Very Large Attendance Day and Night Shows At Chesterville Fair

Almost equalling last year's record attendance, a crowd of about 3,000 attended the 15th Exhibition of the Chesterville and District Agricultural Society at the Fair Grounds Tuesday and Wednesday to be treated to a fine showing in all classes of live stock, grain and poultry, an excellent racing card, and a "bigger and better" midway that included the merry-go-round, ferris wheel, merry mix-up, and games of all kinds and a plentiful supply of stands selling the inevitable "red hots". other foods and drinks, and fresh fruit.

All cattle classes were well filled and the quality was exceptionally good. Emphasis was on Ayrshires this year as the Grenville-Dundas Red and White championships were judged. Turnout in the light horse classes was fair as regards numbers, while the heavy horses made up in quality for the small numbers showing.

Entries in the poultry and grain classes were much heavier than usual.

One big attraction for the farmers was a display by four Jeeps with plow, disc, post hole auger and power saw table. A large section of the northeast part of the grounds was plowed and disced with the Jeeps always loaded to capacity with farmers and youngsters anxious to see how the machines made famous in the war would fulfill a peacetime job.

Musical entertainment was provided by Morrisburg Boys' Band under the direction of Timothy Johnston who was a member of the Chesterville Citizens' Band a number of years ago.

An outdoor show, presented by a Toronto troupe before the grandstand both evenings attracted good crowds, and the midway running the second night presented a gay scene with its many lights on the games and rides. The dance in the Community Hall Wednesday night attracted a very large attendance.

WHO CAN BEAT THIS BEET?

Miss Keitha Heagle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Heagle brought into The Record Office yesterday a garden variety beet, grown in their garden on the farm of J. R. Popham, which measures 18¾ inches in circumference and weighs five and one-half pounds. This beet is not alone in its bid for fame, but is one of a company of the over-size vegetables.

RETURNING ON AQUITANIA FROM OVERSEAS SERVICE

Pte. W. G. Whitteker, whose next-of-kin is listed as Mrs. W. G. Whitteker, RR 3, Chesterville, is among the repats returning to this district on the Aquitania expected to dock today in Halifax with another large contingent of veterans.

Capt. John Oliver Davies, son of Rev. and Mrs. T. Oliver Davies of Morrisburg, who has seen service with the Imperial Army as a "Canloan" officer (on loan from the Canadian Army), is also among the repats.

LARGE PORCUPINE SHOT IN VILLAGE

A large porcupine, the first seen in Chesterville in the memory of present-day residents, was shot on Queen street near the Fair Grounds last week by Bobby Hummel, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hummel. The animal was observed coming from the river near the residence of the late Frean Hummel, and when it crossed the road Bobby Hummel attacked it with a hammer, only to receive some quills in his hand. Bringing his .22 rifle, and with only one round of ammunition available, he shot the prickly animal out of a tree at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith. Local hunters say it was an unusually large specimen.

Plan Mass Meeting Reeves, Councillors Of Nation Watershed

Following the tour of the lower half of the Nation River Watershed, from Chesterville to Plantagenet, made last Thursday by Reeves of the municipalities affected, members of Zone 5, Ontario Reforestation and Conservation Committee, and press representatives, a meeting of all Reeves and Councillors from the Watershed will be held in Chesterville Community Hall on Wednesday afternoon, October 2nd, at 2.30, to vote on and draft the necessary "authority" requesting the Province of Ontario to implement the report of the survey now being conducted by 40 engineers from the Department of Planning and Development.

Any two municipalities from the watershed may apply for an "authority" for the carrying-out of the recommendations of the survey. When the Minister receives such an application it is his duty to call the Reeves and Councillors of the affected area to a meeting. If two-thirds of the municipalities are represented at this meeting by two-thirds of their council members, a vote by the meeting will carry the necessary authority and the province will proceed with the work.

Copies of the "authority" will be distributed shortly to all Councils in the watershed so that the contents may be studied before the meeting date. E. A. Richardson, Chief Engineer of the Department of Planning and Development, will be at the meeting to explain the Act and "authority", and officers of Zone 5, OCRA, are hopeful that application will be authorized by this meeting.

15 New-Type Street Lights To Be Installed in Village

The Chesterville Hydro-Electric Commission and Municipal Council have ordered the installation of 15 of the new type 300-watt street lamps installed in the business section of the town as a demonstration before the work of institution of the new street lighting plan drawn up by lighting engineers of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

The new lamps, three times the strength of the present style, incorporate an improved style reflector-projector, and will extend five feet out over the pavement from 25-foot poles. One of the new lamps will be placed at either end of the bridge, and the other 13 will be distributed on Water, King and Main streets.

TO RESUME FLAGSTOPS OF CPR AT WINCHESTER

After several months of negotiation, C.P.R. officials have agreed to resume the flagstops of the midnight and early morning trains at Winchester. Municipal officials have been busy trying to locate a copy of the by-law authorizing the money grant to the railroad, when the steel went through Winchester township, which detailed maintenance, stops, and so on, but the papers eluded search. A meeting of the Board of Railway Commissioners was scheduled for Winchester for this week-end, but the railway authorities decided to resume the flagstops of the two fast trains.

TAKING HORSES TO POLAND

Mr. John R. Fader returned from Swift Current, Sask., where he has been buying horses for UNRRA. After spending the week-end with Mrs. Fader and Elaine he left for Montreal, where the horses are being loaded for shipment to Danzig, Poland. The trip is expected to take five weeks.

OVERSEAS BRIDE WELCOMED

Mrs. Hubert Robinson, overseas bride of Hubert Robinson of this place arrived in Halifax, August 31, on the Queen Mary and reached Chesterville Tuesday morning where she was welcomed by her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Edgerton Barkley and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Shay.

INGRAM CROSS SUFFERS FIRE LOSS IN IROQUOIS DWELLING

Ingram Cross, who recently purchased a property in Iroquois, expecting to move his furniture this week was awakened early Tuesday morning to be informed that his Iroquois place was in flames. Within a matter of seconds almost, he was on his way, luckily, to find the damage less than he had been led to expect. Two rooms were damaged considerably before the flames were brought under control with the rest of it left habitable. The cause of the fire is supposed to have been lightning striking the meter box during a storm early in the evening.

H. S. BOARD TO DISCUSS HIRING ADDITIONAL TEACHER

Enrolment at Chesterville High School is now 140, an increase over last year's attendance, and with a large entrance class swelling Grade IX to 70—40 girls and 30 boys—the school board is faced with the problem of engaging a sixth teacher or eliminating some of the Upper school subjects so that First Form can be divided into two classes. Board members will meet tonight at 7.00 o'clock to discuss the problem.

Attendance at the Public and Separate schools is about the same as last year.

Timely Discovery of Fire Prevents Disastrous Blaze

Prompt action by Police Chief Garnet R. McLean probably saved The Dominion Hotel, owned by A. A. Lefebvre, from destruction by fire Saturday night, when he noticed smoke as he passed the hotel about 9.30 o'clock. A kettle of syrup in the oven of the electric stove in the kitchen was found ablaze and fire had caught in the walls, but this was soon extinguished when the blazing syrup was removed.

Notifying the caretaker, the only person of the management about the property, Chief McLean, went to the kitchen to find the kettle of preserving syrup ablaze in the oven. How the power had been turned on is not known as the stove had not been used for some time. H. C. Hummel, Village Clerk and Chas. Marcell, Hydro maintenanceman, were called. The power was shut off and the fire extinguished before a great deal of damage was done. One element in the electric stove was destroyed.

TO ESTABLISH PHOTOGRAPH STUDIO

Reeve George H. Barkley has rented his property at the corner of Main and Queen streets to S. H. Stoughton of Calabogie who plans setting up a photograph studio. Mr. Stoughton, a veteran of the first Great War, has been in business in the United States for the past 25 years and recently sold his home and business to return to Canada.

To Engage Engineer Survey Proprosed Line Of Church St. Sewer

Reeve Geo. H. Barkley was authorized by the Village Council to procure the services of an engineer to survey and report on the proposed Church street sewer which was requested in a petition signed by 100 per cent of the ratepayers, when the municipal Council met for the September session on Tuesday evening. It is hoped that construction of the sewer may be started soon so that the new drainage system will be ready for the late fall rains.

On instruction from the Ontario Fire Marshall, a new "Public Hall By-Law" must be prepared by the municipality, and the Clerk was authorized to have this drawn up, using the model by-law supplied as a guide.

Council debated the "Transient Traders By-Law" passed some years ago which imposed a $100 tax on certain new businesses setting up in the village, when application was made for the establishment of a photograph studio. It is also rumoured a new machine shop may be set up here. It was felt by Councillors that such businesses, not being in opposition to present establishments, would be an addition to the village's business life and should be given every encouragement to establish here.

A letter was read from the Fuelwood controller requesting a survey be made of fuelwood supplies in Chesterville, and stating permission will be sought to raise the price on grade A fuelwood from $4.15 to $4.50 so that the price would be in accordance with that prevailing in Morrisburg, Winchester and other surrounding villages.

Permission was given E. Cardinal to move a house onto Lots 25, 26 and 27, Howard street.

Reeve Barkley told Council of the tour of the Nation River Watershed made last week, and gave notice of a meeting of all Councillors of the municipalities affected by the Nation to be held in the Community Hall, Wednesday, October 2nd, at 2.30 p.m.

FAMILY ALLOWANCES AND SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Several times, in discussing Family Allowances, or "Baby Bonuses", as the cheques are more familiarly known, we have been told that parents are banking the cheques each month to pay for their children's education when they reach high school or more advanced learning—when costs of education rise steeply.

While this may be quite a good practice, it is hardly the spirit of the Act. The monthly cheques were designed to assist the children now, not in a few years' time. In some hands the cheques might be banked and kept safely for the purpose intended, while in others the children will never benefit.

There is another more serious angle. If the money is kept to provide for higher education, and through lack of funds the children are deprived of the means—books, clothing and proper food—to secure their primary education, what benefit will the money be to them in later life when they are not equipped to graduate into secondary education?

School days are back once more, with record-breaking attendance at Chesterville High School, and well-filled classes at the Public and Separate schools. In view of past experiences, which have resulted in a number of "nuisance raids" in the after-dark hours on gardens and orchards in the village, and are a period in the development of juvenile delinquency —or are an illustration of parental delinquency—The Record would suggest that the Truant Officer keep a close check on school attendance on the under 16's. One of the sharp teeth of the Family Allowances Act provides for cutting off the cheques if the children do not attend school.

Many cases of juvenile delinquency are treated from the wrong direction, The Record believes. If the children are not given proper direction in the home, are allowed to roam the streets at all hours of the night, and eventually land in a heap of trouble, is it their fault? Does not the blame lie on those parents who accepted the grave responsibility of bringing children into this world and teaching them the rudiments of decent living so that they grow up into decent, law-abiding, happy citizens of our Dominion?

We must remember there is no such thing as "good luck", as many believe it. Luck has been defined as "preparation meeting opportunity."

WITHOUT A WILL

That Sidney Hillman died without a will did not distinguish him from his fellows, for many men die intestate. What the reasons were in Hillman's case does not appear but there are dozens of excuses a man can find for not making a will. He may dislike to believe in his mortality. He may postpone the duty until some other time, for procrastination for a thief is very good company. He may decide that distribution of his property by law will amount to the same thing as distribution according to his wishes. He may be superstitious enough to believe that making a will made today will require amendment tomorrow or the day after. These and other excuses account for many failures to write wills. In some cases the failure may be perfectly sensible and reasonable, but in far more cases that failure means nothing but added trouble and confusion for the survivors. —New York Sun.

SALMON SPEARING ABOUT 1800

In Paul Kane's vivid painting, "Spearing Salmon by Torchlight", which hangs in the Royal Ontario Museum, the artist portrays an early fishing scene at York which he described in his book, "Wanderings of an Artist among the Indians of North America."

"We saw some Indians spearing salmon; by night this has a very picturesque appearance, the strong red glare of the blazing pine knots and roots in the iron frame, or lightjack, at the bow of the canoe, throwing the naked figures of the Indians into wild relief upon the dark water and sombre woods . . . As the light is intense, and being above the head of the spearman, it enables him to see the fish distinctly at great depth, and at the same time it apparently either dazzles or attracts the fish. In my boyish days I have seen as many as 100 light-jacks gliding about the Bay of Toronto, and have joined in the sport."

CONSUMER DICTATES GRADING STANDARDS

"Consumers' tastes dictate the standard for any product. If the producer and the consumer can meet, the desires of the latter can readily be interpreted. It is seldom, however, that the hog producer really comes in contact with the consumer to ascertain his desire. It was, therefore, deemed advisable to set up grade standards which would interpret to the producer the character and type of the live animal that could be possessed conveniently and economically into the finished product."

These observations were made recently by Leslie Hancock, Supervising Grader, Live Stock and Live Stock Products Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, in an address on carcass grading of hogs to the American Institute of Co-operation, Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana, U.S.A. In a comprehensive review he traced the Canadian hog grading policy from its institution in 1922 to the present time, with all the necessary changes as experience has suggested from time to time.

As to why carcass grading was necessary; Canada is an exporting country and requires an outlet for her surplus hog production. In the early 1920's, Canada found herself with a quantity of bacon to export but bacon of inferior quality. Difficulties wer being experienced in marketing that class of bacon to Great Britain. In 1921, a National Swine Conference was convened to review the swine situation. The conference recommended that a grading system be set up as a means towards the improvement of commercial hogs, and one important outcome of the conference was that an agreement was arrived at between the producers and the packers for the payment of a premium for "Select" or top grade hogs. In October, 1922, standards for live grading of hogs were established under the authority of the Livestock and Livestock Products Act, and thus was established what might be termed a "National Swine Policy".

Carcass grading of hogs, said Mr. Hancock, has proved to be one means by which a farmer is paid for the quality of the product he markets and he is also in a position to know from the returns he receives how his efforts are meeting market requirements. It is the consumer who actually sets the standard and the grading policies interpret that standard to the producers of the raw material.

THE THREE R'S FOR BIRDS AND MAMMALS

Imagine this! Although it's September there will be no school, no reading, writing and arithmetic, no need for books and pencils—in the bird world, that is. According to bird authorities of the Royal Ontario Museum, young birds acquire their essential knowledge ready made. Though bird youth may learn a bit through experience, by trial and error, their equipment for successful living largely comes via their ancestors, through hand-me-down inheritance. Most of their habits and behaviour are promoted by instinct. If we could do algebra instinctively, school days surely would be brighter.

Many young mammals, however, go through a kind of schooling. Some born in late winter or in spring, have finished a training period by September, and are ready to graduate. They cannot "repeat their year": if they fail, they die—by the swift pounce of the predator, the gun of the hunter, from hunger or accident. Some of the teaching is by the parent, some comes in play, and some by the school of experience. Young wolves may stay in the family pack "under instruction" for a year or more. Black bear seldom has more than two young, and can spend a good deal of time, slapping her cubs into good behaviour.

Some young mammals are bright, some are dull, some profit by their training, some do not. Even as you and I.

YOUR DREAM HAS A MEANING

Are you dreaming much these days? A vivid dream generally means that you have "something on your mind". Every dream has a meaning and an important part of my work is tracking these meanings down. Often they tell me more about a patient than he knows himself. A young chap, just out of the army, was getting nervy, not too bad but enough to worry his wife. As we talked he mentioned casually that he was dreaming most nights which he never used to do. I asked him to tell me some of the dreams, but there was only one that he remembered—it seemed to come to him every night and very vividly. In this dream he always arrived breathless on a railway platform just in time to see the train move out. Catching that train it seemed to him was of vital importance. And he always woke up worrying like the dickens. This gave me a clue. After six years in the army he was coming back to his old office job, and he was terribly afraid he was going to be out of the race. His dreaming brain had this worry so firmly imprinted on it that it carried on the sequence at night, and found its own way of expressing the feeling of being left behind.

We know three things about dreams themselves. The first is that they are often based on memories of things that have really happened. Secondly, believe it or not, they often show us things which are due to happen in the future. (There is plenty of scientific evidence to prove this); lastly, dreams are always colored by your own personal feelings, whether those feelings happen to be worries, desires or merely opinions.

Bobby: "Comin' out, Tommy?"
Tommy: "Nope."
Bobby: "Why not, huh?"
Tommy: "Aw, it's the eternal triangle again. Me, my studies, and my ma."

Home Conditions Said 99 per cent. Cause of Crime

"The worst criminals in Canada today are between the ages of 16 and 19," according to Lt. Col. Wallace Bunton, head of The Salvation Army Prison and Police Court Services Department. "The next worse age group is from 19 to 25."

"Veterans of service with the armed forces have not been responsible for even the share of crime that could be attributed to them on a percentage of population basis," he said.

It is possible to trace back to the home 99 per cent. of the major crime in Canada, Col. Bunton declared. This does not always mean poor homes because some criminals come from prosperous homes. Too much severity by parents in some cases, not enough in others, deception of children by parents, the bad example of low-principled parents and broken homes are the background factors that develop young criminals, according to Col. Bunton.

"The home is first, the school second and the church third in the proper upbringing of the young," said Col. Bunton. "Home conditions are reflected in school conduct and where conduct is bad there should be investigation of home conditions. Then, too, there is not enough church work among your children."

The Salvation Army prison department has 92 officers across Canada engaged in full or part-time reclamation work among prisoners. Last year personal work was done with 29,787 of them and more than 2,000 individuals were handed over to The Salvation Army by courts and prison officials. According to Col. Bunton, 87 per cent of these are now going straight and efforts continue to reclaim the others.

Importance of green, leafy vegetables as foods is stressed by the Department of National Health and Welfare. The Nutrition Division of the Department points out that they contain usable food iron, which feeds the blood cells, and Vitamin A, which promotes the health of living cells forming the fabric of the skin. Importance of greens has been recognized by man from earliest times.

The moron stuck his head out of the berth of the pullman.

"I say, porter, will you please bring me another glass of water."

"That's the tenth glass of water I've brought," replied the puzzled porter. "I've never heard of anybody so thirsty."

"I'm not drinking it," said the moron. "My berth is on fire and I'm trying to put it out."

BODY BUILDING

The food we eat is to our bodies as soil is to the growing plant. The Department of National Health and Welfare points this out in a reminder that the body's source of nourishment requires the same care and selection as that given to the soils in which things are grown. It is suggested that meals which are as nurtitious as they are tasty will be available to all if prepared according to "Canada's Food Rules" which are now available, free, from the department or from any provincial health department.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Ernest James Fleming, who passed away September 7th, 1944.
God knew that you were suffering,
He knew you were in pain,
He knew you never would get better
In this, this world again.

He saw the road was getting rough,
The hills were hard to climb,
So he closed your weary eye lids,
And whispered peace be thine.

You left behind you aching hearts,
Who loved you most sincere,
We never have and never will
Forget you, Ernest dear.
Mother, Dad and Brothers.

IN MEMORIAM

BARKLEY—In loving memory of our grandfather, J. Athaden Barkley who died one year ago today.
Today recalls sad memories
Of a dear grandfather gone to rest.
And those who mourn for him today,
Are those who loved him best.
Aileen and Wayne.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Ernest James Fleming, who passed away on September 7th, 1944.

With tears we watched you sinking,
We watched you fade away,
We tended you with loving care,
But could not make you stay.
We watched beside your bedside,
As the lonely hours passed,
And how our hearts were broken,
When we saw you breathe your last.

How the Cigarette Rules Germany

Five British civilian officers of the Control Commission in Germany have been sentenced for bartering cigarettes for goods with Germans.

A major attached to the Military Government is reported to have shot himself rather than face trial on a charge of selling cigarettes on the black market.

These are the latest developments of an astonishing traffic which is dominating Germany—even among high ranking officials.

For Germany is a land almost run on cigarettes. Everyday life and economy are governed by the cigarette.

Seventy-five per cent of everyday crime in the country is traced to cigarettes.

Even In School!

A boy of 15 has just been convicte of murdering a woman with a pair of scissors. His explanation was quite understandable for Berlin. He needed money to repay his cigarette debts.

Three schoolboys, between 14 and 16, robbed a watchmaker's shop in Berlin and throttled his wife unconscious. The few watches they found they sold the same night in a dance hall. With the 2,000 marks they received they bought 200 cigarettes.

The headmaster of a school had to order his teachers to see that bargaining for cigarettes did not take place during the actual classes.

In front of every Service club in Berlin there is a German policeman to drive away the crowds of boys who beg for cigarettes for their parents.

You can't throw a cigarette stump away without someone diving into the road to pick it up. Nearly everyone does it, no matter of what social position.

This was brought home to me when my own cousin, a member of a very wealthy and exceedingly straitlaced family, told me that he often walks for miles hoping to pick up a few cigarette ends.

Women do it too. They walk along the main streets and wait for the cigarette ends to be thrown out of the jeeps. Some people travel all day in the tubes to pick up the cigarette stumps dropped by the Americans.

Many women, even those with children, sell their ration cards to buy cigarettes.

All services and all work have to be paid for in cigarettes. If you want to have your shoes soled, your trousers pressed and cleaned, or the window repaired, if you need transport you pay in cigarettes. If you haven't any, you have no hope of getting anything done.

Where it starts

There is nothing at all from butter, ham, shoes to liquor that you cannot get for cigarettes. Money has no pull at all.

How do all these cigarettes come on to the market? They come from the Allied troops, mostly the Americans, who get nearly twice the number our men get, and, in addition are able to have them sent from home in unlimited quantities.

When the troops arrived first they did not know the value of a packet of cigarettes; they just gave them away as they gave away most of their rations. Then they realized that they could buy Germany with them.

Before the trade was organized the cigarette standard, like the gold standard fluctuated a great deal according to supplies. The price would vary between 7 and 14 marks, and the long American cigarettes, the Pall Malls, rose to 16 marks at one time.

Now the market is stable and well organized. A cigarette is worth rather more than a workman's daily wage. There is a well-established and defined system behind the market.

Made Fortunes

At first the Americans were allowed to send the Allied money they made out of this trading to the States, where it was exchanged into dollars. Fortunes were made that way as, at that time, Germans had a great deal of ready cash.

This fortune-making was stopped as soon as no German money was allowed to be sent out of the country. The only cash the troops can now get out is their weekly pay, which hardly any soldier in Berlin draws.

It was to be expected that the soldier who never had, and never will have again, the opportunity to make money so easily would find some way to continue his fortune-making. He has.

Instead of keeping the proceeds the money is now invested in valuables, such as rings, watches, cameras, gold, stamp collections, and a great deal of valuable porcelain.

Valuable old books are in special demand. Of course, all prices of these goods soared, and therefore the profits were much smaller, but the cigarette currency remained stable.

There is no doubt that the crash of this currency must come some time. But so far the market is as stable as ever. The reason is probably that now fewer occupation troops are in Berlin the supply has been reduced.

A large percentage of the German cigarette buyers are women. At times they become quite maniacal, selling their children's food, their belongings and even themselves to get cigarettes.

One cannot possibly imagine the lengths to which people who lack tobacco will go to get a smoke. It is far worse than hunger.

Permanent Jitters

I do not think the stoppage of all tobacco could have produced anything as violent as this in Britain or any other country. There are special reasons for it in Germany.

If you are hungry and smoke, you don't feel so hungry. But hunger intensifies tenfold the desire to smoke. Most German people are usually hungry.

The other reason is really the more important one. Smoking soothes the nerves, and most Germans, especially the women, smoked feverishly during the great bombing. After every large raid the population got special ration cards for cigarettes, which were called "zitter cigaretten,", "jitter cigarettes."

Everyone has permanent jitters now; the German nerve has completely gone.

They are terribly rude to each other,, their faces look drawn and careworn, and life is unnatural and full of fears. Worse than that, it has no future. Cigarettes keep many of them safe.

Reducing Crime

The Allied police, with the German police, are doing everything they can to stop the cigarette racket. Germans are punished if they are caught with Allied cigarettes.

But no punitive measures can curb the obsession. The only way to reduce crime, and the black market especially, would be to increase the cigarette ration very substantially.

At the moment, the men of Berlin get 12 very inferior cigarettes (a kind of straw mixture grown in Germany) a month and the women get six.

If anyone thinks that Germany is not yet punished sufficiently, they might suggest the withdrawal of all cigarettes. That would be worse than any other punishment that could be devised.

FOOD FOR GROWTH

Mothers who are interested in their children's health and development will ensure that pre-schoolers and teen-agers alike receive the healthful foods their young bodies need. The Department of National Health and Welfare points out that at no time of life is a sound living system more essential than in the early, formative years, and that, from babyhood to manhood, the best is none too good for the growing individual, as far as food is concerned.

Dirt Factor In Polio More Boys Than Girls Victims

More than twice as many boys as girls have contracted poliomyelitis so far this year in Toronto. During the 1937 Ontario epidemic the proportion in Toronto was three boys to two girls and these ratios of three-to-two of two-to-one approximate the average among polio cases on this continent.

"There is no special significance in that," a Toronto medical scientist doing polio research, said last night. "Generally speaking, boys are dirtier than girls, their hands get dirtier, they're more inclined to put things in there mouth. Similarly, five times as many boys as girls get lockjaw; they're more active, more liable to climb fences and get caught on a nail."

Polio research has accumulated evidence that the virus, which cannot be seen by even the new powerful microscopes, enters the body usually by the gastro-intestinal tract after being swallowed, and not by the nose. For this reason research scientists emphasize as preventive careful washing of hands before eating, peeling or washing of all fruits and vegetables eaten raw, and measures to ensure proper disposal of garbage and sewage and the elimination of flies and other insects near food.

NO FINISH LIKELY OF FARM HORSE

Those who may entertain the idea that the horse will eventually become obsolete as a source of farm power in Canada are entirely wrong according to Prof. Grant McEwen, Professor of Animal Husbandry, University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon. Speaking recently to the 42nd annual meeting of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association, he said that in spite of the advance in recent years of mechanization, the horse will continue to be useful in Canadian agriculture.

The wise farmer, said Prof. McEwan, will continue to keep a team or two of good horses to do work which can be done cheaper by horsepower than by tractors.

The best mares on the farms should be kept producing, as big, quiet, young mares would shortly command high prices. He thought the raising of range horses in large bunches, where the handling of them was difficult should not be encouraged as it was the gentle, farm-raised colt which was in demand, and readily found a good market.

INDIAN HARVEST TIME

Autumn was the time at which the Indian warriors returned from raiding enemy camps and the traders from traffic with their allies. The women of the tribe by now were busily engaged in harvesting the maize and storing it away. One interesting Mohawk family group in the Ontario gallery of the Royal Ontario Museum shows the members hard at work, the men making bows and sap troughs, the women pounding maize into flour and weaving baskets. All looked forward to the time when the fall tasks were completed and the rest of the year could be devoted to hunting, fishing and festivities.

RECEPTION CENTRES FOR HOBOES

A new scheme is soon to be put into effect in the United Kingdom to deal with the country's fraternity of tramps, vagabonds and hoboes. Although vagrancy is not a serious problem in Britain at the present time, experience has proved that vagrancy usually increases after a war. Reception centres are to be established mostly in urban districts, where vagrants will be offered food and shelter. While they enjoy this hospitality, each will receive the specialized advice of a psychiatrist and be put through vocational guidance and aptitude tests to determine the type of work for wihch he is best suited. If a man is too old or too ill to accept employment, arrangements will be made to have him admitted to a home, hospital or institution. The number of these centres will be small to begin with, but should vagrancy increase more rapidly than expected, a complete network will be set up all over the country with the possible addition of reconditioning hostels.

SAPPHIRE FOR SEPTEMBER

Sapphire—the gem of autumn, the blue of the autumn sky—is a symbol of truth, sincereity, and constancy. It is an aluminum oxide called corundum and the name sapphire is generally applied to corundum of any colour excepting the red. More specifically the name is applied to blue specimens, the desired tints being royal blue, velvet blue, and cornflower. Cut sapphires, synthetic sapphires, and the crude material are shown in the galleries of the Royal Ontario Museum. The colouration of sapphires is frequently irregular. Different portions of the same stone show different colours, and sometimes the body of what would be a colourless stone shows such a stone, undesirable as a gem, can be rendered valuable by heating it until it becomes a clear white sapphire. The tone and transparency of the stone are the most importance factors, and provided they are present, the very dark shades are not disadvantages. Star sapphires present six-rayed gleams of light when cut to a round-topped cobochon shape and exposed to direct sunlight or light from any other single source.

LOW-SLUNG WAGON FOR STONE REMOVAL

In cases where land contains relatively small stones, the removal involves considerable hand work. As yet there appears to be nothing better than a stone boat or a low-slung wagon for the job, states the publication of Land Clearing issued by the Department of Agriculture. A stone boat made from wood or a sheet of steel can be loaded easily and will carry about one-half ton of stone. Because the stone boat carries a relatively small load, it is suitable only for hauling short distances. As the length of the haul increases, the advantage of easy loading becomes less important and it is desirable to use a wagon to remove the stone efficiently.

A low-slung, home-built wagon is made from the axles and wheels of an old wagon by suspending two logs 11 feet long below the axles and about 8 inches from the ground. At the front the logs are bolted together and suspended from the centre of the front axle with a chain. At the rear, the logs are spread to the width of the rear axle and supported by two heavy pieces of strap iron which go over the top of the axle and fixed to the logs at either side. Wooden blocks are then fitted between the logs and the rear axle. A plank floor is built on the top of the logs. When loading heavy stones, a stout plank may be used for rolling the stones on to the floor which is only about 14 inches above the ground.

The old practice of building many stone piles in the fields is obsolete because by such a method the stones are merely shifted and the stone problem is not solved. Numerous stone piles and stone fences, other than line fences, restrict the use of labour-saving farm machinery. Almost any farm has a ravine or depression where stones can be deposited and covered with earth if desired.

PREFER CANADIAN CATTLE

A large number of Mexican importers prefer Canadian cattle to those secured from the United States, D. S. Cole, Canadian Commercial Counsellor, reports from Mexico City.

This preference is based on the belief that the Canadian animals produce more fat without diminishing their production of milk.

The United States is flooding Mexico with animals of poor quality at low prices, Mr. Cole said, and most Mexican importers now look to Canada to supply the high quality of Jersey cattle, both bulls and cows, they desire for breeding purposes.

Exports of Canadian cattle to Mexico are expected to be even greater this year than in 1945 when 1,316 head, valued at $267,115, were shipped there.
