Thrift, a Profitable Duty

It is not what you earn, but what you save that counts. And remember, too, that it is of

Strawberry Social

A Strawberry Social will be held, on the lawn of the Colquhoun Presbyterian Church, Thursday evening, July 5th. Beginning at 7 o'clock. Tickets 15 and 25 cents.

Are Farmers Short of Help?

That question could hardly fail to come to a man's mind if he was around the Condensery between seven and nine o'clock on Monday morning. At eight-thirty there was no less than fifty-three milk wagons waiting to be unloaded and in the receiving room men and machinery were working as hard as anyone could to hurry them along.

In conversation with some of the men "morning men" as they call themselves, they placed all the blame for the Monday morning congestion on those men who refuse to bring in their night milk on Sunday as they do on other days of the week, and claim that these "night men" should either be made to deliver before the "morning men" come or wait until they have been attended to first. However, we have nothing to do with that, but when fifty men and about sixty horses lose an hour and a half's work on such a day as Monday was, the loss is considerable in the aggregate—practically a whole week's work for a man and a horse.

Soldier Gets Three Months

On Friday afternoon the young man who announced himself as a returned soldier, was up before Magistrate Wholehan on a charge of passing a worthless cheque in payment for his board at Flynn's Hotel, to which he pleaded guilty and was fined $100 or three months in jail. He was located at Smith's Fall about five minutes after the police at that place were advised he was wanted and Constable McAvoy went up and brought him back Friday morning. Tom Flynn cashed a cheque for the man for $20.00 drawn on the Banque National of Hull, taking payment for a week's board and advancing the difference. The cheque through Molsons Bank was sent to Hull with a query as to its worth. The Hull bank telegraphed that they had no account under the name of J. Hunt and also intimated that the police were anxious to find the signer of the cheque. He was taken to Cornwall Friday evening. It transpired after the trail that a couple other business men had accepted the worthless cheques giving the change after small purchases.

Red Cross Lawn Social

The first lawn social of the season was held on Monday night under the auspices of the Epworth League of Trinity Methodist Church, on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Lawson. It was a scene of more than ordinary beauty and activity especially illuminated with a profusion of electric lights, flags and bunting. Light refreshments were served by the young ladies of the Epworth League and the town to about 300 people. The Chesterville Band enlivened the evening by a special programme of national airs doing itself honor, while the people were assembling, and being served. The pastor of the Methodist Church Rev. H. E. Warren presided in the programme which followed. To the delight of all musical numbers on piano and violin were rendered by Miss Casselman, Miss Lawson and Miss McCorkindale. The speaker of the evening was Lieutenant Kennedy of Ottawa, a returned soldier, who won his distinction and retirement from active service by the loss of an eye in the second battle of the Somme. His story of an hour was a thrilling one. The Rev. Mr. McCorkindale spoke briefly. Much credit is due for the success of the evening to the following: Miss Pearl Robinson, the President of the Epworth League, the Misses Moad, McEwen, Sullivan, Alice Smith, Ethel Merkley and Allison. The League wishes to gratefully acknowledge the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Lawson for their home and spacious lawn, and all those who by work, skill and patronage assisted the worthy cause. About $90. was received.

Dear Sister —

Just a few lines this time hoping that they will find you people all enjoying good health, as for myself I am fine again. Well, Elsie I suppose you have heard all about poor Paddy's death. Perhaps you know more about it than I do for I don't know any more than his name was in the casualty list. Poor fellow, I can't believe its true, but I guess it is. Well, Elsie, he was at Church and received, just two days before he was killed. He is better off and he is at rest out of this wicked world. I was talking to him the morning after I was wounded. He was just going on the battlefield so I didn't have much time to talk to him. I wished him good luck and that was the last I saw him. He seemed to be in great glee and high spirits. It was only luck that I came out safely, for my chums were falling all around me that morning, poor fellows. Well, Elsie, don't worry over him for he died a hero on the field, where thousands fall every day. I haven't had a letter from Canada since March. Aunt sent Paddy and I two pairs of socks, I just got mine the other day but don't know what become of Paddy's. I expect to get some snap shots taken and I will send you some. I think I will be going back to France in July some time. I wrote to Jim, Annie and Marie. I was over to Belfast, Ireland on a ten days' sick leave. I sent you all a card from there. Well Elsie think I will ring off, hoping to hear from you soon, and with deepest sympathy for you all, I remain your loving brother, Pte. Dennis Whalen.

Maple Sugar Touches The Spot

The following letter was received by Mrs. Wilburh Edgerton from Pte. Arthur M. Hummel now on active service, Somewhere in France.

France, May 22, 1917

Dear Cousin;—

A short time ago arriving back from the trenches a big pile of parcels awaited distribution to an eager bunch of soldiers among which to my delight I found two for little Willie, your welcome parcel and one from friends out West. The maple sugar was a rare treat for two chief reasons. First because out in the old part of God's country where all things good are scarce, such a delightful sweet is most welcome and second coming as it did from my old friend Jennie, who had time to think of her soldier cousin away out here, it was much enjoyed. As soon as I saw the address on the outside I decided I'd write and with pleasure attempt an expression of gratitude. The socks also are real socks and very necessary and of course the socks will wear longer than the sugar but my it was good while it lasted. Instead of always saying the land of the Maple Leaf I often wonder why they don't give us a change and say "The land of the Maple sugar." Don't you think that would sound far sweeter with a little more weight on sugar. Maple sugar "wins its favour through its flavour" to use a borrowed expression or sentence which ever it is. There are lots of trees in this country but no maple trees. There are some brands of sugar also but no maple sugar. Listen, anybody, anywhere (but Germany) who wants to be a good friend of mine and get a nice long letter from France can work it by just sending a nice sized parcel of goodies from home, with a piece of maple sugar thrown in, to put on the finishing touch. With these few words I'll close with (thanks) and long remember you as my dear cousin with good taste.

You would always feel well repaid for your gifts if you could see how much we all enjoy them after getting back from the trenches, a bit tired and hungry, wondering what a pleasant change awaits us in the form of parcels, letters and freedom for a spell, from the sound and danger of bursting shells. In this way you good people of Chesterville are doing your bit to help win the victory which we are fighting for.

The slow, patient, often tiresome round of the daily routine in every home reaps its reward only after years of toil and worry, speaking of the home where mother's cares and troubles and joys also are always present. All of which makes Gospel truth of the saying "The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world" I often see two pictures when I think of the past and present. When a kid (pardon me, a wee boy) I was and from my first appearance as well as later and now I believe one of my mother's troubles. You know what a little nuisance I was when I used to visit your home, and when I went to school was always pulling off queer stunts, and when absent from school was always getting into mischief, like Peck's bad boy. It is a wonder I lived through it all. The present picture is much different I am still a source of annoyance, to many and only a soldier boy in a war, with many other advanced mother's cares. Have seen a bit of rough stuff and smooth sailing but expect to live through this too. The weather has been very nice and warm for some weeks and all along the line fierce bombardments are going on. Most of the time when not out at rest billets but near the trenches we live in deep tunnels and dugouts 30 or 40 feet or less below the surface of mother earth, where big shells don't get much game. In the supports and front line of course we are near enough to Fritz's shells, when they come over, to feel a bit shaky by times. But most of the time in our dugouts they can't find us and we get relieved in two or three days, another Battalion coming in to hold the trench while we are out for a rest. When the battle begins out we go "over the top" after the Huns in mad pursuit of the villains, half terrified by our artillery on these occasions, which are not very frequent. The casualties now-a-days are surprisingly small. We are winning no doubt and I expect the whole business will end this year. Must close now with once again thanking you, with kindest regards to Mr. Edgerton and the children and yourself by all means, Cousin Arthur.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address E. J. Miss Shannette Resigns Principalship
 It was with very long faces that many children of the public school came home to dinner on Monday, after hearing from Miss Shannette that she had placed her resignation in the hands of the school board and that it had been accepted and a new principal engaged. It is safe to say that the feelings of nintenths of the parents of children attending the public school were much the same as those of their children, when the news was brought home that they would no longer have the protective care and unequalled teaching of Miss Shannette. In our experience it has been without parallel the feeling of safety and advantage with which children and parents, with one or two exceptions, regard Miss Shannette. As a teacher she is perhaps without equal in this county and her moral influence was an asset that could hardly be reckoned in dollars and cents. It has been remarked in our hearing several times that Miss Shannette's chief interests in life seemed to be the prosperity of Trinity Methodist Church and the welfare of the children of Chesterville public school. Her very success has been her undoing here where it has bred the opposition that cannot brook a rival. In providing funds for the comfort of our soldiers in the trenches Miss Shannette has been indefatigable and last fall conceived and brought to a successful conclusion perhaps the biggest single effort put forth in this line in Dundas County. Miss Shannette was the originator of the plan for having the schools of Dundas collect a fund to provide Christmas cheer for the soldiers at the front from Dundas. With a hearty response from almost every other teacher in the County the success of the effort called forth hearty commendation from the great daily papers of every city in Ontario, all extending the heartiest congratulations to Miss Shannette for starting the movement that had such great results and pointing the way for other counties to follow.
 The equipment of the public school has been added to under Miss Shannette's principalship to such an extent, with money raised in many ways under her guidance, that now it holds front rank in that regard, while in the matter of successful entrance students, taking into account the number of pupils and number of teachers in the school, it has led the village schools of Dundas in that respect.
 We have not knowledge of one sufficient reason why Miss Shannette is not retained as principal of Chesterville public school.

MEN NEEDED AT THE FRONT

"One Wanderer Returns" notes in his weekly letter to the Overseas Daily Mail as follows:

"I am writing not from London but in a quiet village in France, immediately behind the front lines of the British army. A few hours ago I was in the fields on the other side of Vimy Ridge, and it is hard to clear one's mind from that scene of war. Picture it. To reach the front one crossed afoot over long spaces of shell-cratered fields and shell-torn woods. A long procession of red-bricked towns and villages stretched out before one from the hill top. French towns and villages now held by the enemy. In the valley one plunged into a ruined countryside. There was constant humming, hissing, bursting in the air. The humming came from the aeroplanes overhead—aeroplanes that often had to sail through masses of bursting shells fired against them. One kind of hiss came from our own shells fired against the enemy front, and following the sound one could see great geysers of black smoke rising up in the distance. The other hissing was of a different kind. Starting low, it grew louder and louder, as though an express train was approaching. Then there would be a sudden deafening explosion somewhere in one's own neighborhood. That was enemy shells.

"Every now and then there came across the fields a melancholy procession, stretcher-bearers carrying in a wounded man. You never realize the reality of war until you stand pitifully in the open over a mangled man as his face goes ashen grey before the end. I went still further out to where soldiers were waiting in their trenches. They had done heroic things. All the world knows of them, for these were the soldiers who took Vimy Ridge and who captured Arlon and Fresnoy. There was no pose about them. This was their job and they were doing it simply and heartily. They gave me a great welcome, for visitors are few here. I believe as a matter of fact, that I was the first civilian to reach this point. They took me along to the fine German dugouts they had captured.
Fritz did himself luxuriously in the days before we turned him out. They showed me the great gun casements of cement, which the Germans had thought impregnable. Our guns shattered them. No one troubled to look up at an aeroplane fight overhead. These fights were too common. The boys were dirty for there are no conveniences for washing in these trenches. Most of them had several days' growth of beard. But their faces were smiling, they were full of jokes, and they were full of confidence of victory.
It was good to be among them, to taste something of their assurance, their cheerfulness, and their good humor.

Here, in the very heart of the front, I unexpectedly came on an old reader of the Overseas Daily Mail. I was hurrying over an unhealthy bit of ground, guided by a tall, bronzed Canadian corporal.
"It doesn't do to linger here," said my guide. "Fritz dropped twelve hundred shells just about here a couple of days ago." The field plowed and full of shell holes, showed what had been done. I asked the corporal if he got plenty of papers. "I haven't much time for reading," he said. "But I always get the weekly edition of the Daily Mail, and I read what is happening in London." When I told him that I was the writer of the letter there was an immediate bond between us. Before the war he had been an explorer in Northern Quebec and Labrador, and he told me how he used to take this paper to one old settler away in one of the most remote parts of Northern Canada, where there was only one mail a year. "It kept him in touch with home." He told me something of his old life, railway building and engineering in what is perhaps the most inaccessible part of the Empire. Now he was in France, fighting for world liberty. And he went on to tell me how when right away from civilization, these weekly letters had brought back to him memories of old times, old days and the old life of the Mother Land. Thank you, corporal!
The finish of the engineers strike was greeted with universal satisfaction. The people of England, outside the small class affected, were solidly against it.

To soldiers at the front it seemed an incredible and impossible thing. "My God!" one officer said to me, "you don't mean to tell me that men in England are throwing down their tools when their work is essential to our success in the war. I can't credit it. What's come over them? Are they mad?" I was walking with a veteran general over part of our front. He had been cheering up the lads, and he and I had just turned away from the last service that could be rendered to a young fellow mangled by a German shell. "If the engineers imperil the lives of any of my lads," said the general, his voice tense with emotion, "if they send them a shell less, they deserve to be shot.
These brave boys are giving their lives and men are squabbling at home over trifles." "Send the strikers to the trenches," says Tommy. "Give 'em twenty-four hours in a nice, well-shelled bit of the line. Then they'll be glad to hurry home and go to work." "Why should my men work day and night when necessary for a little over a shilling a day," one officer asked me, "while the men at home earn their eight pounds a week very often, with regular hours and in safety? Treat them all alike. Give all men the same wage. France has conscripted all her able-bodied manhood.
Let England do the same." "If I struck," said a well-known brigadier to me, "my General of Division would put me up against a wall and shoot me. But then, you see, I'm not an engineer!"

When I return from the front, I am always asked certain questions. Possibly you would like to ask them now. First, when will the war end? No one can say, but every competent soldier I have met believes that we have a long way to go yet. No one at the front thinks that it can be over his year. Some talk of the possibility of two or three years more of fighting ahead. But in truth, no one knows. Any answer must be a guess. But there is nothing to justify one in expecting a quick end. Next question. Is the German losing his fighting power? No, certainly not. But our own organization for war has so enormously improved that we are steadily beating him. The German is still a formidable fighter. The people who scoff at him as a coward or a weakling are simply fools. You must excuse plain language, but this is too serious a matter for polite phrases. It is dangerous and pernicious nonsense to talk as though he was at the end of his resources. His armies are strong, his material of war is abundant, and his tactics are good. But while he is good, our fighting men are better. Our military organization has now reached a point where it surpasses the German, although that was the finest military machine in the world. But we must have still more men. This war is costly in life. It is for you, men of the Dominions, to say if all the lives that have been sacrificed in vain. We must have more men. Will you help us by sending still more? The situation at the front gives us abundant cause for encouragement. It gives none for complacency or for slackening efforts. If we do our part the best we can, all will go well. If we ease off, if we refuse the supplies, things will go very badly indeed.

Under the conditions which he describes can we not see the absolute necessity of sending all available men to the front without any further loss of time, wasted in political argument at Ottawa? As pointed out by Col. George T. Dension in his admirable letter in a Toronto paper there undoubtedly appears to be a German "unseen hand" at work in Canada.

From Somewhere in France.

Following is a letter received by Miss Elma Beckstead last week from a soldier somewhere in France.

May 23rd

Dear Friend,

Your welcome letter to hand which I received safely, also the two pairs of socks which came in very handy. In your letter your neighbor wanted to know if I had any relatives in Smith's Falls. I have not, I have nobody in Canada at all. We are having quite a time with Fritz out here. The boys are well after the souvenir as there isn't much left of them when we are finished with them. The weather here is very unsettled, at the time of writing it has been raining all day, still we are resting in camp, so it is not so bad after all. I guess the trenches will be in an awful state by the time we have to go in again, still the boys are all happy and in good health and that is the main thing. I will close for this time, hoping to hear from you again,

Yours truly

THE TONIC THAT BRINGS HEALTH

"Fruit-a-tives" Builds Up The Whole System

Those who take "Fruit-a-tives" for the first time, are often astonished at the way it builds them up and makes them feel better all over. They may be taking "Fruit-a-tives" for some specific disease, as Constipation, Indigestion, Chronic Headaches or Neuralgia, Kidney or Bladder Trouble, Rheumatism or Pain in the Back. And they find when "Fruit-a-tives" has cured the disease, that they feel better and stronger in every way. This is due to the wonderful tonic properties of these famous tablets, made from fruit juices.

Glengarry School Question Again up Cornwall, June 22.—What has come to be known as the Glengarry School question was again introduced at the present session of the Counties Council of the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry. The petitioners are the council of the Township of Lancaster, and they ask for the detachment of Lancaster township from the Williamstown No. 1 High School District, for the purpose of establishing continuation schools within the township.

The Education Committee in its report to Council, recommended that the prayer of the petition be not granted. A motion was made by Messrs. Nicholson and Robertson to adopt the report without amendment, but Messrs. Sangster and R. A. McLeod moved in amendment that the report be not adopted and that the petition to detach the township be granted and a bylaw be passed confirming same. W. B. Lawson, K. C. of Chest-erville, addressed the Council on behalf of the petition, and Rev. A. Govan of Williamstown and Col. Smith, K. C. of Cornwall, for those opposed. When the vote on the amendment was rendered the yeas totaled 9, and the nays 23, and the petition thus went the way of its predecessors and was rejected.

The State Roads of New York.

Mr. Editor.

As a member of the County Council for the United Counties I have to thank the present Warden, Mr. McNaughton, and the Automobile Club of Cornwall, for a very pleasant outing, consisting of a motor trip over the State roads in Northern New York, which was very instructive to the council and was no doubt intended as a great inspiration for them to build better and more permanent roads for the future in these counties. After being ferried across the St. Lawrence River two miles east of Cornwall to St. Regis, we were taken to Malone over a fine macadam road, called the county road system. From Malone we were driven to Massena over the state road system. I may say that those roads not do appear to the average man as being at all impossible for us to build, but on the contrary do seem to most of us as being the sensible way of building our main roads and much the cheapest and best in the end. With the stone and other material on the ground we have all the natural advantages which were not available to them. The country over which we were driven was principally sand, without any stone, which is the principle material used to build roads. The course followed to build those state roads, as near as we could learn, was first to have a proper width for a roadway; second, and probably the most important of all was proper drainage; third, a proper width, which we judged to be about thirty feet of turnpike inside the ditches and water courses with an even grade to the centre, then for a width of about fifteen feet in the centre of the roadway the earth is thrown out and filled in with field stone to a depth of from one to three feet, according to the conditions of the soil on which is put crushed stone properly screened and finished with a coating of Tarvia and sand, thereby binding and holding the material from being ground up and blown away, also making them dust proof, all of which seemed a very simple and sensible way of building a good road.

Sincerely yours,

One of the Council.

Merkley-Lewis.

On Thursday, June 10th, at 169 Strathearn Ave., Montreal West, the marriage of Roy F.
Merkley of the Wells & Richardson Co., Ltd., Montreal, to Miss Eva Lewis, daughter of Mr. Thos.
Lewis of Montreal West, was quietly solemnized, Rev. J. Martin officiating.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs.
Merkley left on the midnight train for Toronto, Niagara and other points. On their return they will reside in Montreal.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents, among them being a cheque from the firm, with whom she was employed.

Their many friends join in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

Dangerous Storm Predicted.

Next warm wave will reach Vancouver about June 29 and temperatures will rise on all the Pacific slope. It will cross crest of Rockies by close of 30, plains sections July 1, meridian 90, great lakes and Ohio valleys 2, eastern sections 3, reaching vicinity of Newfoundland about July 4. Storm wave will follow about one day behind warm wave and cool wave about one day behind storm wave.

This storm will be of unusually great importance. It will be dangerous and all should be on guard for it. Our success in forecasting dangerous storms is sufficient to cause our readers to take heed without us pressing them. It will be important in another way. Our predicted drouth will be holding large sections in its clutches and the great storms centering on July 1 will be the hope of the farmer in relieving him of a burning drouth.

One strong evidence of that drouth came into view early in June. A persistent high barometer, off our middle Atlantic coasts, is the dry weather dragon and when it appears and sulenly stays there it should be a scare-dragon to all agriculture east of the Rockies; it is there now—June 11—and I believe it will stay there through July, if the storms described above do not scare it away. But there will be war between that drouth dragon and these storms and it is to the interest of every American that those storms win. If they do not then good-bye to the good crop prospects. Watch that battle; it will be fought east of you, between your homes and the land where man's world war is being fought. If the big storms win over the drouth dragon it will be one victory in favor of America and its Allies.

So much depends on those great storms first part of July that we have concluded to postpone writing up July crop weather till next bulletin, dated June 30. If the drouth dragon withstands the great storms near July 1 then the drouth will continue till the week centering on July 20, when another bunch of great storms will appear. We have a hope that the early July storms will win, but some of our citizens may lose their lives thereby.

Germany Calls Up Even the Dogs.

One of the most remarkable sidelights on Germany's decreasing man-power is the calling up of dogs for actual military service. They are not to be used for Red Cross work, as dogs have been employed in the German army throughout the war, but specifically for the purpose of "lightening the burdens" of fighting troops. In the Government-controlled Local Advertiser of May 15, which reached London during the week-end, the following notice was prominently published in the news columns:

DOGS TO THE FRONT.

The army again needs dogs between the ages of one and four years which are healthy, quick, sharp, and not shy. They must be offered gratis. The breeds required are sheep dogs, fox terriers, Airedale terriers, and mongrels of these breeds. The dogs will be carefully trained by expert trainers, and are guaranteed good treatment and adequate food.

They are to serve as watch-dogs for our fighting troops and will at the same time make possible a considerable lightening of the latter's military duties.

Such dogs as survive will be returned free of cost to those persons who now place them at the army's disposal. Offers should be made to the Berlin Depot for War Dogs.

The Noiseless Way.

A brawny Scot was hammering away at the bottom of his wheelbarrow, when his wife came to the door. "Mon! Mon!" she exclaimed, "you're making such a clatter, what will the neighbors say?"
"Never mind the neighbors," returned the busy husband, "I maun get ma barbar mendit." "Oh, but Donal," it's vera wrong to work on the Sawbuth," protested the good woman. "Ye ought to use screws."

Hubby—Well, since it takes two to make a quarrel, I'll shut up.
Wife—Isn't that just like a com-temptible man. You'll sit there and think mean things.

Mr. Thompson, who was present, representing the Provincial Department of Agriculture addressed Council on organization of resources, dealing mainly with the bringing together of the farmer and the laborer and telling of the efforts being made by the government in this connection. From Mr. Thompson's remarks one would judge that the plan followed by the Cornwall Board of Trade is exactly in accord with the government's plan.

a hearty vote of thanks, moved by Messrs. McIntyre and Wereley was extended to him.

Prior to adjournment Geo. A. Stiles, moved, seconded by J. M. Casselman, that owing to the fact that the excursion to New York State on Wednesday to inspect the highways, is more or less of a pleasure trip, and as economy is now being urged, that the members forego their per diem allowance for Wednesday.

Considerable discussion on the matter and on the yeas and nays being taken, the motion was overwhelmingly defeated. The yeas were Messrs. Bergeron, Casselman, Copeland, Meikle, Sangster and Stiles. The nays were the other members of Council.

A report of the balance of the proceedings will be given next week.

Help Save a Belgian Child

The committee of the "Œuvre de la Sante de l'Enfance Belge" (Belgian Children's Fund in Holland) moved by the alarming and ever increasing mortality among the little children of Belgium, have since August, 1916, and with the permission of the German authorities organized the bringing of starved, consumptive, rickety and ailing little ones from Belgium into Holland, where they are cared for, homed, intensively fed, medically attended and clothed for a period averaging six weeks, until they are restored to health. They are then returned to their parents in Belgium, having gained in weight some 2 to 4 lbs per week.

Unfortunately it is not possible to do more for lack of funds, for there are at the present moment 15,000 or more Children waiting in Belgium for their turn to go to Holland, and the number increases weekly and especially since the deportations or slavery. Only a partial alleviation of the sufferings of these poor little ones is possible, but we trust the appeal for the funds made in Canada for the carrying of this work and perhaps extending it, will not be made in vain.

From the point of humanity the little children of Belgium should come before all in obtaining sympathy and relief, and you need only picture to yourself what you would do, were your child dying of starvation, to decide whether you will assist in this good work.

From the point of view of policy, remember that these Children represent Belgium's future and that this generation will have to build up the Belgium to come. How can it be done with a race of Children whose most important years have been passed in conditions of starvation and sickness?

All donations to be sent to the Belgian Consul-General, Ottawa, Ont., (Œuvre de la Sante de l'Enfance Belge.)

"You're a picture," ventured the fresh youth, taking a seat beside a pretty girl. "Yes, a moving picture," she responded, as she betook herself to a seat across the aisle.

Taking Time to Think It Over.

A Tragedy in Real Life

A Mutual Life insurance agent urged a certain man to sign an application for $5000 insurance protection. The man replied—"Give me Sunday to think it over." Instead of thinking it over on Sunday, the young man went away on a motorcycle trip and, meeting with an accident, lost his life.

Leaving the signing of the application 48 hours cost his dependent relatives $5000, a sum which would have been a wonderful blessing to them.

Life is just as uncertain during the days of procrastination as later. Insure now, and do not make your family take chances for another day.

Mutual Life Policies afford protection at minimum cost. Nearly fifty thousand Canadian homes are protected by means of Mutual Policies.

Don't put off until to-morrow what should have been done the day before yesterday.
