CRUMBS
from
Graham's Loaf

We came out of orbit at the first of the week. The atmosphere back here on earth is difficult to breathe, but we feel it has substance and we may decide to get into harness in another day or so. When we lit the booster stage of our convention-bound Agenda-Special a week ago, we had a sneaking idea it would have been better if we had stood in bed. How true that has proved in fact.

The hospitality of the prairies as we mentioned last week is noted, noisy and notorious. We deliberated, were dedicated, and debilitated, all in a few short days. We ate high on the steer, including a thing called a "baron" of beef. For a while we felt cannibalistic, thinking in our childish way, the baron had something to do with English royalty. We were soon set to rights, though, when the thing turned out to be a couple of hundred pounds of steer boned and turning on a tremendous barbecue. We even shuddered through a cup of cold soup. If the v.p. served this gluey concoction at the Castle board, one would hear some noble adjectives. We slurrped it and wondered at the folly of editors dipping their beaks into a cook's error.

Come the last day and the host offered the crew a dish of Winnipeg goldeyes. Fish, that is, closely resembling herring, dipped in red barn paint. Over the years we have eaten goldeyes and enjoyed them, but this time something went wrong. The delicate little herrings ended up boiled out of flavour, juice and fish. Even the small beaker of German Liebfraumilch could not wash away the disappointment in the dish of fish. But by that time we had really been pampered, patted and tempted too often. Country editors have dozens of friends and every friend has a willing compatriot.

We boarded the waiting arms of the old CPR Dominion on Friday evening and headed east. We had a couple of days to get over the splurge, but it has taken longer than we realized. There is an impression abroad we are not as flexible as we were once. This business of directing governments, exchanging worries and generally sobbing on one another's shoulder until the wee small hours is a delight we now suffer in doing—the next day. There is little doubt, though, the business of being a small-town editor is aided and abetted by an occasional convention session with other characters of a similar profession. Even the cold soup becomes palatable in retrospect; perhaps that's because an educated friend translated the name of the wine we mentioned a while back. The old lad who named the stuff was certainly abreast of flavours.

As this is being written, the sky is threatening to drip all over Chesterville Fair. For some time now it has been suggested we only hold the fair to make it rain but that just isn't so. It only seems that way. This year, it will not rain. Like the date of the ice leaving the river, we have the word. See you at the Fair, except that by the time we get to the business of getting out the next journal, the fair will be in full swing, or will it be "swim"?

Chesterville Fire Brigade wins trophy for mutual aid work

The Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Counties Mutal Aid Fire Services Association Monday night returned Gilbert Raistrick as president and adopted a constitution which includes stiffer equipment requirements for communities wishing to join.

Twelve of the 21 United Counties fire departments in the association were represented at the annual meeting held in the magistrate's courtroom above the Cornwall police station.

Mr Raistrick, chief of the Ontario - St. Lawrence Development Commission Fire Department, will begin his fourth term as president, missing only one term in the head office since the association was founded in 1957. He is a former chief of the Winchester Volunteer Fire Department as well.

Mr Raistrick was returned by acclamation. Arthur Seguin, of Glen Walter, was elected to the newly-created post of second vice-president, also by acclamation. Mr Seguinn is a member of the Chalottenburgh Front Fire Department.

A vote was required to elect both the first vice-president and the secretary-treasurer. Captain Clarence Snider, of Cornwall Fire Department, defeated Chief Vincent O'Farrell of the St. Andrew's Fire Department for the vice-presidency. Grenville Fyke, of Chesterville, was returned as secretary-treasurer, a position he has held since the inception of the association. Mr Fyke defeated Denis Frampton, of the Cornwall Fire Department, and Lyle Amell, of St. Andrew's Fire Brigade.

Under the new regulations adopted in the constitution, towns, villages, or townships wishing to join the mutual aid system must have a mobile pumper capable of handling 420 gallons of water per minute and a truck with a tank capacity of 500 gallons. They must also carry 800 feet of 2½" hose and 400' of 1½" hose.

Fire Chief Lucien Carriere, of Cornwall, mutual aid co-ordinator, stressed the need for the higher equipment standard adopted, pointing out that it is unfair for a poorly-equipped community to join and take advantage of a neighbouring municipality which has the required equipment.

"This inadequately equipped community could not offer in return the type of service it receives," Chief Carriere emphasized.

The object of the mutual aid association is to promote and further the development of county mutual aid throughout the United Counties whereby municipalities may obtain apparatus and manpower in case of fire or other emergency. The association also strives to maintain adequate fire protection for the balance of the counties.

Although mutual aid is available at all times, the chiefs were warned in the new constitution to give serious consideration and use wise discretion before activating the system.

The members of the new executive stood in a row near the front of the courtroom and repeated the oath of office as they were sworn in by co-ordinator Carrier.

Chesterville Fire Brigade was awarded the Jack MacMillan Trophy for earning a total of 89 points in mutual aid work during the past year. The trophy, donated by the Chesterville businessman whose name it bears, was awarded for the first time Monday night.

The trophy was presented by Chief Carriere and accepted by Chief John Hehir of the Chesterville Brigade. St. Andrew's Fire Brigade placed second in the competition with 79 points.

It is always a pleasure to be able to present "Record" readers with a photo of five generations of local folk. This week we journeyed out south a bit and took the above picture. Mrs Morley McPherson is rightly proud of her four generations that surround her. She is here on the left with Mrs Glenn Pemberton and baby Brian Glenn, and behind are Mrs Bernice Barkley at the left with Glenn Barkley at her side.—Record Photo.

Fair day bright and clear crowds streaming to exhibition

The day for Chesterville Fair appears to be bright and clear as this is being written. A last look around before this goes to press shows what appears to be a record crowd starting to pour through the gates.

This year exhibitors have just about filled all categories in the prize lists. Cattle had filled nearly all the tie racks by mid morning and horses were everywhere.

If the weather remains kind, the fair at Chesterville this year should set some kind of record.

Country Calendar will study W.I. activity

On a Friday night in February, 1897, at Stoney Creek, Ontario, 101 women crowded into Squires' Hall to hear a speech by Adelaide Hunter Hoodless on the need for a national rural women's organization.

From this beginning the Federated Women's Institute has grown to 94,000 members in Canada and 6½ million members in 27 countries.

CBC-TV's Country Calendar will examine this historic beginning, the growth, and accomplishments of the W.I. over the years, on Sunday, September 2, at 4 p.m. on Ontario and Quebec stations.

The program will also be seen on stations in the Prairies on September 2. Stations in British Columbia, the Maritimes and Newfoundland carried the program on Sunday, August 26.

Guests appearing on the program include Mrs James Haggerty, of Napanee, Ont., national president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, and Mrs L. G. Lymburner, of Port Colborne, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario.

Wandering pictures disrupt schedules

Last week the "Record" had at hand a couple of excellent photos lined up for that week's issue. They were mailed to the engraver at the Winchester Press on Monday evening, date-stamped that night and then promptly disappeared.

Wednesday morning, the "Record" staff still had no pictures and a phone call from Winchester revealed they had just arrived.

This week the photos finally got to Chesterville, and there is a feeling abroad they went to Winnipeg with the editor, and then slowly worked their way back via Hudson's Bay.

Receives certificate

Mrs Lillian Allison, of the high school staff, has received her Elementary Home Economics Certificate following the successful completion of a five-week course at Ontario Teachers' College, Toronto.

This certificate qualifies Mrs Allison to teach Home Economics to Grades IX and X in secondary schools.

New bowling alleys to open in Finch Saturday

A new recreation activity for Finch will open on Saturday, September 1. The Helms Bowling Lanes will open for business with a big day of free games and free refreshments.

Headed by Hilliard Shaver, the Lanes will be a welcome addition to the recreation of the district. The new building is situated on Highway 43, just east of the Berwick-Crysler road.

Morkem–Bugden

Rev E. B. Bugden officiated at the marriage of his daughter, Miss Reba Jean Bugden, to 2nd Lieut. David Stanley Morkem which took place on Tuesday afternoon last in Trinity United Church, Chesterville. Mrs Allison Graham was organist.

The bride's parents, Rev and Mrs Bugden, are of Chesterville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr and Mrs S. Morkem, Hamilton.

The bride wore a short sheath dress of faille taffeta fashioned with a scooped neckline, appliqued with lace, lilypoint sleeves, and an overskirt.

Her veil of tulle illusion was held by a crown of pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses.

Her attendant, Miss Margaret Box, wore a dress of shocking pink organza styled similarly to the bride's dress.

Mr Tom Frazer was best man and Mr Jack Grenier ushered the guests.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Following a wedding trip to Southwestern Ontario, Mr and Mrs Morkem will reside in London, Ont. Mrs Morkem is a graduate of Ottawa Teachers' College.

A wedding of interest took place in the village last week. Second Lieutenant David Stanley Morkem and Reba Jean Bugden were married by the latter's father in the United Church here. According to the available records, this was the first time a daughter of the present church minister was married at Trinity United.—Photo by Daykin.

Hon. John P. Robarts guest speaker at banquet to be held in Morrisburg

Hon. John P. Robarts, Prime Minister of Ontario, will pay an official visit to Eastern Ontario and more particularly the riding of Grenville-Dundas when he will be the guest speaker at the first annual meeting-banquet of the Grenville-Dundas Progressive Women's Association. The banquet will be held in Morrisburg Civic Auditorium on Wednesday evening, September 12th.

Also expected to be present at the banquet are several ministers of the provincial cabinet and their wives including the Hon. Fred M. Cass, minister of municipal affairs and MLA for Grenville - Dundas; Mrs Jean Casselman, MP for the riding as well as officials from the Grenville-Dundas PC party and similar organizations in other nearby Eastern Ontario ridings.

As there is seating accomodation for only 300, executive members of the sponsoring association have explained that only a limited number of tickets to the banquet are available. Tickets are presently being sold in each municipality of the riding. Because of the shortage persons wishing to attend the banquet are asked to get their tickets without delay. It is understood that the tickets will be sold on a first come, first served basis.

Mrs Parker Locke of Morrisburg is president of the PC Women and the secretary is Mrs Arthur Edgerton, also of Morrisburg.

Mrs Robert Rainey, 88

The death occurred last Wednesday of a former resident of Chesterville and Morewood, Mrs Robert Rainey. She was 88 and passed away in Cornwall where she had resided for the past few years.

Mrs Rainey was the daughter of the late Rodney Marcellus and the late Elizabeth Jane Fraser. She was born in the Morewood district and was the widow of the late Robert Rainey.

Two sisters in British Columbia and one brother, Ernest of Milton, Ont., survive Mrs Rainey.

Funeral services were held at St. Andrews Presbyterian Church of which Mrs Rainey was a long-time member. The Rev. A. D. Sutherland conducted the service and interment followed in Morewood Presbyterian Cemetery.

Pall bearers were Harry Hutchinson, Dwight Feeley, Harold Hillis, Walter Carlyle, Lyle Hunter and Geo. Crawford.

County winners at C.C.E.A.

Ten dairy herds and one beef herd from Dundas County were represented in a strong livestock show at the recent Central Canada Exhibition. Four of these were Holstein - Friesian herds including, Lorne Henderson, Brinston, Ralph Fawcett, Allison Fawcett, James Fawcett and J. Dwight Dawley, all of Winchester. Henderson had the first prize junior heifer calf and first for junior yearling bull. Allison Fawcett had a good win when he topped the 3 years old in milk class. Ralph Fawcett was well up in several junior classes and placed third in the aged class in milk with a sharp dairy cow.

Premier Breeder and Premier Exhibitor in the Ayrshire show was the herd of Samuel S. Rose and Son. Their wins included 2 firsts and a second in the three milking classes and also the senior get-of-sire award. Wm. McRoberts and Son, Winchester, were first prize winners in the junior bull class.

A high quality Guernsey show saw two Dundas herds taking many red ribbons. These were the herds of Malcolm MacGregor, Crysler and Lloyd Walker, Winchester Springs. Billy Moffat of Chesterville, exhibiting for the first time at the Exhibition, was pleased with his second prize in the junior calf class.

The County's only beef exhibitor was H. S. Lannin, Winchester. This is a Polled Hereford Herd which Mr Lannin is developing not only for quality in the show ring but also efficiency of gain in the feed lot.

There was no swine at the Central Canada Exhibition this year due to the recent outbreak of Hog Cholera.

Coons put up fight

Ross Nurse, Cannamore, was awakened by the incessant barking of his dog one night a week ago. Investigating the next morning, he found the animal had treed a family of coons, four young and their parents.

Mr Nurse shot all six, but not before they had badly mauled the dog. He reports the biggest weighed 34 pounds.

Cannamore area suffers from storm

Reports are still coming in about last week's storm. The Cannamore area seems to have received the brunt, having been hit by very high winds and hail.

Trees were downed, windows broken and telephone lines were put out of commission. The storm severely hurt the oat and corn crops and one man, caught out in the hail, reports he received a number of bruises from the large hailstones.

Recently a paper carried the story of a 6-year-old boy who was killed when he fell off a tractor, and was run over by the trailing implement. Accidents of this type happen all too frequently, warns Hal Wright, farm safety specialist with the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Don't kill a child through carelessness.

The Titanic disaster in 1912 — which is still remembered, spoken about and written about after half a century — took 1517 lives. The Ontario Safety League points out that this is less than half the number of people who die violently on Canadian roads every six months.

The ancient Greeks, expert goldsmiths, were fond of intricately carved gold ornaments without coloured gems.

An automibile engineering development that the Ontario Safety League would like to see is a brake that becomes tight when the driver does.

A common sight in Central Alberta is the white German shepherd "Major" and his master, G. Baden Boyd, supervisor of the Department of Public Welfare's regional office at Stettler. Whether guarding his master's car, playing ball for the entertainment of the children, or jumping a seven-foot wall, this dog is a well-known "personality" around Stettler. Mr Boyd, a former Chesterville resident, is a son of Mrs P. S. Boyd and the late Mr Boyd.

OPINIONS . . .
OURS AND OTHERS

Philosophy of Mr Caouette

It was a revealing interview with Mr Real Caouette, deputy leader of the Social Credit party, in Vancouver over the weekend, reports the Hamilton Spectator. He refused to fight in World War II, he said, because he had no faith in the old-line parties. Furthermore, he would never go to war in future for Canada's present economic system.

This might be the standard philosophy for a few malcontents, even now; but the posture is so tired and so old that it hasn't been seriously advanced since the 1930's. Then, confronted by a choice between our far-from-perfect economics and the brutalities of Nazism, Canadians suddenly knew where they really stood.

Not Mr Caouette, though; his philosophy, if that is what it can be called, is a cheap slap in the face for the families of men who died in two world wars so that the Social Credit deputy could safely conduct his business as usual, and then live to insult their memory for political advantage.

The frightening thing about Mr Caouette is that he is 44 years of age—much too old for hysteria, and an aspiring leader of a political party which he hopes will be of national scope and influence. After pre-election weeks of assuring the whole country that he was just a good Canadian talking common sense, the mask fell off at Vancouver. In a way, we are sorry for the British Columbia Social Credit party, whose tenth anniversary he was helping to celebrate there. But we will be surprised if many take him seriously in the next election campaign as some did in the last, now that they know the real Real.

Attitudes toward a shorter work week

Suspicion that wage and salary earners as a whole are not over-enthusiastic about a still shorter work week has some further confirmation in a Gallup poll recently conducted on the subject. In the United States, observes the Ottawa Citizen, those who thought it should not be reduced from 40 hours to 35 hours made up 63 per cent of the sample, in Canada, 57 per cent. Putting the question the other way round, 30 per cent of those queried in the U.S. believe the work week should be reduced; in Canada the figure is 29 per cent, so that results in the two countries are remarkably similar. The undecided group represents seven per cent in the U.S. poll, 14 per cent in the Canadian.

The survey attempted to obtain a representative cross-section, with "blue-collar" and white-collar workers and also business and professional people in their proper proportions.

The objections to a shorter work week may be traced to a feeling among many employees that they stand to earn more money under a 40-hour than a 35-hour week. This prejudice, however, appears to be gradually weakening, as the polls indicate a shifting from an earlier overwhelming opposition. Thus among union households polled those against the shorter work week have dropped to 48 per cent from 54 per cent more than a year ago. Objections are much more abundant among the non-union households—as much as 70 per cent last year, and still 60 per cent now.

But the possibilities of making money during the extra leisure time are evidently becoming more apparent. For it is not more recreation that so many workers are interested in, apparently, so much as opportunities to add to their incomes through overtime pay and "moonlighting" jobs. Few seem satisfied with what they make in the ordinary course, even though contracts may specify no reduction in take-home pay when working periods are reduced. Considering the steady rise in the cost of living and the many calls on the wage-earner's purse, this is hardly surprising.

Water skiing dangers

Thoughtless water skiers endangering both themselves and others on Canada's inland waters eventually may have to be treated as severely as careless drivers. The Department of Transport, says the Ottawa Citizen, has now warned skiers that they must stay clear of large vessels on the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes, and reminds the skiers that to stunt in the vicinity of a large ship is a federal offence carrying a maximum fine of $500 or a jail term. The fact that the warning is necessary at all is an indication of the reckless disregard for public safety which some water skiers exhibit.

Some water skiers and their light powerboats have even been circling ships in the St. Lawrence. In these circumstances, the result of an accident can be fatal to the skiers, to say nothing of the impediment they create to the passage of large vessels.

Many water skiers behave equally dangerously in narrower waters, such as the Rideau River or the small lakes that dot the country. They come perilously close to swimmers and to light craft such as canoes. They are as dangerous as the water skiers on the St. Lawrence who perform stunts in the neighbourhood of shipping.

No one wants to spoil the water skiers' pleasure. At the same time, the water skiers have no right to spoil the pleasure of others. The exercise of care and thoughtfulness is all that is necessary for all the public to enjoy our inland waters. Where there is carelessness, the authorities would be justified in acting as severely as possible.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

"The United States is failing in the cold war because Christians are unwilling to pay the price for their religion," declared Judge Luther W. Youngdahl of the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. Judge Youngdahl is a vice-president of the American Bible Society.

"The Bible is of vital importance in teaching freedom. Never before has there been such a need to get the inspired Word of God to people all over the world in their native tongue. The good news contained in the Bible will bring wonderful changes to these people," he continued.

"If we are to win the cold war, we must get back to God and to get back to God, we must get back to the Bible. For it is from the Word of God in the Good Book that the Holy Spirit will direct us in the way we should go.

"With world chaos just a failure away, we dare not be a Christian nation in name only. The peace and security of the nation—the hope of the millions of people around the globe—is in the balance. We must accept the responsibility of leadership in giving them the strength they need which will come from the guidance of the Holy Spirit as they study the inspired Word of God," Judge Youngdahl concluded.

Garden Graph

FERNS THAT DO WELL IN HOME GARDENS

Much of the natural beauty of our woods, fields and pasture lands is due to the graceful, green, arching fern fronds.

To have a fern planting of your own you do not have to violate the conservation laws by getting them in the nearest woods. Because of the spreading interest in wild flowers, a number of reliable nurseries specialize in nursery-grown wild stock, including ferns. If interested, write to this department for their names, but do enclose a self addressed, stamped envelope.

There are many excellent ferns for use in the home garden. Three are shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

The Lady fern is easy to grow in either full sun or partial shade. It has light green, finely cut fronds. It grows from two to three feet in height and is deciduous. Another valuable garden fern is the Cinnamon fern. When full grown, it often reaches a height of five or six feet. It transplants easily and is long-lived. The fronds of this fern are often used in dried arrangements.

Another fern which is excellent for shady places is the Rattlesnake fern. It is so named because it appears to have a rattle on its uppermost tip. It will attain a height of three feet. It is a handsome plant and prefers shade and moisture.

PLASTIC FLOWERS BECOMING POPULAR IN CANADA

The recipe for making plastic flowers is simple. You start with polythene, a product of the petroleum industry, then add equal quantities of colour awareness, nimble fingers and stamina. The Canadian chemical industry is supplying the polythene, but the Chinese people of Hong Kong are supplying the other three ingredients. For in that faraway country the ancient and leisurely art of flower arranging has given way to flower making using modern production line techniques.

Polythene resin is shipped in granular form from Canada to the British crown colony. After arrival, the granules are tumble blended with pigments to give them colour; then put into an injection moulding machine where heat and pressure reduce the mixture to a pliable plastic and force it into a hollow steel die. After a brief cooling period the die is opened and the moulded part removed. These parts in the shape of petals, leaves and stems, are then assembled by hand. That's why quick, sure fingers are necessary.

The blossoms are put together first—petal by petal—and then the centre of the flower is applied which provides the tension to hold the petals upright. They are then added to the stem, along with the leaves, and the complete flower is packed for shipping. Some flowers take longer than others; a hyacinth for instance may have up to 180 parts! It's easy to understand why labour costs for such painstaking work would be too high in this country.

Physical agility is important too. Some moulding machines are hand operated. If so the injection cylinder is operated by a long lever which is worked by a coolie leaping into the air and pulling down on it. He holds it down during the cooling cycle, then lets it go. These coolies are aptly called "jumpers."

Actually, flower making has been an occupation of the Orient for centuries. And in the beginning paper and cloth were the materials used. But the market for these products was limited because of their perishable nature. There were no signs of it becoming big business until five years ago when they first started to make moulded flowers using polythene. Markets for them opened up throughout the world, because they were easy to pack and ship. Today more than 400 companies are making flowers in Hong Kong, employeeing many thousands of people.

While the natural habitat for artificial flowers and foliage is usually the living room or hotel lobby, a change is in prospect. Nature is not always friendly to growing things so the market for plastic plants for outdoor use is increasing. Brilliant red geraniums—so real looking you have to touch them to make sure—can pep up a fading window box, or hedges of plastic barberry that never need trimming and can be washed down with a hose.

PREPARE RASPBERRIES FOR THE WINTER

Now that you have finished harvesting raspberries, it is time to think about next year's crop, say horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Since canes die after fruiting, you should remove them. Cut them off close to the ground. Most old canes will be diseased to some degree, and will act as a source of infection for the new canes. For this reason, it is better to remove them now rather than leaving them till next spring. Don't leave them in the rows; remove and burn them.

Don't keep on cultivating the rows. Late cultivating stimulates late growth, resulting in immaturity of canes and increases danger of winter-kill.

It is important to prevent late, soft growth which will winter-kill. To help harden off the canes, you should sow a cover crop shortly after harvest. This cover crop competes with the canes for water and nutrients, with the result that the canes mature earlier and are less subject to winter injury.

Oats or barley make a handy cover crop as they will be killed during the winter and can be easily worked down next year.

A spray now will help control anthracnose and spur blight; 76% wettable powder is commonly used.

Mrs Wilfred McPherson

Following a lengthy illness, Mrs Wilfred McPherson, of Edgeley, Sask., passed away August 13 in the Indian Head Hospital.

The funeral was held from a Regina funeral home on Thursday, August 16, and was conducted by her minister, the Rev Mr Clarkson, assisted by Rev Mr Crewe, of Regina. The body was laid to rest beside that of her husband in the United Church Cemetery. Her husband predeceased her 12 years ago.

WINDOW BOX CARE

Window boxes, hanging baskets and other plant containers can make a really impressive showing if they are well cared for. Here are some suggestions from horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture to help you get the most from yours.

One of the most important factors to keep in mind is moisture. Most types of plant containers tend to dry out quickly, so inspect them daily. Regular watering is a must. Plants that have been allowed to wilt from lack of moisture take a long time to recover. If it happens frequently, they will never recover properly.

Keep old blooms pinched off; this prevents unwanted seed production. It may seem like a lot of extra work, but you will be well rewarded by the extra bloom you will get.

If the plants tend to become leggy, pinch them back. This will make them bush out, and they will look much neater in the long run.

Don't allow the soil surface to become caked and hard. A loose surface allows easy moisture penetration and improves soil aeration.

Feed your plants regularly with a balanced fertilizer. This can easily be applied in soluble form when you are watering.

DRIER READING AHEAD

Delivery boys may soon be able to throw newspapers onto the wettest and muddiest of garden paths without evoking a murmur of complaint from their customers, says The Financial Post. Three Canadian manufacturers of polyethylene have developed a wrapping that will protect completely the newspaper that is delivered on wet days.

They believe they are on the threshold of an enormous new market for one-mile-thick polyethylene. At the moment the wrapped newspapers are reserved for throw-off truck delivery in rural areas. Rural customers have been so appreciative that urban customers are asking for the same service.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

THE SHAPE OF YOUR HAND

One morning a mother fixed her young son a lunch of five loaves and two fish and sent him to hear Jesus preach.

The boy found a great crowd listening to Jesus. He sat down to watch and to listen. He was so interested that he forgot to eat his lunch.

That evening he saw the disciples around Jesus. Edging over nearer them, he heard Jesus tell His disciples to give the people something to eat.

Suddenly, a man knelt down and put his hand on the little boy's shoulder. The man was one of Jesus' disciples, Andrew.

"Son, what do you have in your hand?"

"My lunch," the boy replied. The lad was holding his lunch in his hand. It fitted his hand exactly.

Andrew said, "Son, all these people are hungry. The Master wants your lunch to feed these people. Do you believe that He can feed this whole crowd with your small lunch?"

The little boy had great faith. He looked up at Andrew and said, "Yes, Sir, Jesus can do it! I know He can!"

And Jesus did it! Nobody knows how, but He did. What a story the little fellow had to tell his mother when he got home.

The size of the little boy's hand was the perfect size to hold five loaves and two fish. While he held these five small loaves and two fish in his hand, they were the perfect size to satisfy his hunger. But when he put the lunch in the hands of Jesus, it was big enough to feed five thousand people.

And this is why you can have hope of accomplishing something beyond the ordinary. The secret is in Jesus' multiplying your life, your faith, your efforts and your vision.

There are millions of people in the world today. Every single one of them has an individual and distinctive set of fingerprints and has differently shaped hands. If God made your hands and fingerprints different, then you may be sure you are something special. He breathed into your nostrils the breath of life, and you became a living soul. You are raised up of God.

The shape of your hand is the shape of God's plan for you. Man is God's instrument. God's plan is carried out by those who love and serve Him. He has an exact and perfect plan for your life. Don't worry about not being big enough or educated enough. The size of your hand is God's size for the job He has called you to do.

Baker - Pickering

Miss Margaret Fern Pickering and Mr Frank Orval Baker, both of Ottawa, Ontario, were united in marriage in the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Ottawa, Ontario, on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 18, 1962.

The bride is the only daughter of the alte Mr and Mrs James W. Pickering of Winchester and Riceville, Ontario, nad Mr Baker is the son of Mrs Frank Baker and the late Mr Baker of Crysler, Ontario.

The double-ring wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Mervyn E. Summers. The marriage was witnessed by the groom's sister and husband, Mr and Mrs Cyril A. Cockburn of Ottawa, Ontario.

For her wedding the bride wore a white brocaded satin street-length wedding dress with scoop neckline, V waist line and bell shaped skirt.

Her shoulder-length veil edged with lace was held in place by a bandleau of seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white mums. Her only jewellery was a one-strand pearl necklace a gift of the groom.

A wedding dinner for the bridal party was held at the home of the groom's sister and husband, Mr and Mrs Cyril A. Cockburn.

Following the dinner Mr and Mrs Baker left on a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls and Sarnia Ontario, and other points in Western Ontario.

For travelling the bride wore a blue and grey print ensemble with sheer overlay, blue velvet hat, white gloves, black shoes, black purse and a corsage of pink roses. On their return the couple will reside at 298 Arlington Ave., Ottawa.

On the return from their honeymoon. Mr and Mrs Baker were guests of honour at a reception for the immediate family of the groom, held at the home of the groom's sister and husband, Mr and Mrs Ernest Montgomery, Berwick, Ont.

WATER SAFETY ON LABOUR DAY

Favourite Labour Day outings are picnics, fishing trips, boating and swimming. Unfortunately, these activities also have fatal consequences each year. Drownings lead the list.

About two-thirds of the drownings each year are not of swimmers, but of persons who fall into the water from boats, piers, bridges, etc., fully clothed. Swimmers and waders take an unnecessary risk when they go into unguarded or unpatrolled areas of lakes and rivers.

The National Safety League of Canada asks everyone to follow these tips on water safety:

Supervise children playing in or near water.

Swim and boat only with companions, never alone.

Provide each person in the boat with an approved life preserver.

Should the boat swamp or overturn, stay with it. Wait for help or push and paddle it towards shore.

The League reminds those who plan to spend the weekend at home not to leave their safe practices at work Friday. The safe way of doing anything is the right way—anywhere.

Do you know what a "flopper" is? He is a crook who pretends to be injured in a traffic mishap, to collect insurance compensation. The usual method, says the Ontario Safety League, is for the flopper to bump into a car or delivery truck backing out of an alley, or making a turn. He then falls to the pavement, and writhes in pretended agony. To make the injuries look more convincing, a flopper may slash his arms and legs with broken glass or hrazor blades.

PRUNE CLIMBERS WHEN BLOOMS FADE

Prune climbing roses when they have ceased to bloom, advise horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Remove all old wood and replace it with young growth tied in from the base. If there is no new growth, leave one or two old canes.

This removal of the old canes has an added advantage when it comes to protecting your roses against winter injury. Young canes are more pliable and are easily bent to the ground and covered.

Emerson D. Barkley, 39

Emerson D. Barkley died last Monday, August 20, after an illness of some time. He was 39. His passing was keenly felt in the community. He had a host of friends and will be sadly missed by all and especially by his wife and young family.

Born at Elma, he was the son of Stanley Barkley and the former Blanche Froats, who survive. For the past 13 years he and his wife, the former Marjorie Whittaker, have lived at their farm home in the Orchardside district.

Two children mourn their father's death along with their mother. They are son Jackie and daughter Lynda. There are also two surviving sisters, Mrs Helen McIntosh, Douglas, Ont., and Mrs Vaughn Burd, Regina, Sask. One brother is living, Dalton, with his parents at Elma.

Funeral services were conducted at the family church at Dunbar. His pastor conducted the service at Dunbar Lutheran Church and interment followed in Maple Ridge Cemetery. Pall bearers were William Elliott, Walter Merkley, Freeman Beckstead, Burrill Beckstead, Gerald McMillan and Gerald Herriman.

Cornwall - Lancaster section of 401 to open soon

The Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Highways, has announced that if weather conditions will permit the final touches to the paving of a 13-mile section of Ontario's trans-provincial freeway, 401, from Cornwall to Lancaster, will be completed and opened to traffic on or about August 31.

For the time being both east and westbound traffic will be carried by the two south lanes.

Eight contractors took part in the construction of this section of 401 which required 554,727 tons granular material, a total of 8,938 cubic yards of concrete, 541 tons of "H" steel piles, as well as 654 tons of structural and reinforcing steel. Some 1,296,523 cubic yards of earth were excavated and 186,806 square yards of concrete paving were laid. The total cost of this section approaches closely the $4 million mark.

The section to be opened includes six structures, two of which are railway overpasses, one for C.P.R. and one for C.N.R. An interesting feature of the railway overpasses is that each is a dual structure carrying eastbound and westbound traffic respectively. Only the structures for the south lanes will be completed in this stage.

Completion of Highway 401 in its entire length of 510 miles has been scheduled for the latter part of next year.

Oldest of Britain's staple textile industries, her wool industry is also the world's largest.

SNOOPING BIG BUSINESS

Business snooping—spying on the competition and its employees and customers—is a subject few executives will discuss, but it goes on secretly in Canada, says Basil Jackson in The Financial Post. Electronics has come to the aid of business spying by extending the range of human ears and eyes. The professional snooper can now buy on the market:

A highly sensitive microphone, costing between $20-$30, that may be concealed in such classical hiding places as behind a picture or in a desk drawer; a radio transmitter-receiver outfit that may be concealed to relay whispers to the hearer some distance away; an ultrasensitive long-range microphone that may hang outside an office window to pick up conversation in an office or store across the street; a miniature TV camera—measuring only 1½" in diameter and 7" in length—that may be easily hidden. It relays pictures on a closed TV circuit that may be watched from a distance.

The pulp and paper industry is continually making a better use of the forests it manages.

Mrs Harvey Barkley, 81

Mrs Harvey Barkley, of Morrisburg North, died at Winchester Memorial Hospital following an illness of three months. She was in her 81st year.

Born at Boucks Hill, December 14, 1881, Eva Rosemond Bouck was the daughter of the late David E. Bouck and his wife the late Elizabeth Moran, of Williamsburg West.

Mrs Barkley was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Morrisburg, and in her earlier years was an active member of all organizations of the church. She was educated in area shools and was well known throughout the community as a practical nurse, always ready to offer a helping hand. She was a kind woman, keenly interested in her home, her garden and her flowers.

In 1899 she married Harvey Barkley who predeceased her in 1949. She leaves three sons, Harvey and George Barkley, Iroquois, and Lloyd Barkley, Morrisburg; two daughters, Mrs Wm. Robert J. Trimble

Robert James Trimble, a well-known Ingleside fuel merchant, died suddenly Thursday last while sitting in his parked car. He was 61 years old.

Born at Flesherton, Ont., Mr Trimble was the son of the late William Trimble and his wife, Adeliah Baskerville. He was married to the former Mary Ransom.

In 1935, Mr Trimble moved to the former village of Wales, where he lived to power project flooding.

Besides his wife, he leaves four sons and two daughters: William, Beaconsfield, Que.; Howard, Norman, Brian, Carole and Mary Lou, all of Ingleside. He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs Ethel Hodgson, of Windsor, and Mrs Zilla Richardson, Flesherton, Ont.

Mr Trimble was a member of the Masons and operated Ransom and Trimble Fuels at Ingleside.

The body rested at McArthur Bros. and MacNeil Funeral Home from where the funeral took place Saturday at 11 a.m. to Trinity United Church, Ingleside, with Rev Dr W. Glazer officiating. Burial was made at St. Lawrence Valley Union Cemetery.

CONSIDERING NOSE PRINT OF CATTLE

Britons have never branded their cattle but they now are toying with the possibility of taking cow nose-prints.

The milk marketing board has asked Scotland Yard's fingerprint experts for some useful suggestions. The prints, like human fingerprints, are never the same.

The yare made by pressing a treated pad on the cow's mushroom-shaped sweat glands, situated betwen the nostrils.

At present British cattle are identified by ear tattoos but these can soon become illegible or be filled well enough to pass casual inspection.

A positive method of marking is neded both to sort out herds that have become mixed and to provide evidence in cases of rustling across the border between Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic.

A marketing board official said there are two problems with noseprints: First, the cow sweats profusely through the glands and it would be difficult to prevent smearing of the prints.

The raccoon, found in all provinces except Newfoundland, generally swishes all its food in water before eating.

The majority of the pulpwood harvest in Canada floats on its journey to the paper mills.

HEAVY CAT

A tom cat named Michael became worth his weight in gold.

The story comes from London that two months ago Michael's owner, Rose Harrington, 61, entered a contest sponsored by the British makers of a new cat food.

All she had to do was write a caption on a photograph.

The photograph showed an envious cat peering through a window at a litter of kittens eating cat food.

The sponsors said first prize would be cash equal the weight of the cat owned by the winner.

Michael's owner won.

The cat food people weighed Michael.

He tipped the scales at eight pounds, four ounces.

The manufacturers paid Miss Harrington £2,000 and said that was close enough.

Said Miss Harrington:

"Now I am going to buy myself a car and Michael can have a new basket and a gold-plated dinner bowl.

FOLLOW SAFETY RULES WHEN HANDLING LADDER

Insurance records show that most accidents with outside ladders around the home are caused by a lack of knowledge of the fundamentals of safety. You can eliminate or reduce the chance of an accident by remembering these things:

1. Whenever possible, have someone assist you in raising a long ladder against the side of a house.

2. When it is absolutely necessary to raise the ladder without help, push the base of it against the foundation of the house. Move back to the top of the ladder and raise it to the level of your eyes. Manoeuver yourself under it, grab one of the rungs with both hands and walk forward slowly, moving your hands from rung to rung as you walk toward the house foundation. When the top is against the house, move out the base a few feet to get the ladder in proper position.

3. The distance from the foot of the ladder to the bottom of the house should be one-fourth the height of the ladder.

4. When on the ladder, work with one hand while holding on with the other. You're looking for an accident when you reach out too far. This is true even when you are using one of the gadgets that enables the top of the ladder to be attached to the house.

5. When the ground is soft, use a large wooden board under the base of the ladder. When the ladder is set on concrete or any surface that might be slippery, place rubber feet on the legs.

6. Never paint a wooden ladder. It hides splits and other defects that may occur.

In the last war, the worst air raid on London by the full force of the German Luftwaffe—at that time the greatest military striking force ever created—killed about 1,400 people. The Ontario Safety League points out that North American drivers kill 1,400 people every 12 days.

Vacation drivers — remember that fatigue can be as deadly as alcohol to a driver, says the Ontario Safety League. You stretch your luck when you stretch the hours spent at the wheel beyond the limits of common sense.

TATTOOS ATTRACT SUITORS

Thousands of Papuan girls are still inclined to look upon a good tattoo as a bettter beauty aid than cosmetics in their search for husbands.

Not all the girls in New Guinea have any choice in the matter. Among some central Papuan tribes tattooing is traditional.

Each design tells a story, and the grandly-inscribed girl will have many suitors. Everyone knows that a girl wearing an ornate, all-covering tattoo has an important father and an important family.

"And we mak a 'V' on a woman's neck when she marries, to warn young men that she must now be faithful to her husband," one Papuan said.

When old enough for the first tottooing, a girl is taken to the hut of the woman who is keeper of the clan's tattooing lore. The thorn of a native lemon is used as a needle.

If she has been brave, and belongs to an important family, a few quick lines are drawn on the forehead, on the chin and on the cheeks. But no child may be tattooed on the centre of her face unless her father has been the leader of a successful and dangerous trading expedition in a canoe.

When the girl reaches puberty, he back is tattooed.

Her legs are tattooed only if, at some time in the history of the village, her father has given a great feast.

Later, when she reaches marriageable age, the girl's thighs are tattooed.

Papuan men are tattooed only in exceptional circumstances.

HOW TO GET READY FOR HOUSE PAINTING

Preparation is a big part in painting the exterior of a house. Remove all screens. Cover all shrubbery that is close to the house. Have sturdy ladders in good repair.

Choose a moderately cool, dry day at least three days after a rain. Thoroughly dry surfaces are needed for all paints except cement-base paints for masonry. Work in the shade as much as possible.

A casserole generally is used for braising food.

INNOCENT LOOKING RAGS COULD BE DANGEROUS

How can a bunch of innocent-looking rags be dangerous, from one of Aunt Sue's old dresses or Dad's old jeans? Well, just get a bunch of greasy rags together in an airless closet on a hot summer day, and they may break out in spontaneous combustion and fire.

According to the Handbook of the National Fire Protection Association, which is considered the ultimate authority on fires of all sorts, such combustion can be "attributed to the very rapid oxidation of the thin films of oil spread out over the surface of the fibres. The rapidity and extent of this oxidation are influenced by a number of factors such as the nature of the oil, the volume of the material, the ratio of the exposed surface to the mass, the degree of heat insulation, the presence of so-called driers or certain metallic oxides such as iron rust, the initial temperature and to some extent the moisture content."

It's advisable that all oily rags . . . those that you use for waxing furniture, that Dad uses around the garage in his car-tinkering moments or when fussing around the power mower, be kept in tin or glass containers. Another piece of advice is to keep them in as cool a place as possible.

The safest thing, naturally, is not to have old greasy rags—throw them away. But that's wasteful, and there'll come a day when you find yourself rag-less. A safe and economical alternative is to reclaim your rags. Put them in a bucket of hot water, add half a pound of sal soda concentrated and soak . It comes to grips with the grime and grease, emulsifies it and not only makes them clean and soft as new but makes them thoroughly safe. After drying, they can be stored anywhere until the next using, after which you should give them another sal soda soaking.

The International Postal Union was founded in 1875 by the German postal director, Heinrich von Stephan.

DIMWIT DRIVING

It is self-evident that many traffic accidents are the result of stupidity. Newspaper reports of tragedies often reveal evidence of utter folly:— teenager drivers who try to switch cars while driving down hill, side by side; men so befuddled by drink that they speed for miles down the wrong side of a divided highway: young lives lost as the result of playing "chicken".

The best drivers are usually clever people, according to a study by Professor Hans Hysench, head of the Psychological Department of London University. Reckless driving is not only stupid in itself — it is often the sign of a person of below-average intelligence.

Tests proved, he said, that people with an intelligence quotient of 80 (the average is between 100 and 110) had many more accidents than people with a higher IQ. He felt that considerable caution should be shown before granting license to the dullest 20 per cent of the population.

Dull-witted people prefer to conceal their deficiency, as a rule. But when driving, they often advertize it, blatantly.

Perhaps the standard of driving on the roads today would rise if Society as a whole treated bad driving as a manifestation of sub-normal intelligence. Too many people glorify reckless, aggressive behavious behind the wheel. To some minds, to drive dangerously and selfishly is to show courage, and strength of character.

This sort of courage never impresses those who have to deal with the aftermath of a traffic crash — police, ambulance attendants, distraught relatives. Whether or not brains and good driving always go together says the Ontario Safety League, there is no doubt that recklessness is always a mark of stupidity.

TARNISHED PLANT BUG

During August the tarnished plant bug sets to work in earnest. Few vegetables, fruits or flowers escape his attack, so unfortunately the home garden is his happy hunting ground.

Here is some advice from horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture on how to recognize this pest, its damage, and what to do about it.

The adult is a fragile, brownish bug, with mottled yellow or red markings. You may have a little trouble finding one as they are only a quarter-inch long and when disturbed make a hasty retreat.

Feeding injury can be seen by mottled leaves, scarred leaf petioles and deformed buds. Damage can be particularly noticeable at growing points. The insect feeds by sucking the plant sap, and at the same time injects a poison into the plant. It is this poison which gives the plant a scorched appearance.

To control this pest apply one of the following as required: 5% DDT dust; 50% DDT wettable powder—2 tablespoons per gallon of water. The growing tips and buds should be well covered.

Fashions

Coming up fast on the revised color card is a delicious shade — a creamy banana-yellow that is most becoming. It is the shade selected for this pretty suit dress of lightweight wool worsted.

The sleeveless frock has a shallow scooped neckline and gathers from the waist to ease the top part of the skirt. The black satin sash is optional.

A cropped jacket has nice tabbed detail at the cuffs and a matching yellow chiffon scarf

Outdoor barbecues are fun but they can be messy. Food specialists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph, recommend wrapping frankfurters in aluminum foil when barbecuing with a sauce. This prevents spilling and keeps the sauce in, for a fuller flavour.

EVERYBODY EATS - TRY THESE

TOMATO TREATS

IF YOU HAVE TOMATOES GROWING in your garden you will know that eating them fresh picked and sun warmed, you have more flavour than you will ever get when you have to depend on store-bought tomatoes.

The Macdonald Institute, Guelph, has some good advice about storing tomatoes and also has some good ideas for cooking them.

Storing Tomatoes

Tomatoes are one vegetable that should not be refrigerated. When green, tomatoes should be held at temperatures not lower than 55° F. and used immediately on ripening. If you buy or pick tomatoes when ripe, keep them at a temperature of 45° F. or higher. At lower temperatures, tissue breakdown occurs, giving watery tomatoes. Of course for salads, you should refrigerate to chill, but not for the longer storage periods.

Easy Baked Tomatoes

Wash 1 medium sized tomato per person, removing the hard part of the stem. Cut in half, crosswise.

Place in a greased baking dish with the cut side up. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and grated Ontario mild or medium cheddar cheese. Cover with buttered crumbs. Bake uncovered in a 375 degree F. oven until tender.

Ham Stuffed Baked Tomatoes

An while we are on the topic of tomatoes, try this for a new and different treat. All you need is some leftover ham, six medium tomatoes, celery and onion.

Hollow out the tomatoes, reserving one-quarter cup of the pulp (use the rest for cream soups, for Swiss steaks, or Spanish sauce). Push two cups of chopped ham, ¾ cup celery and ¼ cup onion alternately through the meat grinder. Add ⅛ teaspoon pepper and ½ teaspoon salt during the grinding. Stir in tomato pulp and mix well. Then stuff the tomato shells and top with buttered bread crumbs. Place in an open casserole and bake at 350° F. for 30 minutes. This makes an excellent main dish for a luncheon or supper.

Remember too, that tomatoes, when eaten raw, are considered to be an excellent source of Vitamin C.

Tomato and Cottage Cheese Salad

Section to within ½ inch from the base, medium sized tomatoes, to make wedges that open up, yet are fastened at the bottom. Fill with a scoop of Ontario's delicious cottage cheese, just moistened with mayonnaise. Sprinkle with chopped parsley or chives and there you are! Sitting there on its bed of crisp lettuce, it looks almost too good to eat —but don't let that stop you.

Cooking Hints from Macdonald Institute, Guelph

A little leftover cake and a few berries, but not enough to make a complete dessert of each! This is a problem, but not impossible to solve. Combine them. Cut the cake in ½- to 1-inch pieces, add the berries, then fold in a small recipe of soft custard or pudding. Top with whipped cream and chill.

Here's aneasy way to separate the leaves of head lettuce and yet keep leaf breakage to a minimum. Cut out the core and remove the coarse outer leaves. Hold the head, cut part up, under cold running water to loosen the leaves.

Unveil plaque to commemorate Victoria Cross winner

On Wednesday, August 29, an historical plaque was unveiled in North Lancaster, Glengarry County, to commemorate one of Canada's outstanding war heroes, Caude J. P. Nunney, V.C., D.C.M., M.M. This plaque is one of a series being erected throughout the province by the Department of Travel and Publicity, acting on the advice of the Archaeological and Historic Sites Board of Ontario.

Wednesday's ceremony was arranged and sponsored by the Glengarry Historical Society in conjunction with the "Claude Nunney Memorial Branch" and the "Colonel A. G. F. MacDonald Memorial Branch" of the Royal Canadian Legion. Mrs W. A. MacKinnon, president of the Glengarry Historical Society, acted as program chairman. Among those taking part in the ceremony were the Honourable Louis P. Cecile, Q.C., Ontario's Minister of Public Welfare; Gerald Sangster, reeve of Lancaster Township; Lloyd Fawthrop, president of the Claude Nunney Memorial Branch, Canadian Legion; a representative of the Colonel A. G. F. MacDonald Memorial Branch, Canadian Legion, and James Bredin, president of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Historical Society. The plaque was unveiled by William H. Proctor, who served in the 38th Battalion, C.E.F., and was dedicated by Msgr. E. J. MacDonald, M.C., P.A.V.G., Vicar-General of the Diocese of Alexandria, who served as a chaplain in World War I.

One of Canada's outstanding heroes during World War I was Claude Joseph Patrick Nunney. Despite the fact that he served with the Canadian Expeditionary Force in Europe less than two years, he was awarded the Military Medal, the Distinguished Conduct Medal and the British Empire's highest decoration for gallantry in action, the Victoria Cross.

Nunney was born on December 24, 1892, in Dublin, Ireland. Little is known of his childhood years, but it appears that he was brought to Canada and placed in an orphanage in Ottawa. Dr D. D. McDonld, of Alexandria, took an interest in him, and he went to live with the doctor's mother, Mrs R. D. McDoanld, who had a house at Pine Hill in Glengarry County. Here he was brought up and attended the local Separate School No. 9 in Lancaster Township.

The war broke out in Europe in August, 1914, and Canadians were among the first to supply volunteer forces for the defence of the Empire. Nunney enlisted at Ottawa on March 8, 1915, and was posted to the 38th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force. The following year, during the month of August, he arrived in France to join the Canadian forces who were engaged in the great allied offensive on the Somme River. This battle, known to the participants of both sides as a futile, frustrating and costly warfare of attrition, was named by the Germans 'Der Blutbad.' It was certainly a ghastly baptism of fire for the fresh Canadian troops, who welcomed the news that they were to join other formations of the Canadian Corps being assembled for an attack in the spring of 1917 on the formidable German position along Vimy Ridge.

This was one of the major assaults of the war, and as far as Canadians are concerned, their greatest battle. The Germans had held their positions in the virtually impregnable ridge since 1914, and it was decided by the Allied Command that they must be dislodged. The four Canadian divisions played a very conspicuous part in the successful assault, and it was during these operations that Claude Nunney received his first decoration. He was awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal for gallantry in action in April, 1917. His citation, which appeared in the "London Gazette" reads as follows: "For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Although wounded in two places, and his section wiped out, he continued to advance, carrying his gun and ammunition, and alone stopping an attack by over 200 enemy. He continued on duty for three days, showing exceptional fearlessness and doing magnificent work."

To this honour he added a new decoration, when he was awarded the Military Medal, for bravery in the field, on September 17, 1917, in the area of Gouy Servins, France.

During 1917 and 1918 the Canadian Corps played an increasingly active role in the great offensives in France, and gained for themselves an enviable reputation as fighting men. It was not without justification that the famous British statesman, Lloyd George, wrote: "The Canadians played a part of such distinction that henceforth they were marked out as storm troops; for the remainder of the war they were brought along to head the assault in one great battle atfer another. Whenever the Germans found the Canadian Corps coming into the line, they prepared for the worst."

Late in the summer of 1918, Nunney's unit was in the area of Vis-en-Artois, France, and it was during the subsequent engagement that he won his highest honour, the Victoria Cross. The citation, which appeared in the "London Gazette" on December 14, 1918, gives a complete summary of the actions which earned Nunney his decoration. It reads: "For most conspicuous bravery during the operations against the Drocourt-Queant line on the 1st and 2nd of September, 1918. On the 1st of September, when his battalion was in the vicinity of Vis-en-Artois, preparatory to an advance, the enemy laid down a heavy barrage and counterattacked. Pte. Nunney, who was at this time at company headquarters, immediately on his own initiative, proceeded through the barrage to the company outpost lines, going from post to post and encouraging the men by his own fearless example. The enemy were repulsed and a critical situation was saved. During the attack on 2nd September, his dash continually placed him in advance of his companions, and his fearless example undoubtedly helped greatly to carry the company forward to its objectives. He displayed throughout the highest degree of valour until severely wounded."

Claude Nunney, was as the citation states, severely wounded in the action, and the injuries proved fatal. He died on September 18, 1818, and was buried in Aubigny Communal Cemetery Extension, Aubigny-en-Artois.

In Glengary his name is still remembered with pride and as one who upheld the renowned military traditions of the county. His memory is perpetuated by the local branch of the Royal Canadian Legion in North Lancaster, which proudly bears his name.
