Legionaires and Finch Appear to be Finalists As Maxville and Winchester Refuse To Replay Series Following Protests

Final play-offs in the Central Ottawa Valley Hockey League have (quoting military terminology) deteriorated rapidly this week and it would appear this morning that all concerned are in a state of utter confusion.

Following the first round, when Maxville defeated Finch, and Winchester ousted Chesterville, the winners' status was protested on the grounds illegal players were used. League officials met here Tuesday night and President Wm. McCloskey ordered the series replayed in sudden-death games with the alleged illegal players thrown out.

Finch protested four of the Glens' players, Pearce, McDonald, Ryan and McEwan; while Chesterville protested two Winchester men, Lennox and Johnston.

Maxville and Winchester went ahead with their final playdowns last night, the Glens winning in Winchester 9-0. Notified by the league president of the decision to replay the series, both teams refused this morning to co-operate, and the matter was referred to W. B. George, Kemptville, secretary of the O.D.H.A., who uphold President McCloskey's decision and ordered the games replayed.

As the situation stands now, Winchester and Maxville are eliminated and Chesterville and Finch will playoff for the league championship, with the first game in Finch Friday night and the return match here Monday. The winners will meet Osgoode in the first round of the District Playdowns on January 26th.

MAXVILLE AND WINCHESTER WINNERS OF FIRST ROUND AND BOTH PROTESTED

Fighting desperately to overcome a one-goal lead scored by Winchester "Rangers" in the first play-off game Saturday night, Chesterville's Legionaires went down 2-1 Monday night to lose the first round of the C.O.V.-H.L. series by a two-goal margin and dropped out of the championship tussle for the first time in many years.

Maxville, holding down first place, defeated Finch in the series of home-and-home games, goals counting, and won the right to move into the finals for the league championship against Winchester.

Winchester won the first game of the round Saturday night 5-4, thus taking the round 7-5 over the second place Legionaires. Winners of the Maxville-Winchester series will meet Osgoode in the first round of the Ottawa District playdowns leading to the Citizen Shield.

Winchester Opens Fast

The first half of the period here Monday night was all Winchester's as the Rangers dug in to add to their slim lead. But at the 10-minute mark the Legionaires began wearing down the fast-skating visitors and took over some of the attacking.

Minus the services of "Pro" Alford, Jimmie McCloskey and Keith McConnell, the Legionaires were badly handicapped and their plays were not clicking as lines had to be switched. Jim Fyke played his usual good game in the nets and smothered more than a few plays that looked like sure counters.

Winchester increased their lead in the series at nine minutes of the second frame when D. Hitsman scored after Bob Hitsman had carried the puck into Chesterville's territory and slipped over the pass. Helmer took a penalty in this frame, but was held out in their power drives, and later MacGregor and Levere took the only other penalties when they started a tussle after Levere had rapped MacGregor over the neck.

Rangers Go Two Up

An injury to Johnston, their star defenceman, paved the way surprisingly enough for Winchester's second goal at 17.00 minutes of the last period. Johnston was hit in the body by a fast puck aimed at his net and had to be assisted from the ice. Workman grabbed the puck on right wing from the face-off and streaked up to beat Fyke, left alone. Bick Fulton finally gave the Legionaires their one counter with but 15 seconds to go when he went in alone, stick-handled around the defence and popped in the puck after drawing Utman out of position in his nets.

But the drive came too late, and Chesterville faded from the play-off picture. Alibis are not popular we know, but our injury-riddled Legionaires were at a distinct disadvantage. They couldn't get the measure of Winchester's fast plays that kept clicking all night and proved far more effective than the lone-man plays Chesterville tried time and again when the juggling of lines kept them off balance.

The largest crowd of the season attended the game, resulting in a gate of over $325.

The teams:

Winchester: Goal, Utman; defence, Ramsbottom 9, N. Johnston 4; centre, Crowder 2; rw, Workman 1; lw, Locke 12; subs, Boyd 8, Hurley 6, Salter 5, D. Hitsman 7, Bob Hitsman 3, J. Lennox 11, D. Levere 10.

Chesterville: Goal, Fyke; def., G. MacGregor and C. Plantz; centre, C. McMillan; wings, F. Moran, A. Fyke; subs, L. Helmer, D. Munro, G. Fyke, J. Fulton, J. Carlyle, R. Casselman.

Officials—M. Scott, A. Jarvis.

Dunbar Presbyterian Church Reports Encouraging Year

The Annual Congregational Meeting of the Dunbar Presbyterian Church was held in the church on Tuesday afternoon. The minister, Rev. W. H. Heustin acted as chairman and the secretary, Carman Barkley, took the minutes.

Each organization has been active during the year and the total of the credit balances and the work accomplished show that the congregation is in a good state.

The Ladies Aid Society held regular meetings and have a large credit balance on hand. The Women's Missionary Society exceeded its allocation and over $100 was sent to the Presbyterial treasurer. During the years the Diamond Jubilee of this W. M. S. was observed.

"Advance For Christ"

The sum of $478.00 has been sent to the treasurer of the Presbyterian Advance for Christ and Peace Thank-Offering Fund, and with some other sums already contributed by the W.-M. S. and Sunday School but not yet forwarded and $41 in pledges, the members of the congregation are confident that their allocation will be met. Charles Marselis, church treasurer, has been in charge as treasurer and Lyle Thom as chairman of the local committee. All three elders including Frank Todd and the members of the Board of Managers have shown keen interest and co-operation to make this accomplishment possible. Budget contributions showed a small increase over the previous year. The services have been well-attended and eleven young people united with the congregation on profession of faith in Christ, the net increase in membership for the year being nine.

The Young People's Society had the roof of the church painted at a cost of $150.00 and the Board of Managers are planning to have the church painted within the next few months.

The minister expressed his appreciation for the interest shown and the co-operation given him, especially in regard to the Sunday School, which was re-organized in April and which has been well attended. A vote of thanks was given to Mr. Heustin for his work as pastor and the thanks of the congregation was tendered to Mrs. Charles Marselis, the organist, who has carried on diligently for many years, and expressed to her by the minister on behalf of the congregation and himself.

Impressive tribute was paid on Monday by friends and relatives at the funeral of Margaret Annice, wife of the late Chesley Marcellus, native of Morewood, who passed away at Russell on Saturday, February 15th, in her 76th year, after a short illness.

The former Margaret Annice Marcellus, daughter of the late George Marcellus and Grace Irvine of the Ninth Settlement, was born December 11th, 1871, and had fair health until seized with a heart attack on Thursday night, passing away Saturday morning.

The late Mrs. Marcellus was a Life Member of the Presbyterian Church at Morewood, a Life Member of the W. M. S., a staunch worker in the Ladies Aid and all church activities.

After retiring from their farm at Morewood, the late Mr. and Mrs. Marcellus lived in Chesterville, where Mr. Marcellus passed away in 1941.

Two years ago the deceased took up residence in Russell, where her many friends will cherish her memory.

Committee Named to Study Restocking Nation Waters

Appointment of a committee to study the needs of restocking the Nation River with fish was made at the February meeting of The Chesterville Chamber of Commerce held in the Bank of Nova Scotia office Tuesday evening.

W. O. Dixon was named chairman of the committee, with Gordon L. Lannin and Ken Woods as members. This appointment resulted from action instituted at the last meeting of the Eastern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, when the question of restocking Eastern Ontario waters was urged upon the Provincial Minister of Game and Fisheries. Application forms have now been received from the Department.

Howard L. Hough was named secretary for the remainder of the year to replace J. A. Morris who will be leaving Chesterville shortly. W. O. Dixon moved a vote of thanks, seconded by H. J. Hamilton, to the retiring secretary for his efforts in the Chamber since it was organized last June.

Realizing the necessity for co-operation with national bodies in enlarging both the national and community spheres, the Chamber has been affiliated with the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chamber of Commerce.

The decision to hold the meetings on the second Thursday of the month at 7.30 p.m., was ratified by the meeting, as was the appointment of the Industrial Committee — E. B. Lynch, chairman; Chas. "OIL STOVES"

In the interest of saving lives and property more care should be exercised in the purchase of oil heating systems and use of the proper type of fuel oil, the Canadian Underwriters' Association said in a warning issued today following the report of several fires caused by defective stoves and the use of dangerous fuels as a substitute for distillate oil during the present shortage.

"Some months ago" the statement said: "The Canadian Underwriters' Association asked the public to be careful in purchasing oil heating systems, including stoves, as types were being sold which did not bear labels showing they had passed the necessary safety tests. Despite this warning, a number of fires have occurred directly attributable to faulty oil stoves.

"Since a shortage of distillate oil developed within the last few weeks, it is apparent that through lack of knowledge, people are using substitute fuels in oil stoves, which are extremely dangerous to life and property.

"Under no circumstances should such substitutes as alcohol, benzine or derivatives be used for oil stoves, because they are explosive when used under certain conditions.

"In order to protect life and property, therefore, it is advisable to issue another warning to the public to be careful both in the purchase of oil stoves and the use of the proper fuel. If oil stoves are purchased from manufacturers or dealers whose products bear an 'approved label' and are properly installed, proper fuel used and ordinary care taken, there is no reason why fires destructive to life and property should occur."

SEABIRD SANCTUARY

In New Brunswick we have an interesting bird sanctuary which seldom is heard of, and which is not even familiar to every New Brunswicker, let alone every Canadian in the other eight provinces.

It's on Kent Island, in the Grand Manan archipelago, and, among other things, it's the home of the eider ducks of the Bay of Fundy. It's also a breeding ground of those mysterious birds, stormy petrels, those clownish birds, puffins, and those diminutive members of the penguin family, the small auks. The seagulls which congregate there are counted not in thousands, but in scores of thousands.

The trees on Kent Island are one of its most unusual features. They have been distorted and deformed by the weight of the birds which perch on them, and some have tops as flat as pancakes.—St. John Telegraph-Journal.

100 CHEAP SKATES

At Fennells Corners, a few miles north of Bradford, on Highway No. 11, a hundred motorists who were caught in snowdrifts on Sunday night made their way to the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. John Kneeshaw, whose hospitality knew no bounds. Meals were provided for all-comers. The visitors ate 30 dozen eggs, great quantities of meat and bread and drank quarts of milk. When the snow-plow released them and they departed thankfully for their destinations they took up a collection to repay their hosts for their goodness and, unbelievable as it may seem, turned over the magnificent sum of five dollars—Toronto Star.

Quite Safe

They were entertaining the preacher at lunch, and the guest remarked to the small boy of the house: "Don't you ever say prayers before your meals, my child?"

"Oh, no," replied the child. "Dad says our cook's pretty reliable."

Jack Miner's Bird Missionaries

Manly F. Miner

Like many famous personalities, Jack Miner was a religious man. I think often of two of his original sayings. One was: "I never started living until I started believing"; and the other: "My bird sanctuary would never have been what it is, nor have gained world recognition, had I not taken God into partnership and given Him first place." Always he would add: "I owe everything to God." When he died, he said, "I am just going on ahead."

Back in 1904 Jack Miner started feeding, protecting and caring for bird life. He established the Jack Miner Sanctuary at Kingsville, Ontario. In 1909 he began banding birds, and was the pioneer bander on this continent to obtain a complete record of when and where banded birds were shot and killed. The banding was begun and the record of returns from the bands kept for the purpose of securing authentic information regarding migration seasons, migration routes, length of life of the wildfowl, and other such hitherto unknown information. The data secured in the thirty seven years in which his system has been followed provides now a vast fund of scientific knowledge which has been made available to institutions of learning throughout the Dominion and the United States.

In the year 1914 there was incorporated in his bird banding scheme a feature which made it unique and also successful beyond his dreams. Let me tell you the beginning of that in Jack Miner's own words:

"Early one morning, like a star shooting across the heavens, God's radio—or God's guidance, if you wish to call it that—said to me, "Stamp verses of Scripture on the blank side of your duck and goose bands.' From the very first time I stamped such a verse on a band, I felt the help of God and knew I now had my tagging system complete."

That spring he started doing this. Nothing was heard of his "religious geese", as the neighbourhood boys called them, until early in the Fall. Then he received a telegram from Rev. W. G. Walton from Cochrane, Ontario, at that time the most northerly railroad station. The message read: "Am on my way to your home with several of bands placed on birds by you and taken off by Indians and Eskimos in the Arctic Circle."

A couple of days later this devout missionary arrived at our home. I shall never forget the scene: he and my father sitting in front of our fireplace, and he putting his hand into a pocket pulling out the bands and giving them to my father!

Mr. Walton told us that for twenty-six years he had been working on the east coast of Hudson's Bay. In that bleak land he had performed the same duties as had Sir Wilfred Grenfell in Labrador. In all those years he had never been "outside" or, as we say it, to the scenes of civilization.

As he laid the priceless bands in my father's hands, he said, "But, Mr Miner, I had to come out now. These verses from the Holy Book have caused a great revival and awakening of religious feeling among our native Indians and Eskimos. I had to come and tell you of it. They all believe these are messages sent direct from God—as indeed they are! They come to me to interpret the messages."

The verses imprinted on the bands were ones that were favorites of Jack Miner's, usually promises, such as: "No good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly"; or, "Have faith in God." So many geese bearing Jack Miner's Scripture-verse bands have been shot by the Cree Indians and Eskimos of the Hudson's Bay district in the last thirty years that the Mission houses have always been filled with men and women eager to learn "what God has said this time."

Following that visit Mr. Walton gladly acted as Jack Miner's agent in collecting the bands, and hundreds of them were returned to us that never would have been kept had it not been for the verse stamped upon them.

Since Mr. Walton's first visit other missionaries, namely the Jesuit priests of the Roman Catholic Church have also co-operated wholeheartedly with us in the same manner to collect our bands. A book could be written on incidents that occurred in this connection among these people of the Far North.

In connection with the birds shot in the South, mostly throughout the Eastern half of the United States, Central America, Cuba, Haiti and the Northerly states of South America, the response to it was astonishing and very gratifying. In most cases the shooting of a fowl bearing a Scripture-stamped band is sufficiently unique as to constitute a newspaper story. Frequently it is syndicated and goes into a thousand or more newspapers, so that the message comes before the eyes of millions of persons.

One of the most remarkable letters ever to come into my father's hands was written by an inmate of the Arkansas State Prison. It read in part:

"I am here for overdraft on a bank; my room-mate, who is sitting at my elbow, is in here for murder. We have a paper here giving an account of a duck shot in Louisiana, with your band marked, "Have Faith in God". We have looked this up in the Bible and find the reference correct."

Darwin's Fruits

The Hyde Park orator made frequent references to Darwin's "Origin of Species."

A tall man and his short companion hung on to the outskirts of the crowd, but were unable to get near the speaker.

"What's his trouble, Bill?" asked the small man, tired of craning his neck to no purpose.

"Eat more fruit, I think." replied the other. "All he keeps talking about is Darwin's oranges and peaches."

MY YOUNGEST SCOUT

Dedicated to All Scouts
Boy Scout and Girl Guide
Week, Feb. 16-23

He was only gone to camp for a week
But the house was wondrous still,
I missed the bang of the porch screen door
And his whistle sharp and shrill;
I missed the tracks of his dusty shoes
And the clothes on every chair,
Home seemed a drear and a desolate place
With the youngest Scout not there.
I found my memory stealing back
O'er the rainbow tainted years,
To those other Scouts who went off to camp
Midst laughter and fun and cheers,
Those boys who went on with unfaltering steps
To that greater rendezvous
Where many have given their very lives,
As all good Scouts would do.
He's home again now, my youngest Scout
With his happy face burnt brown,
I felt so proud when I saw him march
With the rest of the Scouts in town;
He's just a tiny bit straighter grown,
More manly, he seems to be,
He brought us the scent of sweet spruce boughs
And the strength of the young pine tree,
His pals have gathered around to hear
The tale that he has to tell
Of the tests he passed, of the race he ran,
Of the time that was simply swell!
And I feel, as I empty the old kit bag
And hear him laugh and shout,
There is nothing much finer for any boy
Than to be a good clean Scout.

CHILDREN FLY TO SCHOOL

Children are not in any particular hurry when they have to go to school. But in some parts of Africa they go by air to their classes, not exactly out of enthusiasm but for the simple reason that there is no other form of transport available. Appropriate aircraft are used in out-of-the-way districts, where the farmers live a hundred miles or more from the nearest school. A United Kingdom aircraft manufacturing firm is making a specialty of supplying the 12 to 14 small seat machines.

THE MINUET

By Mary Mapes Dodge

Grandma told me all about it,
Told me so I couldn't doubt it,
How she danced, my grandma danced long ago—
How she held her pretty head,
How her dainty skirt she spread,
How she slowly leaned and rose—long ago.

Grandma's hair was bright and sunny
Dimpled cheeks, too, oh, how funny!
Really quite a pretty girl—long ago.
Bless her! Why, she wears a cap,
Grandma does, and takes a nap
Every single day: and yet
Grandma danced the minuet—long ago.

"Modern ways are quite alarming," Grandma says, "but boys were charming
(Girls and boys she means, of course) "long ago".
Brave but modest, grandly shy;
She would like to have us try
Just to feel like those who met
In the graceful minuet—long ago.

Private: "Did you fill your date last night?"

Sarge: "I'll say I did. She ate everything in sight."

Nation River "Authority" to be Organized Following Monday's Affirmative Vote By Represeutatives of Municipalities Affected

Representatives of municipalities of the South Nation River watershed on Monday voted 20 to three in favor of establishing a Nation River Conservation Authority, the first major co-operative procedure in the entire history of Eastern Ontario.

The Authority will replace a conservation committee set up just 18 months ago following the disastrous flood of July 17, 1945, when rich farm lands were inundated. The new body will be fashioned on the same lines as the committee was, with one representative from each of the 29 municipalities affected, with one extra delegate from Gloucester township because of Gloucester's larger population. The delegates met at the County Court House in Ottawa.

When the important vote was taken on the resolution asking the Ontario Minister of Public Works and the Lieutenant Governor in Council to establish the Conservation Authority, representatives of five municipalities were absent. These were Kenyon Township, Elizabethtown Township, Maxville Village, Finch Village, and Augusta Township.

The three votes against the project were cast by John D. Ferguson (Roxborough), Charles T. Shaver (Osnabruck) and Oscar Beckstead (Williamsburg).

In favor were K. MacGillivray (Finch), Earl Baldwin (Mountain), J. B. Potvin and Alexander Roger, (Gloucester), D. Parent (South Plantagenet), F. Larose (North Plantagenet), Mahlon W. Zeron (Matilda), G. G. Landry (Clarence), Rene Boileau (Casselman), J. P. Meilleur (Cambridge), O. L. King (Chesterville), Norman Edwards (Cumberland), Romulus Clement (Russell), Mansel Bennett (South Gower), J. S. Reilly (Edwardsburg), James Gow (Oxford), S. Bertrand (Alfred), J. H. Methot (Caledonia), Albert Turner (Winchester), and H. E. Durant (Winchester Township).

For a quorum, attendance of two-thirds of the delegates was required, and a minimum of two-thirds in favor of the resolution was necessary for it to pass.

Mahlon Zeron, reeve of Matilda Township, was chairman of the meeting, but for the registration of the vote turned the chair over to A. H. Richardson, chief conservation engineer, Ontario Department of Planning and Development.

Mr. Richardson explained how previous conservation authorities in Western Ontario operated, and answered questions by delegates and by many farmers of the district who packed the main courtroom of the Carleton County Court House on Nicholas street.

Last summer, Mr. Richardson said, the upper part of the main river had been surveyed by the Ontario Government without charge to the residents of the Nation River Watershed. Eastern Ontario was gradually going dry, and the surface water level was dropping, although great damage was caused in times of flood.

Mr. Richardson was unable to predict what flood-control and conservation measures would be undertaken. It would be up to the engineers making the survey to make such recommendations. The new Conservation Authority was not expected to spend any set amount of money on reforestation, building dams, and so forth, but the extent of the projects to be undertaken would be governed by the amount the Authority was prepared to spend.

The Authority, he pointed out, was an organization of the people of the district, and delegates would be merely spokesmen for the municipalities concerned. Nothing would, or could, be done that was not in the best interests of the people themselves.

Cost of any project would be shared by the Authority, the Federal and Provincial governments. That portion of cost to be met by the Authority would be apportioned among the 29 municipalities in proportion to the percentage of benefit each would receive from the project.

Mr. Zeron, whose township was the one most seriously affected by floods, said thousands of acres of rich farm land were flooded when the Nation river rose over its banks.

He urged that residents of the district, which extends from just north of Brockville to the Ottawa river near Plantagenet, should look into the future in deciding what control measures should be taken.

"We should do something here today," he said, "to start the ball rolling."

Mr. Zeron told a reporter that in many places farm crops were covered with water three feet deep in the middle of the Summer after a few days of continued rains. The land along the South Nation river was extremely level, and flood waters could extend great distances. On one occasion 5,000 acres were affected.

Spring floods caused less damage than those later in the year, he said, because they occurred before the crops had been planted.

Where the Entomologist Went to the Dogs

Apparently some of the amenities of life to a visitor to the Northwest Territories are not very enviable. In the summer of 1946 Alan G. Dustan, who is in charge of Garden and Vegetable Insect Investigations for the Division of Entomology, Dominion Department of Agriculture, visited the settlements on the Mackenzie River for the purpose of making a study of garden and vegetable insects, because in some of the settlements there are flourishing flower and vegetable gardens. He made the greater part of his extensive journey in a single-seater aeroplane and since his return has made an enlightening report as a result of his official survey.

In the January issue of the Agricultural Institute Review he has an article in which he gives some impressions of the social life in the settlements he visited. No story of life in the settlements, he states, can be complete without reference to the ubiquitous dog.

In every settlement visited dogs were all over the place. The traveller is conscious of them, morning, noon and night, because they make themselves heard and surround the villages on all sides as well as being present along the main streets. Most of them are huskies or have husky blood in them and are used as sleigh dogs during the winter months. There is a law up in the North which definitely states that all dogs over 6 months, or younger ones weighing more than 30 pounds, must be tied up when in the settlements.

Sleeping in the North in the summer months, due to so little darkness, is difficult for a visitor even without the noisy dogs but with the dogs around, it is impossible. From the time that daylight commences to wane these animals set up their weird howling and barking. The noise they make does not resemble in any respect the barking or howling of Eastern dogs. It is a weird mixture of howling, yelping and screaming and is beyond any verbal description. It has to be heard to be believed. The howling is intermittent throughout the night—the animals giving tongue in chorus suddenly as though someone had fired a shot. There seems to be no reason for the outcry which appears to spring up spontaneously from all sides, within and without the village. It keeps up for a short period and then subsides almost as suddenly.

Watch Out

"How are you getting on with your new boy friend?" asked the brunette.

"Oh, he's all washed up," replied the blonde. "I think he's been deceiving me and that he's really a married man."

"Well, last night,'" explained the blonde, "I was sitting on his knee and he gave me his watch to play with."

"Now, there's a real mechanic," the customer observed to the foreman.

The amount contributed to the Budget Fund was larger than in the previous year and, the congregation met its allocation for the Peace Thank-Offering Fund in the amount of $518.00. H. G. Bigelow was chairman of the congregations committee on the Presbyterian Advance for Christ and Peace Thank-Offering Fund and St. Andrew's was one of the first two congregations in the Presbytery of Brockville to meet its allocation.

The financial reports of the Ladies' Aid and Women's Missionary Societies, prepared by Mrs. George Crawford, showed that a great deal had been accomplished during the past year. The W. M. S. sent $111.35 to the Presbyterial treasurer; reorganized the MacKay-Douglas Girls' Group, which reported through its Secretary, Miss Mary David, and supervised the work and instruction in the Sunshine Mission Band.

The thanks of the congregation were tendered to Lewis David for printing the annual report; to Mrs. Harold Greer, organist; Miss Mildred McIntosh, assistant organist, and the members of the choir for their diligent service and capable leadership throughout the year and particularly at the successful anniversary services; and to the minister who expressed his appreciation of the loyalty and co-operation of the people and the consistently good attendance at the services of worship.

The meeting closed with prayer and refreshments were served by members of the Ladies Aid Society.

Wait For The Squeeze

Accompanied by his son, Sandy entered a tavern, where he handed over a jar and asked for it to be filled with whisky.

When this had been done he found he'd left all his money at home. So, with a cynical smile, the landlord poured out the whiskey.

"That wis an' awfu' peety", said the son when they were plodding home again.

"Wheesh, son," replied Sandy warningly: "Just wait till we get hame an' see me squeezing oot the sponge."

Red Cross Funds Raised During War Assist Overseas Relief

Many persons across Canada are under the misapprehension that Canadian Red Cross funds raised during the war are available for peacetime uses, Lewis A. Winter, O.B.E., honorary treasurer of the Society, said today.

"This money cannot be used for a peacetime program in Canada". Mr. Winter declared. "In 1945 and 1946, the Society spent over $17,000,000 for relief in Britain, Europe and Asia. There is approximately $6,000,000 remaining from war revenue which must be used for purposes arising out of or connected with the war under the terms of the War Charities Act. Expenditures for these purposes are continuing but the allotments for this year towards further meeting the great distress due to the war have yet to be made.

"We in Canada may be thankful that we are able to continue this great humanitarian work of overseas relief with available funds. Instead of seeking more money for this purpose we are able to go to the Canadian people with plans for the expansion of our peacetime work for the benefit of Canadians.

"Scores of thousands of war sufferers have blessed Canadians and a great many owe their lives to Canadian generosity. We believe scores of thousands of Canadians will have reason to bless the peacetime program of the Red Cross.

"It is for the purpose of carrying on this peacetime work that the Canadian Red Cross Society is asking for $5,000,000 in the national appeal opening March 3."

Barbara Ann Scott, Ottawa, Wins World Skating Title

As the cheers of 15,000 admiring spectators rose in the crisp, wintry air, Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa, Saturday pirouetted to victory in the World Figure-Skating Championships and became Canada's first Queen of the ice.

Climaxing an 11-year-dream, the youthful Canadian beauty won both the difficult compulsory school figures and the colorful free-skating competition in whirling to a graceful triumph over 21 of the world's top women skaters from seven countries.

In the tumult that followed three days of exacting competition, fans in the huge Stockholm outdoor stadium reached a crescendo of applause for the 18-year-old girl who had skated her way into their hearts.

Treated to a skating exhibition unparalleled since Sonja Henie flashed into prominence as the "Norwegian Doll" in 1936, spectators well-versed in the art of the whirling blades leaped over grandstand barriers as Barbara Ann was declared champion over Daphine Walker of London and Gretchen Merrill of Boston.

They swarmed on the ice and enveloped the Canadian girl in a flurry of handshaking and congratulation.

Barbara Ann's mother, Mrs. Clyde Scott, was also engulfed by the milling crowd as she joined her daughter in mid-ice. There were tears in her eyes as she saw Barbara Ann's dream come true. For it was Mrs. Scott, widow of a permanent force soldier, who had constantly encouraged Barbara Ann since the Ottawa girl put on her first pair of skates at the age of seven.

South Mountain, Ont.,
February 11, 1947

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Lattimore:

We, your friends and neighbours, take pleasure tonight in honouring you on this happy occasion, your Golden anniversary.

As we have known you all our lives we realize that those fifty years together have been well-filled with helpfulness and happiness.

You, Mrs. Lattimore, proved to be a willing and faithful helper in our Red Cross and other sewing groups, as well as in every other community affair, although for many years you have had your full share of cares at home.

We will not burden you with words but will now ask you to accept this small remembrance along with our heartiest wishes for many more years of wedded life together.

Signed on behalf of the Hyndman Community, George Francis and Robert Grant.

Mrs. Lattimore thanked everyone for the lovely gift. All joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows". Lunch was then served. The bride's cake was cut and passed around which was enjoyed by all.

A Flake of Snow

Edna Jaques

Did you ever have a flake of snow light on the dark sleeve of your coat . . and did you notice the tiny star-shaped thing . . looked as if it came right out of Fairyland . . so frail, that if you so much as breathed upon it, it would melt away.

Pretty small all right—but piled up in drifts this winter they've isolated whole communities—cut towns and villages off from supplies for days on end—stopped Trans-Canada trains—buried huge snow-plows—smothered cattle to death in cuts and draws in the West.

Since the New Year, snow has grounded air travel many times—stopped street cars—buried buses, sent trucks careening into ditches and practically crippled business for days on end.

Just shows you how powerful tiny things can be when they start working together—against you.

Money is a lot like that too. A cent is neither here nor there. What's a copper you say, it wouldn't buy anything. But four coppers will buy a stamp that will take a letter half way around the world.

Ten will buy a loaf of bread; 46 will buy a pound of golden butter; 8 will buy a pound of sugar; 4 a pound of flour; 3 will get you an orange from far away California.

Ever since the war began it has been the policy of the Government of Canada to keep the cost of living down to a fair level so that housewives could keep their families well-fed, and healthy without crippling the budget . . . to realize how well they have succeeded you need only inquire about the cost of living in any other country in the world.

Poor China is practically buried under drifts of paper money. Eire is struggling under a cost of living of 169, Egypt 281, Iceland 283, while across the border they are up against a rising cost that makes it hard for housewives to see the end of the month at all, where food alone has risen 78 percent since 1941.

Rationing of goods in short supply has been part of the overall policy closely connected with price control . . . subsidies and distribution, and now as we move along the 'road back' to normal living where supply and demand usually take care of prices, there is the new policy of decontrols . . . the lifting of subsidies . . . orderly unwinding of prices . . . more freedom in imports and export regulations . . . distribution of raw materials, as supply and demand wage their interesting play on the markets of the world and the outlook for a better balance in trade manifests itself both at home and abroad.

Goods and services which still remain subject to price control contains most of the basic foods . . . practically all articles of clothing—boots and shoes, home furnishings, coal and wood fuels, the major household appliances, heating and plumbing equipment, automobiles, tires and gasoline, rentals, laundry services, along with a variety of basic materials such as steel, copper, rubber, lumber and pulp, not forgetting farm machinery, tractor and gas and oil.

Suppose for a minute that a cent were allowed on every article you buy—a stamp, a scribbler, a pound of butter, sugar, eggs, flour, bread, a dose of salts, street-car tickets.

Wouldn't take long for your finances to be snowed under an avalanche of pennies, piled up in drifts, a cent at a time—just one cent.

The slow orderly removal of war-time restrictions has been going on since the shooting war stopped and will continue until the fear of a crippling inflation is practically over.

As we move along there will be increases here and there . . . little peaks of high prices will show—but the general trend will be a steady flow back to peacetime living with no drifts of inflation to block the road in our post-war world.

Training Children for Family Life

The family's job they say is to bring the child from six to one hundred and sixty pounds—from a savage to a cultured, civilized human being. The world's problems are created and met by the results of the successful or unsuccessful efforts of parents to meet this latter responsibility.

The family sets the pattern of the child's life in several vitally important areas. His attitudes towards law and order; public spiritedness; politicl and religious thinking; tolerance and co-operation; responsibility.

Our theme is building for children. When we build, if we are to build well and wisely, we have plans, a blueprint of the finished product. We must have and keep before us a vision of what we want our child to be. What do we want our child to be? What qualities do we want our children to have? What characteristics do you think your child should have to be a well-rounded, well-integrated human being?

It is interesting to note that obedience is rarely suggested as a desirable quality in a grown man or woman, yet we are apt, as parents, to lose sight of this and to place undue emphasis on that very thing.

An individual's life might be divided into three periods: 1. Utter dependence. 2. Independence. 3. Interdependence. The first is a very important period, the formative years when obedience is an important factor, and when the family makes decisions for the child in at least three areas, eating, sleeping and resting. The second period from 6 to 18 years, the wise parent pushes on the child the responsibility for making as many decisions as soon as possible. This is the period for the development of self-discipline. The third and longest period of an individual's life, the latter part of his life for which the former has been training, the period of interdependence, when he becomes a part of another family—his own. During this time, the success or failure of the parent's training is evident, and involves other lives than that of the child.

Parents have given him his problem solving techniques. Can he meet difficulties squarely, or does he fly into a tantrum if the buttons haven't been sewn on his shirt? Or does she get a sick headache and have to retire to her room if she is crossed in any way? Has he an alibi for every occasion? Does she indulge in ostentatious lamentations? (She would have done this or that if so many things hadn't conspired against her!)

To train children successfully for family life, I think special attention is needed in the following areas:

1. Brother and sister relationship. Preparation of the child for the sharing of attention, toys or duties. (Too often, sister does all the little household chores while brother runs free.)

2. Responsibility. Each child should be given some task which is his or her responsibility to carry out, without nagging, without bribery.

3. The use of money. Children must be taught to spend wisely. Start early with allowances which, by the way, must be the child's very own to do with as he chooses. Just help him to make the right choices. Above all don't use money as a lure, threat or weapon.

4. Self-discipline and self-control in the matter of behaviour, pleasures and clothes. Make use of "taboos." A much stronger argument than most parents realize. "We just don't do that sort of thing in this family" can be a powerful deterrent to unwise actions. Self-control in the use of the family's resources—the car, the radio, the use of the family living-room, etc. Train children to self-control in the matter of pleasures—the wise parent points out that well-balanced people divide their lives into three sections, eight hours of rest, eight hours of work, eight hours for recreation.

5. Attitudes towards sex. Parents have a grave responsibility here. The child, depending upon his training, will regard sex as one of the finest human relationships—a deep fundamental drive—or as some off-colour thing. Wholesome boy-girl relationships must be given in the home.

Dad must be ready to help his adolescent daughter to achieve a balanced judgment of the boys who take her out. Discuss the problem of "petting" with adolescents, but give them credit for being able to make sensible decisions.

Since training for marriage and parenthood is not yet available in the high school classroom, parents must undertake this serious responsibility. Too many choices of a life partner are made while the boy or girl is in love (for all practical purposes a period of temporary insanity).

Tolerance (how badly it is needed in the world today!) begins at home. Children must be taught to be tolerant of different viewpoints, beliefs and ideas. They must be taught to be tolerant and co-operative towards people of a different race, color or creed. "It is in the minds of men that wars begin" and even the pre-school child can be given a sense of world brotherhood.

Co-operation in family relationships. Have you ever considered asking your child for a list of the things you do which irk and irritate him or her? Or have you tried preparing a list of things in which you wish they would show improvement? A written list left where parent or child will be sure to find it successfuly removes the possibility of recrimination or argument.

Last but by no means least, spiritual training. A child without spiritual training is like a ship without anchor on the sea of life. This involves the necessity for the parent to have some spiritual faith of his own. It means quite definitely that you must do the things you ask your child to do, show reverence, go to church have some philosophy by which to live.

To conclude, to train children for family life we must train them to believe that they have an obligation to be as fine a person as they have it in them to be.

RISEN FROM THE DEAD

A "rising from the dead", bordering on the miraculous, has been successfully brought about by a London doctor. According to all the rules of science, one of his patients had died; his heart ceased to beat and all signs of life were extinct. After 12 minutes had elapsed, the doctor, Dr. Hamilton Bailey, began to massage the patient's heart with his hand. The heart began to function again, its beats became regular once more. The "dead man" is now back at work again without knowing anything about it! The details were not revealed to him but the facts have been given in the well-known medical journal "The Lancet".

"THE CRAIGS" CARRY ON

Undismayed by a recent mishap to one of their members, the farm radio family "The Craigs" are shown here acting the old stage rule, "the show must go on." When Grace Webster, who plays the role of mother Martha Craig, fell on the ice and broke a leg, her program associates followed her from hospital to home, to do their daily broadcasts. (Script writer Dean Hughes even created a broken leg for Martha Craig in the story). With Grace Webster are Alice Hill (daughter Janice), Frank Peddie (father Thomas Craig) and George Murray (son Bill). "The Craigs" are heard Monday to Friday during the Ontario Farm Broadcast, at 12.30 p.m. EST, over Ontario and Quebec stations of the CBC Trans-Canada network.

HYBRID CORN TESTS

Experimental Farm News

Annually, hybrid corn tests are conducted throughout Ontario under the direction of the Ontario Corn Committee. Direct supervision is in the hands of the Dominion Experimental Station, Harrow, the Provincial Experimental Farm, Ridgetown, the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph and the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. The information from these tests is used by the Corn Committee in recommending new hybrids for production in Ontario, says Dr. G. F. H. Buckley, Dominion Experimental Station, Harrow, Ont.

During 1946, the tests in Essex and western Kent Counties suffered from heavy rains and flooding just after the corn had emerged from the ground. This was followed by an extended period of drought from mid-June to mid-September. Elsewhere in the province the weather conditions were more favourable to the corn. The long, open fall was ideal for ripening corn and many of the later hybrids matured satisfactorily. However, yields, particularly in the Essex and Kent tests were not as great as in some previous years.

This year seven hybrids representing all four maturity group were added to the list of hybrids recommended for Ontario. All have been tested for two or more years in Ontario.

To the very early group were added Jacques 802 and Kingscrost KE3. These hybrids are almost as early in maturing as Canada 240 and are adapted to the extreme southern portion of Ontario.

Two hybrids were added to the early group. Both of these, Funk G35 and DeKalb 56 are slightly earlier in maturing than Canada 355.

Reids 107W, a white hybrid, and Pride D56 were added to the medium group. These have approximately the same maturity index as Canada 606.

Pioneer 342 was the only hybrid added to the late maturing group. It has about the same maturity index as Canada 696.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Brides from other countries who are learning the Canadian way of cooking must not only adjust their cookery methods but also their cooking vocabulary. Articles of common use in kitchens here have names which differ from those in the homeland. Terms and equipment will gradually become familiar and genuine homemakers soon adjust themselves to existing circumstances—cheerfully.

Every new Canadian housewife, whether she comes from another land or whether she is taking that big step from office to home manager, should start by collecting good basic recipes. These might be kept in a card index or in a handy indexed scrap book. Classify menus under breakfast, lunch and dinner according to months.

Many experienced cooks collect The Mixing Bowl recipes too. They clip the column from the newspaper, cut out the hints and recipes and paste these on cards. You will need three-by-five inch cards along with a recipe file box and dividers, available in any stationery store. And if you buy two sets of index dividers you can build up two separate classifications under each letter of the alphabet; the classification titles should be entered on the index dividers.

Suggested classifications are:

A—appetizers.	A-1—afternoon teas
B—quick breads.	B-1—biscuits, etc.
C—cake recipes.	C-1—cookie recipes.
D—desserts (oven).	D-1—desserts (frozen)
E—eggs (custards)	E-1—eggs (main dish)
F—fish.	F-1—fish sauces.
G—gravy.	G-1—gardening tips
H—hints (cleaning)	H-1—hints (festive)
I—infant and convalescent foods	I-1—icings.
J—jams.	J-1—jellies.
K—kitchen equipment
L—lunches.	L-1—laundry tips.
M—meat and meat substitutes	M-1—milk.
N—night snacks.
O—oven meals.	O-1—outdoor meals.
P—poultry.	P-1—preserving.
Q—quantities.
R—relishes.	R-1—refrigerator rules for cleaning.
S—salads and salad dressings.	S-1—soups.
T—trimmings	T-1—Trimming sauces
V—vegetables (summer)	V-1—vegetables (winter)

Such a system is adequate to file any number of recipes; any desired alphabetical group can be broken into three, four or more classifications. For example:

Make the first divider a title card.

C—cakes, candies, cheese, cookies.

Then C-1—cakes, fruit
C-2—cakes, layer
C-3—candies
C-4—cheese
C-5—cookies

CANADIAN MEAT LOAF

1 pound round or chuck steak minced, 1 tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, ½ cup quick cooking oats, 1 cup wholewheat bread crumbs, 1 tbsp. chopped parsley, ¼ tsp. sage, 1 small onion, finely chopped, 3 tbsps. tomato catsup or condensed tomato soup, ¼ tsp. Worcestershire Sauce, 1 egg, well-beaten.

Combine all ingredients in large bowl. Mix thoroughly. Form in a ring mould. Place in greased baking dish. Bake in electric oven at 325 degs. for 1½ hours. Lift on to hot platter. Fill centre of mould with green peas or combination of peas and carrots. Garnish with parsley. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

CARROT CHEESE BALLS

1 cup cottage cheese, 1 tbsp. chopped parsley, salt, ½ tsp. finely chopped onion, 1 cup coarsely grated carrots, lettuce or other greens, mayonnaise or French dressing.

Combine cottage cheese, parsley, a little salt (about ⅛ tsp.) and onion. Drop spoonfuls of this mixture into grated carrot, coating evenly and shaping into balls.

Serve on lettuce or other greens with salad dressing. Or if desired, use to garnish a mixed salad plate. Yield: 2 to 4 servings.

UPSIDE-DOWN BREAD PUDDING

Scald 1 pint of milk. Pour over 6 slices of stale but not hard bread, broken into pieces. Add ¼ tsp. salt, ½ cup of sugar and 1 tsp. of vanilla. Let it stand about five minutes. Beat with a spoon so there are no big pieces of bread. Add 2 beaten eggs. Butter a casserole. Spread jam or marmalade or preserves over the bottom of the dish in a good generous layer. Pour the pudding mixture on top. Set in a pan of hot water and bake in an electric oven, 350 degs. about one hour, or until a silver knife inserted in the centre comes out clear, not milky. Remove from the water and chill. Loosen around the edge of the casserole and turn the pudding out on a plate upside down.

Cross Indian-Holstein Cattle Proving Satisfactory

Continuing the diversity of talks about World War II, Chesterville Rotarians listened to a brand new angle of the war days when they listened to Dr. Eric Pallister, O.A.C. Extension Department, of the Kemptville Agricultural School, tell of the transporting of a shipment of mules to Burma for the Imperial Army, and also explain a number of pictures he had taken of livestock in India.

During the business session F. J. Moriarty, secretary, read a letter of thanks from the Winchester 100 club, thanking the Rotarians for their assistance at the carnival which netted over $500 for the Winchester hospital. He also gave a summary of the Board of Director's meeting. J. A. Morris, retiring Scoutmaster, gave a brief talk of Scouting, marking the occasion of Scout-Guide week. Rotary will take over sponsorship of the 1st Chesterville Troop, and he appealed for every aid possible from the Boys' Work Committee and the club as a whole to assist Leslie Anderson, new Scoutmaster, and his Assistant, Ken Kirkby, in building up a strong troop in the village.

Don Hutton reported the Rotary Midgets and Juveniles had defeated Winchester in both games here Saturday, and the return is to be played in Winchester this Saturday afternoon.

Dr. D. Docksteader introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Eric Pallister, who as a Captain in the Canadian Army volunteered for transfer to the Imperial Army to become a member of the Royal Veterinary Corps. His first assignment was the transportation of 425 United States mules from New York to Burma. The animals stood the 40-day voyage with their native stoicism he said and every one was delivered at the end of the trip featured by very rough weather in the Atlantic and Mediterranean and oppressive heat in the Eastern waters.

The pictures shown by Dr. Pallister of native animals in India were quite interesting, especially the attempts of the British to cross the native cattle and Holsteins. It is hoped this cross will develop an animal with a better output of milk at the same time retaining the native characteristics of withstanding the heat and sicknesses endemic to cattle in that part of the world.

Don Hutton expressed the thanks of the club. Guests at the meeting were W. B. George and Jos. Thompson of Kemptville, and Leslie Anderson of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm Pemberton Celebrate Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William Pemberton celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary at their home at Elma on Monday, February 17th, when the house was decorated with cut flowers, silver bells and blue and white streamers. A one o'clock dinner was served. The toast was proposed by their son-in-law, John Wells. The bride and groom were called to the floor and an address was read by a grand daughter, Mrs. Douglas Gow, while beautiful and costly gifts were presented by their two grandsons Carl Froats and Graham Pemberton.

Elma, Ont.,
February 17, 1947

Dear Mother and Dad, Grandma and Grandpa:

It is with pleasure that we, your family, wish to congratulate you on your 50th anniversary. We feel sure it has been fifty years of a happy married life, and to show you our thoughts on this very special day we wish you to accept these gifts with our best wishes, and hope that you will enjoy them together for many years to come.

May this be a happy occasion,
With memories sweet and dear,
Of your wedding bells whose echoes
Ring more gladly year by year,
And together may you always find
Still greater joy in life,
On each anniversary of the day
That made you man and wife.

Signed on behalf of the family.

The bride's book was composed by a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Floyd Pemberton, and a grand-daughter, Mrs. Lyle Sullivan. Although taken by complete surprise, Mr. and Mrs. Pemberton with a few well-chosen words, thanked them for the beautiful gifts. All joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows". The evening was spent in games and music.

Mr. and Mrs. Pemberton were married by the late Rev. Mr. Smith, pastor of the Elma Methodist Church 50 years ago. Mr. Pemberton is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Adam Pemberton and was born December 25th, 1873, on the farm which he operated up until 10 years ago. Mrs. Pemberton was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Beckstead and was born June 24th, 1874, at Beckstead.

They are both members of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Dunbar. Their family consisted of 7 children, 5 daughters and 2 sons. Two daughters have passed on. Gladys died March 19th, 1913, at the age of 2 years. Mrs. George Reddick (Alice), died November 20th, 1939, at the age of 30 years. The living ones are Mrs. Earl Froats, Massena, N.Y., who is at present a patient in Memorial Hospital, Massena; Mrs. Nellie Merkley, Dunbar; Mrs. John Wells, Williamsburg; Floyd Pemberton, Cass Bridge, and Harold Pemberton on the home farm. There are also 18 grandchildren and 8 great grandchildren. Some were unable to be present owing to the epidemic of whooping cough. Mr. Pemberton has one sister and one half-brother. Mrs. Pemberton has two sisters and one brother.

Friends from a distance were: Fred McLean and sisters, Beulah and Mrs. Jay Alguire, Chesterville; Mr. and Mrs. M. Doherty and Mrs. Ivan Doherty and daughter Joan, Aultsville, and Earl and Carl Froats, Massena.

Many personal greetings and anniversary cards were received during the day.
