Robert H. Mundle, Toronto Visits C. of Commerce Meets Executive

The Ontario representative of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Robert H. Mundle, of Toronto, met with the executive of Chesterville Chamber of Commerce at the end of the week. He brought a message from the Canadian Chamber of interst to all members.

Mr. Mundle explained the reasons for a Chamber of Commerce in any community. He noted that a Chamber should have a programme of work that is a schedule of today's activities in the light of tomorrow's needs. He stressed the need to not allow the organization to get in a rut, noting that the only difference between a rut and a grave are the dimensions.

136 new manufacturing industries were established in Ontario

during 1953. It has been estimated these new industries represent an invesment of approximately $75,000,000 in new plants and equipment. The Chamber of Commerce should always be prepared to present the story of their town to any prospective industry. The reward is rich, in the speaker's opinion, when new industry can be attracted to any community.

The speaker outlined many projects the local Chambers areengaged in. In one case, he told of a town that had always had a very poor turnout at the polls at civic elections. A "Get-Out-the-Vote" programme was started and carried out most successfully. Instead of the usual 50% or less of the voters going to the polls, last December nearly 87% of the eligible votes were cast.

The necessity was stressed for a continuing understanding between the farming community and the members of the town communities. In Canada there are over 3,000,000 rural residents. He called for a mutual understanding of the communities' viewpoinnts. "Cities may be destroyed and rebuilt," he said, "but if farms are destroyed, grass will grow in the city streets."

Concluding his talk, the speaker stated that individual initiative and private enterprise are on trial for their lives. The alternative offered is a system of ruthlessness, fear and supicion. Unless the voice of business and professional life is heard in unison, proclaiming the doctrine of hold fast to that which is good, the very things which are cherished may wither away under the blast of an idealogy that promises much but gives little as far as human rights are concerned.

Stanley H. Sullivan Laid to Rest

Fitting tribute was paid the memory of Stanley Howard Sullivan, whose death occurred at his home on Tuesday, September 28th. Mr. Sullivan was the son of the late Howard Sullivan and Elizabeth Smith and was in his fifty-eighth year.

He spent his entire life near Chesterville, first as a farmer, then as a contractor, which work he carried on with his sons.

The funeral was held in Trinity United Church where his pastor, Rev. R. A. Mitchell, spoke comforting words from the 23rd Psalm. A duet, "In the Garden," a favourite of the deceased, was sung by Mrs. Harry Allison and Mrs. Eric Casselman.

Twenty eight years ago he married Elizabeth MacGregor, who survives, along with four sons, James, of Chesterville; Ronald and Arnold (twins), of Cornwall and Chesterville, and Graham, of Cornwall, and one little granddaughter, Sandra. Also surviving are four sisters, Mrs. Wm. Henderson (Maye), Chesterville; Miss Nellie Sullivan, Reg. N., Chesterville; Mrs. Hulbert Cross (Gladys), of Maple Ridge, and Mrs. Earle Rivington (Lou), of Westboro, and a number of nieces and nephews.

The pall bearers were six cousins: Chas. Munro, Calvin Munro, Stanley Shay, Edwin Shay, Lloyd Smith and Harry Smith.

The many beautiful floral tributes and the large number of friends and relatives assembled to pay their final respect to the deceased showed the esteem in which he was held.

Friends and relatives attended the funeral from Sault Ste. Marie, Brockville, Inkerman, Mountain, Oxford Mills, Kemptville, Iroquois, Ottawa, Lachute, Welland, Ormond, Morewood, Winchester and Chesterville.

D. A. Dillabough Struck by Car

Delbert A. Dillabough, 57, of RR 2, Chesterville, was admitted to Winchester Memorial Hospital late Thursday evening last suffering from shock and bruises, the result of a motor vehicle accident near the C.P.R. crossing on Highway 31, Winchester.

Mr. Dillabough, accompanied by his wife, Miss Doonie Dillabough and Mrs. Cora Merkley, had ben driving north on the highway and, after crossing the tracks, had tire trouble and had parked on the east shoulder of the road. While changing the tire, a north-bound car, owned and driven by Alec Summers, 70, of Winchester, struck Mr. Dillabough with the right side of the car.

Dr. Gerald Barton, Winchester, treated the injured man at the scene and had him removed to hospital by Vice and Craig ambulance.

The accident was investigated by Constable G. B. Raistrick.

Volunteer Fire Brigade Observes Fire Prevention Week

This week, in observance of Fire Prevention Week, Chesterville Brigade has put in a busy time. The crew have been polishing and displaying their equipment and holding practice runs.

At the first of the week members of the Brigade, with Chief John Hehir, ran a series of alarms in the schools in the village. Chesterville Public School, with 136 pupils, emptied the building in 30 seconds; St. Mary's Seprate School took only 20 seconds to clear their 40 pupils and Chesterville High School cleared the premises in 46 seconds of 120 students. Business places were inspected and checked by members of the Brigade the same day.

Tuesday night the Brigade had a practice run with the fire truck. It as a siren call, from north of the tracks, and the members of the crew did not know it was only a practice. In six minutes the men had whipped the outfit approximately a half mile, laid 600 feet of hose and doused the fire. Ten members of the Brigade answered the hooter.

The Brigade have an interesting display of equipment laid out in the fire hall. It is open every night and the public is cordially welcomed to view it and inspect the hall and pumper.

THANKSGIVING HOLIDAY MONDAY, OCTOBER 11th

Next Monday will find the business places in the village closed in observance of the Thanksgiving holiday. Householders' attention is called to the long week-end ahead and the need for stocking up to not be caught out of supplies.

Weather Still Wet

The wet weather is still with us and mud underfoot has almost become accepted. The lush growth is still waiting for the first heavy frosts. James Campbell, of town, brought into the Record Office this week a long stem of ripe blackberries he had pulled behind his house. The berries are nearly all ripe in spite of the lateness of the season.

The diary of Mrs. Mason Robinson, of Grantley, makes some interesting comparisons between this year and the last wet fall in 1945. In that year, Mr. Robinson was helping fill silo at John McMillan's on November 6th and 7th. Jim McDonald had grain in the field all winter and had it threshed on May 4th, 1946. On November 17th, 1945, there was enough snow on the ground for good sleighing. Ploughing was still going on up to the 24th of November and it finally froze up on November 28th.

$2500 Queen St. Water Main Tender Let

Chesterville council Monday night accepted a tender submitted by Roads Resurfacing, of Chesterville, to lay the Queen West water main that is in need of replacement. The cost will be in the neighbourhood of $2,500. Eight-inch cast iron pipe will be used in the replacement job and it is hoped to have it completed as soon as possible.

The agenda for the evening was light. Mrs. Campbell was welcomed back to council after her recent illness and regret was expressed that Mrs. Marcellus was forced to be absent through ill health. Reeve Chas. McMillan was in charge of the meeting.

A ratepayer was present with council to ask for relief from a condition caused by a lack of surfacing at his driveway and in front of his residence. Council accepted the complaint and a satisfactory settlement was worked out.

The clerk, H. C. Hummel, reported the receipt of the Children's Aid grant of $253.11 and the municipality's share of fees and fines for August of $107.50.

"Community Service" Topic Proves Timely J. A. Morris Addresses Chesterville Rotary

J. A. Morris, editor of the Prescott Journal and president of Prescott Rotary Club, addressed Chesterville Rotary Club last Monday evening at the regular weekly meeting. The subject of his talk was "Community Service." He was introduced by F. M. Cass and thanked on behalf of the club by Howard Fulton.

Mr. Morris recalled the days of Chesterville Scouting under the late P. S. Boyd and then later under his own leadership. He traced his interest in ocmmunity service directly to the influence Scouting and the laws of Scouting had in those years.

The speaker reviewed the beginning of Rotary in Chesterville and the reasons for needing a service club in the community. "The application of the ideal of service as practised by Rotarians is very similar to the ideal of helping their fellow man that Scouting teaches the youthful members," Mr. Morris explained.

"Community service is, I believe, the keystone of Rotary. Into this service go all the attributes of a man dedicated to "Service Above Self."

It was the speaker's firm opinion that public relations are most important to the continued success and existence of a Rotary Club. It is necessary to let the public know what is being done by the Club. In this way, he noted, the criticism that Rotary is a dinner club will be overcome. If the public is made aware the service club is interested in the community, then the town and community becomes a better place in which to live and work and raise the new generations.

President George H. Barkley was in charge of the meeting. He caller the members' attention to the dance that is to be staged by the Club on Thanksgiving evening in the Auditorium and appealed for a good representation of members at that function.

Fire Prevention Week

Chesterville Fire Brigade have had a busy week demonstrating and showing their equipment to the town. They have made their annual calls at schools and the places of business to point up the necessity of preparedness in case of fire or threatened fire.

A review of some of the common causes of fire is in order to make every week Fire Prevention Week.

Matches and Careless Smoking Habits—Careless discarding of lighted matches and smoking materials was responsible for nearly 30 per cent of all fires from known causes over a ten-year period. A burning match or tobacco debris recklessly tossed aside may start a disastrous fire taking heavy toll of lives and property.

This hazard will remain enormous until caution as a national habit replaces carelessness. Remember, one little thoughtless act may take your home—even your life!

Here are a few common sense precautions:

1. Keep all matches out of the reach of small children. Matches with easily inflammable heads should be kept in non-combustible containers.

2. Have plenty of ash trays conveniently placed—and keep them clean.

3. Anywhere—be sure your lighted matches or smokes are completely out before you discard them.

4. Don't smoke in bed or where "No Smoking" signs are posted.

5. Don't strike matches in closets, garages or other places where inflammable materials, dust or vapours may be ignited.

Faulty Electrical Wiring and Apparatus—One in ten fires of known causes is of electrical origin. Circuits are designed to carry certain loads. The blowing of a fuse is a danger signal that the circuit is overloaded or defective.

The use of a fuse for larger amperage than that for which the circuit was designed destroys this protective feature. An overload of current may heat the wire to the point of starting a fire. Be sure your fuses are of correct amperage for your circuits—15 amperes usually are right, and don't tamper with this "safety valve."

A few common sense precautions:

1. Employ a skilled electrician to repair or extend wiring when this is necessary.

2. Buy electric appliances and cords bearing the seal or label of Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc.

3. Don't string wires under rugs, over hooks, or in any exposed places. Wear may make them dangerous.

Heating and Cooking Stoves, Etc.—One out of every four or five fires is caused by faulty chimneys, flues, cooking or heating stoves, furnaces, carelessness with fireplaces of hot ashes, or sparks on roofs, etc. Most frequent causes of destructive fires in heating plants or appliances are: sub-standard equipment, incorrect installation and construction, lack of care in maintenance and unsafe operation.

All heating plants, pipes or appliances should be at least 18 inches away from any wall or burnable material. Heaters, including stoves, should be on insulated metal, cement or other incombustible bases. Walls and ceilings near stoves should be protected by asbestos sheeting or other insulating material listed by Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc. Consult your local fire ordinance or building code, your fire chief or insurance agent for advice, if needed.

Clean chimneys every year, and repair promptly when cracks or loose mortar appear. Never "force" a furnace to get more heat. Consult your heating man about increasing its efficiency safely. Empty hot ashes into metal containers—never into wooden boxes.

Chesterville Fire Brigade members are a vountary organization. They have good equipment and they put it to good use. It is up to us to see that it is used as little as possible for careless fires. When the Brigade is called out by the siren, the public should always remember the Brigade and equipment must not be hindered in their work by thoughtless blocking of the streets and interfering with the routine. When a fire has a start, every minute counts and the sooner the chief and his crew can attack the blaze, the less damage will be caused.

Light Along The Way

In his letter to the Thessalonians Paul makes this interesting request: ". . . give thanks in all circumstances . . ."

It is not difficult to give thanks for the circumstances under which we live. We have not yet suffered the privations with which so many are afflicted. None in Canada are numbered among the 150,000,000 whom the United Nations describe as in a state of primary hunger. It is to be hoped that no one in this country will spend the winter like 400,000 Indians, with literally no roof over their heads. The material circumstances of our life are unequalled for we are one of those nations enjoying the highest standard of living man has ever known. For this we are humbly grateful to God.

It is not difficult to be thankful for the faith which has come to us enriched by the generations through which it has passed and strengthened by the experiences and sufferings from unknown multitudes who have deepened it in their acceptance and trust. The Christian faith embodies the hope of mankind. It is the only means by which man can free himeslf from the tremendous difficulties which he faces. Our faith rests on brotherhood, justice and mercy as no other does. It is only when these are woven into the fabric of society that men can enjoy a good life. We can be humbly thankful for these attributes of our faith, and for the call to make them part of the life of all men.

There are circumstances that make thanksgiving difficult. Pain, sorrow and loss are thrust upon us we know not why nor when. Did Paul mean us to give thanks for these? When we read of the trials and suffering he himself knew we become convinced that he did. Too often we ask ourselves: "Why did this have to happen?" We should rather be concerned with another query: "How can I master what has happened?' Those who have accepted life, and sought to turn it into a means of victory over all its difficulties have not only made of it a blessing to themselves and others but have found the secret of giving thanks under its most difficult circumstances.

"In all circumstances give thanks"—for whatever life may bring the gift of life itself is enough to demand of us a humble expression of thanksgiving to Almighty God.

Ontario's Worst Month for Fatal Traffic Accidents

October, in eight of the past ten years, has been Ontario's worst month for fatal traffic accidents.

Fall and winter months are the year's most critical period for motor accidents, with October usually the worst month in numbers killed and in deaths in relation to mileage travelled by motor vehicles.

In contrast to October, April might be called the "safest" month for motoring. Motorists in April travel about as many miles as in October but the April mileage death rate is less than half as high, as the October mileage death rates. (The mileage death rate is the number of people killed per 100 million miles of motor vehicle travel, with the mileage travelled being estimated on gasoline consumption during the period.)

There were many reasons for this sharp difference. There is more daylight in April than in October—an hour more at the first of the month, four hours near the end. This undoubtedly has an influence. Also important, daylight saving time usually ends the last week in September. Thus the October rush hour and dusk, Ontario's worst accident period of each day, arrive together. By the end of October the sun sets as early as 5 p.m.

Seasonal driving habits also play a part. The average person drives more carefully under winter conditions than in summer. This extra care is more likely to have carried over into April than to have developed in October.

Records show that in April there are about 6% more accidents in cities and towns than in rural areas. In October this figure is almost reversed. Rural accidents run about 4% higher than urban. One reason may be that highway driving is a more popular pastime in the fall months.

Statistics disclose another oddity. More than twice as many people are killed in October mishaps than in April, although the number of accidents is only a third to 46% higher. Most traffic victims in April are pedestrians while, in October, collisions between vehicles take the most lives.

In neither month can road conditions be blamed for more than a small fraction of accidents. In October about 90% of reported accidents happen on dry surface roads, while in April the figure is about 80%.

The statistics add up to one thing—in October take care.

Last October was the blackest month in motoring history in Ontario. There were 148 people killed. October of 1952 when 132 lives The previous high record was in were lost.

"Slow down at sundown" is particularily good advice right now.

Don't Put off Immunization Against Whooping Cough

Whooping cough is still a serious killer of babies, often striking them before they are 3 months old. For this reason the Health League of Canada reminds parents that it is dangerous to procrastinate in immunization against this disease. Next week is Canada's Twelfth National Immunization Week sponsored by the Health League of Canada, a national voluntary organization in the preventive medicine field, in co-operation with public health departments.

In 1953, there were 142 deaths from whooping cough in Canada, the League points out. Most of these deaths were infant deaths (under one year of age). Whooping cough, even when it does not kill, is a persistent, racking disease which is heartbreaking to watch in a small child. Any mother who has had two or more children ill with whooping cough at the same time will bear witness to this fact, if she is not too exhausted to bear witness to anything. Moreover, the lingering after-effects of the disease can impair total health.

Dr. R. J. Wilson, of the University of Toronto, in a recent issue of Health magazine, published by the Health League, said:

"In Ontario, from 1945-1950, 36 per cent of the total (whooping cough) deaths occurred under three months of age, 60 per cent under 6 months of age, and 78 per cent under one year. Whooping cough vaccine, therefore, to be effective in preventing deaths, must be administered very early in life, preferably at about 3 months of age."

It recent years it has been possible to use a single immunizing mixture against whooping cough, diphtheria and tetanus. In New Yory City, where it has become standard procedure to start injections of this mixture at 3, 4 and 5 months of age and a booster shot at one year of age, whooping cough deaths declined from an average of 302 per year in the years 1920-24 to an average of 2 deaths in the years 1950-1953. There were no whooping cough deaths in New York in 1952. There are about 160,000 births per year in New York City, compared to about 190,000 in all of Canada.

Immunization against child-killers such as whooping cough is neither inconvenient nor expensive. The Health League of Canada urges all parents to make contact with their local doctors or public health officials and take steps to eliminate unnecessary deaths from Canada.

A USELESS MACHINE MAKES SENSE

A complicated machine requiring seven years to build was on exhibition at the recent Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver. It serves no useful purpose whatever, It was buil that way.

Lawrence Wahlstrom, a Hollywood architect, made the machine.

"Anyone can design a machine to do something," he said, "but to build a working machine which does nothing requires great skill."

The fantastic electrically driven conglomeration of wheels, cogs and ballbearings looks like something out of a Rube Goldberg nightmare. It has 700 moving parts.

"Each time I show it," said Mr. Wahlstrom, "I add a new part named after the place where it is being demonstrated. For instance, in Vancouver I have added the Vancouver unit, a square cogwheel working off a round one."

While determined that the machine will never become practical, Wahlstrom says that already two United States universities have borrowed it as an aid in teaching engineering students the relativity between various types of gears.

TELEPHONE TROUBLES IN AFRICA

When strange noises make a telephone conversation in East Africa difficult, it may be that an elephant is playfully tilting one of the poles along the line.

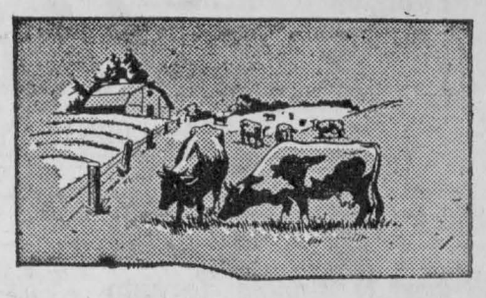

hTe elephant usually finishes by pushing the pole over—which ends the conversation.

This is one of the difficulties which beset East Africa's telephone system.

Giraffes are another. Running giraffes so often smashed through thetelephone wires in northern Kenya that now the wires are strung on extra-tall poles so that the giraffes can pass underneath.

A robber in San Diego broke into a home, cooked and ate a thick steak, then departed without stealing a cent.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

I'm not sure but I think I walked fifteen miles the other day in Ottawa. We were on a shopping spree and there's nothing will beat it for putting miles on one's personal speedometer. How women shop in spike-heeled, open-toed, sling-backed shoes I'll never know. I do well to keep moving in flat brogues with arch supports.

When we left home it was one of those dark, rainy, foggy days we've had more than our share of lately. A day that wasn't fit to do anything but roam around the stores in rubbers and raincoats. The scenery enroute to the capital was most distressing too. We saw fields and fields that were a third under water. We saw corn still standing with its feet deep in mud and water. There were acres and acres of grain stooks which were turning green because the oats were beginning to grow. All the ditches were full and in one cement driveway we noticed the water was level with the curbs.

But after noon the sun came out making the day warm and bright and Ottawa soon dried and began to sparkle. The sunlight on the dancing water of the Rideau Canal was lovely to see. The reds, yellows and greens of the maples along the Driveway made me wonder whether our capital was really more beautiful tulip time or October. The autumn colours were dazzling indeed.

Of course I always enjoy looking at all the pretty things when I go shopping in the city. The counters loaded with their china, the windows filled with furs and silks, the rich furniture displays, all these are lovely to see.. But most interesting of all is the people. And if my feet aren't too tired I love to stand and watch the world go by.

One sight I saw I'll remember for a long time. I was walking down the main aisle in one of the big, downtown department stores when I noticed a man coming down the stairs. At first I thought I was seeing things. I looked again and there he was as large as life.

He had come directly from the cow stable, I'm sure. His rubber boots were filthy. His overalls were so dirty they would have stood alone. Maybe it was to hide his dirty shirt but he wore an ancient suit coat that had missed many a trip to the cleaners. And to top it all off there was a greasy, old. khaki cap.

Now had I met the above gentleman in one of the farm machinery places I'd have assumed he was making a rush trip for repairs and would have forgiven him for wearing such dirty attire. But in a fashionable downtown store he was a disgrace to the farming profession.

Patches are honourable, they say, rags can be excused but filthy clothes are certainly unforgivable. How can we farmers ever expect to be called and considered anything but hayseeds, hicks and so on as long as some of our fellow-labourers haven't the gumption or the self-respect to dress themselves decently at least when they go away from home? I felt disgraced and disgusted.

I was a little annoyed too when I was standing on the street during the five o'clock rush waiting for Harry to pick me up. This time it was with women drivers.

The solid line of traffic came to a halt just as a lady driver in a shiny, blue car got directly in front of me. Suddenly she leaned on her horn and that instrument let out a blast sufficient to wake the dead on judgement morning. Nothing happened so she did it again. Nothing happened that is, except two men who were standing not far from me looked at each other understandingly then looked at me sort of sympathetically. And I wished as I have often wished on similar ocassions that I belonged to some other sex.

Then the lady driver stuck up her right hand and waved frantically in all directions. At that point the line moved on. The lady drove a hundred feet, stopped the car abruptly, moved over to the right side and a man slide under the wheel. I didn't blame the man for wanting to drive himself.

Just then a dainty, well-dressed woman strutted across Queen St. and arranged herself behind the wheel of her car. Before she'd even started the motor she too found the horn and began to blow. Nothing happened so she stuck her head out the window and called in a high, soprano voice. "I can't get out." The man in the car ahead took the hint and moved up a few feet while the two men near me looked at each other knowingly.

Oh I know that statistics prove that women drivers are involved in fewed accidents than men and all that. But I think that statistics could also prove that women do some of the silliest things when they get behind steering wheels. And it's these silly things that win us our reputations.

Good Decoys Pay Off In Better Shooting

The making of duck decoys is an old practice that has run the gamut of craftsmanship from spur-of-the-moment improvization to art of a pretty high order. Gobs of mud hastily thrown along a shore line and clumps of marsh grass decorated with a fluff of feathers have been used effectively in many instances, but the more experienced shooter has long known that good decoys produce more and better shooting opportunities than poor imitations. For the majority of us who have to find our waterfowling along waterways that are heavily gunned, and consequently the birds are more than a little wary, the quickly improvised decoy is of little use. Wariest of the dipper or puddle ducks undoubtedly are the blacks and some few hunters go to an infinite amount of trouble in preparing or obtaining the most life-like decoys, even to the point of using real black duck skins that have been painstakingly mounted over balsa wood forms.

An Interesting Study

In recent years students of the University of Wisconsin have been conducting a still-continuing experiment, using three different rigs of decoys. Each of these rigs consists of ten "blocks." Rig No. 1 consisted of decoys made by one of the top decoy makers in the U.S., No. 2 is made up of battered and almost paintless imitations of bluebills and No. 3 of oil cans, of two-quart capacity, painted black. The rigs were rotated periodically as to position. A number of factors entered the picture, but when the figures were totalled, it was found that 386 ducks (various species) were attracted by the well made decoys, 189 came to the battered bluebills and 209 visited the oil can lures. The not-so-particular ruddy duck, however, played an important part in the cans' total. When it came to "ligthin' 'em" 273 settled down with the better blocks, 49 with the bluebill rig and 89 were content with the oil cans. For "offered shots," however, there was little to choose between the three rigs. So the argument still has life. Although I'm among the first to admire a well made decoy and would use nothing else if space and convenience permitted, I have lately swung over to the rubber jobs that inflate when dropped on the water and which I have found to be quite effective. A rig of four dozen together with lines and anchors can be carried in a fair-sized knapsack, which in itself is a consideration.

Merganzers Good Eating If Properly Prepared

Every once in a while duck shooters find themselves with a merganzer or two in the bag and some may wonder what, if anything, can be done with them to make them pleasingly edible. Without some

Full protection requires four injections—three at one-month intervals, and one six months later. This protection needs boosting at about two-year intervals through childhood ,and especially on starting school. Any child requiring a booster dose can be brought to clinics.

Vaccination against smallpox should be done in infancy and can be repeated on going to school.

The signature of the parent or guardian is required before any child is immunized or vaccinated, so parents should attend the clinic with the child to sign consent.

Blowout Causes Chain of Accidents Near Dixon's Corners

Five cars were involved in an unusual accident on County Road No. 5, Saturday evening, about half a mile east of Dixons' Corners. All the drivers escaped injury.

Eli Kelly, RR 1, Iroquois, was driving west about 8.30 p.m. when his right rear tire blew out, causing his car to go into the south ditch, which contained about 2 feet of water.

Milton Harper, of South Mountain, driving east, stopped his car to assist Kelly. His vehicle was struck from behind by an eastbound car driven by Allan Gordon Nelson, also of South Mountain. Both vehicles were damaged to the extent of about $1,000.

Russell Morrow, RR 4, Winchester, going east at the time, stopped on account of the accidents. His car was struck from behind by another automobile driven by Frank R. McMillan, RR 2, Williamsburg, causing about $50 damage to his own car, the other vehicle escaping undamaged.

Provincial Officer H. Meyer investigated.

Mrs. J. D. MacHattie, returned missionary from China, who has addressed a number of meetings since her return to Canada was special speaker at District No. Two of the Woman's Missionary Society of Glengarry Presbyterial sectional meeting. The meeting was held in the United Church, Osnabruck.

District vice-president, Mrs. A. E. Wilfong, was in charge. Mrs. Ellison, of Newington Auxiliary, conducted the worship service. Mrs. Mattice, president of Osnabruck Centre WMS, welcomed representatives from Aultsville, Berwick, Finch, Lunenburg, Mille Roches, North Lunenburg, Wales, Osnabruck Centre, Moulinette and Newington.

Indian Speaker Slated

Due to a lack of time a report on the school for leaders attended by Mrs. M. Buckner, Mille Roches, was not heard. Mrs. B. Mallalieu, president of Glengarry Presbyterial, announced that Mrs. Massih, of Northern India, will be at St. Paul's Church on October 22nd at 8 p.m. A refrigerator fund for Mrs. Massih was explained and donations were made at the close of the meeting.

An open forum was conducted and various questions asked and answered by the auxiliaries. Mrs. R. Diron, Wales, gave several ideas on how to make Baby Band parties a success. Mrs. A. A. Morrison showed a packet of free literature for Baby Bands.

As a result of balloting a two-day session sectional and a one-day Presbyterial will be held next year if the other four sections' results are the same. The courtesy committee thanked all who had assisted in the programme.

Benediction was pronounced by Rev. A. E. Wilfong, followed by a fellowship hour in the Township Hall. Osnabruck Auxiliary was in charge of the buffet lunch. A play on Indian literature was presented by the Mille Roches group.

IN MEMORIAM

IRVING—In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Herbie Irving, who was accidentally killed October 6th, 1945.
He has taken his last journey
In God's beautiful ship called rest,
Away from this world of sorrow
To a home of eternal rest.
Words cannot say how we loved him,
Deep in our hearts there is a pain;
God alone knows how much we miss him
As we wander along life's lane.
But a voice seems gently calling,
Dear one, be good and true,
At the end of life's journey
He will be watching and waiting for you.

Ever remembered by wife, Mrs. Mabel Irving, and family.

Car Impounded After Accident

Damage estimated at $200 was the result of a car and truck crash east of the St. Lawrence and Main St. intersection, Winchester, late Thursday afternoon last.

Richard Dignard, 17, of RR 1, Mountain, driving an old model car, had approached the intersection from the south and had turned east on Main Street when he observed a large tank truck owned and driven by Chas. A. Anderson, of Winchester, approaching from the east. Dignard applied his brakes, but found they were not in working condition and crashed head-on into the Anderson vehicle.

Constable G. B. Raistrick investigated and impounded the Dignard vehicle.

EAGER BEAVERS CAUSE TROUBLE

The road around Round Lake, Sask., is probably flooded again by now, giving a dauntless bunch of beavers another chisel-toothed chuckle.

They are the most pig-headed things you ever saw," said Fred Arnold, of the Saskatchewan Natural Resources Department, after he broke up their damaging dam recently for the umpteenth time.

Beavers first started flooding in the Shell River, a mile upstream 1952 when they built a dam on fro ma bridge.

"We make a check every two or three days to guard against road flooding," says Mr. Arnold. "We've pulled out that dam at least 20 times this summer."

"Weve tried live--trapping, but as' fast as we trapped one, two more moved in."

"If we wreck the dam, it's built before we can get back again. It's nothing but a pain in the neck."

ABSENT-MINDED

Dr. Albert Steer, a British scientist, took a breather after two days of continuous hard work on secret jet engine research, and stepped into a London bar. There he saw a newspaper headline about a missing scientist.

"To my horror," he later told reporters, " I saw they were looking for me." His wife had turned in an alarm whn he failed to come home for two days.

The only benefit of flattery is that by hearing what we are not, we may be instructed what we ought to be.—Swift.

Wheat Rust Strikes Hard

The Governement's top grain authority estimated recently that Canada has been hit by one of the most severe bouts of wheat rust in history.

Dr. C. H. Goulden, chief of the Agricultural Department's cereals division, said the current prairie epidemic appears to be about the same size a s the one in 1916. That was the greatest of all time.

Federal authorities have tentatively placed the rust damage at about 85,000,0000 bushels of wheat. Dr. Goulden said in an interview, the damage might be higher.

Dr. Goulden helped produce a new variety of wheat called Selkirk which is resistant to Race 15-B, the species of rust which is hitting the Western plains.

He estimated that western farmers may be able to get about 3,000,000 bushels of Selkirk for planting next spring. That should be sufficient to reduce the rust hazard in the critical areas, he said.

By 1956 there should be sufficient Selkirk seed to cover all of the prairie needs, about 8,000,000 to 12,000,000 bushels ,he said.

"A man who encloses nasty notes like 'drop dead' with his $50-a-month alimony payments to his ex-wife must cease to do so."—Superior Court Judge Peter Schwaba, of Chicago.

PEOPLE USE BRAIN TO SEE WITH

"We see with the brain as well as with the eyes. The average person does not realize it, but when they use the common expression 'I see,' they are really saying 'I understand'." So stated Dr. Edmund Richardson, prominent Hollywood, Calif., optometrist and director of study groups for the Optometric Extension Programme, Duncan, Okla., before the members of the Ottawa Optomertists at a post-graduate seminar held at the Eastview Hotel.

"Vision is a complex process. The nervous system, memory, the ability to concentrate—as well as the eyes—are involved," continued Dr. Richardson. "Visual difficulties may cause confusion in the mind. Modern Optometry recognizes that there must be a complete harmony among all factors for efficient seeing.

"Thus, there is a lot more to be considered in a visual examination that a simple determination of acuity or clarity of vision. It can only be through public understanding of theelements that constitute an of the elements that constitute an ual welfare of Canada will be assured."

POTATOES HAVE POSSIBILITIES

Do you get tired serving potatoes day after day in the same old ways, boiled for dinner and fried for supper? Why not add variety to your meals by varying the method of preparing your potatoes?

Potatoes deserve their popularity when their nutritive value is considered, as they provide a good source of low cost carbohydrates as well as a small amount of protein, some minerals and vitamins. As the minerals are close to the skin, always pare thinly and when possible cook with the skins on, and then eat the skins too.

Stuffed Baked Potatoes

6 baked potatoes
¾ tsp. salt
1-8 tsp. pepper
2 tbsps. butter
¼ cup hot milk
1 egg white

Cut a slice from the side of a baked potato; scoop out the inside. Mash; add seasonings, butter and milk. Beat until light; fold in egg white, beaten stiff. Refill shells; brown in a hot oven. The egg white may be omitted if desired.

Variations may be obtained by adding finely chopped parsley to the potatoes before returning to the shells or chopped meat as ham, chicken or veal. Grated cheese sprinkled on top before browning in the oven provides a pleasant change.

Just before serving, a small sprig of parsley placed in the centre of each potato will add to the attractiveness of the dish.

Potato Croquettes

2 cups mashed potatoes
2 tbsps. butter
¼ tsp. grated onion
½ tsp. salt
1-8 tsp. pepper
¾ tsp. celery salt
1 tsp. chopped parsley
1 egg yolk

Mix all together and beat thoroughly. Shape into cylinders or cones, roll in dry bread crumbs, dip in beaten egg, then in bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat until well browned. Drain and serve while hot.

To test the fat before frying, drop in a small cube of bread into it and when it browns in 40 seconds the fat is the proper temperature for frying the croquettes.

Potatoes prepared according to the above recipe may be formed into flat cakes and pan fried.

Scalloped Potatoes

Wash, pare and rinse potatoes; cut in ⅛-inch slices. Butter a baking dish; put in a layer of potatoes; sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and dot with small pieces of butter. Repeat until dish is full. Pour in hot milk until it may be seen through the top layer. Bake in a moderate oven one hour or until potatoes are soft. It may be necessary to add more milk. To change the flavour slightly, omit the butter and place strips of bacon between the layers of potatoes. Pieces of ham or other left-over meats may be added or grated cheese may be sprinkled on top.

Potato Cornflake Balls

2 cups cold mashed potatoes
1 egg yolk
Butter
Salt and pepper

Mix cold, mashed potatoes with beaten egg yolks and shape the mixture into balls. Roll in crushed cornflakes, place in a greased pan, put a small piece of butter on top of each ball and brown in oven.

Franconia Potatoes

Wash and pare potatoes; parboil 10 minutes, drain. Place in roasting pan around meat, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake until soft (about 40 minutes), basting frequently with fat in the pan.

Potato Souffle

2 cups hot mashed potatoes
2 eggs
1 cup milk
2 tbsps. butter or other fat

Add the fat, egg yolks beaten until light and the milk to the mashed potatoes. Stir until well blended. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Mix lightly and pile in a well-greased baking dish. Set in a pan containing water and bake in a moderate oven 2 0to 30 minutes. Serve at once.

Potato Balls au Gratin

2 cups mashed potatoes
½ cup grated cheese
¼ tsp. mustard
1½ tbsps. butter
1 egg
Dry breadcrumbs
1 tsp. salt
Few grains pepper

Combine potatoes, cheese, mustard, melted butter, pper and salt; shape the mixture into round balls. Rolls balls in beaten egg and then in dry crumbs. Place in a buttered pan and brown in moderate oven. These balls may be cooked in deep fat, instead, if desired.

A Blue Light But Red Faces

The mystery of the midnight "spook light" that has drawn crowds numbering as many as 600 persons has been solved at Sand Springs, Okla.

As expensive radio and television equipment was made ready to capture the strange sequence, police found two boys perched halfway up a cliff with flashlights and towels. Some 500 persons were present at the scene two miles west of town.

The boys, identified by officers as Eugene Anderson, 19, and Jimmy Rose, 17, freely admitted the light was their invention. They said they first tried it, and because the crowd liked it so much they repeated the performance nightly.

Husdreds of persons visited the area. The highway had been jammed by sky-gazing motorists and television stations made desperate attempts to film the bounding light.

Many residents, now embarrassed, had told earlier of seeing the strange blue-green light for a half century.

Whites Withstand Cold Better than Eskimos

The white man can endure the severe cold of Canada's Northland beter than the Eskimos.

That's the conclusion reached by defence research scientists at Fort Churchill after smple, but chilling, experiments.

When both the white men and the Eskimos stripped and entered a chamber where the temperature was lowered, the Eskimos were first to show signs of being uncomfortable.

But the Eskimos came into their own with a more important ability, the successful adaptation to Arctic conditions. Their system of survival is the envy of the scientists.

The researchers have yet to find a garment as warm as the caribou outfits Eskimos wear in the winter. The army would not mind adopting the caribou garb, if enough animals were available.

The research laboratory, which opened at the conclusion of the Second World War, has paid big dividends.

A few years ago Arctic military operations would have been virtually impossible. Mastery of the Arctic now is so complete that a soldier who suffers even a minor case of frostbite has to have a good excuse.

Tattoed Ladies Go Out of Style In Australia

Tattooing is going out of style in Australia, and business was never better for the skilled tattoo remover.

Use of a new French method for the painless removal of tattoos has become so popular that 2 Melbourne grandmothers, each with a tattooed anklet of swallows, have decided to part with their tattoo marks. The method is painless and leaves no scar.

A leading physiotherapist explained that the method he uses to remove tattoos freezes the area around the mark. This causes irritation beneath the skin which rises, bringing out the tattoo pigment. Within a week or two the skin heals and the tattoo is gone.

The physiotherapist declined to give his name on the ground of professional ethics. He explained the anti-tattoo trend with a terse, "Men don't like them on women, and women don't like them on men."

Many of the people who call to have their tattoos removed shyly reveal that the "Gorgeous Grace" or "Big Jim" have come or because the husband or wife, as the case may be, want no former attachments around in tattoos.

The physiotherapist blames American servicemen; nearly 2,000,- of whom visited Australia during World War II, for Melbourne's tattooed women. He classified most of the designs as "American," explaining tattoo styles vary with different countries. Furthermore, he added, most of the women who came to him were between 16 and 20 years old at the time the Americans were there.

Flying by Balloons Costs Money

A part-time hypnotist with an urge for a trip into the sky was in jail in Albany, N.Y., recently after a flight in a homemade rig suspended from 60 gas-filled balloons.

Garrett Cashman, 26, Albany, was arrested by state police and arrainged on a charge of flying without a licence.

Cashman pleaded innocent, and was remanded to jail in lieu of 100 bail.

Cashman spent about 90 minutes soaring about 21 miles. He landed in a tomato patch about 15 miles south of Albany.

Hundreds stared, unbelieving, as he floated overhead.

Cashman, who told reporters he reached a height of 6,200 feet at one point, described his flight as an "experiment." He said he was "uflly satisfied with the results."

He made the trip seated on a splywood slab, about 15 inches square, braced underneathand attached at the corners to an old spokeless bicycle wheel. His cluster of balloons was attached to the wheel. He said each balloon held about 113 cubic feet of gas.

Cashman weighs 140 pounds, the contraption weighs 40 and he carried 30 pounds of sand. eH also carried an altimeter. He said a power company crew tapped into a gas main and helped him fill the balloons with illuminating gas. He ran up a bill of $43.30.

Earth is Slowing Down Tipping at the Poles Days are Lengthening

Mother earth's slip is showing. She's getting just a bit tipsy. And she's slowing down—her day is getting longer than 24 hours.

Just look out the window, you wouldn't notice any of it. However, scientists in Rome for a 42-nation geophysics conference deported that their instruments and calculations have detected all three changes.

Take the one about the day getting longer . It's the slightest change of the three, but in the long-run effect on gravity or ocean movements it might prove to be the most important.

Dr. Roger R. Revelle, delegate from the U.S. National Research Council, and Dr. W. H. Munk, of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, both of La Jolla, Calif., said that for the last 3,000 years the earth has been turning steadily slower on its axis.

The average slowdown amounts to 3½ seconds each 1,000 yars. That in a year works out pretty small, but the two experts reported that the rate of slowdown appears to be steadily increasng. What causes it?

Revelle said the two major factors probably are tidal friction slowing down the earth's turn on its axis ,and the torque exerted on the earth by the sun through atmospheric ties. Other possible factors are changes in inertia, changes in the sea level, and transfers on momentum between earth's mantle and core.

It was on the last point that Revelle and Munk reported the greatest change. They said there is a slip amounting to 75 feet a year between earth's outer skin and her inner core.

The other change is the increasing tip in the earth's axis. Revelle and Munk reported that over thousands of years this shift at the pole probably has averaged about a centimetre a year. They said it seems to be increasing. Estimates differed on the present rate. Some put the tilt at the pole in recent times as 10 centimetres (four inches) a year.

MOVES MINKS FOR FREE WHALE MEAT

A British Columbia mink rancher who says he's tired of paying 12 cents a pound for horsemeat has moved his 1,100 mink to Newfoundland where whale meat is free.

William Dawe, of Steveston, B.C., expects to raise his mink for amout $4 each in Newfoundland.

"When one can expect from $10 to $150 per skin, with a $50 average for purebreds and $24 on halfbloods, it looks like a thriving business indeed."

Dawe went to Diamond Creek, Trinity Bay, on the invitation of Premier Smallwood who says the province is ideal for mink raising.

Dawe agrees with him: "In time Newfoundland could lead the world in the mink business for in no other place can food be got so cheaply."

OUTDOOR ROUNDUP—

special treatment these birds usually have a decidedly fishy as well as gamey flavour. The mother of a friend of mine, a lad whose father was still shooting ducks on toward his eightieth birthday, seems to have the answer and here it is:

Clean the merganzer as you would any other duck, place a peeled apple and onion in the body cavity and steam gently for an hour to an hour-and-a-half. Remove the bird from the pot and discard the apple and onion. Then place another peeled apple in the body cavity and roast in the usual wy. Crisp French fried potatoes, green peas and a bottle of still red burgundy and you'll have a repast second to none.

IN MEMORIAM

IRVING—In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Gwendolyne Irving, who was accidentally killed October 6th, 1945.

Its' not the tears at the moment shed
That tell of the hearts that are torn,
But the sweet tears in the after years
And the sorrow that is silently borne.
To think that she did not say goodbye
Will always bring regret,
But the hearts that always loved her
Are the hearts that will never forget.

Ever remembered by mother, Mrs. Mabel Irving, and family.
