It Would Be His Wish -

That after his passing, we would write no elaborate account of his death.

Accordingly we say simply that Edward Leonidas Laurin, aged 56, editor of the Morrisburg Leader for nearly 25 years, passed peacefully away at the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Cornwall, on Tuesday, December 13th, 1938.

The funeral was held from his late residence to St. Mary's R. C. Church, Morrisburg, thence to St. Finnan's Cathedral, Alexandria. Burial took place in the family plot in St. Finnan's Cemetery, Alexandria.

Our Appreciation

The family of the late Leo Laurin gratefully acknowledges and deeply appreciates the many expressions of sympathy, floral tributes, spiritual offerings, and other acts of kindness bestowed upon them in their recent bereavement.

Our particular thanks to Rev. Fr. Alex McDonald, Williamstown; Rev. Fr. Ewen McDonald, Alexandria, and other clergy for spiritual comfort, and the Sisters and staff of Hotel Dieu Hospital, Cornwall.

Special to Morrisburg Leader by INTERCITY NEWS SERVICE

New York, Dec. 16 (ICN)—Leaders in the fields of journalism, advertising, education, politics and Canadian-American affairs joined here today in paying tribute to the civic-spirited career of the late Edward Leonidas Laurin, publisher of the Morrisburg (Ont.) Leader, upon learning of his death on Tuesday. All praised him as an active newspaperman and steadfast civic leader and "good neighbor."

Among the first to extend his sympathy was Douglas S. Cole, Canadian Trade Commissioner to the United States in New York who said, "It was with deep regret that I read of the death of Mr. Laurin. Canadian journalism has suffered a great loss. My sincere sympathy to his family, friends and business associates."

F.W. Flack, Secretary of the Canadian Club of New York said, "Mr. Laurin's work will be long remembered by the community he served so faithfully as counselor and friend. We are deeply sorry to learn of his passing."

From the Canadian Society of New York whose famous Maple Leaf dinners annually bring together outstanding figures in Canadian-American affairs came an expression of sympathy by Hector Q. Jackson, Chatham-born president of the organization. Mr. Jackson said, "We wish to extend our condolence to the many friends of Mr. Laurin and to his associates. The usefulness of a newspaper is by no means dependent upon a large circulation but the success of a community journal does depend in large measure on the character and integrity of its editor and publisher. Mr. Laurin's veteran Ontario journal ably fulfilled its responsibilities."

For the many Canadian women now living as "expatriates" in New York, Miss Joan de Nault, noted concert singer, trustee and former president of the Canadian Women's Club of New York, said, "We are distressed to hear of the passing of Mr. Laurin. His lively newspaper helped to contribute a spirit of service and international good will to Canadian-American affairs. He will be missed not only by his personal friends but also by those here and across the border who knew him by reputation."

Mr. Don Robinson, editor of the American Press, international publisher's monthly organ, said, "Mr. Laurin's newspaper reflected utmost credit upon Morrisburg as well as the province of Ontario. At a time when Canadian-American affairs enter a new era of good feeling, it is particularly regrettable that his useful career in independent journalism has been so abruptly cut off."

James W. Gerard, America's wartime ambassador to Germany and lately special White-house emissary to the British coronation ceremonies, said, "The passing of Mr. Laurin will be regretted by Canadians and Americans alike. Extend my sincere condolence."

From Lowell Thomas, noted globe-trotter, news commentator and president of the New York Advertising Club, came "It is always sad news to hear of the passing of a newspaper publisher, whose daily work so closely affects the lives and destinies of those in the community he serves. We in New York are prone to think of journalism in all its metropolitan phases but the history of newspapers shows that it is through the efforts of newspapers throughout the continent such as The Morrisburg Leader that our great democracies live and survive."

Earle Pearson, secretary of The Advertising Federation of America stated, "Our sympathy to the family friends and associates of Mr. Leo Laurin, beside whose newspaper the communal progress of Morrisburg has marched steadfastly forward."

Grover Whalen, president of New York Worlds Fair, 1939, Inc, said "In faithfully recording the affairs of the community and nation, Mr. Laurin has given enlightenment and leadership. We are sorry to hear of his death."

Henry Bailey Rathbone, chairman of the Department of Journalism at New York University stated, "Weekly newspapers on both sides of the border play a very potent part in community affairs and Mr. Laurin's death will leave behind a tradition which I am sure that his followers will honor and respect."

Norman Tyler Sobel, founder of the Society for the Preservation of American Principles and chaiman of the New York Committee for Public Adult Education, said, "In stimulating civic loyalty and sustaining the community spirit, the weekly newspaper is indeed the tie that binds. As the voice of the people of Morrisburg, Ont., Mr. Laurin will be sorely missed by his associates and friends."

Mr. William Griffin, publisher of the New York Enquirer, and President Rdosevelt's appointee to the Polish-American arbitration board said, "The saga of the weekly newspaper, from which our great press has sprung, shows that the community editor has always been, is and always will be a moving force in national and even international affairs. Dealing in simple truths, independent, fearless, such newspapermen live and die in the high tradition of their profession. While I did not personally know Mr. Laurin, the long record of his publication with which he was associated for over a quarter of a century demonstrates the regard with which he was held by his 'neighbors' throughout the province."

POWDER . . .

By REX BEACH

Synopsis

Ben Furlong, a young but practical oil man and driller from the Pennsylvania field, drifted into the Texas oil country, broke and looking for work. Finally he fetched up at the Durham home where live an elderly aunt, shortly widowed by the explosion of a powder wagon, and her niece, pretty Betty Durham. . . . Perhaps because of his smile, Betty cooks some food for Ben and while he eats he learns the aunt, in town on business, has an oil man, Tiller Maddox, sinking an oil well for her. . . . A short 6 inch bolt worked loose from the rigging and is in the bottom of the well. Work has been suspended for days as the crew "fish" for the bolt and operating funds dwindle away. . . . Furlong offers to give a hand but Maddox objects . . . . Betty insists and overrules Maddox so Furlong fashions a tool which he has just lowered into the well, hoping to fish out the bolt. . . . Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER III

Furlong himself handled the rig during this operation, and even Maddox could find no fault with the way he did it. When, after what seemed an interminable time, the wire cable began to stream up out of the depths and wind itself in smooth, black layers upon the drum, the two women pressed in upon the derrick floor.

Out of the well-mouth finally slid the fishing tool; it stopped, hung motionless with the lower end at the level of their eyes. The teeth had been bent inward, jammed together by the blows from above; inside the basket thus formed and tightly bitten between two of those prongs was a battered six-inch piece of steel.

When Furlong had finished washing up he found Betty Durham waiting for him.

"Come over to the house," she said. "You must be tired."

"I told you I was lucky," the young man declared, with a grin.

"Lucky, nothing. You've got sense."

"Simple, wasn't? I wonder Maddox never thought of it."

Greed

Betty stirred; impatiently she exclaimed: "Oh, he's too busy thinking about something—! Say! We've got an extra room, but Aunt Mary says it wouldn't look right for you to sleep there. Don't that make you sick?"

"How about the barn?"

"That's what she proposed. Come on. We'll fix it somehow."

It was dark; the trail through the cactus and the mesquite was dim, but Betty knew it by heart, and where its meanderings were undistinguishable she took Furlong's hand and guided him.

"I suppose you think Aunt Mary's crazy, risking all her money like this," she said.

"I sure do," the man admitted. "This thing will show you the chances she's taking. Suppose that bolt had been something else, something we couldn't get hold of? There's a thousand things can happen to a well."

"I know. But she's—greedy. She always was. Tiller talked her into it after Uncle Joe died, and she wouldn't listen to me."

"It's a lot safer to let the big companies do the drilling, and be satisfied with a royalty."

"Some people can't be satisfied," the girl said, quietly. Then after a moment. "Uncle Joe never intended to leave the whole farm to her. They didn't hitch very well. He said he was going to leave part of it to me, but—I guess he never got around to it. I'll bet Aunt Mary's sorry by this time that she listened to Tiller; there's so many things a driller can do to a well."

"Pshaw! Is he that kind of a man?"

"What kind of a man? Men are all alike, aren't they—when they've got reason to be?"

"She better fire him."

"I guess she can't, or dassent . . . Funny my talking this way to you and not knowing you only a few hours. I'd better mind my own business. Here we are. You wait while I get a light."

They had arrived at the house, and the girl left her companion outside. She reappeared in a few minutes with a lantern and a couple of patchwork comforters. These latter she surrendered to Ben, then led the way to the barn.

A Strange Feeling

Like most farms in the oil country, this one had been allowed to run down, and with the exception of some chickens and a few dispirited cattle there was no live stock left upon it. There still remained, however, some old fodder; it was dusty and musty, but suitable enough for a bed, and Furlong announced that he was delighted with these sleeping arrangements. He set the lantern down and walked to the door with Betty. There he said:

"You've been mighty nice to me. I wish that fishing job had been harder."

"Why?"

"It would have taken longer."

The girl's face was dimly illuminated as she smiled up at Furlong. She was the prettiest girl he had ever known and he felt a great liking, a great sympathy for her. The clasp of her warm hand as she had guided him along the dark trail had affected him in an unaccountable manner, and now it affected him again in the same way when she laid it in his. A sudden recklessness overwhelmed him and before he knew what he was doing he had bent forward and kissed her.

The girl was startled, but she did not recoil. Curiously she inquired: "Why did you do that?"

"I don't know. I—I couldn't help it, I guess. I didn't intend to, but—" Ben floundered; he felt his face burning hotly.

"Tiller tried that and I slapped him. I've known him a long time, too,—!" Miss Durham shook her head, apparently more perplexed at her own lack of resentment than surprised at Furlong's boldness. "I must like you pretty well."

"I wish you would—did. I—think you're wonderful."

"Queer!" Betty turned to go. A moment later she called back through the gloom, "I'll call you when breakfast is ready."

Furlong was not altogether surprised when, on the following morning, Tiller Maddox offered him a job. Maddox, it was plain, was acting upon orders, and he took no pains to conceal his dislike for the new hand; nevertheless, Ben accepted the proffer. Aside from the fact that he needed work, his interest in Betty Durham was now sufficient to make almost any sacrifice worth while.

In the days thereafter he tried to fathom the peculiar relationship existing between Maddox and the two women, but he did not succeed very well. The driller, it was evident, had his heart set upon Betty, and in his attempt to win her Mrs. Durham was his ally; nevertheless, for some unknown reason the aunt disliked and distrusted the man. About all that Ben could make sure of was the fact that in some manner not readily apparent the oil well was being used by Maddox as a weapon; that somehow it had become the stake in a three-cornered game.

Perfumes Have Lowly Origins

Glamorous Scents Ensnared By Humble Animal Substances

When a civet cat gets frightened or a whale becomes ill, it's good news to the perfume industry.

For, according to William D. V. Jequier, director of Parfums Weil, one of the largest perfumery houses in the world, secretions from lowly animals are the "fixatives" or bases of all glamorous scents.

Beginning with one of the "fixatives," a chemist who works with his nose more than with a pencil and paper adds, among other things, synthetic as well as pure flower odors. If all goes well, he gets a perfume which is "round" — the term with which perfumers describe a perfect perfume.

Synthetic and Real

From Holland, Switzerland and Germany come the majority of the synthetics—as important in a good perfume as the pure flower extracts. But in the fields surrounding Grasse on the Riviera grow almost all of the world's supply of flowers for pure odors. Experienced women stick the fresh blooms into cakes of hard pig and cow grease, leave them there until the grease has absorbed all of the odor. Each strongly scented cake is then washed in alcohol. The alcohol in turn absorbs the odor.

Freezing Process

Lavender is the only blossom not treated in this fashion. It's put in huge vats, literally tramped on until the oil is pressed out.

Next to the last step in the making of perfume is the freezing process. At about 18 degrees below zero alcohol gives back what it has absorbed. What it returns is filtered for clarity. Into large storage tanks goes the perfume, to remain there for several months, after which it is bottled, packed, shipped —"round" and perfect.

FISH In the Diet

During the Lenten season it is the custom in many homes to serve fish at least twice a week. Such adherence to the spirit of the season need not mean a privation however. Fish can be a very delicious change in the diet and there are many ways of serving it. Now is the time to try new variations of your old fish dishes and some new ones which we are giving here.

We have given the recipe for Cass erole of Salmon in these columns before but many of you may not have saved it so we are including it.

Casserole of Salmon

¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 cup canned salmon, flaked
1 cup celery, diced
1 tablespoon onion, chopped
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon melted butter
6 to 8 unbaked baking powder biscuits, rolled ¼ inch thick.

Combine ingredients in order given. Turn into greased casserole; bake in hot oven (425 degree F.) 25 minutes, stirring mixture twice during first 10 minutes of baking. Place biscuits on top of salmon mixture after it has baked 10 minutes; return to oven, bake 12 to 15 minutes longer to bake biscuits. Serves 4.

Wash finnan haddie, soak in cold water 1 hour. Drain, cover with boiling water, and cook slowly until tender. Drain; separate into large flakes to measure 1½ cups. Prepare sauce by melting butter in top of double boiler. Add flour and stir to a smooth paste. Add cream and seasonings and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Pour small amount of sauce over egg yolks, stirring vigorously. Return to double boiler, place over hot water and cook 1 minute longer. Add finnan haddie to sauce. Serve on toast; garnish with parsley. Serves 6.

½ teaspoon salt
1 cup fine soft bread crumbs
Dash of salt
Dash of pepper

Remove fish from milk. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper and cover with 1-3 of crumbs, patting them into fish. Place crumb-side down in well-greased shallow baking pan. Cover evently with remaining crumbs, sprinkle with paprika, and bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 15 minutes, or until crumbs are brown and fish is cooked. Serves 4.

3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
Dash of Cayenne
2 cups cooked whitefish, flaked
2 tablespoons melted butter

Pimento Sauce

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of white pepper
½ cup pimiento, forced through sieve.

Melt butter in saucepan. Add flour and stir to a smooth paste. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly, and continue cooking and stirring until thickened. Season with salt and pepper. Add pimiento. Makes 1¼ cups sauce.

LESSON XI.
FEEDING THE HUNGRY—
Mark 6:30-44.

Golden Text — Give ye them to eat. Mark 6:37.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time.—April, A.D. 29.

Place.—Bethsaida, on the shore of Galilee.

30. And the apostles gather themselves together unto Jesus. The first mission in which these apostles participated is recorded in a preceding part of this same chapter of Mark, which we have studied in an earlier lesson (vs. 7-13). This is the only place in his entire Gospel where Mark refers to the disciples of Jesus as "apostles." "The title fits well in this connection, for the Twelve are now returning from their first preaching tour. And they told him all things, whatsoever they hod done, and whatsoever they had taught. We have a similar phrase about telling Jesus all things, though under entirely different circumstances, in a preceding passage in this same Gospel (5:33). It is utter foolishness, when we begin to talk to the Lord, to keep back anything from him, for he knows all things. They went over with him the things they had said. They told all to the Lord from whom they had received their message, from they had derived their power, to whom alone they were responsible.

A Time For Rest

31. And he saith unto them, Come ye ourselves apart into a desert place, and rests a while. The words translated "desert place" means simply an uninhabited, a lonely place, a place where he and his disciples could abide for a time without being disturbed. For there were many coming and going, and they had no leisure so much as to eat.

32. And they went away in the boat to a desert place apart. The place, no doubt, was near Bethsaida (Luke 9:10). This was a rest which the disciples had very richly earned. They had flung themselves heart and soul into their work, and now they were thoroughly ready for vacation. The rest to which they were invited was a rest of mutual intercourse. He would not go then to the rest of solitude, but to that of sweet and happy fellowship. "Come ye apart, and rest awhile."

The Five Thousand

33. And the people saw them going, and many knew them, and they ran together there on foot from all the cities, and outwent them. This was the time of the passover, and the roads naturally were full of people. A great multitude hurried around the north side of the lake, crossing the Jordan River, to find the Lord. The prefix in the verb "ran" means that they all ran together in a body. The crowd grew as they passed one town after another on the populous shore.

34. And he came forth and saw a great multitude, and he had compassion on them. The English word "compassion" means "to suffer with". It means pity towards those who are in trouble, who are suffering, who are unfortunate, who are in need. Because they were as sheep not having a shepherd. See also Matt. 9:36. Sheep are, in themselves, helpless creatures; they cannot defend themselves against ravenous beasts that prowl about; they do not seem to have sense enough to find pasture and water themselves. It is the shepherd who guides them, who protects them, who delivers them. Our Lord saw all these people as without any true spiritual guide. Somehow man never finds his way back to God himself, as every heathen religion proves, even the noblest and greatest of them. The Lord Jesus came as the Shepherd of the sheep, to lead them to God, to feed them with bread which cometh down from heaven, to deliver them from their sins, to protect them from the evil one.

Work Of Teaching

[illegible] he began to teach them many things. At once the Lord Jesus begins his shepherding work by instructing these people to whom his heart was so powerfully drawn. They could not be brought back to God as Jesus Christ alone could reveal him. They would not be repentent of their sins

35. And when the day was now far spent, his disciples came unto him, and said, The place is desert, and the day is now far spent. 36. Send them away, that they may go into the country and villages round about, and buy themselves somewhat to eat. In their haste and eagerness to follow Jesus the multitude had neglected to bring anything with them, and in their absorption in his teaching they had forgotten their ordinary wants. The disciples had their compassion also for the people.

37. But he answered and said unto them, Give ye them to eat. We see how Jesus is trying to lead his disciples to think of his almighty power, and to place their reliance on him, on his wisdom and on his thoughtful care. But with a hint as broad as this command for them to furnish the food, they remain in the dark. And they say unto him, Shall we go and buy two thousand shillings' worth of bread, and give them to eat? The word here translated "shilling" is the word denarius, which was the day's wage of a laborer in Palestine at this time. It would be a sum quite beyond their means, so that the question is meant to imply the absurdity of the whole thing.

38. And he saith unto them, How many loaves have ye? go and see. And when they knew, they say, Five, and two fishes. The loaves were barley cakes, the food of the poor, like a large, flat pancake, with a more or less hard crust. The fish were a mere relish, and probably pickled or cooked.

39. And he commanded them that all should sit down by companies upon the green grass.

Small Loaves and Fishes

40. And they sat down in ranks, by hundreds, and by fifties. This separating of a vast company into small groups arranged in rows was a wise precaution. The vast assemblage was thus subdivided and broken up into manageable portions; there was less danger of tumult and confusion.

41. And he took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, be blessed.

And brake the loaves; and he gave to the disciples to set before them; and the two fishes divided he among them all. Always there were more pieces to break off; the bread grew in Jesus' hands. The bread was given to the disciples to set before the people. They had the task of being the waiters at this miraculous meal.

42. And they all ate, and were filled. Undoubtedly the people were hungry, having eaten nothing all day. When the Lord does something, he never does it scrimpingly, so, when the Lord fed these people, he gave them all that they needed for the complete satisfaction of their hunger. In a higher and loftier way the Lord satisfies us "with the bread of heaven."

43. And they took up broken pieces, twelve basketfuls, and also of the fishes. 44. And they that ate the loaves were five thousand men. According to John's record of this miracle, it was the Lord himself who commanded the disciples to pick up the fragments, that nothing be lost. This which remained over must have immensely exceeded in bulk and quantity the original stock; so that we have here a visible symbol of that love which exhausts not itself by loving, but after all its outgoings upon others, abides itself far richer than it would have done but for these.

Calls Faulty Diet Form Of Suicide

Eminent Doctor Believes Average Man Eats Twice as Much As He Needs

The average man should be able to live to at least 80 years of age, and proper diet should bring about this lengthening of the life span, Dr. Victor G. Heiser, United States public health authority and author, said at Montreal last week.

"We have increased the average life span already," Dr. Heiser told reporters," but we have increased the average only by cutting down infantile and child mortality. We have not increased the actual span of life very much. The man of between 35 and 40 today stands just as much chance of dying as he did 100 years ago."

Experimented With Rats

Next great task of medical science will be to keep man from committing slow suicide as he does at present, said the doctor, adding that he intended to devote the remainder of his life to the study of diet.

Doctor Heiser expanded to reporters on the importance of diet. He told how Sir Robert McCarrison in England fed 1,000 rats a balanced diet for two years and fed a similar number the same kind of food as the people in his English town. He killed the rats and made a post-mortem examination of each. There was no sign of disease or organic disorder in those fed the balanced diet. The others, who had eaten "just what they wanted," had all the diseases to be found in an average hospital.

Your Handwriting Tells The Truth About Your Character!

By LAWRENCE HIBBERT

(Psychologist, Character-Analyst and Lecturer)

(Ed. Note: Intense interest is being shown in our new series of articles, of which this is the third).

AN OPEN LETTER TO A SCOFFER!

When I opened my mail the other morning, a letter drifted out on to my desk. I am answering it in the form of an open letter, because it is. I think, of interest to many of my readers. Here is the letter:

"Dear Sir—At a fair in Atlantic City I got a handwriting analysis. It was so utterly ridiculous that I have no further faith in the idea. . . I enjoy your articles immensely but please don't try to convince me that there is any truth in it. It's too far-fetched!"

I wonder whether my incredulous correspondent would hesitate to consult a doctor, if he were sick, or stigmatise the whole medical fraternity as "humbugs" merely because he had been taken in by a mendacious vendor at a market fair, and had bought a bottle of "colored water" instead of "the elixir of life?"

Or is he like the people of old who scoffed at the idea that any further land lay beyond the horizon?

I am not going to weary my readers with technical reasons to justify the claim that handwriting does reveal character. But it is a concrete fact that the impulse to write comes either from your mind or your heart. In both cases, the directing urge is controlled by the brain, from which flow the thought waves that motivate the hand in writing.

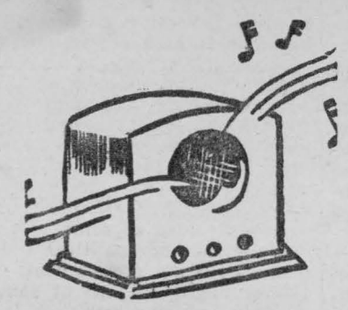

Character-reading from handwriting is no magic wand that, in the nimble hand of a magician, will work miracles. There is no sleight-of-hand about it. It will not produce rabbits out of a hat; nor will it transmute dross into gold.

It cannot, of itself, overcome your weak tendencies, or cultivate the latent talent that you may have. That is for you to accomplish.

What a character-reading will do for you is to reveal the inexorable truth about your innermost characteristics and propensities. It is a signpost that points the road you should take towards the heights of self-accomplishment.

That is exactly what a handwriting analysis does. It not only adds to your knowledge of yourself, but it assays the characters of others, in whom you are interested, at their true worth.

Would YOU like to learn the truth about your character?.. And perhaps you have friends, relatives or a sweetheart whose real character you would like to know? Be frank in stating your problems. Send specimens of the handwriting you wish analysed, and enclose 10c for each specimen (coin or postal note preferred). Enclose with stamped addressed envelope to: Lawrence Hibbert, Room 421, 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto, Ont.

Around The Dial

RADIO HEADLINERS OF THE WEEK

By FRANK DENNIS

The three lads whose group picture heads our business this week are Blaine Mathe, violinist; Bert Pearl, Gangster No. 1, and Bob Farnon, Gangster No. 2. Messrs. Mathe, Pearl and Farnon are the chief members of the Happy Gang, heard over the National Network of the CBC daily at 1.00 p.m.

While we are on the subject of Bert Pearl, we must say a word or two for his work on the Dr. Jackson Show "Airbreaks". Recently this show celebrated its first semi-final in which Eddie Allen, Donald Stubbs, Tony Izzotti, Dorothy Price and May Joyce participated. The mail was so heavy that the winner was not decided upon until an hour before that name had to be announced to radio listeners. At that, Eddie Allen won by exactly one vote. The close second was Donald Stubbs. Eddie sings and plays the accordeon. Several of his relatives play in name bands in England. Donald Stubbs hails from Orillia, and played his harmonica well enough to run a race to a photographic finish. Eddie Allen qualifies for a place in the finals. Each person that appears on this program is paid a regular professional fee—so if you would like an audition just drop a card or letter to Dr. Jackson, CFRB, Toronto. We understand that novelty acts are more than welcome. Airbreaks may be heard on Fridays. CFRB, 8:30 p.m. Bert Pearl, Roy Locksley and his 16-piece band, Maurice Boddington and a new array of talent each week. A fine variety show.

Kiddie Guests

We happened to tune in to the Community Sing Program broadcast Sundays at 9:00 p.m. over CKCL. The program turned out to be Southern Night—and was quite a novelty. So we hopped in to the program supervisor's offices to see "Mo" Rosenfeld, and find out just what's up. We were informed that by the time you receive this paper, the program to be broadcast will be Kindergarten Week.

Kiddie numbers will be sung and the program will feature Kiddie Guests. It seems that listeners will be taken back to the Little Red Schoolhouse where they had "mud on their heels and no shoes on their feet." We were asked to invite all our readers to again visit the "Swimming hole" and get that "Green Apple Stomach-ache". The picture contained herein is that of Vincent Boyd —the schoolmaster in charge of music. Incidentally, Vince plays a piano solo about the middle of the program that's a treat to listen to. Also on the program will be Principal Stan Francis and "Naughty Boy" Maurice Rapkin. Listeners will be happy to learn that this is one schoolhouse they attended where no "exams" were held.

Better Heating

"Banking a fire properly at night is a simple process," says James Stewart, 'blue coal' Heating Expert, "yet it is one which many do not understand, and through improper methods they lost both comfort and fuel." Mr. Stewart, whose talks on home heating are a regular feature on the very popular "Shadow" program over CFRB each Wednesday, is offering free to every householder a copy of the book "First Aid to Better Heating"—a little volume full of practical advice on how to get the utmost value for every dollar spent for fuel. Just send your name and address to 'blue coal', 217 Bay Street, and a copy of this book will be promptly mailed to you.

IS THIS YOUR BIRTHDAY?

By A. R. WEIR

What the Stars Foretell for Those Born on March 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18

If you were born on any of the days mentioned above, marriage is important to you. You need a partner who is strong both physically and mentally otherwise you are inclined to drift. You are generous and good natured and at all times hospitable. There are times, however, when you are gloomy and despondent—as a matter of fact you rather enjoy your personal gloom. Forget it—it only hinders you and keeps you back. About the middle of the year there should be an improvement in your financial position probably through some important news from a long distance. You should also receive some assistance from relatives. Mauve or lavender is your lucky color.

Tons of Gum

The chewing gum trade found 1937 a good year. Exports of jelutong latex—the raw material of chewing gum—from British Malaya to the United States were more than 4,600 tons, valued at nearly $7,500,000.

The Pan-American Conference

Ottawa, Dec. 13th.—Recently the Dominion Prime Minister, Mr. Mackenzie King said that the government would seriously consider the question of whether or not Canada would be represented at the Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru. While Canada is not actually taking part in the present conference, the people and government of the Dominion are taking a deeper interest in this than in previous conferences of the kind. This added interest is due to the atmosphere in which the present conference meets. Fascist and Nazi propaganda has been very active in Latin American countries and this has resulted in a feeling of political insecurity. This vigorous campaign carried on by the totalitarian states seems, to many, a serious blow to the whole idea that the American continent could isolate itself from the rest of the world. It has in a measure brought the problems of Europe to the doorstep of America.

As Canada has a very substantial trade with Latin American countries, the trade driver of the dictator countries is of interest to us. This drive, however, has long been in operation though not in its present intensive form and trade competition even when aided by bonuses on exports has to be met and counteracted by active trade measures on the part of this country. On account of our geographical position we are naturally interested as well, though in perhaps a less direct way, in the political implications of the fascist activities in Latin America. The President of the United States has stated that his country will safeguard the security of the Western hemisphere The expansion in armaments in the United States is directed to this end. An American policy of this kind implies on the part of Canada the responsibility of preventing this country becoming a base of attack by some foreign power on the United States. This point has been brought out a number of times by our Miniser of National Defence, we cannot accept all and give nothing in return. The Pan-American conference is not a political union in any way. It is a consultative body. Whether or not it will be decided at some future time to join this non-political union remains with the government. The danger might be that at some time by force of circumstances it might become in fact if not in form a defensive alliance with reciprocal obligations which in the case of Canada, if this country belonged, might be at variance with our obligations to the British Commonwealth. At present the suggestion seems to be that the 21 republics of the Western hemisphere should form a sort of "moral alliance" without any kind of economic isolation from the rest of the world. Standing as it were "on the side lines" Canada is naturally an interested spectator of the Lima conference.

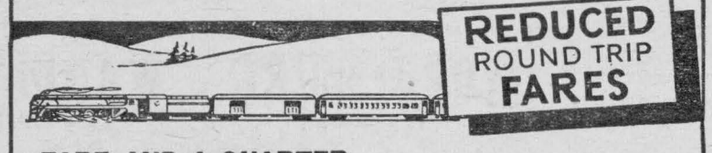

The New Session

The cabinet has held many meetings lately, at the rate of three or four a week. The ministers have been arranging the work for the coming session. Proposed government legislation will be introduced as early as possible in the session; it is hoped that prorogation will come before the arrival of the King and Queen in the middle of May. Thre is likely to be very little time wasted from the reading of the Speech from the Throne on Jan. 12th until prorogation. The Prime Minister has some appointments still to make before parliament assembles, and there may be a change or two in the cabinet ranks. The preliminary arrangements for the visit of Their Majesties are finished. That is the itinerary has been arranged and is now awaiting approval from His Majesty. This, of course, is only the beginning of the work connected with the visit. Dominion and provincial committees will have their hands full arranging a complete but not unduly heavy schedule for the Royal visitors. A main objective of the arrangements will be to allow as many people as possible see the King and Queen during their trip across the country.

Among the many important subjects which will come before parliament for discussion will be the new trade treaty with the United States and the concessions that have been made in British preferences to allow the U.S. and U.K. to make their trade pact. There will be the intricate and baffling subject of unemployment, the question of the most equitable way of apportioning the cost of unemployment relief, among municipalities, provinces and the Dominion. Unemployment insurance which has never been able to scale the constitutional wall, will be heard from again. The question of providing more adequate and more extensive measurs of national defence will loom large in debate. Connected with this will be the status of the proposal to train pilots for the R.A.F. in Canada. The report of the Bren Gun inquiry will also doubtless be discussed. This report has not yet been completed. What this country is to do about the relief of Jewish refugees from Germany, the relationship of this question with the unemployment situation as stressed by labor organizations, this whole question will be discussed. Parliament is likely to hear a good deal about the 80c. guarantee for wheat. The report of the commission on Dominion Provincial Financial Relations when finally completed will also claim the attention of members although

NEW RAIL LINE SERVES QUEBEC MINES

WITH the inauguration, during the month of December, of service over the complete new Senneterre-Rouyn branch line of the Canadian National Railways, important mineral areas of Northwestern Quebec will gain the advantage of necessary freight and passenger transportation. The line is 100 miles long, beginning at Senneterre on the Transcontinental line, passing through Val d'Or and reaching Rouyn, where it connects with existing railways from the north and from the west.

The Pictures: 1.—A typical mine in Western Quebec; 2.—Canadian National bridge over the Kinojevis River, the building of which presented engineering problems of unusual character; 3.—The parish church at Senneterre, start of the new branch line; 4.—Main Street Val d'Or, new mining centre; 5.—Noranda which owes its birth to the important mine of that name.

News And Information For The Busy Farmer

Furnished by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Dry Bean Crop

Dry bean yields are substantially better than was anticipated earlier owing to the excellent growing weather during the Fall. In Huron county a period of wet weather caused discoloration and in some cases sprouting, but in other counties the quality is for the most part good. The average yield per acre is reported at 22.9 bus., and total production of 1,366,000 bus., as compared with 19.3 bus. per acre and a total crop of 1,105,700 bus. in 1938. The price being paid ranges from 95c to $1.00 per bus. at the farm for white pea beans.

The Apple Crop

The 1938 apple crop, harvested under most favourable conditions and earlier than usual, is estimated at 831,560 barrels or 12 p.c. higher than the 745,300 barrels harvested in 1937. An increase of 40 p.c. in the Eastern Ontario crop more than offset a 23 p.c. decline in Western Ontario. Fall demand has been particularly good in all channels of trade—domestic and export fresh markets, and processors—with average prices holding firm and not showing the draggy conditions experienced in the fall of 1937. Most of the cold storages in Western Ontario are now filled to capacity and seasonal packing for export is well advanced. In Eastern Ontario, notwithstanding an unusually heavy movement during October for both domestic markets and export, large quantities of Starks have been packed in shredded oil paper and shipped to Montreal cold storages ear-marked for export later, as the cold storages in Eastern Ontario are filled.

Champion Cheese-Maker

Champion cheese-meker in Canada in 1937, J. M. Bain, of Britton, Perth County, Ont., has retained the title until next November by winning seven first prizes out of ten classes in which he entered at the British Empire Cheese Exhibition conducted by the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association at Belleville from Nov. 25 to 30, 1938. Altogether the judges evaluated more than 500 exhibits.

In the British Empire special open competition in which cheeses were exhibited from all parts of the Empire, Donald Howes, of Atwood, Ont., won the first prize. Mr. Bain was second. It will be remembered that Mr. Howes was also the first prize-winner at this year's Royal Winter Fair at Toronto.

Next Season's Chicks

Now that most laying flocks are housed for the winter or are soon to be housed, the next important thing to consider is next season's chick flock. Too early? Not at all It is good practice to plan out poultry operations for the entire year as far as possible; this permits starting the chicks at the proper times so that uniform income may be obtained throughout the year.

Now is a good time to begin thinking about this and getting information that will help decide when and where to buy chicks for the coming season. A definite decision in this matter cannot, of course, be made at the present time, but it is a good plan to write to different hatcheries and breeders asking for their catalogues, price lists, and any other information that is desired. This gives an opportunity to compare the offers of the various hatcheries and breeders, from which a selection may be made and orders placed at the proper time. It is none too early to start writing for information.

Propagation of Bush Fruits by Dormant Wood Stem Cuttings

Multiplication of varieties of bush fruits by cuttings is a form of bud propagation in contradistion to propagation by seeds. It is a cheap and convenient way of securing a number of plants of such fruits as currants, gooseberries, blueberries and grapes.

Wood of the current year's growth is gathered in late autumn or early winter before too severe winter weather has occurred, as severe weather may be injurious to this growth, especially if the latter is luxuriant. This wood may be stored in a cool, damp cellar, and preferably covered with moss to prevent it from drying out, or it may be made directly into cuttings. The cutting wood may make one or more cuttings, according to the length of the current year's growth. The cuttings are usually at least six inches long, and should contain at least two buds. It is not necessary to cut to a bud at the base of the cutting, though some prefer to do this, but the upper cut should be just above the upper bud. These cuttings should then be tied up in bundles of 25 or more, care being taken to have the butts of the cuttings on the same level to promote uniform callusing. The bundles should then be labelled.

The bundles of cuttings are now ready for storage. If stored out of doors they are buried in well-drained soil, with the butts down, and a mulch of straw or leaves placed over them as protection against frost. If stored in a cool cellar clean sharp sand may be used to store them in, and only sufficient moisture supplied to keep the sand damp.

In the early spring these cuttings are planted out in nursery rows in a rich, well-prepared soil, two to three inches apart, and at such a depth as to have the upper bud just at the surface of the soil. To prevent suckers the lower bud may be removed. In some fruits where the cuttings are to remain in the nursery row for more than one year the cuttings may be planted further apart.

Frequent clean cultivation is necessary if rapid growth is to be secured.

The 1938 crop of potatoes in Ontario is estimated at 7,428,700 cwt. as compared with 10,130,500 cwt. in 1937. This year's production is 26.7 p.c. less than last year and one of the lowest per acre yielding crops on record. The quantity of marketable potatoes is lower than total production due to losses in storage from rot. The development of Late Blight Rot in the late crop was spotted, in that some districts suffered to a greater extent than others. The earlier maturing varieties, such as Cobbler, Warba, Chippewa and Katadin, escaped damage from Late Blight Rot on account of the foliage being more mature or dead before the attack came, which was during the month of September, while some districts received a killing frost on Sept. 6th, which destroyed the green foliage and prevented Late Blight from being established. This reduced the yield in these areas, but potatoes of good keeping quality were harvested.

Growers are discarding as well as possible the infected tubers and marketing the better portion of their crop. A further development often occurs, and much dissatisfaction is experienced by dealers and consumers. There are, however, large quantities of Ontario potatoes free from disease and of good keeping and cooking quality. To a great extent these potatoes are being held for marketing later when higher prices are expected. Potatoes of this quality are now bringing about 25c per bag premium over stock that has a percentage of disease. Reports from the provinces east of Ontario state that a considerable portion of the crop will be discarded on account of the Late Blight Rot.The yield in eastern provinces was reduced by unfavourable weather conditions.

The market shows a strong tendency and higher prices are expected in the early part of 1939.

BREAD

The Popular Report of the British and Foreign Bible Society under the caption "Bread" maintains the high level of all past issues. Rev. John Patten bases his report on the general principle, "Whether he knows it or not, man is hungry, and that hunger can only be satisfied by heavenly food." With this truth as guiding principle this little book essays to tell the story of how the Bible Society supplies to needy multitudes of men and women of many races and languages "the Bread of Life."

The headings of the chapters give an indication of the attractive way in which the whole subject is treated: "Bread for the British People;" "Distributors of the Bread;" "Bread for the Multitude" "The Same Bread: The Story of Translation;" and "The Price of Bread." The bare outline of these headings is filled out with apposite literary quotations, including a characteristic line from Rupert Brooke, "The strong crust of friendly bread." This moving account of the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society throughout the world is written with Four Hundred Years of the Open Bible in English, and all that it has meant and can mean to that race, as its great background.

The romance of the Society's progress since 1804 is never lost sight of, and like a golden thread through the report runs the fundamental idea that the Bible Society's one aim is to place in the hands of men "the Bread of Life."

Grenville-Dundas Ayrshire Breeders Appoint Officers

George Gillespie of Ventnor was elected president of the Grenville-Dundas Ayrshire Breeders' Club, at the annual meeting held in the Winchester town hall Tuesday afternoon under the chairmanship of George Dixon. There was a good attendance of Ayrshire breeders from nearly every township in the two counties, as well as many other interested farmers.

The treasurer's report, given by Howard Kittle of Chesterville, revealed that the club's finances were in good condition. It was decided to vote $20.00 towards the purchase of four Ayrshire heifer calves for new members of the Grenville-Dundas Ayrshire Calf Club.

A.C. Runions of the Kemptville Agricultural School, was the guest speaker for the occasion, and gave those present some interesting pointers regarding Ayrshire herds. At the close of his address, he extended an invitation to the Ayrshire Club to hold its annual field day at Kemptville Aricultural School next June. The invitation was accepted.

Others who spoke were Hamish McLeod and H.W. Graham, agricultural representatives for Grenville and Dundas, respectively.

Commentary on the
Highlights of the Week's News . . . By Elizabeth E. Eedy

AVIATION HISTORY: 1938 should be a banner year for aviation in Canada, if we read the signs aright. The Trans-Canada Air Lines network will be completed west of Montreal to the Pacific Coast. Experimental mail flights over the Prairies and Rockies are being made this month. Schedules call for the 1,168-mile flight from Winnipeg to Vancouver, with stops at Regina and Lethbridge, to be made in 7 hours and 15 minutes.

Transatlantic mail flights by the end of the year are also contemplated, according to Transport Minister C. D. Howe.

While such developments are taking place in Canada, Imperial Airways promises in London, England, this week, that new planes put into service within the next few months, by midsummer in fact, will make the 205-mile air trip from London to Paris in exactly one hour.

SABOTAGE: A word of comparatively recent origin which is being used more and more frequently in the newspapers these days is "sabotage". Russian engineers are arrested on charges of sabotage; the blowing up of the Breda factories in Milan is laid to sabotage by Italian workers; mysterious fires in French ships are traced to sabotage; and now sabotaging in Britain's Royal Air Force comes to light when it is discovered that two of the newest type bombing planes have been tampered with at the factory. "Sabotage" comes from the French noun "sabot", (wooden) shoe, and was first used when a rebellious French factory-worker threw a boot in the machinery to wreck it. We mean the same thing as "sabotage" when we say, "throw a monkey wrench in the works".

In countries such as Italy and Germany where workers have no voice in the Government, sabotage is frequently chosen as a method of protest, of getting back at the powers-that-be. It is an attempt to slow up a system which they believe to have the worst interests of the working people at heart.

DIVORCES UP: An increase of twenty per cent. over 1936 is shown in the number of divorces granted to Canadian couples during 1937. The total reached 1,870 altogether, 596 of which were taken out in Ontario. British Columbia ran a close second, while in proportion of population, Quebec scored the lowest, 43.

Interesting sidelight on the statistics; men must still be chivalrous since twice as many wives sued for divorce as husbands. Or is it that the man in the case is more often the guilty party? Food for thought, there.

AMERICAN HOUR: It is an amusing game these evenings to tune in on the short-wave set to the broadcasts in English that are coming out of Rome, Italy, and Zeesen, Germany, under the guise of news summaries. From 2RO, you hear an American girl's voice on the "American Hour," giving the news as Mussolini would like you to hear it and interpret it.

The game isn't so amusing, though, when you stop to figure how many people there are in the world today who are being forced by a rigid press censorship to see events in just that distorted and untrue light. The same spirit which is attempting to smother all free thought in other countries is now moving to influence people on this Continent to accept the same biased outlook, narrow view of life and world affairs. It will be disastrous if that spirit continues to gain hold.

BALKANS BOW: The small nations of Central Europe feeling themselves left in the lurch by Great Britain and the League of Nations are scrambling (with the exception of Austria, Czechoslovakia) under the "protective" wings of Germany and Italy, the nearest big powers. Last week the four Balkan entente countries (Greece, Jugoslavia, Rumania and Turkey) bowed to Italy, agreeing to recognize the conquest of Ethiopia and grant belligerent rights to the Spanish rebels.

When it's a case of every man for himself and devil take the hindmost, we could hardly expect the small Balkan powers to have acted otherwise.

MAYORS THREATEN: A representation of Ontario's mayors met last week in Toronto's City Hall to fight the announced opposition of Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, to increased relief payments from the Dominion Government.

Declared Mayor H. R. Cory, of Trenton: "It has come to the point where either you are going to have a rebellion of the unemployed, or you are going to have a rebellion of the ratepayers because they can't pay more."

The small taxpayer indeed is not to be envied in these days of heavy relief expenditures. It comes to the point in some cases that a man with a tiny piece of property has to help keep his next-door neighbor who is almost as well off. A serious situation, and the Ontario mayors are right in becoming exercised about it.

200 Canadian Pilots Fly With Royal Air Force

In Great Britain—But An All Time Record Was Set In Canada In 1937, More Than 350 Licenses Being Issued to Pilots —Total Flying Mileage 1,680,000.

An all-time flying record was established by Canadian flying clubs in 1937 as club activity continued on the upswing, with more than 350 licenses issued to pilots. Many of these pilots took positions with commercial aviation companies, while others joined the Royal Air Force in Great Britain.

This exodus of Canadian flying club pilots to the R.A.F. began several years ago, and has continued. G. M. Ross, executive secretary of the Canadian Flying Clubs Association, estimated there are more than 200 Canadian pilots who obtained licenses through Canadian flying clubs now with the R.A.F. He said there was no preconceived plan in this movement of pilots to Britain.

A survey made by the association last year showed that more than 150 club-trained pilots and air engineers were gainfully employed in commercial flying operations, and since that time the number has increased.

21,000 Flying Hours

The association reported total time flown by the clubs in 1937 was close to 21,000 hours, which is about 1,680,000 miles, or approximately equivalent to 65 flights around the world at the equator. This represented an increase of 21 per cent. over 1936, 52 per cent. over 1935, and 100 percent. over 1934.

The Toronto club headed the list with 2,034 hours flown by members, Winnipeg was second with 1,878, Hamilton third with 1,558, and London fourth with 1,365. Ottawa members flew 1,170 hours, and Edmonton 1,148.

The clubs are subsidized by the Government. Membership fees average $10 a person a year. Flying instruction fees an hour on the average are $12 dual, $10 student solo and $8 advanced solo. Only licensed instructors and air engineers are employed by the clubs, and all equipment is certified by the Government as to airworthiness.

Excellent Training Program

"Our club-flying plan has proved the most useful and economical plan for pilot training in the world," Mr. Ross said. "We believe, however, that a program should be launched to train at least 10,000 more pilots in Canada. It would provide a reserve for military purposes besides providing a stimulus to general flying interest. At present there are about 1,200 pilots holding active licenses and about 800 others whose licenses have lapsed."

News In Brief

Army Increased

MADRID. — Government Spain drafted youths of 19 and men of 30 oeesnc w ktarihisee t this week to increase its army from an estimated 650,000 to a possible 780,000.

Government Carries It

PARIS.—The sliding wage scale provision of the labor code was readopted by the French Senate last week and with speedy approval of the other articles the code was sent back to the Chamber for action on Senate changes.

The Senate vote was 194-82. An amendment which would have taken the force out of the sliding wage scale provision was defeated. Premier Chautemps remained in office after having threatened to resign if the provisions were not readopted.

Naval Race Continues

LONDON.—British and American naval experts were reported reliably this week to have completed plans for building battleships exceeding 40,000 tons, but to be awaiting final decisions of their governments before carrying out technical tests for actual construction.

Air Raid on Valencia

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier.—Insurgent air raiders made two attacks over the week-end on Valencia and environs, and inflicted heavy damage on the town of Gandia, 40 miles to the south.

Five rebel planes dropped several bombs near the port of Valencia and nearby hamlets.

Will Go To Air Conference

OTTAWA.—Canada will join in a new intra-Empire Air Transportation Conference next month, when a Canadian delegation will be despatched to Ireland to consult with overseas authorities there.

The new development in Empire air service was revealed by Transport Minister Howe as the House of Commons gave third reading to a bill to enable Trans-Canada Air Lines Limited to become an integral part of the company which will eventually control Empire flying.

Germany Threatens

BERLIN. — Germany's only active field marshal, Herman Wilhelm Goering, last week-end rattled the sabre as he warned the Reich's air force was ready to protect the "10,000,000 Germans on our borders."

Highlights of his address:

1. Warning Hodza to treat the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia as Hitler thinks they should be treated.
2. Warning von Schuschnigg to give Austrian Nazis the liberty of action Hitler demands for them.
3. Warning Chautemps not to encourage Czechoslovakia too much by, as one semi-official commentator put it, "clinging to the doctrines of Geneva and adhering to military pacts with other powers."

Fascist Inspiration Dies

GARDONE RIVIERA, Ltaly. — Gabriele d'Annunzio, Italy's great warrior-poet, symbol of Italian nationalism and President of the Academy of Italy, died unexpectedly last week in his Villa Vittoriale.

A cerebral hemorrhage caused his death. He would have been 75 on March 12. D'Annunzio was the symbol of the nationalist dream of Fascism, and the inspiration of Mussolini, it is said.

Defends "Back to Niagara"

TORONTO.—Denying sharply that any secret deal had been made with the Quebec power companies, Premier Hepburn, before the Legislature, defended the reversal of his "back to Niagara" power policy last week by placing responsibility directly upon the King Government at Ottawa.

Minerals Top Fishing Crop

Production Last Year Totals Ten Million In Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld.—Newfoundland's mineral prospects are revealed in official figures released here that showed production in 1937 had surpassed the $10,000,000 mark for the first time in the history of the island.

Announcement that the value of minerals in Newfoundland totaled $10,559,782 was accompanied by notes that revealed the fact this represented double the value of the codfishery, long recognized as the island's leading industry.

Predicting continued expansion of mining in Newfoundland, it was recalled that the island's mineral production in 1854 was $2,298 worth of copper raised at Tilt Cove, the only operating mine in the country at that time.

Lead-zinc-gold-copper ore from Buchans and iron ore at Bell Island accounted for $10,000,000 of the total production last year, and small operations for limestone and fluorspar were carried on at Aguathuna, Humbermouth and St. Lawrence.

Democracies Dominate By Sea And Air

But Land Forces of Dictator States Outclass France, Britain And U.S. by Three to One.

WASHINGTON.—The three major democracies hold by far the world's dominant sea power and have a slight edge in air strength, but are badly outweighed by the land armies of the Fascist powers, a survey revealed.

The combined navies of the United States, Great Britain and Franch, ship for ship, are more than two and a half times stronger than the fleets of Japan, Germany and Italy.

Ratio, Two To One

On completion of the naval re-armament programs of these six powers the ratio, roughly, will be two to one in favor of the democracies.

A combination of the Fascist powers against the United States alone, however, would find the American fleet heavily overwhelmed.

In the air, the democracies could send out a combined aerial armada of approximately 12,000 fighting airplanes to beat off a theoretical Italian-German-Japanese combination of 11,000 airplanes.

It is on the ground—with the armies which must conquer and hold land and bear the major brunt of any war — that the Fascist powers hold an overwhelming superiority to the present armies of the domocratic countries.

Armies More Efficient

This advantage is nearly three to one. It is further enhanced by the fact that one of the powers, Japan, is now engaged in a major war, and Italy has just finished putting its military machine through combat service in conquering Ethiopia and in giving aid to the insurgent army in Spain.

Japan's army approaches 1,500,000. Nippon is known to have 1,000,000 men on the Asiatic continent, fighting in China and acting as a bulwark in Manchoukuo against possible Soviet interference. The men under arms in Japan proper are estimated as in excess of 400,000.

Half As Many Men

Italy, at the end of the Ethiopian campaign, had 1,331,200 men under arms and, in addition, an air force personnel of 203,395. Of the 1,331,200 there were 8,788,200 called up from the reserves. How many of these have been demobilized is not known.

The German army is conservatively estimated at 650,000 with 100,000, including an anti-aircraft force of 40,000 in the separate airforce.

Against this array of 3,381,200 armed men, the United States, Britain and France have a combined total of 1,443,000.

Canada's Revenue Shows Increase

Rise of $66,304,779 Shown For Ten Months' Period

OTTAWA.—Total national revenue for the first 10 months of the current fiscal year amounted to $438,065,893, an increase of $66,304,779 compared with the same period last year, according to the monthly statement of the comptroller of the treasury.

Total ordinary expenditures for the same period (April 1 1937, to January 1, 1938) amounted to $320,672,951 a decrease of $11,869,686 compared with the same period a year ago. But when cost of relief for drought and unemployment, relief works, expenses in Government-owned enterprises and capital expenditure is added the total disbursement for the period amounted to $414,256,627, an increase of $8,966,820.

Balanced Budget Nearer

Every source of revenue showed an increase and the general total indicates that every month Finance Minister Dunning is drawing nearer the possibility of a balanced budget. while the report for the 10-month period shows a surplus over all expenditures of $23,000,000, this may be wiped out by the heavy special expenditures for various forms of relief and the Canadian National Railways deficit before the end of the fiscal year, March 31.

Heaviest increase in revenues came in the excise and income tax branches which were $29,000,000 and $18,000,000 higher, respectively. Excise had accounted for $150,526,799 56 the 10-month period and was the greatest single source of revenue.

As there is no State tax in Holland, costs of radio programs are paid for by voluntary subscriptions.

By taxing private rice mills the Government of Panama will have power to control the country's rice market.

World's Worst Threat

This is the really most dangerous condition in the world today—namely, that the people ruled by dictators do not get either truth or common sense from their newspapers.—Ottawa Journal.

The Disappearing Salmon

People on the Pacific coast are at last getting an answer to that old question, "Where do the salmon go?" It seems that they go into a floating Japanese salmon cannery. — Toronto Star.

Rural Fire Protection

An English inventor has produced a "fireplace" which carries extinguishers, a motor pump, sectional ladder and gas "bombs" capable of suffocating flames. This may ultimately provide a solution to the problem of rural fire protection.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Financially Able to Drive

It seems to be a reasonable principle that no one should be allowed to take a car on the streets or highways unless he is in a financial position, through insurance or otherwise, to meet reasonable claims on account of any damage his machine may do, either through his own carelessness or indifference or through mechanical deficiency of his car.—Windsor Star.

If They Stood Together

Secretary Ickes of Washington has been telling the world that the democracies must stand together. They all know it. But the trouble is that large and possibly controlling influences in each of them are not yet convinced that the time has come for them to "stand" anywhere. They could have stopped Japan, without firing a shot, by making a "stand" in front of Manchuria—now Manchoukuo. They could have stopped Germany by making a "stand" on the Rhine and negotiating a just and orderly revision of the Versailles Treaty.

Once they had prestige enough to win without war. Whether they have today is doubtful. Whether they will have on some black tomorrow is not. —Montreal Star.

Canada's Lost Visions

The national vision of plenty has been so far lost, the national policy of abundance in Canadian homes has been so completely forgotten, the Government is no longer concerned with the ability of the Canadian fishing villages to buy Canadian apples. Almost the entire concern of party politics is with the exporting business to the British or some other distant market. The Conservative vision of national policy has been lost as completely as the Liberal vision of freer trade. There is no longer any real difference between the parties, as the Minister of Labour's admission about the key place of the protective tariff would show. Under straight party politics, the Liberals would lead along the path of freer trade: the Conservatives would take new steps in the national policy to see that the Canadian people have purchasing power in the home market to maintain economic security. Straight party politics has come to mean nothing more than the sham fight between Tweedledum and Tweedledee.—Ottawa Citizen.

Dean's Luck: On his way home from America in the German liner Hamburg the Dean of Exeter, England, attended a ship's costume fete. He had no fancy dress, so he wore his dean's evening dress—breeches, silk stockings, and scarlet doctor's gown. He won first prize.

THE EMPIRE

Universal Vigilance

So long as two people are killed on Scottish roads almost every day of the year, the challenge of the road casualties remains unanswered. At the same time despair of further efforts to reduce the casualty list is not justified. These must continue to be among the first duties of every section of the community. Motorists, for example, must realize that they control, or are supposed to control, a potentially lethal weapon; pedestrians must realize that they can go safely only if they go warily; and cyclists, even if they are travelling on the special tracks they profess to dislike, must remember the dangers of unsteady and careless riding. The process of reducing the fearsome total of dead and injured cannot in the nature of things be other than slow; but it could be accelerated if courtesy, consideration and watchfulness were so strictly observed as to possess the quality of instinct.—Glasgow Herald.

Japan's Weaknesses

The British Empire and the United States combined take half of Japan's exports and supply 63 per cent. of her needs. Then, in so far as Japan's raw silk export is concerned, the United States takes 85 per cent. of it, this being the only Japanese export not dependent on imported supplies of raw materials. Japan's whole social structure, it will be seen, is dependent on the American silk market. Japan is vitally dependent on imports of oil from the United States and the Dutch East Indies, and of iron and scrap from India, Malaya and Australia. Amongst other things, Japan's coal consumption is only a fifth of Great Britain's and her heavy industry is not developed proportionately to her light industry. A vital weakness for Japan in war is her primitive system of land cultivation. The productivity per acre is high, but the productivity per man is exceedingly low. The transfer of large numbers of men to the fighting forces and of women to the munition factories is bound to cause a steep fall in production at the very time when tens of thousands of soldiers have to be provided with a more substantial diet than they existed on as peasants.—Hong Kong News.

Of Canadian Tourist Visiting the United States

Returning Canadians brought into Canada $6,303,656 worth of dutiable goods under the $100 exemption clause in the Customs tariff during the ten months from April 1, 1937, to last Jan. 31, the National Revenue Department reported last week. Goods from the United States were valued at $5,537,765.

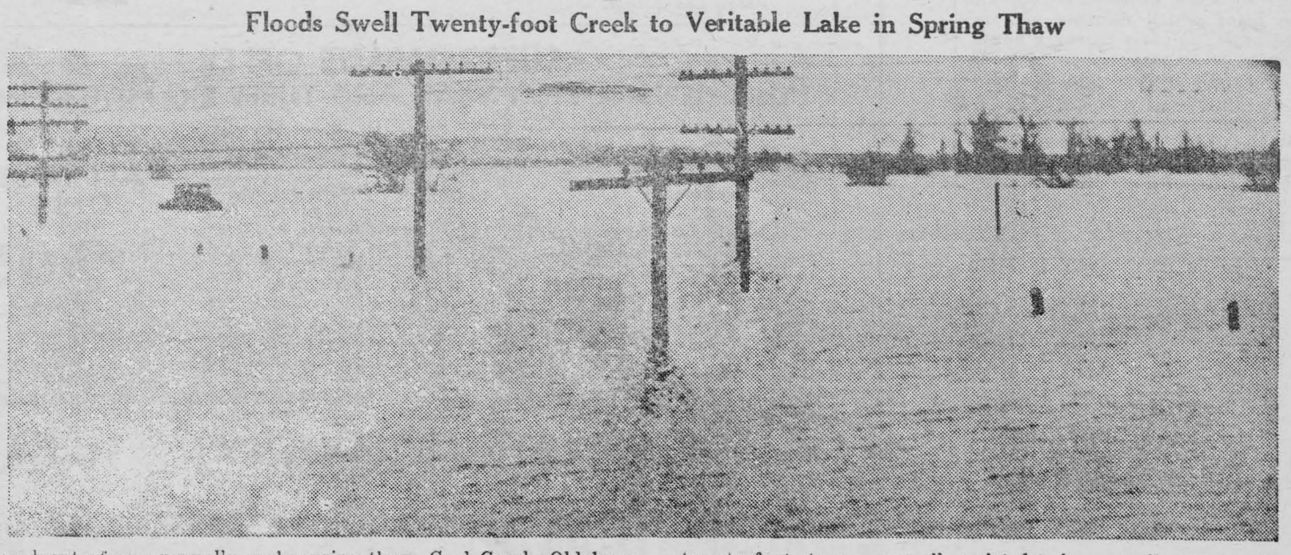

Clothing valued at $2,974,184 was the principal item in the seven commodities listed, including one for miscellaneous articles, and of this $2,611,793 represented clothing from the United States. Second was furniture and household appliances, with $622,103 coming from all countries, and $582,094 from the United States alone.

Boots and shoes brought were valued at $576,505, with $553,302 from the United States, while radios totalled $534,833, with $532,293 from the United States. The other two listed items were automobile accessories totalling $87,855, with $87,745 from the United States, and automobile tires and tubes totalling $80,183, with $79,740 from the United States.

Australia has just freed 62 per cent. of its import trade from restrictions.

Britain's new census of woodlands totalling 3,000,000 acres, will keep twelve surveyors busy for two years.

Floods Swell Twenty-foot Creek to Veritable Lake in Spring Thaw

With the advent of an unusually early spring thaw, Coal Creek, Oklahoma, a twenty-foot stream normally quiet, has been swollen to an abnormal extent, rising out of its bed to form a small lake completely covering an area half a mile wide.

TRAVEL MADE HIM CONSTIPATED

Salesman Says Kruschen Keeps Him "On His Toes"

"I am a commercial traveller," writes a correspondent, "and due to endless travelling by train and automobile I find that I become constipated if I do not keep myself internally clean. Kruschen Salts is the only thing that will do this effectively and not interfere with my work. I take a large dose of Kruschen every Saturday night and on Sunday, when I have no work to do, the Salts act on me. On week-days I take a small dose on rising. It is necessary that I be 'on my toes' all through the day, and this is the only way that it possibly can be done."—V.L.

Kruschen Salts is an excellent recipe for maintaining a condition of internal cleanliness. The numerous salts in Kruschen stimulate your internal organs to smooth, regular action. Your inside is thus kept clear of those impurities which, when allowed to accumulate, lower the whole tone of the system.

Mexico Is Full Of Fine Game

Animals There Just As Ferocious As In Africa

The man who goes off to Africa to hunt big game and cure a broken heart may be overlooking a better bet near home—Juan Zinzer is here to try to prove it.

Zinser, chief of the Mexican Game Service, brought his enthusiasm and his facts to the third North American Wildlife Conference at Baltimore.

Elephants in Africa?—Mexico has tapirs, which are rarer and not as dangerous. The only hazard in tapir hunting, in fact, is that a fleeing animal might run over you, he says. A herd of tapirs disorganized a Mexican revolutionary army once by stampeding through the ranks. They stand about four feet high at the shoulders and weigh 1,000 pounds.

Africa has lions, but Mexico has cougars, smaller but just as vicious. Africa has leopards. Mexico counters with the offer of jaguars. Mexico also has pecaries, about the size of small pigs and much more dangerous to hunters, and ocelots, which are apartment-sized leopards.

Fingerprints Can Be Forged

Man's Demonstration Impresses Court and Brings About His Acquittal

CROYDON, Eng. — A man who proved fingerprints could be produced on an article which has not been touched by the fingers that made them was acquitted of burglary here.

David Pearce, 30, suggested that fingerprints found on a bottle and identified as his had been put there by someone else. He demonstrated, producing a small mirror and a pad of plastic substance. He pressed the pad against a prison officer's finger, then against the mirror. A print appeared on the mirror.

"That," said Pearce, "is a fingerprint of this officer and his finger has not touched the mirror." He added he could place the mixture on a glove and obtain the fingerprints of anybody by shaking hands with them.

A police expert declared forged fingerprints as described by the accused could be detected but the jury decided on acquittal.

Along Canada's Mining Highway

As a result of outstanding diamond drilling indications, first on Hardrock and then on the adjoining Macleod Cockshutt property in the Long Lac Camp of Western Ontario, market valuations of the shares of these companies have increased in aggregate value approximately ten million dollars. Other companies in the area were also beneficially affected in market valuation. A strong revival of the whole area is indicated.

Favourable diamond drilling results have been obtained on the Cheminis property of Larder Lake and on the Lacoma property of Tavernier Township, Quebec. Intensive diamond drilling is becoming more and more the method of preparation for important mine development.

The bride and groom see only the dimples. In a few short months they are disappointed when they discover so many freckles on each other's disposition.

THE BEST WAY

When you have done the best you can,
And things continue looking blue,
Just hold your head up like a man —
There's really nothing wrong with you.
You'll get your break, it can't be long
Before the clouds will show the blue;
If you keep on, the best you can,
There's really nothing wrong with you.

It costs a lot to live these days,
More than it did of yore,
But, when you come to think of it,
Isn't it worth a whole lot more?

Give a woman something to argue about and she will be happy.

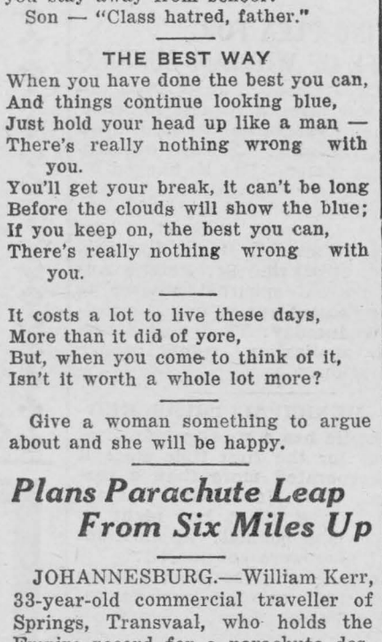

Plans Parachute Leap From Six Miles Up

JOHANNESBURG.—William Kerr, 33-year-old commercial traveller of Springs, Transvaal, who holds the Empire record for a parachute descent with a jump of 22,395 feet, is preparing for an attempt in March on the world's record of more than six miles.

He is undergoing a rigorous course of training to prepare himself for the bitter cold and rarefied atmosphere he will encounter at great heights.

Kerr trains at night after finishing his work which takes him all over the Transvaal. He carries with him a special electrical machine with which he is able to expel the air from his room and create a rarefied atmosphere.

He pulls on his fly-suit, cap and gloves and places a special oxygen apparatus in position before expelling the air.

Penguin in Zoo Is Hatching Egg

Molly and Moe await an event next month that will make history — the first hatching of a penguin in a zoo on this continent.

Excitement ran high at the Washington Zoological Park, when attendants reported "Molly has laid an egg" the first pengiun egg ever laid at the zoo.

That was three weeks ago; Molly and Moe began building a nest. When the last straw had been put in place Molly sat on the nest and Moe went over in a corner to wait. The incubation period is believed to be about thirty days.

The prospective mama and papa take turns sitting on the egg, he said. Moe sits on the egg half of the time, and being a considerate husband, he works the night shift. When one is sitting the other stands guard to keep away other penguins.

Canada Is Using Her Own Tobacco

Imports Decline — Exports Amount to 15 P.C.—Increase Forecast.

Dr. N. T. Nelson, Agriculture Department expert, last week told a conference of tobacco officials in the department that Canada's most important tobacco market is domestic and that 85 per cent. of the crop in this country is marketed at home.

Dr. Nelson, chief of the tobacco division of the department's experimental farms branch, estimated the 1937 crop was worth $17,000,000 and contrasted it with that of a decade before which had a farm value of $6,813,221.

Cigars 71 Percent. Domestic

He said that 15 per cent. of the nation's tobacco crop is exported, chiefly to the United Kingdom, and that with further improvement in quality and assurance of supply exports could be increased.

In recent years, he continued, a considerable decline has been noted in Canadian use of imported leaf. In the decade following 1927, he said, Canada's imports of tobacco leaf declined from 18,500,000 pounds to 2,500,000, because domestic manufacturers recognized the improvement in the home-grown leaf, due largely to efforts of the tobacco division.

Canadian-made cigars now contain 71.7 per cent. domestic leaf, Dr. Nelson said, while cigarettes contain 75.9 per cent. and smoking tobacco 85.8 per cent.

A Greater C.N.E. Hoped For 1938

Fine Agricultural Show This Year Is Predicted

Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, predicted in Toronto last week at the luncheon of the Canadian National Exhibition Association, that the 1938 Agriculture Show would be the best on record.

He pointed out that the attendance last year was considerably cut down by the infantile paralysis epidemic. Indications are that there will be a much greater attendance at this year's show, he said.

"Beacon Light" to Canada

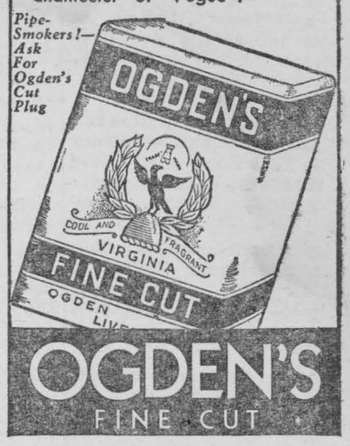

Sir William Mulock, former Chief Justice of Ontario, in addressing the luncheon, recalled happenings of sixty years ago when the C.N.E. opened for the first time. The original idea was that of the founder of The Globe, Hon. George Brown, who owned a farm near Brantford. "Since that time the show has expanded and is now unparalleled." The C.N.E. is a "beacon light" to Canada, he added.

GIRLS ESCAPE INJURY AS CAR TURNS OVER

Miss Betty Melvin and a companion, Miss Eleanor Stewart, narrowly escaped serious injury late Sunday night, when the car in which they were riding left the highway, just north of the Cass Bridge school house and, after jumping over a ditch and breaking off two fence posts, came to rest in an adjoining field with all four wheels in the air.

Miss Melvin, driver of the car, stated that at the time of the mishap it was snowing quite hard and the pavement had become slippery. Her car got out of control after she had run off onto the shoulder of the road. In attempting to bring the vehicle back on the pavement, Miss Melvin said she stepped on the accelerator a little too hard and the car shot across to the other side of the road and turned completely over at the edge of a plowed field. She was severely bruised about the body, and suffered from shock. Miss Stewart, her companion, was only slightly injured. The car, a new 1938 model, was damaged to the extent of about $400.00

There was not much traffic at the time of the accident and the ladies were compelled to remain near their wrecked vehicle over an hour before a passing motorist came to their rescue and brought them to their homes in Winchester, where Miss Melvin was attended by Dr. C.J. Locke.

Frair united in marriage their youngest daughter Maude Evelyn, and Edward Charles Swayne, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. E.C. Swayne of Morrisburg. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely floor length gown of white silk net over taffeta, with Chantilly lace jacket with long sleeves, her shoulder length veil, worn in Juliet cap style, caught with a halo of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and lily-of-the-valley. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Hann, of Port aux Basques, Newfoundland, wore a pretty gown of pink taffeta with matching halo hat, and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. Patrick Boland of Kingston, was best man.

During the signing of the register Mrs. H. Frair sang very sweetly, "Because."

After the ceremony a buffet lunch was served to about one hundred guests. The color scheme in the dining room was carried out in pale pink and white, the brides table being centered with a three-tier wedding cake, and pale pink tapers in silver holders. The cake was the gift of the bride's aunt, Mrs. G. McDonald. Those assisting in serving were friends of the bride.

The grooms gift to the bride was a cabinet of silver, to the bridesmaid a gold bracelet, to the best man, an onyx tie pin, and to the pianist, a gold locket.

Later the bride and groom left for Montreal where they will reside, the bride wearing a gown of midnight blue alpaca cloth, black seal coat with accessories to match.

Brockville has a woman municipal treasurer for the first time since it was incorporated more than a century ago. Mrs. Hazel Doyle was appointed to the office last night by the Brockville council. Applications from 17 men were considered.

The council also rescinded a bylaw passed in 1936 which ordered formation of a police commission consisting of the mayor, the county court judge and police court magistrates.

HARDLY WORTH WHILE

To be billed through the mail for one cent owing on his taxes was the unusual experience of a Midland man the other day who cheerfully paid the copper. The citizen had paid his taxes in the spring, but in checking over it was descovered he had paid one cent too little.
