Young Man Takes Life During Fit of Despondency

Funeral services were held this afternoon at 2.00 o'clock in Trinity United Church for Emmitt Napoleon Paul, conducted by Rev. W. E. Wright, with interment in Maple Ridge cemetery.

Apparently in a spell of despondency over the death of his father, by drowning, on August 25th, 1940, Emmitt Napoleon Paul, 20-year-old war veteran of Chesterville, killed himself with a 12 gauge shotgun at the rear of the Community Hall some time early Tuesday morning following a dance and after he had told his fiancee, Miss Bernice Thompson, she would not see him again.

The body was seen about 5.30 a.m., Tuesday, by workmen going to Nestle's Milk Products (Can.) Ltd., and Police Chief Garnet R. McLean was notified by Thos. Moran. As a doctor was not available in the village at that hour, Mrs. W. H. Lloyd, ex-Nursing Sister, accompanied the Police Chief to the scene of the shooting and after examining the body pronounced life extinct.

Dr. McLeod of Finch was called who notified Dr. Pollock, coroner, of Avonmore. Provincial Constable R. H. Wannell of Morrsiburg, was also called and he had Dr. Chas. A. Louden, also a coroner, come to the scene. After they had viewed the body they ordered it removed to Henderson's Funeral Parlours to await possible autopsy and inquest.

Difficulty was experienced in contacting Crown Attorney J. G. Harkness, K.C., of Cornwall, as telephone service had been disrupted by the storm. Late on Tuesday he decided an inquest was not necessary as the evidence clearly indicated suicide.

Piecing together the history of the young man's movements of the previous few hours, Police discarded a theory of murder, after finding a farewell letter to his mother in the youth's pocket, and scouted the possibility of suicide, although a weapon could not be located. Heavy snow, which commenced falling after the fatal shooting, obscured the ground and it was not until 11.15 that the shotgun was found almost where the feet of the body had lain, by Reeve Geo. H. Barkley, Archie Black and Stanley Shay who uncovered it when kicking away the snow.

Had Attended Dance

Young Paul had picked up his shotgun the previous evening from the home of Lloyd Smith out in the country, where he had left it in 1943. He said he was going duck shooting up the Rideau. He attended the dance with Miss Thompson, who came from Regina with him a week ago when he returned from the harvest excursion. At intermission time he left her, gave her 20 cents to get some lunch, and is reported to have told her she would not see him again.

Going home, he shaved, changed into hunting clothes, and while writing the farewell letter which was later found in his pockets, chatted with his mother, police say. He was seen shortly after one a.m. by friends whom he told he was going duck hunting.

Miss Thompson said she had known young Paul for some time, and when he went out West on the excursion, they had decided on the trip East and were to return to her home to be married. Paul had visited furniture stores here inquiring about furniture prices. She said they had quarrelled several times, as he was very jealous and had a hot temper, and while he had several times said he would join his father who had been drowned six years ago, she did not take him seriously.

Police Chief McLean said he had seen young Paul after the close of the dance at 1.00 a.m. After viewing the body at 5.30 Tuesday morning he had notified the Provincial Police and coroner. On the arrival of this assistance, search was made of the immediate vicinity for the weapon, but the heavy snow blanketing this area made the search difficult. Police were puzzled by the lack of blood on the ground where the body was found immediately to the east of the hall with the feet toward the foundation of the building and the body lying spread eagle on its back. Death had apparently been caused by a gaping abdominal wound, and it was thought perhaps he had staggered to that location after inflicting the wound. The heavy rain and wet snow had apparently erased all traces.

When the shotgun, a 12-gauge weapon with home-made stock, and minus the shell ejector, was located, the trigger was a stick, broken from the nearby willows. This had been trimmed, leaving a crotch on the lower end which had been used to press the trigger after the butt had been placed against the wall of the building and the muzzle against the young man's abdomen.

The empty shell, an Imperial long range cartridge, was taken from the breech with a jacknife as the ejector did not work. This was apparently the only shell the young man had carried with him.

Police say the letter found in his pocket, and which his mother said was written while he talked to her that night, bid her farewell, he would not cause her any more trouble, that according to his father's will his belongings would go to her, and he hoped the girls would take care of their mother.

MEETING OF RINK CANVASSERS TO BE HELD FRIDAY NIGHT

A meeting of canvassers who will cover the village and district next week in the drive for funds to repair the rink, have been requested to attend an organization meeting in the Public Library, Friday evening at 8.15 instead of Thursday as previously announced.

It is planned to make definite plans at this meeting so that the canvass will be carried out thoroughly as the target of $7,500 is urgently required if the rink is to be put into condition once again for the enjoyment of winter sports.

TIME CHANGES MADE WITH LITTLE FUSS

Change back to Standard Time was made in this district with little or no fuss or bother. Clocks were set back Saturday night, and life carried on as usual—many overslept in spite of the extra hour and missed church again.

INTERESTING WEDDING ANNIVERSARY AND BAPTISMAL

Mr. and Mrs. Graham R. Smith celebrated their fourth wedding anniversary on Sunday afternoon by having their four months old daughter christened "Barbara Jeanette". The bowl used for the christening has been used by three generations for this purpose.

For the occasion the home was tastefully decorated with pink and white asters. After the baptismal, tea was served with Mrs. Wright presiding. The tea table was decorated with white tapers and centred with the top layer of Mrs. Smith's wedding cake.

Those present were Rev. and Mrs. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wingard, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Wingard and Carole; Miss A. M. Rae and Mr. Donald Rae. The Great grandmother, Mrs. Walter Rae, was unable to be present.

Public Hall Regulations Drastically Tightened By New Measures

On instructions from The Provincial Government, the Municipal Council of the village placed a by-law on its statutes last evening to license and regulate public halls within the corporation. All municipalities have been ordered by a recent order in council to pass such a bylaw.

The new blaw sets license fees at $2.00 for halls the size of the Community Hall, designates the seating capacity, seating arrangements, aisles, exits and exit lights. Maximum seating capacity allowed under the act for the Community Hall, rated at six square feet per person, is 420.

Colourful paper decorations such as have been used to brighten up the hall for dances, are now forbidden. Decorations used must be flameproofed, and these must not be placed on an electric fixture, closer than three feet to an electric light bulb or stove pipe or heating appliance.

Fire extinguishers are required kept in the hall; heating equipment must be inspected each year, and periodic inspections are required by the Fire Chief, Chief of Police and Building Inspector.

Each hall must be inspected and passed by the Fire Chief, Chief of Police and Building Inspector before a license is issued.

Halls owned by religious bodies do not pay a license fee under the new act, but they must comply with all other regulations in the bylaw as to seating, fire protection, and so on.

Council members said fraternal halls, as long as they were used for rental or hire, would not come within the meaning of the term "public hall."

Council decided to install two yale locks on the doors of the Community Theatre projection room, as the manager, John L. Maxwell, had reported the present locks had been picked. A small roll of film and several rolls of tickets had disappeared.

Assessor E. B. Lynch will be sending out assessment notices for 1947 this week-end, and the court of revision will be held November 6th.

Wm. Servage Sells Team "Trick" Horses for $1,000

"Willie" Servage, who has entertained so many at fall fairs throughout eastern Ontario during the past ten years with his performing horses having just completed the season's round of fairs announces that he has sold the team to Daniel's Greater Shows where they will be billed as head liners throughout next season's travels of the new owners. The amount received for the horses is said to have been in the neighbourhood of $1,000.

During the ten years in which Mr. Servage has shown his horses he visited practically every worthwhile show in Eastern Ontario, the most recent being those at Renfrew, Beachburg and Shawville. Mr. Servage was greatly impressed with the Shawville show which he thinks had the best crowds and largest number of exhibits, with three hundred cattle being shown in parade under flood lights at ten o'clock at night. The crowd was very enthusiastic over the performing horses driven by a handsome Renfrew lady, Mrs. Wilson, a great lover of horses, in the Agricultural Class with 17 entries and taking 17 prizes.

Chesterville and Matilda to Initiate Request for Setting Up "Authority" For South Nation Watershed

Application for an "Authority" to proceed with the proposed work of conservation in the Nation River Watershed will be made to the Ontario Government, a meeting of representatives from the 30 municipalities affected meeting in the Community Hall yesterday afternoon, with Chesterville Village and Matilda Township taking the initiative of being the necessary two municipalities requesting the move.

A. H. Richardson, Chief Engineer of the Department of Planning and Development, was the principal speaker of the meeting. He discussed the Conservation Act, explaining the steps necessary to request an authority, stressing that some body should be formed to receive the report and suggestions of the survey now being made of the watershed by his Department.

Resolutions from two municipalities in the watershed are required requesting the setting-up of an authority, then the Department will notify the municipalities affected, each of which must appoint one representative to attend a meeting which will be held in Ottawa about November 10. At least two-thirds of the municipalities must be represented at this meeting, and two-thirds of those attending are required to vote in favor before the authority will be set up.

Setting up of this body does not in any way obligate any municipality of proceeding with the works suggested. Only after consideration of the planned works when the survey is completed will any steps be taken to accept or reject the suggestions.

Intense interest in the scheme was evidenced by the repersentatives of the 15 municipalities present with questions being asked of Mr. Richardson when he had completed his explanation of the Act.

Mr. Vancamp, of Perdue University, head of the Indiana State Farm Foresters, and a native of the Vancamp district near Winchester, spoke on the study being made by the Royal Commission on forestry and urged that representations and suggestions be made to the hearings held in Ottawa on December 10th. Mr. Vancamp is working with this commission and stated, "You have a chance to make your own legislation in respect to your timber or land, and constructive suggestions will be welcomed." He said from his observations in this district after an absence of many years, he saw there was room for big improvements in the wooded area of this country.

S. E. Steele, District Forester, of Kemptville, introducing Mr. Vancamp, said the hearings in Ottawa would be a wonderful opportunity for the farmers to get something done in forestry management in this section of Ontario.

The programme of conservation includes many subjects, said Mr. Richardson. Represented are wild fowl and animal life, help with water problems—dam or drains; reforestation of waste land, mainteance of farm woodlots, and soil erosion on good lands.

In drawing up watershed areas, it is not possible to cut boundaries on municipal lines, as rivers cross these boundaries and all municipalities affected must be included.

The set-up of an authority for the carrying out of conservation measures is very simple. Two municipalities only in the watershed may request the Minister of Public Works to organize such a body. Then the municipalities in the watershed will be notified of the meeting to which each municipality under 10,000 population sends one representative. Two-thirds of these representatives provide a quorum, and the votes of two-thirds of these men are required to organize the authority.

This group, in co-operation with an engineer who is the chief officer, prepares plans and figures for presentation to the Department of Public Works. These must be approved by the various governmental departments affected — Forests, Public

INVESTING IN OUR CHILDREN

"A Long-Term Investment in the Children of Our Community" is the heading of an advertisement in this issue of The Record urging the necessity of funds required for repairing the covered skating rink.

Donations to this worthy cause, which has been undertaken by the young Chesterville Branch 434 of the Canadian Legion, can truly be termed as investments in our children. Throughout the long winter months, when outdoor activity is curtailed greatly in this district, the rink provides the only form of recreation for the young people.

Skating, in wholesome surroundings, provides the finest form of healthy recreation available to the children and youth. No one needs to recall the days of hockey glory which followed the building of the rink twenty years ago. Those days are too recent to be forgotten. Everyone thrilled as victorious teams year after year captured the league title and went on into the district playdowns.

With the rink repaired for use this winter, it is possible to bring those days of skating and hockey back to the Chesterville District. The local contractor who has studied the job, states it can be effected in plenty of time for this season, even though the structure has been badly disabled for almost eight months. The war veteran members of the Legion are willing and anxious to take on the job as a living memorial to their comrades who fell overseas. Almost everyone we talk to is anxious that the rink be put back into condition. All that remains is that the cash be made available.

Canvassers will call on the entire district next week soliciting funds for this purpose. The amount asked for is big, and it can be obtained only by a generous response of our citizens.

Work this fall is planned to rebuild the damaged portion of the rink, and improvements will be carried out next spring when it is hoped building materials will be more readily available.

ATTENTION DRAWN TO IMMUNIZATION

Through the use of a "National Immunization Week", health authorities are urging the necessity of protecting children from the scourges of diphtheria, whooping cough, scarlet fever, and smallpox. In Chesterville's Public and Separate Schools slips have been sent home with the scholars requesting permission of the parents for the vaccination of their children against smallpox.

Vaccination has almost eradicated smallpox from present-day history, and if full co-operation were available from parents, the erasing of this dreaded disease would be final. Every parent with the well-being of their children at heart will ensure that this smallpox vaccination, offered free, and guaranteed to protect the children for life from this fatal or disfiguring disease, will be administered.

The epidemic of poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis, of this past season, attracted great attention. The maximum number of cases in any one year since, and including 1940, has been 1,881, with 68 deaths in 1941—the average, 760 cases a year. Over the same period there have been 628 deaths from whooping cough alone in a single year. On an average there have been yearly close to 17,000 cases of whooping cough, nearly 3,000 cases of diphtheria and over 17,000 cases of scarlet fever. Vaccination has fortunately diminished the ravages of smallpox and in numerous years there have been no cases reported.

WILL FALL BRING USUAL QUOTA OF FIRES?

This October's record-breaking weather found many households void of heatnig facilities, with repairs or new installations partly completed, and there is a possibility some makeshift arrangements have been made so that heat could be supplied. The safety of our families and homes depends on the effectiveness of fire precautions in the home — furnace stoves, pipes and chimneys, and for that important reason the head of the household holds the responsibility of ensuring the demon fire is maintained as a servant and not a master.

Two disastrous fires were experienced in this vicinity at the weekend. Fortunately no lives were lost, but great property damage resulted which it will be impossible to replace at this time.

Fire Prevention Week, October 7-12, will attempt to draw attention of everyone to the necessity of examining stovepipes, chimneys and heating arrangements, and ensuring they are capbale of maintaining the fire safety of the home. But without the co-operation of householders the appeals will not be successful.

Never put off until to-morrow what you should have done a week ago last Wednesday.

Strive always to be like a good watch—open face, busy hands, fine gold, well regulated, full of good works.

'Tis said a young man once found a five-dollar bill on the street. From that time on he never lifted his eyes when walking. In the course of years he accumulated 29,516 buttons, 34,172 pins, 12 cents, a bent back, and a miserly disposition.

Along with the rest of the country, Chesterville's housewives began shelling out an extra three cents a quart for milk on Tuesday morning. And that seven-inch fall of snow didn't help to improve the reception the milkman experienced. B-r-r-r.

An authority tells us one of the first men to ask that news be suppressed was King David, who urged that certain matters not be published in the streets of Askelon (II Sam. i: 20). After reading the recent book on the life of "David the King", we believe there's a lot he should have censored about his goings on in those ancient days.

The thanks of The Record go to Andy Clarke who took up our challenge of a couple of weeks ago, "is a cucumber a fruit or a vegetable", in his Neighbourly News broadcast of Sunday last. It appears that it's a fruit all right. And it's been grown that way for a good many hundred years.

GRATITUDE
By Samuel Madan

He that has nature in him must be grateful.
'Tis the Creator's primary great law,
That links the chain of great beings to each other,
Joining the greater to the lesser nature,
Tying the weak and strong, the poor and powerful,
Subduing men to brutes, and even brutes to men.

"I WANT MY BOY TO BE A FARMER"

The business man and the farmer were discussing the decline of farm population in Canada and the future of agriculture. The high average age of farm people made them wonder how many thousands more farms would be abandoned in the next ten years as many thousands of farm men and women, whose sons and daughters are in the cities, grew too old for farm work.

The city man thought that the extension of electric services, making modern conveniences available for homes and barns, would tend to keep young people home on the farm, but he was not sure that this had been true in communities which had enjoyed power services for many years. Basically, they agreed the problem was one of income for comparable skill and work.

"Let's put it this way," the farmer said. "Farming, for those who like the outdoors, is the finest life; but young folks are not going to farm unless they can earn as much as city workers and have reasonable leisure. Farm boys and girls succeed in cities because they have learned to work before they get there. They see their neighbours' sons and daughters making good and earning big money in short hours and they know they can go to the city and do the same thing. Nothing but comparable earnings and hours will keep young Canadians on the farms.

"Now, Sam, look at your young Bill. He's been out here two summers with our Ted. He likes farming, and he'd make a good farmer, too. After he got through agricultural college, you could set him up with a good outfit. But you are discouraging him. I know why and I know you are right. Bill will find something interesting to do in your business and he will earn twice as much as he could earn on a farm, for half as much work. His wife won't have to do two women's work, either. It would be different if they could get good help but the help problem has been getting worse ever since I started to farm and now it has become impossible.

"As a business man, you depend a great deal on a healthy agriculture and you ought to give a lot of time and thought to the solution of Canada's farm problems. If we have adopted a permanent policy of paying people for idleness because they think farm work and house worse are all right for farmers and housewives but unsuitable for them, we should at least let in immigrants who want to go to work at whatever offers, as our forefathers did and as Canadians must do again if Canada is to get its work done.

"Somehow balance will be restored between farm and city, most likely by the painful processes of a depression. You will suffer too, and all your employees will suffer. You ought to do your part to restore common sense in this country. You will know when the job has been done. It will be when business men will say, "I want my boy to be a farmer."

At the same meet Ronald Lynch won the Junior High School broad jump and came third in the 220 yard race. Ramon Campderros was second in the Junior High School broad jump. These boys were all Scouts and non-cigarette smokers.

The contract was let during the week for the construction of a covered rink in Chesterville. Work was to start October 1st and the building completed by December 1st.

Howard G. Carter of Detroit, was in town during the week endeavoring to interest local capital in the Carter Rubber Products Co. of Detroit. Mr. Carter was the promoter of the Condensed Milk company, which was sold to the Hires Company of Philadelphia, who started production of condensed milk in Chesterville but after carrying for a short time disposed of the plant to the Nestle's Company who have kept it in continued operation since that time.

The funeral of the late Thomas Parker, was held September 20th at the family residence when the service was conducted by Rev. R. M. Pounder. Mr. Parker died very unexpectedly Saturday morning when assisting with the milking. The pallbearers at the funeral were six close friends, Messrs. J .W. Allison, A. H. Fulton, Geo. Smith, Sam Fulton, Fred Helmer and Kenneth Hutt. Mr. Gard Hutt took charge of the music at the home.

Friday evening September 24th, Mary McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. McDonald, was honored by her friends when she was tendered an address and presentation prior to entering a nurses' training course in Kingston.

Innocent By-Standers

Most of us are merely bystanders in the present industrial conflict. At the close of the war, it was estimated that, apart from the armed forces, there were better than 4,000,000 regularly employed persons in Canada. At almost the same time—1943, to be exact—organized labor in Canada had reached a total of 664,533. A little mental arithmetic, then, will very quickly show that, of all the workers in Canada, only about one in six belongs to any union, and only a very minute fraction has any part in superior management. Only these two combined could have any hope of advantage from the current industrial unrest.

In the main, therefore, we have watched the fracas with a somewhat detached interest. Probably our sympathies have been largely on the side of labor. We have all realized, somewhat dimly perhaps, that unionism had provided a necessary protection for workers whom the machine age has drawn from the farm into the unfamiliar conditions of organized industry. In that more ruthless and arrogant age, too, it was not surprising that the "haves"—designated largely as capital and management—should have accepted their blessings as God-given and have assumed that God, having made so many poor, had intended them so to remain. Of course that thinking was as forlorn a hope as the concept of the divine right of kings from which it stemmed. As industry grew in importance, and management in wisdom, that attitude changed. This was partially the result of trade organizations that started a new way of thinking, that, in turn, induced a new sense of fairness and the growing belief—that was shared somewhat less promptly by management—that no prosperity was possible that did not have as its foundation a solvent working class.

That was the general attitude of us bystanders. However, the trouble with any dispute that goes beyond argument into overt act is that when someone tosses a brick, there is a better-than-even chance that it will find the head of some nonparticipant who, up till then, has been a disinterested party. That is what is happening today. True, labor has been arguing that a wage increase of approximately 18 per cent can be taken from the profits of industry without any suffering. Wouldn't it be wonderful, if it were true? But, if it were true, would the earnings of capital have declined, in recent years, from an easy 5, 6 or 8 per cent to a rather uncertain 3?

Let us not be too simple-minded. If industry had been making that kind of profit, capital would have been demanding not 3 but 10 or 12 per cent. The truth is that extra costs, beyond the nominal, must be reflected in higher prices. Management can pass these along to the consumer. Labor can make greater wage demands to offset these effects, even if it means no net gain. But there is one party who must lose, the innocent bystander who can't pass on his obligations to anyone, and can't compel higher wages to protect himself.

When the bystander finally comes to realize how he is being whipsawed in this industrial conflict, he may change his opinion that it isn't his fight. If and when he gets into it, he will put both labor and management in a tough spot. Representing as he does five-sixths of the ultimate consumers, when he gets tired of being pushed around for somebody else's dubious good, and decides to strike himself, there will be no profits for management and few jobs for labor.

Glenn Merkley Saves Boy From Drowning In Disused Well

Ray, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Barkley of Dunbar, had a narrow escape from drowning in an unused well on the lot adjoining the school Thursday afternoon, when he fell into the well into twelve feet of water. The pupils of the school had just been dismissed for the day and were playing near the well when Ray disappeared. He was not immediately missed by the other pupils until they heard his shouts for help. Glen Merkley who was passing, was hailed and with others was successful in rescuing the lad. The well, one of the large stoned-up kind, is about twenty feet in depth and was more than half full of water. When Ray came up after his first plunge he had presence of mind enough to grasp a pipe which was in the well and call for help as he was gradually slipping down the wet pipe.

Dr. and Mrs. Gormley Honored By Their Friends

On Wednesday evening, a number of friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Gormley, to tender them a farewell, before their departure to Chesterville.

A very pleasant evening was spent before dispersing and an address was read by Miss Elizabeth Ruddy, and two presentations of purses were made, one on behalf of the Crysler and district friends by Mr. John Currie and the other on behalf of Berwick and district friends by Mrs. Mills Foster.

Mrs. Gormley replied, thanking their friends.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Gormley:

With mingled feelings of regret we gather in your home this evening, as you are about to take your departure from among us. You will be greatly missed in this community.

You have been with us for a number of years, and during that time, we have found you ever good and true friends and you have given unsparingly of your time, your talents and contributed in no small way to everything that pertained to the general welfare of the community.

To the Doctor we wish to express our appreciation of your skilled medical counsel, and guidance during your sojourn with us.

We remember with pride on many occasions, when drifting snow and tempestuous gales served as no barrier to the approach of the sick, and above all we note how carefully and willingly, irrespective of what self-sacrifice was involved, you administered to the medical need of your patients. We trust you will accept this token of our high esteem for you, as friends and co-workers, and although our token is not proportional to our regard for you, rest assured, that in this presentation and greeting we are voicing the sentiments of the community with all best wishes.

CRYSLER BRIDE-TO-BE HONOURED BY FRIENDS

Miss Rita Delaney of Crysler was honoured at a surprise shower of gifts sponsored by Mrs. Philip Hebert of Crysler and Mrs. Sidney Lebrun of Berwick, prior to her marriage which takes place early in October to Wilfred A. Fortin.

As Mrs. J. C. Smirle played the Wedding March from Lohengrin, Miss Delaney was escorted to a decorated chair by Mrs. Hebert and presented with a corsage of roses. An address of farewell and best wishes from her Crysler friends was read to Miss Delaney by Mrs. Hebert, and one of welcome to the Berwick community was read by Mrs. Orville Nugent. After the presentation of the gifts, several friends assisted the bride-to-be in unwrapping them.

Miss Delaney thanked her friends for their gifts and greetings, and refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Mistakes in Forestry Must Be Corrected To Ensure Soil Values

The sins of commission in relation to the waste of forest lands must be corrected if the productive wealth of Canada is to be restored, said George Tunstell of the Department of Mines and Resources when he spoke before the Rotary Club Monday evening. His talk was of particular interest locally in view of the conservation and reforestation programme it is hoped to initiate in the Nation River watershed on the completion of the survey being made by engineers of the Ontario Department of Planning and Development.

Guests present at the meeting were Ralph G. Smith and Geo. Gillard. Plans were announced for entertaining the Malone, N.Y. Rotary Club next week in the first of two international meetings, as well as an international ladies night to be held at Kemptville, Friday, October 11. Geo. Barkley, chairman of the Community Service Committee, called his committee members together immediately after the meeting to lay plans for the Hallowe'en frolic to be held for the children of the village.

Introduced by H. L. Hough, and thanked by M. A. Flynn, Mr. Tunstell traced the forest history of the Dominion from the beginning of the last century when it was believed our forest resources were inexhaustible. Removal of forest cover by man and by disastrous fires had laid waste enormous stretches of land unfit for agricultural production.

The litter on the forest floor plays a vital part in conservation of water, he explained, because the accumulation of leaves and twigs has a tremendous capacity for holding water. The pores of the soil underneath do not become clogged and can take in the moisture as it comes from the mulch cover. Then it is fed gradually to springs and streams.

Farm woodlots should not be pastured, he said, as this destroys the accumulation of leaves on the forest floor, and also destroys the young growth. At best, he said, this is poor pasture.

Correction of the mistakes are not simple, he said, in this particular area, where most of the land in question is privately owned. Engineering works and extensive use of forest plantations will be necessary. In this climate and on relatively poor soil the yield of wood should average one-half to one cord of wood an acre. The scheme will cost money, and financing will have to be worked out by the government, municipalities and the land owners if in this watershed we are to obtain the highest value from our greatest natural resource, the soil.

DROPLET INFECTION

Spread of such ailments as the common cold, coughs, influenza, and some of the fevers, through "droplet infection" is subject of a bulletin issued by the Department of National Health and Welfare. Trouble can be carried in the minute particles coughed or sneezed in the air. It is, therefore, not merely a matter of common decency, but of sheer hygiene, to use handkerchiefs at all times to prevent spread of germs when sneezing or coughing.

NEW BRITISH DEVELOPMENT IN HIGH-SPEED BUILDING

A new system of high-speed precast building, which enables houses to be completed within one week, has been introduced by a Sheffield, England, engineer-builder. Technique involves the use of moulds of steel casting, cellular concrete sections faced with imitation brick, stone chippings or pebble—which turn out units like pieces of jigsaw all dovetailed to make a rapid and complete fit. It was first employed in the erection of two experimental houses in Sheffield. It is claimed that by the same system factories can be built in a few weeks and a cinema, seating 1,100 people in one month.

TO DISTINGUISH SEX IN BARRED CHICKS

Although it is well known that, in purebred Barred Plymouth Rocks poultry, the partly grown and adult males can be readily distinguished from the females by the type of barring on the feather, there are, however, exceptions in certain cases. It is also well known that the cockerel baby chicks tend to be lighter in down collar than the pullets, but, until recently, it was not possible to tell the sex of Barred Rock chicks by down colour with sufficient accuracy to be practicable.

However, states Farmers' Bulletin No. 102 (Publication No. 718) on "Sight Sexing Barred Rock Baby Chicks," issued by the Poultry Division, Experimental Farms Service, an accurate method of distinguishing sex in this breed of chick was introduced about the year 1936. Since then the method has spread until at the present time in Canada, "Sex-sighting", as it is called, is widely practised on Barred Rock chicks by commercial chick sexers.

Consequently the Dominion Department of Agriculture has issued the bulletin on sex-sighting for the purpose of explaining by description and illustration just how it is done. The sexes are distinguished by pattern of the white head spot, leg colour, and by shade of black colour in the down. Because the differences in many cases, at least to the beginner, are difficult to distinguish, these difficulties are explained by the bulletin. A keen student by a close study of the bulletin should be able to sex chicks acurately. When difficulty is experienced after the study, it is recommended that a few lessons be taken from an expert. A copy of the bulletin may be obtained by writing to the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

ROTTING ACRES

Nation Watershed "Authority"

Works, etc.

Monies may be raised through debenture issues, and the committee may request assistance from the Federal and Provincial Governmnts. To the Grand River plan, now complete, the Federal and Provincial Governments each contributed 37½ percent of the cost, the remaining 25 percent being borne by the municipalities. If the provincial government contributes to the cost, it reserves the right to appoint the chairman of the authority, a member of the executive or of the authority.

Answering a question by F. Larose, Agricultural Representative of Plantagenet, Mr. Richardson said the municipal representative should be an engineer or a person keen on conservation, and he need not be a member of the council.

A roll call showed representatives present from Matilda, Williamsburg, Winchester, Osgoode, Gloucester, Finch, Osnabruck, Roxborough, Kenyon, Lochiel, Russell, Cumberland, Clarence and South Plantagenet townships; Chesterville, Finch and Maxville villages.

As discussion on the request seesawed, Mr. Larose stated the proposal had been instigated by Zone 5 of the Ontario Conservation and Reforestation Committee, a conference had been held in Kingston in 1945, and a resolution submitted to the Provincial Government to survey the watershed. This survey was now half completed, and if an authority were not set up to receive the report, the situation would revert to its beginning.

Reeve George H. Barkley said he was sure Chesterville Council would pass a resolution requesting an authority, and Reeve Mahlon Zeron of Matilda said his township was vitally interested and would also pass the desired resolution to start the movement.

Reeve Raymond Butler of Clarence Township and Orval Seeley, Deputy-Reeve of Matilda, moved a motion setting the date for the meeting of municipal representatives on or about November 10, in Ottawa, final arrangements to be left in the hands of the executive.

Decision to hold the meeting in Ottawa was influenced by the fact cross-country roads might not be in good condition in November, while highways leading to the capital would be open to all municipalities in the watershed.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear brother, Howard Beckstead, who passed away October 6th, 1945.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear,
Too far away for flight of speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him, once here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.

Sister, Mrs. Jas. Wallace.

IN MEMORIAM ..

IRVING—In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister, Gwendolyn Irving, who was accidentally killed on October 6th, 1945.

A beautiful memory dearer than gold
Of a daughter whose worth can never be told.
Alone, unseen, sre stands by our side
And whispers, "Don't grieve, death cannot divide."
Deep in our hearts a memory is kept,
Of one we loved and will never forget
And though the years may be many or few,
We will always be thinking, dear Gwendolyn of you.

Sadly missed and ever remembered by Mother, Sisters and Brother.

IRVING—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Herbert Irving, who was accidentally killed on October 6th, 1945.

I miss his laugh, his cheery ways,
With him I spent my happiest days.
Memories are treasures no one can steal,
Death leaves a heartache no one can heal.
Dear is the grave where he is laid,
Dear is the memory that will never fade,
Sweet is the hope that again we shall meet,
Kneeling together at our Saviour's feet.

Sadly missed and ever remembered by Wife, Daughter and Son.

Substantial Farm Home Totally Destroyed in Early Morning Fire

Saturday the substantial and handsome farm home of Allison Bros. on the easterly slope of Maple Ridge on Highway 43, two miles west of Chesterville was gutted by fire of unknown origin. On arising around 5.30 David Allison smelled smoke in the building but not until after considerable investigation was fire discovered in a clothes closet in the second storey of a frame kitchen attached to the brick main building. It had soon gained such headway that none of the contents of the house could be saved from the upper floor. The only furniture rescued came from the down stairs rooms. The winter's supply of coal and wood which had recently been put in was also destroyed.

Chesterville fire brigade was called and arrived about six o'clock but lack of water prevented anything effective being done. The loss is estimated at $10,000 with light insurance.

PHYSICAL CHECK-UPS

An improvement on the old saying "An apple a day keeps the doctor away" is suggested by the Department of National Health and Welfare. "Get a doctor's OK and keep sickness away" is better, say the health men. They advocate frequent consultations with the family physician to stave off sickness, and to give timely warning of possible trouble. "Don't wait until you are sick to make your doctor's acquaintance" advise the health experts.

The Minister of Finance announces

A NEW BOND ISSUE FOR PEACETIME SAVINGS

Canadians are thrifty people. Their record in war financing will stand for many years to come.

Through six years, millions saved and invested in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates in a way no one thought possible. Many thousands learned the convenience of regular, systematic saving, whether in small monthly amounts or by larger cash investment. As a result they have accumulated substantial personal reserves with all that means in increased future security and satisfaction.

Because suggestions and requests have come to me from all parts of the country that facilities for this kind of saving be continued in peacetime, the Canada Savings Bond has been created.

The issue of War Savings Certificates and Stamps to the general public will be discontinued on September 30th, and final instalments on the last Victory Bond issue will have been completed in the near future. Canada Savings Bonds, therefore, will provide an opportune means for citizens to carry on their regular savings habits without interruption.

The general public should note that this time there will be fewer salesmen than in the case of Victory Bonds. Although the new Canada Savings Bonds will be sold through banks, authorized investment dealers, stock brokers and trust or loan companies, these agencies will not be able to approach every individual Canadian. This means that for the most part it will be left to Canadians to assume the responsibility for their own purchases of Canada Savings Bonds. If they wish to grasp this opportunity, they should act for themselves without delay.

Canada Savings Bonds are designed to be the finest investment available to the public today. I recommend them to you as a safe, profitable and convenient investment for personal savings.

I now announce the terms of the new Canada Savings Bonds, which will be offered commencing October 15th.

MINISTER OF FINANCE

... Features of the new Canada Savings Bonds

Interest 2¾% by annual coupon. Purchase price 100%. Accrued interest will be charged if payment is made after November 15th. Issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, and $1000.

Holdings by any one person limited to $2000. Registered as to principal, providing protection against loss. Available for cash, on the Monthly Savings Plan or by personal arrangement with a bank.

October

By Amelia MacMillan Lambkin

A reminiscence of an Eastern October recalled before an open grate in the far-away Rockies.

"When the autumn days are over,
And the frost has touched the leaves,
Then I know that they have gathered
All the grain in golden sheaves.
And my heart grows sad with longing
And I want once more to roam
Through the orchard and the meadow
Long to see my dear, old home."

OCTOBER—the month in which the fairies are so busy tinting the leaves of the maples in crimson and gold, the beeches and elms, the basswood and oak in russetts and dull yellows and tans. How busy the tiny fingers must be, shading and blending the colors—for October is resplendant—is prodigal of colouring. There is nothing quite so lovely exists, as an Eastern woods in October.

There is an old farm far-away which I know and love, whose wide fields are fringed with lovely, old maples, planted seventy years ago. There is a long stretch of country road which runs beside it. As you drive along in October, the great avenue of trees in their festive dress, arrest your attention. They are such a thing of beauty. The old sentinels stretch their branches across the driveway, and now and then a crimson or gold leaf falls into your car as you drive along.

There is a little creek and an old-fashioned bridge there, and a little further on is the orchard. You can see the jagged, rail-fence from afar-off, with its wonderful clumps of golden-rod in each fence-corner. There are wild-choke-cherry trees growing on the outer-side of the fence toward the meadow. How the robins love those cherries, and I see three little girls gathering them. They too love those cherry trees, and how well they know of the place where a rail is low enough for them to creep through. The sun shines brightly and the wild canaries have come to pick the seeds from the thistle-down. The little girls watch the pretty gold of their wings, and the tiny girl wishes they were not afraid of her.

The old farm-house, whose paint has long since been washed away by the rains of seventy summers and the snows of as many winters, is quaint and inviting. You really don't miss the paint, for as you draw nearer, you find that the old house has something much finer. It is completely covered, even to the roof-top and over the worn shingles, by the most luxuriant growth of 'Virginia Creeper" whose masses of foliage are beautifully tinted with the Autumn colorings, and where clusters of deep blue berries are festooned against the rich reds and shaded purples of this loveliest of climbers. There—a wild clematis has found its way among the creeper and its pale green leaves and fairy-fringed pompons add a pretty touch to the mantle thus thrown lovingly above and about the old home. It is as though the vine in tenderness wraps each year her arms closer, that the stranger may not see where the paint is gone.

It is harvest-time now on that old farm. The grain is all ripened. There are loads and loads of it. There are great fields of corn and scattered over the corn-fields are golden pumpkins. The red apples are ripe and the butter-nuts on that little tree in the front yard near the orchard gate are in clusters waiting to be climbed after. The little girls who used to climb for them are long since gone from the old home and other children are there.

These new children have much to learn. They can't know yet of the hole in the fence by the cherry tree, or how to climb up in the old permaine and look into the stairs window. They don't know of the small, round hole in one of the apple trees, where a beautiful, golden-winged yellow-hammer has made her nest year after year, and reared her young. They will be a long time before they find out about the cucoo who comes each year and too lazy to build a nest of her own, she lays her one egg into the nest of the little yellow bird which is always built in the wild-rose bushes by the front gate, and bye and bye when the tiny yellow-bird hatches her own eggs the adopted cuckoo also is hatched. But the mother cuckoo does come and feed it occasionally.

The three little girls knew all these things. They knew where there was a thorn-apple tree by the stone fence in the creek pasture and where there was a tree with black, shiney haws, and a wild-grape vine hanging so low they could reach it. They knew all the birds and trees and wild-flowers, because they loved them.

I hope the children who are in those well-remembered haunts now, have kind hearts. I hope they love these things, for the sake of those other three little girls whose very own they all were.

October—and the same old sun is shining down upon the same old farm-house. The fields are ripened and the apples are rosey-red. The moonlight falls in silvery beams through the branches of the Autumn-tinted maples upon a window away back there—upon a door. Ah! little girl and little boy, whose laughter rings about the place now—I wonder if when you are sleeping, there ever steals back again through the starlight three little girls from the shadowy land of the . . . yesteryears? I wonder if they ask you to play softly under that window where the sunset's crimson falls? If they tell you it is a sacred thing, before they steal away into the silver shades of . . . Memory?

The apples are rosey red and the pumpkins are yellow, for it is—October. The corn is glazed and the grain is harvested. And now from out those golden yester-years, I hear someone singing an old, old song:

"When the harvest days are over,
And the frost has touched the leaves,
Then I know that they have gathered
All the grain in golden sheaves.
And my heart grows sad with longing
And I want once more to roam
Through the orchard and the meadow
Long to see my dear, old home."

CLEAN, DISINFECT POULTRY CRATES

Dirty shipping crates are a menace to the poultry industry. Farmers do not like having a truck drive into their yard with a load of filthy crates. They fear that in this way their flocks may become infected.

At the request of poultry producers' organizations, the Dominion Department of Agriculture has conducted bacteriological tests of various methods of cleaning crates and keeping them clean. And the department now makes the following recommendation.

Crates should be scraped and washed just as soon as they have been emptied at the poultry receiving station. But essential as scraping and washing are, they're not good enough by themselves. Each crate should be immersed in a tank containing a two percent solution of Formalin.

For this purpose, every firm or co-operative handling live poultry should provide itself with a tank large enough to hold one crate. Into this, dip each crate after it has been scraped and washed. Then stack the disinfected crates and let them dry before shipping them again. The department describes this method of disinfection as a simple solution to a long standing problem.

The services at St. George's church Gallingertown, on Sunday, were conducted by Rev. Mr. Adams, priest-in-charge of the Mission of Cumbermere Algonquin Park. He gave a very interesting account of his work there. He was here in the absence of Rev. T. E. Downey who took the services at Trinity Memorial church, Cornwall.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Campbell and Douglas spent Thursday and Friday in Kingston. They also visited Mr. and Mrs. George Weagant at Athens.

WORM HATCHERY

Mrs. C. E. O'Brien of Denver runs a worm farm, states New Agriculture, an Agricultural Monthly, published in the United States. She claims it is the biggest worm farm in the world, although it is only a dug-up vacant lot with piles of leaves scattered around. It has an important name, however, "The Colorado Earthworm Hatchery" and customers range throughout many countries. Worms are important to more people than week-end fishermen. The worms are bought by farmers and gardeners to aerate the land; fish hatcheries buy them for fish food; colleges use them for educational demonstration, and commercial angling companies use them for bait for fish.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! "All cookery rests upon an egg," a famous French chef once remarked. The wisdom of those words is fully appreciated by home cooks when for one reason or another eggs are scarce. When you have to do without eggs, you realize how much they contribute to the preparation of good food.

At present eggs are plentiful, so why not widen the scope of your cookery while you can? You know the versatility of the egg. It may be served in the shell or plain, out of the shell—boiled, poached, fried or as an omelette. Combined with meat, vegetables and sauces, eggs become the main dish of lunch, supper or dinner. If you incorporate air into eggs by beating, they act as leaveners in cakes and souffles. In custards, puddings and sauces, eggs are thickening agents. They are used in making ice creams to prevent the formation of ice crystals. When hard-cooked eggs are effective garnishes for salads and vegetables, adding to the nutritive value of the dishes. In brief, this general survey shows the uses of eggs in every day home cooking.

Since you are familiar with egg cookery, you will know the advantage of using low-temperature for cooking eggs. Below-boiling or simmering temperature for soft-cooked or hard-cooked eggs prevents toughness.

TAKE A TIP

1. When preparing hard-cooked eggs for salads, pour boiling water over them and let simmer for 20 minutes. Then plunge at once into cold water. You will find that this will prevent the formation of a dark ring on the yolk. Adding a little salt to the water in which the eggs are cooked (1 tbsp. salt to 1 quart water) makes shells peel easily.
2. When frying eggs, use one tbsp. of bacon fat for each egg. Keep the electric element turned low. A teaspoon of hot water added to the fat helps to prevent the egg white becoming tough.
3. When poaching eggs, use a fairly deep pan with slanting rim. The water should be about 2 inches deep in the pan. Add 1 tsp. salt and 1 tsp. vinegar to 2 cups water to prevent eggs from spreading. As the water begins to boil, slip the raw eggs in from a saucer held close to the water. Cover and steam on surface of the range as the water should not boil while cooking.

EGG DISHES

Serve poached eggs on toast points with turnip greens; on halves of broiled tomatoes with cheese sauce; with corn and diced bacon; with peas and split rolls; on potato cakes or corned beef hash.

Scrambled eggs may be served as follows: With finely chopped green onion or chives, along with baked sausages; with corn and diced meat; with cooked peas and carrots.

Omelettes, either plain or fluffy may be served with greens and creamed potatoes; tomato sauce and broiled weiners; baked tomatoes and green beans

Egg and Potato Pie is a good all-in-one dish. Place mashed potatoes in greased casserole. Arrange sliced hard-cooked eggs on top. Cover with cheese sauce and bake in moderate oven until heated through.

Eggs Mornay is an attractive dish. Place poached eggs on toast, cover with white sauce, sprinkle with grated cheese and put under broiler element for a few seconds.

Eggs à la king are hard-cooked eggs sliced in cream sauce served on hot cornbread or split biscuits. To make it an authentic dish add cooked mushrooms and broiled bacon.

Egg sauces are numerous in variation. A favourite is chopped cooked eggs added to plain white sauce then seasoned with a little curry. Serve on rice or riced potatoes.

THE SUGGESTION BOX

Mr. B. K. says; Garlic Dill Pickles are something I can make and here is how:

Select cucumbers 2 to 3 inches long. Cover with brine of 1 cup coarse salt in 1 gallon of water. Add 2 tsps. mixed spice, 1 medium clove [illegible] tbsp. vinegar, ⅛ tsp. alum tops of dill blooms. Put [illegible] bers and seal.

Mrs. E. B. gives us a Mustard Pickles prize recipe:

4 qts. small cucumbers cut in pieces, 1 cauliflower in florets and 2 qts. small onions. Place onions and cucumbers in cold brine (2 cups salt to 4 cups water) and place cauliflower in hot brine. Cover. Let stand overnight. Drain well and cover with the following dressing: 1 cup flour, 2 tbsps. turmeric, 1 tbsp. mustard, 2 tbsps. celery seed, 2 cups white sugar and 8 cups vinegar. Mix together and boil until thick. Pour over pickles while hot and bottle in jars.

Mr. L. C. likes Red Cabbage Pickle:

Sprinkle 4 tsps. salt over 4 qts. sliced red cabbage. Mix well and let stand overnight. Drain. Add ½ tsp. pepper and ¼ cup mustard seed and place in crock. Add 2|3 cup sugar and ¼ cup mixed pickling spices (tied in a bag) to 2 qts. vinegar and heat to boiling. Pour over cabbage. Cover and store in cool, dark place.

John R. Fader Arrived From Poland Last Night

John R. Fader arrived home last night from a voyage to Danzig, Poland, the "Free City" that gave Hitler his excuse for starting his ill-fated conquests. Mr. Fader was in charge of a cargo of 807 agricultural horses for UNNRA which are to be turned over to the Polish Government.

Mr. Fader said this trip created a record as it was the first shipment of horses to be transported without loss. The horses were loaded in Montreal on the American Victory ship "Lahania Victory", and 10 days later reached their destination at Nieport, near Danzig. Mr. Fader had a crew of 32 men to care for the horses aboard ship.

Arriving in Poland on a Saturday morning, he stayed there until Tuesday. Sailing for Savannah, Ga., he disembarked Tuesday, October 1st. and arrived at his home in Chesterville last night.

The horses, bought in Western Canada, were between 900 and 1400 pounds. Mr. Fader had spent some months in the West purchasing horses for UNNRA but his shipment did not leave Canada until after he was on the way to Poland.

The horses were hoof-branded and later hair-branded on the hip with the letters "UC" denoting "UNNRA, Canada."

TOILET PAPER SHORTAGE INSTIGATES "CRIME WAVE"

Shortages, real or supposed, usually brings stampedes to the stores and suggestions of black marketeering. One of the latest instances is the scarcity of toilet tissue. This is said to have resulted from hoarding, and one of the results has been instigation of a new sort of crime wave.

A local resident reports placing a brand new roll in an outdoor emporium the other morning, and less than an hour later it—the roll—was gone

Better lock the door before the tissue disappears.

Six Inches of Snow Tuesday Sets Record For October 1

With the mercury crawling out of the depths of the thermometer today, the countryside is returning to normal following a record-smashing turn of winter that greeted residents when they arose Tuesday morning, October 1. The weatherman says the temperature will rise to about 64 today, following a heavy frost last night, and a reading of 32 degrees at 7.00 a.m.

About six inches of heavy, wet snow blanketed the area in a storm which swept in from the New England States. Telephone and telegraph communications, and Hydro services were disrupted as tree limbs crashed under the weight of snow onto lines, and poles came tumbling down.

Many trees in the district, including apple trees, were severely damaged and the late apple crop was almost ruined. In the village scores of shade trees and shrubs were damaged.

Some corn and buckwheat were still standing in the fields, but most of the threshing and silo filling operations had been completed in the district.

MRS. FRED SMITH ENTERTAINS WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION

The home of Mrs. Fred Smith was yesterday afternoon the place of meeting for the regular meeting of Trinity United Women's Association. There was a good attendance when all joined in singing with Mrs. Harry Allison at the piano. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved. Encouraging reports were given by committees and plans were made for catering for a wedding which will be held in the church in the near future.

The programme consisted of a reading by Mrs. Chas. McMillan and a contest by Mrs. William Hamilton, with the meeting closing with the Mizpah benediction. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge.
