wednesday instead of Thursday as was reported. South Mountain led 1-0 for most of the game, but Don Delegarde scored a goal for Seaway on Paul Hill's corner kick to tie things up. The game was very rough with very little being called by the referee. Despite this, no one was seriously injured. Larry Cooper suffered a slight sprain, but we hope he will be ready for his game on Wednesday, October 1, This will be played at Seaway with Cornwall as opposition.

SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT

By Allan Bell

Seaway boys softball did well at Kemptville tournament under the coaching of Mr. Madden. Seaway bombed Maxville HS 10-3 in only 5 innings. The win advanced Seaway to the semi-final game against a fine team from Kemptville Agricultural College. These two teams met the previous year in the final game. However, the outcome was better this time. Kemptville jumped into a two to nothing lead. The game was then stopped 20 minutes due o rain. Seaway's spirits were not dampened and they came back tieing up the game. Kemptville again took the lead three to two. Seaway again came back in the 5th inning with five runs leading seven to three. The final score was seven to three in a very exciting game. The win advanced Seaway against Osnabruck for the trophy and tournament winner. Back to back games proved too much for Seaway and we were behind when the game was called at the end of the 3rd inning due to darkness. Decision has not yet been made on a winner. The game may be finished this week. Seaway boys involved were: Ron Delegarde, Allen Bell, Sam Locke, Danny McGinn, Roger Morrell, Bill Lawlor, Gary Hess, Stephen Young, Graham Thompson James Morrell, Rick Vaughn, Hartley Hodgsons, Stuart Valcour.

90th Birthday for Isaac (Joe) Wilson

Mr. Isaac (Joe) Wilson, Broder Crescent, Morrisburg, celebrated his 90th birthday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Easton, RR Williamsburg, Sunday, September 28.

Mr. Wilson, who is in excellent health and is as sharp and keen as a person can be, was born in 1879 at Calabogie. He was the second oldest of the twelve children (7 boys and 5 girls) of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Wilson. His mother was the former Emily Church.

He went to school at Calabogie and became a farmer. 45 years ago he came to Morrisburg and worked for the Black Lumber Company. He has retired and he and his wife Many live in their snug brick house on Broder Crescent which was moved at the time of the Seaway. They have a good garden in which both enjoy working. Until recently Mr. Wilson has enjoyed carpentering and other work but he "hasn't done much this year", he said. Mrs. Wilson said, "he is a handy man around the house. He can fix anything that goes wrong.

He has six children; Mrs. Pearl Easton, Williamsburg, Mrs. Verna McNee, Port Credit, Mrs. Eimly Bridges, Hail, Ont., Mrs. Sadie Abel, Iron Bridge, Mrs. Jean McLean, Massena, N.Y. and one son William Wilson, the baby of the family who is 45 years of age and who also lives at Massena. His brother William resides at Calabogie, he and Mrs. Wilson are the last of the large family. Mr. Wilson also lost a daughter Evelyn at 23 years of age.

At the surprise birthday party held Sunday in Williamsburg, 50 relatives and friends were on hand including 12 grandchildren and 16 great grandchildren

Mrs. Wilson received a carnation corsage and her husband a boutonniere. The honored guest was the recipient of many gifts and messages of congratulation.

When asked to what he attributed his extremely good health he said, with a twinkle in his eye; "I don't smoke, I don't drink or stay out late at night". He added, "I eat well, I sleep well but I don't work so well any more. He says his only complaint is "A little rehematism which doesn't bother him too much".

Knox Women's Club Sees Iroquois Dramatization

"Another Look at Christian Education in the Family" was the subject of a dramatization presented by pupils of Knox Presbyterian Church School of Iroquois at Monday night's meeting of Knox Women's Club, Morrisburg. Members of the teaching staff and Rev. Hibbs also participated in the program when members of Lakeshore Drive United Church Women were in attendance as guests, from Morrisburg.

The dramatization presented four scenes depicting: Responsible Love Religious Growth; Continuing Nurture; Faithful Obedience. They stressed the point that the first responsibility for Christian education of children is in the home, not the church school. Parents are primarily responsible in this area. The well-presented skit followed the steps from infant baptism, confirmation of baptismal vows in church membership, marriage and parenthood.

The Iroquois group was introduced by Mrs. Thomas Fraser and thanked by Mrs. Al Reynolds.

Roll call, at the meeting conducted by past president, Mrs. Charles Farlinger, was answered by relating a "holiday highlight". Mrs. Ivan Doney and Mrs. Robert Mott conducted worship service. The group will decorate the church for Thanksgiving and they plan to sell 1970 Presbyterian Church callendars again this year.

PREMIER ROBARTS TO START UP CANADA'S LARGEST GENERATOR

Canada's largest generating unit will be officially brought into service on Friday, October 10th, when Premier John P. Robarts starts the turbines turning at Ontario Hydro's Lambton generating station.

Start-up of the first of four 500,000-kilowatt units will be the highlight of official opening ceremonies at the $239 million Lambton plant, on the St. Clair River, 14 miles south of Sarnia.

Hydro Chairman George Gathercole will assist Mr. Robarts in bringing the unit on the line.

A second unit will be brought into service later this year and the remaining two are scheduled to produce power in 1970.

Plans to build the thermal giant in the heart of Canada's chemical valley were announced in March, 1954. At that time, the Lambton plant was to have been a two-unit, one million-kilowatt station. However in November of the same year, Hydro decided to double the station's size to effect savings of several million dollars in engineering, construction and purchasing costs.

Construction of the Lambton generating station began in June of 1965.

Part of a $2.3 billion expansion program aimed at more than doubling Hydro's generating capacity by 1978, the Lambton plant will produce three times the present peak power demands of Hamilton.

The unit which Mr. Robarts will officially turn on has a greater capacity than the entire Sir Adam Beck-Niagara generating station No. 1, which in 1922 was said to "eclipse any power plant previously built in the Niagara Falls area — and would be larger than any even contemplated anywhere in the world".

Many Log Structures in Upper Canada Village

Today the Ontario shore of the St. Lawrence River is thoroughly tamed, as is the open countryside beyond. Along the river lie the care fully groomed parks of the St. Law rence Park Commission. The surrounding landscape is one of farms, fields, light woods, and small towns

Nearly two centuries ago the pioneers of eastern Ontario found this land under the shadow of a towering forest. They would have to spend many years in the struggle to clear the land to gain farm land, roads and town sites, but their first efforts were to secure what little comfort they could from the forest confronting them.

Crude one-room shanties of horizontal logs were the immediate answer for shelter. In two days two men could have one of these ready to occupy. Logs were left round and what little axe work was expended on them was used to cut concave notches so that the logs would rest more securely where they crossed at the coners. The irregular spaces between logs had to be filled with chinking. An arrangement of overlapping hollowed half logs would do as a roof.

As soon as possible such cabins were replaced with sturdy log houses. Many of these had walls of hewn, squared timbers, some of enormous size. Right angle corners were neatly executed and secure, the best with dovetailed keying care fully cut so that water would be shed from the joints.

There was always a ready supply of logs and they were the natural answer for the building needs of the growing province.

Among the pre-Confederation buildings which have been gathered at Upper Canada Village, near Morrisburg, Ontario, are eleven early log structures. Built in the period between 1795 and 1860, these include several dwellings, a blacksmith's shop, a small church, a school, a barn, and an animal shed. Style of construction and workmanship vary as much as the original functions of the buildings.

Three additional structures have been reproduced by Village craftsmen and these represent the extremes of sophistication in log construction. One is a settler's cabin of round logs, crossing and projecting at the corners. The other two are a blockhouse and guard house with uniform, squared logs and precisely cut self-draining dovetail keys requiring a skill with the axe that many an Upper Canadian pioneer would have been happy to have at his command.

Along the roadsides and around the fields of Upper Canada Village can be found numerous examples of early fences, making use of whole logs, split rails and even uprooted tree stumps. This indeed marked man's final and total victory over the forest.

EDUCATIONAL SERVICES, NEW NAME NAME FOR FDD CONSUMER DIVISION

To keep pace with the changing times, the Food and Drug Consumer Division has changed its name. Educational Services is the new tag to designate its future functions. The name change indicates the expansion of services to educators - schools, provincial health departments and professional groups, as well as consumers in general.

The objectives of the newly named services are:

- to inform and explain to Canadians the food and drug laws enacted to protect ,benefit and help them at home and in the market place

- to assist educators in consumer and health education topics related to health hazards and fraud in food, drugs and cosmetics.

Action is centere in the offices of the five regional consultnats in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. To make the public aware of FDD protective measures, the consultants work with media and educators - teachers, community workers, resource groups and professional societies. Each consultant activates programs to suit the requirements of her area.

The headquarters office in Ottawa establishes guidlines and prepares educational material, such as booklets, fact sheets, visual aids and displays.

Educational Services are interested in the consumer side and also the educators' viewpoint on health aspects of topics relating to food and drugs. We welcome questions, opinions and criticisms. The frequency of a suggestion sometimes indicates a need for special attention from the Directorate. It may serve as a basis on which to prepare new regulations for consumer protection. Comments may also suggest topics for program materials for educators or consumers.

To obtain a list of Food and Drug educational materials contact the regional consultant in your area or write: Educational Services, Food and Drug Directorate, Department of National Health and Welfare, Tunney's Pasture, Ottawa 3, Ontario.

Judge Your Own Corn

Have you given any thought to selecting hybrids for 1970?

Harvesting time may be the best time of the year to check back over what has happened and make some notes on corn hybrid performance. Certainly there's nothing magical about choosing a hybrid and, perhaps, some day hybrids will be recommended on a prescription basis, including more information than at present.

The growers experience, good sense and available technical information, are what we have to go on and the first two are mighty important.

In suggesting that now is the time to select for next year, perhaps the following should be considered:

1. Weather condition throughout the past growing season
2. Seedling vigor.
3. Response to fertility
4. Suitability to planting
5. Tolerance to insects and disease.
6. Depth of Kernel
7. Speed of drying in the field
8. Stalk strength
9. Strength of root system
10. Days to maturity
11. Yield and weight per bushel
12. Ease of harvesting

Since it is impossible to perdict what next year's growing season will be like, it is difficult to say which of the above points are most important. The ability of a hybrid to "get out and going" early in the season and reach proper maturity are probably at the top of the list in importance.

It is probably safe to suggest that the best hybrids today aren't likely to lead the list a few years from now. A few notes made today on your farm, your neighbour's farm or experimental station, will help in future hybrid selections.

Kids getting rough deal

Have you noticed what has happened to all those tense, harassed, haggard, harried, hysterical women who were around all summer? They've suddenly turned into fat cats, smiling, relaxed, ready to turn the other cheek rather than belt you on yours.

Know why? Because their kids are back to school, that's why. Not that they don't love their children. No, no, no. All mothers love their children. But they can't STAND them after two months' holidays.

Paradise on earth is not the Isles of Greece, or two cars, or four credit cards, or a mink stole. It's sitting down with a cup of coffee after the kids are off to school and realizing that you won't see them for anywhere from three to six hours.

Silence. Golden. No more of, "Jane's mean. Billy won't give back my bike. When are we going for a swim? I wanna popsicle. There's nothing to do. It's hot outside. How come we never have any cold pop?" And so on.

Lucky ladies. No dirty bare feet tracking through the house. No whining. No demands for the impossible. No fighting. Nothing but an hour of blessed solitude, with a cup of coffee and maybe a cigarette for the depraved, and nothing to listen to except Jolly Jack, the disc jockey. Even getting at the dishes and the washing is a pleasure, when there's nobody there snivelling, "I fell and hurt my knee, Mum, Mum my knee hurts, Mum."

Well, girls, I hope you enjoy it. You deserve it. But while you're lolling in this sybaritic splendor, let me remind you that I and all the other idiots who teach school are stuck with your rotten kids for ten months, six hours a day. Keep this in mind when you scream at your horrendous education taxes.

It's not that I don't enjoy getting back on the job in September. If I did, I wouldn't be right in the head. It's a pleasant change after two months of my wife and daughter driving me crazy, singly or in tandem.

Instead of two women yattering and wheedling and scolding and nagging and cajoling and conning me, all I have to face is about 165 kids doing the same. But there's safety in numbers.

And I have some authority at school. If a kid bugs me too much, I can threaten him with all sorts of dreadful punishments, like being sent to the principal's office, which terrifies him about as much as being attacked by a bunny rabbit.

Or I can resort to the final edict, "Look, if you're 16 and you don't like it here, out, vamos, raus, get lost. There's the door. You're free." This is fairly effective, especially in winter, because they don't want to go to work.

Another delightful aspect of getting to work is meeting all my old friends on the staff. There's the cut-and-thrust wit of the staff room at lunch hour, much like the atmosphere of the French salons of the 18th century. "Who's got the crossword puzzle? Gawd, my feet are killin' me. Jeez, I wish it was Friday."

And there's the genuine thrill of staff meetings, where the real, gritty business of education is discussed with a dignity and decorum that would shame the Senate. Sometimes, in only 40 minutes, we decide whether gum-chewing is allowed daily, or only during exams, to relieve tension. And often, with remarkable dispatch, say half an hour, we decide, within four inches, how long a boy's hair or how short a girl's dress must be.

However, I do like kids, and it IS rewarding to watch them grope, then cope. And a few weeks ago a couple of former students, now at university, who were real hellers when I taught them, asked me out for a game of golf. And then a little girl called me up, and asked if she could be in my English class.

And Jerry, a boy of whom I rather despaired, but a good lad, asked Kim what I wanted for a gift last June, when he graduated, magna sans laude.

She replied, rather intelligently, I thought, "Give him something he likes, and something useful." All on his own, he hustled downtown and bought me a bottle of good Burgundy and three golf balls. When a chap shows judgment like that, you can't help feeling you've succeeded, somehow.

Sigmund Freud developed psychoanalysis as a method of easing people's mental problems, but his grandson Clement has an easier remedy - laughter. Clement Freud is one of the zany crew that make up the panel on a riotous new BBC comedy show starting Sunday. October 5. Entitled Just a Minute, the program consists primarily of participants attempting to talk knowledgably on a surprise subject for sixty seconds straight. It's very light-hearted and the results are always amusing. Author, gastronome and raconteur Freud is joined in this delightful production by Derek Nimmo, Nicholas Parsons and the inimitable Kenneth Williams (of the Carry On series).

CBC radio's former director of drama, Esse W. Ljungh recently retired from his formal duties. But Esse's retirement doesn't mean he won't be busy. He has already agreed to produce a special series on CBC Tuesday Night dealing with dramas written by novelists ranging from James Joyce and D. H. Lawrence to Muriel Spark and James Baldwin. He'll also be conducting a seminar at the University of Windsor. The National Arts Centre, and several regional theatres have sounded him out on his availability as an actor and director. As drama critic Nathan Cohen of The Toronto Star put it, "Professionally speaking, the man is just on the threshold of his career".

Don't forget that Sunday night coverage of NHL hockey begins on October 19th, with the Toronto Maple Leafs playing the New York Rangers in New York. There'll be 25 games in total carried over the network during the season . . . and still on the sports scene there's another new feature for CBC listeners in the western provinces - Prairie College Football. There'll be two or liginations each week permitting stations to follow their home team whether it's playing at home or away. Games will be broadcast on CBW Winnipeg, CBK Saskatchewan CBR Calgary and CBX Edmonton.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Morrisburg Leader,
Morrisburg, Ont.

Dear Mr. Editor (Art): We have enjoyed The Leader for some thirty years now and often read of something that is of particular interest to the many of us who have such pleasant memories of the old river towns.

When I was a young chap in Aultsville I remember, among many wonderful people, a grand old lady who entertained on many occasions at church functions. She was Mrs. Alice Duffin and one of the songs she sang was called "The Royal Telegraph". As I recall, the words of the chorus were as follows:

"Clear the way, clear the way,
For I've no time to chat,
O, don't you hear the rattle of
The Royal Telegraph".

I am putting together a scrap book of folk tunes and if anyone knows how I might get the words of this ald song, I would be very pleased to hear from them.

Kind regards.

GEORGE CHAN HAS FINE GARDEN AT HIS HOME

George Chan, popular restauranteur at Morrisburg is also a gardner of repute. This year, among many other vegetables grown on his garden plot at Church Street, he harvested several pounds of a chinese type marrow. One 30 inch slender green specimen called the "Tit Ker" type weighed 23½ pounds. Another yellow "Fo Lo Kar" weighed nine pounds and sported a voluptuous hour-glass figure.

Mr. Chan's garden has a simple yet effective canal system which carries water to various areas. This no doubt, is at least partially responsible for the owner's excellent crop:.

BLACK SQUIRREL IS HOUSE PET

Blackie the squirrel is a greedy industrious little fellow. For the past year Miss Lynne O'Brien, of Augusta Street, Morrisburg, has been wooing him with peanuts. He has become so tame that he follows her everywhere looking for a handout.

Recently, when the kitchen door was not securely latched, Blackie slipped in and scampered down the basement steps to where Lynne was busy with household tasks. He climbs the doors and windows, looking for attention and when Lynne is quietly reading he jumps on her knee and takes food from her pocket.

Sex . . . What is it?

DEAR DORIS — Next month I will be bridesmaid for my cousin, and I'm scared to death. I am 19, and I don't know anything about sex or how to act in the presence of men. I mentioned sex once and my parents told me to shut up.

Just even thinking about sex or love makes me turn red. Our minister wanted to have a sex education program for teen-agers, but more parents objected than were in favor.

Never Had A Date

DEAR NEVER — You know what? They won't talk to you about sex because they're scared stiff of the subject themselves! But you can catch up. The books about it, on the list I am sending you, are to be found in the library.

As you read them, keep in mind that sex combined with true love is a beautiful and natural thing — not something "dirty" or, on the other hand, to be indulged in lightly.

And in spite of evidence to the contrary, don't get the notion that mere physical contact is what dating is all about. Boys and men are people, approximately half of the human race. They have personalities and ideas, and make excellent comrades.

DEAR DORIS — My son bought a home and most of my family have been over to see it. He never makes a point of inviting anyone; feels that if people are interested, they will just call and say they would like to come over.

He says that if he extends an invitation, people might think he wants gifts for his new home. But here's the rub: my own brother has not seen his home, as he, on his part, thinks my son should invite him and that otherwise it is not proper for him to go.

Family Etiquette

DEAR FAMILY — Shades of Mrs. Grundy! Do family members have to stand on ceremony that much?

Proper etiquette is, indeed, to extend an invitation. This flatters a person that he is wanted! And any self-conscious notion that he might be expected to bring a gift is just out of the question.

But there should be leeway both ways.

DEAR DORIS — I got engaged last week. My aunt and uncle (that I live with) like him, but don't approve of my marrying someone not of my religion. They said my grandmother would turn over in her grave if she knew about it.

I think the world of my uncle and aunt. But my uncle said if I marry anybody of this other religion, he won't come to the wedding.

How can I convince him that I am growing up and can make my own decisions, without hurting them? I never thought people could be so stubborn and prejudiced about loving God.

To Have And To Hold

DEAR TO HAVE — Prejudice dies hard. Mature people know that religious difference can rise up like a wall between husbands and wives. Yet you do have a right to decide it yourself.

Have you discussed your beliefs and your fiance's, with your clergyman and his? If you have, and are really sure of yourself, tell them what you intend, and that even if they don't feel they can be there for the ceremony, you will keep on loving them.

Confidential to: Ready for the North — You couldn't do better than to take the St. John Ambulance First Aid Course, when you are going into an isolated spot. What you learn may well make you a key person in any emergency.

You learn to give artificial respiration, to victims of drowning or shock. You learn to give proper treatment to burns, which might save the life of a child — perhaps your own!

You learn how to handle a sprain or splint up a fracture, how to control severe bleeding, and prevent infection in a wound. And heaps of other things.

When the next accident happens, you won't be the one who stands there helpless; you'll do something!

Back to the blackboard

One year ago, Jean Jacques Bertrand took a definite stand on the education question in St. Leonard, Quebec.

"The immigrants claim that an injustice has been done," Premier Bertrand stated on Sept. 18, 1968. "I think I must accept that statement . . . the situation being what it is, that this province has been in law and in fact in many fields bilingual . . . it is very wrong to deny their claim that they have a choice to either the English or the French school."

A policy statement couldn't be clearer. But one year later, the mess that has twice exploded in violence, still plagues the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard.

To put it simply, the non-French citizens in St. Leonard, an area with 36,000 people, want an English education for their children. They are mostly of Italian and Greek origin. The English population of St. Leonard is less than three percent, so the French-English dispute isn't the question here.

The school board in the suburb is controlled by a French only group, Ligue pour l'Intergration Scolaire. Their leader is Raymond Lemieux, an admitted Marxist, who speaks perfect English himself.

Lemieux has convinced his radical followers that the only way to preserve the French language in Canada is to insist that public supported education be given in French only.

Even separatist leader Rene Levesque disagrees with this stand. He called Lemieux and his followers "panicky extremists . . . they are afraid of the degradation of the French language and culture but they are acting in a frenzy."

In fact, the Parti Quebecois leader said Lemieux's statement that only immigrants from the British Isles should have English schools, is "just racist."

Despite Premier Bertrand's statement, despite the popular view in Quebec, the sad fact of the matter is that hundreds of children of Italian parents are without proper schooling for a second year.

The Italian parents want their children educated in English because they feel that is where the future lies.

And as a newspaper editor friend of mine, a French-Canadian who runs one of Quebec's most popular weekend papers, states it, the question should have been clear-cut.

When the immigrants came to Quebec, they were told they had their choice of a French or English education for their children. Since almost all are Catholic, that meant either a French or English Catholic education.

Then last year when Lemieux and his group won the school board elections, the immigrants were told that what the government of Quebec promised them would not, in fact, be carried out.

That's when Mr. Bertrand made his clear-cut statement on the issue — clear cut to all but his own Education Minister, Jean Guy Cardinal, and to the St. Leonard school board.

The board refuses to back down and at a pre-school rally, a fight broke out between the parents and the Lemieux group. Lemieux called the parents "babies" for their stand and told them to move out if they didn't like it.

Education Minister Cardinal fanned the flames of both sides when he suggested the immigrants could set up a private school and the government would pay 80 percent of the cost.

It didn't take long for the Lemieux group to denounce this, and the immigrants also objected. After all, it isn't quite that easy to find qualified teachers on a short notice. And the parents are paying taxes to support a school system they can't attend in the language of their choice. They couldn't afford another 20 percent levy.

It is time the Quebec government not only made statements but took decisive action to back up their promises. If, in future, they want all immigrants to have instruction in French only, then let them tell the new arrivals before they settle in the province.

Mr. Lemieux told a press conference it is unfortunate the Italians and French, who should have so much in common, are fighting over this issue. In his view, the "sneaky English" are the only ones to benefit from the mess.

Queen's Park Comment . .

BY DONALD C. MacDONALD, MPP
Ontario Leader, New Democratic Party

The Second Session of the 28th Ontario Parliament resumes at Queen's Park on Tuesday, September 30th. The big change in the Legislature is the addition of Archdeacon Ken Bolton to the ranks of the New Democratic Party. Archdeacon Bolton, who lectures at Hur on College in London, was elected to the Legislature from the traditionally Tory riding of Middlesex South, on September 18th. His by-election victory removes a seat from the Conservative column that, for the twenty-six year life of the present Tory regime, has been counted as one of their safest strongholds. The NDP now have 21 seats in the Legislature.

Ken Bolton was elected following a hard fought campaign that saw the Conservatives plunge from 45% of the popular vote to 32%, the Liberals remain static at 31% while the NDP rose sharply from 24% to 37%. The results indicate that if the picture in Midlesex South holds true for the rest of the province, the NDP in the next provincial election will win over sixty seats and form a majority government. This would clearly be a major political transformation in Ontario and there is every evidence to suggest that it is now possible.

Interestingly enough, the 3600 votes that the NDP added to its 1967 total came in equal parts from the urban polls in London, and the rural and small town polls in the country. This dramatic increase in rural support for the NDP is a clear indication that respected New Democrat candidates will capture a number of rural (and traditionally Tory) seats in the next general election.

The resumption of the Session will also feature a continuation of the central confrontation that marked the Middlesex South campaign. The Government's mishandling of medicare in Ontario through the OHSIP scheme was undoubtedly a major factor in their downfall in Middlesex South. In the Legislature it is the NDP's intention to force the Government to change the scheme, first by drastically reducing the premiums so that they are no longer the highest in Canada, and secondly by eliminating the wasteful duplication caused by the retention of over thirty private insurance companies as agents of OHSIP. The NDP Caucus will use every opportunity that the rules of the Legislative Assembly provide, to ensure that the people of Ontario have a "real" medicare plan, the kind that New Democrats have been fighting for over the years.

The NDP also intends to demand changes in the Government's high-handed attitude toward the farmers of Ontario. Statements such as the one by Agriculture Minister Stewart concerning the $20,000,000 drop in farm income in Essex County cannot be tolerated. Mr. Stewart, rather callously, suggested that the farmers had nobody o blame but themselves for their loss in income since they hadn't taken out crop insurance. This is surely the worst kind of arrogance when one considers the gross inadequacies of the present crop insurance plan.

The results of the Middlesex South by-election should serve as a warning to this Government, grown dangerously complacten after twenty-six years in office. As leader of a newly-strengthened opposition caucus it is my intention to re-emphasize in the Legislature, what the people in Middlesex County have already emphasized at the polls.

French–fried potatoes, chicken, and many other foods are delicious when prepared in your deep–fat fryer. But, for safety's sake, keep the frying temperature at the proper level by using and watching a cooking thermometer.

The flash point, or temperature at which the vapours from the boiling fat can be ignited by a match flame or spark, is less than 100 degrees above the maximum frying temperature of 400 degrees. And the ignition temperature, at which the hot fat itself can burst into flame, is only about 200 degrees higher than the flash point.

Therefore, it is very important to keep the frying temperature to a controlled, safe level.

Never leave your fryer unattended while warming fat to frying temperature. Because heat from the stove element under the fryer cannot escape rapidly, the temperature of the fat rises quickly. It can increase past the frying level to flash point and ignition stages in the time you might take to answer the door or telephone. If you are interrupted by a call during frying, be sure to turn down the element under your fryer. Don't rely on fryer thermostats – although they help reduce the danger of overheating, they don't always work.

Would you like to enjoy safer deep–fat frying in your home? CIAG has a limited supply of reliable, deep–fat frying thermometers available at cost. To obtain one, please complete the attached coupon and send it with your cheque or money order for $1 (includes 5% sales tax) to CIAG INSURANCE.

PRUNING — A FEW USEFUL TIPS

By: M. Schaefer, R.P.F.
Management Forester

A few days ago I came across a fellow hacking away at the lower branches of the tree which had overgrown his driveway. He was using a hatchet. Some of the branch stubs were about four inches long, others were sheared off at the trunk taking with them a strip of bark a foot or more long. The trees he was working on were planted at great cost, no doubt. They were healthy and obviously added considerable value to his property.

I gave him the following advice. The operation he was performing was the next important step after planting the tree properly and giving it reasonable protection from various hazards. He was actually deciding his tree's future. What he did at this point could mean a shortened life expectancy depending on the species of the tree. Furthermore every tree has a natural shape which can be altered by pruning. This is an art in itself so do not attempt it without considerable research into the subject.

When pruning, a wound is created into which disease producing spores may enter. The branch stub will cease living. A large area will die and provide a good supply of "food" for the invasion of healthy tree tissue by fungi surely to become established. The stripped bark poses a similar problem. A large area, over 2 inches in diameter, heals very slowly, consequently disease could enter before the wound closes

Here is how to do the job properly:

1. Newer use an axe. Pruning shears may work well on branches under ½" in diameter but usually leave a short stub. Try to shear off as close to the trunk as possible. Use a hand saw for the best possible results.
2. Sterilize your tools in denatured alcohol (70%) to eliminate the spread of spores from tree to tree.
3. Saw branches off using an undercut first to stop trunk bark stripping, then an upper cut. Saw as close to the trunk as possible, but do not damage the trunk bark.
4. When pruning live branches which will leave a wound over 2" in diameter, apply a commercial tree dressing, or you can make one by mixing equal parts by weight of commercial dry Bordeaux mixture and linseed oil.
5. When pruning dead branches, cut through the callus at its base to promote rapid healing. Dress if required.
6. Young trees with smooth bark require protection from the chaffing effect of the ladder you may use for reaching the higher branches; so pad the top rung.

All pruned material should be removed from the site and burned if possible.

Now size up your job and go at it.

Argos are best there is

Jiminy Cricket was looking around, grinning at anybody, Wilkie was smiling and talking casually, Sir David smiled and talked about the future while Tricky discussed the past in an easy manner.

By about now you're probably wondering if you're reading something from the pen of Lewis Carroll.

Nope.

This is a quartet of Toronto Argonauts, the team many people now feel will win the Grey Cup this year. And each member of this quartet had just played an important role in the Argos' 34-15 assassination of the haughty Saskatchewan Roughriders.

This victory marked the first time Toronto had beaten the men from the plains in two years. Argo coach Leo Cahill described the victory as the finest game the Argos had played since he began directing them three years ago.

It was an afternoon of accolades.

Jiminy Cricket had been awarded the game ball by team captain, offensive tackle Danny Nykoluk, who is also the senior member of the Argos. It was the first time Cricket, alias Jim Tomlin, had ever received the honor.

It was well deserved.

Tomlin made two interceptions, knocked down four passes and completely stymied Hugh Campbell, Saskatchewan's gifted flanker. His tackling was, as a teammate put it: "vicious."

Wilkie is also known as Tom Wilkinson, the number one quarterback in Toronto, and according to reports, trying harder.

Saskatchewan headmaster Eagle Keys had nothing but praise for Wilkinson, saying that he doesn't "[illegible] much but he gets the job done."

Some job!

Wilkinson completed 15 of 24 passes for 210 yards and completely mesmerized the powerful Roughriders' defense with computer-like selection in his play-calling. And he's alleged to have a sore arm.

Asked this question as he slipped into civies he grinned: "My arm's not sore right now, but tomorrow . . ." Hmmm, maybe the allegation is correct.

Sir David is an institution in Toronto. He's Mr. Toe, or if you like, Dave Mann.

His punting gave Toronto a 10-yard advantage each time and he connected on both field goal attempts, one from 37 yards out. It's this type of accuracy which can mean victory in close games.

Can Toronto win the Grey Cup, Dave?

"Yea, man, nobody's going to — on us anymore. Ya know what I mean?"

Tricky was, as usual, holding court with the press. Dick Thornton is an excellent defensive back, a bona fide all-star. He was beaten for a touchdown pass from Ron Lancaster to Campbell, one of the few mistakes Thornton will make all season.

His explanation was simple.

"I was going to intercept it (the ball) when he (Campbell) pushed me."

Before the season began this reporter wrote that the Argos were doing a lot of smiling and laughing. It was also written that Ottawa Rough Riders would represent the Eastern Conference in the Grey Cup classic.

Nothing much has changed, except that this corner is changing horses at mid-season.

Toronto Argonauts are the finest football team in Canada.

IN MEMORIAM

CAMERON — In loving memory of our Dad, who passed away September 30th, 1966.
We are always together in memory's lane,
Not just today, but tomorrow the same.
With goodbyes unspoken,
You quickly passed away.
Only a cluster of memories,
Sprayed with many tears,
Wishing God had spared you
Just a few more years.
—Sadly missed by
HIS FAMILY.

A POOR GAMBLE

Why stack the deck against yourself by driving without automobile insurance?

The $25 uninsured motor vehicle fee does not protect YOU.

The Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund will pay damages on your behalf, but YOU MUST PAY BACK the full amount to the Fund. You could be obliged to sell everything you own and forfeit part of future earnings to do so.

Automobile liability insurance PROTECTS YOU (and others driving your car with your consent) against the costs of injury, death or damage claims.
