Viewing the damage
The Town of Mountain was disrupted at 5.45 p.m. last Wednesday, when 19 cars of a 61-car freight train went off the track. Some residents and bystanders view the wreckage, representing only a handful of the crowd of spectators, some of whom drove for miles to see the accident. Thompson

Major train derailment causes disruption

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

MOUNTAIN–CP train service has been restored here after a major derailment last Wednesday.

The last nineteen cars out of a 61-car freight train were derailed, causing disruption and derouting of traffic for two to three days.

The cars were carrying feed grain destined for a distribution center in Montreal. There were no hazardous materials in the cargo, and no injuries were reported.

Only slight spillage of materials occurred, and according to CP Claims Department, some feed is being sold to local people but the shipment has been written off.

The derailment occurred at 5.45 p.m. while the Johnstons, who live to the south of the track, were celebrating a birthday party for their daughter Carol Anne Arcand in the livingroom.

"We were sitting at the table when I looked up and saw all the dust on the rails, and heard all the grinding and crunching. And I thought, 'Here we go again, there'll be trouble the same as the other time,'" said Marion Johnston.

Marion told the children to jump because there was a derailment, and soon the house was cleared.

"It was extremely loud and I can't say the fright of it. I didn't know if it was coming through the wall. But then it was all over. It didn't last long."

The actual derailment started west of the crossing and continued for a couple hundred meters east, and the family viewed the massive wreckage. Some cars went off the track near the house, while others continued a way east before derailing.

Some cars had been waiting to go through the signal barrier as connections started to disintegrate. This sparked Marion's memories of a previous, more dangerous derailment 11 years ago, when the tankers were carrying chemicals, and some ended up along the ditch. "If those cars had been there then, the people would have been killed," she said.

Both lines from Toronto and Montreal were blocked while clean-up was underway: meanwhile, CP trains were detoured over CN tracks.

Repair crews replaced 300 meters of track while CP equipment resembling a large pair of scissors was brought in to cut up the cars in pieces on site. The pieces are being temporarily stored at railway company property in Mountain.

On Friday morning at 4.00 a.m. the eastbound track was reopened, and the westward track was reopened Saturday at 5.30 p.m.

The cause of derailment hasn't been determined, but may become clear as a result of investigation. "In investigating a cause, we look at the track and rolling stock (wheels) and mechanical equipment for faults," said public relations officer for the Quebec area, Mike Spenard.

"This is the first derailing of major importance this year in Eastern Canada," said Spenard.

The area takes in the east-west region from Smiths Falls, Ontario to the border between Quebec and Maine.

Ministry of Labour intervenes at Nestlé

C. THOMPSON

CHESTERVILLE—The Ministry of Labor has called a meeting between Nestle Canada Inc. and the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union Local for more discussions.

Nestle officials announced the meeting in a news release dated April 12. Plant employees have been locked-out since March 27, after refusing to ratify a four-year contract with the employer.

Factory employees rejected the company's offer, which included a two per cent increase in the first year, increases based on inflation for each year after, and a bonus plan linked to company profits.

But employees refused to accept the Continental Work Week which was to be introduced to some departments in 1994, if production requirements weren't met in a regular five-day schedule.

However, employees were to continue to receive overtime for hours worked over the scheduled hours, and on the sixth, and or seventh day they would receive premium pay.

The company also offered affected employees a one-time payment of $1,000 for each employee whose schedule was changed.

The Continental Work Week is similar to schedules worked by nurses, police officers, and is already operational in some U.S. Nestle seven-day manufacturing operations.

Nestle insists that the plant can't remain competitive without the introduction of the Continental Work Week. However, the union claims the company is profitable in its present operation.

Dwayne Hall, president of Local 488 of the Retail, Wholesale, and Department Stores Union, claimed the company made a $54 million profit last year, and that workers have to draw the line somewhere.

The meeting between Labor and company officials, the union executive and international representative Jim Donnally is to take place Wednesday at 10.00 a.m. in Ottawa.

"We'll hold a general meeting here Thursday to discuss what happened," Hall said.

The proposed contract was arrived at through a conciliator and mediation, but Hall said this was the first time

Bust bar meltdown

Fire closes Kraft Foods

IAN McMILLAN
Leader Staff

INGLESIDE — Kraft Foods Inc. found itself in a cheesy situation April 12 as its power supply failed sending most of its 350 workers home.

At approximately 6 a.m. there was a short in one of the bust bars that conducts power from the transformers into the plant.

A fire resulted, melting most of the three sets of bust bars.

"Whether or not the weather had anything to do with it is only speculation at this point," said Jim Franklin, Manager of Kraft Foods.

The Ingleside Fire Department responded to the call but Kraft maintenance crews managed to keep the fire under control. No one was injured.

"There were no injuries and no other damage other than to our electrical equipment," said Franklin.

Power outside the plant was not effected.

"Our equipment has nothing to do with Hydro," said Franklin.

Costs of the damage were not known at press time. Included in those figures will be lost production as well as repairs.

"It will take time before the costs can be collected. I can't even guess right now," said Franklin.

The milk the plant received April 12 will go down as a loss but there's nothing that can be done about it, continued Franklin.

"I wish we couldn't have lost it but it's nothing critical."

The power remained off at noon hour on April 13. Franklin said he hoped it would be back on by the end of the day so things could get back on schedule.

"We want to have it up later on today," he said. "Hopefully we'll receive our milk later on today or early tomorrow."

St. Lawrence Street repairs soon underway

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG—The beginning of major water, sewer and road construction seems to be an inevitable sign of spring activity.

This year, a major project will be the replacement of the existing 1.5 " galvanized water line on St. Lawrence Street with an 8" line, which will be tied into Fifth Street.

Public works commissioner Cam Martel said the existing line is "running but that's about it. It's leaking all over, and bent in places."

Fire hydrants will be added along the street for protection of the residents.

Last week, Village councillors met with Ministry of Environment officials to secure a certificate of approval for the project. Martel said all conditions have been met, except one approval from the Kingston office.

He added this shouldn't be a problem, and work is expected to start shortly.

"While we're in there we'll look at everything to be done," Martel added. "We'll also look at the sewer line, and check the laterals to the system."

The St. Lawrence Street sewage line was not examined during a previous camera study of the entire sewage system, as there was no manhole access. A manhole will now be constructed to allow entry.

Although not all cost estimates are in yet, Martel said the project would be at least $80,000.

"This will be the beginning of the big sewer and water upgrade," said reeve Gord McGregor.

While Ministry officials were in town, there were also planning discussions on the direction of a major sewer and water upgrade. As announced at a November public meeting, the Village is facing a long-term project estimated at $2.2 million. Grant applications were sent to the Ministry of Environment and early this year, Village representatives met with officials in Toronto to air their case.

As a result of discussions with the Ministry, Martel understood that provincial grants of $.50 on the dollar for matching municipal funds have dried up. However, there may be provincial grants of $.30 on the dollar, if the municipality matches the remainder.

"It's too expensive to do the whole problem, but there may be help here and there for specific projects as you go," Martel said.

One specific project the Village is looking at is cathodic protection of the water distribution lines.

The existing lines are made of a variety of metals, and chemical reactions among the metals appear to be causing corrosion. Cathodic protection is achieved by placing special rods along the lines at strategic locations which attract the chemical action, thus helping to prevent corrosion.

Halloween face scares girl

MORRISBURG—Early in the morning of April 7, a young girl was frightened by a person wearing a Halloween mask here.

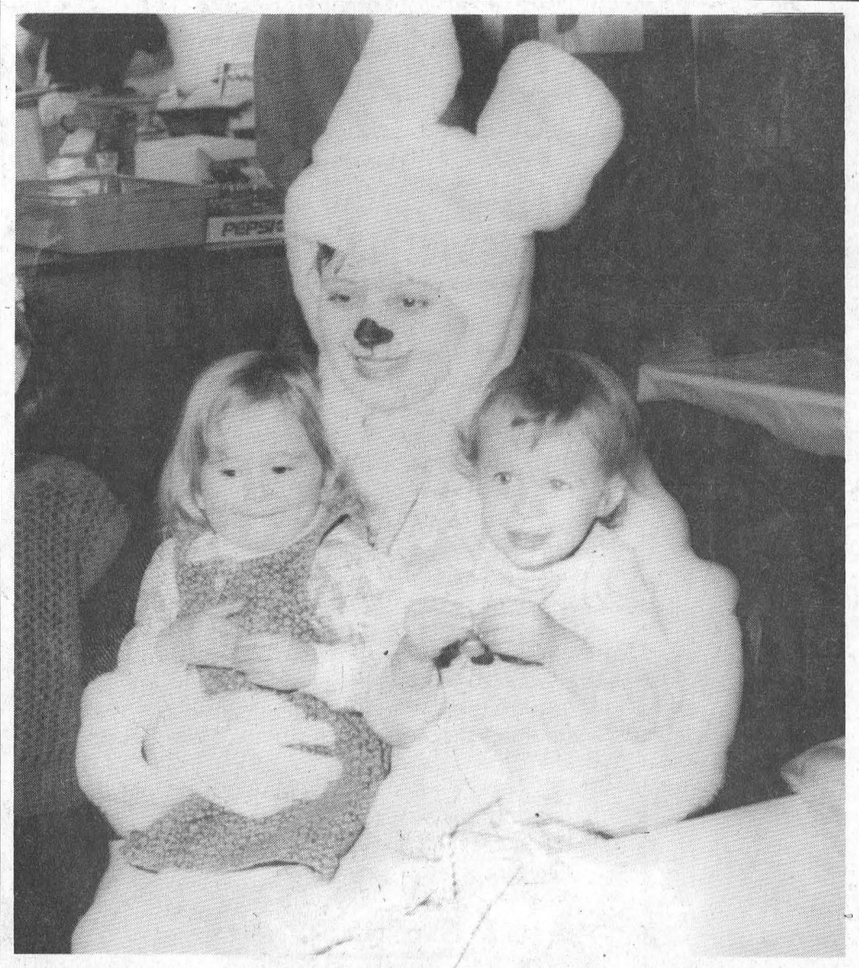

At 8:10 a.m. a 14-year-old female was walking in the vicinity of the Morrisburg Medical Clinic when a person donning a plastic Halloween mask drove up beside her.

Morgan Hill, public relations officer with the Morrisburg OPP stated that the girl was frightened away by the person.

"She ran to a friend's house and the person in the car drove off behind the clinic and towards the arena," said Hill.

The girl ran to a friend's house and notified the police who were on the scene almost immediately, but could turn up no clues as to where the person with the Halloween mask went.

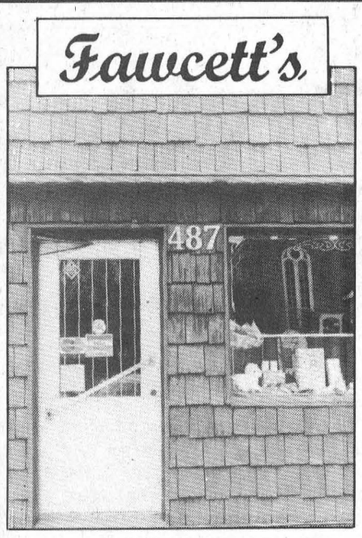

The person is described as wearing brown gloves and a beige colored coat, driving a sky-blue small car, with some rust on the bottom of the doors.

Just hopped in . . .
Lauren Wood (left) and Rachel Wood were just a few of the children visited by the Easter Bunny at saturday's Pancake Breakfast and Craft Sale fund-raiser. The event collected about $600 for the Morrisburg and District Pre-School Association.

Personal involvement

Eastern Ontario Cemetery Memorials is owned and operated by a Hallville couple, Kevin and Patricia Allen.

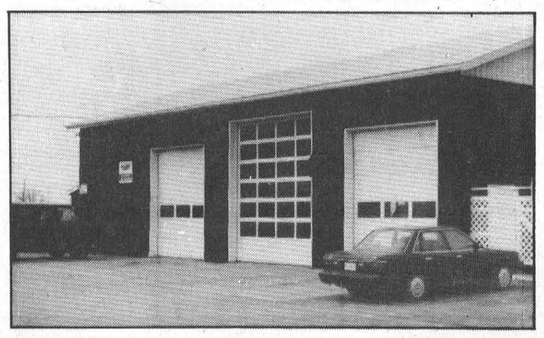

Kevin apprenticed for his uncle in Brockville for ten years before he decided to go out on his own.

The Allens complement one another's working styles. Patricia tends to do all the preliminary work, such as stenciling the pattern and copy onto the stones. Kevin then takes over and engraves the piece.

All work is done solely by the Allens, from selling to erection in the cemetery.

Kevin and Patricia feel that the personal involvement they have with every aspect of the business has contributed to their success.

NUTRITE Semico

Now in its 23rd year of operation, the Nutrite plant in Chesterville offers a complete crop fertilization program including a wide variety of materials, from the regular N-P-K ingredients to sulphite products.

Their sulphate products are considered environmentally-friendly and are the base of the company's premium fertilizer program.

Their three- and five-star premium program provides up to 10 nutrients including magnesium, sulphur, boron, zinc, copper, manganese and calcium.

The "salt index" in all premium analysis is lower than regular analysis, therefore they represent a lower toxicity level to plant roots when applied in a band at planting time.

A complete line of forages, cereals and seed corn is now available. Custom spreading and spraying are part of the services offered locally by trained staff.

Resident's hobby wins Canadian Nation Decoy Association contest

IAN McMILLAN
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — A block of wood can mean a lot of different things to a lot of different people.

Some see it as building material, others see it as firewood. But for Mike McInnis that piece of wood represents something trapped that must be set free.

About four times each year McInnis transforms these pieces of wood into life-like forms of birds, known as decoys.

McInnis recently returned from the Toronto Sportsman Show where he participated in a Canadian National Decoy Association competition. He entered three decoys and came home with two, first-place finishes, and one, second-place finish.

"I've been lucky at that show," said McInnis. "In four years I've gotten a first place every year except one and that year I got a second."

The successes are evident in his workroom as one far wall is covered in ribbons of every shape and color. Along the opposite wall are shelves filled with decoys.

It is in this room McInnis has been practicing his hobby for eight years. "In the last four years I've taken it serious," he said.

"When I first started Bill Laurin asked me what I was going to carve and I told him sawdust," said McInnis laughing.

Originally, he gained interest in decoys after visiting a show. Soon afterwards he decided to try it himself.

At St. Lawrence College, McInnis took a few classes to learn the basics of decoy carving. Once he had that mastered he ventured into the United States where he enrolled in more advanced courses that taught different techniques in carving and painting.

There are certain stages to follow when making a decoy. After sketching the shape of the duck on the wood the carver must cut it out using a band saw. Then the bird must be hollowed out, carved, textured and finally painted.

Texturing is done by using a small instrument called a wood burner. It's a time consuming process but gives the feathers a life-like appearance.

"Most people, when they first do it, make the feathers look like Christmas trees until they get the technique down," said McInnis.

After the texturing is completed the next step is to paint the decoy.

"Most people find they can catch on to the carving and texturing but they're afraid of the painting," said McInnis. "You can ruin the whole thing at the painting stage."

Another quick and easy way to ruin a decoy is by dropping it. Everybody drops one at one time or another and McInnis admitted even he made the mistake once.

"I dropped one and cracked it's bill. That and the tail get broken most often," he said.

And after spending between 250 to 300 hours carefully carving and texturing a bird the last thing in the world McInnis wants to happen is a careless mistake.

McInnis estimated that he spends approximately 50 to 60 hours burning the details of the feathers into a decoy for an average size bird.

"When it comes to painting the duck it all depends," he said. "There's a lot of work to painting and you really have to be careful."

Once the body's been finished the carver must do the same process all over again for the head. Then the two are attached using plastic wood and poxy.

The final step before the decoy is finished is attaching the tail feathers. McInnis said he carves each feather by hand to fit perfectly.

"You reach a stage where you don't screw up too much," he said.

Made out of either bass wood or tupelo wood, decoys are judged not only on their appearance but also on their ability to float. If two birds are equal in appearance the one that floats the best, wins.

In order to give the duck good balance in the water lead shillings are placed inside a film canister and put inside the hollowed out decoy.

"The reason the decoys are hollowed out is because a solid one is more liable to crack than a hollow bird," said McInnis.

The detail that goes into decoys is painstaking but McInnis said he enjoys the challenge. He has two Bluing Teeals and said he'd sell them for $400 or $500 but that's not why he makes decoys.

"If I wanted to grind them out to make money I wouldn't put as much detail into them...I do this as a hobby, I'm not in it to make money."

For those who don't want to start a decoy from scratch, molds are available that have already been cut out. Nevertheless, McInnis prefers to cut out his own decoys and has acquired the equipment over the years to do it.

"I'd be dollars and cents ahead if I did it the other way but I bought a bandsaw," he said. "It gives me the freedom to do my own thing."

A lot of decoy carvers today have backgrounds in biology and art training. Some of the stuff they do is unbelievable, said McInnis.

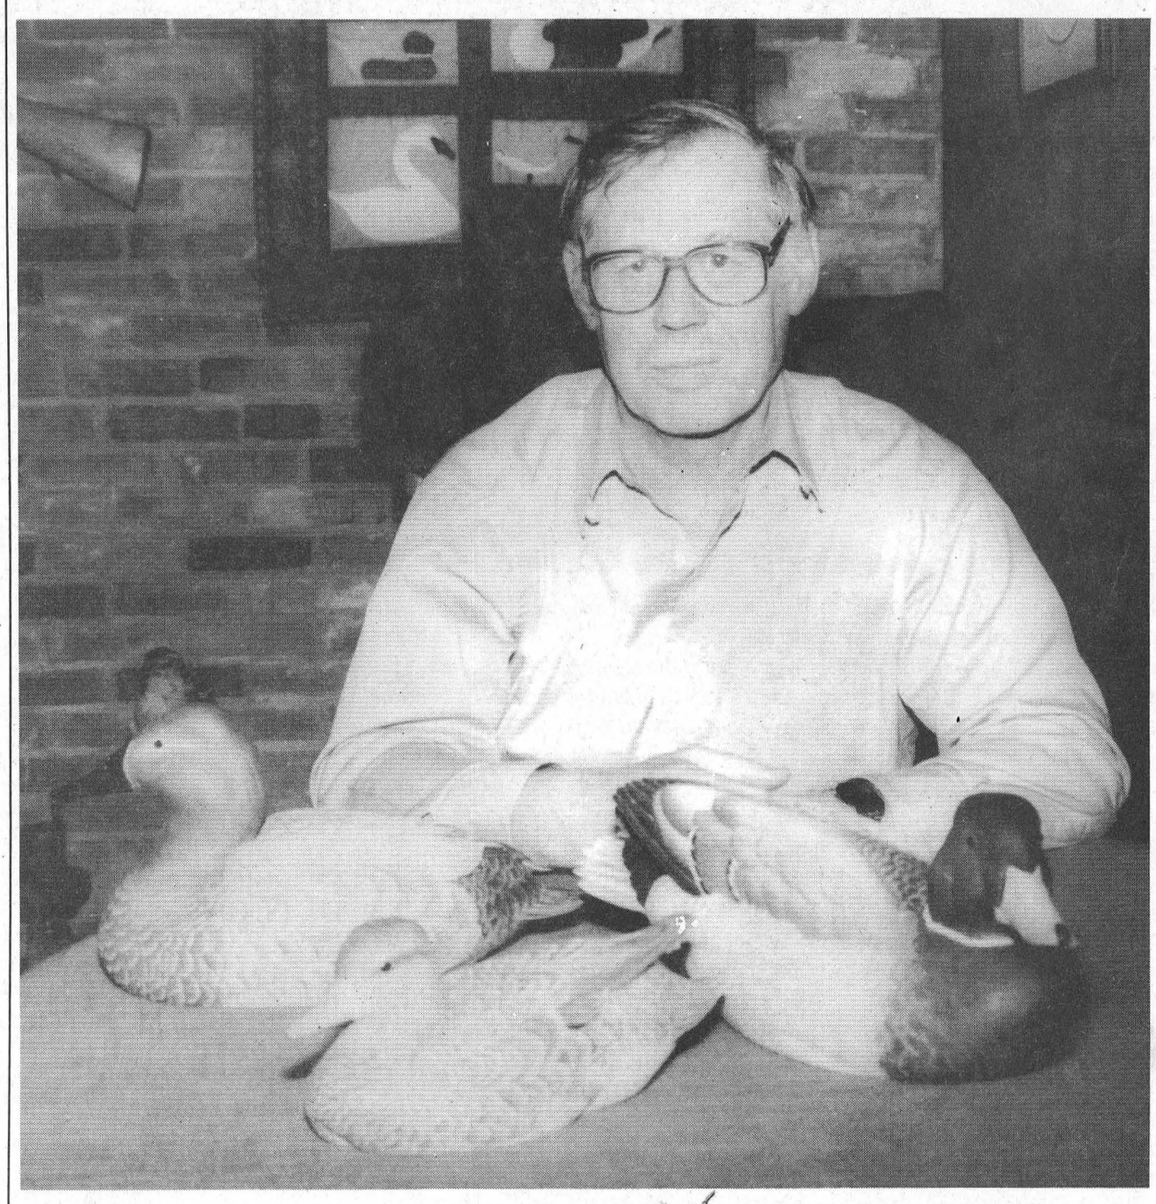

The history of decoys goes back hundreds of years in North America. Old decoys have been found in caves made out of reeds by Indians. The white man came along afterwards, took an interest in them and made them into what they are today, said McInnis.

"Man, being the competitive creature he is, wanted to make a better decoy then his neighbor," he said.

As a result, the decoys seen today look better than the real thing in most cases.

For McInnis the art of carving decoys comes naturally. He enjoys his hobby and plans to continue it for a long time yet to come.

"Every year I give one to Ducks Unlimited," he said. "I've always had good luck doing it."

Enjoying his hobby
Mike McInnis displays the three decoys that won prizes at the Canadian National Decoy Association Contest at the Toronto Sportsman Show. McInnis has been making decoys for about eight years but has only seriously gotten into his hobby during the past four years. At the CNDA contest McInnis' three entries were awarded two first place ribbons and one second place ribbon.

Ministry intervenes

he was involved in a labor dispute which had gone so far as to involve ministry intervention.

"A meeting definitely won't do any harm. Like I said before, we were willing to sit down and talk. You can't resolve differences unless you talk," Hall stated.

Nestle's Human Resources representative Kim Gernhaelder said, "We don't know whether the dispute will be settled through the meeting with the Ministry of Labor. We'll have to wait and see."

Nestle lockout - a sign of the times

Ian McMillan
Leader Staff

There was a time when unions could hold a company at bay until concessions were made that benefited the workers. Those times are nc more.

Economic times have shifted bargaining power to the companies. As union contracts expire, companies aren't willing to concede anymore benefits to workers. A good example can be seen in Oshawa where the Canadian Auto Workers Union has quickly found that the boom times of the 1980s are over. With sales of the Lumina sedan falling the company has told the CAW that if they don't agree to concessions there won't be another line of cars built in "The City that Moto-vates Canada." To emphasize their point one of the plants was shut down putting 1,400 workers out of a job.

Further east in Chesterville, Nestle Canada Inc. has offered its workers a final contract. The company wants the right to schedule employees on continental work weeks. That would allow them to schedule production a regular rates on Saturday and Sunday. However, Nestle stressed to its workers it would only be implemented if production requirements cannot be satisfied in a regular five-day schedule. Overtime rates would still apply for anyone working more than 40 hours . The Local 488 of the the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union has balked at the suggestion.

"We've worked for years to get these things," said Union President Dwayne Hall. "We're not going to give them up."

It took a long time for workers at the Nestle plant to achieve the wages and benefits they enjoy today. It won't take any time at all to eliminate everything and move the plant to either the United States or Mexico where the same products can be produced for a fraction of the cost. The sad reality is that under the Free Trade Agreement businesses have moved lock, stock and barrel to the United States because it makes simple business sense. With the possibility of the North American Free Trade Agreement being passed by Mexico and the United States (Canada has already given its stamp of approval to the deal) things will not get any easier for manufacturing plants in Canada.

Nestle released letters to its employees explaining it has too many factories in North America. "We have the capacity to produce more coffee and beverages than we need," claimed President of Nestle Foods, Michael T. Rosicki.

A task force is studying the situation to determine down-sizing or plant closures. Who wins and who loses will be decided on the basis of which factories are the most competitive. Being locked out leaves Nestle-Chesterville in a vulnerable situation. Plant Manager Jim Cummings told reporters that there will be no more negotiations.

"We've got our best offer on the table and the clock is ticking," he said.

In spite of the warning union members aren't looking at the clock. They have all the time in the world as they continue to picket outside the plant.

The union feels that if it gives in to this concession that there will be more demanded from the company in the future. Considering the options, this concession is a small price to pay when you weigh the possibility of losing everything if the plant moves.

Recently Global Television did a story on the Nestle lockout. One worker on the picket line told the reporter he would rather give up his job than give up overtime pay for working weekends. The reporter signed off sighting a bleak future for the workers at the plant.

What workers have to realize is that times have changed and they can no longer bargain for something the company doesn't have. In this environment of global competition, manufacturing jobs are moving south where it's more profitable for the owners, not the workers. In order to keep those jobs in Canada sacrifices have to be made.

Over the last eight years of Tory rule, Free Trade has transformed our economy drastically. Plant closures have become common place and unemployment lives have gotten longer. Workers hardest hit are in their 30s and 40s. Ironically, the workers at Nestles fit right into this category.

Picket lines will remain until the lock-out ends. Workers will either go back to work or join the ranks of the unemployed. It's not a pleasant thought but in today's turbulent economy nothing is for certain and that includes all our jobs.

Spring fire hazards

Things may be fairly soggy today but in the next couple of weeks they will dry up. Therefore rural residents should be advised of the potential for brush or trash fires the Ministry of Natural Resources warns.

Grass and debris burning are often a part of spring clean-up programs.

"Ninety per cent of all spring wildfires or unplanted fires are caused by people attempting to burn debris and grass," said Pete Champagne, Fire Co-ordinator for Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Counties. The results of a wildfire may be the loss of homes, barns, cottages and forests.

But there are precautions that can reduce the potential for wildfires. Some of those are:

* be aware of bylaws and regulation regarding debris burning. If in doubt call your municipal office or fire department because you may need a fire permit,

* burn only during cooler hours of early morning or evening,

* never burn on a dry or windy day,

* never leave a fire until it's "Dead Out."

Should a fire occur report it immediately to the nearest fire department. Remember, preventing wildfires is mostly common sense. You can't be too careful!

This Week In Morrisburg's History

Compiled from The Leader's fyles by Laurie Day

1983

Four-year-old Andrew Robertson lugged away his trophies given to him at the annual Morrisburg Figure Skating banquet Saturday, April 9. Andrew, the son of Scott Robertson of Lakeshore Drive, said he didn't want any help carrying away the hardware he was given as the most improved skater in the pre-beginner category. He was pictured on the front page of this issue of The Leader.

The Morrisburg Hydro Commission received 16 applications for the one opening for which they advertised after deciding to increase their two-man crew. Extensive work was to be done on Lakeshore Drive and other west-end locations, and to the Industrial Park, although it was not labelled a priority over residential units.

Eldon Horner, a Grade 10 student at Seaway District High School, was going on a two-week trip to the United Nations after finishing first in a public speaking contest sponsored by the Oddfellows and the Rebekahs. He spoke on what the UN meant to him, and as a result, he was declared the winner.

The Leader learned that the village was going to be the home to another food store operation, filling the vacant store left by the move of Charlie's Sport Shop to the east end. At the time of this report, the Dominion was the only food store in the village, with the exception of the convenience stores Mac's and Beckers. Prior to that, Heinz Meat Market was the other food store. That location remained empty.

Village clerk, Lloyd Barkley, said he didn't agree with his and other area councils' decision to attempt to retrieve money from sales tax receipts. Under pressure from some ratepayers to allow a tax consultant to see if he could get them money back from purchases made the previous year, village council reversed the decision.

Edie Sprague, proprietor of Edie's House of Fashion, was elected president of Morrisburg Chamber of Commerce for the year of 1974 at the annual banquet meeting in Allen Hall. Others elected to office were Steve Casselman of Casselman Shoes, vice president; Mrs. Erol Welton, secretary, and Glenn Keyes, Manager of the Bank of Montreal, treasurer.

Miss Audrey Gail Casselman, 19 of Williamsburg, died Saturday, April 7th in a car accident on Highway 31 near Morrisburg. Miss Casselman, daughter of Mr. William Casselman and his wife, the former Audrey Strader, was to have been married at Williamsburg United Church on April 21st.

The regular meeting of the municipal council of Williamsburg Township was held on Saturday, April 7th in the I.O.O.F. Hall with all members present. The application under the Tile Drainage Act for the borrowing the sum of $1,275 was approved. The 1973 budget of the Williamsburg Fire Department in the amount of $3,550 was also approved. Council approved the plan of the Trans Canada Pipe Lines for the construction of a new line of pipe as well.

Headlines in the April 11th issue of The Leader read: Grenville-Dundas remains Tory. Mrs. Jean Casselman, Progressive-Conservative member for Grenville-Dundas in the last Parliament, successfully held this traditionally Tory riding in the Federal election, while other seats in the area joined the Ontario majority for the Liberals. The successful candidate had a majority of 3,247 votes over her chief opponent 'Big John' Palmer, who received 785 more votes than his predecessor in the last election. This cutting Jean's majority by about 500 votes.

Langton Carr was named president of the Morrisburg Fish and Game Protective Association.

Formal signing of the contract for the construction of St. Mary's Separate School in Morrisburg took place on April 9th. The general contract was awarded to Menard Brothers of Cornwall at a price of $82,732.

Marvin Lemon, skip and president of the Morrisburg Curling Club, was presented with the coveted Dodge trophy at the annual banquet. Other members of the winning rink were Homer Janack, Harry Ing, and Don Smithson.

Fred S. Broder was presented with a life membership in the Morrisburg Curling Club. He had been a member for 50 years, and for 22 of those years he was club secretary.

Close to 100 people attended the second annual Father-Son banquet of the Williamsburg Minor Sports Association. Hubert Casselman presided over the affair. The Bantam hockey team captain, Mahlon Locke and Pee Wee captain, Harve McIntosh, were presented with mementos autographed by the Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

At Brinston's Allied Food Market, Maple Leaf ready-to-eat hams were 45 cents a pound and fresh mushrooms were 58 cents a pound.

J.J. Christensen was announcing a complete new garden centre for Morrisburg.

1953

It was reported in this issue of The Leader that Murray Black had been named chief constable of Morrisburg. His salary was to be $1,400 with a car allowance of $1,400 a year.

McGillis Hardware was having a Bake-Rite tinware special which featured square cake pans and cookie sheets for 39 cents each.

Pictured on the front page were local representatives who were attending the convention with Hydro officials at Toronto and Niagara. The convention was to deal with the proposed hydro development project. Some of the notables were George E. Beavers, Reeve of Morrisburg, Donald Kyle, Williamsburg Deputy Reeve, Bernice Froats, Reeve of Williamsburg Township and Roy Schell, Morrisburg councillor.

At Savers, ladies' spring full-length coats were $26.95 and men's top coats started at $19.95.

1943

Headlines in the April 9th issue of The Leader read: Former local boy with U.S. Army in Australia. P.R.C. Richard P. Pruner, who was born near Morrisburg and attended MCI, was fighting the mosquitoes in Australia. Pruner said in a letter to his aunt, Mrs. M.C. Oliver, that he had thought Canada was behind the times, but Australia had this country beat.

At a meeting of Williamsburg Council, a by-law for the appointment of Lyle O'Shaughnesy for clerk and treasurer of Williamsburg Township at a salary of $350 a year, was prepared.

Russell E. Link had taken over the ice business formerly managed by Mr. Ken Duval. Regularly daily delivery was to commence May 1st.

The Leader compiled a list of all those from Morrisburg who were serving in the armed forces of the country. The list totalled 105 names, somewhat better than one for every 14 of the population or eight per cent.

1933

The April 14th edition of The Leader reported that a good deal of discussion had centered around the Barkley Game Reserve during a well-attended meeting of the Morrisburg Fish and Game Club. A number of property owners adjoining the preserve were anxious to be affiliated.

R.H. Bradfield was offering golden light coal oil at five gallons for $1.

England's foremost comedian George Robey was starring in Marry Me at the Cameo Theatre.

The local farmers' club reported prices on the market as five and one half cents per pound for hogs.

Boundaries of Ontario's 90 electoral districts were tabled in the Ontario Legislature. Membership of the House was being reduced from 112 to 90 seats.

At the Red and White Store, Condor pepper was 29 cents a pound and a 40-ounce jar of Gold Medal raspberry jam was 39 cents.

1923

The April 13th issue of The Leader announced that under a new name and management the A.H. Merkley Saw Mill and Sash and Door Factory had reopened in Morrisburg. Mr. Frank Fentiman and W.D. Killins, two prominent citizens of Ottawa, had purchased the business.

Supplementary letters patent had been issued at Ottawa increasing the Capital of the Canada Starch Co. Ltd. which operated works at Cardinal from $2.5 million to $4.5 million.

Mr. M.J. Casselman had purchased the beautiful Chamberlain residence on Main Street from Fred H. Meikle.

Guy E. Loucks of Williamsburg was advertising the "F" Power and Light plant. The advertisement read "at work you will agree it is the hardiest and most practical plant made." It was designed to produce electric light anywhere and was guaranteed to flood the home, or shop, with clean brilliant light for only a few cents a day. The cost of the plant was $365.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, The Morrisburg Leader,
Morrisburg, Ontario

Dear Editor — In recent weeks, various media have reported comments and allegations by others relating to layoffs and practices at The St. Lawrence Parks Commission.

As a result it would seem useful for the Commission to update your organization and the general public on our present budgetary situation and its potential impact on jobs and employment at our tourism attractions. tourism attractions.

A letter addressed to staff clearly outlined the budget forecast and its workforce impact. Originally, up to 25 bargaining unit contract employees were not to be recalled if the 1993/94 budget was approved by the provincial government as proposed by the Commission. However, as a result of joint management and union efforts we hope to reduce the impact of the budget such that the number of staff not being recalled could be reduced to about 15. In addition, approximately 20 vacancies will not be refilled, including classified, contract, student and management positions to stay within the budget plan.

The primary reason for the proposed non-recall of staff is due to the Commission's constrained salary budget. Last year, the provincial government reduced the allocation by $600,000 in salary funding and this continued loss, coupled with a further constraint of $100,000 in other operating expenses is having an impact this year.

During 1993/1994, as in the past, seasonal staff who are not recalled will be given priority consideration when filling other Commission vacancies. We have been very successful to date in this respect, with over 90 per cent of affected employees placed in alternate Commission positions within our 650 (plus, minus) person workforce.

It is important to note that the Commission has developed a long term capital forecast to maintain and improve its physical plant (buildings, parks, roads, utilities, etc.) and capital funds are separately requested each year for this special purpose. Provincial funds for capital projects are not part of the regular operating budget and do not affect the

Television news anchor Peter Van Dusen shares experiences with Seaway students

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

IROQUOIS—Seaway High students viewed the world of broadcast journalism, as seen through the eyes of CBC Newsday's anchor, Peter Van Dusen last Wednesday.

Through a video, Van Dusen answered many questions about 'the scene behind the scenes' at Newsday. And he discussed with the students, issues about journalism, the life of a journalist and a TV news anchor.

Through the video, the production staff were introduced, each with a description of his or her responsibilities, from co-anchor Nancy Cooper, to sports announcer Dan Seguin and weatherman Ian Black, various reporters and camera men, "assignment editor" and "line-up editor," to script writers, make-up artists, and the rest.

Students learned how a newscast is set up, starting with the introduction "Coming up in this Half Hour," which gives a short preview of events to be discussed, giving viewers an idea whether or not to watch the entire broadcast.

News is divided into local news, starting at 5.30 p.m. and international at 6.00 p.m. The lead story is the top story of the day, which is sometimes local or sometimes world-wide. Recent lead stories have featured events in troubled Yugoslavia, or situations in the United States featuring decisions by the new President Bill Clinton.

"The reason we often lead with international stories is that in the world we live in today, technology is such that few places on earth are remote places. If there's a major story going on anywhere in the world, in a couple of hours television crews are there, and it's on the air. We can be everywhere and anywhere in a short time."

Local lead stories may involve issues in the school system, such as the question, "Should homosexuality be discussed or even addressed in schools?"

As there are 121 people working on the broadcast every day, "that leaves 121 chances for error," Van Dusen said.

"If someone misses a button, a microphone etc. or the director calls for the wrong thing, the mistake goes on the air," he added.

Show goes on

Once, 10 minutes into the newscast, the computer controlling lighting shut down every light in the studio, but the show still went on. "Meanwhile we read the introduction and explained, 'the computer said it was time for a break,'" Van Dusen stated.

"If there's a technical screw-up, you just say it. The whole business is about credibility," Van Dusen stated.

In the interval, staff hastened to set up portable lights, and by that time, lighting was restored, but went off intermittently for a few seconds for the next hour.

Students learned why Canadian and British journalists are respected and in demand around the world. "Although we're not neutral, we take a stand on some things, we're perceived to be a fair nation, and have a history of resolving conflicts," he explained.

Canadian journalists are among the best-trained in the world. For example, Van Dusen is a journalist as well as a news anchor, while most American announcers on local stations are "news readers," not journalists.

The most dangerous assignment Van Dusen ever had was the 1988 Jamaican election, in which over 300 were killed in a violent campaign. "We went to a poor area in Kingston. The police wouldn't go in there, but we decided to go in anyway. We were covered with Canadian flags, but a guy came and pointed a gun at us and insisted on seeing our documents. Then he allowed us to proceed and when it was over, followed us out to the gate."

Messenger at CP

Following high school, Van Dusen started his career as a messenger at Canadian Press. After a year as messenger, he engaged in studies of journalism and political science at the University of Carleton, becoming involved in part-time work with radio stations. He then accepted a position as bureau chief at a radio station in Halifax before he completed his degree.

While advising students not to follow his example and to complete their education, he added, "Journalism is one thing that university can't teach, you to be a good reporter. It can teach you how to craft a story, basic skills how to approach it and be a better writer, but you have to be curious, dedicated and tenacious."

If students think there is something to a story, they should learn to keep on asking, even if told there is nothing. "Then make 10 more questions, and 10 more. If there's nothing by then, then you'll know."

A most important and difficult journalistic standard to uphold is credibility. Every time a report is inaccurate, and a correction is broadcast, the credibility of the entire organization is undermined, Van Dusen said.

Even worse are the rare incidents of fabrication, as in NBC's faked accidents involving GM trucks. Although lucky enough to avoid a multi-million dollar lawsuit, NBC paid dearly by credibility lost through a three-minute on-air apology, when the network admitted to setting up a device to make sure the trucks blew up on impact.

"This did a tremendous disservice to a business which is based on credibility," Van Dusen stated.

Perhaps because of incidents like these, journalists have dropped from among the top ten most respected occupations according to a survey, and are not as well-respected as in previous years.

However apart from inadvertent omissions, Van Dusen said that he himself had never been involved in a story which wasn't told "like it was."

There is a saying that like the Jack of all trades, journalists "know a little bit about everything, and a lot about nothing." This is easily understood, since during one newscast an announcer may touch on 30 different topics, from health care to education to politics.

Despite the glamor, journalism demands long hours of work and is notorious for high stress. However, in spite of the drawbacks, there are great rewards.

Variety's the spice

For Van Dusen, the best part of his job is the variety. "I do something different every day. Even though I go to the same place of work, I learn something new."

And although a story has a flow over a couple of days, "the beauty is there's something different every day. There's something challenging, something to ask a question about every day. That's the great part of the job, you're constantly searching."

After the presentation, students gave Van Dusen a fruit basket in appreciation. The class was part of a three to four week study on journalism by Andrea McDonell's and Wendy Gibb's communication classes. Topics included journalistic ethics, the power of the communications media, both broadcast and print.

Students were to report on this presentation, and are to tour Ottawa's CBC television studio later this month and again in May.

Fielding questions

CBC Newsday Anchor Peter Van Dusen asked and answered a lot of questions pertaining to the broadcast, and the profession of journalism last week at Seaway High School.

salaries available for attractions staffing.

Business management in the 1990s is a process of continuous change and the Commission's priorities for 1993/1994 will maintain a strong focus on attraction performance, customer satisfaction, revenue generation, partnership development and marketing initiatives. At the same time, recognizing human resources and workforce impact will always be an essential consideration. In this regard we continue to have regular dialogue with union representatives through our joint Employee Relations Committee. This ongoing consultation has resolved many workforce issues and contributed to various program efficiencies.

Although we know 1993/1994 will be another challenging year for tourism, the Commission plans to build on its success and grow where it can make the strongest contribution to Eastern Ontario's tourism economy.

In these difficult times it is most important for the media, employers and labour representatives to ensure that factual information is fairly presented to each other and the public.

Dear Editor — Thank you for taking the time to read this letter.

As community based Registered Nurses of Ontario, we are greatly concerned over the gradual elimination of Registered Nurses from the community health care system. Our concern is further elevated by the consequences of the new Long Term Care Reform. It appears that under the Reform the Registered Nurse's position in the community will be almost eliminated to provide for more cost effective and diversified health care provision to the elderly population.

We realize that the mandate of the governments, both Provincial and Federal, is to lower medical costs and to bring in a multidisciplinary approach to community care, but does this have to be at the cost of thousands of jobs lost by Registered Nurses who have been providing excellent services in the communities of Ontario for decades?

People who are educated, counselled and cared for by Registered Nurses with a high level of medical knowledge make fewer visits to the physician and are hospitalized less due to the use of preventative medicine and early diagnosis of potential problems, thus, saving the health care system millions of dollars per year.

The Registered Nurses of Ontario have laid the foundation and set the standards for community care at all levels for decades. They recognized the benefits of community care and education of the public, long before it became the trend.

We believe that the Registered Nurse should continue to play a major role in community health. Without our leadership, dedication, knowledge and standards of practice, the ultimate goal of a healthier community will be much less attainable if at all.

Remember, lowering of standards and medical services goes hand in hand with the mandate of lowering medical costs. Perhaps this "cost effectiveness" should start at a higher level, rather than at a level that affects the general public.

As Registered Nurses in Ontario, our future is growing dimmer with each passing day. We believe in our health care system, but we need the continued psychosocial and economic support to maintain "our" level of care as well as, ultimately, our jobs!

Sincerely,
JEANNETTE VANDEWINT

Dear Editor — Recently my family and I participated in, and were lucky enough to win the Business Improvement Business Improvement Association's Treasure Hunt.

We had great fun discussing the clues with family and friends and in conducting our search around the shopping centre, the Anglican Church corner, the Masonic Temple and finally around the corner of Second and High Streets. While we were out looking, we met many others engaged in the same activities, and they also seemed to be enjoying themselves.

When we actually did find the key that fit, we were presented with a whole trunk full of goodies!

The Treasure Hunt, and similar activities provide an opportunity for the merchants and the village residents to interact outside of the normal selling/purchasing normal selling/purchasing situation, which results in a stronger community spirit. My hat's off to the BIA (the clues were excellent) and to the participating businesses for a job well done.

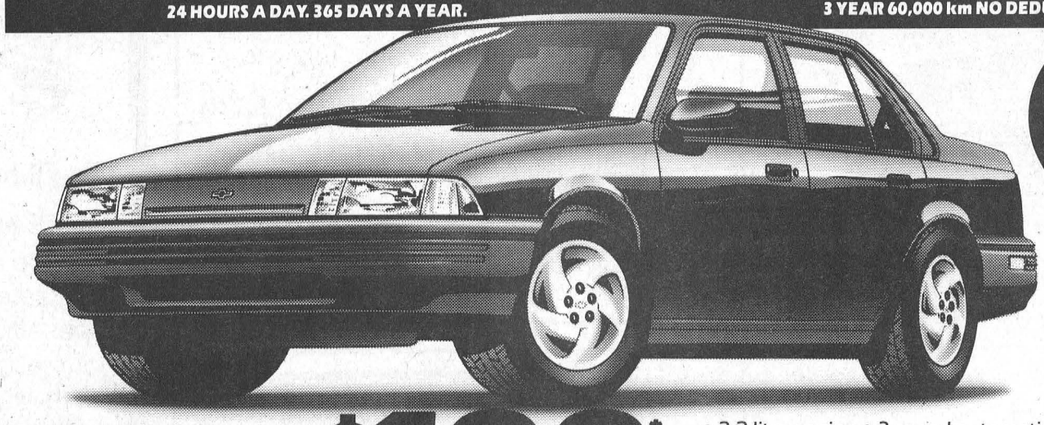

Many thanks,

CFB Kingston troops in area

MORRISBURG—From April 16 and 18, the Canadian Forces will be doing military exercises between Kingston and the Quebec border.

Morrisburg Provincial Police just want to let the public know what's going on.

"It's the First Canadian Division Head Quarters and Signal Regiment of CFB Kingston that will be doing the exercises in the area," said Morgan Hill, media relations officer with the Morrisburg OPP.

"They will be operating on a 24-hour basis," Hill added, "and they may be using portable generators."

As well, the troops will be setting up overnight accommodations along the route.

This exercise is to familiarize personnel operating in built up areas due to recent world developments.

New $5 million Cancer Centre completed in Ottawa

Leader Staff

OTTAWA — The Ottawa Regional Cancer Center has completed the construction of a $5 million radiation therapy facility at its Civic Hospital Division that will provide area cancer patients with faster and easier access to treatment.

The expansion includes state-of-the-art equipment that will offset the increasing demand for cancer treatment that has sent patients away from their families and usual support groups, to cancer centers in Sudbury and Thunder Bay.

The new Radiation Therapy Facility was constructed at a cost of $2.8 million, with an additional $2.25 million spent on equipment that will ease the growing demand for cancer treatment by area patients.

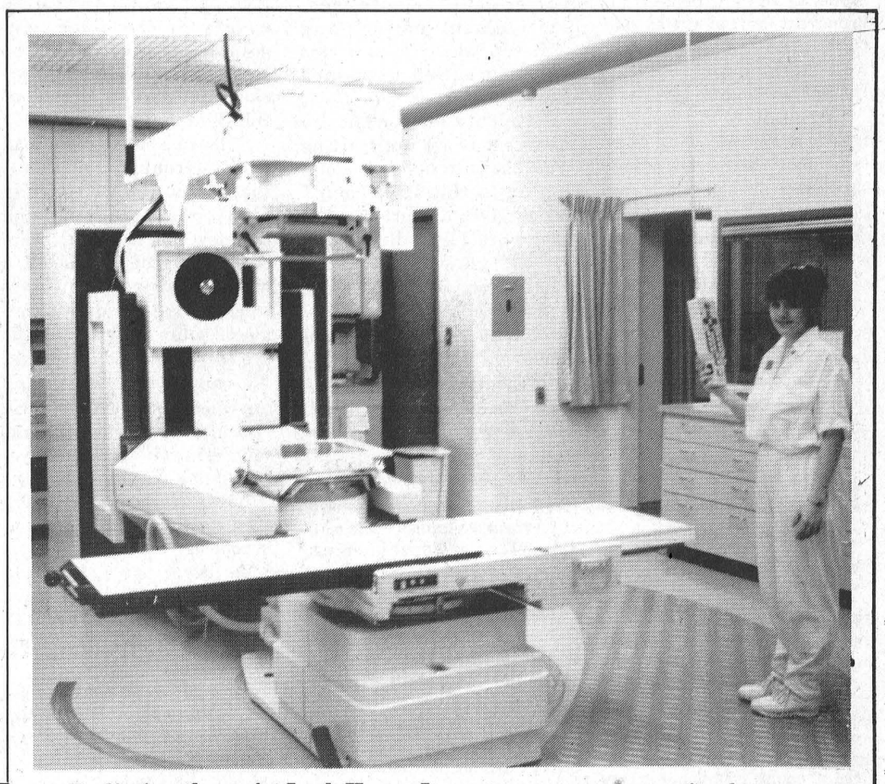

As recently as 1992, patients waited for treatment for as long as eight to 10 weeks. With the new equipment, waiting period have been reduced substantially from the time treatment is prescribed.

The ORCC is one of eight centers in Ontario and the largest in Eastern Ontario. There are two main sites adjacent to the Ottawa Civic and General Hospitals.

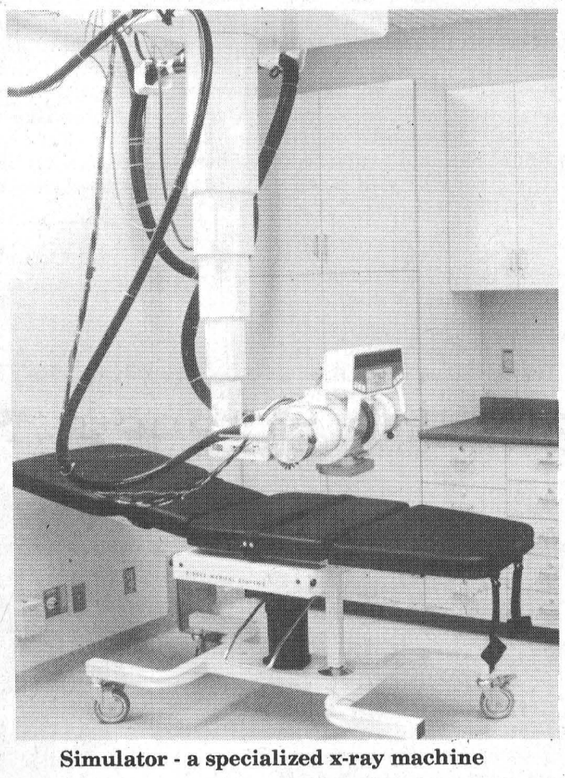

In 1991 there were more than 100,000 patient visits to these sites or to satellite clinics in Cornwall, Pembroke and Ottawa.

Funded by the Ontario Ministry of Health and the Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation, the new equipment offers precision radiation treatment for many different types of cancers that maximizes radiation to the tumor while sparing normal tissue.

In addition to external radiotherapy, ORCC specializes in brachytherapy (implantation of radiation devices). Medical oncology treatment includes chemo-, hormonal, and immuno- therapies.

Osnabruck looks at composting

IAN McMILLAN
Leader Staff

OSNABRUCK — In an attempt to cutback the amount of waste going to the landfill Council is considering ways to improve home composting in the Township.

The Cornwall Environment Resource Centre (CERC) presented numerous options to Council, March 22. Home composting is the single most effective way in which individuals can become part of the solution to reduce the waste stream, said CERC Composting Co-ordinator David Black.

"I feel composting is easy once you're shown how," he said. "Therefore it has to be talked about in order to be effective."

Lack of success with municipal composter programs can be directly attributed to the absence of home training. Therefore, CERC proposed to Council a program called Composting & Recycling Organic Products (CROP).

"We would operate the program and tailor it to your needs," said Black.

CROP Co-ordinator Jan Milnes agreed. She explained the success a similar program in Cornwall has had since last July.

"It has even been a year yet but the amount of garbage being collected has dropped off," she said.

The CROP program has various different elements to it but the two elements that Milnes felt were best suited to Osnabruck Township were the hotline and seminar portions.

The hotline would be set up at a cost of $300 and would run form April 1 to November 30. Anyone with questions about composting could call the number for answers.

"I feel that education is the fulcrum of the sustainability of the program," said Milnes. "The hotline would serve the community well."

In addition to the hotline, a seminar could be set up to teach people everything they need to know about what to put into a composter and how to maintain it.

The cost of seminar would be $800. It would last anywhere between three and four hours and provide particiapnts with all the handouts and knowledge they need to make their composters a success, explained Black.

"It all comes down to money," he said. "There's no sense running into expense when you can do it the cheap and natural way."

Councillor Fran Laflamme felt that education about composting was the right way to go. I'm ready for the seminar she said after explaining some of the problems she's had with her own composter.

Twenty-seven per cent of all household waste is compostable Black told council.

"On average one person creates approximately four to five pounds of garbage per day," he said. "Over the course of a year that's a lot."

Home composting however, allows waste to be managed, "on site". It's also the most economic way of reducing the tonnage of garbage being transported to the garbage dump explained Black.

"Environmentalism is a change of attitude people have to learn," he said. "It's you and me that have to change, it's not the garbage."

In the meantime, Council said they would discuss the program and get back to CERC before the next meeting.

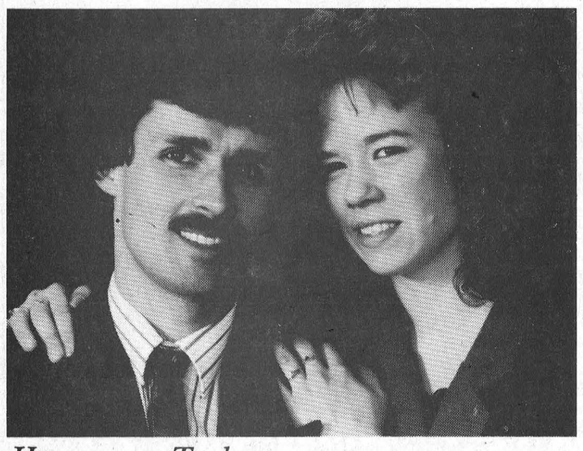

Reeve Gordon Ross said that anything Council could do to alleviate the problem, they would listen to.

"There is absolutely too much going to the landfill," he said.

Easter bunny donation

Bill Sheldrick of the 1st Morrisburg Scout Pack accepts a cheque for $583.68 from Easter Seals Chairman Fred Langlotz and Lions Club President Chuck Irvine. The money is helping to cover the cost of five new tents and a new stove for the Morrisburg Scouting organization. The Boy Scouts sold the chocolate bunnies on behalf of the Lions Club and the profits were then donated back to them. In total 384 bunnies were sold.

Seat Belt Drive

The Ontario Provincial Police will be conducting a province-wide seat belt campaign that will run from April 18th to the 30th.

The ultimate goal is to increase seat belt usage to a 95 per cent compliance rate.

During this campaign, OPP traffic officers will be concentrating their efforts in towns and villages as well as on rural routes throughout Ontario.

Statistics have shown that seat belt usage on major highways is as high as 98 per cent.

However, usage in rural towns and villages is as low as 50 per cent—with the majority of accidents occurring within 16km from home.

Motor vehicle collisions are one of the leading causes of death for those under 45 years of age.

The fine for seat belt violations is $90. Please buckle up for your own safety and remember "seat belts save lives".

Crimestoppers

The Seaway Valley Crimestoppers is asking for the public's help in solving a break, enter, and theft at Lot 2, Concession 6 of Mountain Township on March 23, 1993.

Stolen property included a Panasonic Genius microwave, a Hitachi VCR (VHS), a Marshall 120 Watt amplifier, Fender guitar, serial number E912443, Panasonic VCR (VHS), serial number F25A41363, a Zenith 21" color TV, Technics stereo system and other stolen property.

A dark grey mid-size car, driven by a female approximately 20 years of age with long blond hair and a male passenger in his late 20's with dark hair and a moustache were spotted in the area.

Anyone with information about this or any other crime may be eligible for a cash reward of up to $1,000. Remember, we don't want your name, we want your information. Call Crimestoppers at 534-8477 or long distance at 1-800-265-8477.

SD&G county residents invited to talk trash

ST. ANDREWS—These days, seems like just about everyone's got an opinion on garbage- -and the SD & G Waste Management Master Plan wants to hear them all!

The United Counties Master Plan is a cooperative planning effort undertaken by SD & G's 20 municipalities (excluding the City of Cornwall) to come up with a long-term strategy for dealing with the area's waste in an environmentally and economically sound way.

The Plan has just completed another step with the preparation of the MacViro consultant's study of waste going to our landfills, according to the public's expressed desire to meet Ontario's waste reduction goals of 50 per cent diversion of waste going to landfill by 2000.

"What we did was ask people what was important to them about choosing a system to divert waste and how much waste they thought we should divert," says study coordinator Anne MacGillivray.

"The response we got was to go for 50 per cent diversion of waste, but for a minimum cost. That's what the consultant used to work from and the recommendations in this report are the result of trying to achieve those goals."

"The different activities recommended are part of the overall package the consultant feels we need to achieve our 50 per cent diversion goal. It looks pretty sensible and down-to-earth," she adds.

"The estimate of the overall package, about $80 per household in 1995, doesn't include grants, and there may be a lot of funding available depending on the government's ongoing restructuring."

"However, these days everyone realizes it makes sense to plan without blindly relying on grants. And we'd like to thank all the SD & G residents who have contributed their thoughts on this matter to date," MacGillivray states.

The Master Plan is hosting a series of three Open House information nights to present the outline of the proposed strategy to SD & G residents before deciding on what course of actions the Steering Committee will be recommending to Counties Council as suitable for SD & G.

At present, Counties have assumed responsibility for planning only. The Steering Committee is presently circulating a survey to the 20 participating municipalities to see what waste management responsibilities- -if any- -municipalities feel the Counties should assume.

An open house information evening will be held in each County: in Dundas County, Tuesday, April 20, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Chesterville Village Municipal Office, 1 Mill St., downtown, beside the bridge; Stormont County, Monday, April 19 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Cornwall Twp. Municipal Office, Cornwall Center Road, between Hwy. 138 and Power Dam Drive: in Glengarry County, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Alexandria RARE Recycling Plant, 265 Industrial Blvd., west of the Arena.

Advertisements are running in local papers to publicize the events.

"We will be asking those attending each open house to fill out a questionnaire for us, and by helping us out that way they'll get a chance to win our door prize- -a baby composter container, that you can use as a countertop collector for your kitchen waste.

These are being sold by the Dundas Environmental Resource Center and are quite popular," says MacGillivray.

For more information, call MacGillivray at 938-6112 or toll-free in SD & G at 1-800-267-2538.

Dayton plays

MORRISBURG — Home and Trade Show enthusiasts are in for a double treat when the one man band, Dayton plays during the two day event, April 24th and 25th.

Surrounded by electronic equipment on stage, Dayton's guitar wizardry is sure to keep spectators entertained. His material ranges from the Eagles to Harry Chapin, a real variety.

Topping the act is a voice that Dayton uses as a powerful tool. He plays with real musical power, good songs and has an good rapport with audiences.

Other entertainment at the Home and Trade Show includes a fashion show, the Morrisburg Line Dancers and Seaway High School students will be performing a skit.

The Spring Home and Trade Show — don't miss it!

Casselman reflects past 25 years

New owners of Cedar Glen Golf

LAURIE DAY
Leader staff

WILLIAMSBURG—Standing in the dimly lit, recently gutted clubhouse, Dennis Casselman reflects on his past 25 years with the Cedar Glen Golf Course.

He exhales a puff of cool air and smiles somberly.

It's been a good 25 years he says, no regrets.

What started as a dream and took 25 years to nurture, the golf course was sold in less than three months.

Casselman, and partners Rex Whitteker, Ron Casselman and Steve Morrow have sold the popular golf spot, The Cedar Glen.

It was officially taken over by five pairs of new hands on April 1st.

It's no joke.

Don and Lydia Beckstead of Morrisburg, Bert and Madolyn McMahon of Gananoque, and John Morrow of Iroquois, are now the proud owners of the 60-acre franchise.

They say, however, that there will be no major changes right away.

At the present time though, offices are being incorporated to the club house along with minor facial renovations to the dining lounge.

A familiar face will still be behind the counter as John Morrow will continue managing the golf course, while the Becksteads will be on site looking after the upkeep, and making sure the business runs smoothly.

"I guess you could say we're the silent partners," says Madolyn McMahon.

"We won't be here too often," she added, as she and her husband own a trucking company in Gananoque.

How do you feel about this new venture Madolyn?

"It's the best thing we've ever done," she said. "I feel really positive that's it's going to be great."

Dennis says that he's confident the new team of Cedar Glen owners will be able to bring the public the same type of service that he and his co-partners brought to the area.

"This place has been a big part of ours lives for the past 25 years," says Casselman who is the owner of three Sports Unlimited stores. "There's been a lot of laughs, a lot of trying times and a lot of tears."

Sure he has mixed feelings about the situation, but one he says he'll be able to adjust to rather nicely.

"It's time to direct our attentions elsewhere," he said. "We felt it was time to move onward."

"There's a lot of paperwork piled up on my desk," he adds. "Now maybe I'll have some time to sort through some of that."

He does have one concern though.

"Two of the new owners are left-handed," he smiles. "I can see a few minor changes to the course maybe, A lot of lefties think this it's designed for right-handed golfers."

You never know.

On a more serious side, Casselman wants to publically thank a lot of people who have spent numerous hours dedicating time and effort to see the operation ran smoothly.

"I would like to say thanks to those who have helped a great deal over the years," he says.

Those folks include Don McMillan, who has been the driving force behind the junior program; Pete Brown who had been the club captain for a number of years; Brad Mayhew who was the club president; Barb Phifer and Donna Williams who dedicated many years' service on the ladies' executive.

"Also, to my mother and father, (Hubert and Doris Casselman) and to Clifford and Agnes Casselman who have been wonderful supports over the years."

"We've developed a lot of friendships that we will value for the rest of our lives," he said.

"And without our members' support we couldn't have made it," he added. "I hope that they will continue to support the golf club."

Green Fees

The green fees for the 1993 season are up slightly from last year.

For week days, the price for 18 holes is $16, while on the weekend, it's $18. After 6:00p.m., it's $12 any day of the week.

The price for a power cart is $20 for 18 holes, and $3.50 for a pull cart.

Membership fees are as follows, GST included: men's $267.50; women's $214; couples $358.45; juniors $96.30; juveniles (8-15 years) $54.20; family $406.60; senior men (65 years of age) $240.75; senior women $192.60; senior couples $331.20.

Exciting challenge for new hands

Course forecast great season

Coming events

Tentatively, the course is set to open on April 30, earlier if the weather cooperates.

The greens faired well through the winter, and we are patiently waiting for a little warm sunshine to green up the grass.

The fairways will be rolled as soon as possible, and flags will be flying by April 24th.

You can call the course at 542-2323 if you want to book your tee off time.

Cedar Glen changes ownership

The Williamsburg Golf Course, Cedar Glen, was sold to five business partners this month. The transaction took approximately three months to complete, but the new owners stress that the public will not see any major changes. Former owners Rex Whitteker and Dennis Casselman (from the left) have mixed feelings about their business decision, but Bert McMahon, Madolyn McMahon, Lydia Beckstead Don Beckstead and John Morrow have made the transition quite easy thus far. Cedar Glen is opening for business at the end of April, weather permitting, of course.

Riverside mixed darts

RIVERSIDE HEIGHTS—The mixed dart league wrapped up its regular season action here last Wednesday and the champions of the league are Scottie's Lil' Softies, consisting of Jim Scott, Barry Pemberton, Sarah Merkley and Frank Marriner.

The team picked up nine wins led by Scott with five and a 100 high score. Pemberton took two wins while Merkley and Marriner (100) had one each.

The Dead Heads ended with nine wins led by Larry Day (spare) with six outs. Roger Markell took two games and Gail Robinson, one.

Another nine-point night was recorded by the No Outs who sealed fourth place led by Cecil Lewis with six wins and a 133 high score. Chris Casselman had the other three wins, and Peggy Kaddie tossed a 107 high.

The Orioles took third place with nine wins thanks to Ernie Beckstead with five wins. George Baker (100) tossed three wins and Pat Hart added a single.

The Loose Batteries took eight wins on five outs from Ivan Shearer (115). Kenny Baker tossed two outs and Gary Shaver had one. Ruth Markell had a 103 high score.

Hi and Dry ended with eight wins on four from Ernie Duval (120), three from Roy Gummeson (115) and one from Sharon Lewis (100).

Finishing up in the basement were the Red Dragons after taking seven wins, trailed the Lil' Diddlers by one point. Gary Beckstead took four games, while Gayle Hart, Karen Beckstead and Tina Carbino (spare) had one each.

The All Stars ended in second place after taking seven games. Fred Devaul (100x2) trailed Guy Hart for the most outs over the season, but fired four Wednesday in hopes of catching him. Unfortunately for him, he was one short. Other outs from the team were by Jean DeJong Joe Brown and Maureen Loynachan (140).

Lyle Beckstead, Denise Kay and Doris Hart (spare) took two outs each for the Lil' Diddlers and Carl Robinson (100) had one as the team combined for seven wins.

I Don't Know took seven wins led by Mert Carbino with four and a 100 high. Tom Shearer (100), Tracy Shearer and Lloyd Smirle had one game each.

Guy Hart tossed three wins and a 100 high for the Hart Stoppers who ended with six points. Bev Brown (125) took two games and Laurie Day, one.

Ending with five games were the Red As led by Denis Keeler (2270 with two. Ron Bradford (134, 121, 100), Sherry Wereley (101) and Edna Barkley had one win each.

The Wipe Outs ended with four points on two each from Sharon Wereley (140, 118, 100) and Don Lewis (118, 98 finish). Maurice Gagne tossed high scores of 121 and 100 as well.

With three outs were the Outlaws, as Bill Devaul (100), Marnie Duval and Liz Gummeson had one win each.

LeClair recognized for coaching

MORRISBURG—For the second year in a row, Jeff LeClair has been noticed for his coaching prowess.

This year, he is the recipient of the Coach of the Year trophy, as selected by the staff here at The Leader.

The award was presented to LeClair last Monday by Bill Dillabough, for whom the trophy was named.

"I appreciate this," LeClair said, as he shook Dillabough's hand. "I coached a great bunch of guys this year."

But during the Minor Hockey Awards banquet last Sunday, LeClair was quick to point out that building a team like his pennant winning Bantams who went undefeated in regular season and playoff action, didn't just "suddenly happen."

"These guys have had a great foundation, all the way from peanuts to pee wee. I just expanded on their talent," he said.

Last year, LeClair was noticed for his coaching prowess by the MDMHA.

For the 1990-91 season, LeClair coached the Bantam Bs who won the Upper Canada Minor Hockey League division pennant.

This is just his third year coaching in the Morrisburg system.

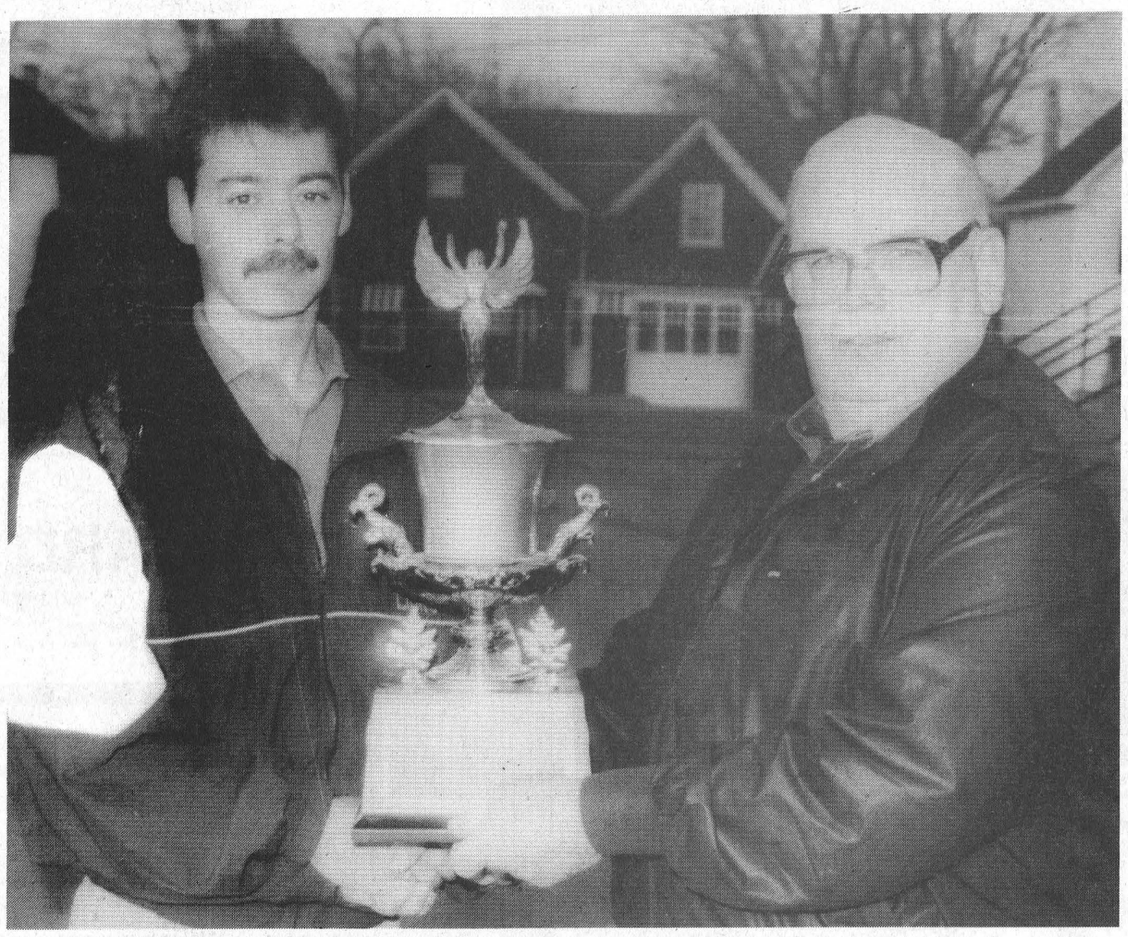

Next year, LeClair may set his sights on the midget team.

This is the second year that the Bill and Phyllis Dillabough Coach of the Year trophy has been awarded.

It originated just last year, when Doug Casselman was selected the recipient as he coached his Junior B Lions to the Rideau-St.Lawrence Jr. B hockey league crown last April.

The trophy, donated by Arnie (Red) and Jude Lawlor in honor of the Dillaboughs, will remain in the trophy case at the Morrisburg Arena.

LeClair will receive a keeper trophy, as will the recipient of the cup each year.

Coach of the Year awarded

Jeff LeClair (left) received the Coach of the Year award recently. He was presented the hardware by by Bill Dillabough, for whom the trophy was named. Arnie (Red) Lawlor thought of this award to be presented to the coach who shows sportsmaship, team spirit and resepect on behalf of Bill and Phyllis Dillabough, and chosen by the staff here at The Leader.

Riverside men's darts

RIVERSIDE HEIGHTS—There is stil a tie in the men's dart league after round one of playoff action.

The Par Darts and the Hart Foundation ended with 11 wins apiece last Tuesday night here, but against each other, it was the Hart Foundation with two of three wins.

Guy Hart led the Harts with five wins and a pair of 140 high scores, while Bobby Jack (135, 121x2, 100x4) and Gary Hart (140x4, 136, 125, 121, 100x5) had three wins each. Doug Thorp didn't grab a win, but did fire a hat trick of 100s.

The Par Darts were led to 11 wins by Rick Barkley with five and highs of 140x4 and a 100. Ken Hollands (140, 134, 100x3) had four wins, while Bill Harper (140, 100x2) and Randy LeClair (100x3) had one win each.

The Becksteads on hot on the heels of the first place duo as they claimed nine wins. Lyle took four games and threw a 100 high, and Ernie Jr. (120, 100x7) had three games. Ernie Sr. claimed two games, and Trevor tossed highs of 125 and 100.

Tom Shearer led the Devauls to seven wins with five outs and a pair of 125 highs. Mert Carbino took two games and threw high scores of 125, 120x2 and 100x3. Dennis Keeler threw a 119 high score and Fred Devaul had a pair of 100s.

With five wins were the Shearers led by John Gummeson with two. Ernie Devaul, Ivan Shearer (140, 125, 121, 100x2) and Mike Lortie (100) took one game each.

The Bradfords ended with two wins; one each from Gary Bradford (100x2) and Frank Marriner (100). Don Lewis (3) and Ron Bradford tossed highs of 100.

Flags will soon be flying at local course

MORRISBURG—The flags will soon be flying here at the Morrisburg Golf Course.

That is, if the weather cooperates.

According to John Cottrill, greens chairman for the 1993 season, the greens appear to be in great shape.

"I'd say they wintered really well," he stated. "Hopefully we will get some sun shine and we will be on the course sooner than later."

No definite date is scheduled for opening at this time, Cottrill stated, but by next week he said he should have a better idea.

"People are anxious to get out," he said. "But we will be able to let them know more next week."

The green fees are slightly higher than last year.

For single memberships the price is $240.75 (GST included), that up approximately $10 in price.

For a couple, the price is $428, while family memberships are $529.65 this year.

A junior membership is up from $74.90 to $80.25.

Coming Events

The Opening Tournament will be held Saturday, May 15, with a steak barbecue and dance to follow.

On May 17th, Opening Monday Night League commences, and on May 18th, Opening Ladies Morning begins.

May 19 marks the Opening Ladies Night and May 20 is the starting date for Men's Night.

Juniors Night commences May 25, and the T & M Brewers Tournament is scheduled for May 22.

Ingleside Lanes' owners gear up for the off season

INGLESIDE—The owners of the Ingleside Bowling Lanes are gearing up for the off season.

Moving into a busy season finale, Garry Brownlee and his wife Brenda Henderson-Brownlee are preparing for a summer league.

"Interest from bowlers has made us look into a summer league," said Brenda.

"Already we've had 14 people sign up and we haven't even advertised it yet."

The summer league will consist of 40 teams, and if more people than that want to join the summer league—which commences Thursday, May 6th and runs for six or seven weeks—more days may be incorporated into the schedule.

"It gives people a chance to try bowling if they have never done so," Brenda explained. "And they can play in a league without having a 30-week committment."

It's a great chance to socialize without the competitive degree of some of the winter leagues.

"This summer league is the first one of its kind in the area," said Garry.

No smoking league

Also newly incorporated into the winter leagues for next season will be a "Weedless Tuesday."

"We are going to have Tuesdays dedicated to non-smokers," Brenda said.

Again there was interest generated by some bowlers who wanted to join a non-smoking league.

"Sometimes we get special requests for no smoking sections by newcomers, but we couldn't offer a smoke free environment."

"As it stands now, Tuesdays are going to be smoke free," said Brenda.

Bruce Whittaker Memorial

An avid bowler for many years, Bruce Whittaker will be remembered for all the things he did.

"He loved watching the kids bowl," Garry said. "If the beat their personal best, then he was happy."

Bruce died just last spring. He was 87.

He was the only active member of the Ingleside Bowling Lanes who bowled every season, from the day the business opened after the Seaway went through.

Bruce was also an employed of the Brownlees, and he took great pleasure from those who surrounded him, both at the alley and at home.

Now, Brenda and Garry will be awarded the Bruce Whittaker Memorial trophy.

"To me, this is the most prestigious award of the house," said Brenda.

"We will make it a yearly event, and both an adult and a youth bowler will be awarded a Bruce Whittaker Memorial placque."

On April 18th, all Bowlers of the Months throughout the season will take part in a pins over average tournament.

Each bowler will roll five games, and the winner will be declared among the 40 participants.

For the youth bowlers (YBC), the Bruce Whittaker Memorial placque will be awarded in a different manner.

This award will go to the bowler who is a good sport, shows dedication to the sport, and personal improvement. The recipient must also be someone who loves the game, and can not only bowl well, but be a team player.

Black Town Provincials

On Saturday, April 18, a team of Ingleside Bowlers will be travelling to Ottawa to take part in the Black Tower Provincial Team Championships.

This is the regional part of the tournament, and going to Merivale will be Ian McMillan, Martin Timmers, Patsy Timmers, Barb Disotell, Gloria Julien and Kathy Elliott.

The team will be coached by Gord Pechie Sr.

$60,000 shootout

Jim MacMillan will be rolling his way to Hamilton on May 29 in hopes of potting a first place prize of $25,000.

He is taking part in the fourth annual $60,000 Shootout (total prize giveaway totals $60,0000), formerly known as the Pan Am Tournament.

Last year, Garry Brownlee represented Ingleside at the shootout, where he placed sixth and pocketed a $200 cash prize.

MacMillan placed first in the qualifying round, beating Ron Moore by just nine points.

In single games he rolled 222, 290 and 251. His pins over average is +139, and he has a 208 average.

House Champions

On May 2nd, the House Championship will be taking place.

League champions throughout the house will be competing for the coveted House Cup.

Last year's winners, Beaver's Dental, are ready to face off against some of the top bowlers in the area for the right to keep the cup in their den.

Banquets

The youth bowlers will be celebrating summer (the end of bowling) with an awards presentation and dinner at the Rothwell-Osnabruck School on May 16th at 1 p.m.

Beavers Dental league will be having their banquet on April 16 at the Treasure Island in Ingleside, and on April 24, Wednesday Night Mixed will be wrapping up the season with their banquet.

April 30th marks the Seniors banquet, and on May 1st is the Osnabruck's League closing as is the Morrisburg Legion's.

The Friday Night League is celebrating the season's end on May 7th, and the Sportsmanship League is having their banquet the following night.

On May 12, the Wednesday Afternoon Ladies League is wrapping up.

Busy off-season

Garry Henderson and his wife Brenda Henderson-Brownlee, owners of Ingleside Bowling Lanes, are busy making plans for the off season. A few changes are in the works for the summer, as well as the winter program. Day photo

Youth bowlers strike it rich in YBC playoff action after rd. 1

INGLESIDE—Playoffs have started for the young bowlers of the YBC program at the Ingleside Bowling Lanes, and leading the pack of Bantam bowlers is Eric Wemerman with a 214 single and a 529 triple.

For the girls, it's Megan McIntyre with the high single as she rolled a 193, and Jessica Lyons with a 479 triple.

The top bowler for the Pee Wee division is Leighton Woods who tossed a 151 single, while Farran Baker rolled a 103 for the Pee Wee girls.

The pins over average leaders after week one in the Pee Wee category are Leighton Woods with +92, Natalie Page with +52, Ryan Kingma with +42 and Karen Jones with +40.

In the Bantam division, Jessica Lyons leads the pack with +113, followed by Megan McIntyre with +95, Rebecca Lyons with +92 and Jason Brownlee with +76.

In the second shift of Bantam bowlers, Chad Markell led the boys with a 175 single and a 450 triple.

Carla Cummings had the girls top spots occupied with a 180 single and a 497 triple.

The standing's leaders so far are Chad Markell with +102, Phillip Lewis with +99, Jason Sullivan with +87 and Shaun Jones with +76.

In the Junior and Senior divisions, Jeffrey Julien rolled a 243 single, while Scott Barkley had a 633 triple.

Nickel Carnival raises funds for Christian textbooks

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

WILLIAMSBURG—Timothy Christian School held a unique fund-raiser last Thursday to support the use of Christian textbooks in the classroom.

Children collected their nickels together to spend at a "A Nickel Carnival," to play games at a nickel a shot.

According to TCS Principal Gary Postma, the event was a success. "We didn't make a ton of money, about $75. But everyone had a good time."

A fund-raiser the preceding Friday was quite successful, with Grades 7 and 8 collecting about $300 through a pancake lunch. Grades 5 and 6 collected $110 through a bake sale.

Last week was Christian Education Week throughout the province, and TCS held activities to spotlight the celebration.

"It's to show why we have Christian Education. Throughout the week, there's been an emphasis on Christian textbooks," Postma said.

There are Christian texts for subjects across the curriculum, including writing, literature, and science etc. not just religion, Postma stressed.

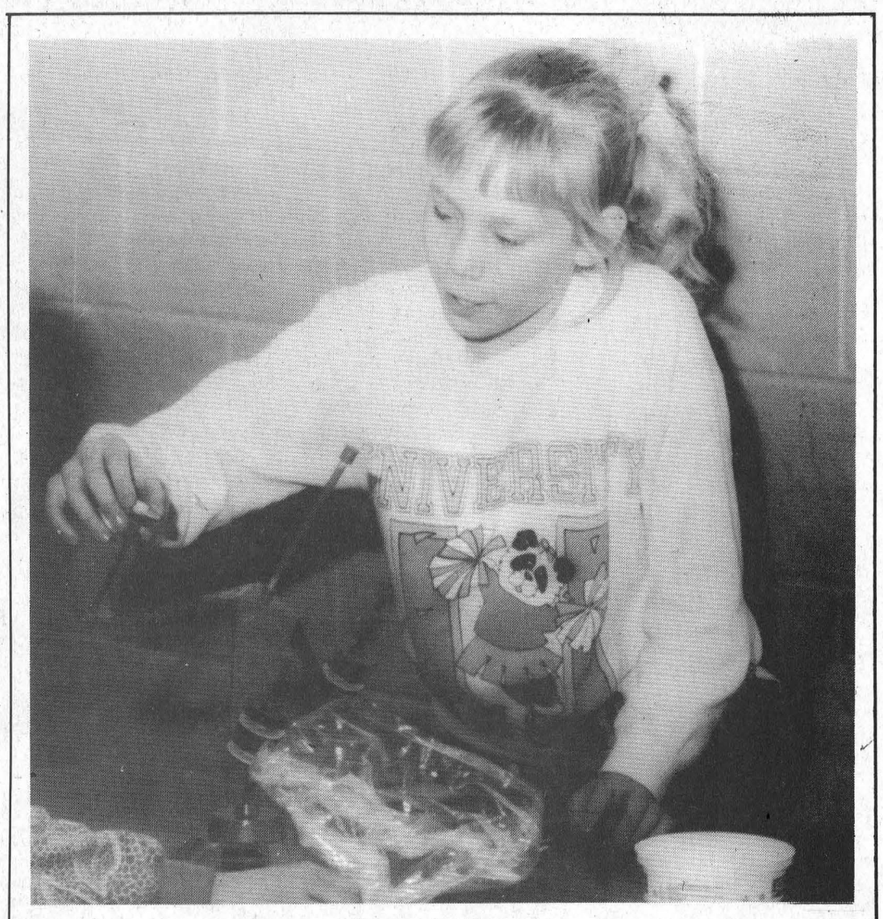

Preferred texts are printed by the Canadian Christian Education Foundation.

Money raised from this event will be pooled together with funds from some of the other Ontario schools towards a Basal Reader Series.

Timothy Christian School is in District 10 of an alliance of Christian schools throughout Canada and the United States called "Christian Schools International."

There are 12 districts across North America, and approximately 76 Christian schools in Ontario. The chapter here is called "Ontario Alliance of Christian Schools."

Timothy Christian School has no government funding, and is supported entirely by parental tuition and fundraisers.

Concentration...
"Topsy Turvy Tower" was a game demanding a lot of attention at Timothy Christian School's Nickel Carnival last Thursday. Laura Don is giving it her best.

Colts lose two veterans players

CORNWALL—The Cornwall Colts will lose to veteran players next season due to overage.

Jeff Guay, a defenceman from Lewiston, Main and Jason Nicholson, a goaltender from Oakville Ontario, will both be greatly missed.

Jeff, who played last season for the USJHL Champion Des Moines Buccaneers, is considering playing in the East Coast League or the Colonial League.

Jason, who came to the Colts from the Smiths Falls Bears, is looking at playing at Kent St. or the Rochester Institute of Technology next season.

Jason did a tremendous job while Brian Audette was injured early in the season.

He didn't get many starts, but he made the most of the playing time he received.

The Colts benefitted greatly from two first-class 20-year-old players.

Cornwall will also lose one player who will carry on his career playing Division 1 U.S. College Hockey next season.

Brian Audette, the Colts' all-star goalie, will attend Brown University.

All Colts' fans wish Brian all the best between the pipes for the Brown Bulldogs.

Fans can look forward to seeing Brian play when he visits Clarkson University next winter.

Party time
On April 3rd, the Colts' Booster Club threw a year-end party for the players at the Civic Complex.

Each player was presented with a scrapbook of the 1992-93 season.

Greg Esdale took home the first Annual Booster Club Award for playing ability and academic excellence.

Stevie Wonder (a.k.a. Mario Vien) also made an in-concert appearance. It was a great way to end a very successful season.

Ticket info
The Colts office downstairs in the Civic Complex is open Monday to Friday from 9-5. The phone number is 613-9309300 and the fax number is 613-930-9497.

Season tickets for the 1993-94 season are now on sale.

The ticket holders can now renew their seats, and the prices will remain the same as last season.

For adults' season tickets the price is $150, for seniors and students, $120, and for children 12 and under the price is $60.

This price includes the blue and white game, all exhibition games and all taxes.

Season tickets can be renewed at the Colt's office on the following days: Monday, April 12th to Friday, April 16th; Monday, April 19th to Friday, April 23rd; Monday, April 26th to Friday April 30th from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day; and on Saturday, April 17th, and Saturday, April 24th from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

On Monday, May 3rd, all unclaimed seats will go on sale to the general public.

Craft sale organizer Kathleen Gordon has a talent for depicting wildlife in pen and ink, and the original subjects are reprinted on cards.

Pancake breakfast, Craft Sale raises $600

MORRISBURG—Saturday's craft fair and fund-raising Pancake breakfast for the Morrisburg and District Preschool Association was a success, says organizer Kathleen Gordon .

Proceeds of the breakfast and craft sale combined came to approximately $600 after expenses. Craft exhibitors contributed $15 a table to display their exhibits, and sponsors assisted with materials for the breakfast.

"The two things together worked out well," said Gordon. "The Pancake breakfast attracted people, and I was happy with the turn-out."

Gordon spoke to several exhibitors afterwards, and said, "They had a good time, and most sold things. There was no negative feedback."

The show featured a whole crop of new crafts people with contributors hailed from as near as Morrisburg and as far as Vaudreuil, Quebec, the home town of woodworker Rae Allinson.

Kathleen Gordon of Morrisburg showed pen and ink originals featuring wildlife with the same subjects reprinted on cards.

Also of Morrisburg were Jayne Hill who showed stencils, Etta Strong who sold weighted-bottom dolls, and Jean Presley with a display of knitting and crochet.

The craft show was a first for Lillian Rivette of Cornwall who showed flower baskets, door and wall hangings.

A display by Guy-Mique Creations, based in Martintown was in keeping with the season, featuring stuffed rabbits, painted Easter eggs, and decorated Kleenex boxes.

Dolores Lebrun and Rosemary Crawford exhibited stuffed animals, teddy bears and mice respectively.

Maple products by the Porters from Williamsburg, and weaving by Susan Seager of Ingleside rounded out the displays.

Playhouse winners

Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — Edmonton Alberta resident Helena Smith was this week's Upper Canada Playhouse weekly calendar winner. As a result she takes home $50.

Other daily winners of $25 were Hilda Shields of Long Sault, Sue Holland-Lalonde of Cornwall, Bonnie Rosenquist of Halton Hills, Janette Baker of Morrisburg, Joan Hofman of Ingleside, and Mart Prost of Williamsburg.

Congratulations to all those who won and watch next week for more winners in The Leader.

Seaway Valley farmers study show ethanol plant sites

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

WINCHESTER—The results of the Seaway Valley Farmers Energy Cooperative $30,000 feasibility study for an ethanol plant were released at a public meeting here Wednesday, showing two preferred sites along the St. Lawrence River.

Of 27 sites initially considered, the vacant site of Courtaulds Fibres Canada complex in Cornwall and Nitrochem Inc. in Maitland are on the short list, and the final selection of a site should be made by June at the latest.

The Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food favors the development of fuel ethanol industry in rural Ontario. However, for the industry to develop and attract government funding, a proposal must have the support of local community leaders, groups and organizations.

The Seaway Valley Farmers Energy Cooperative received funding from the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food to conduct the feasibility study.

At the meeting, farmers were being encouraged to invest $2500 each towards additional studies and preliminary plans. A full scale plant is estimated at $44,000,000 which would be both equity and debt financed.

For over a year, the Seaway Valley Farmers Energy Cooperative have reviewed ethanol technologies, favoring the Parteq Extractive Fermentation process invented by Queen's University. The process reduces steam and water requirements compared to conventional processes, and reduces capital costs for building a full scale plant.

The process is in a pilot stage in Kingston, Ontario: however, a demonstration plant needs to be built to prove the technology. Studies show that a 50,000,000 liter per year conventional plant could be feasible provided low cost steam, and markets are available for the ethanol and by-product of distillers grain are available.

Therefore, the cooperative is pursuing the possibility of setting up a 3,000,000 liter per year demonstration plant couple with a 50,000,000 liter per year manufacturing facility.

The fuel ethanol is an alternative fuel which is produced by fermenting agricultural products like corn, wheat and barley.

Ethanol can be mixed with gasoline to produce a clean-running fuel as recommended by some automobile manufacturers. It is described as an environmentally friendly fuel, as there is less pollution from vehicle exhausts than from regular gasoline.

Grain by-products can be fed to animals, and an additional by-product is carbon dioxide.

An ethanol plant would benefit area grain farmers who have suffered from low grain prices over recent years by providing new, alternative markets for their grain.

In fact, the cooperative has received letters of intent to purchase from MacEwan Petroleum Inc for the ethanol, from Shur-gain and Miracle Foods of Canada Ltd for the distillers grains, and from Airco Gases for the carbon dioxide.

A full-scale plant could manufacture 50,000,000 liters of ethanol, and 55,500 tonnes of dry degerminated grain including germ and fibre, and 32,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide.

The plant would use 142,720 tonnes of corn annually, representing 26 per cent of production within 100-kilometer radius, including seven Eastern Ontario and two Western Quebec counties.

By-products could feed 86,500 dairy cows, heifers and beef based on a 20 per cent ration of 3.5 pounds per head per day.

The plant's annual revenue is estimated at $30,071,000, and the industry would employ a staff of 56.

IF LANDFILLS ARE THE QUESTION, WHAT'S THE ANSWER? IN SD&G – THE ANSWER IS WASTE REDUCTION!

The SD&G Waste Management Master Plan invites SD&G residents to attend Open House Information nights April 19, 20, 21, 1993 from 7 to 9 p.m. to learn about proposals to reduce waste going to landfills in SD&G. An open house is scheduled in each of the Three United Counties.

The SD&G Waste Management Master Plan is a long-term, shared, co-operative strategy to manage our waste in an environmentally sound, economically efficient way. Participating municipalities are: Cornwall Twp., Roxborough Twp., Finch Twp., Osnabruck Twp., Village of Finch, Williamsburg Twp., Winchester Twp., Mountain Twp., Matilda Twp., Village of Morrisburg, Village of Iroquois, Village of Winchester, Village of Chesterville, Charlottenburgh Twp., Lancaster Twp., Lochiel Twp., Kenyon Twp., Town of Alexandria, Village of Lancaster, Village of Maxville.

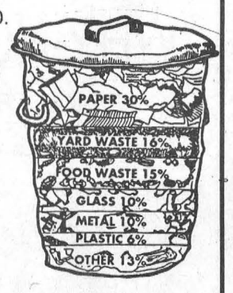

After hearing what the public had to say they thought was important about choosing a waste diversion system, the Master Plan is now presenting some consultants' proposals for comments from SD&G residents before any decisions are taken.

This Master Plan is funded by the Ministry of Environment and Energy and the United Counties of SD&G. Come and tell us how you think our tax dollars should be used to protect and preserve our environment. In keeping with SD&G residents' input and Ontario's waste reduction goals, the target for waste diversion is a 50% reduction in waste going to landfill by the year 2000.

Here are some of the ideas for our 22,260 households beginning in 1995. Costs are given WITHOUT grants:

1. Municipal Waste Reduction Program to actively promote individual and community-based waste reduction initiatives. Est. cost, in 1995, $3–$4 per household.
2. Exchange facilities at landfill sites or elsewhere to allow for the reuse and/or exchange of items that might otherwise end up in a landfill. Est. cost, in 1995, included in item #1 estimate.
3. Aggressive County-wide promotion and support of home composting. (Some municipalities may wish to provide limited leaf and yard waste collection followed by the outdoor composting of the collected materials.) Est. cost, in 1995, $4–$5 per household.
4. The collection of source-separated dry recyclable materials at curbside, in both urban and rural areas. Est. cost, in 1995, $50–$60 per household.
5. The processing and marketing of the collected dry materials at EXISTING facilities, including the RARE plant in Alexandria and the Cornwall Recycling Centre. Est. cost in 1995, included in item 4.
6. Periodic County-wide special collections of items such as Christmas trees, leaves and white goods (e.g. discarded stoves and refrigerators). Est. cost, in 1995, $2–$3 per household.
7. Education and promotion of waste reduction, reuse and recycling in the Industrial, Commercial and Institutional sectors. Est. cost, in 1995, less than $1 per household.
8. Institution of economic incentives and regulatory measures including tipping fees and possible material bans at landfill sites.
9. The promotion of the use of environmentally friendly alternatives to household hazardous wastes (HHW). Est. cost in 1995 included in Item 1.
10. The establishment of three permanent HHW depots to receive materials not diverted by environmentally friendly alternatives. Est. cost, in 1995, $2–$3 per household.
11. Industrial, commercial and institutional sector recycling. Est. cost, in 1995, $1–$2 per household.
12. Dry Materials Processing and Marketing of recyclables. Est. cost in 1995, $9–$10 per household.

Diversion System Total Cost in 1995 per household: Est. in order of $80.

Williamsburg must upgrade treatment by 2011

WILLIAMSBURG — A South Nation River Conservation Authority (SNRCA) waste water assimilation study has shown that Williamsburg and other townships will have to upgrade their treatment systems before the year 2011.

The study examined the the South Nation's ability to deal with effluent from municipal and industrial lagoons, and examined the sewage treatment systems of 10 municipalities and two industries (Nestle in Chesterville and Ault foods in Winchester).

It also looked at ways to reduce the effect the effluent has on the water's quality and how to make the best use of the system's ability to deal with waste water. The study is the initial step in the development of a pollution control strategy for a watershed management plan.

On the whole the quality of the water in the river system has improved over the past 12 years but the level of phosphorus exceeded provincial objectives the study indicated.

Run-off from fields and septic systems were identified as the primary sources of phosphorus pollution in the river system. Other sources of pollution included manure spills, grey water, water used for washing out milk houses on dairy farms and soil from eroding river banks.

The study found that under the present conditions when Williamsburg, Winchester, Maxville and Ault Foods discharged their effluent, provincial water quality objectives were exceeded.

Phosphorus is a nutrient that encourages plant growth which in turn depletes oxygen and slows the flow of the river.

Some of the recommendations made were for Williamsburg, Embrun and Moose Creek to upgrade their treatment systems. In addition, Ault Foods and the communities of Williamsburg, Winchester, Maxville, Embrun, and Moose Creek should evaluate the option of matching their discharges to the volume of water in the river system.

"Everybody has a stake in keeping the river as clean as possible," said SNRCA General Manager Dennis O'Grady.

SNRCA water quality specialist Erik Apedaile said the recommendations suggest ways of reducing the effects of effluent on the river system and are not problems that require immediate action.

A more thorough study of a particular municiality's treatment system might find alternative measures, he said.

It was also noted that nothing the study found was of much surprise.

The South Nation River watershed covers an area of approximately 963,000 acres extending from Wendover in the east, north to Ottawa-Carleton, south to Hwy. 401 and west to Brockville. The river flows north-east through Spencerville, Chesterville, Crysler, St. Albert, Casselman and Plantagenet before emptying into the Ottawa River.

VILLAGE OF MORRISBURG

PUBLIC MEETING

CONCERNING A PROPOSED ZONING BY-LAW AMENDMENT

TAKE NOTICE that the Council of the Corporation of the Village of Morrisburg will hold a public meeting on April 29, 1993, at 7:30 p.m. at the Village Municipal Building to consider a proposed zoning by-law amendment under Section 34 of The Planning Act.

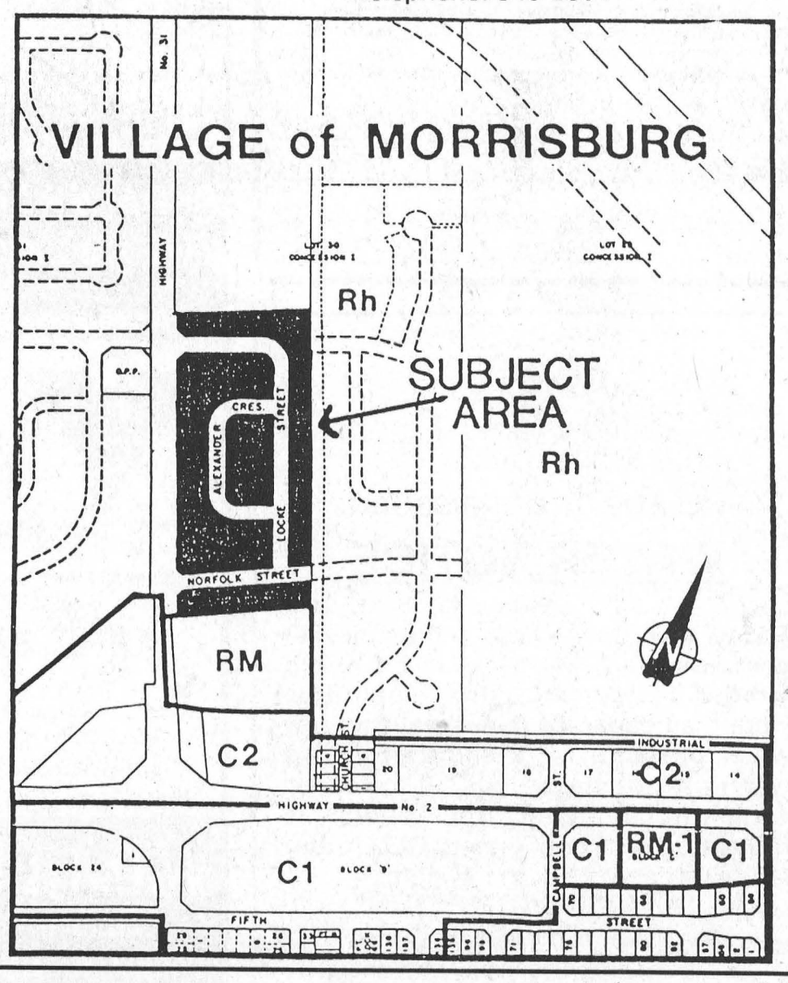

The proposed zoning by-law amendment is intended to rezone approximately 6.8 hectares (16.8 acres) of land situated in Plan 74, Village of Morrisburg, (as shown below), from "First Density Residential Special Exception (R1-1), (R1-2) and (R1-3)" to "Residential Special Exception Zone (RS)", "Residential Special Exception Zone – One (RS-1)", "Residential Special Exception Zone – Two (RS-2)" and "Residential Special Exception Zone – Three (RS-3)". The amendment would tailor special zones to allow semi-detached dwellings to be erected on the south and east peripheries of the subdivision (known as the Locke subdivision), and recognizes lot frontages and lot areas on the Plan of Subdivision which was approved a number of years ago.

ANY PERSON may attend the public meeting and/or make written or verbal representation either in support of or in opposition to the proposed zoning by-law amendment.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION relating to the proposed amendment is available for inspection at my office during regular office hours.

DATED at the Village of Morrisburg this 13th day of April, 1993.

OBITUARIES

Nellie Garlough

A native of Chesterville, Ontario, and long-time resident of Williamsburg, Mrs. Donald Garlough Sr. died at her home there on Monday, April 5th, following an illness of nine years.

Born on August 20th, 1927, Nellie James, she was the daughter of the late William James and his wife the former Effie Harper. She attended area schools and was married at Prescott in August 1946 to Donald Garlough Sr., who survives.

Also surviving are two daughters and three sons: Donna (Mrs. Leonard Stewart) of Winchester, Linda (Mrs. Gary Stewart) of Chesterville, Donald Jr. and his wife Cindy of Cardinal, Charles and his wife Kathy of Frankford, Archie and his wife Cathy of Williamsburg. Others are six sisters and one brother: Violet Brown of Morrisburg, Hilda (Mrs. Jack McKercher) of Cornwall, Kenneth James of Morrisburg, Mrs. Mable Hodge of Prescott, Mrs. Myrtle Flegg of Lunenburg, Mrs. Gladys Barkley of Williamsburg and Freida (Mrs. Rolly Leroux) of Iroquois. There are 15 grandchildren and one great-granddaughter.

Funeral service was held at St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Williamsburg (of which she was a member) on Thursday, April 8th, at 11 a.m., with Rev. Ross Thomson officiating. Interment was at Maple Ridge Cemetery.

Pallbearers were: David Stewart, Richard Stewart, Billy Garlough, Terry Stewart, Robin Stewart, James Garlough.

John W. Countryman

A retired farmer, and resident of 16 Maple Street, Ingleside for the past four years, John Wilburn Countryman died at his home on Saturday, April 3rd, 1993, following a lengthy illness. He was 64 years of age.

Mr. Countryman was born at R.R. 1 Chesterville, Ontario, a son of the late George Clarence Countryman and his wife the former Catherine (Katie) Carr and lived there before moving to Ingleside. He attended Bush Glen Public School and the Morrisburg Collegiate Institute. He was a member and elder of Ingleside Trinity United Church, and a member of Farran-Ault Lodge 256 Ingleside A.F.&A. M.

He is survived by two sisters: Mrs. Russell Woodbeck (Mary) of Owen Sound, Ontario and Mrs. James Jordan (Elinor) of R.R. 1 Morrisburg; also by three nieces, three nephews, and four great-nieces.

Funeral service was held on Tuesday, April 6th at 2 p.m., with Rev. Bob Biggar officiating. The body was placed in the Finch vault to await burial later in the spring at Pleasant Valley Cemetery.

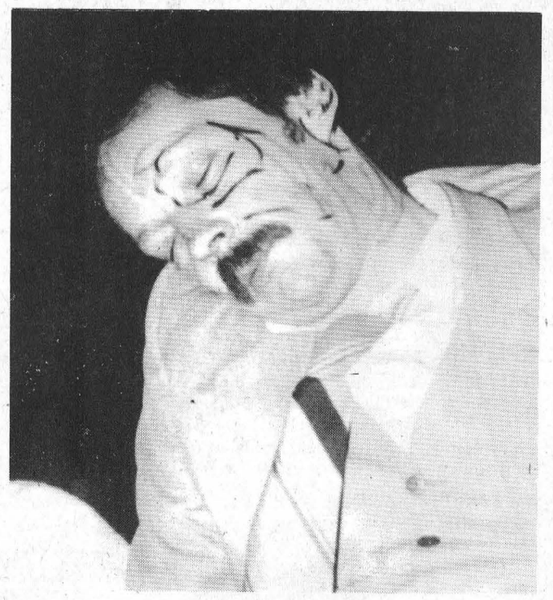

Pallbearers were Stewart Hart, Joe Jackson, Garth Grant, Garnet Ezard, Morris Shaver and John Gallinger.

SD&G Public School budget delayed

CORNWALL—It will be some time yet before SD & G public school supporters will know what, if any, tax increases are in store.

Last Wednesday, the Finance and Facilities Committee of the SD & G Public Board received the Preliminary Budget Submission for Trustees for information.

At $116,237, the projected trustees budget for 1992 exceeded the actual budget of $94,300. At $108,700 the proposed trustee budget for 1993 shows a reduction of 6.6 per cent over last year's actual budget.

However, the Schools Budgets was sent back to the administration, to be resubmitted at a later meeting.

The Finance and Facilities Committee also received a report on Market Value Assessment. Since the United Counties reviewed their options concerning assessment, voted against reassessment, data needed to finalize the Board's 1993 budget will not be available until early May.

The Regional Office of the Ministry of Education has been notified, and a request placed for extension of submission.

Historical Society head to address U.E.L.

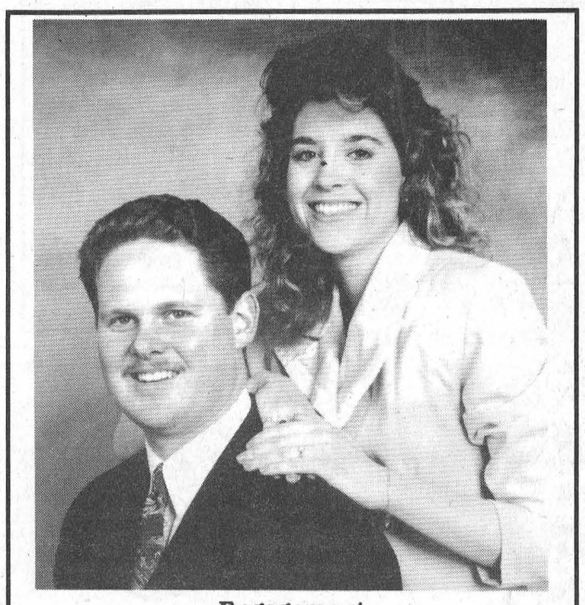

The President of The Ontario Historical Society, Mr. Dennis Carter-Edwards of Cornwall, will address the St. Lawrence Branch of The United Empire Loyalist Association on Sunday afternoon, April 25th, 1993 at 2 p.m., at the Martintown Recreation Centre.

Mr. Edwards is a Research Historian with Parks Canada. He will speak on his experience as President of The Ontario Historical Association, and the many issues that will be of interest to all members concerned with the heritage of our Province. Since most historical societies and genealogical organizations in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry belong to The Ontario Historical Society, members are most cordially invited to attend this spring meeting of The St. Lawrence U.E.L. Branch.

There will be a question and answer period and light refreshments afterwards.

The Branches Church Service and in-door picnic will be held Sunday, June 6th at The Iroquois United Church, followed by Genealogy Day at The Morrisburg Civic Centre on August 14th. The Annual Charter Night Banquet will be held September 18th in Cornwall at The Masonic Temple on Second Street.

CNIB technibus features rehabilitation services for blind

TORONTO—The Canadian National Institute for the Blind's travelling technology exhibit is going on its cross-Canada tour and is coming to Dundas County on Tuesday, April 20, 1993.

The bus, outfitted with the latest in high and low technology will be in the parking lot of the Bank of Nova Scotia, 5 Main St. in Chesterville, and will be open to the public from 10.00 a.m. until 4.00 p.m.

Visitors will be given an opportunity to learn about the technology that can enhance a blind, visually impaired or deaf-blind's independence at home, at school or at work.

They can listen to talking computers and clocks, see how a machine can read a book out loud, and marvel at specially adapted household devices from kitchen knives to self-threading needles.

People of all ages are invited to tour the bus which is also accessible to wheelchair users. In addition, bus visitors will receive mementoes of the 75th Anniversary.

The TECHNIBUS will be launched on March 30th as part of the CNIB's 75th anniversary celebrations, and is travelling to 175 Canadian communities from coast to coast. Its goal is to raise public awareness that, since its beginnings in 1918, the CNIB has been on the leading edge of rehabilitation services for blind, deaf-blind and visually impaired people.

Its theme for 1993, "Pathways to Independence" is an indication of the CNIB's commitment to helping people lead more independent lives.

This project is an example of a partnership with Transport Canada under the Federal National Strategy for the Integration of Persons with Disabilities.

Anyone wishing more information can call their local CNIB Center in Cornwall at 936-2300 or Barb Bradford at 543-3682. If you are visually impaired and would like a ride on Tuesday, April 20, give Barb a call at 543-3682.
