

Matilda Township Election Close Race

Mr. J. Orval Seeley was given an acclamation as reeve of the Township of Matilda and began his twentieth year at the council board. For six years he served as a councillor, four as deputy reeve and ten years as reeve. During the twenty years he has received ten acclamations.

Mr. J. Wilfrid Cooper was also given an acclamation as deputy reeve and will take his seat at the right of reeve Seeley. He has served as councillor.

There was an election for councillors and Messrs. James Milligan, Dwight Merkley and John Wells were elected, defeating John McGowan by a narrow margin.

The newly elected Matilda Rural School Area trustees were Messrs. Andy Cooper and Pringle Murphy with Mr. Delmar Adams standing only sixteen votes behind the poll leader, but enough to keep him off the board. The school board will now comprise Messrs. Oliver Smyth, Ken Thorpe, Harold Boyd, Andy Cooper and Pringle Murphy. The first three named are serving their second year of a two year election.

The vote was as follows:

For Councillors
James Milligan 319
Dwight Merkley 275
John Wells 252
John McGowan 159

School Trustees
Andy Cooper 246
Pringle Murphy 236
Delmar Adams 230

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Editor,
The Iroquois Post,

Dear Sir: On Friday evening I had the pleasure of attending Iroquois High School Band Concert. I enjoyed every minute of it.

Hours of patient teaching, practising and above all—the love of children go into the making of a band. It isn't an easy task and a great deal of credit must be given to their teachers.

My home province is British Columbia. We have the world famous Kitilans Boys' Band, and in the East Kootenay—Kimberley High School Mixed Band and the Cranbrook All Girl Band. These bands are well known in the west, the latter two started from "scratch" like the Iroquois band. BUT the townspeople go all out to help and support them, they are so proud of their youngsters. Nothing is impossible when the children get support from their home town.

In closing may I say the singing was so enjoyable—in fact every item showed plenty of talent. The pupils and teachers deserve much praise.

Thank you boys and girls for a grand concert.

Yours truly,
Mrs. Norah W. Shannon

Victor Merkley, local businessman, is in serious condition in the Brockville General Hospital following a car-truck crash on No. 2 Highway Tuesday night.

Victor, in business with his father, was travelling west from his home east of Iroquois and near Cassess Cottages was in collision with a truck, his car going under the back end of the truck.

The accident occurred shortly after the supper hour and Victor was immediately rushed to Brockville in an unconscious condition.

J. H. Merkley, his father, told The Post this morning that he was still in serious condition but had improved since the accident.

Mr. Merkley said Victor is conscious part of the time and that the full extent of his injuries will be known today (Thursday) following examination of X-rays taken Wednesday.

Victor's many friends wish him every success for a quick recovery to good health.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL SHOWS LOSS

The many supporters of the Hospital for Sick Children once again are being asked to help meet the annual operating loss by supporting its Christmas appeal.

This year, careful management has kept the hospital's deficit at 4.8% of operating costs or $231,000. J. Grant Glasco, chairman of the Board of Trustees, said in announcing the hospital's annual Christmas appeal for funds.

Two reasons account for the hospital's inevitable annual deficit. First, the revenue from all sources — patients, investments, estates and grants — is not sufficient to meet the rising costs of care and treatment. Secondly, more and more children each year are coming to the hospital "where no child knocks in vain", from across Ontario and many other sections of Canada.

This year, more than 25,000 bed-patients were admitted and some 100,000 treatments provided for out-patients and emergencies, Mr. Glasco said. "This means that, on the average, one child is admitted to the hospital every half hour, 24 hours a day. Some 1,300 employees and many volunteer workers are required to give proper care to these children."

Advances in treatment and surgery are constantly being made at the hospital, Mr. Glasco said. In the case of treatment, he referred to the increasing number of chronic disorders — once considered incurable — which are now being treated successfully. Today, many acute infections which until recently have required hospital care, can now be handled in the home or out-patients clinic, making additional hospital beds available for more seriously ill patients, he said.

"One of the most important phases of surgery is the rehabilitation of injured and deformed children," Mr. Glasco said. "It is interesting to note that one out of every four children entering the hospital's operating rooms does so for reconstructive surgery. Advanced work is now being done with hare-lips, club feet and damaged hearts, to name only a few."

Last year the hospital also conducted many major research projects. Promising research is now being done on a common but important group of children's diseases, such as sore throats, coughs, cold and croup, and it is hoped that a recent discovery may lead to the prevention of some of these common respiratory diseases.

Moonlight Chapter Election

Order of the Eastern Star, recently elected officers for the coming term, as follows:

Worthy Matron, Mrs. R. E. Keck; Worthy Patron, James Gaw; Associate Matron, Mrs. Gordon Dangenfield; Associate Patron, Hilliard Adams; Secretary, Mrs. Kathleen Shaver; Treasurer, Mrs. Donald Hare; Conductress, Mrs. Ormond McConnell; Associate Conductress, Mrs. Roy Bebe; Chaplain, Mrs. Hilliard Adams; Marshal, Mrs. Hubert Coulter; Organist, Mrs. Chas. Hodgert; Adah, Mrs. Douglas Gallagher; Ruth, Mrs. Lloyd Miller; Esther, Mrs. John Parker; Martha, Mrs. Robert Good; Electa, Miss Doris Jamieson; Warder, Mrs. Bart Perry; Sentinel, Mr. Ormond McConnell.

In charge of installing the officers was Mrs. Clarence Shaver, past matron; Mrs. Earle Moulton, Violet Chapter, Prescott, acting as installing marshal. They were assisted by past matrons and patron. Visitors were present from other chapters.

The few of its kind in a children's hospital, research workers are trying to discover causes of coeliac disease, rickets and nutritional disorders, as well as trying to improve methods of treating diabetes, jaundice, kidney disease and a variety of other diseases.

The increased cost and scope of the hospital's varied services together with the greater number of children who come to the hospital each year, is the reason for the operating deficit, Mr. Glasco said. Address of the Hospital for Sick Children is 1555 University Ave., Toronto.

LIMITED WORK ON DYKE THIS WINTER

by Charlie MacIntosh

Cornwall dyke contract will be finished right on schedule by November, 1957. This confident prediction was made this week by George J. Sturden, veteran construction man, the General Superintendent for Atlas Construction Co. Ltd., and Doug. Kenpton, Project Divisional Engineer, who is supervising dyke work for Ontario Hydro.

Both dyke officials are extremely pleased with this year's results. Last month was a record period, when 405,000 cubic yards of till were placed and compacted in sections 2 and 3.

Concurring with their viewpoint, Project Director, Gordon Mitchell revealed that it had been expected there would be only three or four days during October when the weather would be favourable to work on the dyke and compact material. Instead, there were 23 days on which dyke operations were carried on. The 405,000 cubic yards of till placed in sections 2 and 3 established an all-time record. It was nearly ten times more than the 42,000 cubic yards of material placed in the same month last year, Mr. Mitchell stated.

Indicative of the progress that has been made in dyke construction, latest figures reveal that more than 50% of the glacial till has now been placed and compacted on Cornwall dyke for the St. Lawrence power project. While dyke building operations virtually are halted now with placing and compacting of material being terminated until next spring, some work will be done. This winter in section one, which extends from the Canadian National Railways line almost to new No. 2 Highway north of Mille Roches, stripping will proceed on the dyke line. Slopes on the dyke will be trimmed during winter months in sections 2 and 3 in preparation for placing granular material and rip rap on the dyke's water side.

Granular material also will be

Roads in and around the village have been extremely slippery and consequently dangerous for driving. This morning the weather brings us ice rain to make matters even worse. A good number of townsfolk have speculated for some time as to the outcome of the open drain ditches of the new village. They were put to the test last night and quite a number took to the ditch—there to await a tow.

They provide good drainage but like any good ditch—they are easy to get in but hard to get out of.

Library News

H. G. D.

Christmas will soon be here, and I do hope you are not forgetting those people you remember with a Library Subscription! The Library is open on Monday afternoon from 3 to 6 p.m. and Thursday evenings from 7.30 to 9 p.m. for your convenience.

Now to our book for this week — "Tender Victory" by Taylor Caldwell, an ideal book for this time of year, for it shows the love of one person for those much more unfortunate than he is. Johnny Fletcher, the hero of our tale, was a Chaplain in the U.S. Army, and on his return to the States he brought five orphans with him, children ranging in age from five years to twelve, children whose stories he was able to gather only from their nightmares. Their trust in him developed only through patience, love and teaching; before he took them they trusted only each other. The large city Church would have nothing to do with Johnny when he arrived with these waifs, so his good friend and advisor, Dr. Stevens, obtained a smaller church for him at Barryfield, where mining was the chief industry. Here he ran due to the community reaction of Christian community towards children of dubious character and parentage. Other troubles piled up on Johnny, but his complete Faith in God enabled him to carry on with his chosen work. Forces of subversion were attempting to take over the community, and the newspaper owner and editor, wealthy Max Summerfield was the tool of these forces. Lorry, Max's daughter, falls under Johnny's influence and finds a new purpose in life.

Here is a powerful book, strong in Faith and endurance, one that would be good for all of us to read.

TABLE TALKS

Jane Andrews.

High time to be thinking of that Christmas baking so, without further ado here are recipes for a fruit cake and a pudding. Take the word of countless lovers of good foods who have sampled them, they're both really delicious.

PLUM PUDDING WITH HARD SAUCE
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon each: soda, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon allspice
1/2 cup each: raisins, currants
1/4 cup each: chopped figs, citron, candied cherries, blanched almonds
1 tablespoon chopped candied orange peel
1/2 cup each: chopped apple, chopped suet, molasses, milk
2 eggs, well beaten

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, soda, salt, and spices and sift together three times. Sift 1/2 cup flour mixture over dried fruits and nuts and mix well. Combine remaining ingredients; add flour and beat thoroughly. Add fruit and nuts. Turn into greased molds, filling 3/4 full; cover tightly. Steam about 3 hours. Serve hot with hard sauce. Serves 12.

For Hard Sauce, cream 1/2 cup butter, add gradually 2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar, and cream until fluffy. Then add 1 teaspoon vanilla and dash of salt; chill.

FRUIT CAKE
(10 eggs)
1/2 cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon each: cloves, cinnamon, mace
1 pound butter or other shortening
1 pound brown sugar
10 eggs, well beaten
1/2 pound each: candied cherries, candied pineapple, mixed candied lemon and orange peel, thinly sliced citron, chopped nut meats
1 pound each: sliced dates, raisins, currants
1 cup each: honey and molasses
1 cup cider

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and spices, and sift together three times. Cream shortening thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add remaining ingredients in order. Then add flour gradually. Turn into loaf pans, 9x5x3 inches, which have been greased. Bake in slow oven (250°F.) about 4 hours, or until done. Makes 10 pounds fruit cake. Store several days to a month before using. To store, brush lightly with port, brandy, or grape juice, wrap in waxed paper.

CHRISTMAS TREE COOKIES
1 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
8 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, soda, and salt; sift three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, creaming until light. Add eggs and chocolate and beat well. Add flour in small amounts. Chill. Roll 1/4 inch thick on slightly floured board. Cut with floured cookie cutter in Christmas tree shapes. Place on ungreased baking sheet; brush with glaze mixture made by mixing beaten egg with 1 cup milk. Decorate using colored sugars, candies, or coconut. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 9 minutes. Makes 30. (Other cutters may be used, such as wreaths, stars, and crescents.)

SUGAR COOKIE STARS
2 3/4 cups sifted cake flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cream butter, add sugar gradually creaming until light. Add eggs and beat well. Add vanilla. Add flour, in small amounts, mixing well after each. Chill. Roll 1/4 inch thick on slightly floured board. Cut with floured cookie cutter in star shapes. Decorate, using colored sugars or candies. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in hot oven (400°F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 3 dozen.

SCOTCH SHORTBREAD
2 cups sifted cake flour
1/2 cup butter
1/4 cup powdered sugar
Sift flour once and measure. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Work in flour, using finger tips. Press into greased pan, 8x8x2 inches, and prick with fork. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 50 minutes, or until delicately browned. Cool slightly and cut in squares before removing from pan. Makes 16 squares. Shortbread may also be cut in triangles or strips.

How Can I?

By Anne Ashley

Q. What is a good fertilizer for a fern?

A. Use sodium chloride eight parts, potassium nitrate four parts, magnesium two parts. Mix and bottle. Dissolve a teaspoonful of this mixture in a quart of water and water the fern about once a week.

Q. What is a good application for burns?

A. Scraped potatoes are a very cooling application for burns and scalds. Change the application frequently.

Q. How can I remove mortar and paint from window glass?

A. Wash with hot, sharp vinegar.

Q. How can I drive away sparrows that are around the eaves and underneath the cornices of the house?

A. They can be driven away if one will make a few cheese-cloth bags, fill with mothballs, and hang them near the haunts of the sparrows.

Q. How can I clear water that has a milky appearance?

A. By dissolving a small piece of rock alum in a pint of boiling water, and using this much to a tub of water.

Q. Should anything be done to a brass kettle that has not been in use for sometime, before using?

A. Yes; wash it with salt and vinegar before using.

Q. How can I clean undressed kid gloves?

A. Try rubbing them very lightly with fine sandpaper.

Q. How can I keep vegetables hot for an hour or so after they are cooked?

A. When cooked, drain and cover securely, then wrap well in paper and set in the oven without fire. They will keep steaming hot for a long time.

Q. How can I prevent fat from splattering on the stove?

A. It will not splatter when frying if a little salt is added to it.

Q. How can I remove a broken cork that has fallen inside a bottle?

A. Pour enough ammonia in the bottle to float the cork and put it away for a few days. The ammonia will eat away enough of the cork to permit its easy removal.

Q. How can I stop the burning of oil?

A. When oil is burning, throw on meal, flour, sand, earth, or gravel. Water spreads the flames and increases the danger.

Q. What can I do if an oven gets too hot while baking a cake?

A. Place a vessel of cold water on the shelf beneath the cake. This will reduce the heat.

YOUNGSTERS' DELIGHT—These two youngsters thrill to the possibilities in what seems to them a prime playhouse. It's a replica of an old British building, built by Col. W. Johnstone on his estate at Burlington, Prince Edward Island. It is just one of many replicas of famous buildings he has created through the years.

Swept Off Feet By a Ghost

When his pretty and vivacious daughter Hettie came knocking at his study door, the Rev. Samuel Wesley, an irascible man at the best of times, slammed down his quill pen and shouted a bad-tempered "Come in!"

Hettie, alone of the nineteen children of the ambitious would-be poet-parson, was not afraid of the Rev. Samuel, one of whose sons was later to become famous as John Wesley, founder of Methodism.

Now she came into the room and said: "Father, the children are being frightened in their beds by very strange noises. Please come and reassure them."

"What nonsense is this!" snorted the parson. "Oh well, I suppose I must come."

When he entered the bedroom all the children were huddled under their bed-clothes. The room was silent as he stood there, with Hettie beside him holding high the flickering candle.

He was about to return to his study, resolved to deal with the culprits next morning for unnecessarily disturbing him, when a sudden loud rapping startled him. A series of terrific knocks reverberated from the bedroom ceiling, followed by curious rumblings.

This, certainly, was not the doing of mischievous children.

"To-morrow," the parson and now rather scared puzzled and announced, "I shall buy a mastiff. We'll soon unearth the rascal who is concealed somewhere in the house and stop this nonsense."

That was on December 1st. Silence had descended on the months of haunting, two months during which the story of the ghost-ridden Rectory at Epworth, Lincolnshire, became a national sensation.

On the following evening Samuel Wesley, now now beside him lay a magnificent mastiff.

Silence had descended on the rectory. Mrs. Wesley and the children were all in bed.

Then suddenly there came from the study ceiling nine terrific raps. Wesley sprang to his feet. The mastiff crouched, whimpering.

Wesley stood, listening. Then, addressing the ceiling, he announced in a loud voice: "If you wish to speak to me, come forth!"

He was answered by nine more knocks, again in a series of threes.

Since the ghost made no sign of materializing as requested, Samuel Wesley decided to abandon work and go to bed.

The next night nothing happened and the poet-parson worried late. But no sooner had he taken his place in bed beside his sleeping wife than a strange noise woke her up.

Both listened in the dark to clanging sounds like the rattling of chains.

"Let us light candles and go through every room in the house," Samuel suggested, nervously.

This they did. But though they could find no intruder, the clanging noises followed them.

They returned to bed now as frightened as their children by these horrid night-time disturbances.

During the weeks that followed the hauntings continued. There were constant loud rappings in the children's bedrooms which caused them to cry out and dive under their bed-clothes.

The visitation began to fray the nerves of the Wesley family and Samuel took to rushing at whatever corner of the room the noise appeared to come from and slashing wildly at it with his stick.

He also took to talking to whoever—or whatever—it was that made the din, challenging it to come to his study "like a man." But the only answer he got was louder raps than ever.

One day, after a more than usually noisy night, Wesley decided to ask the Rev. Hoole, vicar of the neighbouring parish of Hoxley, to come and live in the rectory for a week and give his opinion of the ghostly disturbance.

The vicar of Hoxley duly came. The first evening, after supper, he took the family prayers. While he was praying there came a terrific uproar of raps and clanking noises.

The good vicar was to have stayed in haunted Epworth Rectory for a week, but he fled that night, a thoroughly terrified man!

It was after that that the ghost began new and even more unpleasant forms of hauntings.

One night Samuel and his wife were awakened by something coming down heavily on their bed. But when they sat up to investigate they found nothing.

Worse was soon to follow. One day as Wesley entered his study he was pushed from behind quite violently. He swung round . . . only to find himself alone.

By this time he had taken more and more to shouting at the ghost and his shouting only added to the terror of the younger children. But it had a contrary effect on the four grown girls, in particular on pretty Hettie.

She had for some time made jokes about the ghost, giving him the nickname Old Jeffrey. She had grown accustomed to the thumps and raps and was no longer frightened by them.

But whatever mischievous spirit haunted Epworth Rectory, it did not apparently care about being taken lightly. Very soon the light-hearted attitude of the elder Wesley girls was changed to a sense of fear.

One day Hettie was talking with her sisters in the large dining-room of the rectory when she suddenly stopped and pointed at the door. As the girls' eyes followed Hettie's finger they saw the latch moving.

Hettie was a stout-hearted girl. "I'll take it by surprise," she said. "It's Old Jeffrey."

Tip-toeing to the door, she sized the latch. But it resisted her efforts, held firmly on the other side as though by a strong hand. All her struggles to open the door were in vain.

One evening the four elder girls were seated in their bedroom playing cards when the spook took a hand in the game. It was daylight. They were in happy mood. Old Jeffrey suddenly appeared when suddenly Nancy cried out: "Oh, help! I'm rising in the air!"

As the others stared in astonishment they saw Nancy rise in her chair some feet from the floor and remain suspended.

That amazing phenomenon, vouched for by all four sisters, remains unexplained to this day. Samuel Wesley was almost at his wits' end when an old parson suggested a remedy.

"What ghosties and the like can't abide," he mumbled, "is contrary noises to their own. It's well known, for I heard my grandmother tell of it." He then suggested that to exorcise the ghost he parson should "blow a hunting horn loud through every room in the haunted house."

Samuel Wesley was not a hunting man, nor could he blow a horn. But he hired a huntsman to go through Epworth Rectory blowing his horn.

But this curious method of exorcism had no effect. The loud rappings, the bangs in the night, the rustlings—and the occasional push in the back for the Rev. Samuel—continued.

Then, as suddenly as they had begun, the hauntings ended. Old Jeffrey, having thoroughly upset the Wesley family for two months, during which the temper of its head had become frayed to near frantic point, vanished.

One member of the family did claim to have seen Old Jeffrey once—pretty, gay Hettie who said that she had seen the figure of an old man clad in a long white nightshirt which trailed on the ground.

Nobody believed her. And in fact, some suspected that the whole eerie affair was nothing more or less than a mischievous prank on her part. But there was never any real evidence that she was responsible.

It was towards the end of the hauntings that John Wesley, then a schoolboy at Charterhouse, came home on holiday, heard of the hauntings and very soon experienced them for himself. When he was an old man and world-famous he sat down and wrote a full and circumstantial account of the uncanny events which made life at Epworth a constant nightmare for the family for two months in the year 1716, and made Old Jeffrey one of the best authenticated ghosts in history.

REPENT AT LEISURE

After listening to evidence concerning John Barone's attempt to rob the poor box in a church at New Haven the judge gave him a choice: attend church every Sunday for one year, or speed 30 days in jail. Barone promised to become a churchgoer for one year.

These Kids Go To School by Boat

For school transportation, most children depend on their feet or a bus. But there's one group of young Canadians who answer the call of the school bell each morning after a quarter-mile walk, a bus ride and a boat trip!

They are the 18 youngsters who live on James Island, B.C., just off the south-east coast of Vancouver Island. They start their way by walking to a wharf and climbing aboard a small boat which takes 15 minutes to carry them across the channel. Then they scurry onto a waiting bus for the rest of their complicated journey to school in Victoria.

Their island home, about one mile long and half a mile wide, is the site of an explosives plant of Canadian Industries Limited. Their fathers work at the plant and every day a company boat serves as a "school bus" for children of employees who must attend school in Victoria.

A boat ride is a thrill for most children. But these youngsters are seasoned sailors. After all, they've travelled this stretch of channel since birth, so choppy seas never faze them. However, they do have their thrills, especially in winter months. There are storms which make the most sea-worthy passenger unhappy, if not actually seasick, and stray logs from broken booms sometimes create an obstacle course for the little craft.

But as with most boys and girls, the rougher the weather the more fun. Once in a while, in their exuberance, they want to rough-house a bit but veteran boatman Jim Bond is used to children's antics and has a way of keeping them safely seated. There's never been a "Boy Overboard!" under his watchful eye.

On the return trip at night Jim hears all about the day's activities. To his young passengers he is more than a boatman. He's a companion, confidant and adviser rolled into one. The small shack where he spends his time between scheduled trips is a favorite meeting-place for young islanders. More than once Jim has rescued a would-be Huckleberry Finn carried too far from shore in a home-made boat.

For teen-agers who live so close to the sea, it's handy to have an adult friend who is also a skillful boatman!

"What would you do if I went through your baggage like that?"

Crook Made a Real Hot Haul

A shoe salesman at Miami, Florida, merely laughed when he found that a thief had stolen a dozen sample cases of shoes from his parked car recently. Why was he amused? Because they were all for the left foot. The shoes were later found abandoned by the disappointed thief.

Luck isn't always with the thief, as that incident aptly proves.

One man who stole a leather case from a car in a London street thought he had a valuable haul. Inside he found tubes containing dangerous germs with which the scientist-owner had been experimenting. Hurriedly, the thief dumped the case in an alleyway where it was found by a passer-by and taken to a police station.

The big haul of a lorry thief some year ago was not what he expected. He thought it was nylon, but it proved to be mustard—four tons of it. He decided it was too "hot" to hold—and dropped it into a river.

A burglar who broke into a south coast chemist's shop was delighted to find a safe weighing half a ton. He spent an hour and a half opening it. Inside, instead of wads of banknotes and piles of coins he found—a solitary threepenny piece!

One of the best stories of a blundering thief tells of a man who stole $4,000. He was caught, but refused to reveal where he had hidden his haul. He was sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

When he left prison he was shadowed. He embarked on a cross-Channel steamer at Dover after booking a special cabin. In mid-Channel the detective caught him prising out a panel in the cabin. He confessed that he had hidden the loot behind it—but there was nothing there.

The ship's captain solved the problem. "Five years ago," he said, "this ship was not yet built. The thief must have hidden the money in the former ship which was broken up three years ago while he was in prison. The old ship had the same name as this one."

Someone had found the money—but not the wretched thief who had paid for his theft with five years in jail!

Dentist Puts Teeth Back In

Ten years ago a boxer had one of his front teeth knocked out. While the crowd yelled, he picked it up, wiped it on his shorts and put it back.

Next morning he went to his dentist to have it "replanted." To-day his smile is still perfect.

The other day, too, pretty Mrs. Charlotte Hughes had two of her teeth knocked out in a car crash while on holiday in the south of France. Though a dentist promptly patched her up with two false teeth, she wasn't satisfied.

Over the phone her London dentist told her he could save her teeth if she hurried home. With her teeth in her handbag Mrs. Hughes made the 1,000-mile return trip in the fastest possible time—and all her teeth, too, are still her own.

Tooth transplanting is one of the new wonders of dentistry. A schoolboy had a tooth knocked out during a football game. He kept it in his pocket for a month before telling a dental surgeon. Splinted to adjoining teeth, it was replanted—and in four months was back to normal.

At the headquarters of the new technique—St. Mary's Hospital London—there's a case record of a woman who insisted on having an aching molar extracted. But when the tooth was taken out and shown to her, she murmured, "I've made a mistake. I wish you could put it back!" The tooth was filled on the laboratory bench and successfully replanted.

A famous dental surgeon has had seven of his own teeth successfully replanted. Soon he hopes to be able to boast, "I've had all my teeth out, but I still have all my own teeth!"

Radio Paris recently sent a questionnaire to a great number of listeners-in and one of the questions asked was, "What do you listen to after 9 p.m.?" Exactly 80 per cent of the replies carried only two words: "My wife."

Mumbo Jumbo About Jumbo

Elephants do forget. Their memories are no better than those of other animals. The belief that an elephant never forgets a wrong done to it has no basis in fact, says a United States animal expert who claims to have studied elephants for years. He adds that their mental faculties and general intelligence are in no way outstanding. Not everybody will agree with his views.

The former head of a U.S. zoological park, Dr. William T. Hornaday, was quite sure that "an elephant never forgets." He once said: "The elephant's memory is much longer than that of a dog. This faculty is aided not only by an acute sense of smell, but also by that bulky yet delicately adjusted mechanism, the trunk."

A lorry carrying an old elephant broke down in New Jersey a few years ago. No amount of persuasion could induce the elephant to re-enter it when repairs were completed. Finally she scattered her keepers and lumbered towards her home, twenty miles away.

"That old elephant knew exactly what she was about," commented Dr. Hornaday. "The lorry had broken down and, to use the elephant psychology, she thought that if that happened once, it would occur again. She recalled a place of safety and insisted on going to it."

One of the most unusual stories of elephant memories is told by a Kenya game ranger who, after chasing poachers, was returning to headquarters with his porters carrying recovered ivory when a herd of wild elephants appeared. The porters dropped their loads and went into hiding.

One of the loads was a 40 lb. tusk which a cow elephant picked up and carried off. Native trackers followed the spoor for miles and saw the elephant stop and feed, then pick up the tusk and move on again. The herd was then lost in the gathering darkness.

The ranger believes that the cow elephant's keen sense of smell recognized the tusk as belonging to her mate and that she carried it off to bury it near her favourite feeding ground.

INSULT TO INJURY

A Lexington, man was well and truly drunk, but with what little vestige of sense he had left, decided that sleep was the best plan. He staggered off the road, found a comfortable place and slept.

Time passed and eventually the man was charged by the police for sleeping between railway lines. During his sleep a freight train and cars had run over the lines, the only injury to the sleeper being a badly bruised hip. His protests against the charge were dismissed.

BIGGEST THIRST

West Germans are busy setting up a new world's record as beer drinkers. During 1955 just over 10,000,000 gallons of beer were consumed in Western Germany, making an average of 20 gallons per person, including children, the Ministry of Food reports.

Egyptian forces are reported to have sunk 21 ships in the waterway as they retreated south before the Anglo-French invasion force.

Where Bargaining Is Really Keen

"Tawar" means to bargain in Indonesian, and bargaining is as much a part of life in Java as ice cream cones are American. For the visitor from half a world away it is a ritual to be learned and a rite to be performed.

"Never enter a bicycle taxi until you have settled on a price!" we have been warned over and over again. The toy man trots down Mundinglaja Street blowing his Hallowe'en noisemakers and, like the Pied Piper, he has a parade of children behind him, but these children are Indonesian, Chinese, Dutch, and American — expert bargainers for balloons, masks, and kites.

One of our Javanese friends complained, "I never bargain if I can avoid it. I hate it. It takes too much time in this modern world." But for many it is a sport, a game for sharpening the wits and exercising the hands. One day a university student asked in utter amazement, "But in a democracy, how can you have competition without bargaining?"

I am a stranger here myself, and to bargain or not to bargain is not the question. I take what comes with a stoic attempt at equanimity.

Every morning my favorite pineapple tung, a tall old man wearing shorts, a short-sleeved tan shirt, and an old Panama hat, comes to the window I face as I write. First, I hear his call—"Naanaanaa!" It comes rolling down the street in waves set up by his tukang walk, a quick mincing dance. His two rounded bamboo baskets, which can carry as much as one hundred and twenty pounds apiece, are balanced on a long wooden pole across his shoulders. He stands in front of my desk and the giant "apothecary scale" teeters to rest on the grass. Our Alice in Wonderland conversation begins. Here we are in a free translation from Indonesian writes Donna M. Dickenson in the Christian Science Monitor.

"Pineapple!" he calls loudly until I look up to see his brown weatherbeaten face just above my row of books.

"Are they ripe?" I ask. "Oh, yes," he replies. "They are beautiful, ripe and juicy, and sweet — very sweet. Why don't you try a bite?" He takes a knife from his pocket and I don't have the courage to tell him that I am an American sissy, shrinking from all unwashed knives. I soon find myself on the front porch munching a delicious triangular plug of tree-ripened pineapple.

"How much are they?" I ask with what I hope is just the right shade of indifference. "Fifty cents," he says — this has also been translated into its equivalent in United States currency.

"For one?" I ask in unbelief. "You state your price," he counters.

"What is your best price?" I ask like a child saying—No, you go first.

"Thirty cents," he states firmly. "That is too much," I speak testily, but not too sharply.

"Oh, but my pineapples are the best. They are the sweetest and the cheapest," he insists.

"Fifteen cents — that is what I pay at the market," I toss out hopefully.

"Thank you very much," he calls, sliding his shoulder under the wooden pole, "but my pineapples are better than any you can buy at the market and besides I must earn a living. My children need rice. Thank you very much but I cannot accept your price."

"But I am unable to pay yours," I echo. Still tasting the warm sweet juice, I add, "Twenty cents for one."

"Will you buy five?" he questions, for in this land of milk and honey costs go down one hundred per cent if you buy in quantity. "Four," I answer.

"Twenty-five cents is my last price," he cautions.

I talk Dutch to myself and say, "Five pineapples for one dollar."

He says, "OK" — boleh in Indonesian rhymes with OK. The deal is closed, our wits supposedly sharpened for one day.

The tukang represent a hundred enterprises. Some buy old bottles, empty cans, magazines, and clothes. Some sharpen knives. One is a romantic serenader who trills down the street at night pushing a two-wheeled diner. He sells Chinese noodles and an Indonesian cooked salad made with cabbage, cucumber, green beans, and bamboo sprouts — always served with red pepper hot peanut sauce.

Our most interesting traveling salesmen are the antique dealers. They are all sizes and so are their bundles, big white shapeless masses, wrapped and tied at the top like a hobo's pack. When they are opened on the front porch, the world of Asia tumbles out.

Here is a black snake-shaped crease in a golden sheath with an intricately carved wooden handle. "This needs care," I am warned. "It will give you a lot of trouble if the blade is not given a special ceremony once a year. First, you must cover the blade with lime juice, then it must be rubbed with coconut oil for the metal and then with arsenic for the enemy," he explains.

There are bells and silver fruit bowls, old batik cloth, and alligator purses. Like antique treasures everywhere, they are very old — hundreds of years old. A buyer would do well to learn ahead of bargaining time what a Ming vase looks like and how to distinguish old brass from new.

Many things affect prices, including the nationality of the buyer. Americans pay more for servants, bicycle taxis, fruit, and night watchmen. They pay more than wealthy European businessmen and millionaire Chinese. Soon after our arrival in Java, we were apprised of this situation by a British Government official. "The Dutch don't pay a living wage," he said drily. "Americans pay too much for everything and spoil things for the rest of us."

Then in that uncanny way the British have of being perfect and perfectly willing to admit it, he added, "We British pay just the right amount." Like most Europeans, he does not realize that our servants would not accept any other state of affairs, especially since for American families they work harder and longer hours for their higher wages.

COCK-A-DOODLE DAWDLER

A policeman, leisurely pounding his best along a busy street in Kansas City, was puzzled by strident cock-crowing at regular intervals. He decided to satisfy his curiosity, and eventually came upon a dawdling pedestrian who, every now and then, stopped and gave out a lusty cock-a-doodle-doo!

Red-faced, the "rooster" explained: "I'm trying to find my wife. I'm to meet her here, but she's late. She knows my crow. I practise all the time around the house."

THE FARM FRONT

by John Russell

Canada's poultry industry, it considered on a dollar basis has increased four fold since pre-war days and ranks fifth in agriculture on the basis of farm cash income. In relation to products of the forest and mine, the value of the poultry industry exceeds copper, nickel, iron ore, structural material and asbestos. Only in 1955 did the value of crude petroleum at the well head exceed that of the poultry industry.

There has been a tremendous transition in the poultry industry in the last few years. Production has become highly specialized, processing is now done on a gigantic scale and marketing methods are receiving more attention than ever before. Broiler production is largely responsible for this recent trend towards specialization. Ten years ago the chicken broiler was just beginning to seriously take root in Canada. It soon became evident that broilers could be produced in large numbers with a quick crop turnover at a relatively low labor cost. Broiler chickens can be finished for market in from nine to ten weeks and turkey broilers can be handled in approximately 12 to 14 weeks. This means a specialized broiler producer can handle about three and one-half crops per year.

If a poultry man raises 20,000 broilers at a time he will have a turnover of approximately 70,000 birds annually. This represents a total of approximately 210,000 pounds of poultry meat, assuming an average live weight of three pounds for each bird. This production in terms of meat is equivalent to slightly over 1,000 hogs at 200 pounds live weight or 500 steers that put on a gain of 400 pounds each. Poultry production, as these figures indicate, is no longer a sideline enterprise.

Another outstanding feature which has made the broiler so attractive from a producer's viewpoint, is its ability to convert feed into meat. No other meat animal can compare with the broiler in this respect and although the hog is the closest competitor, it is 20 per cent less efficient. It is not uncommon to produce a pound of live weight on a broiler with 2.6 pounds of feed.

Turkey broilers have followed the same pattern as chickens over the last five to ten years. Turkeys used to be produced primarily for Christmas and Thanksgiving and although the big volume is still at those seasons they are now sold more generally throughout the year. The small sized turkey is competing actively with the roasting chicken and has influenced the trend toward broiler production. This has resulted in a substantial increase in turkey-growing in Canada.

Poultry marketings in 1955 were 45 per cent higher than the 1943-47 period — which up to then was a record — and egg marketings were up 4 per cent. During the war years large quantities of poultry and eggs were exported but today the bulk is consumed on the home market.

Turkey marketings through Canadian processing plants have increased from 18 million pounds in 1951 to 41 million pounds in 1955. The original work done in Canada in the development of the broadbreasted bronze turkey has played a part in the growth of the turkey industry. Similar work in chicken breeding has led to the development of better chicken meat strains and higher egg production.

The manner in which the broiler industry has expanded is far beyond early predictions. Eviscerated and cut-up chicken is as much a standard product in most self-serve counters today as sausage and bacon. This expansion has presented a challenge to poultry breeders, broiler growers, hatchery operators, processing plant operators and marketing agencies. Operations are now on a year round basis and specialization seems to be the key to the future of the poultry industry. The consumer is growing more demanding in all respects and it is not stretching the imagination too far to see production and marketings doubled again within the next few years.

Although the total egg production potential of the laying flock is important, the rate at which production is maintained is highly important to a profitable enterprise, says T. M. MacInyre, Senior Poultryman at the Experimental Farm, Nappan, N.S.

A flock laying at the rate of 60 per cent will produce 15 dozen eggs per hen in a 300 day laying period. With eggs selling at 40 cents per dozen, this gives a return of $6. If egg production could be maintained at 70 per cent, the average production per hen of this same flock would be 17.5 dozen eggs worth $7. This means an increased income of $1 per bird or $1,000 on a flock of 1,000 birds. The importance of sustained high production is obvious.

It has also been found that as production increases the cost of production per dozen decreases. Experimental work has shown that a five pound hen laying at the rate of 180 eggs per year requires about five pounds of feed per dozen eggs. A similar hen laying at the rate of 200 eggs per year requires only about four and one-half pounds of feed per dozen eggs. This represents a saving of one-half pound of feed per dozen eggs or about 2 cents per dozen. Based on a flock of 1,000 birds this represents a saving of about $350 per year.

Dry-Cleaning — Then And Now

Have you ever had qualms about requesting "fast service" dry-cleaning for a favorite garment?

Actually, it will be returned to you just as immaculate in one hour as it would be in one week. Speedy service doesn't mean a sacrifice in quality.

Fast service is made possible by a chemical cleaning agent which, because it is non-inflammable, can be used right on the cleaner's premises. Since garments needn't be sent out for cleaning, the customer gets his best suit back again in a matter of hours, instead of days.

This comparatively new cleaning agent is called perchlorethylene. Dry cleaners like it because the solvent can be recovered easily from the fabric and used again — a saving in cost of cleaning. This also means odorless cleaning since so little solvent remains in the garment.

We're becoming fussier now that chemistry seems to be answering our every whim. There was a time when a dress smelling like a miniature oil refinery was a badge of distinction. The first dry cleaning — about a hundred years ago — was a luxury. It's easy to see why.

Procedure called for the cleaner to rip the garment apart and dip each part separately in bowls of highly inflammable fluid — usually gasoline or naphtha. Next, he laid the pieces on a board and rubbed them with brushes and flannel cloths. Finally, when the pieces were dry, he remade the garment! No wonder most clothes stayed dirty!

Although methods of dry-cleaning have made tremendous strides with the development of modern solvents, the skill of the

Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled John 14: 1-14

Memory Selection: Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. John 14:1.

People everywhere are longing for peace. It is therefore no accident that books dealing with personal inner security have in recent years found a ready sale. We see them in the bookstores written by Jews, Roman Catholics and Protestants. Each of these writers is attempting to give the reading public a formula for achieving what men deep down in their hearts want most, namely, peace of mind or peace of soul. Fundamentally this is what Confucius sought. This is what Buddha craved. Stoic and Epicurean searched for it. Dante, the medieval Christian, left Florence in quest for it.

Most present day writers on this theme are schooled in psychology and psychiatry. They know how the mind works. They are doing something worthwhile in helping people to think positively. Our complaint is that much of this writing bespeaks more familiarity with the working of the human mind than with the mind that is in Christ Jesus. It falls short of being redemptive. Jesus said, "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Yet not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." 14:28. To inherit real peace calls for a complete surrender of ourselves to Jesus Christ. He will work a miracle in the life. The mere cultivation of good habits of thinking will fall short of the goal. But Jesus Christ in a moment will dispel our fears and give peace. As we walk daily with Him and learn more fully to cast our care upon Him that peace will deepen. A vital experience of faith in Jesus Christ who shed his blood for us and rose again the third day as Lord over death will do more to bring peace than all the best sellers on peace can possibly do. We need Jesus Christ. But we must turn our back on our sins before He will enter our heart to reign. He is the Prince of Peace.

Jesus Christ is the Way to heaven. He is also the Way to happiness in this life.

Soldier Hero Scared by Bee

What is your pet fear? Perhaps you think you have none, but if you reflect for a moment you will realize that there is at least one fear that obsesses you.

All humanity fears something, say psychologists who have recently been studying the queer phobias of men and women. Many grotesque fears can be explained by psychologists, but some are puzzling.

Why is it, for instance, that some people cannot stroke velvet without having a feeling of revulsion? Why do flowers have a queer effect on some men? An old artist named Vincent swooned if he went near a bunch of roses.

A French doctor once described the case of an ex-soldier with several military decorations for bravery who was always "stricken with terror" by the buzz of a bee.

To-day there are many people who suffer from what scientists call neophobia—the fear of anything new. Some who could quite well afford to have new clothes have been known to delay buying them as long as possible to avoid the disagreeable feeling of wearing them.

CANADIANS COP SIX OF WORLD GRAIN TITLES AT WINTER FAIR

Judging by the trophies they have in hand, these exhibitors were well rewarded for their entries at Royal Winter Fair, held in Toronto. To Mr. and Mrs. E. Pincosy, at left, of Salmon Arm, B.C., went the world potato-raising title, after their netted gem variety won the nod from judges at the fair. Also a world titlist—for the second time—Harry N. Gorsline, at right, of Demorestville, Ont., won first prize for rye with an entry of the Tetra Petkus variety. The presentations, made in the fair's seed grain department, saw winners in attendance from as far away as England and British Columbia. Six of eight world grain titles went to Canadians.

STRADER'S HILL

Well folks, have you worked out the new jig saw puzzle—by that we mean the new telephone system.
We are glad to see Mrs. Aggie Casselman and Mahlon have installed TV.
Mr. Ferguson Froats and Thelma spent Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Alton Riddell, John and Patsy.

Mrs. Cecil Hanson and children spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Whitteker.
Mr. Tony Westonbrook spent the past week at Stratford.
Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Serviss spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Alton Riddell, John and Patsy.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Reddeck and Mrs. Eva Strader, Smiths Falls, were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Wells Tuesday evening.
Mrs. Mason Casselman, Iroquois, returned to her home in Iroquois Sunday night after spending the past three weeks with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Riddell. While visiting her daughter, Mrs. Casselman celebrated her 75th birthday. The family sat down to a chicken dinner and a beautiful birthday cake centered the dining room table. Congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wells took a tour of the seaway Sunday travelling as far east to Cornwall returning to the home of their daughter and family where they had six o'clock dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Gow and family.
Mr. Kenneth McGowan, Francis Barkley, Dennis Coleman and Arthur Lewis called on Mr. Alton Riddell, Wednesday.
Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Gow, and family, of Hoasic, had dinner with her parents on Sunday evening.
Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Strader, Mrs. Pearl Strader and Mrs. Doris Hill spent Friday at Cornwall.
Mr. Raymond Price, Halifax, made several visits this past week with his friend, Lyle Wells.
Mr. and Mrs. Bill Casselman Jr. and family, of Williamsburg, spent Sunday with the Strader family.
We are glad to report Mr. Tony Westonbrook was able to return to work on the seaway this week after having had his toe amputated a few weeks ago. Mrs. Doris Hill and family, of Williamsburg, spent Saturday at the Strader home.

THE BEAR THAT CAME ONCE TOO OFTEN

One bear that came once too often to steal honey is this 450-pound monster shot by beekeeper Edwin Byers of Queensboro, Ont. Byers had lost 20 winter bee colonies to Mr. Bruin, so he sat in a packing case for seven hours with a 12-gauge, double-barrelled shotgun at his side waiting for the bear to appear again. When the marauder did show up, Byers did not miss. It is the seventh bear he has shot in the past three years.

To The Electors of The Township of Matilda

Ladies and Gentlemen:
I wish in this way to convey to you my grateful thanks for the support you accorded me in Monday's election, which elected me as one of your School
Trustees for the coming year.
All may rest assured that I

To The Electors of The Township of Matilda

Ladies and Gentlemen:
It is with grateful thanks that I tender my appreciation of the generous support accorded me in Monday's election when you elected me at the head of the poll as one of your councillors for the coming year.
Next year I will start my 31st year of serving the ratepayers and citizens of Matilda Township on the Council Board. I assure one and all that I will to the best of my ability continue to serve you in the best interests of the township as a whole.
"Equal rights to all and special

ANNE HIRST

Your Family Counselor

"Dear Ann Hirst: I've been so stupid I could hide my face in shame! Some months ago I ran into a young man I used to be in love with. He had married, but said they couldn't get along and had decided on a divorce. I was so happy to see him again, I made the mistake of dating him often; my mother was violently opposed to it, but I wouldn't listen.

"The news got around that I was going with a married man, and my friends began to look the other way.

"Now the man and his wife have changed their minds about the divorce, and I am really forsaken! I shall never see him again, you can be sure of that. I explained it all to my best girl friend, who understands. But I miss the others I've lost. How can I get them back?

HEARTBROKEN."

GIRLS MUST PAY

* You have a long road to tread. You will have to show everybody you are not the same girl who took the wrong turn; you will have to be more discreet than you've been in your life. When you go out, it will be with your family's friends and with this loyal girl. If you date any boys at all, be sure they are those that your crowd have known and accepted. You must be seen only in nice * places, and never late at night.

* These are the simple gestures that will convince your friends that you are the same good girl they knew, and that your fling in forbidden fields was only a temporary lapse of judgment.

* There is much talk about the laxity of modern conduct and casual behavior. But the majority of people, particularly those who set a community's social standards, turn thumbs down on any girl who breaks the accustomed rules.

* This you did, and for a while, you must suffer the consequences.
* Be thankful that people's memories are short. Someone else will be indiscreet and engage their minds (and tongues), and after a time they will recognize you again as a girl they welcome in their group.

* Watch your step, and wait patiently for that day. It will come.

WEDDING PROBLEM

"Dear Anne Hirst: It may be news to you, but there are some parents today who have never attended a church wedding and we are two of them. My daughter is to be married in two months, and we want her to be married properly. The lad's family know all the correct things to do, and we certainly don't want our girl to be ashamed of us.

"Can you give me some idea of what we say to people after the ceremony, and what we are supposed to do at the reception? Tell me everything you can, please.

MRS. R. F."

* I would gladly give you such information if there were space here. Since there isn't, why don't you borrow Emily Post's wedding book from your library?
* Mrs. Post is considered the highest authority on social customs today, and gives you clearer, correct information on every detail.

When a girl breaks a social rule she often finds for the first time how precious is her reputation. If you have offended, tell Anne Hirst about it and let her guide you back to the right road. Write her at Box, 123 Eighteenth St. New Toronto, Ont.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

by Gwendoline P. Clarke

Two months ago we had never even heard of "Elliott Lake" in the Blind River district. Now we are continually bumping into people who have been, or are presently going, to Elliott Lake. And this morning along came one of our farm papers with an article on that same district. Perhaps this is not surprising when we consider that house foundations are being poured at the rate of twenty-five each week for employees of the uranium mines, many of whom until now have been living in trailers. Community centres are being planned and are referred to as Neighbourhood 1, 2 and 3. Each will have its own school, shopping centre, recreational park and presumably its churches. Neighbourhood 1 is now nearing completion. In six years time Elliott Lake is expected to have a population of 20,000. All this is fresh in my mind as our nephew-in-law flew in Sudbury last Wednesday night and stayed here with Babs and the children until Sunday afternoon. He brought good news with him... their six-room, two-storey house will be ready for occupancy by December 1. This speeded up their plans down here considerably. So, to help them finish their round of visits before going north, Bob and Joy came up on Sunday, loaded the car with Babs, the children, cot, clothes, toys and what have you, and took them down to Oakville for a week's visit before they move on to the grandparents' home near London. Enroute they took Daddy to the airport at Malton.

After they had all gone a strange quietness settled over Ginger Farm. It reminded me of the time we crossed the Atlantic by boat many years ago. The liner carried three propellers and in my cabin I got the full benefit of the noise and vibration. It was terrific and I wondered how I was ever going to stand it. And then one night, towards the end of the journey, we were fog-bound. The boat dropped anchor; the roar of the propellers ceased and the uncanny, quietness on board was more disturbing than the previous roar. The only sound to break the eerie stillness was the booming of the fog-horn.

And so it is with the children gone—the stillness seems unreal. No more little pattering feet; no more crying, or laughing, or answering questions that never ceased. No more putting things out of reach or of rescuing Mitche-White from tail-pulling Nancy. No more interruptions as we try to keep abreast of world-shaking news by radio, television and newspaper. Perhaps, too, all things considered the visit came to an end at a good time. Winter was suddenly upon us; Partner had developed a bad attack of arthritis, his left hand and arm being practically useless, partly as the result of wrestling with cordwood up in the bush. And I had managed to pick up some more cold. So a little extra rest for both of us was very welcome. And believe me, we took it. Just the same we miss those children.

Was there ever such a sudden change in the weather? After weeks of mild, muggy days and nights, the temperature here, during that first cold night, dropped to seventeen. Methinks I must have been given a premonition or something as the day before the weather changed we had the car winterized and the snowtires put on. That same cold morning a car was stalled right in our laneway. A good Samaritan, in the form of our baker, pushed the stalled car up the lane, out again and quite a piece along the road before it actually got going under its own power. Previous to that we noticed a man and a boy walking up the lane, probably coming for help, but they evidently heard Rusty barking and changed their minds. Anyway they were running down the lane again, back to the car. Rusty was tied up but they couldn't know it.

Speaking of Rusty... about an hour after our visitors departed, Rusty sat at the top of the lane, lifted his head and howled. He is the best dog with children we ever had. Nancy would sit on him, roll over him, pull his ears and Rusty would take it all in good part. I don't think Robbie would have been nearly so tolerant. Robbie was like a child himself and wanted his share of attention. In his new home he certainly gets it. In fact he is living a dog's version of the life of Riley.

Well, no one would know from what I have written thus far whether we are aware of what is taking place in world affairs. We are certainly aware all right but at the moment I couldn't make an intelligent comment if I tried. Except this—Remembrance Day has come and gone, and surely it must have been the most incongruous remembrance day the world has ever known.

Barrel-Organ Blues

You don't often hear the sound of a barrel-organ in the streets of London to-day, but it's said that at least one firm still hires out a few organs regularly.

The price paid by street musicians for the hire of a barrel-organ used to be 3s. a day. But like everything else it's gone up. And barrel-organists lament that they now have to pay from 4s. to 7s., according to the quality of the organ and the variety of tunes it is capable of playing.

Before the first world war two men with a barrel-organ would often start out at 6 a.m. and play non-stop till midnight in all weathers, making up to £5 a week between them—good money in those days. But pulling an organ weighing about 225 lb. a distance of twenty to twenty-five miles a day was a strenuous business.

To-days surviving barrel-organists tend to concentrate on cinema queues, although one stated that he does very well playing in some of the more exclusive London squares.

Years ago a young peer, who had been disinherited by his family, hired a barrel-organ and toured the London streets with a large placard announcing his title and the nature of the quarrel which had led to his being cut off with a shilling.

He collected $75 in a fortnight's playing.

In those days society women often hired barrel-organs for charity bazaars and medical students used them to raise money for hospitals.

Girls Foil Fat By Fencing

If you encounter an attractive girl with a neat figure, slim ankles and an alert eye, she may be one of the thousands who have taken up fencing.

Women from thirteen countries recently competed in the world fencing championships in London. You had only to look at them to realize that fencing makes for graceful physique.

Lovely Fraulein Waltraut Ebert, five times junior champion of Austria, is only twenty-one and fencing has given her a perfect figure.

"The constant use of fencing foils entails such continuous rhythmic movement and such delicate use of almost every muscle in the body that perfect physical development frequently results from fencing practice," a fencing master says.

"Constant footwork makes for slim ankles, and supple wrists result from the light and dexterous turning of the foil. Left-handed fencing is often practised so that both wrists may benefit equally."

Experts say that the age of fencing is only just beginning.

It's a comparatively cheap sport, too, and lots of women are taking it up merely as a slimming exercise.

"Fencing has also a good mental effect on those who practise it. It sharpens the intelligence, and instills patience, courtesy, quickness and balance of mind," says an expert who trains working men and women at his fencing academy in the North of England.

"Motorists and tennis players find that fencing brings out speed in eye and hand and quick reaction to circumstances," he adds.

Modern Etiquette...

Q. What are the occasions when sending flowers is really obligatory?

A. To the funeral of a friend, or a member of a good friend's family. To an intimate friend who is—or has been—seriously ill. To neighbors who give an anniversary party. To a guest speaker, when we are the hosts.

Q. Should a hostess rise when greeting a guest who has just arrived, and other guests are already present?

A. Yes, always. A hostess is very discourteous who does not rise to greet every guest, and also when taking leave of each departing guest.

Q. How should one eat breakfast bacon, with the fingers or a fork?

A. When possible, with the fork. But when it is very dry and crisp and scatters into fragments when broken by the fork, fingers are permitted.

Q. How should the invitations be worded if the bride is a young widow?

A. They should be issued in the names of her parents, just as the invitations to her first wedding were. Thus: "Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Miller request the honour of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Ruth Miller Johnson, to, etc."

Q. I recently saw a man dining in a restaurant snap his fingers in order to attract the attention of the waiter. Isn't this considered rude?

A. This is exceedingly ill-bred! He should always wait until he catches the waiter's eye, then an inclination of the head will do the trick.

Q. Is there any rule as to who should make the introductions at an informal home gathering—the host or the hostess?

A. No. Either may do this.

Q. What should a tardy dinner guest do when he arrives and finds the other guests in a home already eating?

A. Apologize to his hostess by all means, and explain the reason for his tardiness. The hostess must never take the guest to task, but should say something polite and conciliatory, as, "I'm sure you didn't want us to wait dinner."

Q. By whom should the first gesture of friendship be made, by the family of the man or of the girl, when they have become engaged?

A. By the family of the man.

Q. Is it really obligatory to send a gift when one has received an announcement of a birth?

A. This is not exactly obligatory, but it is customary to do so.

Q. Should a woman traveller wear a hat in the dining-car of a train?

A. This is entirely optional.

Costly Whistle

Wolves are having a time of it in the Middle East—both kinds of wolves, those with four and those with two legs. In Cairo, a two-legged "wolf" whistled after an attractive woman, who called a policeman. The wolf was jailed for six months for disturbing the peace.

On the same day, in the Jordan village of Nisf Egbeel, the wife of a farmer, Hassan Ali, arrived at her front door dragging a full-grown wolf—of the four-legged type—behind her. She had strangled it after a half-hour battle.

BIGGEST IN THE FLEET — New ships of the West German fleet attract a crowd at the waterfront in Hamburg. The mine sweepers were the first German ships to visit the North Sea port since World War II. Presently the biggest ships in the tiny West German Navy, the minesweepers belong to a mine sweeper squadron of five vessels.

"Use Corn Starch For Tender Cookies!"

CHOCOLATE SHORTBREAD COOKIES

1/2 cup BENSON'S or CANADA Corn Starch
3/4 cup icing sugar
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons cocoa
1 cup butter

SIFT together BENSON'S or CANADA Corn Starch, icing sugar, flour and cocoa into bowl. (Have butter at room temperature.)

BLEND butter into dry ingredients with a spoon until a soft dough is formed.

SHAPE into balls about 1-inch in diameter.

PLACE on ungreased cookie sheet about 1 1/2 inches apart.

FLATTEN dough with lightly floured fork.

BAKE in slow oven (300°F.) 20 to 25 minutes, or until edges of cookies are lightly browned.

YIELD: 3 to 4 dozen.

Note: If dough is very soft, cover and chill 1/2 hour.

When John Dundee Heard the Birdies

Johnny Dundee took on more than 300 fighters during his 22 years in the ring, but none gave him more trouble than fleet little Willie Jackson.

In fact Jackson, the Jewish featherweight from New York's East Side, was the only one of Dundee's opponents ever to KO the 130-pound Italian when he was a first-class fighting machine.

That knockout was in Philadelphia, Jan. 15, 1917. It was quick—and sudden.

Only two and a half minutes of the first round of the fight had elapsed. The men were just beginning to get warmed up for their work. Fans were hardly seated, and interest in the bout had not seized them, when Jackson uncorked a right-cross to the jaw that caught Johnny head-on and sent him sprawling, face down, to the mat, writes George Roberts in "The Police Gazette."

The crowd rose to its feet with a roar. They couldn't believe their eyes, but the unexpected had happened—Johnny Dundee was knocked out.

The Police Gazette Ringsider recalled that a few seconds before Dundee took the punch that knocked him tottering into dreamland, he had received a warning when he rushed pell-mell into one of Jackson's right swings. Johnny paid no heed to this, but attempted to "bull" Jackson across the ring. He succeeded in doing this, but it spelled calamity for him.

"He had Jackson wedged against the ropes and was using his left to hold him off so that he could fight with his right. Suddenly, a clean, well-executed right shot out. The blow came too quickly for Dundee to duck. He, himself, was hitting, and every muscle in his body was tense. The blow was met with the resistance of his 130 pounds, and as it caught the little Italian on the jaw, there was nothing for Joseph Carrara to do but go 'out.'"

Dundee went to the floor as though an avalanche had descended upon him. He was hurt. He went face downward and did not show a single sign of life until the referee had mechanically tolled off the count of eight. Then the dominating fighting spirit that always showed itself in Dundee, and which was partly responsible for the New Yorker's knockout, asserted itself.

"Nine," bellowed the referee. Dundee arose to one knee and tried vainly to get up. But there was no reserve energy to call upon. With the punch on the jaw all Dundee's strength had oozed away.

"Ten," was heard all over the hall. Dundee's eyes were still glassy and staring. His arms hung loosely by his sides. He was knocked out.

His seconds worked over him for several minutes, and still he did not recuperate enough to walk from the ring. He was carried out.

TESTIFIES—A student leader of the Hungarian revolt, disguised to hide his identity, appears before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee in Washington, which is investigating the tactics and scope of world communism. The youth told the committee that some 25,000 of his countrymen had been killed in their fight for freedom up to November 4.

NAMED MOST VALUABLE PLAYER—Brooklyn Dodger pitcher Don Newcombe, mixing a drink in his new bar and liquor store, flashes a smile after being informed that he has been voted the National League's Most Valuable Player for 1956.

FEARS OF JOY—Weeping with relief and happiness, a Hungarian refugee woman is comforted by a British charity worker on arrival at Blackbushe, England, from Austria. She was one of a group of 63 Hungarian refugees who escaped the Russian terror in her homeland.

ried bodily to his dressing-room, the Ringsider said.

At the start of the battle, Dundee, who was well primed, rushed out of his corner like an express train. It was not long before he had Jackson on the wing. He tore after his boxing rival from his own city as though he were bent on ending the contest as quickly as possible. Willie led him a merry chase from rope to rope, content now and then to slip over a left jab. Then there was a momentary lull.

Dundee, with wanton disregard for safety, had stood up and pumped punches into Jackson when the latter was on the ropes on the southern side of the ring. It was here that Johnny received the first right that should have made him stop and think it over, but he attempted a final wild rush which resulted in his knockout.

It was announced that Dundee weighed 130 pounds and Jackson 128. Johnny looked to be in a superb condition and Jackson likewise, except for two plasters, one over each eye.

Many spectators thought that Dundee held his opponent altogether too cheaply. He didn't take into consideration that he was to get even a warm-up from Jackson. This, however, was not entirely so. Johnny fought Jackson as he did his many other opponents, but he was hit 'right' and there was nothing to stop the blow.

Many thought it was a chance blow—an accident. Possibly that one was, but it must be remembered that these two batters met in the ring many times since then and that Dundee didn't have a snap on any of the occasions. That same year, 1917, they fought a ten-round, no-decision battle in New York. On March 25, 1918, at New Haven, a match between them ended in a draw after twelve rounds. On Sept. 1, 1919, the result of their ten-round bout at Jersey City was no decision and, had one been allowed, it would probably have been a draw, the Ringsider declared.

They fought another eight-round, no-decision bout at Jersey City on March 8, 1920, and a ten-round bout with the same result at Newark three months later. They went to Boston and staged a twelve-round draw on June 13 and, coming back to New York on Nov. 29, 1920, fought fifteen rounds, which were decided a draw.

Dundee never did succeed in getting Willie's number, for on Feb. 25, 1921, in New York, they fought for the last time and Jackson won a decision after a fifteen-round scrap.

But Dundee had the last satisfaction for he stayed in the ring another ten years, while Jackson, after his last victory over Dundee, fought only one more year. A month after he whipped Johnny, Jackson lost a 12-round decision to Rocky Kansas. He won only one fight in 1922 and after being knocked out by Johnny Shugrue in Jersey City Dec. 4, Willie retired.

He is 59 now and is still working. A salesman for a twine and paper firm, Willie finds most of his customers in New York City's garment district, a haven for fight fans.

Dundee practically had another career after his last fight with Jackson. He took a fifteen-round decision from Jack Sharkey July 8, 1922, won the world's featherweight crown from Eugene Ciqui in New York July 26, 1923, and on Dec. 17 of the same year whipped Jack Bernstein in 15 rounds for the junior lightweight title.

Dundee lost the latter crown to Kid Sullivan on June 20, 1924, and resigned his featherweight title Aug. 10.

It was in the twilight of his career on Sept. 25, 1929, that Johnny was KO'd again, this time by Al Foreman in the tenth round of a battle at Montreal.

Johnny fought four more fights and hung up his gloves for keeps after losing a 10-rounder to Al Dunbar in Brooklyn in 1932. He was then 39 years old—and his incredible career had started way back in 1910.

Saw Lincoln Murder

A 96-year-old man who was believed to be the last living witness of a murder that shocked the whole world has died in the United States, it's said. He was Mr. Samuel James Seymour who as a boy of five saw President Lincoln assassinated by John Wilkes Booth, in a Washington theatre.

The boy had been taken to the theatre by his father to see a gala performance of a play called "Our American Cousin." When the President entered his flag-draped box, little Samuel was lifted up by his father to get a better view of him. He "looked stern because of his whiskers" the boy thought.

A few moments later John Wilkes Booth, later described as "a demented actor," crept into the box armed with a knife and revolver. He sprang upon the President, fired a shot and then, leaping to the stage, made off through the wings.

Young Samuel and his father, like everybody else present, were horrified by the tragedy. The assassin was later cornered in a barn where he had fled for refuge, and was shot dead by troops.

Saves Cats' Lives

Cat-loving Mr. Vincent Patterson, of New York, has one of the world's oddest jobs. In the past three years he has saved the lives of 5,000 American cats. If it's true that every cat has nine lives, then he's saved 45,000!

He's employed by the city authorities to care for cats which get into trouble by being too venturesome. Skyscrapers, for instance, fascinate New York cats and when one climbs out to a dizzy point from which it can't extricate itself, Mr. Patterson is called for.

He uses a special cat-catching net and ladders and although he's often been badly clawed by a scared pussy, he doesn't mind.

Mr. Patterson has crawled under cars and lorries in busy streets to catch cats which jeopardize their lives by running and staying under them. He's even gone down drains after cats.

Expense No Object

Pilot Bob Gray, his wife and seven-year-old son have just spent $900 on a taxi ride from Rome to South Shields. It was a 1,400 mile trip, taking nine days across the continent. When the party reached Le Touquet, they and the taxi flew to Lydd.

Mrs. Gray whose husband was pilot in Afghanistan and the government, commented afterwards. "It was a crazy idea, but we had a wonderful journey."

Another long-distance taxi ride cost the hirer $300. He was a Norwegian, stranded by fog in Hamburg, and in order to get back home he made use of German, Danish, Swedish and Norwegian taxis.

Expense appears to be no object when a man has set his heart on a particular course.

In May, 1955, a New Zealand fisherman got toothache, so he chartered a plane to fly 100 miles to one dentist, then flew by scheduled airline to a second dentist. He paid only $2.00 for the extraction but the round trip (he returned home by sea) cost $225.00.

"I'll make that up to-morrow selling lobsters to a night club," he declared.

Some people are willing to pay anything to keep their pets happy. The owner of a poodle which appeared in Hyde Park during the winter of 1955 had spent $75.00 on a black Persian lamb overcoat for the dog. And it has cost Australian Mrs. Marjory Reynolds $600.00 in fares and lodging expenses to keep her little mongrel with her. Given to Mrs. Reynolds in Libya, the dog has travelled to Australia via England, to France and Tripoli and finally back to England again.

Diana Dors was willing recently to spend $7500.00 on a hair style. That was what it cost her to pay Mr. Tessie-Weasie's fare from Mayfair to Hollywood and compensation to him for being away from work.

Another film star recently spent $1500.00 on a two-day flying visit to his wife. Not surprising when you realize that the wife is glamorous Cyd Charisse. Husband Tony Martin was filming in England and his wife had to fly back to Hollywood.

After a month he just couldn't stand the separation any more, so he hopped on a plane, spent two days with her, and then returned to complete the film.

Another expensive trans-Atlantic trip was made by Victor Mature a few months ago. His purpose was rather different. Apparently his London hotel didn't provide the bathing facilities he expected, so he took the next plane to New York, over 3,000 miles away got himself clean there and then flew back to London for his appointment.

Really determined people don't seem to care what it costs them to fulfil a whim. Marie de Medici, a seventeenth-century Queen of France decided she must have the most dazzling dress that had ever been made. So, at a cost of fifteen million dollars a dress was designed and embroidered with 39,000 pearls and 3,000 diamonds. And then the queen wore it only once.

NOT SO FUNNY

Dick Mbululu, a Basuto, will probably never look at another comic as long as he lives. Because of a comic he is serving six months in jail.

Mbululu has a passion for comics and so when he broke into a Johannesburg house a short while ago and saw a stack of them, he sat down and began to look through them. His happy laughter stopped abruptly when the householder returned and nabbed him, still laughing at the antics of the people in the comics.

Beautiful Flower Blooming Nuisance

A lovely flower, the water hyacinth, is threatening to choke the waterways and fishing grounds of East Africa. In a warning to the public, the Uganda Government says the flower, which grows at an incredible speed, spreading its tentacles swiftly, is making fishing and navigation difficult on parts of the River Congo and its tributaries and is now a grave threat to Uganda and the Nile water system.

A single rosette of the plant is sufficient to cover a large water surface within a few months. Past experience has shown that, once established, the flower's complete eradication is well-nigh impossible.

In the United States it was found that in eight months ten of these exotic plants increased to more than 600,000. A 250ft. tug was powerless to fight its way through the tangle of stems and roots.

Great masses of this lovely flower have been known to block the waterways of the Mississippi and become jammed against the bridges. Relief parties had to use saws and dynamite to clear a way through the entangled roots.

The plants' original home was Brazil from where it was first exported at the beginning of the century. Since then it has caused immeasurable damage amounting, say some experts, to $60 million a year.

To The Electors of The Township of Matilda

May I sincerely thank you for the confidence you have again placed in me by electing me as your reeve by acclamation for 1957.

You have also elected your council to work with me during the forth-coming year. Let me assure you that we shall be guided by those grand principles of fairness, which tend to make us all social and humane. I appeal to you all for your usual wholehearted cooperation during the days that lie ahead; also the many problems which we will be called on to face; namely, first the general work of the township; secondly, the great power and seaway projects, which we are now engaged in and which are so vital to us — especially those home owners within the area.

My experience has taught me to go forward with our hand in the hand of God. That shall be to us better than light and safer than the known way. Then and only then shall we be fitted for that duty that we all owe to each other towards making our township a happier and more prosperous place to live.

My kindest regards to all.

And now my Christmas message
The Christmas spirit and season is at hand. With innocent nations suffering agonizing pain, hunger and cold, who were one time very happy — now being driven from their homes to leave penniless, forced by the ruthless, greedy, sinful forces of evil.

Glory to God in the Highest On Earth Peace, Goodwill Among Men.

What does this message mean to us and to our prayers for a new and better world. The spirit of Christmas is the spirit of hope, combined with Faith and Love raises mankind to the feet of God. The foundations of which we are taught to go even unto Bethlehem and lay upon the Altar our gifts.

I should like to take this opportunity to extend my cordial greetings and good wishes to all my people whom I have the honor to represent.

A very Happy Christmas and a prosperous 1957.
Sincerely,
Orval Seeley

To The Electors of The Township of Matilda

Ladies and Gentlemen:
Please accept my heartfelt thanks for the generous support accorded me in Monday's election, which resulted in electing me a member of Matilda Township School Area Board.

This is my first time to enter into municipal affairs and I assure you your confidence will not be misplaced. I will endeavor at all times to work in your best interests.

Wishing all a Merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.

Yours sincerely,
ANDY COOPER

TOWNSHIP OF MATILDA

NOTICE OF A BY-LAW TO DESIGNATE AN AREA OF SUBDIVISION CONTROL

The Municipal Council of the Township of Matilda has on November 14th last passed a By-law to designate an area of subdivision control which covers all of Concession One (1) including both Range One (1) and Range Two (2) and all of Concession (2) in the Township of Matilda.

This By-Law provides in brief that no person or corporation may sell or transfer any land in either of those Concessions without complying with one of the following categories:

(a) The sale can be made if the land sold is all the land belonging to the Vendor which was purchased by him in one parcel.

(b) The sale can be made if the part sold is more than Ten (10) acres in area and the part that the Vendor is retaining is also more than Ten (10) acres in area.

(c) The land can be sold if the Vendor prepares and registers a Plan of Subdivision of his lands setting it out in lots in accordance with the rules and regulations governing Subdivision Plans.

(d) If none of the above provisions are applicable then the person selling the land must apply to the Planning Board for the Township of Matilda for a consent to make the sale and the matter will then be dealt with by the Planning Board as quickly as possible.

Copies of the By-law may be inspected at the office of the Municipal Clerk or at the Registry Office in Morrisburg. Applications for consents under and neighbors, also to Matilda Rebekah Lodge of Brinston, who so kindly remembered me with cards, letters, treats, flowers and visits while a patient at the Winchester Memorial Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. Justus, Dr. Miller and nursing staff; also a sincere thanks to blood donors.

Mrs. Walter Johnston

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors who kindly remembered us at the time of the loss of our little son Brian, also for the many beautiful floral tributes. These acts of kindness will long be remembered.

London and Vera McInnis

"Salvation Army Invades Television"

After comprehensive study, the Salvation Army believes that Television contributes to juvenile delinquency. In the "Sally Ann Invades TV" in the NEW Star Weekly this week you'll read a fascinating and factual report on the influence of "crime shows" on Canadian youth and how the Salvation Army plans to give them heavy competition.

There's also an article "Divorcees Anonymous" which describes a new society formed by, and for people who are divorced. You'll find it in . . .

THE NEW! NEW! NEW! Star Weekly

Clause (d) above should be sent to Mr. Donald Robertson, R.R. Iroquois, the secretary of the Planning Board.

This By-Law is passed after extensive consideration and upon the advice of the Department of Planning and Development and of the Municipal solicitor and other technical advisers. It is similar to the By-law passed by the Village of Iroquois and the Village of Morrisburg and by the Townships of Osnabrock and Cornwall and its purpose is not to prevent sales of land or to slow down the development of the area. The aim of a By-law of this nature is to provide for an orderly development of the area for the benefit of all the people who own land or live in these two Concessions and to prevent the chaotic development of an area which destroys the value of neighbouring lands and leads to serious tax problems in the Township.

ELECTRICITY AND MEDICINE

Today's Living is measured in Kilowatt-hours

Medical science continues to advance well beyond the far-sighted concept of even the most optimistic predictions of a few years ago. Electricity makes much of that progress possible. Today, doctors use electricity in a variety of ways, from diagnosis to treatment. Specialized lighting and electrical aids to surgery make possible intricate operations undreamed of half a century ago. The X-ray, perhaps electricity's greatest single contribution to medicine, has itself assisted in saving thousands of lives.

Electricity's role in medicine is certain to become increasingly important and its potentialities greater as more electronic aids come into general use. It is another important way in which electricity, the silent co-worker in so many projects, is continually being used to help provide higher standards of health, living and prosperity for us all.

Ontario Hydro will continue to provide adequate supplies of power to meet the needs of our hospitals, homes, farms and industries.
